THEOSOPHISTS SPLIT. London, July 4.-The convention of theosophists was called to order here today, with Col. Olcott in the chair. Mrs. Annie Besant moved that the letter from the American section be laid upon the table without discussion, inasmuch as while pretending to convey overtures of peace, it was really unfriendly to the European section.

The motion was adopted, after a long debate, whereupon 60 delegates announced through a chosen spokesman their decision to sever their connection with the convention, and walked out of the

Collapse of the Driving Park Grand Stand

While 10,000 People Were Watching the Races—Two Persons Fatally Injured and Many Badly Hurt.

Buffalo, July 4.-A center section of the new grand stand at the Buffalo Driving Park fell this afternoon, when 10,000 people sat in the stand waiting to see the five mile handicap. The cause was the weak stairway which held about 40 or 50 people at this time. Beneath this stairway was a wine room which had been crowded with people a minute before. Just at the time of the fall all were climbing back to their seats to witness the start. Caving in suddenly, the stairway took with it a section of the grand stand itself, and piled 60 people, men, women and children, in a screaming mass. Then the whole 10,000 people stood up in their seats rushed towards the break and then away from it again. In the panic women fainted and were trampled upon, jumped from the stand to the ground, and in other ways contributed to the excitement. Carriages took to their homes about 40 men and women who were slightly injured. The ambulances got their share. At the hospitals tonight it was reported that two of the victims would die. Several others suffered serious injuries. This is the list:

Frank Vester, back broken and fatal Internal injuries; will die. John Gilray Hill (colored), 521 Michigan street, four ribs broken and internally injured: will die. G. Barrett Rich, president Buffalo

nal injuries. Mrs. J. K. Cuddy, 19 Peabody street, head and face cut and scalp wounds. Mrs. Wood, 238 Eighteenth street, broken thigh

Mrs. Howard Herr, both legs broken. Mrs. F. A. Crandall, wife of F. A. Crandal, librarian Bureau Public Printing. Washington, D. C., badly bruised.

In the mile open, earlier in the afternoon, Wm. C. Lutz, of Buffalo, was thrown from his wheel, struck a post and broke his collar bone.

Between the Two Sections of Mackenzie Bowell's Cabinet.

A Third Council of the Ministers Called -Disruption Probable No Matter Which side Wins.

(Special from our own Reporter.) Ottawa, July 4.-Even the most reticent Ministerialists do not hesitate to talk of Ministerial complications, while others will go further and speak of a critical situation. The fact can no longer be concealed that the events of the next two days may develop results which will have a material effect upon the future of the country, the importance of which at this moment it is impossible to realize. This fact appears for the first time to have impressed itself upon many of the Conservative representatives here who were prepared to accept any proposals that might be suggested by the party leaders. That the lines dividing the Cabinet in the Manitoba school question are being more tightly drawn has been unmistakably pointed out by the two Cabinet meetings which have been held within the past two days in the hope reached. That they have failed to agree is evidenced in the announcement that another meeting has been called for 10 o'clock tomorrow.

While both wings of the Cabinet are equally determined in pressing their case, from what can be gathered in usually well informed circles the section opposed to remedial legislation appears to be strengthening their posier in conversation with those who hold other views. Yet it is equally apparent that the Quebec Ministers will make their resignation contingent upon their

Those who should be well posted say that no matter what decision is reached several resignations will follow. If Quebec wins the day, one or more Protestant Ministers will resign, and should the Quebec Ministers fail Ouimet and Angers would step out.

It was apparent to those who watched the lobbying about the corridors tonight that an effort was being made to induce Caron (who has been up to now quietly looking on) to join the other Quebec Ministers in fighting on behalf of the separate schools. Whether Caron has yielded is not known. He was closeted with Ouimet and Angers for over an hour, but he would say nothing as to the position he would take tomor-

The Famous Abigail Becker in the City.

The Woman Who Rescued Eight Men From a Watery Grave.

The Story of Her Wonderful Deed at Long Point Island

As Told by Herself-A Thrilling Tale-Tokens of Gratitude.

It will be interesting to all to know that Mrs. Rohrer, the heroine of Long Point, better known to fame as Abigail Becker, is in the city.

There are few school boys or school girls in London who have not been thrilled with admiration and patriotic pride by the story of this heroic Canadian woman's deeds of bravery. They would deem it an honor to see the face and shake the hand of one who has figured so nobly in their story and school books, and whom they justly regard as the Grace Darling of their country. It is not likely many will have this coveted pleasure, as Mrs. Rohrer returns to her home at Walsingham, Norfolk county, tomorrow, after a week's visit with her son, Mr. Nehemiah Becker, of 294 York street.

Though the deed which made her famous was performed over 40 years ago, it is as fresh in the memory of the present generation as it was in that of the last. As Mrs. Rohrer informed an "Advertiser" reporter, she is asked to tell the tale as often now as 40 years ago. To her home in Walsingham visitors by the score—strangers from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from all parts of the United States as well as Canada --come to see the woman of whom they have all read. It was to hear the story from her own lips that the "Advertiser' reporter called on her last night at her son's residence. People get it secondhand in the books, and even the version in the Third Reader is not so graphic or so complete as a personal in-terview. Mrs. Rohrer modestly consented to describe her memorable adventure. Looking at her large and powerful frame one can realize that the strength of an average woman would have been unequal to the hardships she endured and the Herculean task she undertook when she snatched eight men from a watery grave. Her face is very pleasant, though there is that firmness in it that bespeaks a resolute

Mrs. Becker showed the reporter a massive gold medal intrinsically value at $75, but which no money could buy. The following inscription on the back explains it: "VITA FELICIBUS AUSIS SERVATA. PRESENTED MAY, 1857, TO ABIGAIL BECKER, LONG POINT, LAKE ERIE, CANADA WEST, FOR HER EXTRAORDIN-ARY RESOLUTION, HUMANITY AND COURAGE IN RESCUING FROM IM-PENDING DEATH THE CREW OF THE SCHOONER CONDUCTOR, LOST NOVEMBER, 1854." On the face of the medal are engraved the words, "LIFE SAVING BENEVOLENT AS-SOCIATION OF NEW YORK, INCOR-PORATED 29th MARCH, 1845"; also a representation of a schooner in distress on an angry sea, with the life-saving crew launching a boat. This magnificent token was presented to Mrs. Rohrer by the association mentioned at the instance of two American sailors, who were among those she res-It is a decoration more honorcued. able than any sovereign could confer.

It was on a Sunday morning in No. vember, 1854, that the schooner Con ductor was wrecked off Long Point Island. She was a large boat, a threemaster, heavily laden-too heavilywith corn and oats, bound for the Lower Lakes. She was owned by a Mr. McLeod, of Madden township, Essex county, and carried a crew of eight

"It was bitterly cold that morning," said Mrs. Rohrer, "and the wind was blowing a terrific gale. I never saw the lake in such a condition-the swell was terrible. There was snow on the banks, and the crew of the Conductor mistook it for the foam of the waves They did not realize their danger until too late. The schooner was so heavily laden that she would not rise with the waves. The men were helpless, and were on deck all night long, the cold waves breaking over them and drenching them to the skin. The spot where sne struck is called 'The Bluffs,' and is three or four miles from the end of the island. My husband, my step-son and myself lived a mile inland, and ours was the only house in the neighborhood. It happened that on this Sun-day my husband was away from home. About 7 o'clock in the morning I heard a crash. I went with my stepson (who was a cripple) to the banks and saw that the schooner had broken completely in two, and had sunk to the bottom. The men were clinging to the riggings, but every icy wave dashed on them, threatening to sweep them away. They were in a terrible plight. The water was freezing, and they had the alternative of slowly perishing from exposure, or risking their lives in the lake. The hull, which was nearest the land, stood in eight feet of water, and it seemed impossible that one could live in such an angry sea.

"When the poor fellows saw me they shouted, but the gale almost drowned their voices. It was so strong that I could hardly descend to the beach without being blown off my feet. The boy and I, with great difficulty, built a fire on the banks, thinking to warm any of them should they reach the shore. I beckoned to them, and pointed to a piece of the ship which had been washed ashore. Might they not reach it, too, by trusting to the waves? They saw what I meant. The captain said to the crew (as he afterwards told me): 'Well, boys, it's death here. If I get ashore, come! If I don't, choose for yourself.' Then he dropped from the stern, but we were horrified to see him drift out to the bow. But here the under out to the bow. der-current caught him and carried him back toward the shore. "My step-son wanted to go in, but I said 'No,' because I knew that if he did I would have to pull him out, too.

I plunged into the lake, but it was terribly hard work, the sea washing over my head. Finally I caught him, and, l'olding him around, dragged him to the fire. He was more dead than alive. As fingers. He was nearly drowned when apart, and she was declared the win-I got him to the shore, and I rolled and ner. She was loudly cheered. She will tumbled him about, the water pouring also get a prize from his mouth and nose. 'God bless you, woman,' he said as soon as he could speak.

"I had got four men to the shore in this way when I saw that they were this way when I saw that they were freezing. It was impossible in such weather to keep up the fire. Besides, the men were nearly naked—some had only one garment on. Their clothes had been soaked the night before, and they had taken them off to dry. I thought there would be little gained by saving them from death by drowning only to let them die of the cold. I gave my shoes to one, and my shawl to another, and ran to the house for warm blanand ran to the house for warm blankets. The mate's condition was the worst. He wanted to go to sleep, but I knew that if he were allowed to, it would be his last. I wrapped a blanket around him, and by shaking and tumbling and dragging him kept him awake while I carried him to my home, a mile away. The others, who were nearly helpless, followed as best they

"I returned to the shore and got three more of the men to the shore, but the eighth, an old man, refused to come, saying he might as well die in the rigging as in that water. By this time it was dark, and we were forced to leave him. He clung there all night, and next morning we found him with his hands frozen to the riggings, which had to be cut in order to release him.
"The mate said to me: 'Mrs. Becker, you have done a wonderful day's work.' I did not consider I had done anything unusual, and told him so. He replied: 'If it had not been for you every one of us would now be reaping his reward, and we were not fit to die.' "They stayed at my home a week be-fore they were able to depart, and we said good-bye with regret. Two of the crew were Americans, wno reported me to the New York Association, from which I received this medal. The captain, from whom I frequently heard afterwards, had been snipwrecked three times before, and once after. His last proved fatal, and he died at home some years ago from the effects." "Did you receive other tokens for your deed?" "Oh, yes. The Queen presented me with $200. A purse of $180 was subscribed at Buffalo, and another of $160 in Malden, which were pressed upon me. The captain gave me $50. Two weeks ago I received from Lord Aberdeen, the Governor-General, a certificate of the Royal Humane Society, and a book containing the story. "The wide publicity given my deed, and the honors accorded me came as surprises," added Mrs. Rohrer modestly. "I do not consider that I did anything but my duty. I would have been less than a woman had I seen those men perish for want of a helping hand." When Mrs. Rohrer achieved this memorable rescue she was but 19 or 20 years of age, and was then Mrs. Becker. Her extreme youth added to the heroism of her deed. Nor was this her only act of bravery. When a mere girl she rescued a child from a well, and when only 15 saved a man from drowning in the river near Port Dover, Of the ill-fated schooner Conductor nothing remained a few weeks after her wreck. She was literally dashed to fragments on the beach, and so farfamed became the story of Mrs. Becker's bravery that crowds came and gathered the floating bits that strewed the shore.

An A. P. A. Demonstration in Boston Results in a Fatal Fight.

Boston, Mass., July 4.-A riot took place at East Boston this afternoon during the parade of the A. P. A., Patriotic Sons of America, Orange lodges and other anti-Catholic organizations. It began with the exchange of insults between the paraders and the thousands of sightseers who lined the sidewalks, and ended with the killing of one person and the injury of two others.

The affair was intended as a demonstration against separate schools under religious authority. There were about 1,200 men in the parade, and they marched under the protection of 300 policemen, who not only led the parade, but flanked the column on both sides for a hundred yards.

At the very end of the procession, which was without police protection, came a barouche drawn by four gray horses. In the carriage were O. S. Emerson. H.Roberts, Mrs. O. S. Emerson and Mrs. F. J. Campbell. The carriage was profusely decorated with American flags, and Mrs. Campbell wore an orange dress. Between Brooks and Putnam streets, on Saratoga street, the crowd closed in, and the fight began. A young man named Stewart, of Brooks street, had his nose slashed off with a saber. Officer A. S. Bates was struck by a brick and had a number of teeth knocked out.

Michael Doyle, of Morris, was clubbed so severely by the police that he is now dying at the city hospital. John W. Willis lies dead at the East Boston police station.

Fair. New York, July 4.—A fair under tents is being held at Boyd avenue and the Boulevard, Jersey City, to raise money to help pay off the debt of the South Bergen Reformed Church. All the young ladies of the congregation and the female members of the church organization have taken a deep interest in the fair.

The great attraction on Tuesday night was a wood-sawing contest between four young women. The contestants were May Taylor, Emma Wademan, Gretta Dunn, and Esta Spotschil. The young ladies were each about 18 years old, and they were presumably hand-some, although they concealed their faces under great pake bonnets. All of them were athletic looking.

Precisely five minutes before 9 o'clock

E. W. Russell, the referee, mounted a platform on which had been placed saws. On each buck lay a piece of hemlock just 4x4 inches through.

The crowd gathered around the platform. The girls took their places at the bucks, firmly grasped the saws, and at 9 o'clock the referee gave the word to go. Somebody in the crowd shouted "They're off!" In about ten seconds Miss Spotschil was in difficulty. Her saw had not been sufficiently greased, and it got stuck. Miss Wademan was who says that "the modern woman is never sentimental" must be a donkey. He says "there is not a shred of illusion in the love of the modern woman," which is an asinine remark. He says "the instincts of fidelity are not in her," for which he deserves to be whipped by his mother. He says "that the sublime faith in love has gone down before the eyes that are at last unbandaged," a proof that this jackanapes is unworthy of the love of any kind of woman of any kind of faith. We do not believe that the donkey's words are applicable that the donkey's words are applicable to the women of England, and they certainly do not describe those of any other country on earth. There are sentiment and fidelity and sublime faith in true womanhood, as much of them are there even were in any age of the as there ever were in any age of fime; and they will blossom in woman's soul while the world lasts.

No philosophy can be good for much that doesn't console a fellow when he's jilted—and no philosophy does!

It's never necessary to tell a girl she's pretty—if she is—but it's sometimes a pleasure to do so.—New York Recorder.

"I sing in my care-free gladness, I am kin to the wind that's blowing, I am thrilled with the bliss of motion like a bird that skims the down;

I feel the blood of a gypsy in my pulses coming, going—
Give me my wheel for a comrade, and the king may keep his crown!'

A bachelor druggist in a Western town, having secured the popular song. "Girl wanted," placed a copy in his show window. In less than an hour he had a dozen applications. The town is

The cult of belt pins should be at once established. On Queen's avenue was seen one day last week a young woman whose inevitable shirt waist teilet was fastened in the middle of the back at the belt with a souvenir spoon, which had been pin-mounted for the purpose. In another place, and by another young woman, a small pearlhandled gold pen had been converted into a belt pin, and was worn with the same tasteless and striking incongru-

He-How mny hearts are you going to break this summer? She—Hearts don't break in the summer; it's too warm; they merely bend.

I agree perfectly with a young clubman, who, after gazing with considerable astonishment at some of our ultra-chic fashion leaders the other day, turned to me and said, dubiously: "Well! These gowns may be very costly and all that, but in my humble opin-ion they give even the prettiest woman a decided resemblance to a pouter pigeon." This somewhat caustic remark is nevertheless strikingly true, and the mountains of stuff used in the composition of one single dress, especially when plentifully trimmed, embroidered, spangled, beaded, be-laced and be-ribboned, as is only too often the case, certainly load down the slenderest figure, and render stout women like highly caparisoned elephants.

Flower-trimmed bodices are pretty for "dress" occasions, says the Paris correspondent of the Dry Goods Chronicle. To many the idea of trimming a whole costume with flowers seems theatrical, but less objection can be made to the "flower blouses." One of violet silk has the top of the bodice and the top of the sleeves of lavender silk mull, thickly shirred. Three rows of violets separate the shirring of the sleeves, and the rest of the elbow sleeve, which is very full, of violet silk lightly embroidered with paillettes. Strings of violets start from the shoulders, cross under the belt, and are allowed to fall down on the skirt for several inches. The choker is a puff of mull, held by a collar of violets. Seven cases are recorded in England during the present century where the bride has been married to the best man by the clergyman's mistake, or the groom's stupidity. "I never use window screens," said a wise housekeeper the other day, "because I have a fancy that they shut out all the air in hot weather, and, besides, they serve to keep the flies in the house as well as to keep them out."

"But I never see a fly in your house," said her friend. "How do you manage it? For my part, I must confess that, screens or no screens, my summer means to me one long battle with the "My remedy is a very simple one," little pests." "My remedy is a very simple one," said the good housekeeper, "and I learned it years ago from my grand-mother, when I used to watch her putting bunches of lavender flowers around to keep the files away. My method is simpler. I buy 5 cents' worth of oil of lavender at the drug store and mix it with the same quantity of water. Then I but it in a common glass atom-Then I put it in a common glass atomizer and spray it around the rooms wherever flies are apt to congregate, especially in the dining room, where I sprinkle it plentifully over the table linen. The odor is especially disagreeable to flies, and they will never venture in its neighborhood, though to most people it has a peculiarly fresh and grateful smell." "I shall certainly give it a trial." said the other woman.-Phiadelphia Press. Lady Henry Somerset was absent, through indisposition, from one of the women's meetings in London recently, and Mrs. Ormiston Chant, who led the crusade against the Empire Theater, took the chair in her place. Her apology was rather awkward. "Dear Lady Henry has been overworked, and we must, of course, be careful not to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs."

THREATENING LETTERS.

by No. 2 Committee.

One Was from London West, and Concerned $100,000 Fine-Where the Board of Works' Money Has Gone.

The Board of Works last night considered three letters which contained threats against the city-and all for damages "if such and such was not done." Letter No. 1 was from Reeve Macdonald, of London West, and concerned the $100,000 judgment recovered by the village against the city some four years ago for pollluting the Thames with sewage. The letter stated that if the nuisance was not abated the judgment would be enforced.

To this Ald. O'Meara stated that the trouble complained of had been partly remedied by the city putting in stop logs at the dam. London West was going a litle too far in this matter. The village was depending on the city for her existence—in fact, hardly half a dozen men were employed in the municipality. Its residents supplied the city with ice, "but," continued Ald. O'Meara, "if the city wants to act as vindictively as the village has, it could make things very warm for the supplied the city wants to act as vindictively as the village has, it could make things very warm for the supplied that the country warm for the supplied that the country warm for the supplied that the city warm for the supplied that the city warm for the supplied the city warm for the supplied the city warm for the supplied the city warm for the c burb. There would soon be no village for Mr. Macdonald to be reeve of." "That is correct," was the unanimous verdict of the other committeemen, and the letter was laid over. Letter No. 2 was from Thomas & Buchner, and stated that Mr. Thomas Garside intended to enter action for $2,000 damages if a sewer nulsance on his property was not abated. This letter raised a talk over the Lewis-Alexander drainage dispute, and as it was about concluded Engineer Graydon entered and stated that he understood Mr. Lewis had entered suit against the city, and that Mayor Little was served with the writ yesterday. The epistle was referred to the city solicitor to take what steps are considered necessary. "Tis about time some of these fellows were closed down," said Ald. O'Meara, who was not a bit afraid of going to the courts. Letter No. 3 was from Henry Wallace, who was partially suffocated in the King street sewer on the night of Matthew Miller's death. He claimed to have suffered injuries, and wanted damages. Filed.

A statement presented by City Treasurer Pope showed that of the committee's appropriation of $48,874, only $17,-571 64 had been expended, leaving a balance of $31,302 36. The heaviest items were: Streets, $7,537 43; street cleaning, $3,918 70; city hall, $439 75; city hall alterations, $2,302 03; city parks, $1,198 35; sewers and culverts, $1,126 49. A complaint from the London Foundry Company re a nuisance caused by the King street sewer outlet was referred to the engineer and Ald. John

tions Now Residing in This City. The 50th anniversary of the starting of Sir John Franklin's fatal expedition to the regions of the North Pole was recently celebrated in London. England, by the Royal Geographical Society. His Royal Highness the Duke of York was present, supported among others by fourteen officers, survivors of those who took part in the search expeditions. Those present included the American ambassador, Lord Kelvin. Admiral Markham, Sir Francis de Winton, Sir W. Flower, Gen. Sir C. Wilson, Admiral Immanney, Sir W. J. Farrer, Lord Geo. Hamilton, Sir George Baden-Powell, Sir C. Clement Hill, Admiral Sir A. H. Hoskins, Admiral Sir G. Nares, Admiral Sir Leopold McLintock, Gen. Sir A. Kemball, Sir A. Young. Admiral Sir Vesey Hamilton. Admiral Sir J. Hunt Grubbe, Capt. Beaumont, Capt. J. Wiggins and Dr. John Murray. Sir John Franklin's many glorious feats on sea and land were glowingly alluded to. Not the least interesting fact in history brought out was one not general history brought out was one not generally known, that when quite a youth as a midshipman, this true hero fought under Nelson at the battle of Trafalgar. The London Daily News, in an editorial on the celebration, referring to the various search expeditions and their leaders, thus refers to Dr. Rae. the first discoverer of authentic evidence of the fate of Franklin and his crew: "Dr. Rae, who found the first genuine relics of Sir John Franklin, was among us until quite a recent day. Many will remember him well, with his fine presence, which reminded people of Thackeray's Colonel Newcome, and his quiet and genial manners." Hamiltonians may be nardoned if they feel somewhat proud of such resuscitations, the intrepid Rae having been associated closely with this city through two of his brothers, who lived and died here, as well as through Mrs. Burnet, widow of the late Rev. Robert Burnet, whose former husband was one of these brothers, and through Mr. Thomas Glen Rae, her son a nephew of Dr. Rae. now residing in London, Ontario. Dr. Rae himself will still be remembered by a few in Hamilton and Toronto as every inch the kingly man described by the Daily News. His widow, still a comparatively youthful and a beautiful and accomplished woman, resides in London, England, beloved by a large circle of eminent friends.-Hamilton Times.

A TRAMP'S TEMERITY.

Dangerously Wounds a Citizen and Holds a Gang of Section Men at Bay. Somerset, Que., July 4.—This morning a man named Isabelle, of this place, was shot by a tramp who was loitering about the station. He retaliated by giv-ing the tramp a blow with his fist which knocked the latter over. The tramp quickly picked himself up, and ran along the track, thence to the woods, where he was pursued by some section men. He climbed a tree, and with a revolver in his hand threatened to kill anyone who approached him. The men, being unarmed, gave up the chase. All the while Isabele remained at the station. He was so weak that he had to be carried home. Two doctors extracted the bullet, which had taken effect in his left side, but they despair of saving his life.

DEATH OF CATHERINE O'LEARY. Whose Cow Was the Cause of Chicago's Costly Conflagration.

Chicago, Ill., July 3.—Mrs. Catherine O'Leary died yesterday afternoon. She was the owner of the fractious cow which, in a barn in the rear of No. 137 DeKoven From 5c Up. street, on a memorable night in October, 1871, kirked over a lamp and started the blaze which cost Chicago $190,000,000.

Three of Them Rapidly Dealt With As Outlined by Dun & Co.'s Weekly Statement.

> Little Alteration Reported from Mon treal-Crop Prospects in the Ea t Are Encouraging - Western Wool Market Firm-Fewer Failures.

Toronto, Ont., July 4.-R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly statement of trade in Canada says: The week has been a broken one, and there has been little alteration in trade conditions at Montreal since last reports. Drygoods travelers, with few exceptions, write hopefully regarding the prospects for fall trade and are sending in very fair orders. In boots and shoes several large manufacturers report orders from 25 to 50 per cent ahead of this date last year, and collections in their line during June were better than anticipated. Groceries are without special activity, but show a moderate seasonable movement. Iron and metals generally are dull; also olis, paints and glass. There is no active buying of leather yet, but values are well held. Linseed oil is dearer by 2 cents a gallon. In canned goods, salmon, peas and strawberries are reported firmer. In the country the attention of the farmers is being directed to the saving of the hay crop, which promises to be an unusually good one. As the reports indicate a shortage in the west and a poor yield in England, hopes are entertained of good prices.

Wholesale trade at Toronto shows little change. Travelers are placing fairly good orders for the autumn and winter trade in drygoods, and prices of both cotton and woolen goods continue firm. Crop prospects are somewhat better since the late rains, but there are yet many complaints of drought. The high prices for hay have attracted shipments from the Province of Quebec. There is an increasing demand for canned fruits and vegetables, as offerings of fresh stuff are smaller than usual at this season of the year. The wool market is very firm at an advance of 1 cent, the new clip bringing 21 to 22 cents. Hides continue to hold the late advance, and leather is firm in consequence. A quiet trade is reported by wholesale grocers, while there is a good demand for hardware and harvesting implements. The shipments of live stock have been somewhat checked the past two weeks, owing to lower markets, but for the season they are satisfactory.

An encouraging feature is the large increase in bank clearings at Toronto for June, as compared with the corresponding month of two previous years. The failures for the week were 21, as compared with 34 for the same week of last year.

A STRANGE CASE.

Mr. H. McCarron, of Detroit, Completely Cured of Blood Poisoning.

Detroit, Mich., July 1 .- A very curious incident has occurred here, and one which will be of continental interest. Mr. Hugh McCarron, a well-known notary public, has been a sufferer for voked to an ox. many years from a peculiar form of blood poisoning inducing the most frightful pains in the breast and back.

The best doctors were consulted without being able to consulted without being able to give any relief, and Mr. McCarron decided that his case was hopeless. He was finally recom-mended to make a trial of Dodd's Kid-ney Pills, and did so with the faint hope that they might have some effect in his case, the peculiar nature of which did not lead him to associate it with kidney complaint. To his surprise, the effects of the remedy were noticeable from the very first, and he is now thoroughly restored to health by this

NEW USE FOR BICYCLES.

A Wheel Will Show Whether a Man Is

Intoxicated. A new test of inebriation has been discovered by an Englishman. The latest that has been introduced into America was the requiring of the "suspicioned" to pronounce the proper name Cissy Fitzgerald three times rapidly, but the new English method has a decided advantage, and it will quite easily be transplanted and used here with effect. A pushing British policeman on the Surry side of London found Mr. William Andrew Gill the other day in a state which suggested the unconscious cerebration of alcoholic symptoms and brought him before a local police official. Mr. Gill defended himself masterfully. "The policeman's charge is wrong," he said. "I was on a bicycle, and no man who is under the influence of liquor can ride a two-wheeled An interesting question is thus opened, and a question that admits of a good deal of argument. A competent London authority, after due reflection, has declared that if, a man drinks steadily and only makes use of straight liquids, there is no reason why the alcohol should not really balance him. But if, on the other hand, he mixes his drinks with exasperating carelessness, combining, for example, Scotch ale and Dublin stout with dry champagne and seltzer, there is of gravity upset and tumbling the rider to the ground Treating the question seriously, however the bicycle as a detector of inebriety would seem to be a valuable test. It is hardly likely, however, to be accepted as a con-clusive argument in the police courts. In nearly every case that can be imagined the magistrate on the bench would prefer a medical man's testimony. That was what the London police official in the case above mentioned did, despite Mr. Gill's proposition that he would ride his wheel in the courtroom in support of his theory.—[New York

TWO GOOD CANDIDATES.

Some good candidates are being nominated in the present electoral struggle in Great Britain. Hon. Edward Blake has accepted renomination in South Longford, Ireland. After the general elections he proposes to visit Canada, returning in time for the first session of the new Parliament. Another able candidate is Sir Thomas Glen Coats, the great Paisley thread manufacturer, who will contest the county of Bute in the Liberal interest against Mr. A. Graham Murray.

THE OPPOSING DECISIONS.

It is sometimes said that the judicial committee of the Privy Council is court which upon occasion deals out justice on lines of public policy. The second judgment on the Manitoba school question is so out of accord with the first that people have been wondering ever since its delivery how the two judgments could be made to harmonize. An easier solution of the problem is to say that they do not and cannot harmonize. But if this is the true answer, it may next be asked how the same court reached two different conclusions on practically the same points of issue. Is it because the first was a judgment on the law, and the second large? a judgment on public policy? If the latter, what influenced the judges? Did the cause concern Manitoba only? or the Dominion also? or the empire as well? The Bishop Gravel letter offers the only explanation yet made public as a necessity? in the matter, assuming that the court was influenced by considerations of public policy. But can it be that the highest court in the empire would allow itself to be swayed by an ex-parte statement, without careful investigater used in the way contemplated by its author, and, if so, did the court yield to its representations? We do not believe that the court did, but as the question has been raised it might as well be answered.

DECLINING OIL PRODUCTION.

On the continuance of two of the products of the earth it is difficult to bank with certainty. Petroleum and natural gas may be obtained in plenty one day and on the next be no longer found. It is this uncertainty that makes both products speculative in their tendencies, and which often brings supposedly rich men into the ranks of the moneyless. Nowhere more than in Pennsylvania, where coal oil was first made marketable, has this been the case. Few, indeed, know how steadily the yield of oil has fallen off in Pennsylvania in the last few years. During five years the total product of oil in the United States was as follows:

The increased output has been in Pennsylvania-New York field the maximum output was reached in 1891, when 33,009,236 barrels were marketed. In 1893 only 20,314,513 bar- nal in the Eastern States, in a recent rels were yielded, and last year the interview made some pertinent remarks output was lowered to 19,225,000 barrels, as to the proper upbringing of children. or less than 60 per cent of the production in these two States four years ago. POINTS.

Asphalt pavement has one great advantage over blocks or bricks, according to Col. Waring, the chief of the New York cleansing department. The colonel asserts that he can clean asphalt for two-thirds the cost of cleaning granite blocks imperfectly. The thoroughfares cannot be too clean.

It is claimed that the chief naval constructor of the United States has succeeded in finding a means for rendering the woodwork of a man-of-war fireproof. The sap of the wood is extracted in vacuum in large iron tanks, and the pores of the wood are then filled under heavy pressure by a chemical composition of borax, boracic acid and muriate and sulphate of ammonia. Thus treated the wood may be subjected to flame without taking fire. Nothing is said about the cost. If it is not too great it would be reassuring to have the woodwork of every description of vessel, especially ocean liners, submitted to the process.

A high-tax contemporary laments the fate of the British taxpayer because he has to pay "a window tax." The crocodile tears are wasted. There has not been a window tax in Britain for many years. The British taxpayers would have one of the lowest tax rates in the world but for the war debt and pensions incident thereto. As it is, the workers of Britain pays less money in taxes, work shorter hours, and get more wages for their work than do the workers in any other country in Europe-"protectionist" nations included.

If no part of the huge sum of "extras" paid to the contractor was put into the election funds of the men in power, surely Mr. Ryan ought to have been permitted to say so.

HOW IT STRIKES DR. DONALD. The successor of Phillips Brooks, of Trinity Church, Boston, is Dr. Donald. As an Episcopalian he does not see why his clerical brethren should officially recognize the Old Catholics and the Greek Church, but refuse recognition to the Protestant denominations. He said:

"What is the significance of affiliation with the remote Russo Greek Church, of whose spirit and work we know almost nothing, compared with the significance of at least a spiritual affiliation with the Presbyterian Church, of the splendid results of whose Christian missionary, philanthropic and educational work we know almost everything. Who and what are the Old Cathclies that we should grant to them the recognition and sympathy we withhold from the Methodists, who found a new church every day of every year, in which is proclaimed pardon and salvation through Jesus Christ our Lord? What has Pere Hyacinthe done-what does he give promise of doing—in France that he should be received into our open arms, while we have no relations with the millions of Baptists, north and south, who are doing more than any man can tell for the religious and moral education of America. The Greek Church never gave us a single priest; the Presbyterian. Congregational and Methodist Churches given us, out of their ranks, bishops and clergy by the hundreds. The Old Catholics have never been anything to us; we never come into contact with them; we know almost nothing of them; they know quite nothing of us; yet with Greek Church and Old Catholics we are united in fraternal bonds. But Presbyterianism and Congregationalism are not simply names; there is not an intelligent man in this city who does not know that the religious, moral and intellectual life of this country is immensely the richer for their presence and work among us."

Strong Defense of Canada's Rights by Leaders of the Opposition-Sir Richard Cartwright Stirs Up the Matter of Senate Vacancies.

(Specially telegraphed by our own Representative.)

on the motion for the third reading of the bill extending to all favored nations the reduced duties under the French treaty, Sir Richard Cartwright recorded his protest against the bill.

Mr. Edgar made a strong speech against the idea that at the dictation of the Colonial Office we should grant to a score of countries the concessions granted to France by treaty. The effect of this policy would be that in future we can never make a reciprocity treaty with any country in the world | vided with a better job. He would not on fair terms. This treaty was lauded suggest that some were promised a seat by Sir Charles Tupper as a reciprocity treaty, and it was never intended to extend the terms of that treaty to all the countries in the world with which Great Britain had a treaty containing the most favored nation clause. Yet this is what the treaty does. The treaty was ratified last session as a reciprocity convention, but today Parliament was asked to pass a bill acknowledging a definition of the reciprocity treaty different from that put upon such arrangements by most countries, and even by Great Britain herself in some cases. Mr. Edgar denounced the bill as an abject surrender of Canada's right to make a reciprocal arrangement with France, the United States or any other country. The Government was putting another yoke on our neck and another obstacle in the way of extending Canada's foreign trade.

Messrs. Casey and Mills supported the view taken by Mr. Edgar. Mr. Laurier contended that the bill was against the principle long ago recognized of absolute fiscal independence for Canada. It was a surrender of the position Canada has hitherto occupied under this bill. Although the advantages to Canada were scant indeed, we are bound to extend them to ifteen different nations for which we receive no compensation. He urged Mr. Foster to get back to his former position and to maintain and endeavor to enlarge the commercial independence of Canada. The bill tied our

Mr. Foster in reply argued that the Government had not changed its attitude on the most favored nation clauses. Great Britain had passed a pleage that whenever Canada wished to terminate the treaty on a year's notice it would be done. He claimed that a year ago he told the House that this treaty would extend to favored nations. This favored nation clause was not, he contended, a bar to commercial treaties. Canada had been reaping benefits from these British treaties containing the most favored nation clause. There were difficulties in the way of denouncing these treaties so far as they applied to Canada, and the Government of Canada had done everything in their power to escape from them. Canada was exempted from any treaty since 1882, but with respect to older British treaties Canada was bound as a part of the empire to recognize these treaties. Because Mr. Laurier had voted for the French treaty, being as it was in the direction of a reciprocal extension of trade, and therefore consonant with the Liberal policy, Mr. Foster contended that he could not now object to this bill which destroys the reciprocal character of the treaty.

Mr. Davies pointed out that we were now asked by statutory declaration to extend the privileges granted to France under this treaty to every other country with which Great Britain had a most favored nation treaty. He reminded the House that in the reciprocity treaty of 1854 with the United States no such concession was ever wrung from Canada. He urged Parliament to consider the importance of what they were doing.

After considerable further discussion carried on division.

On the motion to go into supply Sir Richard Cartwright drew attention to the long-standing vacancies in the Sen-He quoted Sir Mackenzie Bowell's published letter to Mr. McNeil, the member for East Bruce, that all the ten vacancies had long been promised, and argued from it that the First Minister did not consider it of the smallest consequence whether or not oneeighth of the Senate remained vacant for several years. He attributed to Premier Bowell an opinion that the Premier Bowell an opinion that the Premier Bowell an opinion that the Senated was a kind of donkey-engine to Senated was a kind of donkey-engine to the Government—a means of political the Government—a means of political gence on the part of the Dominion Government, and a weapon to thwart his bribery, and a weapon to thwart his bribery, and a weapon to the wart his bribery. political opponents. It was evident that !

Ottawa, Ont., July 4.—In the House, I the Senate had ceased to be a power for good, though it might remain a power for evil. Sir Richard recalled the saying that good Americans go to Paris when they die, and drew the analogy that good Conservatives when they expire at the polls go to the Senate. Referring to Mr. Teople, of York, as a warming-pan keeping a place warm for a Minister with the promise of a seat in the Senate, Sir Richard enumerated the various other qualifications for appointment to the Senate. Some deserved it by running in close constituencies and being defeated. Some of the promises were doubtless contingent on the deserving ones not being sooner pro contingent upon contributing liberally to the campaign fund. The Senate Sir Richard described by varying phrases. It was hopelessly partisan, contrary to the intention of the framers of the constitution: it was a costly nuisance, a mischievous body, nothing more or less than a partisan club which the Government did not condescend to treat with common respect. Sir Mackenzie was handled by Sir Richard without gloves. He was "delightfully immoral," "morally color blind," had a "seared conscience," and the unscrupulous boss of a pack of partisans. Premier Bowell's letter was an insult to the Senate and a disgrace to the Government. Sir Richard concluded by moving the following amendment: "That it appears from statements made in this House that Premier Bowell did, on the 2nd of April, 1895, address the following letter to Mr. McNeill, M.P.—Privy Council office, Ottawa, April 2. 1895. A. McNeill — I have no doubt A. McNeill, Esq., have seen, as I have, notices in the papers that you had been or were to be offered a senatorship. I know of no man in the Commons whom I would rather see elevated to the honorable and responsible position of a senator than yourself; but the rumor must have been sent afloat by persons having some ulterior object in view, as no such offer has been made, nor has it been considered. Certainly a senatorship was never asked for by you, either directly or indirectly. Moreover, such a step is precluded for the present by the fact that there are no vacancies that have not long since been promised. Trusting that you may be successful in the contest before you, I remain, etc., sincerely yours, MACKENZIE BOWELL. "That it further appears that the vacancies referred to in the above letter occurred on the following dates: Ontario, Hon. Billa Flint, died June 15, 1894; Quebec, Hon. W. H. Chaffers, aied July 16, 1894; New Brunswick, Hon. John Glasier, died July 7, 1894; Quebec Hon. Joseph Tasse, died June 17, 1895; Hon. Elijah Leonard, died May 14, 1891; Quebec, Hon. G. G. Stevens, died April 15, 1892; Quebec, Hon. Sir J. J. C. Abbott, aled Oct. 30, 1893; New Brunswick, Hon. A. E. Botsford died March 19, 1894; New Brunswick Hon, John Boyd, died Dec. 4, 1893; Nova Scotia, Hon. T. D. Archibald, died Oct.

"That the conduct of the Government in allowing one-eighth part of the total number of senatorships provided for in the B. N. A. Act to remain unfilled, in the circumstances set forth in the above letter and this resolution, is in the highest degree derogatory to the dignity and usefulness of the Senate, and is calculated to bring that branch of the Legislature into contempt."

To the surprise of the House not one of Premier Bowell's colleagues would defend him. They had enjoyed Sir Richard's description of him and his immoral conduct, and did not care, apparently, how much censure and ridicule were cast upon their leader. They allowed the amendment to be put without defending either the Senate or the leader of the Senate. The vote stood 55 to 95. Only one Conservative, Col. O'Brien, voted for the amendment.

Mr. Davies brought up the matter of the seizures of Canadian sealing vessels in Bering Sea in 1892 by a Russian war vessel, for alleged violation of sealing regulations off the Russian coast within the prohibited area. The investigation made by the Russian Government rethe motion for the third reading was suited in a report that all the seizures were legal except two, the "Carmelite" and "McGowan." Mr. Davies did not believe there was any evidence to justify these seizures, as both vessels were seized in the open sea. They had a right to be on the high seas, and were flying the British flag. The Russian Govern-ment intimated that they were willing to make compensation, and as the seizures were carried out in an outrageous manner, and the crews subjected to terrible hardships, he wished to know if the Canadian Government had been insistent in pressing these claims for compensation. Up to June, 1893, Mr. Davies

RACE FOR 10,000 SOVEREIGNS. Newmarket, July 4.-The Princess of Wales stakes of 10,000 sovereigns was the principal event of this, the third day of the Newmarket 1st July meeting. The course was the Bunbury mile. There were eleven runners, including Lord Rosebery's Sir Visto, the winner of this year's Derby. The following was the result: Mr. Henry Milner's Le Var, a bay colt, 3 years old, by Isonomy, out of St. Margurite, first; Mr. Leonald de Pathashild's Liting a bay filly Leopold de Rothschild's Utica, a bay filly, 3 years old, by St. Simon, out of Bizerta, second; Mr. Henry Milner's None the Wiser, a chest nut filly, 4 years old, by Wisdom,

LONDON ASYLUM VS. FOREST. The Forest cricket team began their two days' tour yesterday with a match against the asylum team on the grounds of the latter. The game brought out another brilliant exhibition of batting by the Rev. F. W. Terry, who went in, first wicket down, and carried out his bat for the splendid score of 130, this being the second century this famous bat has made this week on this crease. The remainder of the asylum team did nothing at the bat, the whole side be-

GREAT GATHERING AT BUFFALO. Buffalo, N. Y., July 4.—The people of this city turned out en masse to attend the bicycle races given by the Press Cycling Club, of which Edward "Cannon" Bald, the king of Class B, is a member. The track, a mile horse course, was in fairly good condition, but a stiff breeze up the home stretch caused slow time. Zimmerman rode a mile exhibition, flying start, paced by a quad, in 2:02 1-5. The event of the meet was the mile open. Eight men qualified and started in the final. The quad, which was put in for pacing, was caught by Bald, of the Columbia team, with Callahan, Coults, Davidson and other cracks strung out in Indian file. At the threequarter mark Callahan and Coulter went by Bald into the home stretch, and led until Bald let out his cannon ball sprint and shot his blue-rimmed wheel to victory by a length ahead of Coulter, with C. ADVICE TO WHEELWOMEN. Time, 2:15.

"Why didn't you do what your in-structor told you when he took you out on your first road lesson?" "I know what you mean," replied the excited enthusiast. "I should have applied the brake or back-pedaled, but I forgot to do either.' "That's just it," said the woman instructor, and, calling around her all the beginners, she continued: "I want to give you wheelwomen some advice. When you are taking lessons in the academy learn, above all things, to slacken speed. There are two easy ways to do this; the first and best is to back-pedal, and the other is to apply your brakes when starting down an incline."

"How do you back-pedal?" inquired

Priestholm, 4 years; Lord Durham's that my instructor said about that." "To begin with, it's dangerous for any woman to go flying down a hill. When she comes to one she should rise in her saddle and bear down very hard, the first on one pedal and then on the other. She should do this very evenly, because the success of the motion depends in the main on that feature. This corder will slow the wheel gradually, and is accomplished by exactly the same method as used in dismounting. ernment took immediate steps to place the matter before the Russian Government. He desired to know what had occurred since 1893. Sir Hibbert Tupper gracefully ack-nowledged the generosity of Mr. Davies in giving the Government the credit he had, and expressed the opinion that Mr. Davies' speech and the manner in which he had presented the case would have a good effect in the proper quarter and would tend to promote a settlement. Forest's first essay at bat was productive of 75 runs, of which H. Goldsmith made 24 and J. M. Valkenberg 18. The second inning was short, the score beserved in the control of the contro order to secure greated expedition. It was true that Russia had never claimed such rights as the United States, but he regretted that even the United States seizures which took place as far back as 1886 were not yet adjusted.

Sir Richard Cartwright asked if Sir Robert Morier's suggestion that a British cruiser should be told off to cruise in the vicinity of the Commander Islands had been acted upon?

Sir Hibbert Tupper-No. Mr. Mills, of Bothwell, invited the Minister to explain how it came that the Russian Government exercised the per made the following important

He said that neither under the Paris award nor the arrangement with Rus-sia was the right of search of British vessels outside of territorial waters admitted. If Canadian vessels offend let the aggrieved country pursue and capture, but we strongly protest against espionage covering a million square miles of pacific waters. England's answer to this protest had been that the concession to Russia and the United States of right of search was not specially directed against Canadian vessels, as it was given in the case of all vessels flying the British flag in those waters, and in return Britain had the right there to search vessels of Russia and the Linited States. Canada's reply or the United States. Canada's reply has been that that does not meet the case, because these nations, Russia especially, discouraged their vessels from pelagic sealing, whereas pelagic sealing is the only branch of the business Canadians can pursue. "On that point we are," said Sir Charles, "at daggers drawn, so to speak, with the Imperial Government." Sir Charles concluded by paying a warm tribute to Lord Ripon for his friendship to Canada. After some further discussion the matter dropped.

In supply Mr. Daly explained the In-dian trouble on the Blackfoot reserve, resulting in the death of Mr. Skinner, who was shot dead by an Indian, and the flight of Rev. Mr. Tims from the reserve. The whole trouble arose from excitement over the death from diphtheria of one of the Indian children in the Indian home, where she was detained against the wishes of her father. Mr. Daly said everything was now quiet.

TWO IRISH ANECDOTES.

We have so often laughed at Pat for his droll errors of speech that it is pleasant to laugh with him occasionally at the expense of some one else. It is posible to do this when we recall the old tale of the Yankee and the Irishman, who were riding along a country road together, when they came to a

"See that, Pat?" said the Yankee, with a smile. "Where would you be if the gallows had its due?"

"Roiding alone," said Pat, quietly. Another funny tale is told of a rather idle Irish boy on board a man-of-war. It was very difficult to keep him at work, and the boatswain who had charge of him was much annoyed by the boy's laziness. Seeing him on the maintop one morning, gazing idly out at the sea, the boatswain called out

"Come down out of that, ye rashcal! Come down out of that, an' oi'll give yez a dozen whicks wid me rope!"
"Faith, sorr," replied the boy, 'oi wouldn't come down if ye offered me two dozen!"

-Deputy Surgeon-General Strange, of Stanley Barracks, Toronto, is registered at the Tecumseh.

-The combined military bands at the camp will give a farewell concert on Carling's Heights tonight, to which citizens are invited.

-Mr. Talbot Macbeth entertained the members of H. M. S. Macbeth of the Young Liberal Fleet to a dinner in a down town restaurant last night. -The concert arranged for last evening on Queen's Park by the Hussars' Band was postponed till next week owing to a social being held by Robin Hood drill corps.

-An Ottawa dispatch says: The city volunteer corps throughout the Dominion will not after all get the usual twelve day drill this year. They will get eight days' pay.

-The Robin Hood Drill Corps held an ice cream social in the Agricultural Hall, Queen's Park, last night, which was attended with great success. The corps, under command of Capt. John Brown, gave an exhibition of fancy drill which pleased the spectators and showed thorough training by the instructor. Refreshments were served and the social concluded with a dance.

-Late last night Sergt. Crawford and a posse of police raided an alleged disorderly house on Van street, of which Mrs. Catney is the keeper. She and two sisters named Wilkins were arrested, the latter on a charge of being inmates. The joint on York street kept by Mrs. Elizabeth Shea, which was visited on Wednesday night, was also raided, and Mrs. Shea and Maggie Kerey were again locked up. Mrs. Shea's mother and two little children, who were left behind in the previous raid, were also brought to headquarters. As soon as they were released from custody yesright of visit and search of vessels on terday morning the two women return-the high seas. To this Sir Hibbert Tup-ed to their hovel, and the neighbors objected to their conduct.

-A meeting of the congregation of Knox Church, South London, was held last night to consider the proposed alterations to the building. According to the plan submitted, a choir gallery, or-gan loft and pulpit platform were to be added to the south side of the edifice in the form of an alcove; the entrance was to be changed from the Wortley road to Bruce street, and the seats ar ranged in amphiteater style facing the south. The cost of these alterations, however, would mean an outlay of between $3,000 and $4,000, and this the congregation does not feel able to bear. The plans were referred back to the board of managers to ascertain if a less costly plan cannot be devised. The congregation has been sreadily increasing for several months, and the pews are all rented. It is proposed to add 200 sit-

They were released, and returned to the same old stand, where last evening they were going to have carried out, when the patrol wagon and several blue coats appeared and the whole crowd was arrested. There were so many in the house that the wagon made two trips. Several red coats from camp were there, besides the two women already named; Elizabeth Kerey, their mother, and two little children-one just six years old and the other four. The boys, however, were taken to the children's shelter by Inspector Sanders, of the Aid Society. In the police court Mrs. Shea volunteered to carry out the previous order to leave town, but the magistrate heeded a request of the deputy crown attorney, and the repulsive looking trio went down on a week's remand. The volunteers were discharged. Mrs. Julia Catney, charged with keeping a disorderly house on Van street, was remanded for a week. Two young girls named Maud and Mary Wilkins, arrested as inmates, were discharged. George Ward, of Wellington street, was found guilty of selling cigarettes to minors and was fined $10. Richard Tunks, of St. James street, allowed his Flying Jib to run loose on the street. It cost him $1. Similar complaints against Daniel Wade and Patrick McCarthy were enlarged until Wednesday. Old Thomas Alexander got a month for vagrancy. He had just been released from jail.

THANKS AND REMINISCENCES. Mr. Wm. Cook, of Quebec street, writes to the "Advertiser": "I wish to take this, the earliest opportunity, of expressing my sincere thanks to my many sympathizing friends, for their kind words and attention to me in my late severe bereavement resulting from the loss of my beloved wife after a long and painful illness. But she has passed

"London was a small place when my wife and I came here from Cleveland, Ohio. There were no block pavements then; no street cars; no electric light-we were thankful for gas. London was then steadily moving on to what it is today. What a change we have lived to see! Then we had no fine houses such as we have today, but were content with our neat cottages and small dwellings. We have lived to see many of our old fellow-citizens pass away. Very few of the early residents are left. We occasionally meet with one and have a talk over bygone times, but the old settlers are rapidly disappearing. In the days I speak of we had no fine parks, no band concerts or big picnics. The people were not carried away with pleasure-seeking as they are today; but it was work, and work is what has made London the city it is today. We were content to plod along, and I think we were just as happy then as we are today."

Mr. Cook came to London over 41 years ago, and was for a long while in the employ of the late Hon. Elijah Leonard. He is fully entitled to the name "An Old Subscriber," having been a reader of the "Advertiser" ever since it started, and is still in possession of a copy of this journal's first

-The decision given by Mr. Chancellor Boyd, holding that gas mains are assessable, affects the city gas company to a great extent. Commissioner Grant last year assessed the company $100,000, $30,000 of which was placed on real estate and $70,000 on mains. An appeal was made and at the court of revision the assessment was rectified, $20,000 being knocked off, and $80,000 being proportioned as follows: Real estate, $30,000; income, $20,000, and mains, $30,000. The reduction in the mains assessment was made to prevent the city being "dished" if the judgment was in favor of the companies. The London company will, therefore, have to pay taxes on $80,000. Forty Injured, Many Fatally.

Bristol, Ind., July 5.—Last evening, while about 300 of the population of Bristol were gathered on a bridge spanning the St. Joseph River, watching a tub race, 100 feet of the sidewalk of the bridge went down, carrying with it 100 persons. The fall was about 30 feet, and the iron fell on many. The town was crazed with excitement, and in a short time the victims of the accident were all removed from the water, and all the physicians throughout the surrounding country were summoned to attend the injured, who number about 40, many of whom are fatally injured.

Lake City, Fla., July 5.-At Hope Henry, at a colored church five miles west of here, a party took Robert Ben-nett, a young colored preacher, from the pulpit, carried him a short distance off, lynched him, and mutilated his body. A protracted meeting was in progress at the church, and the preachers and congregation had all gone to sleep, awaiting and a-watching with "mourners in a trance," and it was just before daybreak when the party entered and roused Bennett, who was asleep in the pulpit, and dragged him out over another preacher and took him away. His offense, it is said, was an assault upon a wnite woman in Sewanee county recently, and from there the lynchers are said to have come. The usual warning was attached to the body.

Bridge Falls and Over One Hundred Friction in Conservative Ranks Intense-Will Mr. Ouimet Have His Way?-Dissolution Talked Of.

> (From Our Own Correspondent.) Ottawa, July 5.-The Cabinet met again this morning at 10 o'clock to resume consideration of the school question, which they separated vesterday without agreeing upon. Mr. Foster stated in the House that he would be able to make a statement today as to whether a bill will be brought down, but it is probable that he will ask further grace until Monday. The friction over the matter is intense, and at present it looks as if Mr. Ouimet is not going to have his way.

> One Ministerialist suggested that the Government should overcome the difficulty by immediate dissolution.

When the vote on the Senate amendment was being taken yesterday, prospective Senators were cheered as they rose to vote. They were McNeill, Ferguson (of Leeds), Cameron. Cochrane, Cockburn, Ross (of Lisgar), Temple, White (of Shelburne), Miller and Baker. LATER.

There is the most intense anxiety exhibited by Ministerial members of Parliament over the critical situation. This is a case where neither side can afford to give in, and yet where one side must give in. From all that can be gathered, the French-speaking Ministers got the worst of yesterday's Cabinet Council. This would probably mean that Ontario protests have at last convinced Sir Mackenzie Bowell that he cannot win Quebec and keep Ontario, neither can Mr. Haggart afford to allow himself to be beaten by Mr. Ouimet. The duel has been a long one, and this is the finish. An important piece of news has just been heard (noon)-namely. that an announcement will be made at the opening of the House this afternoon to the effect that the Government have not had time to consider their course, and they will not delay prorogation, but call a special session or adjourn this one to the fall. In confirmation of this the whips are going about telling the Ministerial members to be present

The French-Canadians are averse to delay, because they are shrewd enough to know that once Parliament is got rid of, dissolution would follow instead of another session.

"WITCH" TRACEDY.

by Her Husband, Because She Was Alleged To Be Be-

Dublin, July 5.—Michael Cleary, of Ballyvadlea, near Clonmel, was convict-ed of manslaughter today in causing the death of his wife Bridget Cleary, at Ballyvadlea, on March 14 last, by burning and otherwise ill-treating her, on the ground that she was bewitched. The so-called Clonmel witch tragedy i one of the most remarkable in the an-nels of crime in Ireland. Michael Cleary, husband of the deceased; Patrick Boland, her father; Wm. Patrick N. Michael, and James Kennedy, cou-sins; Mary Kennedy, aunt, and Patrick Dunn, William Ahearn and Dennis Ganey, the latter known as the "family doctor," were jointly arrested and charged with burning and ill-treating Mrs. Bridget Cleary, until death reliev ed her from further suffering. The evidence showed that Mrs. Cleary was suffering from nervousness and bronchitis and that her husband, believing her to be witched, forced a nauseous decoction of herbs down her throat for the purpose of exorcising the evil spirit. After this the unfortunate woman was held over a fire and dreadfully burned, until she declared in the name of God that she was not Cleary's wife. This torture was repeated, and in the end her husband knocked her down, stripped off her clothing, poured paraffine over her body, lighted it, and the woman burned to death in the presence of her relatives. Cleary claimed that he was not burning his wife, but a witch.

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. July 5.—Capt. Paul Webb lost his life near here in an attempt to ride his submarine boat or barrel down a 300 foot log chute into Lake Coeur d'Alene. About 500 people witnessed his attempt to descend into the lake, which took place at Rosin's log camp, about eight miles from here. Webb was placed within the boat, which was six and a half feet long, two feet in diameter, and cone shaped. Two-thirds of the way down there was a slight rise in the incline. Here the barrel jumped 30 feet into the air, striking the ground on end. and then rolling 40 feet down-hill. When the barrel was opened Webb was jammed closely into the end, but was conscious. Dr. Russell, of Spokane, examined him and pronounced his spinal column broken. He soon died.

The Secret Out.

Her story as volunteered to him and doubtless to the coroner before him, was as follows:

Mildred Farley was an orphan, her widowed mother having died about a month before in the very house and in the very room which she herself was occupying at the time of her own untime-This mother was a very attractive woman of the gentle, retiring type, whose melancholy eyes told of a life of mingled love and sorrow. Her daughter, who had appeared to idolize her, sacrificed everything to her comfort, and it was mainly on account of this mother's ill-health that Mildred worked so hard at a trade manifestly beneath her capacity and breeding. For Mrs. Farley had been brought up in luxury, and had many wants which could only be satisfied by means greater than those usually acquired by a young girl in Mildred's position. But work and self-denial will do much, and Mrs. Farley never had any reason to complain. Nor with her death had Mildred's exertions ceased. Though the necessity for such severe labor seemed to be past, she had shown no disposition to indulge herself. From early morning till late at night she had sat at her work, finishing one beautiful dress after another, till Mrs. Olney was fain to believe that she had some new object in view, and would ere long unite her fortunes with those of her fellowboarder, the doctor.

But though the young people were to all appearances very good friends, meeting constantly at table and frequently in the parlors as well, the anxious landlady was soon assured by the physician's abstracted and reticent air, and as she thought by Mildred's uniform look of indifference, that her fend desire was not to be realized. When, therefore, Mildred informed her one morning that she was going away for a little visit, the good woman never thought of the doctor in connection with her departure, nor did she then or afterwards harbor any suspicion that her bright young boarded was contemplating marriage with anyone, least of all with him. For if this busy girl had broken in upon her usual habits, he had not, nor was there anything in his bearing or conversation to lead her to suppose that he meditated any change in his mode of life.

of their proposed with all the tragic developments which had immediately ensued, had, there-fore, awakened in the whole household the greatest feeling of surprise; nor could Mrs. Olney, for one, realize that the young and blooming girl upon whom the labor and sorrows of the last few months had left scarcely a trace, had succumbed in a moment to the temptation of suicide, no matter by what sickness she had been seized.

"I know that folks are taken dreadful sudden sometimes," the old lady remarked at this juncture. "But I can-not reconcile such an end with what I knew of Mildred. It isn't in keeping with her character. If she had loved the doctor more or hated him more I could perhaps have understood it. But she was healthy, body and soul, a frank, young, hopeful girl, and I don't see—" She said no more, but her lips took a grim line, and Mr. Gryce perceived that his suspicions, vague as they were, were not altogether unshared by this warm-hearted woman and true friend of Mildred Farley. He therefore started with good hope upon a line of questions by which he expected to reach some clue that would help him to the end he felt rather than saw before him. But though his skill was great, the result was meagre, and after a lengthened conversation the only facts he thought worth recording in his mind were these:

That there had certainly been something peculiar in the young girl's actions of late; a certain reticence about her work, for instance, such as she had never before displayed. Though she had made several handsome dresses during the last month (as the scraps lying about her room sufficiently testfied), she had never shown them to her landlady, as she had previously been accustomed to do, but kept herself and them locked up in her room till the time came for taking them home. And yet these dresses were certainly for other people and not for herself, she having been seen carrying them out in a great box many times during the four weeks she had kept herself such a prisoner. That the person for whom they were destined was rich, for she came several times to be fitted, and always in a

That the place to which Mildred had gone on a visit was not known to her landlady, nor, as far as could be learned, to anyone else in the house. That Mildred was invariably well, and had never to all appearances stood in need of a doctor's prescription. That Dr. Molesworth had been Mrs. Farley's physician, and in this way had seen much of the daughter. But that he had never appeared to take advantage of this fact, nor could Mrs. Olney recall the least token of an existing affection between them. If lovers, they had been very circumspect, too circum-spect, as it now appeared; such seeming indifference could cover nothing That contrary to their usual open relations they had been seen just once whispering together on the stairs. But even then it was not as lovers whisper -rather like persons who have some business to settle. That no one in the house ever linked their names together in speaking of them; nor were they ever the subject of jokes among the boarders. A poor array of seemingly unproductive facts, it is true; but Mr. Gryce was not discouraged. It was from some chance word or petty revelation he expected his ciue, not from the open details which everyone knew.

His next interview was with the woman who had come with the coroner and whom he as well as Harrison, recognized as an expert female detec-tive. She had taken Mrs. Olney's place beside the dead girl, and from her he hoped to gather a fact about which he was very anxious.

"Well, Mrs. Roberts," he said, upon seeing her, "did you get the line I sent you?" "I did, sir."

"And what have you to say?" "That you are all right. There is a mark of fresh paint on the back of her gown between the shoulder blades." Mr. Gryce drew a breath expressive of great satisfaction. "I thought so," he cried. "And what was its color, Mrs.

Roberts; to a shade, mind?" "As near as I could judge in the light I had, it was brown, but of a very bright and peculiar tint." "Right again. I am very much obliged to you, very much obliged to you. Does anyone else know about this spot?"

"Not to my knowledge." Very good; it is immaterial. 'Twill take more than one of us to discover where that paint came from, imagine. "Any more questions, sir?" What do you think of Dr.

Molesworth?" "A brooding, dark-browed man, with something on his mind beside grief. I cannot make him out, but this much is certain: You won't get anything out of him till the law makes him speak. He is never off his guard, and will neither make a slip nor forget his dignity. Indeed, I have begun to admire him in the short space of time we have been in the same room." "Humph! And do you think other women likely to share that sentiment?"

"Yes, sir; I understand what you mean, and I say unequivocally, yes. He is a man without one handsome feature; he is also a man without much softness of soul or appreciation of woman, but he has a dangerous eye, and you will find if you search his history close enough, that more than one woman has been broken against his hard rature. I know the sex, and I know the men dangerous to it, and he is not one of the least." Mr. Gryce was astonished. Dr. Molesworth was the last man he would have thought likely to be agreeable to women -a conclusion which shows, as he afterwards said to himself, how wise it is now and then to take a woman into one's confidence.

"You probably think, then," he remarked, "that it was love which drove Mildred Farley to her death But Dr. Molesworth expressly said in my presence, she had chosen death in preference to marriage."

"He did? Well, Dr. Molesworth should know. I would trust his judg-ment in such matters implicitly." "Would you trust your life with him if he were angry?"

"O, now you want to make use of my woman's intuition. I cannot allow you to, sir, the matter is too serious. Stick to facts, Mr. Gryce, no man can handle them better."

He smiled as he turned away. "And is not woman's intuition a fact?" he asked. "I have usually found it so."

not settled, although over $1,600 has been paid out already in expense. Reeve Owens' claim for $500 for hospital building that was burnt was before Judge Elliot in London this week. Altogether the bill of expense is formid-Dominion Day brought a good crowd to town. The sports in the forenoon on Front and Frank streets were away be low par. In the afternoon the crowd wended its way to the race course to witness the races.

Next Wednesday we expect to send a large deputation to the choir excur-sion in London. A 75-cent rate, including coupon to afternoon concert, has been given by the railway. The contractor has started work on the dairy school building. From a view of the draft, it will present a very fine appearance when completed, and will add materially to the industries of our town.

Twenty-one bicyclists pedaled out as far as Ryckman's Corners this evening. The Strathroy canning factory opened for business this week. Notwithstanding the dry season, it is noped they will do a good business. The shower we had last week did great deal of good. Some fields of fall wheat and barley are looking exceptionally fine, and now the coor weather is giving the crops a good chance. Although hay will be short, yet in many respects the prospects for a good harvest will not be behind other years.

CHILD SUFFOCATED WHILE ASLEEP.

New York, July 4.—Mrs. Margaret Wengrove, of 341 East Thirty-third street, left her infant child Mary asleep in bed yesterday, while she went to the grocery, covering the child's face with a skirt as a protection against files. When she returned the child was dead. It is supposed that the little one died from suffocation.

Football Championship for 1895. The knowing ones are speculating on the football possibilities of the season. Ottawa is not likely to retain the son. Ottawa is not likely to retain the honors of the championship, as Queen's will put in a team sure to smash all records. It is often the case that very slight causes will lose a victory. It is stated that a painful corn made useless one of the best American players. It follows that no team can hope to win this year that neglects to supply its members with Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, the only safe, sure and Corn Extractor, the only safe, sure and painless remedy for corns. There can be no high civility without a deep morality.

THRILLING RESCUE!

A Lad Who Had Fallen Into a Railroad Tunnel Saved by the Cool Action of a Young Man (From the New York World.) Half a dozen boys were playing on top of the walls of the New York Central tunnel at One hundred and Twentieth street yesterday, daring each other to feats of bravery. The tunnel at that point is open, and the extensive work of raising the tracks offered am-ple opportunity for the boys to display their daring.

Frank Lawrence, 12 years old, of No. 1.688 Park avenue, while leading his companions, fell from the wall and struck his head on the tracks twenty feet below. The fall rendered him unconscious, and he lay in the narrow space between the west track and the tunnel wall, with his feet across the

Half a mile down the long tunnel a train could be seen approaching. The boys screamed in fright, and a crowd ran up. There was no way of getting into the tunnel nearer than One Hundred and Fifteenth street, where steps lead down. Several persons started on the run for that place, but in a moment the train dashed by. It was on the east track, but coming from another direction could be seen the fast express approaching on the track on which young

Lawrence lay. There was a cry of despair from the crowd. One cool-headed young man, Frank Fletcher, of Park avenue and One Hundred and Sixteenth street, knew where there was a rope, and he went for it as soon as he saw the boy's

There was no time to lose when he got back. Hastily tying a noose around his body, he called to the people to lower him into the tunnel. Just as he landed by the side of the unconscious boy, a warning shout came from above, and Fletcher saw that the express was almost upon him.

Freeing himself from the nooze, he picked up the lad and jumped to the east track. As he did so, the train whizzed past, almost drawing him under the wheels with its tremendous suction in the tunnel. Fletcher tied the the rope around young Lawrence and he was hauled up. Then it was lowered again, and the rescuer was lifted up amid great cheering.

Lawrence was attended by Dr. Page, of No. 17 East One Hundred and Twentieth street, who found that his jaw had been fractured and numerous other bruises received. The boy was taken home and did not recover consciousness for several hours.

A Kent County Magistrate Rules That Farmers Are Exempt from Sunday Laws.

Windsor, July 4.-Farmers can haul rails and do other work on Sunday was the judgment in court of Magistrate Forham, of Kent county, yesterday. Farmer Watts, a Seventh Day Adventist, has been keeping Saturday instead of the Sunday as the Biblical Sabbath, and Methodists prosecuted the case. Watts hauled rails on Sunday, and the magistrate ruled that he could go ahead and do all the Sunday work he wanted, being exempt as a farmer.

BUYING PROPERTY. No. 2 committee of the Board of Education last night considered several property offers made in the wards where new schools are to be erected. A tender for a lot 240x140, situated on the corner of William and St. James streets was considered favorably, and will be recommended for acceptance if the price is considered fair. For No. 3 ward, the purchase of the old Waterloo south school will be recommended. The building was sold by the city about four years ago at $1,100. It afterwards went to the Presbyterians for $1,500, and $400 has been laid out by them in repairs. The building and lot can be now secured for exactly what it cost that body—$1,900. The purchase of a lot in No. 2 ward was referred to the members from that district. Tenders for the repairs in all the schools will be called, and the architect was in structed to prepare plans for the new Collegiate Institute closets. Mr. W Berry was awarded the job of sweep ing the school chimneys for $20. Present: Trustees Stephenson (acting chairman), Turner, Johnston, Blackwell, Greenlees, Buchner and Dr. Wilson and Secretary McElheran.

GRACEFUL ACKNOWLEDGMENT. The "Advertiser" has already announced that Rev. John Berry, M.A., B.D., who had been for some time the rector's assistant at St. Paul's has received an appointment to the church at Amherstburg, and that Mr. Berry's friends in St. Paul's had presented him with an appreciative address and a purse of money amounting to about $500. The reverend gentleman thus acknowledges this tangible token of appreciation: "My Dear Friends,-I am sincerely grateful to you for the very kind expressions of regard which you have addressed to me. The short ministry which it has been my privilege to spend in the Cathedral parish is quite unworthy of being marked by any such tokens of appreciation, and if the Divine blessing has been vouchsafed to make my work acceptable, the work is all due to Him whose help and guid-ance I have ever sought in my daily labors. I have, at the best, only done my duty according to my feeble powers, and that deserves no thanks. I am conscious of my failings and errors, for which I crave your charitable indulgence, and I think if there had been longer time my work might have gained strength.

"I wish to express my grateful appreciation of the loyal assistance in parish work rendered by the Christian Endeavor Society and the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, both of which have a noble record for the past year, and de serve the hearty support of the con-gregation. I have always regretted that other duties prevented my taking the active part in the great work of the Sunday school which I wished; but it was a pleasing task to preside at the Bible classes for adults, and I trust they will continue to prosper.

"Mrs. Berry unites with me in heartily thanking you all for the constant friendship which you have shown us all the time we have been in London; and we shall ever remember your un-bounded generosity, so substantial a proof of which you have added in the very valuable gift which we now accept from you with feelings of sincere gratitude and cordial friendship.

"May our heavenly Father ever prosper the parish of St. Paul's and bless and keep you all till we meet in His kingdom above, is the prayer of your faithful servant in Christ, "JOHN BERRY, Clk., M.A., B.D., T.C.D. London, Ont., July 4, 1895.

Mrs. Foster, of Kent street, has just re-covered from a serious attack of La Grippe. This is the second siege she has had of this influenza, the first of which attacked Mrs. Foster about three years ago, and left her with a very troublesome cough, accompanied with chronic bronchitis, and a companied with chronic bronchitis. often feared she would burst a blood vessel during one of these severe attacks. It was very natural that under such circumstances numerous friends would recommend as many different "cure alls." She tried Cherry Pectoral, Tar, Linseed and other preparations, but was growing generally worse when a friend who had been benefited by Barkwell's Bronchial Balsam advised her to try that, and in a few days she was out of bed, and the best feature is that she is now entirely freed from all simptoms of the Bronchitis, of which she never hoped to be cured. Mr. Millar, a neighbor, also had a bad cough and was completely cured by the same preparation.
