Plot That Failed,

Love That Would Not Be Denied.

CHAPTER IX.

"Yes," she said. "Look, the moon is obscured. How dark it is. Ah! what is that?" she broke off, with a scared, dry voice, clutching Leicester's arm.

"What—where?" he asked, quickly, and laying his hand upon hers.

"There—in the room! at the window," she breathed. "It has gone."

"What?" he asked, still keeping the hand, which she seemed too frightened to remove.

"I—scarcely know," she said, brokenly, and with a shudder, which Leicester felt. "A something white, with a light, at that little window."

"Oh, are you sure?" he asked doubtfully, anxious to convince her that it was mere fancy. "Remember, we have just been talking about the ghost."

"No, no; it was not fancy," she said. "I saw it plainly enough. I was not thinking of it as I spoke, and I saw it when the moon got behind the cloud. It was in my father's room."

At that moment she started again. A voice so close behind her that it seemed to spring from the ground said:

"Miss Mildmay, where are you? Oh, here you are!"

And Captain Murpoot came up. "How interested you look! What are you talking about?"

"Ghosts," said Leicester, fixing his dark, scrutinizing eyes upon him. "Did you hear Miss Mildmay call out?"

"No," said the captain, innocently. "I only just came up."

But he had been close beside them for some minutes, and had not only heard Violet's low cry of terror, but the whole of the conversation.

CHAPTER X.

Some quiet evenings are more productive of matter for reflection and afterthought than many more exciting and apparently eventful ones. How little there is to talk over a ball! One quadrille is like another and one partner very much like another. Most ball-rooms are hot, most partners are unsuitable. But how often a quiet evening with a few friends in a country house is the beginning of some great matter—the mustard seed whence springs the shadowing tree.

WHAT $10 DID FOR THIS WOMAN

The Price She Paid for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Which Brought Good Health.

Danville, Va.—"I have only spent ten dollars on your medicine and I feel so much better than I did when the doctor was treating me. I don't suffer any bearing down pains at all now and I sleep well. I cannot say enough for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills as they have done so much for me. I am enjoying good health now and owe it all to your remedies. I take pleasure in telling my friends and neighbors about them."

Mrs. MATTIE HALLER, 501 Colquhoun Street, Danville, Va.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtues of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (Confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

2 YEARS

Constable R. B. Nunn, of Vernon, B.C., says— "For over two years I suffered acutely with on my leg. I tried all kinds of medicines, ointments, liniments, etc., but without standing, the wounds seemed only to get worse. Finally became so bad that I was on the point of going into a hospital, when a friend persuaded me to try Zam-Buk. I did so, and the first few applications made the ulcers less painful. From first commencing to use Zam-Buk the ulcers improved and twelve boxes of Zam-Buk effected a complete cure."

For eczema, piles, cuts, burns, bruises, chapped hands, cold cracks, and all skin diseases or injuries, and for rheumatism, sciatica, etc., nothing can equal Zam-Buk. All druggists and stores, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price; 50c. per box. Refuse substitutes.

the bend of the stream which changes its whole course!

So it was with several of the members of Mrs. Dodson's quiet, little dinner.

Five of them at least returned to rest that night very thoughtful.

The captain, when he had reached the little boudoir, or dressing-room, of his luxurious suite, cast off as if it were a mask the careless smile of simple amiability and showed in his countenance some of the subtle working of his brain.

As he walked to the window and looked out upon the scene bathed in the moonlight, his face grave and frowning with deep thought, he looked a very different person to the easy-going gentleman of fortune which he had appeared in the drawing-room a few minutes before.

"So!" he muttered, "the room has been closed since John Mildmay's death, and never been opened; the dust must lie thick there. Haunted, too! Did she see anything, or was it only a sentimental girl's fancy? Violet is not sentimental, and is scarcely the girl to be led away by a weak fancy, either. The cry and the start were too natural in their suddenness and reluctance to be affected. Strange! I don't believe in ghosts, but if I did I would believe that Violet Mildmay saw one then."

"The haunted room lies near this—in what direction? Let me see," and he closed his eyes and worked out a mental calculation. "It must lie at the end of my bedroom, for that is in the part of the building nearest the ruins. If I were a nervous man, I might feel qualms about the near proximity of the haunted chamber. As it is, as I am a man who has to make his fortune, that chamber, with its uncanny character, is a godsend; it is a safe of luck I little looked for, another card in a hand which was not a bad one at any time."

"But I must not overlook my opponents. I play as one against many. First, Leicester Dodson; he is not to be lightly held. His handsome face and long legs carry a brain with them that may be a fitting match for mine. He has coolness and confidence, has Mr. Leicester Dodson, and he is smitten with Miss Violet. They were close together to-night, in amiable confidence, her hand fell upon his arm. I have known a man's heart fall before one look of such a woman as Violet before now. And the boy, my young Lord Paisdale, is half inclined to lose his wits over the girl's fair face and grace—but he doesn't count. Some men are born fools, and this is one. He is of use, though. I must play one against the other. His sister, too, Lady Ethel, is no fool, and Mr. Bertie Fairfax thinks her an angel. There should be some cards to play there.

"Let me think, let me think. There are the materials of a nice little game of cross-purposes, if I can but manage it. Come in!"

He broke off abruptly as a knock at the door disturbed his cogitations.

Mr. Jen entered with his master's dressing gown.

The captain threw off his coat, and dooned the capacious garment in silence which Jen did not think proper to break.

At last the captain roused from his reverie and turned his attention to his follower.

"Where have you been?"

"Down in the village, captain," said Jen Starling, with a wink. "There's a very nice little and pretty little creature in cherry ribbons wait draws a good glass of ale."

The captain nodded, absently. "Don't be seen there too often, and keep your mouth shut."

"Trust me," said Jen, clicking his tongue against his cheek with a knowing air. "This old soldier is a very remarkable old soldier, and he's like the parrot—he don't talk much, but he thinks the more."

"You may think as much as you like," said the captain, "but be as moderate in your thinking as your talking, my friend. You had a bad habit, when I knew you in former days, of lifting that elbow of yours too often," and the captain went through the pantomime of a man raising a glass to his lips. "One slip in that direction means ruin, remember, ruin for you as well as me. But, there, I have no wish to worry you. Amuse yourself as you like, so that you keep your mouth shut."

"I amuse myself," said Jen. "There is quite a little game going on down below, which I'm mighty interested in. It's like one of them Chinese puzzles, little pieces of wood you put together, you know. Look, you might 'live down Whitechapel in Larry's thieves' kitchen and not see more signs and mysterious nods and winks as you do down here—down here in this little village, which I thought was inhabited by perfect infants. Why, a man has to keep his eyes open every minute to catch all the signs which one simple-looking chap of a fisherman gives to another."

"What do you mean?" asked the captain, absently, and with evident inattention. "What signs should these men have? what mystery? There, I'm tired, go to bed. By the way, there's a sovereign for you."

And he threw one of the coins which he had won that evening, on the table.

Jen, who was beginning to understand his master's moods, picked up the donation with a touch of the forehead, and, with a gruff "Good-night, captain," departed, muttering to himself:

"He's working, he is; he's begun the game, or my name's not Jen. Ah! he's a deep 'un, is the captain!"

In another room of the Park, Violet was inclined to be thoughtful, and for some time her hand brushed the long trusses of her mistress' bright hair with inward surprise at her silence, and at last, ventured to intrude upon it by the commencement of the little gossip to which Violet was rather partial, so long as it was confined to innocent chat and did not diverge to scandal and little-tattle.

So Marie ventured to remark that there were a great many servants at Coombe Lodge, and that the people were very glad that the Lacklands had come down; but they seemed quite as pleased that Mr. Leicester had come, too.

Mr. Leicester's name seemed to rouse her mistress from her reverie, and she looked up, with her bright, clear gaze.

"What did you say about Mr. Leicester Dodson?"

"I said, miss, that the people in the village and the servants up at the Cedars were very glad that Mr. Leicester had come down again, for, though he's so very stern and grave-looking, he seems to be very kind, and everybody gives him a good name. And he's so liberal, miss! He gives a sovereign where others look hard at shillings. Only the last time he was down, miss, he went into Will Sanderson's cottage and sat and talked with little Jennie, Willie Sanderson's brother, you know, miss, little lame Willie; and he sat and asked questions about his not being able to walk, and then he got up with a start, and in his thoughtful way, which almost makes you think you've done something wrong; but there comes down one of them little inward chairs from London, and Willie says his brother is as well again now that he can be wheeled about. Of course, it came from Mr. Leicester, though when Willie went up to thank him, he sent word down that he was to have a glass of wine, and not to wait. And they say—the servants, you know—miss, that Mr. Leicester is so kind to Mrs. Dodson, and speaks to her quite soft, and when she was ill with the rheumatics he carried her up and down stairs; and I do no wonder they like him; though I did hear the cook say that Mr. Leicester was very particular about the made dishes, and that when he is angry it's something fearful, he's so stern, and what you might call overbearing, miss."

HARCOURT.

GIVE AND TAKE ON WESTERN FRONT.

PARIS, Jan. 13.

The French War Office this afternoon gave out an announcement as follows: Unfavorable weather conditions, which have persisted along almost the entire front, have hindered operations. In Belgium there has been a sand storm on the Dunes along the coast. In the region of Neuport and near Ypres, the French artillery directed an effective fire on the earthworks of the enemy. On the Aisne to the northeast of Soissons, fighting around Spur 132 continued with great severity during all day Jan. 12. The Germans brought up very considerable forces into this engagement. We maintained our position on the crest of the hills of Spur 132, but to the east our troops were obliged to give up some ground; the fighting here continues. Between Soissons and Berry au Bac, shells from our artillery caused explosions at several different points in the midst of the batteries of the enemy. In Champagne, from Rheims to the west, there were yesterday exceedingly violent artillery exchanges. In the region of Souain the advance positions covering the block house, located to the north of the Beausejour arm, is still in our possession, and we have set up a trench distant only sixty metres from the German trenches. In the Argonne there have been no infantry attacks recorded. From the Argonne to the Moselle there have been intermittent artillery exchanges. In the Vosges there have been fogs and a heavy fall of snow.

GERMANS WANT A CHANGE.

LONDON, Jan. 13.

An Amsterdam despatch to the range Telegraph Company says that travellers arriving there from Germany report that, in response to popular demand, Field Marshal von Hindenburg, commander of the German campaign against Russia, and the present Hero of Germany, is likely to be transferred to the Western front in the spring.

GERMANS AND AUSTRIANS.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 13.

While the Russians continue to engage the Austrians on the left bank of the Vistula, it is reported that Field Marshal von Hindenburg is sending a German army into Galicia to help the Austrians in that quarter. It is believed that the Austro-German forces will soon undertake a new campaign to drive the Russians out of Galicia.

EARTHQUAKE IN ITALY CAUSES TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE.

ROME, Jan. 14.

Avizzano has ten thousand dead from the earthquake. A violent earthquake shock has occurred at Naples. It is reported that many houses fell at one place northeast of Naples. All the glass in the observatory at Mount Vesuvius was broken. So violent was the shock in Rome, that the dome of the church of St. Charles Catinai, cracked, and a large piece of the cornice of the Jesuit Church of St. Ignatius broke and fell with a crash, which added greatly to the fright of the people in the neighborhood. The ceilings of many houses fell, a number of persons being injured in this manner. The Colonial Statue at the Basilica, Lateran, which occupied a position visible from many parts of Rome, fell and was shattered on the steps of the edifice. Several street car lines have suspended operations because of the damages caused by the earthquake. As the day wore on details began to arrive at the capital, and it was apparent that the disturbances in the provinces of Rome and Abruzzi had been greater than at first believed, and that it also had been felt severely in the region around Naples. At Monte Rotondo three persons were killed and two wounded. At Saragosa the dome of a church fell. At Fallano part of the Cathedral was wrecked. At Veroli two were killed and two injured. At Tivoli one was killed. At Ferreto five houses collapsed. At Poggio Nativo one was killed and several injured. Thus far it has been impossible to communicate with the ancient fortified city of Aquila in Abruzzi, owing to the interruption of the telegraph service. It is reported however, that several villages are destroyed in the vicinity. At Tarre Castellan, about 37 miles east of Rome, the entire village was almost destroyed, while at Arnara the municipal buildings collapsed. From numerous places in the affected regions calls for doctors and medicine are reaching Rome. Pope Benedict was reciting thanksgiving after the morning mass when the shock occurred. The Pontiff retained his composure, and gave orders immediately that damage both inside and outside of the Vatican be ascertained, and requested a report whether assistance was required. King Victor Emmanuel also ordered the Minister of the Interior to furnish him with all of the details of the earthquake. The King also expressed a desire to visit the damaged cities. At the capital two magnificent candlesticks fell broken. At the Palazzo del Drago where Thomas Nelson Page the American Ambassador lives, several cracks in the building which already existed, opened wider and the plaster fell in several rooms. Glass was broken in the embassy office, in addition to the statue of St. Paul, the column Marcus Aurelius, and the facade of the church of St. John Lateran was damaged, and the statue of our Saviour, which was fifty feet high was twisted out of plumb. In the Lateran palace, especially the part occupied by the museum, the earthquake caused cracks of sufficient size to permit light from the outside to penetrate the building. The hall of the chamber of deputies, was likewise cracked. Among other edifices damaged were the church of St. Andria Fratte and St. Agatha of the Goths, the latter being the oldest church of Teutonic origin in Rome. When the shock was felt it frightened the populace who rushed into the churches, but the police ordered them out of those, which were in danger of collapsing. In all the churches in the city, after the shock subsided, special prayers were offered for deliverance from disaster. It is officially announced that the centre of the earthquake was between Campobasso and Sarno, and that it was felt strongly in Perugia and slightly as far north as Terracina. The town of Pafi is reported to have been half destroyed. In Guillianio two were killed. At the meteorological institute it is said the buildings continued to rock or tremble for about thirty seconds after the shock ceased. The duration of the phenomenon was altogether about one minute. It was stated it was not believed that the disturbance extended to Sicily. Latest reports place the killed at 12,000 and 20,000 wounded.

"STARR" HOCKEY SKATES

THE MODERN MERCURY

Mercury, the winged messenger of the gods (according to ancient legends) had small wings on his feet to speed over the land with the ease of a bird. But Mercury had no advantage over the modern skater who uses Canadian-made "STARR" Skates.

"STARR" Skates take the place of wings—they are light, strong, comfortable—and enable the wearer to skim lightly and confidently over the ice—whether in pure fun or the swift sport of a hockey game.

The popular "STARR" Micro-Mac Featherweight Hockey Skates (trademark registered in Ontario) shown at the bottom of this advertisement is a speedy hockey skate, and equally good for rink skating.

It is especially strong, because of the bar connecting the heel and sole plates. The specially welded and tempered steel blades retain their cutting surface longer and better. Very little sharpening is needed.

Hitch yourself to a "STARR" Skate and surprise yourself and your friends.

"STARR" Skates are equally good for artificial or natural ice.

We absolutely guarantee "STARR" Skates unconditionally—if they break, take them back and get a new pair.

THURSDAY, Jan. 14, 1915.

The Fallen Conspirator for Pan-Germanism.

The Austrian Foreign Minister, Count Berchtold, has resigned and his resignation has been accepted. No reason is assigned in the message either for the resignation or its acceptance, but the circumstances of the case suggest an obvious one. The Foreign policy of Austria has resulted in disaster, and the disaster has developed so markedly that the Minister responsible for it has been forced to resign. It will be remembered that Count Berchtold is responsible for the ultimatum which led to the war. It was couched in such a form and expressed in such a tone and made such outrageous demands that it was recognized that the author of the document sent it with the intention of forcing war on Serbia. The latter, however, went to the extreme limits of compliance, much further than an independent nation could with dignity and honour go to avoid war. Count Berchtold, however, rejected the Serbian reply. Sir Edward Grey, even when the matter had reached these limits, urged a conference with the Powers to avoid the clash of arms. Count Berchtold would have no conference. He was bent on war, and in this he was backed up by the German Ambassador at Vienna, who did everything possible to egg him on. Count Berchtold got his way and played Germany's game. He was going to teach Serbia a lesson that would long be remembered in the Balkans. Austria had annexed Bosnia and Herzegovina in 1909, and the Serbian people had long been restive under this aggressive action, as three-quarters of the people of the annexed states were of Serbian race. Count Berchtold, however, was going to knock the non-sense out of them and forced on the war. Germany could attend to France and England, and between them they could handle Serbia and Russia. Austria has had a rude awakening after five months of war. Instead of backing her way through Serbia and pushing on to Salonika and obtaining a port on the Aegean, she has been soundly thrashed by Serbia and Russia, her army driven out of Serbia, Bukovina and Galicia overrun by Russian troops, and to-day Roumania and Italy are waiting for an opportunity to get at her. For the past sixty years she has met with little else than defeats. She was beaten by Prussia in her attempt to dominate the German States. She was beaten a little earlier and driven out of Lombardy, and now she is getting a severe trouncing and her pride of place and power has been lowered by little Serbia and big Russia, and the man responsible for Austria's co-operation with Germany in the Pan-German policy has been driven from office.

Wreckage of S. S. Southern Cross

PICKED UP.
In the latest issue of "Lloyd's List," a copy of which came to Mr. J. S. Mann of Bowring Bros., Ltd., in yesterday's mail, the following extract appears: "A large chest containing a life belt belonging to the S.S. Southern Cross was washed ashore at Gunna Sound, Island of Coll."
Coll is a small island on the west coast of Scotland. The wreckage referred to must have been drifting since last March.

BEST PANTOMIME EVER SEEN.

The Rossley theatre was crowded again last night, and the show went big as usual. There was also a very big crowd at the matinee. It is hard to say which scene is most enjoyed for every part is good. The witches' midnight meeting place and dance of the witches is one of the most weird scenes of all; Neptune rising out of the ocean, his throne floating to the thunder and lightning is a beautiful sight. The Seaside girls, another fine sight. Red Riding Hood and Will Scarlet in the Forest; Robin Hood and his merry men; the Japanese babies, Bonnie Rossley in her great new song that takes the house by storm; Jack Rossley and his ships on dry land—wonderful and the costumes superb.

SAVED BY A VOICE IN THE WOOD.

During the battle of Ypres Sergeant J. Harris, a Liverpool man, went forward to make some observations and was surprised by German cavalry. They were taking him through a wood when he heard the command, in a Scottish accent, "Lie down, man." He fell on his face, and immediately there was a volley and the German saddles were all emptied. Harris rose and joined his rescuers, a company whose presence was unknown to the enemy's scouts.

Wedding Bells.

A very quiet wedding took place at Gower Street Church last evening when Mr. W. Leonard and Miss Annie Lilly were united in the bonds of matrimony. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. E. Lilly, and was attended by Miss M. A. Lee and Mrs. J. Hill, while Mr. Hill acted as best man. After the marriage service the bride and groom drove in around Rawlin's Cross and back to the residence of the bride's parents, 6 Allan Square, where a hot supper was partaken of and an enjoyable time was spent. The bride received many useful presents. Toasts were given and best wishes for the bride and groom's success and long years of happiness.

Some people aver that 1915 will witness some peculiar happenings on the 11th of any month. It will be remembered that the 13th of each month in the year 1913 regrettable events occurred in the city, notably fatal accidents and big fires. It is a coincidence to note that on the 11th of November last we had a big storm the first for the season; on December 11th we had another fierce storm; and on January 11th, 1915, witnessed something similar.

THE MOTHERS OF ENGLAND.

The Mothers of England are standing And look across the sea, And their eyes are brave and their lips are calm, With a tender serenity. The Mothers of England! Their sons go out, And some never come back again, Their lives are given for others' lives, In a torrent of blood like rain. But the Mothers of England smile through their tears, For they know the worth of their "Boys" And they know it is better to fight and die, Than to live out a coward's days.

The Mothers of England! They know the worth Of a crown on a crucified head, So they hold their cross with a steady hand, Till the grave shall give up its dead.

Till the glory of Him, who gave His life, Shall shine through the clouds above, And the earth and the sky and the universe, Echo to endless love.

The soldiers and sailors of England, Who died with their face to the foe, Shall rise that day in a splendid joy, Such as the martyrs know.

Rank upon rank, file upon file, Rising from land and sea, To meet their comrades face to face, And salute him gallantly.

They shall know their Captain, their Lord, their King, As he comes to them out of the blue, For the least and the greatest of them shall know, That he died as a soldier too.

The Mothers of England know the truth, And look calmly across the sea, For whether their sons come back or not, They are not theirs for Eternity. Eunice T. Holbrook Ruel.

A digestive table salt, one which assists the organs of the stomach and intestines to perform their work well, and the same time acts as a table salt, should be a distinct boon. Pepp-salt is such an article. Used in the ordinary way it is a pure salt, but is more than a mere condiment, and many people have proven its good qualities as a digestive agent. It is well worth trying. Price 50c. a bottle.
Mable's Syrup of Tar and Cod-Liver Oil has done remarkable work in chest complaints, curing many severe cases of cough, bronchitis and irritable throat. It is a tonic and builder as well as a cough medicine; and this perhaps largely accounts for the good effects given by its use. Price 50c. a bottle.

Letter From Private Frank Watts.

Fort George, Dec. 28, 1914.
We are getting right down to hard work, we have route marches three times a week, when we cover between fifty and sixty miles. We had a good time here Christmas Day. We had turkey for dinner, and Lord Brassey gave each man 2s. 6d. to buy fruit. We had a jolly good time. I can tell you. We went to a place called Nerin to a dance, it was in aid of the soldiers to get boots for them; enjoyed myself grand; it made me think of the old British Hall!
We are having grand weather here, no snow but little frost; we don't mind it a bit. We haven't done any shooting yet, we are expecting to start it next week. There were a crowd of Kitchener's boys here when we came and they were at the ranges, so they are all flushed; now it's our turn next, after that I expect we will be sent to France. It is rumored that we are going in two weeks on the transports.
We have lovely quarters here, each room contains five beds; it is just like home. We are right by the North Sea, you can go up on the wall of Fort George at night and look out to sea, and see the lights of the North Sea fleet; it is a grand sight. We are expecting an attack any time so we have to be prepared. It is pretty risky, I can tell you, but they will have a pretty tough job if they try to do anything; they are so cowardly. They will only attack defenceless towns; that's all they are good for, anyhow old Billie knows he is down and out. We should worry. I. D. T.
I received the watch the boys sent me; it was a beauty; I got it the day before we left the Plains. I didn't know who sent it until I got the letter you sent me. I am proud of it you can tell the men.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Robt. LeWhiting took place this afternoon and was largely attended.
Capt. William Stevenson, one of our oldest citizens, passed away early yesterday morning. His funeral also took place this afternoon.

The young man who was before the court charged with breaking into the home of the old widow Kane, on the race course, a few days ago, and referred to in my notes yesterday, was tried before Judge Oke to-day and being convicted, was sentenced to a fine of $25 or two months.

The three-act comedy play put on the boards by a local troupe, was very enjoyable here on Thursday last, and at Riverhead on Monday. Cartonear people will get an opportunity to enjoy this treat to-morrow night, Jan. 14.

On Monday last, the 11th inst., at 2.30 p.m. a very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. John Martin, Harvey Street, when his daughter Miss Agnes Martin, was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Joseph L. Pumphry, grocer and provision dealer, son of the late Capt. Daniel Pumphry. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Fr. Walker. The bride, who wore a very becoming dress of sax-blue whilpood with hat to match, was attended by her sister, Miss Gertie Martin, while the groom was supported by Mr. F. Goff. A number of the friends of the bride and groom were present at the ceremony. The bride was the recipient of a large number of valuable presents from her host of friends. After partaking of luncheon the happy couple drove to the station and boarded the 4.35 train for St. John's, where the honeymoon will be spent at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. W. Taft. Your correspondent joins with all the other friends in wishing this popular young couple united happiness along life's way.

Taking It Easy.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A very delicate, but very sternuous woman who has a larger home than she needs, was asked by a placid minded neighbor why she didn't shut off the rooms she wasn't using and save the trouble of cleaning them. "Oh I couldn't bear to let things slide like that," she said. "It would make me miserable to think of the dust accumulating in those rooms." "Don't think of it," advised the placid minded neighbor cheerfully. "But I couldn't help it," said the strenuous one. And she really thought she couldn't. How many thousands of homes would be made happier if more women would learn that it is possible to acquire the art of letting relatively unimportant things slide and not fretting about them. And how many tens of thousands of lives would be prolonged! Another woman of this same strenuously conscientious type was told by her doctor in the middle of the house-cleaning season that she simply must stop at once and do nothing but rest for six months.

Speaking With the Doctor.

"But doctor," she pleaded, in that peculiar way in which we all plead with our doctors as if their orders were arbitrary ideas of their own and could be changed and made more lenient if only they chose, "but, doctor, just let me finish my housecleaning first. I've only two more rooms to do."

"Not another room," he retorted with that disagreeable obduracy that doctors sometimes show. "But, doctor, I'd rest so much easier." Then his patience gave out. "Madam," he said, "it is really nothing to me. Certainly you may finish cleaning your house if you wish. You are right, you would unquestionably rest easier. And," he added significantly, "very much longer too." Resting Easy Above the Ground Or— I don't doubt that there are thousands of women resting easy in their graves to-day who would be alive, and happy and useful if only they had acquired the art of resting easy above ground in spite of having to let things slide. To tire oneself to the exhaustion point getting things done just so, or to fret oneself to the exhaustion point because one cannot get things done just so, these are the Scylla and Charybdis of the modern woman, only unlike Scylla and Charybdis there is a perfectly safe channel between these two dangers, the mind control of the woman who does what she can without detriment to her health and refuses to fret herself about the rest.

Who is 'Eye-Witness?' Big Pictures Programme.

A LITERARY SECRET REVEALED.

Not a few extraordinary stories have been going the rounds as to the identity of "Eye-Witness," the one correspondent in the fighting line, whose graphic descriptions of the great war are only equalled in interest by the despatches of Sir John French. Because of that little touch of humorous detail which adds so much to their liveliness, the report of "Eye-Witness" are said by some people to be written by a well-known journalist and author, who has been specially commissioned by the Government to tell the story of the war day by day in his own inimitable fashion. But it is a guess very wide of the mark.

The truth is that this chronicler of military matters—whose articles are passed so readily by the Censor—is Colonel Ernest Dunlop Swinton, D.S.O. of the Royal Engineers, who holds the high-sounding appointment of Assistant Secretary and Librarian of the Imperial Committee of Defence. Colonel Swinton belongs to a military family, his brother having been killed in one of our Indian frontier campaigns. Another brother is in the Indian Medical Service, while Colonel Swinton himself first entered the army as a cadet at Woolwich Military Academy, afterwards joining the Engineers at Chatham.

During the South African War Colonel Swinton did some valuable work with the Engineers, and incidentally found material for a number of military books as thrilling and entertaining as they are valuable for the information they contain. Under the pseudonym of "Ole Luk-Oie," the secret of which had been kept until quite recently, Colonel Swinton wrote stories and sketches which are regarded on both sides of the Atlantic as masterpieces of military writing. One of the finest stories he ever wrote—"Full Back"—is published in the December number of the "Grand Magazine." This story, which tells of deeds in the air, was written some considerable time before the war broke out, and, in view of the magnificent work of our army aviators in France, the prophetic instinct displayed by the writer in regard to the conditions of the present war is truly remarkable. Those readers who desire to make a further acquaintance with the brilliant writings of Colonel Swinton, alias "Ole Luk-Oie," alias "Eye-Witness," will find this story of absorbing interest.

"AT THEM AGAIN, BOYS!"

The wife of Private Ponnell, of the Royal Sussex Regiment, recently received a letter from the matron of a war hospital in France, informing her that her husband was wounded. He sent his love and "a kiss for baby." On the next day the matron wrote again to say that Private Ponnell was dead. She went on: "Your husband was apparently thinking about the battle a good deal, for quite at the last he called out: 'Come on, boys, at them again! I don't mind if they are six or a hundred—one last fight!—I'm done—good bye, jads! The good old Sussex!'"

TO REMOVE DANDRUFF

Get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little into your hand and rub well into the scalp with the finger tips. Children's Day at Nickel To-Morrow.

"Jack and the Beanstalk." To-morrow and Saturday are children's days at the Nickel Theatre when the great fairy tale "Jack and the Beanstalk" will be produced for their special benefit and pleasure. This is one of the best stories for children ever written; it is known to every child. The opportunity of seeing it at the movies have never been available in St. John's before and the opportunity will not come again for many a long day. All the little ones are anxious to see it and parents should strain a point to send their children. That they will be delighted with it is certain for it is especially adapted for juveniles. The story is in two reels and every part of it is highly interesting. It will be seen at the matinees only on to-morrow and Saturday afternoons. Doors open at 2 o'clock. There will be other pictures of course, and Miss Ayre will sing.

LORD HALSBURY ON "THOU SHALT NOT STEAL."

The Earl of Halsbury, ex-Lord Chancellor, spoke plainly at a meeting of the Victoria Institute. "Any Emperor who wants to take somebody else's land is a dirty thief, and I do not approve of the sort of delinquency which would prevent our expressing ourselves plainly as to conditions of that sort. They are actions of which any man should be ashamed.

"What is the notion of world empire? It is this: There is something which you don't possess yourself and which you are going to make your own. By such means you are to carry your grandeur and your glory to the uttermost parts of the earth, and whether the offender be Napoleon—who committed great crimes—or Sen-macherib, he ought to be hanged. The principle of world empire means that by violence and force you are to take that which belongs to another, and in doing so you are to inflict suffering upon your fellow men.

Lord Roseberry's Appeal to Scotland.

Lord Roseberry made a passionate appeal to Scotsmen when addressing 5,000 men who crowded St. Andrew's Hall, Glasgow, last week.

"Where I live in a remote countryside man goes forth to his labor till the evening, the ploughing goes on, all the operations of agriculture, and except for a searchlight at night occasionally, you could not dream that we were living except in times of profound peace. It is a sparse neighborhood, and therefore it is easy to entertain that delusion.

"But I suppose if I had come to Glasgow to-day and been in Buchanan Street at noon I should have seen the customers crowd hustling and bustling about after their business, seeking what none of us is ever destined to find, that little more which will satisfy us.

OUR ODDS IN THE FIELD.

"I ask every man here, does he realize that within twenty-five miles of the southern coast of this island, a battle is raging, and has been raging for three months, and may, for all I know, rage for three years more, on which our safety, our future, the existence of our country, our Empire, are staked as the hazard? It is not a battle, a campaign, a few battles to be lost or won, perhaps a province to be annexed, such as the battles you read of in history. It is a battle of life or death. If you win you may not do more than continue to exist and develop, but if you lose you are shattered and damned.

"Whatever the cause of it may be, we have to face the fact that the two Empires are locked in a death-struggle for supremacy and existence, the existence and supremacy of two contending principles, one of liberty and the other of oppression, a contest for existence between two Empires that are not accustomed or willing to submit. Is not that a sufficiently formidable crisis for you, gentlemen? Is that not something that you may take back to your homes, and may consider that the vital principle which at this moment is governing and must govern your lives?

"When we think of this contest we must think of the forces in support of each Empire. I suppose that as regards the British Empire in the field the odds are as twenty to one at least on behalf of the German Army. When you consider what you have at stake, one to twenty is not enough. What you have to do in order to achieve any permanent success and any prompt or satisfactory peace, is to send many hundreds of thousands more men into the field so as to be able to invade German soil and to inflict a crushing blow upon that invader.

"What we want after all, besides security, is peace, the promptest and most satisfactory peace that we can obtain. In fact, I think that we are determined that we will not lay down our arms until we have obtained such a peace. The only way to obtain peace is to have an overwhelming force in the field. Make no mistake about the Germans. We have seen all sorts of things in the papers about their surrendering easily, and so forth. Every man who has met them in war, and in this war, is loud in praise of their courage, passive courage, but determined and unflinching courage. But when you are going to meet millions of men like that, in order to obtain security and peace you must have millions to oppose these. You will not with a very inferior force defeat the Germans.

OUR SUPREME OBJECT.

"I say that our supreme object being a quick and decisive peace, the only thing that can bring it about are quick and decisive successes, and these can only be obtained by more men being sent to the front.

"Sons of Glasgow, sons of Scotland, sons of the Empire, stand forth now, and do your duty to Glasgow, to Scotland, and to the Empire. You have now the chance of your lives. In a few weeks if you enrol yourselves you may all be heroes, for every one of our soldiers in the trenches at this moment is a hero, and you will remain heroes for the rest of your lives.

"I have no fear for the issue now except that tardiness may retard it—I have no fear for the issue if we only stand true to ourselves and face the truth and realize the vital importance of the crisis in which we are destined to live.

"Come the four corners of the world in arms And we shall shock them; naught shall make us rue If Briton to herself do rest but true."

YOUR KING and COUNTRY WANT YOU

The above is one of the most popular of the many fine patriotic songs now being sung wherever the British flag flies. It has a sweet, pathetic melody and a tender appeal in the simple words. This song has been sung specially by Miss Maggie Teyte (the greatest British Prima Donna) for the Columbia Graphophone Company, who are paying a royalty on each record sold to the Prince of Wales' Patriotic Fund.

¶ We have just received a shipment of 2,000 Columbia Records direct from England—the largest consignment ever received in Newfoundland at one time—consisting chiefly of Patriotic Anthems, Marches and Songs. Among these are:—

God Save the King.
La Marseillaise.
Arrival of the British troops in France.
Russian National Anthem.
Belgian National Anthem.

My Bugler Boy.
Follow the Drum.
Bravo, Territorials.
Soldiers of the King (new version).
My Volunteer.

By Military Bands.

By Harrison Latimer, Baritone.
