tion. London, March 18 .-- In addressing meetings held to-day in honor of St. Patrick, John Dillon, Edward Blake and Michael satisfied with Lord Rosebery's declaration in Edinburgh concerning his attitude to home rule. The Premier's utterances proved him to be an honest home ruler.

Discount Rates. LONDON, March 18 .- The rates of discount last week were 14 for three months and 2 for 30 days. The influx of gold remained unabated and everything indiupward. LONDON, March 18 .- The trial of the action brought by Mrs. Holland against Sir Francis Cook, the husband of Tennie Claffin, sister of Victoria Woodhull, for breach of promise and seduction, was begun in the Court of Queen's Bench yesterpromised to make her his wife as soon as Lady Cook should die-the relations between herself and defendant having continued from 1870 to 1880. In 1884 Lady Cook died, and a year later defendant married mitting part of the charge, denies having promised marriage.

When asked concerning her means of livelihood since her marriage to her present husband, Mrs. Holland said her husband had done no work since his marriage to her, and had no money except what he obtained by applying from time to time to Sir Francis Cook in her behalf.

The Busy Old Man.

London, March 17 .- Mr. Gladstone's season of rest at Brighton by no means implies that he has freed himself from the turmoil of politics. He keeps in regular communication with the Ministers, advising them in all matters submitted to him, and has written to the Liberal whips that he is in readiness at any time to respond to their summons to take part in any important division or debate, should his presence in the House of Commons become necessary. The conviction is growing in the inner Ministerial circle that the Grand Old Man's retirement is not final.

The Unionists have decided to put up candidates to oppose the return of the Ministers whose change of office in the Ministry has necessitated their re-election to Parliament. The only exception made is in the case of Herbert Gladstone, who was returned without opposition.

Popular Demonstration Against the Lords.

LONDON, March 18 .- The trades unionists' demonstration in favor of the Employers' Liability Bill and against the House of Lords was in progress all this the Thames and the further side of Hyde Park was filled with workingmen and paupers, brass bands, processions, banners and truck loads of spectators. Before 11 read, and that they are not only being o'clock crowds from the east and north quarters began flocking to the Embankment | them. (Laughter.) This attention is very and along the proposed routes of the processions from the north district came the crowd. The main procession formed on the embankment shortly before noon. Thousands | House of Lords speech, Lord Rosebery took their places in the line and thousands more marched beside the regular parade or walked in the rear. Mounted marshals led the line. Behind them came the unions and the societies marching four, eight or ten abreast. Many women walked with their husbands, some of them leading their little boys by brakes which accompanied the parade from men in the procession were huddled totwo hours to pass a given point just of the unnatural proceeding."

The 400 banners in the procession represented all the trades. One truck carried a coffin draped with the Union Jack, surmounted with the sign, "The Veto Coffin anti-home rule majority from 213 in 1886 of the House of Lords." Before and after to 69 in 1892. The Liberals propose to the truck came groups of signs such as "Down with the Lords"; "No Hereditary further than the timid critics, for he be-Law Makers"; "The Lords Threw Out the Employers' Liability Bill-Let Us Throw by tens of thousands. There were twelve platforms and more than 100 speakers. The most notable addresses were made by Ben Tillett, the dockers' friend; John Burns, Labor M. P.; Joseph Arch, Liberal M. P.; James Rowlands, Radical M. P.; Michael Austin, Anti-Parnellite M. P.; Samuel Woods, miners' M. P.; Charles Fenwick, miners' M. P., and Wm. Cremer, Radical Reform M. P.

All the speakers were interrupted repeatedly with cheers. At every stand the audience adopted a resolution condemning the amendments introduced by the Peers in the Employers' Liability Bill, and demanding that the Government take steps to prevent the Peers from opposing successfully the will of the nation.

Rosebery Repeats His Plain Statements. EDINBURGH, March 18 .- Lord Rosebery was received in this city yesterday by cheering crowds. Thousands filled the streets on his route from the railway station to the Corn Exchange. More than 5,000 Liberals had gathered at the Exchange to hear him speak. The most important part of the Premier's address was his explanation of the statement made by him on March 13 in the House of Lords concerning his attitude to home rule.

"When I spoke in the House of Lords, he said, "I declared with frankness and perspicuity my attitude to home rule. Unfortunately the interpretation which my opponents put upon my words was not what I meant when I uttered them in the House of Lords. If rightly interpreted my words must have carried the conviction to the heart of England that what I said body of the strength of the agitation against | was a truism, although not at all in the sense in which the Unionists interpreted them. The advocates of home rule know that if they were to wait for the predominating vote of England they might never carry anything. The present Government have carried the Parish Councils Bill for England with the Irish vote. It is not necessary to demand an English majority to carry a home rule bill or to beat the English vote in order to convince the English people of the justice of Irish home rule." (Cheers.)

"The situation to which I have referred," he continued, "was a familiar one. The House of Lords, for instance, might be said to have England at its back, yet in or-Davitt expressed themselves as perfectly dinary circles of the country just now the people had risen ten to one against the Upper Chamber." Why his words had been misinterpreted was quite evident. A certain party sought to sow dissention between the Irish and Liberals. The organ of this party, the London Times, had wilfully misrepresented his utterances.

After paying his respects to the Times. Lord Rosebery said that he would leave the subject of Irish affairs, in which the cates that the money market will continue | Government's policy had remained exactly to be easy. The silver market showed few as it was under Mr. Gladstone, and would changes. The Stock Exchange was rather speak briefly of the Government's intenquiet, but the tendency of most prices was tions in other directions. He promised upward. There was a keen demand for that Scottish and Welsh disestablishment should be made Government measures. The Government would also give a day, he said, to debate on the miners' eight-hour bill, and would spare no efforts to secure its passage. The Cabinet were determined to maintain the supremacy of the navy as the best guarantee of the peace of Europe. He himself had often pointed out the dangers of a hereditary chamber. The Government must now face the vital danger of such a chamber, because the Commons could no longer be day. Plaintiff states that Sir Francis thwarted by the action of a non-elective body of legislators. (Cheers.)

What Rosebery Promises. EDINBURGH, March 19 .- "If Mr. Gladstone is absent," said Prime Minister Rose-Tennie Cladin. Sir Francis, while ad- bery on Saturday night, in addressing a great meeting of delegates from Liberal associations in all parts of Scotland, "his inspiration is with us, and it is with that pressing confidence in the Liberal leaders inspiration that the Government means to proceed.

> Lord Rosebery arrived at 6:30 o'clock. He was received at the railway station by the Liberal committee and drove to the Corn Exchange in an open carriage, receiving an ovation from the crowds along the route. The Corn Exchange, capable of holding 5,000 people, was packed an hour before he arrived. The interval was occupied by the singing of political songs, in which the Premier was described as the "Scottish Grand Y ng Man." Many of the aristocracy of Scotland, a large number of members of Parliament and many other distinguished people, including Sir Charles Tennant, were upon the platform. When Lord Rosebery entered the vast audience arose and stood, waving hats and > cheering, several minutes. Upon rising to speak Lord Rosebery was greeted with a renewed ovation and by the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

The Premier said he would be made of stone if he could stand there unmoved. His thoughts went to the past rather than to the present-to the immortal days of Mr. Gladstone's first Midlothian campaign, the memory of which quickened his pulse. Then he made the remark quoted in the first paragraph of this dispatch.

Lord Rosebery humorously referred to being excluded from the House of Commons, saying that it is called a proud position to drive a chariot to the sun, but not being allowed to enter the chariot afternoon. The whole district between it is difficult to explain oneself to an assembly of which one is not a member.

It was somewhat of a surprise to him to find that his speeches are beginning to be read, but a great deal is being read into agreeable, but not when the critics lack benevolence. Proceeding to deal with his famous

"Are we really to believe that in all great measures affecting the United Kingdom we must wait for the predominant vote of England? Why, we would never carry anything. (Laughter.)

"We do not propose to sit on the banks of the stream of time and watch the stream the hand. Many more filled the vans and pass by until it runs dry. For the English majority in the cause we have espoused we the Embankment to the park. The rows of | shall try, as we have been trying since 1886 to bring conviction to the mind of the partgether, and they marched away with ex- ner having the greatest popularity-the ceptional rapidity, yet the line required | most votes. That does not seem entirely an

Lord Rosebery quoted election figures to show the increase of the English minority favoring home rule since 1886. This conversion was shown by the reduction of the continue this reduction. He would go lieves that if they ask for an English majority they will get it. He attached the greatest importance to union. He made no secret of the fact that he does not approach the Irish question on historical or sentimental grounds but as a great question of policy which must be dealt with as an imperial question, and which concerns other populations as much A Liverpool Woman Chains Up as Ireland.

He promised that when the Government receives the fast-ripening demand for Scotch home rule, if he is a Minister he will not stand in the breach to oppose it, and if he is not a Minister he hopes as a man to be in the storming party. (Loud cheering.)

The remainder of the speech was mainly devoted to the support of Liberal measures, including the Welsh and Scotch disestablishment propositions. In conclusion, Lord Rosebery said the recent resolution of the House of Commons shows how strong in the feeling against the House of Lords. This question, however, can only be dealt with on the backing, summons and inspiration of a great popular force. Without that the Government is absolutely impotent. It awaits the people's voice, and when that is heard it will be prepared to take the measures thus inspired; but, while the House of Commons talks of ending or mending the House of Lords, the House of Commons might look to its own mending by revising the procedure of defeat by obstructions. (Loud and continued cheering.)

After the meeting adopted a resolution of confidence in the Government the audience dispersed with loud cheers.

The Easter Holidays-Picnics Down by the Sea-Dr. Bourinot Ailing. [Special to the ADVERTISER.]

OTTAWA, March 18.—The effort to make Clarke Wallace, Comptroller of Customs, a member of the Cabinet has encountered difficulty. Wallace refuses to be in a cabinet of which Hon. John Costigan is a member, because last session Costigan voted for a motion of censure on Wallace. Costigan | He tried vainly to negotiate for its purcustoms at Montreal in order to get him out of the way.

Prof. Robertson, dairy commissioner, has arranged for three monster picnics, to be held in each Maritime Province during June and July.

Paris Exasperated at Anarchism—Welsh Farmers Resisting Church Tithes by Force-Astor a Full-Fledged Tory.

London, March 19 .- Last week's events furnish complete proof of the assertion in this correspondence that home rule will be merged in the larger campaign and will not again come to the front in Parliament for some time. The Irish members find it necessary, for prudential reasons, to preserve an independent attitude and retrain from an open alliance with Lord Rosebery, but they fully recognize the practical good sense of his policy.

Paris Exasperated.

The exasperation of the people of Paris over the Anarchist outrages is so intense that not even the swords of the police will be able again to save any wretch caught redhanded, from the fury of the mob. This was demonstrated in Thursday's incident, when a dozen policemen with difficulty saved from lynching a panic-stricken fellow whose only crime was running away from the scene of the explosion. It is now recognized that the principal incentive to these crimes is inordinate love of notoriety. It is seriously proposed to prevent the publication of proceedings against Anarchists. It is admitted that such an extreme measure would be a dangerous restriction upon the press, but it is argued that nothing else will meet the peculiar

A Revolting and Peculiar Murder. A murder trial, believed to be unique in the criminal history of this country, terminated in the Liverpool Assizes on Thurspeculiarities, but the one which has brought her into trouble was her objection to her husband carrying on an illicit amour. Her duty, judged by the British standard, was suffer in silence. Mrs. Walker, not being made of submissive material, confined herself to the former course, and she protested with such vigor that she is now a widow and an occupant of a condemned murderer's cell. It came about in this way: Her husband last summer imprudently renewed certain relations with a woman of whom his wife had long been jealous. On returning home Mrs. Walker gave him a good thrashing, and as that did not convert him she in a masterful manner hustled him upstairs, chained him to a bedpest in the topmost room of the house, and kept him there to the day of his death, which was Nov. 16 last. During the four months of his captivity he was visited and thrashed every day by his strong-willed and strongnerved spouse. There were several lodgers in the house, and they heard the man's cries every day, but got used to them and never dreamed of telling the police.

Finally, on the morning of Nov. 16, Mrs. Walker finished the novel disciplinary course of treatment by battering in her erring husband's head with a massive steel chain. The doctors said the man's body was a mass of wounds and bruises.

The murder, brutal and revolting as it was, would not have attracted much attention had the victim been some long-suffering wife. What strikes the public imagination is that a woman should dare to kill her husband in such a masculine fashion. and that it is possible for a human being in the second city of the empire to be kept a prisoner for four months and slowly done to death. Mrs. Walker will probably be hanged. The judge, in sentencing the woman, warned her not to hope for mercy.

preaching against idols. He was 29 years old when he returned to Judea. He began to preach, but his popularity alarmed Pontius Pilate. The latter summoned the priests and learned men to try Issa. The tribunal examined Issa and pronounced him innocent. Issa continued to speak to the people, inculcating obedience to Cæsar and respect for womankind. The spies which Pilate set to watch him sent disquieting reports of the enthusiasm of the multitude. The governor, fearing a mutiny, caused Issa to be imprisoned, tortured and tried before the Sanhedrim, with two thieves. False witnesses were bribed. Then governor then called a witness, who, at the bidding of Pilate, had betrayed Issa. This man came, and speaking to Issa, said: "Did you not claim to be the King of Israel when you said that the Lord of Heaven had sent you to prepare his people?" Issa, having blessed him, said: "You shall be forgiven, because what you say does not come from your heart." Turning to the governor, Issa said: "Why humble your pride and teach your inferiors to live in falsehood, since even without that you are able to condemn an innocent man?" At these words the governor fell into a rage and ordered the death of Issa, while he discharged the thieves. The judges, having deliberated, said to Pilate: "We will not take upon ourselves the great sin of condemning this innocent man and absolving two thieves. The thing is contrary to our laws. Do, therefore, as you please. Having thus spoken, the priests and wise men went out and washed their hands in a holy vessel, saying: "We are innocent of the death of the just man." Issa and the thieves were crucified, but on the third day Issa's sepulchre was found open and empty. Down on the State Church.

The Nonconformist farmers of Wales, in order to convince the Government of the necessity for the early introduction of a bill for disestablishing the State Church there, are again refusing to pay tithes. They have adopted Irish Land League methods of resisting and assaulting the sherifi's officers, barricading houses, and even indulging in moonlighting. It is not improbable that the military will have to be called upon to assist the civil power. The Tories are arranging for a new campaign in Wales by flooding the country with orators and literature in the interest of the State

A natural cry of indignation is raised in England against the action of the magistrate who committed a child 6 years old to afterward she was taken with chills and to protest, and if remonstrance failed to the Holloway jail for taking part in the larceny of a few pieces of gas pipe from an old stable. Such outrages often happen under England's infamous system of petty magistrates. The people are naturally joining in "Mr. Bumble's" cry that "The law is a hass." In this case the Home Office interfered and the child was released.

The Williams Tragedy.

Close of the Murder Trial a Brampton.

Walker Acquitted, but MacWhirrel.

Found Guilty.

The Convicted Man Sentenced to be Hanged on the 1st of June-Mac-Whirrell Makes a Sensational Harangue.

(Associated Press Dispatch.) BRAMPTON, March 18.-The great Williams murder trial which has been in progress here for a week ended last night, the jury at 6:45 p.m. bringing in the following verdict:

"The finding of the jury is, MacWhirrell guilty of the murder of James Williams; Walker not guilty." Walker was then remanded back to jail till the Fall Assizes, when he will be tried for the murder of Mrs. Williams.

MACWHIRRELL MAKES A SPEECH. MacWhirrell, when asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him, said: "Yes, my lord, I have. I'm an innocent man and I wish to let the people see that I'm innocent." Turning to the jurors, he said: "You jurors are responsible for my death." MacWhirrell, with his hands alternately in his pocket or resting on the dock told

A RAMBLING STORY of his movements prior and subsequent to the murder. Then for over an hour he proceeded with his statement, alternately pausing to look up at the ladies' gallery and protesting his innocence and to call God to witness that he was telling the truth. He admitted that he went along the Middle road and the Lake Shore road and called at the Williams house and conversed with the old man on Thursday Dec. 14. He claimed, however, that he never entered the house, and returned to Toronto the same night. He repeated the story about buying the horse from the men at Scholes' hotel on Friday night and CONTRADICTED EVERY WITNESS CALLED. He stated that the man who bought the horse from him resembled Policeman Cross very much. He denied that he had the knob in his possession when he left Stabelfield's. MacWhirrell kept on with his rambling story for an hour and twenty minutes, when counsel told him to cut it short. He again turned to the jury and said: "You're responsible for my life. I am innecent. I can look any man in the face and say I am innocent. I am not afraid to face death on the scaffold. I am an innocent man, and you are the murderers of MacWhirrell." ADVISES THE JUDGE. At 8:30 MacWhirrell concluded by requesting the judge not to deliver any sympathizing speech, but to just sentence him, and no more about it. THE SENTENCE. His lordship then sentenced MacWhirrell to be hanged on Friday, June 1. "All right, your lordship," said the prisoner. "I'll have a better chance to get to heaven than some of you, for I'm -The prisoner was promptly suppressed Some women commenced crying, and he shouted out: "Don't cry"; "I'm not afraid to die; I'm no coward."

Business Troubles. MONTREAL, March 18 .- The past week has been the worst of the year for failures in Montreal. Twelve estates have been abandoned, with liabilities aggregating $160,000. In addition to this several demands for assignment were not acceded to, The total mentioned does not include the liabilities of Miller Bros. & Toms, who claim a surplus of $40,000. The latest firm to make an abandonment is that of J. Fortin & Co., with liabilities of $19,000.

Give Holloway's Corn Cure a trial. It removed ten corns from one pair of feet without any pain. What it has done once it will do again.

Of Personators and Others

Making False and Malicious Statements. Through exercising every effort to establish a business upon the principle of giving Good Teas and Coffees at moderate prices, it has come to my knowledge that I have been subjected to personation, untruthful and disparaging comments, at the hands of vertices, the apparently wish to and disparaging comments, as the manuscular various parties, who apparently wish to damage the good reputation my Delicious Blends of Pure Indian Teas and Finest Blend of Coffees are gaining amongst a large number of consumers. I hereby warn the public against the practices of those who stoop to such mean methods. My own agents carry with them convincing proofs of representing me. I simply invite the public to try my goods and judge for themselves. S. FUGE Indian and Ceylon Tea Importing House 212 Dundas street, London, Ont. Telephone, 858.

Mrs. P. A. O'Neil, Hiawatha street, St. Thomas, is one of two claimants as next of kin to an estate of $400,000 or $500,000 in California. Some 50 years ago her brother, Henry C. Next of kin have been advertised for, and a gentleman in Colorado, noticing the advertisement, sent a newspaper containing it to Mrs. O'Neil. Her brother, James Bythe, of Chatham, and she are the next to kin, being uncle and aunt of the last owner of the estate. Fish on a Big Spree.

TIFFIN, Ohio., March 17. - Considerable excitement was created along the Sandasky River north of this city yesterday by the effect upon the fish in that stream of 425 barrels of spoiled beer, which was turned into the stream from Hubach's brewery. The beer was ruined by the recent natural gas explosion in the brewery, and was turned into the river. The beer seemed to collect just above the dam and had an intoxicating effect upon the fish, which were seen disporting themselves in a lively and hilarious manner. A number of the fish were easily captured.

A Senator's Wife Sued. SAUK CENTER, Minn., March 17. -Central Minnesota was yesterday treated to the biggest sensation in its history through the filing of a suit for $20,000 against Mrs. Wilhelmina Keller, wife of Henry Keller, Senator for Stearns county for the past eight years, by Mrs. Mary Kroessen, wife of Louis Kroessen, of this place, the charge being the serious one that Mrs. Keller had alienated the affections of Mr. Kroessen. It is alleged that Mrs. Keller's influence over the recreant husband has been so great for several months that Mrs. Kroessen has been largely without his society and comfort. The Senator was indignant over Mrs. Kroessen's complaint, and said it was evidently drawn to extort money from him. He said he would bring the matter before the grand jury, and that he would have a few people in the penitentiary in the next three months.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

Marie Wainwright on Saturday-Gro smith Tc-Night-"My Colleen" on Wednesday-

MARIE WAINWRIGHT. Miss Marie Wainwright, a handsome woman and an accomplished actress, paid London a visit Saturday after an absence of several years. Two performances were given to fair houses, and both displayed Miss Wainwright in diverse roles, which were assumed with equal brilliancy. Tom Taylor's comedy, "An Unequal Match," was presented at the matinee with the full strength of the company. Miss Wainwright enacts the noble-minded girl of humble birth who noble-minded girl of humble birth who marries a rich artist and retains her sweet simplicity and natural manners amid the formal and affected surroundings of society to the annoyance of her husband who wishes her to become "a woman of the world." She learns the ways of the world and practices them so rigidly on her husband that he pleads for a return to her former artlessness, and she throws aside the mask to their mutual happiness. Miss Wainwright either as the warm-hearted gushing girl or the satirical self-conscious woman was powerful and true. In Augustin Daly's dramatic version of Wilkie Collins' great romance "Man and Wife," which was the evening attraction, the actress had scope for her remarkable emotional powers. Her apparent store of nervous vitality impressed one with a sense of latent force and gave virility to a role, that of the injured innocent, which might have been uninteresting in the hands of a less gifted person. She has no set mannerisms, which are often a false effort at individuality, but is the embodiment of grace. Her liquid voice and distinct elocugrace. Her liquid voice and distinct elocution are delights in themselves. Miss Wainwright is not content to shine by making darkness around her. Her company is a capital one. The work of Nathaniel Hartwig as the villain in "Man and Wife," was superb, and Barton Hill, the leading man, sketched the perfunctory and facetious Sir Patrick with skillful strokes. The troupe numbers fourteen. strokes. The troupe numbers fourteen, and there is not a weak spot apparent. The staging was adequate, and Miss Wain-wright's costumes, set off by a beautiful figure, were pleasant studies for the ladies. GROSSMITH TO-NIGHT. To-night at the Grand Opera House Lon-

But what rejoicing there would have been if Mr. Cahan, instead of being "down among the dead men" himself, had been victorious all along the line.

-Some of the London aldermen who recently were responsible for unnecessarily adding to the expense of the police department by forcing on the chief an extra employe, now open their eyes in amazement at the size of the police estimates, and express the view that the police magistrate, county judge and mayor are not nearly so economical a board as it would be possible to have if one or two aldermen were added to it. The recent experience does not justify this assumption.

-The Dundas Banner fitly points out that Mr. W. R. Meredith, who is a lawyer, is willing to abolish the Minister of Agriculture from the Ontario Cabinet, although Mr. Dryden is a farmer. But he says not a word about abolishing the Minister of Agriculture from the Dominion Cabinet. although Mr. Angers is a lawyer. That is no new line of policy. Not so long ago, Mr. Meredith canvassed from house to house to secure the election of a Minister of Agriculture who is a brewer.

-MacWhirrell has been convicted of the brutal murder of old Mr. Williams at Port Credit, though, Birchall-like, he protests his innocence. The evidence was circumstantial, but in a great many cases of murder, resulting from greed, that is the only class of evidence available, and when, as in the case of this man, it is so very strong, and the accused is unable to prove a reasonable alibi, a verdict of guilty is to be expected. Shiftless habits, with a liking for intoxicants, seem to have accelerated the condemned man's journey on the downward path.

CIVIL SERVANTS AND DEBT.

London butchers, bakers and drygoods merchants are petitioning the House of Commons to make civil servants' debts recoverable by garnishee, as other employes' debts are. The prayer of the petition should be granted. We do not know that there are very many civil servants in London who fail to pay their debts in a reasonable time, but it is known that in some cities dealers have much trouble with this class of the community. The system of discriminating in favor of the civil servants, either in this matter or in providing an income for them after they have reached a certain age, is wrong. We have never been able to see why this democratic country should follow the example of old world countries and regard civil servants as a class in the community that should be hedged about with privileges and exemptions not extended to other citizens. The theory on which the Government exempts them from pains and penalties that fall on us who are the common people is the absurd one that they are "the Queen's servants," and that it would never do to let "Her Majesty's mervice" collapse through her servants getting into a snarl with their creditors! Now, we know many civil servants who desire no privileges at the expense of their fellows, and who do not wish to accept the flimsy excuse for a continuance of the present anomaly set forth in the explanation here given. Those who do are of two classes. They are either underpaid. as compared with favorites in the service. or they are extravagant, and cannot control their expenditures. In the one case, the cure is to be found in a leveling up of remuneration, and in the other it is probable that only by experiencing the full inconvenience of living beyond one's means will a reformatory turn be taken. But in any case, there are no good grounds for extending privileges to servants of the country any more than to employes of private individuala

CHARGES AGAINST JUDGES. The Hamilton Spectator does not defend Judge Palmer, of New Brunswick, against whom serious charges have been made; but it thinks that Sir John Thompson was justified in accepting the judge's resignation, without full investigation, because "no individual assumed responsibility for any statement affecting the judge." After the experience of Mr. Lister, M.P., in the London seat-stealing case, the public have a right to assume that when the present Administration desires to shield a wrongdoer, even though he is a judge, it will not order an investigation into charges formulated and laid before Parliament on the responsibility of a member of the House. Mr. Lister undertook to prove that Judge Elliot acted in a grossly partisan manner during the campaign in which he finally gave Mr. Hyman's seat to his patron, Mr. Carling. Mr. Lister undertook to prove that while the case of the bogus votes which Judge Elliot finally counted was before that functionary, he was busy writing editorials for the Free Press and arguing that Mr. Hyman should not be elected. Mr. Lister undertook to prove that Revising Officer Fraser, after due process of law, purged the lists of the bogus names that Judge Elliot finally counted when he found they were necessary to secure the return of Mr. Carling. Mr. Lister undertook to prove that the decision of Judge Elliot was contrary to the judgment of six Superior Court judges before whom the matter was taken, though, unfortunately for justice, the Dominion Franchise Act gave the county judge the right to finally decide as he pleased. Mr. Lister was ready to prove that Judge Elliot, in his written judgment, professed to be waiting for the decision of the Court of Appeal, in order to carry it out, whereas when that decision was given, he expressed the utmost contempt for it. In face of a knowledge of these facts, what was the decision of Sir John Thompson? To judge by our Hamilton contemporary's declaration one could reasonably have expected that he would say to Judge Elliot,

"These are serious allegations. As a friend of yours I take it for granted that you are not guilty and that you will be delighted to secure at my hands a commission to make a searching investigation that will acquit you, and bring to severe punishment your libellers." If Sir John Thompson did so, the answer made to the presentation of the accusations against the judge on the floor of Parliament betokens the reply that was received from those guilty of stealing Mr. Hyman's seat. Mr. Lister was told that there could be no committee of investigation-that the charges would not be investigated-that Judge Elliot chose rather to lie under the imputations made against him than have the true inwardness school management recently, were very of the scandal laid bare on the oaths of much admired. those who in any way participated in it. ROSEBERY IN ED INBURGH. The northern home of the new British Premier is situated but a few miles from Edinburgh, the Scottish capital, in which Lord Rosebery had a warm welcome on Saturday night. Not even Gladstone has been received with greater enthusiasm by the Auld Reekie multitude. To the progressive Liberal-aye, to the Radicalthe Prime Minister's speech will give great cheer. It proves that Lord Rosebery is as advanced in his views as his illustrious predecessor, and that on several vital points of public policy he is prepared to take a step forward. Lord Rosebery effectively cleared up a point in his recent speech in the House of Lords which had given much comfort to the enemies of Liberalism. He was represented as having said that before Ireland could be allowed to control her local affairs, the Liberals must have a majority in England, as well as in Scotland, Ireland and Wales, Lord Rosebery, recogizing the unity of the three kingdoms, asserted that an enemythe London Times-had misrepresented him, and pointed out that to Irish votes the English people were indebted for the passage of the Parish Councils Bill. Lord Rosebery promises that the measures for disestablishing the churches in Wales and Scotland-thus placing all religious bodies on an equality -will be made Government measures, and that the Administration will give every possible assistance to pass the miners' eight hour law. It he had added that these measures will also have the support of the Irish members, and that their passage, if it is accomplished, will be made possible by the votes of the men who represent the overwhelming proportion of the Irish people, he could have further demonstrated the union of the British and Irish democraties. Lord Rosebery's followers have been called "Separatists"; his opponents could be more justly given that offensive title, seeing that after these long years of union they try to make it hold good that one member's vote is not as good as that of another, no matter what part of the United Kingdom he represents. Lord Rosebery's speech will tend to cement the forces at his back in the coming struggle with class privilege. Once again, he says that the Lords can get no quarter if they interfere with the deliberate decision of the chosen representatives of the people.

> ANOTHER FLOP. (Sarnia Observer.)

Speaking in the House of March 11, 1886, Mr. Meredith said: "From an economical point of view the abolition of Government House would be of little service, because there would be an immedi ate demand for an increase of the salaries of Lieutenant-Governors, and as Ontario had paid the largest share of the taxation of the Dominion she would gain nothing by the change. But that does not hinder Mr. Meredith supporting the "three years from now" bill of Mr. Marter to perform this "little service" out of which Ontario would "gain nothing."

SHALL SICK PRISONERS ALL GO FREE?

Messrs. McGreevy and Connolly, charged with conspiracy to rob the Government, were pardoned out of jail after having served one-fourth of their sentence of a year's imprisonment. The excuse was that "the Dominion Government having been convinced that the imprisonment was telling on the health of the prisoners, it would be the greatest injustice to keep them confined." Such an extraordinary expedient to get prisoners out of jail is not often adopted, and if it were adopted, does any. one for a moment believe that Sir John Thompson, as Minister of Justice, would listen to it? Let anyone go to the Kingston Penitentiary, to the penitentiaries in Manitoba, British Columbia, Quebec or New Brunswick to-day, and he will find in each institution more than one prisoner whose health has been impaired by confinement. When, in the case of an ordinary prisoner, ill-heal this noticed, the penitentiary doctor orders confinement and treatment in the prison hospital, but only when it is found that a prisoner is in a dying condition, or can only be kept alive by being given his freedom, are the prison gates opened to him. Messrs. McGreevy and Connolly were not ordinary prisoners. One was the treasurer of the Quebec Conservatives and the other had conspired with his associates jointly to make money and to supply funds to carry elections. They were sent to prison not because they were more guilty than Caron and others, against whom charges had been made in Parliament. But these charges were not permitted to come to trial. Sir John Thompson dared not let them come to trial. He determined that McGreevy and Connolly should be the scapegoats for the prolonged debauchery of the constituencies by the men in power at Ottawa; but the moment that they threatened to tell all they knew. that moment was an excuse of ill-health accepted as a reason why they should be given their liberty.

The case will again come before Parliament. Steps should certainly be taken to find if it is to be accepted as a precedent. If it is, the prisoner who contracts a bad cold, takes the measles, or manages to look sallow or sunken-eyed when a medical man is sent to see him will be able to receive his pardon. If not, why not? The precedent now set may have an important effect in reducing the prison population all over the Dominion.

WHO IS BENEFITED ? (North American Review.)

Our farmer sells on the basis of Liverpool prices in the market of the world. He buys home productions at a protected price, and thus he is hit both ways. The manufacturer sells his goods at his own protected price, and, as a matter of fact, no matter how it may be glossed over, hires his laborer in the markets of the world as cheaply as possible, and thus he profits on both sides. It would appear certain from these considerations that the farmer is not the man benefited by the tariff, and the ordinary laborer is nearly as much the victim as the farmer, for the very protection that excludes foreign products from our shores forces the foreign worker to emigrate here when labor is already in excess, and adds to the army of the unemployed, and reduces the pay of those employed.

A LONG RIDE. Harry La Verne has ridden from San Francisco to Galveston, Texas. The distance is 2,184 miles, and he covered it in 92 days, an average of nearly 24 miles daily. He made the trip for pleasure, and used 28 horses on the journey. The hardest moved to the hospital in an unconscious time experienced during the trip was in condition, where he died in the afternoon. making the desert country from Indio to is necessary to drink a good deal of water on the desert, even in midwinter, and as the supply ran short at this period, a good deal of suffering was gone through with by the horse and rider. They had no water for 50 hours, which is a serious matter in the desert lands. Mr. La Verne says that hard times and idle men are the two things that impressed him most during the journey. No one can estimate the great number of men roaming about looking for employment.

BASEBALL. NEW RULES. Harry Wright, the chief of the baseball umpires, is at work making changes in the instructions to the staff, and wording some of the rules so that they cannot be misunderstood. He points out that the change in the rules in relation to being hit by a pitched ball, and bunt hits, will throw more responsibility on the umpires. Everything is now left to the judgment of the umpire. If, with two strikes and three balls called. a batsman is hit by a pitched ball, he may be declared out, instead of being sent to first base, providing he swings his bat as if to hit at the ball.

It often happens that a batsman, especially when two strikes have been called, will set himself with such determination to hit the next good ball that he will involuntarily swing his bat, although he may have no other intention than to get away from the ball, which he sees is going to hit him. The opposing team will of course claim that the batsman tried to hit the ball, and many a wrangle will be the result. The new rule will give the pitcher an additional advantage over the batsman. In case of bunted balls the umpire's judgment will also be called into play more frequently than of old. Every foul bunt will count as a strike, while an ordinary foul hit goes for nothing. The umpire must watch the batsman as well as the ball.

An American Bark Struck by an

Bo'tom With All on Board.

NEW YORK, March 18 .- The steamer Vena, which has arrived here from Portuguese ports and the Azores, brought word that the bank Montgomery Castle, which left this port with a cargo of oil on Jan. 27, put in at Fayal in the Azores lately with her captain, first and second officers and seven of her crew missing, the ten men having been drowned in a storm which the bark encountered a short time before, and in which she was badly damaged. The survivors reported that their companions were lost near the Island of Pico, in the Azores. A terrible storm had made the seas very high, and the ship rolled heavily Great Convention of Railroad Embut behaved well under the circumstances. Unexpectedly, however, a tremendous sea boarded the vessel, washing off everything movable from the deck, and smashed in The Importation of English Chorus the cabin, flooding it and wrecking everything in it.

The loss of life was not discovered until the waters subsided, and then not a trace of them could be seen. Only six of the crew were left, and these were mostly boys, ignorant of navigation. Not an officer had been saved. The compass and all other navigation instruments had also washed overboard. There remained nothing for the young sailors to do but to let the vessel drift while they kept a lookout for a chance sail. The chief danger was that the bark would be driven on one of the neighboring islands. They were spoken by one vessel, but the only assistance that could be given them was the promise of reporting their position as soon as possible. This was done, and the Fayal sailors found the bark and took her in.

DEATH OF A MURDERER.

Veney, the Amherstburg Man Who Killed His Wife, Dies in the Penitentiary.

WINDSOR, March 18 .- Anderson Venev. the wife murderer, has died in the Kingston Penitentiary. In the fall of 1892, one Sunday evening, the citizens of the town of Amherstburg were horrified when the news spread that Anderson Veney, a colored man, had cut his wife's throat from ear to ear, and then tried to cut his own. Veney was taken to Sandwich jail, and he was in that institution but a short time when a change seemed to come over him. He would sit in his cell all day with his head bowed on his breast, refusing to notice or peak to anybody. For a long time he refused to eat, and slowly but surely was starving himself to death. Then the jail officials got him to eat something, but his demeanor did not change.

Dr. Bucke, the superintendent of the London Asylum, who is considered one of the highest authorities on insanity in Canada, came and saw Veney and pro-nounced him sane. When the trial came on it was proven that Veney and his wife seemed very happy until a few months before the murder, when he became morose and sullen at times, and accused her of infidelity. Dr. Bucke's evidence was of nearly four hours' duration. He went very fully into the case, gave the different phases of insanity and said that after a thorough examination of Veney, he had no doubt he was sane, and that his strange conduct was caused by his brooding over the murder. Drs. Senator and H. R. Casgrain corroborated the testimony of Dr.

For the defense, Dr. James Samzon was the principal witness. He was of the opinion that Veney was out of his mind: that he had softening of the brain, and would die within a year. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty, but recommended him to mercy, and the Minister of Justice, commuted the sentence to imprisonment for life. Veney was not long in the penitentiary before he had to be removed to the hospital, his death resulting as stated.

Girls to be Prevented.

Arrangements have been made for a convention of all railroad employes of the United States, Canada and Mexico, to be held in New York May 27, 28 and 29. Three main objects for calling the convention are, to enact proper laws to protect employes' interests; secondly, they will resolve to act in concert in the election of men to Congress who will probably represent their interests. A third object is to eliminate to strike and adopt the more desirable method of arbitration.

A careful investigation is to be made of the expected arrival of chorus girls at New York from England. These chorus girls, it is alleged, come under contract from England with the D'Oyley Carte Company. George Ganz, the secretary of the Singing Girls' Mutual Protective Association, has schooner Cleddu Belle, which has arrived at St. Johns. Nild., reports that during a against their being landed. In Congress-The Tariff Bill. WASHINGTON, D. C., March 18.-The finance committee has decided to report the tariff bill Tuesday or Wednesday next with the agreement that debate shall not begin until Monday, April 2.

We, the Liberal party of Canada, in convention assembled declare: That the customs tariff of the Dominion should be based, not as it now is, upon the protective principle, but upon the requirements of the public service.

That the existing tariff, founded upon an by the Government as a corrupting agency, wherewith to keep themselves in office, has developed monopolies, trusts and combinations:

It has decreased the value of farm and other landed property;
It has oppressed the masses to the enrichment of the few;

It has checked immigration: It has caused great loss of population; It has impeded commerce; It has discriminated against Great Britain. In these, and in many other ways, it has occasioned great public and private injury, all of which evils must continue to grow in intensity so long as the present tariff system remains in force.

That the highest interests of Canada demand a removal of this obstacle to our country's progress, by the adoption of a sound fiscal policy, which, while not doing injustice to any class, will promote do mestic and foreign trade and hasten the return of prosperity to our peo le

That to that end, the tariff should be reduced to the needs of honest, economical and efficient government

That it should be so adjusted as to make free, or to bear as lightly as possible upon the necessaries of life and should be so arranged as to promote freer trade with the whole world, more particularly Great Britain and the United States

We believe that the resu ts of the protective system have grievously disappointed thousands of persons who honestly supported it, and that the country in the light of experience is now prepared to declare for a sound fiscal policy.

The issue between the two political parties on this great question is now clearly defined. The Government themselves admit the failure of their fiscal policy, and now profess their willingness to make some changes, but they say that such changes must be based only on the principle of protection.

We denounce the principle of protection as radically unsound and unjust to the masses of the people, and we declare our conviction that any tariff changes based on that principle must fail to afford any substantial relief from the burdens under which the country labors.

This issue we unhesitatingly accept and upon it we await with the fullest condence the verdict of the electors of Canada. uibbons' Toothache Gum acts as a

"Turn to the Right."

"Then why did you come?" she said viciously. "I was engaged to come by those whom you have mentioned, and there, and there only am I in tault. They intrusted to me a token which I have lost. For that I crave your pardon."

"You have need to," she answered bitterly, yet with a changed countenance, or I was mistaken, "if your story be true, sir."

"Ay, that you have!" the woman beside her echoed. "Hoity toity, indeed! Here is a fuss about nothing. You call yourself a gentleman, and wear such a doublet as—"
"Peace, Franchette!" mademoiselle said
imperiously. And then for a moment she stood silent, eying me intently, her lips trembling with excitement and two red spots burning in her cheeks. It was clear from her dress and other things that she had made up her mind to fly had the token been forthcoming; and seeing this, and knowing how unwillingly a young girl is to forego her own way, I still had some hopes that she might not persevere in her distrust and refusal. And so it turned out.

Her manner had changed to one of quiet scorn when she next spoke, "You defend yourself skillfully, sir," she said, drumming with her fingers on the table and eying me steadfastly. "But can you give me any reason for the person you name making choice of such a messenger?"

"Yes," I enswered boldly. "That he may not be suspected of conniving at your es-

"Oh!" she cried, with a spark of her former passion. Then it is to be put about that Mademoiselle de la Vire had fled from Chize with M. de Marsac, is it? 1

"Through the assistance of M. de Marsac," I retorted, correcting her coldly. "It is for you, mademoiselle," I continued, "to weigh that disadvantage against the unpleasantness of remaining here. It only remains for me to ask you to decide quickly. Time presses, and I have stayed here too

The words had barely passed my lips when they received unwelcome confirmation in the shape of a distant sound—the noisy closing of a door, which, clanging through the house at such an hour-I judged it to be after three o'clock—could scarcely mean anything but mischief. This noise was fol-lowed immediately, even while we stood listening with raised fingers, by other sounds—a muffled cry, and the tramp of heavy footsteps in a distant passage, Mademoiselle looked at me, and I at her woman.

"The door!" I muttered. "Is it looked?"
"And bolted!" Franchette answered; "and a great chest set against. Let them ramn; they will do no harm for a bit." 'Then you have still time, mademoiselle,'

I whispered, retreating a step and laying my hand on the curtain before the window. Perhaps I affected greater coolness than I "It is not too late. If you choose to remain, well and good. I cannot help it. If, on the other hand, you decide to trust yourself to me, I swear, on the honor of a gentlemen, to be worthy of the trust-to serve you truly and protect you to the last! 1 can say no more.

She trembled, looking from me to the door, on which someone had just began to knock loudly. That seemed to decide her. Her lips apart, her eyes full of excitement, she turned hastily to Franchette.
"Ay, go if you like," the woman answered doggedly, reading the meaning of her look. "There cannot be a greater villain than the one we know of. But once started, heaven help us, for if he overtakes us we'll pay enough. The noise each second, and began to be mingled with to be." angry appeals to Franchette to open, and with threats in case she delayed. I cut the matter short by snatching up one of the saddle-bags—the other we left behind—and flung back the curtain which covered the window. At the same time the woman dashed out the light-a timely precautionand throwing open the casement I stepped on to the balcony, the others following me

The moon had risen high, and flooding with light the small open space about the house enabled me to see clearly all round the foot of the ladder. To my surprise Fresnoy was not at his post, nor was he to be seen anywhere; but as, at the moment I observed this, an outcry away to my left, at the rear of the chateau, came to my ears, and announced that the danger was no longer confined to the interior of the house. I concluded that he had gone that way to intercept the attack. Without more ado, therefore, I began to descend as quickly as I could, my sword under one arm and the bag under the other.

I was half way down, and mademoiselle was already stepping on to the ladder to follow, when I heard footsteps below, and saw him run up, his sword in his hand.

"Quick, Fresnoy!" I cried. "To the horses and unfasten them! Quick!" I slid down the rest of the way, thinking he had gone to do my bidding. But my feet were scarcely on the ground when a tremendous blow in the side sent me staggering three paces from the ladder. The attack was so sudden, so unexpected, that but for the sight of Fresnoy's scowling face, wild with rage, at my shoulder, and the sound of his fierce breathing as he strove to release his sword, which had passed through my saddle-bag, I might never have known who struck the blow, or how narrow had been

Fortunately the knowledge did come to me in time, and before he freed his blade; and it served my hand. To draw my blade at such close quarters was impossible, but, dropping the bag which had saved my life, I dashed my hilt twice in his face with such violence that he fell backwards and lay on the turf, a dark stain growing and spreading on his upturned face.

It was scarcely done before the women reached the foot of the ladder and stood beside me. "Quick!" I cried to them, "or they will be upon us." Seizing mademoiselle's hand, just as half a dozen men came running round the corner of the house, I jumped with her down the haha, and, urging her to her utmost speed, dashed across the open ground which lay between us and the belt of trees. Once in the shelter of the latter, where our movements were hidden from view, I had still to free the horses and mount mademoiselle and her woman, and this in haste. But my companions' admirable coolness and presence of mind, and the objection which our pursuers, who did not know our numbers, felt to leaving the open ground, enabled us to do all with comparative ease. I sprang on the Cid (it has always been my habit to teach my horse to etand for me, nor do I know any accom-plishment more serviceable at a pinch), and siving Fresnoy's gray a cut over the flanks which dispatched it ahead, led the way town the ride by which I had gained the hateau in the afternoon. I knew it to be evel and clear of trees, and the fact that was those it might through the property of the same ck for a time, by leading them to think 864.

we had taken the south road instead of that through the village.

CHAPTER V. We gained the road without let or hindrance, whence a sharp burst in the moonlight soon brought us to the village. Through this we swept on to the inn, almost running over the four evangelists, whom we found standing at the door ready for the saddle. I bade them, in a quick peremptory tone, to get to horse, and was overjoyed to see them obey without demur or word of Fresnoy. In another minute, with a great clatter of hoofs, we sprang clear of the hamlet, and were well on the road to Melie, with Poitiers some thirteen leagues before us. I looked back, and thought I discerned lights moving in the direction of the chateau; but the dawn was still two hours off, and the moonlight left me in doubt whether these were real or the creatures of my own fearful fancy.

I remember, three years before this time, on the occasion of the famous retreat from Angers—when the Prince of Conde had involved his army beyond the Loire, and saw himself, in the impossibility of recrossing the river, compelled to take ship for England land, leaving every one to shift for them-selves—I well remember riding, alone and pistol in hand, through more than 30 miles of the enemy's country without drawing rein. But my anxieties were then confined to the four shoes of my horse. The dangers to which I was exposed at every ford and cross road were such as are in seperable from a campaign, and breed in generous hearts only a fierce pleasure, rarely to be otherwise enjoyed. And though I then rode warily, and where I could not carry terror, had all to fear myself, there was nothing secret or underhand in my business. (To be Continued.)

DAIRY METHODS.

Important Meeting Held at Paisley-Pertinent Points for Farmers to Remember.

PAISLEY, Ont., March 18 .- An important dairy meeting was held under the auspices of the Ontario Creamery Association, in the town hall, Friday. The chair was taken by Mr. Samuel Ballachey, of the Paisley creamery, who, after a few timely remarks, called upon Mr. James B. Muir, president of the North Bruce Farmers' Institute. Mr. Muir gave some valuable hints in regard to successful dairying, laying special emphasis on the necessity of farmers improving their herds by judicious feeding and comfortable housing. He also dealt at considerable length on the good and bad points of cows, and urged the use of the Babcock tester. Altogether his address was very practical, and many valuable lessons were taught to those present. The next speaker was Mr. Alex. E.

Wark, a specialist in dairy farming, and especially in the manufacture of butter, and the degree of success which he has attained is shown from the fact that he was one of the five in Ontario who won a gold medal and diploma at the World's Fair for his butter. Mr. Wark believed that to be a successful dairyman a man must be a good man. Kinduess, he said, was absolutely necessary, and cows should be handled with care instead of with a pitchfork, as was too often the case. Canada had won the place which she now holds in the cheese business largely through just such meetings as these, and by well-directed efforts and the help of the Ontario Creamery Association they could down the world in the manufacture of butter.

The next speaker was Mr. John Hannah, of Seaforth, secretary of the Ontario Creamery Association. Mr. Hannah showed clearly that there was no fear of an over-production in butter if farmers kept an eye to producing a No. 1 article. At the request of a number of farmers he gave his method of growing corn on clay lands, proving beyond a doubt that the old idea that corn could not be grown on clay land was a very erroneous one, and had no doubt hindered the introduction in these parts of the silo.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the peakers, which brought to a close a very successful dairy meeting.

Early in the evening Mrs. McKenzie went out to attend prayer meeting leaving her husband in the house with the children. On her return she found that he had gone out about half an hour before, taking with him the rope the children had been playing with. A search of the premises soon revealed him hanging by the rope from a hook in the woodshed. A note bidding his wife good-bye and say-ing he had already lived too long was found in his pocket.

Dear Sir—I am pleased to add my statement to the great number you have alreadyreceived, recommending in the highest terms Williams' Royal Crown Remedy and Pils. A Mr. Scott called at my home about six years ago and told my wife of the virtues contained in this marvelous liquid, and my wife and he persuaded me to buy two bottles of the remedy. It did me so much good that I bought six bottles, and we nave found it a great remedy for many complaints and it has been of great benefit to us and our friends, and has lessened our doctors' bills from those of former years. We have kept some of the Royal Crown Remedy on hand ever since we first tried it (over six years), and we highly recommend it to all who suffer from any curable disease. Take no substitute. Get the genuine. Price, Si, Pills 25c, or 5 bottles of Remedy, 5 boxes Pills for $5. Sent by express by Isaac Williams' Co., London, Ont., or druggists. Yours truly, A.
