Scandal on the Brain.

BY MRS. M. A. KIDDER.

Of all the many maladies
And many human ills,
That rack the frame and fire the blood,
In spite of drugs and pills,
The one that takes the deepest root,
And gives the greatest pain,
And makes the patient venom us,
Is "Scandal on the Brain."

Blighting, biting, trying, rying, Seeking spot and stain, Those are the sure unerring signs,
Of scandal on the brain.

There's Miss Fitz Pray, the dear good soul;
She never thinks of self;
But keeps a record of her friends Quite handy on the shelf!
And when she's nothing else to do,
She takes the volume down, And enters all the scraps and bits Of gossip round the town.

Some people dress and go to church,
With faces long and grim;
And meekly say their morning prayers,
And sing the Sunday hymn!
But just as soon as church is out, Some shady nook they gain,
To ease their minds, and treat their friends, To "Scandal on the Brain."

Says Beam to Mote, oh, have you heard The strange and shocking news, How Mr. Giff and Mrs. Giff, Have taken separate ways?
And how the selfish Politician Gale Was seen—now don't you tell—Cut walking with a married man, I know him very well.

And then there's so much bitter talk About that Nancy Hogg,
They say she really went to ride
With Ebenezer Nogg;
And when the young man started off To leave the forward Miss,
The neighbors heard a faint report;
It must have been a kiss!

Now don't you think last Monday night, When I went out to walk, I met Ned Humble's wife, and we Had such a splendid talk!
She told me all about the fair,
And I told her, you see,
The awful case about the Flints That live at No. 3.

And thus you'll find, wherever you go,
That some will talk and pry, And seek to have a finger in Some other body's pie!
But never mind, they're sure to feel,
Themselves the sharpest pain;
When suffering with this dread disease
Of "Scandal on the Brain."

SYMPTOMS.

Now when you see a person nod,
And wink, and whisper sly,
About what "they say," or have said,
And end it with a sigh!
Just set that man and woman down As rabid; for 'tis plain, They've got the most malignant type
Of "Scandal on the Brain."

A KISS IN THE DARK.

BY HOWARD GLYNDON.

Will you be home to-night, Annie? The person who asked this question, a tall muscular, good-looking young farmer, was leaning upon Squire Moore's front gate talking to the Squire's pretty daughter, who stood inside of it. At the simple words passed his lips he reddened suddenly to the very roots of his hair, as if he had just been guilty of some great impropriety.

He was bashful—extremely bashful was David Winthrop—at least, in the presence of young ladies, most of all in the presence of the girl he loved. No young man in all Wilkes county owned a better kept farm, or talked with more confidence among his cronies of stock and crops and such like. But the sight of a pretty foot or face coming his way affected him queerly. On such occasions he never knew what to do with his hands and eyes, and seemed always to feel like screwing himself into the nearest noose until the danger—that is to say, the young lady—was past.

The state of things being considered, no one ever understood how he contrived to muster up courage enough to enlighten Annie Moore on the subject of his preference for herself. The matter probably remains to this day as much a mystery to him as it is to others.

Miss Annie, however, had a fair share of tact and womanly cleverness stowed safely away somewhere in the recesses of her pretty little head, although it was carried jauntily upon the inexperienced and rounded shoulders of fresh eighteen.

She did not need to be reminded that David was worth, in a worldly way, much more than any of her other suitors, and that he was good looking, good hearted and intelligent enough to satisfy any but an over fastidious person of her class. He was unexceptionable in short, barring his unconquerable and excessive bashfulness, which, indeed, was a never failing source of merriment to the young people of their little circle.

And so when David, in his awkward, blundering, half-frightened manner, began shyly to exhibit his preference for her in various little ways such as waiting on her to and from singing-school, constituting himself her escort when she went Sundays on horseback to the lonely little church in the woods, and singling her out as the recipient of whatever attentions he could find the nerve to pay, at the frequent parties in the neighborhood, Annie did not frighten him out of his budding passion by any show, either by surprise or marked preference, but took it all in the easiest, pleasantest, most unobtrusive manner possible. The girls tittered and nudged each other's elbows, and the young men cracked furtive jokes at the expense of her timid suitor, but she stood up for him like a real kind-hearted, independent Western lass, as she was, and tried to encourage him out of his shyness as far as she consistently could.

She never seemed to notice any of his unfortunate blunders, and very likely helped him along considerably when his feelings reached the culminating point, one moon-lighted Autumn evening, as they were walking together from a corn looking.

That had been just one week ago. Annie had said "yes," and had agreed to take the responsibility of bringing father and mother "around" on the subject. David had not been to the house since. Probably he felt very much like a dog who fears to venture upon the premises of a person whose sheep fold he has plundered. Thus it happened that as yet the powers that were knew nothing of the momentous secret which they kept between themselves, fearing to divulge. And now Annie, who wished to put off the ordeal of avowal as long as possible—at any rate to gain time for one more confidential talk with David on the subject—said hastily, in reply to that stammered query of his with which we have prefaced this narration: "Mother is going over to Aunt Ruth's with father to spend the evening, and she wants me to go too, but I guess I won't. I've been working on father's new shirts all day, besides doing the baby work yesterday, and I'm about tired out." Then she added, before he could reply:
"Don't come until 8 o'clock, I shall be about throputting things to rights by that time."

Of course David was not too obtuse to understand that he was specially favored by this arrangement, and he so far forgot his bashfulness as to petition awkwardly for a parting kiss, which was at once refused in the most inexorable manner possible.

"No, you shan't! There, now! Do take yourself off, will you? I've think I didn't see you forgetting around Em Jones at Deacon Anderson's social last night? I've not forgotten that, sir!"

Oh, now, Annie! Just one!

But further appeal was broken off by a tantalizing little laugh, and when, rendered desperate by this, he tried to revenge himself, at the very moment when he thought he was secure of the coveted bliss and stooped his head triumphantly over his struggling prisoner, the rosy, laughing face, vanished suddenly from under his arm and was off and away up the garden path leading to the house almost before he could realize what had happened.

For one moment David, who stood gazing rue-fully after her thought of pursuit and a recapture.
But before he had time to put his plan into execution his tormentress, after stopping to give one mocking farewell wave of her hand from the front porch, vanished inside of the hall door. So there was nothing to be done but to turn reluctantly from the gate and take the road homeward.

If you could have looked into the family sitting-room at Squire Moore's shortly before 8 o'clock on that same evening you would have had a cheery picture before you. The after supper clearing away was over, for the sitting room was also the room where the daily meals of the family were eaten. The leaves of the old fashioned dinner table had been let down, and the table itself, covered with a bright oil cloth, set back against the wall. The crumpled had been carefully brushed with a turkey wing from the neat house-made carpet, and Annie's workstand was drawn up in front of the ample and blazing fire of hickory logs which crackled cheerily in the old fashioned fireplace.

A beautifully piled tray of red-checked apples and a plateful of cracked walnuts were on it, in close proximity to Annie's coquish work basket, made of pine cones by her deft little hands, and daintily lined blue silk.

On one side of the fireplace sat Mrs. Moore, fat, fair, more than forty, and at peace with all the world. She sat away backwards and forwards at intervals in her low rocking-chair, knitting as she rocked and refreshing herself now and then with a mouthful from a half eaten apple which lay within easy reach, just upon the corner of the table; or touching in a caressing manner with the tip of her foot a sleek, lazy looking gray cat that lay purring and blinking on the hearth rug before her.

Annie sat on the other side of the table deftly drawing her needle in and out of a long piece of white cambric, and with her head as busy as her hands with trying to contrive some clever means of incidentally mentioning the visit she was momentarily expecting to her mother, without exciting the suspicion of its being a pre-arranged affair.
She would have given a good deal to have been able to say in an off-hand manner that she wouldn't wonder if Mr. Winthrop were to drop in; at he was in the habit of calling occasionally on Saturday evening at about this time. But she recollected with a twinge of conscience how hard she had tried to persuade the old lady to accompany her husband on the promised visit to Aunt Ruth's in spite of her fore-warnings of a coming spell of "neurality," which had intimidated her from venturing out into the damp night air; and also she had plead headache as an excuse for not going herself. She knew that her mother was quite sharp enough to draw her own inferences from these two facts and the additional one of her being dressed with more than usual care to spend an evening home.

I shall not dare to tell her now, she said to herself. She'd be sure to think that I might have David all to myself. So like a wise little puss, she was silent.

I'll venture my word on it, you would not have wondered at our bashful young farmer's desperate outburst if you could have seen Annie Moore, as she sat sewing by the fire that frosty night in November. She had just before supper, indulged in what a Western girl would call "a fixing up." A neat-fitting dark chintz dress, looking as fresh as when it had first come out of the village store, a dainty white linen collar and cuffs, and a corsetribbon filled apron of white muslin and a blue neck-ribbon tied in a cunning bow—were the chief items of Annie's toilette. But she looked as sweet and pretty as if hours had been spent in donning satin, lace and jewels. Her rich, wavy, gold-brown hair, was carried in shining folds away from her warm red cheek and caught up in the meshes of a silken net at the back.

Eight o'clock and past! Worried Mrs.
Moore was dozing over her knitting. Her shadow on the opposite wall bobbed about in grotesque mimicry as she nodded to and fro—now crushing the voluminous white satin lows on her apron cap against the back of her chair—now almost falling, while her fat hands at length dropped listlessly in her lap, and her ball of yarn rolled down upon the hearth. Pussy creaking it, was soon busy in unwinding and converting it into all sorts of Gordian knots.

All at once came a double rap at the door —an undacious double rap—which said "Let me in!" so loudly and impatiently, and in such a self-assured manner, that Annie, rendered nervous by suspense, started up with a little scream and set her foot on Madame Puss's tail, who in turn gave vent still more loudly to her amazement and displeasure.

All these three combined or rather rapidly successive noises, aroused Mrs. Moore, and she started wildly into an erect posture, rubbed her eyes with her fist, and exclaiming: "Bless my soul, Annie! What was a'this? Somebody at the door? What time is it anyhow, and who can it be? So late as this, too?"

It is not very late, mother. Only a little after eight. I'll go and see who it is, said Annie, demurely, at the same time taking the one candle from the table.

No! Here, Annie, you wind up my ball and brush up the hearth while I go to the door. Don't that eat!

For the old lady's feet were all this while struggling in the perplexing meshes of the unwieldy yarn.

In her hurry Mrs. Moore forgot to take the candle with her; and as she stepped out into the small, unlighted front entry, she unwittingly closed behind her the door of the room she had just left. Almost at the same moment she put her hand on the handle of the outer door, and opening it, she suddenly found herself in the ardent embraces of a pair of stout arms. A whiskered face was brought into close proximity with her own, and before she could fully realize her position, she received a prolonged kiss—a hearty smack, given with a significant gusto which indicated that the unknown was taking his revenge for some past slight—paying off some old score; for it said, as plainly as words could have done. There, take that! And all this told upon her unoffending, virtuous matron lips!

Oh! Murder! Murder! Tahnt Joshua neither!

For she had by this time divested herself of the impression that it was her usually sober spouse returned in a strangely exalted condition, thus to indulge in such unwonted demonstrations of conjugal affection.

Get out! Get out! I say! Murder! Fire!

Thieves! Annie! Do come here! Here is a man kissing me like mad!

But the intruder had by this time discovered his mistake; and it did not need the indignant plucking and pounding of the old lady's respectable fists to make him relinquish his hold and race off as if pursued by some avenging spirit.

Annie nearly choked with smothered laughter, in spite of her trepidation, now came to the rescue.

Oh, I never was so took aback in all my born days! The mean scamp! Who could it have been? Annie have you any idea?
But that dithful daughter was to all appearance as innocent and ignorant as an infantile dove. She tried to soothe the indignant matron by representing that it might have been (1) one of the neighbors who, under the influence of a wee drop too much, had mistaken the house, and—the housewife! She searched the entry for the missing spectacles, arranged the rumpled cap ribbons, wound up the tangled yarn, stirred the fire—all in the most amiable manner possible—and at last had the satisfaction of seeing her mother subside into the rocking chair, and her usual tranquility of spirits.

But Mrs. Moore was fully awake now.
She had got a new idea in her head; and instead of setting herself for another nap, she pursed her train of thought and her knitting, both together, with wonderful rapidity. At length, copping and looking keenly at Annie over her spectacles, she said:

It may be a queer notion of mine, Annie, but I've a fancy that man was David Winthrop.
Oh! but Annie's face didn't catch fire then! You might have lit any number of candles by it.

These suspicious symptoms did not escape the eye of the skillful inquisitive, who calmly continued: Pears so to me; cause then the awkward way he gripped me with his great paws!

No answer. But Annie was wonderfully busy. She bent over her work and drew her needle through so quickly, that the thread snapped, and then she didn't have time to talk she was so taken up with trying to coax the thread through the eye again!

I flexible Mrs. Moore went on: I don't believe that kiss was intended for me after all.
Do you Ann? Well, of course we know it wasn't. But then I do wonder who it was intended for? And I wonder if you don't know something more about it than you seem fit to tell.

Me, mother?
Yes, said mother, you was mighty anxious to get me an' pa off to Aunt Ruth's to-night, but I noticed you was slicked up extraordinary for all you wasn't going.

Here Annie lost her needle, and went down on the floor to find it.

Now, Annie, she went on. I'm gittin' old I know that, but I haven't quite lost my eyesight yet, nor my hearing neither. I've surmised a little somethin' about the gins' on between you an' David afore now. What are you a playin' possum fur? Out with it, I say.
Taint fair to be tryin' to come it over your old mother.

Thus adjured, our small feminine Machiaval made a clean breast of it, much relieved to find that mother had nuthin' agin' him, and would give father a talking to and bring him around.

But, Annie, said Mrs. Moore, dryly, is conclusion, I want you to tell David I had rather he'd not make such a mistake as that again. I don't like the feel of his big whiskers about my face, and moreover, I don't approve of promiscuous kisin'!

David never heard the last of that kiss in the dark! Old Squire Moore, of course, heard of it and used to take great delight in slyly alluding to the circumstances when all the parties concerned happened to be present.— He would shake his burly sides with laughter at David's evident discomfort and his wife's tart replies, while Annie would hide her face and poke sly fun at her sweetheart, and then both of them would laugh again at the other two until the tears ran down their cheeks.

Never mind, David, Mrs. Moore would say consoling to the abashed lover, let them laugh. He'd have been only too glad to have been in your place thirty years ago. He had hard work to get a kiss from me then. I hope he occurrence will be a lesson to you and Annie agin the un policy of under hand doin's of all sorts, seerin' as how they're liable to end, in such cases in kisin' the wrong one in the dark.

England and Russia.

The "Russian World" gives an account of curious conversation which, it says, took place the other day between a Russian diplomatist and a French staff officer of rank who had just arrived at St. Petersburg from a long journey in Asia. The officer assured the di-plomatist that it was the general impression both in India and China that England would not allow Russia to proceed any farther in the direction of Kh-rasson. "During the last ten years," he added, "the English Government has taken every precaution against an advance of Russia southwards; but it has done this in a quarter where it was little expected that England should extend her influence. Immediately after the Chinese harbors and rivers were opened to English trade, political agents were sent into the interior of China and to its western frontier, and British efforts selected with great care, were authorized to enter the service of the Chinese Government.— It is owing to their ability that the insurrection which had become master of the western provinces of the Chinese empire was suppressed.
Other English agents endeavored to inspire the Chinese Government with suspicion as to the designs of Russia. The Chinese export trade, which amounts to 1,200,000,000 a year, is now almost in English hands. These two States are daily binding together more closely the friendly ties which unite them. I have myself seen the English agents at work in China, and it is evident to me that the chief object of their efforts was to persuade the Chinese Government of the special importance of its western provinces. They have succeeded so far that these provinces will shortly be studded with forts and entrenched camps; troops armed in the European fashion, with excellent artillery, will also be stationed there. In a word," concluded the officer, "I am quite convinced that England is doing her utmost to establish a force on the left flank of the Russian movement southward, which ap-any in ment might be used as a blind instrument of English policy."

IS THE SCHOOLMASTER ABROAD IN AEs-TRALIA? The Colony of Victoria has schoolhouses and likewise local committees of inspection. These schools are under the most brilliant and successful superintendence, these reports of the committee men are:

Visited this school and found present 254 things in a orderly manner and to the satisfaction of all with whom I here conversed with.

I—on the local committee visited this school, and found present 27 children and to all appearance everything going on all right and Mr. — given satisfaction to all parties.

I have this day visited the school, well conducted, great improvement.

Visited the school, roads very heavy, small attendance.

Visited the school, found all in good order and getting on well.

Visited the school, which I found in very efficient state.

Made a visit to school, everything in good order, but a table storm out of it.

Visited the school, organization very indifferent, pensils to short.

CARBONIC ACID IN THE HUMAN BODY.— The quantity of carbonic acid inhaled in a given time from the skin of a man, has been the subject of some curious researches by Herr Aulst, the result of which appears in the Archiv fur Physiologie. The experiments were carefully made, as it is stated, in an airtight chamber, in which the subject for experiment was seated, and through which a current of air free of carbonic acid, was steadily passing while the proportion of carbonic acid in the air on leaving the chamber was estimated by transmission through bulbous tubes, containing a solution of a salt of barium. Thus it would appear, from this unique test, that 62 grains of carbonic acid are exhaled from the body of a full-grown man, through the skin, in the brief period of 24 hours.

"Honesty is the best policy," must have been said by some one who had tried the alternative.

Telegraphic News.

Ottawa, May 10.
In the House to day the report of the Sanitary Committee was presented. Important changes in the mode of ventilation of the Chamber are to be made.

On motion of Tilley that the House go into Committee of Supply, Blake wanted to know when the Government intended bringing in the bill giving effect to the 15th clause of the Pacific Railway Charter. This clause regulates the price to be charged for Government and Company lands along the line.

Tilley said the answer would be given on Monday.

Jolly drew the attention of the Government to the loss of the "Atlantic," and the service of the Rev. Mr. Ancient in saving life.

Mitchell said that the Government fully appreciated the bravery of the Rev. Mr. Ancient in saving life from the ill-fated steamer, and would take steps to secure a suitable recognition of his services, and would consider what could be done for the people who had shared their food and shelter with the survivors. He had long adopted the principle of properly recognizing such deeds, and wanted it understood that in whatever part of the world Canadian life or property was saved, the Canadian Government would recognize and reward the deed. (Cheers.)

It is reported that Export Duty B. sailors will be considered on Tuesday.

New York, May 10.
A despatch from St. John, Newfoundland, announces the loss of the steamer "Polaris," of the Arctic expedition, and the rescue of 15 of her crew by the British steamer "Tigress." Capt. Hall, of the "Polaris," died last summer.

A tornado passed over Bellefonte, Ohio, yesterday, blowing down a church and several dwellings, causing forty thousand dollars damage. Nobody killed.

United States troops have been called upon to restore order in Louisiana.

London, May 10th.
Mr. Mill died of phlegmonous erysipelas, which terminated fatally three days after its appearance, closing the passage of the throat. He left an autobiography ready for the press, and several other completed works.

George Bidwell, one of the forgers implicated in the recent heavy bill frauds on the Bank of England has turned Queen's evidence against his associates in the affair.

It is now believed that Edward Moya and others charged with the forgeries will be speedily convicted.

Rome, May 10.

A despatch from Rome says that the Pope was too ill yesterday to receive the party of pilgrims from France.

Liverpool, May 12.

Official enquiry into the loss of the "Atlantic" opened on Saturday at Liverpool.

London, May 12.

The reported attempt to shoot the Emperor William is contradicted.

London, May 12.

A Russian picket party, under the command of a Colonel in the advance guard of the Khivan Expedition, were surprised by Bokharo horsemen and all put to death by impalement.

Port au Prince, May 4.

This city was visited by a terrible conflagration, in which 150 buildings were destroyed. Many accidents occurred and several fatalities, six persons being known to have perished.

New York, May 12.

An accident occurred to one cylinder of the steamship "Oceanic" in New York Harbor, on Saturday, as she was on her way out, which will cause a detention of three days.

A ware room floor gave way in Petersburg, Va., injuring several persons severely.

Fires reported this morning at New Orleans; loss $100,000; at St. Louis, Mo., loss $75,000.

A terrible tornado, accompanied with great destruction of property, is reported from Ohio.

The Secretary of the Navy has telegraphed to the American Consul at St. John's to inform the survivors of the "Polaris" to Washington. If so other conveyance is presented, the Government will dispatch a steamer to Bay Roberts for that purpose.

THE POLICE OF INDIA.—The Police of India have novel ways of extracting confessions from their prisoners without torture. One method applied to opium-eaters is perfect by simple and sociable. The policeman sits down opposite his prisoner and plays fly keeps an opium-ball running about the palm of his hand. Of course the prisoner suffers like Tantalus himself, and the consequence is that the policeman very soon gets his story and the prisoner his opium. Another method, used where there are a number of prisoners suspected of the same offence, reminds one of similar proceedings in Arabian tales. One man is taken from the number and locked up alone, while his companions imagine that he is in the next room. In this room are several inspectors, who proceed to stonily belabor an empty sack hanging in the corner, one of them keeping up a violent growling. This over, the man is loudly called upon to confess and a constable simulates a confession in a low mumbling voice. All this little comedy seems a stern tragedy to the trembling prisoners in the other room, and when the next man is brought out he is almost sure to make a full confession.

THE INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY.—The bill authorizing a change of the gauge of the Intercolonial Railway from five feet six to four feet eight and a half inches, has passed in the Senate. Hon. Mr. Campbell explained that they would take up a rail and relay it only between River du Loup and Trois Pistoles, the track not being ready for the engine any where else. The cost would not exceed $50,000. There will be a third rail between Moncton and Halifax, and the broad gauge rolling stock would be used upon the Halifax, and the broad gauge rolling stock would be used upon the Halifax section of the road and the Government railways in the Lower Provinces.

FIRE AT THE TANNERIES.—A fire occurred at the Tanneries, near Montreal, on the 6th inst., by which twenty-seven houses were burned and about seventy-five families rendered homeless. The losses are variously estimated at from $15,000 to $25,000. Three or four times, it is stated, in as many years, this village has suffered from serious fires, and yet to this day the inhabitants have neglected to provide themselves with a fire engine. Perhaps this last admonition will prove effectual in curing them of their "penny wise and pound foolish" conduct.

A BARBAROUS SENTENCE.—A Des Moines (Iowa) dispatch says an Indian of the roaming tribe of Menomonee, which infest this State, a few weeks ago murdered one of his tribe. The tribe were then, and are now, encamped on Skunk River, near Colfax, Jasper County. The murderer was put on trial, and it was decided that he should be punished by being starved to death. The Indian was tied to a log in the woods, and several Indians were detailed to carry the sentence into effect, which took eight days. Other cruelties, known only to the Indians themselves, were added to the torture of starvation.

The Standard.

SAINT ANDREWS, MAY 14th 1873.

The Kincardineshire Immigrants arrived at St. John, in the Anchor Line steamship "Castalia" on Saturday morning last. There were also some cabin passengers, among whom were Lewis Carroll, Esq., and Miss Carroll. The Hon. Mr. Willis, on the part of the Government, Mr. Shives, Emigrant Agent, and some other gentlemen boarded the steamer at an early hour, and materially aided in arranging for the removal of the passengers, or a portion of them on board the steamer "Olive" for Fredericton. The Rev. Mr. Cameron, Chaplain of the St. Andrews Society with some of its principal officers also boarded the steamship. The Rev. gentleman read a feeling address of welcome, which was responded to by Geo. Troup, Esq. The "Olive" proceeded to Lunenburg with the passengers, and went alongside the "David Weston," to which steamer the colonists were transferred, and after a pleasant run arrived at Fredericton, where every provision had been made for their comfort by the Hon. Mr. Stevenson, Sur. Genl., who welcomed them in a neat speech, and the Lieut. Governor addressed them in one of his eloquent and happy speeches. From Fredericton they will be conveyed to Woodstock in steamers, the Surveyor General accompanying them up to their settlement. The remainder of the passengers were to leave for their destination on Monday last. They are reported to be the best looking party of immigrants who ever arrived in New Brunswick, and have not come empty handed, as they brought with them $25,000.

The colonists arrived at Woodstock on Monday afternoon, the Surveyor General having accompanied them. Their reception was a hearty one, after remaining about half an hour the steamer proceeded on her way up river; owing to the logs in the river, the steamer could not run after dark, but would proceed next morning to the landing place. The immigrants we learn were contented and happy, the Hon. Mr. Stevenson, who was directing their movements, doing all in his power to make everything agreeable and pleasant. The remaining lot of colonists were expected to arrive at their new homes this afternoon. The people everywhere they pass, manifest great interest in the Kincardineshire colonists.

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE.—The St. John "Globe," has, with commendable enterprise and spirit, initiated the practice of issuing a half sheet Supplement, when important intelligence arrives, or the press of new advertisements curtail the space usually occupied by political or other news.

The "Globe" has also extended its facilities for rapid publishing by the introduction of a new double cylinder Warfield printing machine; this is not all,—the proprietors expend large amounts in obtaining lengthy telegrams from all parts of the continent, thereby furnishing their patrons with the latest and most reliable news; they also make a specialty of giving very full maritime intelligence. Although we cannot subscribe to all the doctrines of the "Globe," still we can appreciate its independence, and believe it is sincere in whatever views it enunciates—but while we differ from it, we are free to say, that it utters some unpalatable truths at times. All we claim for ourselves is, that we freely express our own sentiments without considering whether they please or displease any political party, and we never yet have accused a contemporary of being influenced by selfish motives. When we cannot freely express our opinions, or obtain a living without trucking, or being a mere tool of party, we will bid adieu to stick, type and press. We only wish that our respected contemporary the "Globe" was not in the cold shades of opposition. We mean what we have written, and have written what we mean.

THE "Cala's Times" says.—"Mr. John Campbell, of St. George, has failed in business; also Harris Mercer, of Lawrence Station. Several parties in St. Stephen are losers."

DISASTROUS ARCTIC EXPEDITION.—The telegraph reports from Newfoundland, to the State Department at Washington, state, that a vessel brings intelligence that the steamer "Tigress" picked up on the ice at Grady Harbour, Labrador, on the 30th of April, fifteen of the crew and four of the Esquimaux of the steamer "Polaris" of the Arctic expedition, in latitude 53 30, after having spent 196 days on the ice.

The party saved had been landed on the ice from the "Polaris," which was supposed to be in a sinking condition, were separated from her by a gale which broke her moorings on the 15th October, 1872, in latitude 72 35.

On the 8th of October, her commander, Capt. Hall, died of apoplexy, and was buried on shore, where the crew erected a wooden cross to mark his grave. He had only recently returned from a northern sledge expedition, in which he had attained the latitude of 82 16. He seemed in his usual health, but was suddenly struck down and died.

When the rescued party last saw the "Polaris" she was under steam and canvas, making for a harbor on the east side of Northumberland Island.

She had no boats out of the six which she brought with her from the port of New York. Two were lost in a northern expedition, two were landed on the ice with Captain Tyson's party, one was burnt as firewood to make water for the crew, and the other is on board the "Tigress."

The "Polaris" was in command of Captain Bunting, who had thirteen of the crew along with him, and a plentiful stock of provisions.

She was making a good deal of water, but Captain Tyson thinks not more than when he was on board all the previous fall and winter.

Her bow was somewhat damaged, and it is the opinion of the survivors that they will be unable to get clear until July, and even then, if the ship is unseaworthy, they would have to make new boats to effect an escape.

LIFE-LIKE PHOTOGRAPHS.—Any one visiting St. John, and desirous of obtaining a lifelike and finished photograph, can have their wishes gratified, by dropping in at Hinch's photograph studio, 74 Prince Wm. Street, where we can assure them, they can have a likeness taken "true to nature." The skillful operator, M. Theodore S. Due, is an artist, thoroughly understands his business, and can finish portraits in the highest style of the art, the beauty and finish of his work, commends itself.

We learn that the eminent shipbuilders, Messrs. J. & C. Short, of St. Stephen, are about to lay the keel of one of the largest vessels ever built on the St. Croix. They have built some very fine ships, and their fame is as well established in Liverpool as it is in this county.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Mrs. Lawrence, widow of the late Stephen Lawrence, died very suddenly in a fit on Monday last.

S. M. PETTINGILL & CO., the old and worthy advertising agency, in Boston, have a branch office in New York, and have recently opened another in Philadelphia. We have invariably found this firm strictly honest, and punctual in their dealings.

FIRE.—On the morning of the 9th inst., smoke was observed issuing from Mr. Morris' barn. Mr. Gove, who was passing at the time, with great promptitude extinguished the fire, without alarming Mr. Morris' family. How the fire originated, is a mystery, as Mr. M. had been on the loft about half an hour before the occurrence, and there was no smoke or fire in the loft.

We are happy to learn that Mr. Chipman has so far recovered from his late severe illness, as to be able to leave for England in a few weeks. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Chipman. It is probable that the Hon. Mr. Tilley, Minister of Finance, will proceed in the same steamship.

DR. HARRY GOWE has been appointed Health Officer for Deer Island. The Doctor reports five cases of Small Pox in Wentworth's family. The usual measures have been adopted for the prevention of contagion.

THE BAND turned out for the first time this season, on Saturday evening last, and played several pieces, while marching through the streets, much to the gratification of the community. They have a very fair selection of music, and their playing was highly appreciated. We trust they will, at least once a week, favor the inhabitants in a like manner during the season.

LARGE OX.—Mr. Henry O'Neil, one of our oldest butchers, stole a march on his brethren of the trade in St. John, last week. An immense Ox owned by Mr. Driscoll, of St. Stephen, was being brought to St. John in the steamer "City of St. John," for sale. Mr. O'Neil was on board, and with his usual promptitude struck a bargain with Driscoll, and paid $800 for the beast. Several of the butchers of the commercial emporium were on hand when the steamer arrived, anxious to purchase the ox, and some of the epicures were selecting particular portions of the animal they were doomed to disappointment, as Mr. O'Neil having a regard for his many customers, brought the ox back. It weighs 11 feet, is 104 feet long, stands 6 feet high, and weighs 3250 pounds.

RITUALISM has become rampant in New York. Dr. Hipworth's Church has had "usurers" who seated the big bugs and handsome girls. These attaches of the church have regulation suits, such as Prince Albert frock coats, on ordinary occasions, a swallow tail coat, with a tea rose on the lapels, and white kid gloves on gala nights. These handsome young usurers are imbued with a Chesterfieldian gallantry, which quite captivates the young ladies, many of whom it is reported go to church, just for the pleasure of being seated. These "usurers" purpose having an annual dinner at Delmonico's, at the expense of the church. And yet, this is called the "fashionable" church of New York,—where humble piety, and pure and undefiled religion cannot be recognised.

A NEW SIGNAL LIGHT invented by Mr. Wigham, of London, was placed in the clock tower of the House of Commons, on the 21st of April. Professor Tyndall has recommended it for Light-houses. On the Irish coast there are seven of these lights in use, and one in Norfolk. Common coal gas is burned, but no chimney is needed. The oxygen of the air is brought in contact with the incandescent carbon, which usually passes away in smoke, but which is completely burned by this renewed contact with the oxygen. A smokeless white flame of intense brilliancy is produced. The light is of peculiar whiteness and of great penetrating power. It is said that the light is not expensive and can be easily managed.

ENTERIC FEVER.

Unpleasant as the subject is, there are few documents better worth studying at the present time than the reports of local enquiries issued by the Medical Department of the Local Government Board upon the outbreaks of enteric (typhoid) fever which have occurred during the last few years. The statistics were not very easily attainable from the fact that, for the first time only, an attempt is being made in the return of causes of death to distinguish this particular fever from other diseases of the group known as "continued fevers."

The total number of deaths recorded from this group of fevers in the two years 1867-70 to which the inquiry relates was 36,290. Of these 15,191 were registered as from "enteric fever" or one of the synonyms of the malady; but inasmuch as in many of the registers this particular form of fever is still very commonly returned under its generic appellation of "continued fever," the probable loss of life from the specific form of the disease would amount, it is believed, to 26,000. The reports throw much light upon the particular conditions under which enteric fever is developed and propagated both in towns and in rural districts. They serve, indeed, in respect of rural districts, to correct a still somewhat prevalent idea that enteric fever is only exceptionally met with in these districts.

Reports prove, on the contrary, that there are numbers of country places where the disease is a most formidable malady, recurring at frequent intervals, and often attaining pestilential proportions. They show, in fact, that seemingly insignificant numbers of registered deaths from "fever" often represent considerable outbreaks of this disease in particular hamlets and villages of the Registrar General's sub-districts. Thus, in one instance, 6 deaths were all that appeared in the registers of an outbreak of 60 cases of this fever in a village having 400 inhabitants; in a second instance, 5 deaths alone appeared from an outbreak also of 60 cases of a village of 577 inhabitants; and in a third instance, 9 deaths only from an outbreak of 200 cases in a village having 606 inhabitants—that is to say, one third of the population suffered from a disease, the existence of which among 175th part only is all that is testified to by the registers.

The most constant cause of enteric fever is, as is well known, the pollution either of the atmosphere, the soil, or the drinking water by sewage matter; and of these as might be expected, the latter is by far the most deadly in its operation.

A despatch to the London "Standard" from Vienna reports that the Archduke Charles Louis, patron of the exhibition, and Baron Schwartz, superintendent, have had a quarrel. The Emperor said with the Baron and Charles Louis has left Vienna in anger. There have been from 12,000 to 16,000 daily visitors at the exhibition.

THE COAL MINES OF BRITISH COLUMBIA.—The Marine and Fisheries Department has received a return to the quantity of coal raised by the Vancouver Island, British Columbia; from which it appears that the quantity of coal exported in 1872 was 46,143 tons, while for 1871 it was 34,866 tons, and for 1870 it was 29,699 tons. It will be seen from this that the production of coal in that part of the Dominion is rapidly increasing, and before long will probably figure as a very large item in the exports of the country. Another coal mine, called Wallington Colliery, at Departure Bay, near Nanaimo, was opened in March, 1872; and the quantity exported from there during 1872 was 13,324 tons.

The Mohammedans of Belgrade conceived the pleasant idea of murdering the Christian population of that place wholesale, last Easter Sunday, when they knew that the churches would be crowded with worshippers. Very fortunately somebody turned traitor, or somebody got an inkling of the matter, and such measures were taken that the fanatical Turks found themselves most reluctantly compelled to forego for the time the accomplishment of their meritorious purpose. Religious differences in those sunny lands of the East, are still occasionally settled by an appeal to arms, and orthodoxy is preached with sabre and musket. Conversations under these circumstances are not rare.

THE ATTIANASIAN CREED.—Sir T. Duffus Hardy, in his annual report upon the Public Records, states that, having examined a photographic copy of the Attianasian Creed in a manuscript which had been lodged in the University of Utrecht, he is of opinion that the date may be assigned to the close of the sixth century.

Fearful Colliery Explosion.

After our paper was at press, we learned from the "Daily News," that a fearful explosion took place in a Pictou Colliery, and that 40 men with the Manager were in the mine. A second explosion occurred in the afternoon of the same day, 13th inst. The accident is said to be the result of a strike among the men.

THE BIBLE IN ROME.—The Ultramontane paper, and Observatore Romano, complains that Protestantism has opened in Rome several places for religious instruction and reading of the Bible, and that those places are frequented by many soldiers of the army. Many an honest father of a family, it says, would be extremely sorry to find that their sons are beguiled in those places of mortal sin, and it complains that the Italian Government allows such places to go on undisturbed in what it calls their criminal work of the destruction of so many souls.

"The most elevated newspaper in the world," in its own opinion, is the Sentinel published at Fairplay, Colorado—10,069 feet above the level of the sea.

The Montreal "Herald" published a notice last week by which "all persons in the Old Protestant Burial Ground" were respectfully requested to attend a public meeting.

It is a very pathetic story that a San Francisco paper tells of the death of a deaf and dumb girl, and we might believe it to be founded on fact had it not told us what her last words were.

Browning's new poem is called the "Red Cotton Night Cap Country." Enough said.

Dr. Mackenzie Bacon has published the results on his inquiries into the misdeeds of the phrase "suffering of the brain," and the habit of physicians of associating the term with a certain degree of fatuity, or declining intelligence. Dr. Bacon says that of all the cases recorded in his asylum with this diagnosis, not a single one was such lesion of the brain found to exist on post mortem examination.

Electricity is now used in Scotland for blasting purposes, and five thousand tons of granite were recently displaced at Kinnairdy by one shock from a battery. The explosion was tremendous, and the ground shook like an earthquake.

"TILL DEATH."
Upon her upturned face the moonlight streams; Love's written message flutters from her hands; Within her happy eyes the light still gleams From words that only love quite understands.
"Thine own till death," he sighs; "till death my own!"
And love's securest rapture thrills her tone.

Each word upon her ear in music falls, As when some heavenly aria is sung;
The melody alone our soul enralls,
The words may speak to us in foreign tongue.
Till death! till death! Love never spake till now, Or breathed in sweeter words a stronger vow.

A few short years, and by the waning light Of a September's rainy afternoon, She mutely sits beneath the chilling blight That fell upon her happy life so soon.
Her looks are bent in longing, yet in dread, Upon the faded letter that she holds, While tears like rain fall on the nestling head That hides its gold amid her sable folds.

O Love, thou know'st not time! She reads, and lo!
The years departed open like a scroll;
The old-time flash creeps o'er her cheek of snow; Love's flame relights the windows of her soul.
She hears the end, and with one heart-wrung cry, The last of hope, the first of long despair, "Till death!" she sobs; "O God, since he could die,
The world's a grave, and hope lies buried there!"

O Love! O Death! forever still at strife!
O stricken one! wherefore can ye not hear What omnipresent, all pervading Life Still seeks to whisper in your earth-dulled ear:
"There is no death! All life forever abides!
The shadow ye so dread and trembling see Is but the veil that mercifully hides The glory of your immortality."
—(Mrs. J. G. Burnett.)

When Charles Fox was miserably teased For money by some Hebrew creditors, he told them that he would discharge the incumbrance as soon as possible. "But, Mr. F., name the day." "The day of judgment." "Oh, Mr.
F., that will be too busy a day for us." "Right, Moses, so we'll make it the day after."

Why the Valve Jar is Superior to all Others for Preserving Fruit.
1. Because it is the only one in which the contents can be securely fastened, and cooked while thus fastened, without risk of an explosion.
2. It is the only one that is automatically Sealed, therefore, the only Self-Sealing Jar in the market.
3. It is so simple that no skill is required to use successfully.
4. It is securely fastened when placed in the kettle, and being immersed, the fragrance of the contents is confined in the Jar, a more perfect vacuum produced and the handling of the hot jars easily avoided.
5. It is well known that fruit Jars which are closed with rigid fastenings burst by fermentation, and the effect upon the closet and surrounding is well understood by many housekeepers.
The Cover of the Valve Jar being a perfect safety valve makes an explosion impossible, and entirely obviates every difficulty that exists in other fastenings.
