SNOW BALLING.—During the early part of the past week, and while the thaw was in progress, the youngster; of the town amused themselves by the practice of "Snow-balling." "Snow-balling" is an exhilirating exercise when both sides are parties to the game, but when the throwing is all on one side and the receiving all on the other, the sport Miss Kneeshaw has gone to visit her is not the most enticing. Many of the youngsters forgot their good manners on the occasion and "pelted" their seniors after a fashion that showed they had no respect for grey hairs or age. THE MILLERS' GIFTS.

Messrs. S. A. McGaw, and Chas, M.

About five o'clock on Saturday aftercon the engine room of the Harbor Mills was filled by a smiling crowd, com posed chiefly of employees of the mill, and a sprinkling of local politicians, press men, lake captains and habitues of the harbor. The gathering had been called at a short notice to witness the presentation of a gold watch to Mr. S. A. Mc Gaw, book-keeper at the mill, who is about to remove to a lucrative real-estate business in Winnipeg; and the gift of a gold ring to Mr. C. M. Mitchell, the first engineer of the mill, who has been promoted to a similar position in the Winnipeg Mill owned by Messrs. Ogilvie.

The proceedings opened by Mr. Mitchell being called to the front and placed in a chair at the head of the room. Mr. W. H. Murney then stepped forward, and facing Mr. Mitchell, read the following address, Mr. James Stewart

THE DOG STAR.

Curious Facis about Sirius and his Attendant Worlds.

Richarl A. Proctor in Youth's Companion. can be seen to the right of the glorious and million of miles from him. Later Orion, but lower down, which shines more splendidly than any other star in the heavens—though not quite equal in the heavens—though not quite eq the heavens—though not quite equal in brightness to either of the two planets, Jupiter and Venus. It is Sirius, the dog star, and has in all ages excited the admiration of all observers. It is supposed by some that this splendid star has changed in color during the past two thousand years, for ancient Greek and Roman writers spoke of it as a red star, and Seneca even said that Sirius was ruddier than Mars! But most probably the red light referred to by those older writers was simply the occasional flashing of red light from the star which you can see whenever Sirius is close to the horizon, when, as Tennyson writes: horizon, when, as Tennyson writes:

"The fiery Sirus alters hue And bickers into red and emerald."

When you have learned what Sirius really is, you will see how unlikely it is that he can have changed color within two thousand years—a period which seems long to us, but is really nothing in the life-time of a star.

But what is Sirius? Does the teles-But what is Sirius? Does the telescope, which seems to bring far objects near, tell us anything about him, as it does about Jupiter, Saturn and the other planets? The telescope scarcely tells us anything. The largest yet made by man only shows Sirius as a very bright star. Sir William Herschel tells us that when his great telescope, with its four-foot mirror, was turned toward Sirius the approach of the star toward the field of view reminded him of the approach of day-break. But when the approach of day-break. But when the star was fully in view it showed no globe like that of the sun. It was still a mere star, though, of course, very much brighter than any star in the sky. And it is pretty certain that men will never be able to make a telescope which will show the real body of this splendid

Yet, for all this, we know quite well what Sirius is. He is a sun like ours, only very much larger. He lies about eight hundred thousand times farther from us than the sun; and we know that if the sun were set eight hundred times farther away than he, he would only look like a star, and not a very bright star either. In fact, he would only just be fairly visible on a dark and clear night. He would be very faint indeed compared with Sirius, shining only with about one two-hundredth part of that star's light. Now, this does not exactly tell us how large Sirius is, because his great brightness may be partly due to the greater splendor of his surface. A square inch of iron at a white heat gives out much more light than a square inch of iron at a red heat, and yet it is not larger. So it may be that, though the surface of Sirius gives out so much more light than the surface of the sun, it may it to him. That reminds him that his yet not be much larger.

Still it seems reasonable to suppose that a sun which is so much more re-splendent than our own has a much greater surface. I do not think we shall be very far wrong if we suppose that the surface of Sirius is not more than twice as lustrous as our own sun. Now, in order that you may see how large Sirius is compared with the great earth on which we live, I may mention that the planet Jupiter is the giant of the solar planet Jupiter is the giant of the solar system, exceeding our earth in size even more, but not much more, than the sun exceeds Jupiter. Suppose that Jupiter is represented by a ball one inch in diameter, then the earth on which we live meter, then the earth on which we live would be represented by a ball rather less than a tenth of an inch in diameter, the sun by a ball some ten inches in diameter, and Sirius by a globe nearly three moter, and Sirius by a globe nearly three and one half yards in diameter, according to Sir John Herschel's estimated to show that the words were used at a fined. There is yet another way of forming an idea of the vast size of that globe, which yet, owing to its enormous distance, looks like a bright point in our skies. The moon travels at a distance from the earth of nearly 240,000 miles. Now the diameter of the sun is about 840,000 miles; so that if the earth were set at the centre of the sun and the moon traveled at its present distance from her, the whole of the moon's orbit would lie far within the globe of the

It may seem surprising, but yet it is true, that although astronomers have not been able to see, still less to measure, the globe of Sirius, they have yet learned what it is made of—at any rate they know some of its materials. For instance they know quite certainly that there is iron in it (in the form of gas), and sodium and magnesium, and here and sodium and magnesium, and here and there enormous quantities of the gas called hydrogen. How this has been learned I could not very-well explain here. I shall only say that the study of the light given out by this glowing orb is cut off by certain vapor—much as part of the sun's light is cut off by vapor in our air when the sun is rising or setting; and just as the ruddy color of the sun at that time shows him to be shining through the vapor of water in the air, so do certain peculiarities in the light of Sirius show that the light has passed through the vapor of iron, sodium, magnesium and hydrogen.

It has been learned also that Sirius is rushing through space at the rate of from twenty to thirty miles in every second of time. He carries with him, no doubt, all the worlds which travel around his globe. But it must not be supposed that this rapid motion changes his place among the stars in a way we can easily recognize. On the contrary, so enormous is this sun's distance that his change of place can only be detected by a very powerful telescope, or else after long periods of time.

And this leads me to consider a curi- Cord Wood Wanted ous discovery that has been made about this glorious sun. Of course it is to be supposed that Sirius, like our sun, has a family of worlds traveling round him.

This set observers looking for any companion body which might travel round Sirius. For they saw that any such body, to explain the movements of Sirius, must be very large, though of course they expected only to find it much faintthey expected only to find it much fainter than Sirius himself. However, for a long time they could find the such companion. At last a fine telescope, with a glass eighteen and one-half inches in diameter, made by the celebrated opti-cian, Alvin Clarke, of Cambridge, Mass showed a faint star close by Sirius—that is seemingly close, for in reality it was found to be at the very least two thous-

The Law of Libel.

The bill introduced by Hon Mr. Fraser for the amendment of the law of libel assimilates the law to that now in force in England. At present in this Propublic meeting will be recorded as privileged and it will be a sufficient justification in answer to an action for libel on account of any language reportments.

A few days ago a farmer came to Belle-ville, fell in with a woman he had never seen before, and within twenty minutes agreed to marry her. He went for a license, but had to return to the woman's residence to get her name, which he did not know. A clergyman was procured, and the couple were married within an hour of their first meeting. The husband went home that night, promising to call for her within two days, but has not yet done so.

Progress.

To the Editor of the Huron Signal. SIR. -On a recent occasion a dialogue took place between a hero of 1878 and the writer of this article. He was one who acted a distinguished part in that memorable contest, and retired from it crowned with victory and a conspicuous air of triumph, little thinking, in his elation, that his persevering efforts to secure the success of his party imposed upon himself and family an additional to realize truths that nothing else

After discussing the peculiarities of the present season, the causes and effects of these peculiarities, how the earth passed through the tail of some nameless comet and was thereby enshrouded in complete darkness from 2 p. m. till next morning, how the poles of the earth had assumed a reverse position, to our mu-tual edification and satisfaction, we changed the topic to a less speculative and more grovelling one.

"Can you tell me the reason why the farmers in this district, who toil late and early, raise fair crops, managetheir stock well, exercise economy in every way, are not getting along better, and have such difficulty in meeting their liabilities?"

Here was a poser, one, indeed, that could not be answered in a few words in spite of one's love of condensation How to frame a satisfactory reply to my friend's question was to me a puzzling task; one that required some consideration and analysis.

"For our present purpose let us lay aside obstacles that are exceptional or peculiar, such as interest on mortgages, etc., and deal squarely with drawbacks that are common to every member of the community, differing only in degree. Let us also omit the consideration of section, township and county taxation, as well as aid to higher education, for a future review, and deal with small leakages which conjointly make a large drain on the farmer's pocket; just as the converging of numerous insignificant streams make up the mighty river. I have no doubt that you use a large quan-

The common price you say is 30 cents, or double what it should be at a fair calculation. When, therefore, you go to er, seriatum, the different articles which constitute this bill, with their respective prices, and determine the amount of onus which you give on each purchase. Well, then, according to your own state ment, you receive nine pounds of sugar, instead of fourteen in former times, for one dollar. A very simple calculation will reveal to you the fact that as often as you invest one dollar in sugar you just get, avoiding fractions and awarding you'all the consolation possible, sixty-five cents worth; the balance of your dollar you bestow on the manufacturers, principally on that firm in Montreal. haps you are related to the members of A Large Gathering of Sunday School Workers In Session.

County of Huron Sunday School Association was held in Goderich on Wed-Kind and ever streamed to take poor ciation was held in Goderich on Wellmesday and Thursday of this week. The attenuance was large, especially at the later sessions.

Have the description of this week.

Warm heart, age to charity leading:
The virtues that be seed there is cradle to ber,
All hallow thy memory, grandfuller dear.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON. The first session beginning at 1:30 p. m., in the Methodist Episcopal church, was fairly attended, and a keen interest was evinced in the exercises of the day. The President of the Association, Mr. Peter Fisher, of Wingham, occupied the chair. Mr. Fisher, delivered a brief and practical address, and urged upon all present the importance of the work of Sunday School

Rev. G. Webber spoke on "The Sabbath school of the present, its place and its power." The Sabbath school, as originated by Robt. Raikes, intended both secular and religious education, but wing to the march of education, the aim of the Sunday school was now confined to Caristianizing the children. It was not the teacher's place to infuse church doctrines into the minds of his scholars: the plain truths of the Scripture alone should be taught. The mission of the Sunday school was to instruct, to advise, to correct, and to restrain. He pointed out the benefits of S. S. conventions. and was applauded loudly as he closed. Mr. S. Yates would like to know the opinion of the convention as to uncon verted teachers. After a brief reply by Rev. G. Webber, the next question was An interesting paper by Mr. G. Baird, sr., of Brucetield, on "Home Influence, how it can best turther Sabbath Schools," was read by Mr. E. F. Moore. The following gentlemen took part in the discussion which followed: T. Mc-Gillicuddy, S. Yates, Rev. G. Webber, Rev. Dr. Williams, J. C. Stephenson, W. Keyes, G. Andrews, Mr. Duncan Mr. Caswell and the President.

"The lesson of the preceeding Sunday taught to an adult class" was taken in hand by Rev. J. A. Turnbull, B. A., in the absence of Mr. J. R. Miller.

Personal experiences of teachers of adult classes were made by Messrs. Yates, Dr. Williams, T. McGillicuddy, W. Keyes, M. Duncan, R. Irwin, Rev. G. Webber.

WEDNESDAY EVENING. In the evening a very large congregation gathered at the North Street Methodist church. After the reading and adoption of the minutes of the previous session.

Rev. W. McDonagh, of Clinton, spoke upon the subject of "Temperance in con-nection with the Sabbath school." He held that intemperance was a sin, and like every other evil, should be grappled dleton, John Morgan was appointed one with in its incipiency. He vigorously denounced the liquor traffic. "Christ, the Teachers' Model" was the next subject, and its elucidation fell to the lot of Rev. J. Caswell, of Dungannon. Christ was a model teacher both in the matter and manner of his teaching. The speaker gave a very pleasing address, couched in beautiful language.

The church choir sang a number of choice pieces of music in very good style.

THURSDAY MORNING. In the absence of Rev. P. Musgrave, the subject of "Music," its advantages to the S. S." was introduced by Mr. J. "Now let me relate to you that while conversation with a friend of mine marks. He was followed by S. Yates, interesting discussion took place on ju venile temperance work, which was pa ticipated in by Rev. G. Webber, S. Yates and E. F. Moore. The nominating committee reconmended the election of the following:—

President:—T McGillicuddy,Goderich Vice Presidents:—D. Duncan, Seaforth; R. Irwin, Clinton; P. Fisher, Wingham; W. M. Gray, Seaforth; W. J. Clarke, Exeter. Recording Secretary, W. Badge, Seaforth; Cor. Sec. and Treas. E. F. Moore.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and howels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. Aver's Pills are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive uso by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety. in medicine, in proportions accurately ad

Dr. Sloan, of Blyth, was the first speaker. He thought Col. Ross, the member for West Huron, should be highly pleased at so large and enthusiastic a gathering of his friends here to-day. Col. Ross had acquitted himself well, as representative in the Local House, and even the Mail was constrained to yield him high praise for his able speech on the boundary award. Referring to Dominion matters, the speaker said that in "78 when the Reformers were defeated all along the line, Huron had stood firm, and even in North Huron a victory and even in North Huron a victory and even in North Huron a victory of nearly 200 against to the province who was loyal to its interests to stand firm, and prevent Ontario from being despoiled.
