CHINESE CANNON

Were First Silenced at Tien-Tsin and Then the Relief Force

Broke Through Into the City—A Murderous Outbreak Expected in Southern China.

London, June 27.—A Che-Poo despatch, dated June 23, says:—"The Americans and British entered Tien Tsin, first silencing the guns of the arsenal and breaking through the Chinese lines. The foreigners were close behind. The Russians lost four killed and 30 wounded. The losses of the other nationalities were small.

"Admiral Seymour's force is about ten miles from Tien Tsin. It is surrounded by Chinese troops and Boxers, and hampered by the presence of sick and wounded. It is reported that all foreigners were sent from Peking with a weak Chinese guard, and it is assumed that they are with Admiral Seymour.

"One thousand Japanese are landing at Taku, and two thousand more are expected to-morrow, when a battalion of French is also due. The foreign admirals have appointed Capt. Wise, commander of the Monocacy, to be commandant at Tong-Ku.

"A fresh phase of the rebellion in China is the probability of immediate outbreaks in the great southern provincial centres. The populace there is daily assuming a more hostile attitude towards foreigners; and the latter perceive symptoms of a general rising, especially at Nanking, where, according to a despatch to the Daily Express, dated yesterday, Kang Wu, one of the most truculent enemies of foreigners, has arrived by way of the Grand Canal, armed with full powers from the Empress to deal with the southern provinces. The friendly attitude of Viceroy Liu Kun Yih toward foreigners has brought him into disgrace with Prince Tuan, president of the Tsung-Li-Yamen. The unrest at Canton is described by a despatch from that city to the Daily Telegraph, dated Monday, via Hong Kong, yesterday:—"It is feared that we are on the eve of a scene of bloodshed and anarchy in the two Quangs only paralleled during the Tai Ping rebellion. The signs of a murderous uprising are so manifest that the wealthy Chinese are hurrying from Canton and the vicinity, taking their wives, families and valuables. Li Hung Chang has been again peremptorily ordered to Peking. His enemies declare that they will murder him before he can reach there. His presence alone restrains the revolutionary elements here. His departure will let loose the 'Black Pies' and 'Red Girdles.' Knowing this Li's trusted officers are sending their families to Hong Kong. The viceroy himself trusts the Americans in this crisis. He says that they alone want no territory, and he places himself largely—almost unreservedly—in their hands. At an important conference to-day he reiterated this statement.

total estimated expenditure for that year of $56,312,328—an increase of $5,185,552 over the amount voted last session for the current year. The increase is made up of $2,893,345 on consolidated fund, $2,052,307 on capital account, with a new vote of $350,000 for the garrison at Halifax. Some of the more important items in the supplementaries are $20,000 for the election frauds commission, $100,000 for the census, $50,000 more for immigration, $55,000 for military properties, $105,995 for Intercolonial on capital, $283,737 for Hugh Ryan & Co.'s award, re Sault Ste. Marie Canal contract, Lewis' graving dock, $25,000; Montreal harbor, $30,000; Port Colborne harbor, $50,000—the latter as well as $25,000 chargeable to income. There are whole pages of estimates for public buildings, wharves, etc. Nova Scotia figures for over $25,000; New Brunswick, $146,300; Quebec, $323,000; Ontario, about three-quarters of a million; for the Yukon, $380,750 more is asked. There are also $15,000 for a survey for a railway from the Yukon to British Columbia coast, $10,000 for the Chinese commission, $10,000 for expenses under the Civic Service Act. For London Custom House repairs, etc., $1,200 is asked; for alterations and furnishings to the post office, $2,000.

STILL CLOSING IN

Lord Roberts' Columns Contract to Log Around President Kruger

The Old Man Will Not Retire to the Mountains—He May Fly to Nelspruit.

London, Wednesday, June 27, 3.20 a. m.—The Boer commandoes in the eastern part of the Orange River Colony appear to have been broken up by their leaders for the time into small parties that harass large columns of the British, incessantly cutting off scouts, sniping pickets and making a show of force here and there. Commandant Christian Dewet, Gen. Steyn's principal commander, is the genius of these guerilla operations. He is the hero on the Boer side in these last days of hostilities. Lord Roberts' columns are steadily contracting the circle of their advance. Transvaal officials, who were interviewed yesterday at Machadodorp by a correspondent of the Daily Express, asserted an intention to hold out to the last. President Kruger will probably retire to Watervalender or Nelspruit. His physician thinks his condition of health will not allow him to go to the high veldt. The British prisoners at Noidgodob are now more comfortable. Large quantities of food and blankets have been forwarded to them and their enclosure is lighted by electricity. Pretoria telegrams say that supplies of warm clothing are reaching Lord Roberts' infantry, who had been ragged and had suffered from the cold. Commandant-General Botha is uncommonly active east of Pretoria. The Canadians are doing splendid outpost work.

QUEENING THE COUNTRY.

London, June 26, 11.25 p. m.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Lord Roberts:—"Pretoria Residency June 25.—Sir Charles Warren reports that the rebellion in Cape Colony, north of the Orange River, is now over. The last formidable body, under Commandant de Villiers, surrendered on June 20, consisting of about 220 men, 280 horses, 18 wagons, 280 rifles and 100,000 rounds of ammunition. General Baden-Powell reports that pacification is going on satisfactorily in the Rustenberg district."

DEVLIN GOT OUT

Just Before He Was Wanted to Give Evidence

In the Emergency Ration Scandal—The Enquiry Closed Without Him.

Ottawa, June 27.—The Emergency Ration Committee concluded its labors last night, and will meet to-day to consider its report. The new witnesses examined yesterday were Mr. Muir, of Montreal, coal merchant, and druggist J. T. Lyon, at whose place the vitaline was put up. Muir, who admitted he took no interest in and knew nothing about chemistry or condensed foods, remembered that Prof. Hatch told him at the conclusion of the Kingston test, that the food supplied the soldiers, contained but 15 per cent of protoids, the high per centage food being old used for invalids.

When the committee met last night Chairman Belcourt read a letter from Dr. Devlin, who supplied the stuff for $4,660, saying that he had been suddenly called by telegram to New York, and therefore could not be present to give his evidence. Mr. Belcourt admitted he had been talking with Devlin at 6 p. m. The contractor's sudden disappearance within an hour of the meeting of the committee made a most unfavorable impression, to say the least of it.

J. T. Lyon swore the stuff was imported from New York in trunks, and sent to his store in Montreal. But it was too coarse to be put in four ounce tins, so it had to be sent to a mill to be ground. After that it was brought back to his place and packed and labelled. He knew nothing of the "vitaline" company, although its address was given as that of his store, nor would he tell what financial interest he had in the transaction.

ANOTHER WORTHLESS CENSUS PROPOSED.

The Windsor Record indulges in this snarl at The Planet, which though undeserved, furnishes an opportunity to discuss the kind of census Canada proposes to spend a couple of hundred thousand dollars on:

"While its party were in power, the Chatham Planet was as mild as a cooling dave, but ever since it got into the cold shades of opposition it has been in a very perturbed state of mind. It cannot agree with anything the present government does. Its latest will is that the government propose to take the next census under the de jure system, and forthwith registers its kick. The 'de jure system' counts those who are out of Canada temporarily. For instance, a number of our people might be in Detroit visiting or working when the census-taker called at their homes. Would it not be absurd to refuse to count these?"

The Planet so far has not made any protest against counting them. It simply referred to the matter to show the inconsistency of the Record's leaders at Ottawa. When the Conservatives followed the de jure system, the Liberals protested. They wanted a de facto census, that is a numbering of the people actually in the country. Now they are in power, why don't they take the kind of census they preached when in opposition? Will the Record kindly say?

To be frank, and we are finding no more fault with the Laurier administration, than with their predecessors, we think the de jure system is a farce. Foreigners temporarily present in the country will offset Canadians temporarily absent. When both are counted, the census must necessarily be unreliable.

HOW AMERICAN LAW TAKES LIFE.

In different parts of the United States capital punishment may be administered by hanging, electrocution, shooting or the guillotine. The latter method Uncle Sam inherited from Spain as the result of the recent war—a painful fact which was disagreeably impressed upon the public mind some weeks ago, when the barbarous weapon was used for the purpose of putting to death certain notorious malefactors in Porto Rico. The general sentiment in the States is adverse to any such cruel punishment even in the case of the worst criminals, and now a similar sentiment is spreading throughout Spain itself.

The first evidence that the Spanish people had begun to disapprove of the horrible method of execution which has prevailed in their country for centuries, appeared a few days ago, when the Spanish parliament decided that condemned criminals should in future be executed within the prisons, and not, as heretofore, in public, and that the moral tortures which have heretofore been inflicted on such criminals before they are handed over to the executioner, should be at once abolished. Henceforth, when a criminal is executed in Spain, a black flag will be hoisted above the prison at the moment of the execution, and no more will be witnessed those deplorable scenes which usually took place when a criminal was executed in public. Furthermore, the executioner will in future do his work quickly, and not as heretofore, in such a manner as to needlessly prolong the agony of his victim. Instead of testing the garrote for several minutes in the presence of the man who is to die, he will have to make all his preparations before the criminal leaves his cell, and he will be held responsible if the instrument fails to cause speedy death.

There has been talk in Spain of abolishing the guillotine altogether, and more than one member of parliament has recently urged that some more humane weapon be substituted for it. Their arguments have made a strong impression on their colleagues, and one result is that condemned persons will not in future be tortured before they die. The torture in such cases was the refinement of cruelty. The condemned man, clothed in funeral garb was taken from his cell 24 hours before the time set for his execution, and was led into another cell, which had been temporarily transformed into a chapel. He knew then that his plea for pardon had proved fruitless.

The walls of the cell were covered with black cloth, and near an altar, on which tapers were burning, stood several black robed monks, who chanted funeral hymns. In his gloomy cell, where the only sounds heard were the voices of those who prayed for the repose of his soul, the unhappy criminal was obliged to remain during the whole of his last day on earth. A few years ago he was obliged to remain in such a chapel during the two days and nights preceding his execution, but the time was reduced some time ago to 24 hours, and a further reduction was made still more recently by parliamentary decree. Several legislators, however, are clamoring for further reform in this direction. They insist that one hour in the chapel is sufficient. "The law," they say, "in condemning a criminal to capital punishment does not ordain that his execution shall be preceded by any other punishment, or that he shall be subjected to moral as well as to physical tortures.

"He That is Warm Thinks All So."

The recent regulations provide that in future the chapel shall be divested as much as possible of its funeral features, and thus, though condemned persons will be required to spend some hours in it, they will not be tortured in the same manner as their unfortunate predecessors.

By all means abate the pole nuisance on King street.

The mortality among canines, as indicated by the number of applications for remission of dog tax, is so satisfactory that it is a pity the council couldn't double the penalty.

There must be some remedy for the railway bog pen nuisance. The board of health has been dawdling over the matter so long it looks as if that eminent body either had little real authority or else was so mightily afraid of the railway that it hadn't the courage to use what power it possessed.

It is a mistake to think that by including the King street poles in the sidewalk allowance that the space for vehicle traffic will be reduced. The poles occur so frequently that drivers must keep out and clear of them. Hence the distance between these poles is now neither useful for walking nor driving on.

Without going into the merits of the by-law, we imagine the impounder was taking some risks if he entered upon private property, fenced or unfenced, and unlocked and drove away cattle which did not belong to him. The criminal code calls the taking of another person's live stock, a different crime from impounding, and the criminal code is a higher authority than a Chatham city by-law. If Mr. Dunlop had thought of this he might have gone to the police instead of the city council with a different result.

A Conservative journal denies that Hugh John Macdonald's treatment of the foreigners is like Kruger's treatment of the Uitlanders. Its argument is that the Uitlanders were a superior people to the Boers, while we are superior to the foreigners. This seems to be substituting self-conceit for justice.—The Globe.

Of course the Globe has a right to speak for itself. It may therefore be counted out when Conservative journals claim that Canadians are superior in education and intelligence to the recently imported Donkshobors and Galkians of the Northwest.

REPAIRING ARTERIES.

A Surgical Feat That Was Long Thought to be an Impossibility.

In the recent medical archives in the library of St. Petersburg is an account of a most wonderful operation performed by Kamtsky, one of the greatest surgeons of his time, an operation like which no other is recorded. Pottinkosh, a rich farmer, cattle raiser and reindeer farmer, residing north of St. Petersburg, suffered an injury to the upper end of the right thigh, caused by being violently hurled from his sleigh, the latter having struck a stump. The farmer in falling was jagged by a snag which struck about two inches below the fold of the flank, causing a torn, bleeding, gaping wound of about four inches in length, directly downward and in a line over the femoral artery (the large artery which supplies the entire leg with blood), the latter vessel having been laid bare and severely bruised in the wreck, no large vessels having been torn.

Kamtsky, with the great wisdom of a world of experience, wisely apprehended the possible results of this peculiar wound, and for the next twenty-four hours he spent every minute of his time, valuable as it was, working with chemical file, molten substances and apparatus of divers kinds until finally the object of his efforts was attained, a small, elastic, colorless tube, about five inches long, the composition of which is not recorded, consequently not known. In twelve hours after his task was finished careful scrutiny of the injured limb revealed, exposing about three and one-half inches of bruised vessel, ready to disintegrate. A clamp was placed on the artery an inch above where normal tissue began; then he cut the artery at the junction of the bruised and sound tissue, and carefully drawing the mysterious tube from its aseptic hiding place, he slipped the cut, round end of the vessel into it about an inch, being exceedingly careful while so doing to keep the hollow tube collapsed and empty, so as to avoid all danger produced by the entrance of air.

Repeating the same process at the lower end of the artery, he inserted the tube into the end of the vessel about the same distance at the upper end lay in the tube. Then gently releasing the lower clamp, he allowed the tube to fill with blood from the portion of the vessel below. Then the final test came when he gently and steadily removed the clamp above the tube, thus establishing an unbroken channel which would carry the blood to its normal distribution. A slight pouching of the tube at first caused some fear as to whether it were strong enough to stand the pressure of the heart wave of blood as the latter pulsed through its new channel. This latter defect was overcome, however, when the tube was laid on the bed of the wound, exerted portion and the external support of the muscles and tissues gave it sufficient strength to overcome the pressure of the blood stream. The wound was carefully closed, the parts set at rest and results awaited.

In thirty-six hours the blue tint had disappeared from the toe and the color of the skin of the leg changed from a pale ashy to a pink. Two months afterward the patient was attending his every-day duties as formerly, suffering no inconvenience whatever from his wound. Five years afterward the patient died of acute pneumonia and a postmortem examination of the seat of the wound revealed a strong, firm plug of composition tube, immediately in the "situation" of the composition tube, the latter having been absorbed by the blood, not however, before the lymphatics had so encysted it, just as a bullet becomes encysted in the body after months of time, to the extent that when the tube was eaten away by the blood this fibrous coat answered the original plan of circulation.

Shell Shock Lasted Years.
"I see by the war cablegrams," said a resident of Pittsburgh at one of the hotels, "that some of the dead Boers found in the trenches were without visible wounds. Apparently they had been killed by shock. That recalls to me very forcibly a remarkable case, for which I can vouch personally."

"During the first day's fighting at Gettysburg a young man named Joe Cady, second lieutenant in the Twelfth Pennsylvania, was supposed to have been killed by a shell which exploded within a few yards of his head. Later surgeons made an examination, and, greatly to their surprise, could find no wound. The man was alive, in a profound stupor, but to all appearances was physically unharmed at Washington, and from there, still in the same condition, to his home near Harrisburg. "For several weeks Cady lay exactly like one dead, and then, very gradually, he began to emerge from unconsciousness into a horrible, automatic sort of life, next door to complete idiocy. That condition remained unaltered for nearly three years; then suddenly he had a seizure like cataplexy, from which he awoke in a few hours in complete possession of his reason."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

CANADA AT PARIS.

Our Pavilion Successfully Opened—It Challenges the Admiration of All Visitors to the Exposition.

The Canadian Pavilion threw open its doors on Queen's Birthday, sans ceremony, and the throngs of visitors to the Exposition of visiting it. Throughout the entire day the building was crowded with visitors, who seemed to be greatly interested in the many fine exhibits. Canada has been so much pictured as covered with snow and her sons and daughters garbed in furs, that it is not surprising that one of the most sought-for sections of the Pavilion was the fur exhibit.

Here was Colonel Gourdeau in all his glory, surrounded by his gels, which he had taken such pains to arrange in a way that they could be properly viewed. The Colonel, who speaks French faster than a Parisian, was kept busy all day answering the thousand and one hundred questions with which the sightseers pilled him. The Canadian exhibits are somewhat of an eye-opener to some of the French visitors, as many of them were heard expressing their surprise that Canada could make such a grand showing.

The very tasteful manner in which the cereals have been placed was another great attraction, the walls of the gallery, as well as the ceiling, having been covered with beautiful designs made from wheat and corn sheaves. The food product exhibit came in for special attention, especially the cheese and the specimens of Canadian fruit on the immense stand in the centre of the main floor. This was looked upon with longing eyes, and no doubt with wishes for a bite at some of the luscious fruit contained in the glass jars.

It would not be fair to say that one exhibit came in for more attention from visitors than another, but at some exhibits the throng seemed to linger longer than others, but all seemed pleased with the entire display.

Commissioner W. D. Scott, of Winnipeg, does not speak French, but what he cannot explain in words he does with a smile. A French gentleman and lady noticed Mr. Scott acting, as they supposed, as a director of the Pavilion, and came to him with questions about the working of the stoves on exhibition. Mr. Scott spoke in English, the French gentleman and lady in French. After about ten minutes' talk the French party said "Bon jour" to Mr. Scott, but all Mr. Scott could say was, "Education department next floor."

The Canadian Commissioners, considering the very many difficulties with which they have had to contend in their endeavor to get things in proper trim and shape so as to be ready to open the doors of the Pavilion, are to be congratulated on their success and the excellent arrangement of the different sections.

Silk From a Spider's Web.

One of the most novel exhibits at the Paris exposition is a complete set of bed hangings manufactured in Madagascar from silk obtained from an enormous spider known as the halabab, that is found in great numbers in certain parts of the island. The French have been investigating the value of this fibre at their technical school at Antananarivo, and have reached the conclusion that the production of silk from the spider is worthy to become an important industry.

Mr. Nogue, the head of the school, says that each spider yields from 300 to 400 yards of silk thread. After the thread has been taken from the spider it is set free and ten days later is ready to furnish another supply. The silk is of a brilliant golden color and is finer than that of the silk worm. Its elasticity is remarkable. It can be woven without the least difficulty.

A Novel Sewage Distributing Device.

A sewage distributing device of novel form is used in delivering the discharge of the City of Hiale, England, to a series of contact beds of the Diddin type. The sewage first enters a chamber, from which it is discharged by a syphon in quantities of 1,000 imperial gallons each time. These volumes of sewage are delivered to a second chamber having six openings, communicating with as many beds. Each opening is closed by a valve. There is a float in the syphon chamber, which raises a shaft through 60 degrees every time the chamber is emptied. This shaft carries six cams, which press against the levers moving the valves, the cams being so arranged that each partial revolution of the shaft closes one valve and opens the next. In this way the sewage is discharged automatically on one bed after the other.

Colored Man Lived 123 Years.

There died on Saturday, June 16, at the county infirmary, near Lisbon, Ohio, one who, unless the documentary evidence in his possession is at fault, was the oldest resident of the state, if not of the country. James Reddick was his name, and he was born a slave in Virginia in 1777, as he often asserted, and he had in his possession several documents tending to support his claim that he was really 123 years old. Among others was a bill of sale transferring him from one master to another. This is dated Aug. 6, 1800, and in it he is described as a man of 23 years. He had been helpless for many years.

Exciting Fight With Snakes. Frank Purnell of Beboe Run, Cumberland county, had a fight the other day with two black snakes, which came near getting the better of him, says the Newark (N. J.) News. He saw them basking in the sun and thought he would measure five feet, and while tackling one the other rushed at him. In his fight he was well nigh exhausted when the reptiles gave up and took to the woods.

MAC AND THE DOG

He So Lambasted Dr. Sampson Oratorically

That the Latt-r's Cause even Deserted Him—flow in Fact Won Editor McKay's Disaffection

Just at present the people of Leamington are agitated over the high school and free library, and feelings and opinions are running high.

There are some people in Leamington who are opposed to both and are saying so quite loudly. The controversy over these questions has reached the pulpits and one minister went so far as to say that the persons opposed to the high school and free library were "next door to the bottomless pit."

The champion of the anti is Councillor Prosser, and he is the representative of the council on the free library board. Mr. Prosser is a very large man, physically, with a ready flow of language, has an emphasis and persuasive way of expressing himself and was carrying the other members with him.

The public school board were about to appoint a representative of that body on the library board and the situation was causing them considerable anxiety. It was important in the interests of the free library that some one should be placed on the board who would be able to offset the persuasive eloquence of Councillor Prosser.

The hopes of the board centred upon Editor Mackay. The editor is a small man, physically, but of large mental calibre. When it comes to an intellectual contest he is regarded as a whole team and the dog upon Editor Mackay. The editor is a man who has been brought from Chicago to Leamington to meet him, but he was able to down him. At St. Thomas he had met the redoubtable Frank Hunt, and left him figuratively speaking, sprawling on the grass. He had entered the intellectual arena at Highgate against the mighty Dr. Sampson and had disfigured him so badly that his own dog, a faithful animal, who had been in the family for years, refused to longer recognize him, but followed Mackay home. This last evidence of Mackay's intellectual prowess satisfied the board and he got the appointment.

The contest between brain and brawn is looked forward to with feverish interest.—Windsor Record.

ELECTRIC LINE COMING

One May be Built Paralleling the G. T. R. From Windsor.

Detroit Tribune.

A preliminary survey has been made and portions of the right of way secured for an electric line from Windsor to Detroit. Windsor and Detroit capital are behind the scheme and it is expected that the company will be incorporated shortly. The present intention is to commence the work of construction early next spring, but it may be begun sooner if the necessary arrangements can be made. The road will parallel the Grand Trunk between Windsor and Chatham, and should mean a reduction in fare between these points.

GENERAL SPORTS.

What is Going on in Baseball and Other Athletic Games.

News, Local and Telegraphic, Gathered From Reliable Sources.

A friendly game of baseball was played on Tecumseh Park last night between the Bobs and the Chatham colored team. The Bobs won by a score of 11 to 6. The features of the game were McCole's batting and Smith's work at short.

London, June 27.—Thompson held the London down to two runs yesterday on their own grounds. His pitching was superb. At critical times he was most effective. Hemphill and Hart struck out with men on the bases. Cope and Lohman did about all the timely hitting. Jones reached first on O'Connell's muff in the fourth inning, and went to second while Reed was being retired. Then Cope rapped the ball out to centre, and Lohman sent a liner in the same direction, but with a three-run label attached.

Neal, the slight little fellow who covered left field for the visitors, again did wonderful work. Twice he pulled down long drives by Radcliffe, who was hitting the ball hard every time up, and in the last inning he chased a long fly of Lohman's over the woods and brought it back. Neal's record of six difficult put-outs has not been excelled here. His fine work, quite as much as anything, dampened the spirits of the champions, who had started in chattering like so many magpies. Of the half-dozen catches, that of Radcliffe's bat in the fifth inning was the prettiest.

Hemphill was the subject of a joke that everyone enjoyed but the right-fielder. It happened in the fifth inning. Two hands were gone, and at the moment that Hemphill stole second base Hart struck out. For practice, Klock threw to second to catch Hemphill, but the ball went wild. The Chathams joined in the shout, "Go on, go on," and Hemphill sprang for dear life. Not until, breathless, he crossed the plate, did he realize that a good deal of fun was being enjoyed at his expense.

Wiggs pitched for London, and his work was good enough to win any ordinary game. Only seven hits were made off his delivery, and of this number three were by that hard-hitting ex-Londoner Grimshaw. Four of the Chatham six runs were secured on errors. Another was a homer, and the sixth was altogether due to Wiggs, who issued a pass, sandwiched in a wild pitch and then allowed a bounding ball to go through him. Radcliffe's wild throw gave the visitors a run in the second inning. Lohman's passed ball on a third strike cost the runner who scored struck out, but Lohman again let the third strike get away from him. Wiggs seemed to have too much steam up. With three men on bases Wiggs struck out the last man in the third inning, and again in the seventh, with the bases all filled, he struck out the last two men, and so far as his work was concerned the side was retired on strikes.

The Strathconas Have Cut the Boers off From the Sea

By Blowing up a Bridge Near Komati Poort—A Very Effective Stroke.

Pretoria, June 27.—Strathcona's Horse has done one of the great deeds of the war. Leaving Cape Town a month ago, they went to Durban by water, and then proceeded up country, reaching Gen. Buller's force in time to do splendid service in the advance from Newcastle on towards Standerton and Pretoria—service for which they received special mention in Gen. Buller's despatches to the war office, approved by Lord Roberts. Now they have done a deed which will live in history. They have blown up the railway bridge at Komati Poort, on the railway between Pretoria and Koomati Poort, and have cut off all communication of the Boers with the sea. All the Delagoa Bay railway rolling stock, the Boer artillery, the whole Boer army, including the gold taken by President Kruger from the mint here, are west of the break, and must now inevitably fall into our hands. Strathcona's Horse has effectively bottled up the Boers.

THE LADIES ASSISTING SOCIETY.
The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Assisting Society was held on Monday afternoon, at the residence of Mrs. G. G. Taylor, 25 members being present. A report of the recent moonlight excursion was made, and after all expenses are paid, there remains a neat balance of $92. A vote of thanks was tendered Hugh Macaulay, of the "Ark" for his kindness in loaning the Society the dishes which were used on the moonlight excursion. Mrs. Chas. MacDonald, the retiring secretary, was also tendered a vote of thanks, and regret was expressed at her departure from the city. After refreshments, served by the hostess, the meeting adjourned to meet the last Monday in August, at the residence of Mrs. (Dr.) Holmes, thus giving the members of the society a vacation during the next two months.

HAIR RAISING.

Years Ago no One Would Believe What Thousands Now Know to be a Fact—Hair Can be Grown on Bald Heads.

The hardest to convince that baldness can be replaced by a new growth of hair, are the bald.

Why?

Because hundreds of things have been used with no effect. Nothing that has ever been prepared would produce a permanent growth of hair on bald heads until the discovery of The Rose Hair Grower.

This preparation is the first to successfully demonstrate the hitherto impossible, growing hair on bald heads.

The originator, after perfecting the formula, found himself face to face with an incredulous public, who said: "No, no, too good to be true."

"Would like to believe it, but can't."

"Nothing will cure my baldness."

"Good man, if true, you could not supply demand."

"Useless to talk, been fooled to often."

Now these same people, who know what they are talking about, express themselves as follows:—

Robert Ross, plumber, Parkdale, says:—"I have been bald for over 25 years, but after using The Rose Hair Grower for two months, I have a good growth of hair all over my head, and it is filling in at the sides nicely. I have much pleasure in sending you this reference, and will continue using your treatment."

W. Livingstone, druggist, 25 Howard St., Toronto, says:—"This is to certify that I have seen the results of the use of The Rose Hair Grower. As a druggist with many years' experience in the city of Toronto, I have seen a small number of hair tonics tried with varying results, but have never sold a hair grower that has been such a pronounced success as The Rose. Ladies and gentlemen amongst our best people in the city, to whom I recommended it, many of whom were bald, now have beautiful heads of hair. I have used it myself and now have a head of hair as thick as anyone could wish for."

The Rose Hair Grower stops falling of the hair with a few applications. It absolutely removes dandruff. Makes the hair soft and pliable. It is a perfect hair dressing, and the only preparation in the world that overcomes baldness.

Price, $1.00 per bottle of dealers, or forwarded on receipt of price by addressing Rose & Co., 48 Adelaide St., East, Toronto, Ont.

LOVE'S TRIUMPH.

A STORY OF LOVE AND WAR.

BY MARY J. HOLMES,

Author of "Lena Rivers," "Edna Browning,"

"Tempest and Sunshine," Etc., Etc.

Just as the sun was setting, Rose took her leave, saying, as she bade Annie good-bye, "I mean to drive round by the depot and get the tickets to-night so as to save time in the morning."

Annie smiled at the little lady's restlessness and, after kissing her good-night, stood by the window watching her as she drove down the street, and thinking to herself:

"When I see her again it will be to-morrow."

Rapidly Rose's mother's iron grays were being replaced by a new growth of hair, and after kissing her good-night, stood by the window watching her as she drove down the street, and thinking to herself:

"When I see her again it will be to-morrow."

A little child, he was greatly changed from the days when he had been called the Rockland Hercules. But as the outer man decayed, the inner man grew strong and bright, shining forth at the last with all the splendour which perfect faith in Christ's Atonement can shed around a death-bed. There was no repining now, no murmuring at the mysterious dealings of Providence, nothing but sweet, childish confidence, and a patient waiting for the end coming on so fast that George himself could feel the irregular beat of his wily pulse, and mark the death hue as it came creeping on, settling first in purple spots about his finger tips and spreading its ashen color over his clammy hands.

A stormy November night had closed over Washington, and the rain beat dimly against the windows of the room where Mr. Mather bent over the dying soldier, listening to what he said.

"You can't tell Annie all," George whispered, looking fondly up into the face he had learned to love so well.

"You must write it down, so as not to lose a single word. Bring pen and paper, and then sit where I can see you, for the light of you does me good; you have been so kind to me."

The writing utensils were brought, and then sitting where George could look into his face, Mr. Mather wrote as the dying man dictated:

"My Dear, Dear, Darling Annie—It will be days, perhaps, before you see this letter, and ere it reaches you somebody will have told you that your poor George is dead. As you cry, 'Darling, are you dead?' Do the tears fall upon the words, 'poor George is dead?' Don't cry, my precious Annie. It makes my heart ache to think how you will sorrow and I not there to comfort you. It's hard to die away from home, but not so hard as it would once have been, for I hope I am a different man from the one who bade you good-bye a few short months ago, and, darling, it must comfort you to know that your prayers, your sweet influence have led the wanderer home to God. We shall meet again, ere it is long, and our partings are unknown. It may be many years, perhaps, and the grass upon my grave may blossom many times ere you will sleep the sleep which knows no waking, but at last you will come where I am waiting you. I shall be there, Annie. All the harassing doubts and fears are gone. Simple faith in the Saviour's promise has taken them away, and left me perfect peace. God bless you, Annie, darling, and grant that as you read this letter, you may be as happy as I am now. Since you have been my wife, and I bless you for it. It makes my death pillow easier to know that not one bitter word has ever passed between us—nothing but perfect confidence and love. I was not good enough for you, darling. None knows that better than myself. You should have married one of gentler blood and higher birth than I, a poor mechanic. I have always felt more than you, perhaps, and have tried so hard not to shame you with my homely ways. Had I lived, I should have improved constantly beneath your refining influence, but that is all past now, and it is well, perhaps, that it is so. As you grew older, you might have felt there was a lack in me, something which did not satisfy the ravings of your higher nature, and though you might not have loved me less, you would have seen that we were not wholly congenial. I am well enough in my way, but I am not a suitable companion for a girl of culture like yourself, and I've often wondered that you should have chosen me. But you did, and again I bless you for it. Never, never was your so happy as the time I spent with you, my darling, darling Annie, and I was looking forward to many such. But God has decreed it otherwise, and what He does we know is right. I shall never see you again, and though they will bring me back to you, I shall not feel your tears upon my face, or see you bending over my death-bed. Still I know you will do this, and that makes it necessary for me to tell what, perhaps, has been too long withheld, because I would spare you, if possible."

"Annie, had I lived, I never could have told for you as once I did, for where the right arm, which has held your light form so often, used to be, there is nothing now but a scarred stump, and this is why I have not written. Does it make you sick and shrink away from me? Don't, Annie. Your crippled husband's heart is as full of tenderness as ever. I was too proud of my figure, Annie, and the thought that you might love me less when you knew how maimed I was, hurt more than the cold, sharp steel cutting into my throbbing flesh."

"And now, dear Annie, I come to the hardest part of all: I know just how you'll start and shudder at what you deem so cruel a suggestion—know just how keen the pang will be for I have fainted as I thought of the time when another's caresses than mine would call the sweet love light to your eye and kindle the soft blushes on your cheek. Listen to me, Annie. You'll be glad one day to remember that I told you what I did. You are young and beautiful, and though you do not believe it now, the time will surely come when my grave will not be visited as often as at first, and the flowers you will plant above me when next spring's sun shines will wither for want of care, and the rank grass growing by your dear little bed will be waiting by another freckle than ours in the hollow, and my Annie will bear another name than mine. Do you discredit me, darling? It will surely be, and I am willing that it should, but you will never know the anguish it costs me to be willing. It is the bitterest drop in all the bitter cup, but I drink it with tears and prayers, and now I can calmly say to you what I am saying—can even from my death-bed give you to another, whoever he may be. You can never forget your husband, who fell in his country's cause, and by-and-bye thoughts of him will come to give you pain, and our short married life will seem like some far-off dream."

"I cannot say how it would be with me were you taken and I left, but I am much like other men, and judging from their example I should do just as they do; so if, in after years, another asks you, as I once did, to be his guiding star, don't refuse for me. Think of me from my low grave. I bless you in your new relations, and will welcome you to heaven all the same, though you come fettered and bound with other links than those my love has thrown around you."

"I am almost done now, Annie. There is a gathering film before my eyes, and I feel the death chill creeping through my veins. It would be sweet to have you here, as I go down the brink up which no traveller has ever come; but I cannot be, and I will not repine. There is One with whose presence is dearer far than yours could be: One whose everlasting arm will be beneath me as I pass over Jordan. Learning on Him I need no other stay, but shall go fearlessly down to death. There is another with me, too—an earthly friend, who has been kinder than a brother, and my heart clings to him more fondly than he can ever guess. Always respect William Mather, Annie, for what he has done for me. Pray that prosperity may attend him all his days, and that at the last he may find a place in heaven. He is thinking of these things, I know, and from the dreary hours spent with me there may yet spring up plants of everlasting growth. My mind begins to wander, darling. There's a rushing sound in my ears, while thoughts of you and thoughts of that terrible Sabbath battle are blending together. Good-bye, my precious one. Don't cry too much when you read this. It is not good-bye forever. A few more years of earth to you, a moment of heavenly bliss to me, and then we meet again where golden harps are ringing. I can almost hear them now—almost see the shining stars sent out to meet me, just as I once vainly dreamed the Rockland people would come to welcome me home from war. In fancy I put my arms around your neck, just as I used to do; in fancy hold you to my bosom; in fancy kiss your girlish lips, and smooth your pale brown hair."

"I don't know how you'll live without me; don't know who will earn your bread, but the God of the widow and the fatherless will surely care for my darling and keep her heart from breaking. With Him I leave you, knowing you are safer there than else where."

There were great tear-blots upon this letter, for Mr. Mather, as he penned it, had wept over it like a child, forming a resolution which he wondered had not suggested itself before. Kneeling by the dying George, he said, "God will care for your darling, and I shall be His instrument. So long as I have a home, Annie shall not suffer. Rose's love was given to her long ago, and mine will follow soon. She shall be a sister to us both."

The glazed eyes lighted up with joy, and the white lips whispered the thanks which ended in a prayer for blessings on one who had proved himself so kind to the poor soldier.

WHERE KIN COME IN HANDY.

"Well, here's a letter from Cousin Tabitha, in Texas; we haven't heard from her for years."

"Somebody must be dead or married."

"No, she wants me to do some shopping for her."

BOER WOMEN

As Seen by a Britisher in the War in South Africa.

The presence of Gen. Joubert's wife with him in camp has been noted throughout Europe as an extraordinary thing.

A. C. Hales, an Australian correspondent who was captured by the Boers and released by President Steyn, writing from Burgersdorp to the Daily News, says:

"It is a noticeable fact that very large numbers of women have followed their husbands and fathers to the war, not to act as viragos, not to play the wanton, nor unsex themselves not to handle the rifle but to nurse the wounded, to comfort the dying and to lay out the dead.

"I have heard them singing around the camp fires in the starlight but it was hymns that they sang, not ribald songs. I have seen them kneeling by the side of men in the moonlight, not in wantonness, but in mercy and many a man who wears the British uniform to-day can bear me witness that I speak the truth.

"When the scouts are out the laager
is fixed for the night—not a very exhaustive proceeding as the Boers do not go in for luxuries. Here a tarpaulin is stretched over a kind of temporary ridge-pole blankets are tossed down on the hard earth saddles are used for pillows, and the couch is complete. A little way further down the line a rude canvas screen is thrown over the wheels of a wagon and a family, or rather husband and wife, make themselves at home under the wagon;

while the single men simply throw themselves at full length on the ground, wrap their one thin, small blanket round them and smoke and rest morose enough, while the Kafirs light the fires and make the coffee.

"The Boers live when out in laager
like Spartans; they dress anyhow, sleep anywhere and eat just rusk and precious little else.

"Talk about 'Tommy' and his hard times, why, a private soldier at the front sleeps better, dresses better and eats better than a Boer General; yet never once did I hear a Boer complain of hardships.

"After tea, the Boers sit about and clean their rifles; the women move from one little group to another, chatting cheerfully; but I saw nothing in their conduct or in the conduct of any man toward one of them that would cause the most chaste matron in Great Britain to blush or drop her eyes.

"There is in the laager an utter absence of what we term soldierly discipline; men moved about, went and came in a free and easy fashion, just as I have seen them do a thousand times in diggers' camps. There was no saluting of officers, no stiffness, no starch anywhere.

"The General lounged about with his hands in his pockets and pipe in mouth.
No one pays him any special deference.
He talks to the men, the striplings and the women, and they talk back to him in a manner which seems strange to a Britisher familiar to the way of military camps.

"After the chatting the priding, or person, if there is one in the laager, raises his hands and all listen with reverent faces while the man of God
utters a few words in a solemn, earnest tone, then all kneel, and a prayer floats up toward the skies, and a few moments later the whole camp is wrapped in sleep."

SHE COULD DABBLE, TOO

How a Woman Broke Her Husband of Taking Risks in the Stock Market.

He was a business man making a nice little sum every year for nest-egg purposes, besides extending his business and slowly but surely moving along toward Easy street. Yet he was not content, and in the hope of forcing the hand of Fortune, was doing some trading in the stock market. His wife said it was gambling, pleading with him to stop. He insisted that it was perfectly legitimate and regular, and she finally admitted that he was right and gave up the contest.

His wife gave him no further trouble
until one Sunday morning she appeared ready for church in a handsome new cloak. He wanted to know where she got it, and she told him that he could learn by and by. He went to church with her, feeling uncomfortable. He kept his peace, however, and said no more until the next Sunday, when she appeared in a rich black silk gown.
He asked questions, but got no answers that were satisfying. All that week he worried so over that cloak and the silk that he lost his grip on the market and fell short seriously. Sunday came again, and this time she had a pair of diamonds in her ears that fairly dazzled his eyes.

He hadn't a spark of jealousy in his nature and he believed implicitly in his wife, but this was really too much.
She calmly took from her desk a lot of blanks with which he was quite familiar, and handed them to him.
"They are the records of my transactions in stocks recently," she said, with an air of triumph. "I borrowed $50 on the diamond ring you gave me
when we were married, and handed it over to brother Charlie to invest for me. I told him you said it was all right, and he did as I told him to do.
I didn't know a thing in the world about it, of course, but I was lucky and I made $1,500, and if the luck doesn't go against me I'll make another thousand next week. It is too easy for anything, and you know, dear, you showed me so clearly that there was nothing wrong in it. I have paid our share of the preacher's salary, too, for the next year, and I'm thinking of organizing a Daughters of the Stock Market in the church. Won't it be lovely?"

"Mary, my dear," he said, solemnly,
"if you'll quit I will, and Mary, after the manner of women, began to cry, she was so glad that it turned out just as it did.

At the Wedding Breakfast.

Guest (with a leaning toward sentimental rhetoric offering a toast)—It was love that touched your young hearts, love that brought you together,
love that is responsible for your present happiness, love—

Bride's Father (angrily interrupting)—Well, where do you think my money came in? Do you take me for a pauper?

ETIQUETTE OF THE HAT.

It Plays a Greater Part in the Intercourse
of Others Than of Americans.

WALKING UP Fifteenth street recently," said a Washingtonian
who has traveled extensively,
"I observed the Secretary of State remove his hat to two gentlemen, who returned the salutation in the same manner. They were members of the Diplomatic Corps.

"As we all know, the American style of salutation when two or more gentlemen meet is an inclination of the head or a wave of the hand. The hat is doffed to the gentler sex only.
On the Continent it would be an insult for a gentleman to pass an acquaintance without removing his hat. If they are friends the salutation is even more formal and includes a shake of the hand and the exchange of a few complimentary remarks.

"The French are accounted the most junctilous and ceremonial of people. I think the Belgians are even more so.
Their customs are French, however.
They have a language of their own,
but the names of the streets in Brussels are in both French and 'Belge' on the same sign board.

"I spent a week in the Belgium capital, where a member of the American Legation piloted me about. I made the acquaintance of many Belgian gentlemen, and the salutation between my diplomatic friend and those he met was something like this:

"Ah, Count. I am delighted to greet you." (cordial smile, a ceremonious lifting of the hat, a hearty shake of the hand and an inclination of the body in a polite bow.)

"My dear Col., the pleasure is wholly mine. I am rejoiced to see you. I trust you are very well." (Same formula.)

"My friend, Mr. — of Washington." (Same formula on my part and that of the Count.)

"After an interchange of mutually complimentary remarks the ceremonies attending the introduction were ended, and we respectively said 'au revoir,' and replaced our silk hats for the last time upon our heads. It was a novelty at first, but when I repeated
it eighteen times an hour I experienced a crick in the small of my back.

"I noticed and explained to me that continental gentlemen of high social position were not pressed by political and financial affairs as are Americans in similar walks of life, and the hurry and haste we display is unknown to them."—Washington Evening Star.

FINE BITS

Thackeray said: "I go to what I don't know, but to God's next world, which is His, and He made it. One paces up and down the shore yet awhile, and looks toward the unknown ocean, and thinks of the traveler who sailed yesterday. Those we love can but walk down to the pier with us—
the voyage we must make for ever.
Except for the very young or very happy,
I can't say I am sorry for any one who dies."

Never speculate. Never buy stocks or grain on margin.

Not to enjoy life, but to employ life,
ought to be our aim and aspiration.— Macduff.

Refinement is more a spirit than an accomplishment. All the books of etiqquette that have been written cannot make a person refined. True refinement springs from a gentle, unselfish heart. Without a refined spirit a refined life is impossible.—Hazard.

The drying up of a single tear has more of honest fame than shedding seas of gore.—Byron.

No accidents are so unlucky but that the prudent man may draw some advantage from them.—Rochefoucauld.

Never indorse. When you enter on business for yourself never indorse for others. It is dishonest. All your resources and all your credit are the sacred property of the men who have trusted you. If you wish to help another give him all the cash you can spare; never indorse. It is dishonest.

ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN

Do not use tobacco

Never enter a barroom, nor let the contents of a barroom enter you.

Concentrate. Having entered upon a certain line of work continue and combine upon that line.

The young man who does this is the young man whom capital wants for a partner and son-in-law. He is the young man who by and by becomes the head of the firm.

Save a little always. Whatever your wages lay by something from them.

That drawn, squinting expression, seen on older people, is often erroneously attributed to age, or a "life of care" or "raising a large family." Such alleged reasons may occasionally be valid ones, but the fact still remains that these unnatural facial conditions are often due to defective eyes and the need of right glasses to remove muscular and nervous strain. Save your nervous energy. Let good glasses do the work now imposed on over-taxed muscular and nerve force. Glasses to fit any eyes. E. J. MacIntyre, optician, opposite Grand Opera House.

THE C. M. B. A. EXCURSION.

The C. M. B. A. excursion to Mt. Clemens yesterday was a successful one. Some 300 from this city boarded the boat, while at Palm Court, Crow's dock and the Light House a hundred more picnicers joined them. The boat arrived at McKeough's dock near Mt. Clemens about 12:30. The street cars were waiting and the C. M. B. A. speak in the highest terms of the treatment they received from the electric road. Whirlwind along at a rapid rate, the city of baths was soon reached when some tried the efficacy of the water, while others visited the large sanatorium constructed by the sisters of charity. Returning a pleasant trip was enjoyed and the boat reached Chatham shortly after nine o'clock. Some $75 was left after all expenses had been paid so that besides affording a pleasant outing the excursion was quite profitable. The committee in charge of the excursion and to whose efforts its success was due, was composed of the following: Chairman Peter Robert, Secretary John Welsh and J. T. O'Keefe, Ed. Reardon, Robt. Killen, David Canary, Ed. Coyne and Owen Dillon.

COST COMES HIGH

Two Million Dollars Voted for Military Purposes.

More Cannon and New Rifles to be Purchased—Lee-Enfield Declared Not Equal to the Best.

Ottawa, June 27.—Previous to the House going into committee on supply at yesterday morning's session, Mr. Maxwell read a telegram from Mr. J. B. Charleson, denying Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper's charges in regard to the construction of the Yukon telegraph line. The message was couched in such insulting terms as to elicit from the Speaker a decision that the reading of it was an infringement of the rules of the House.

On the item of $175,000 for annual drill, the Minister of Militia said he estimated the cost of drilling the force this year at $425,000, and a supplementary vote would be asked.

There was a protracted discussion upon the policy of selling the discarded Snider-Enfield rifles at 75 to 80 cents each. The minister's explanation was that the guns were advertised and sold by tender, and that none of them had gone to the United States.

Mr. Bergeron read from the Auditor-General's report that several thousand condemned rifles had been sold to a firm in New York for 25 cents apiece.

Mr. Wallace urged the necessity of establishing a cartridge factory in Ontario. He contended that in the event of foreign invasion the factory at Quebec might not be available, and to illustrate the possibility he quoted from an official report, made by Thos. W. Symonds to the United States secretary for war in 1897, in which he pointed to the strategic value of fortifications on the American side to command the entrance to the Welland Canal, and at certain other points on the St. Lawrence River.

Wallace said this plan, if carried out, would cut communications between Western Ontario and Quebec, and render the cartridge factory at the latter city valueless in the defence of this province.

Among the newspapers in a list of those in which it was advertised the sale of Snider-Enfield rifles, as read by the minister, was Le Temps, of Ottawa.

Sir Charles Tupper asked how that came about. He thought, he said, that Le Temps had been repudiated by the Government on account of its "not a man, not a cent" articles, when the first contingent was talked of.

Dr. Borden replied to the effect that the advertisement was inserted before the repudiation.

The militia estimates, aggregating nearly $2,000,000, were put through.

On the item of $240,000 capital account for arms, ammunition and defence, Mr. Borden explained that it was proposed to buy field guns for three batteries to replace those sent to South Africa. They would cost $50,000 each, or $150,000 in all. The remaining $90,000 would be expended in the purchase of such new rifles as the War Office might recommend after the experience in South Africa.

He created a sensation by giving it as his opinion that the Lee-Enfield was not the best rifle extant.

Mr. Blair spoke for nearly two hours in introducing his railways and canals estimates. He said the House would be asked to vote this session six millions more to complete the new canal system. It was proposed also to complete the Trent Valley Canal at a cost of $6,000,000.

But We Do Do Better

If, with our reputation as the makers of the best clothing in Canada, in those other things that men and boys want we could do no better than others, what would be the sense for instance, in our trying to sell outing things.

A store must have a distinct individuality these days to merit continued success. Our stores in Guelph and Stratford have it and we are fast gaining it here,—not only as to the products, of our own factory, but as to every line, we will consent to keep. You will find it so of summer goods.

DEPORTED THE ALIENS.

Ottawa, June 27. — The Government has made its first enforcement of the alien labor law, which has stood for nearly three years a dead letter on the statute books. The town of Welland recently gave to an American citizen the contract for laying granite pavements. He took over with him from Buffalo a number of Italians to do the work, and as soon as they started Mr. German, M. P. P., communicated with the department of justice, pointing out the necessity of enforcing the alien labor law in the case. The Minister of Justice took the view that as the men were imported under contract to do work in Canada, it was a clear violation of the act, and accordingly authorized that they be deported. The Italians were sent back to Buffalo.
