The Countess of London.

CHAPTER IV. The crowd was not only noisier but rougher, and absorbed as he was by his gloomy reflections Royce now and again put out his strong hand or shoulder to save some woman or child from being hustled and crushed. He got sick and weary of the din and the heat, but he did not leave the place, for the simple reason that he did not know where to go; and after all, the crowd was some sort of company. The clock of St. Mark's struck eleven, the showmen banged their drums and shouted, "The last time, the last time!" and the crowd began insensibly to thin. The fair was nearly over for that year, and the red-letter day for Cumberland was drawing to a close. Royce sat down on a form near a booth and lighted his pipe, and watched some men who were already beginning to pull down the shows and pack up. He was so interested in the silent and adroit way in which they went to work that he was quite lost, when suddenly a gypsy came up and stood beside him. Royce looked up and met a pair of small, sunken eyes fixed upon him curiously; but they shifted instantly, and the owner asked him for a match. It did not occur to Royce that the man could have got a light from one of the numerous flaming lamps flaming near him, and he obediently took out a silver case and handed it up to the man. Uncle Jake—for it was that worthy—looked at the box with a sudden greedy gleam in his eyes, took a match and handed the box back with a "Thank you, my gentleman." Royce nodded, and the man, touching his hat, moved on. But he only went behind the nearest booth, and stood there smoking and watching the young man. Presently two men came up to the booth; one was a gypsy, the other the plant, Long Bill. "Hallo, Uncle Jake!" began the gypsy; but Uncle Jake silenced him with a peculiar gesture, and jerked his thumb toward Royce. The two men drew back and held a whispered colloquy with Uncle Jake for a few moments; then the three went quietly away. Royce watched the flaming lamps go out one by one, and some of the caravans start, then he rose wearily and looked at his watch. The nearest town was five miles distant, and he would have to reach that before he could get to bed. He was tired, physically and mentally, and he left the fair with a slow and spiritless step, going in the direction which the living van with the two girls had taken, and opposite to that which the rest of the fair-folk had gone. He walked along slowly, smoking his pipe, and every now and then looked up at the sky, lighted only by the myriad stars and a few moon; and he asked himself the saddest of all questions a man can ask: "What is to become of me?" To live, a man must eat; and to eat one must have money; fifteen shillings and sixpence would not enable him to eat long or heartily. "I can enlist," he said. "Many a better man than I has had to do that; but he hasn't been an officer kicked out of the service. I might have Trace over me, and then—" he shook his head. "No, that door's shut. I'm strong; I suppose I could earn my living as a navvy; yes, that's what I'm fit for, a barrow and a shovel. That would be a new departure for a London. Anyhow, it's honest, and doesn't require brains, and no one need know."

The thought of Irene—delicate, lady-like Irene—crossed his mind, and he sighed. "Well, I shouldn't be further off her as a navvy than I am now," he said to himself. "Dear little Rene!" He put up his hand to push his cap off his forehead as he spoke, and at the same moment a blow aimed at his head fell upon his arm. He sprang round with the alertness of the athlete, and saw a form on either side of him; one seemed in the dusk to tower like a giant against the sky. In an instant he took in the situation. He had been followed by these two men, who meant to rob him. He had no more than that instant of time in which to think, for blows from a heavy stick rained down upon his head and shoulders. He put up his arm above his head to shield it, then bent down almost to the earth, and sprung upon the giant, crying: "Give me fair play, if you are men! One at a time!" Long Bill, staggered by the sudden attack, lost his footing and went down, and Royce, kneeling on his chest, wrenched the stick away, and dealt the other ruffian a blow; but the effort released the prostrate giant, and he got to his feet and seized Royce, uttering fearful imprecations. All Royce's weariness and lassitude had fled, and he grappled with the assailant with all the strength he could command. The wrestling-bout on the platform was child's play compared with this struggle, and the giant groaned and panted under Royce's steel-like grip. But, alas! it was two to one, and the second man, recovering from his blow just as Royce felt his toe yielding, crept up behind him. Something glittered dully in the starlight, and Royce felt a sharp pain shoot through his side. It nerved him to make one more effort, and Long Bill fell backward. Royce disengaged himself and turned quickly upon the gypsy. "You infernal coward, you have stabbed me!" he said; and he flung himself upon him. The man raised the knife again and struck wildly as Royce flung him down and turned to meet Long Bill's headlong charge at him; but suddenly the sky seemed to reel and the earth to rock, and before the giant could strike him he fell forward on his face. The two men stood over him, panting and tugging at their swollen throats. Long Bill kicked him savagely, then knelt down and dragged out his watch and chain. In doing so he started and drew back with an oath, and looked at his hand. "I know—I knifed him!" said the gypsy in a low voice. "We've done for him!" said Long Bill in a husky whisper. "He's—he's dead as a herring!" and he looked over his shoulder fearfully. The gypsy knelt down and put his hand over Royce's heart. "Not he! At any rate, not yet. Now, you've had your revenge, mate, eh? And if I hadn't given him an inch or two of steel, I reckon he'd have done for one or both of us. I never saw such a fight in a young 'un!" Long Bill shook his head. "As strong as a lion," he muttered, "and as game."

The gypsy looked down at the white, lifeless face. "It's no use crying over spilt milk. Besides, it was his own fault. What did he want to try and best two of us—two men? Here, look sharp! We'd better make ourselves scarce, for there'll be trouble over this business." Silently and rapidly they emptied Royce's pockets, the gypsy viewing the smallness of the plunder with disgust. "Only this, and him a gentleman!" he exclaimed, with an oath. "What's this here—a locket?" Long Bill snatched it out of his hand. "Put that back—it's worth next to nothing—and the watch and chain, and a shilling or two. I'll put 'em off the scent. Do you hear?" he added, savagely, as the gypsy hesitated. "It's the best part of the swag," he grumbled. "Yes, and it'll hang us if he don't pull round. Don't argue. There's no time; some one may come up. Why, look there!" and he ducked down as he pointed behind him. The gypsy looked. A girlish figure stood against the dark-blue sky. "It's Madge!" he muttered. "Keep on your hands and knees, and crawl till you get to them bushes. You're right about the things, I'll put 'em back." He put the watch and chain in their places, and the locket in Royce's waistcoat pocket, and went off like a snake in the grass. The figure of Madge Lee stood motionless on the sky-line for a moment or two, then she came slowly across the common. Presently the girl who had sat upon the shafts came running after her, and calling her.

Cold Completely Removed With Two Bottles

Most colds are the result of a weakened condition of the system. Nothing will undermine your health so quickly as a cold. More consumption results from neglected colds than from any other source. When you notice a cold developing build up your system. The most effective way to do this is to take a tonic—Carnol. Mr. Harry Heller, of Regina, got rid of a cold of two months' standing by taking Carnol. Read what he says: "After having used two bottles of your Carnol, I find that it has completely removed my cold from which I have suffered since the first week of December last. All other remedies have been failures and I strongly recommend to others who have been suffering from a similar ailment to try a bottle of your Carnol and I am sure they will not regret such a purchase."—Harry Heller, 2126 Broad St., Regina, Sask.

Mr. Heller suggests trying a bottle, but to get the full benefit of this wonderful preparation, you should take a Course of Carnol. ### SIDE TALKS. By Ruth Cameron.

THE WOMEN HAVE DONE IT.

Just think, the women have really done it! For almost the first time in fashion history, women have stood out firmly against having a fashion put over on them.

I am proud of my sex. We have reached the point where we do know what we want when we want it, and don't mean to be balked of having it by any fashion dictator. According to Their Use. True, some skirts will be long. But we aren't all going to be cabined, cribbed and confined by long skirts on the street and in our sports. We aren't going to sweep up dust and germs. We are going to pick and choose. We shall wear long frocks in the house if we find that more becoming (and it is my personal feeling that they are more becoming to nine women out of ten) and when we go shopping or walking we are going to wear our short skirts. A man who is connected with one of the most progressive stores in the east, commented the other day on this diversity in styles as a new sign of the new times. Styles aren't so rigid as they used to be. There was a time when practically everyone wore one type of hat in a certain season. Now, although there are trends and popular types and fashionable silhouettes, there is no one type of hat or suit or frock that everyone wears. We choose and adapt from many styles and it is possible to be smart and still have things entirely suitable and becoming. No one needs to wear unbecoming fashions—though many still do, either because they prefer ultra-smartness to becomingness, or because, or because they don't study the matter at all.

Everyone Gave It Away.

Of course the corollary of this variation in styles is that last year's hat is not as distinctively and inescapably last year's hat as it was when it was the one kind that everybody wore last year and that everyone who could afford it gave away to the poor relative or the washerwoman this year.

Another thing I like about the fashion situation is that more and more of our women are coming to realize what good lines in a frock or coat mean, and to try to get them. When we used to blast ourselves in the middle with waists and skirts there wasn't much chance for beauty of line. But with the general popularity of the one-piece frock we have a chance to develop beautiful lines in our designs; and where women used to look chiefly at color and goods in buying a gown, many women now study the line to see if it is attractive in itself and becoming to their figures. This tendency, also, helps us to do away with the all powerful sway of fashion. If a woman takes pains to get a dress with a smart and beautiful line, a dress that is distinctive and becoming, she can wear it with pride through several seasons. Distinctive Dressing. I know a woman who works for her living and works hard. She pays sometimes $100, sometimes $150 for her good frocks, sometimes more. She has white hair and a lovely skin and she always wears black with a square cut neck and a piece of fine lace in the opening. The dresses are of beautiful line and perfectly fitted to her figure. She wears them three or four years or even longer and always looks beautifully dressed. That programme is my idea of the way women should dress, and the way I hope they are going to dress more and more as the years go by.

Captain Kidd's Gold

A member of the New Haven fire department, making a holiday along the Connecticut shore front in the vicinity of the picturesque Thimble and Islands, has found an extraordinary and ancient gold ring buried in the sand, and as an inevitable result the name and doubtful fame of Captain William Kidd has been called into prominence again. There is some tendency to believe that the ring is a stray possession of a British king of three centuries ago—perhaps the very one with which Lady Catherine de' Medici and the unfortunate Earl of Hertford were wedded even longer ago, in Elizabeth's time. If so, it could hardly have reached the Thimbles by way of Kidd's circuitous travels. But whatever its history, it is ancient, valuable and interesting and mutually eloquent of old adventure. There is ample circumstantial ground for the long-standing report, now revived, that Kidd made harbor for a time in the Thimbles and disposed of some of his piratical cargo there; but an examination of all the documentary evidence yet available does not lend anything in the way of proof. Kidd's last and greatest adventure, perhaps the only one indeed that merits the term of piracy, culminated in Rhode Island waters. It is far more likely, on the basis of contemporary evidence, that if he did bury any treasure—which is gravely to be doubted—he buried it on Block Island. Kidd was sent out from New England by Lord Bellomont, Irish peer and king's governor of Massachusetts, to apprehend pirates. He journeyed in the Adventure Galley, an ill-starred ship which was burned or abandoned in Madagascar, and in exchange for which Kidd seems to have appropriated a huge Moorish vessel, the Quidah-Marchant, not with but forcibly against the consent of its occupants. In this ship he amassed what was beyond question a vast fortune, and sailed for the West Indies. In St. Kitt's and elsewhere he was told that Bellomont, his proprietor and authority, had denounced him as a pirate, and he put into a remote bywater somewhere in or about Porto Rico or San Domingo—a spot left tantalizingly vague in all recorded accounts. Here he "bought" a sloop, singularly named the "St. Anthony," the records say, and having left a prize crew aboard the Moor, together with a fortune of perhaps a hundred thousand dollars in gold, silver and goods, sailed for Boston, bringing perhaps another hundred thousand dollars in his smaller craft. "Try to get off and on" outside Block Island he conducted negotiations with Bellomont for a safe entrance into Boston, but being told that he must prove his innocence or be imprisoned if he came he meanly disposed, in mysterious ways, of most of his cargo. When he reached Boston there remained but a few hundred pounds in goods in his sloop. Kidd's fate is common history, but the destination of his wealth is wholly unknown. Captain Thomas Clarke, Coroner of New York, was charged by Bellomont with having taken fifty thousand dollars of Kidd's treasure into Stamford, but the issue of that allegation is missing. It was sufficiently proven that a great number of small craft, visited Kidd off Block Island and sailed for New York, probably with piecemeal cargoes of the New Haven fireman's ring will of his ill-gained fortune. At any rate the mystery is forever joined, and fortune-seekers may and doubtless will dig up the sandy New England shores for generations to come hunting for the vanished wealth. Whether or not the New Haven fireman's ring will point a clue remains to be seen. The chances, on the evidence of many past incidents of similar character, are gravely against it.—Providence Journal.

BEFORE THE COMMANDMENTS.

In connection with the recent production of George Bernard Shaw's play "Back to Methuselah," a very amusing story is told. The first scene opens in the Garden of Eden, and a little lad of eight was taken by his parents to see it. On his return he was asked by his mother, "What Commandment did Eve break when she ate the apple?" Most superior was the boy's smile as he said: "Don't you know, mum, that when Eve ate the apple there weren't any Commandments!"

Reported Sale of U. S. Shipping Board Fleet.

TO ABOLISH CALIPHATE.
CONSTANTINOPLE, March 2.—The decision of the National Assembly at Ankara regarding the abolition of the Caliphate is expected to be announced today. Caliph Abdul Medjid Effendi performed probably for the first time the ceremony of Selamluk, the great Mosque for the religious service, which for generations has been attended periodically as a mark of the faithful and spiritual head of Islam. The usual crowds were absent yesterday and the few who witnessed the rite were mostly foreigners. The Caliph was calm and gravely returned to his apartments.

SHAH'S CONTINUED ABSENCE ANGERS PERSIANS.
LONDON, March 1.—The people of Persia are severely angered by the Shah's repeated absences in Europe and are clamoring for the establishment of a Republic, says a Tehran correspondent of the Daily Mail. The entire Persian press is full of denunciations, and is strongly in favor of a change, which is virtually the sole topic of discussion in Teheran.

DISASTROUS EXPLOSION.
NEW BRUNSWICK, March 1.—Eighteen people are known to have been killed and twelve more are believed to be dead, while about 200 persons were injured in an explosion which destroyed the storage building of the Amite Company on the property of the Nixon Nitrate Works, at Haritaran, near here, to-day.

The Prince was pronounced dead at 11.15 yesterday morning when heart and respiration stopped. Shortly after, however, he began to show faint signs of life.

BRITANNIA STILL RULES THE WAVES.
LONDON, March 1.—British shipping circles were much interested in the announcement of the United States Shipping Board's intention to sell its fleet. Some professed surprise but some are skeptical. The Buyers Daily News says Britannia is to continue to rule the waves, or anyway, the Union Jack is not immediately to be displaced by the Stars and Stripes.

CANADIAN EX-SERVICE MEN DEMAND FULFILLMENT OF PROMISES.

OTTAWA, March 1.—Ex-Service men members of the Civil Service at a mass meeting here last night organized to oppose any curtailment of the promises made them on their return from overseas that the Government would provide them with occupation and give them preference over non-combatants. In resolutions they ask for the permanency of all veterans in the service and ask for preference for veterans in filling vacancies. They ask that no disabled men be dismissed and that active service men and women be retained in preference to married men appointed since August 4, 1914.

Col. and Mrs. E. M. Renout are leaving for New York on Saturday by the Tuscania for an extended trip to the Mediterranean. They will visit France and England returning home in about two months' time.—Montreal Star.

Mr. S. Richard Steels, who last year opened up the china and glass store opposite the Court House, has just returned via Canada, from the potteries in England. During his visit he was fortunate in securing the sole selling rights in Newfoundland for the goods of several important factories.

Mr. Reg Harvey, who has been on an extended business trip to Canada and the United States returned by the Sackem on Saturday.

Mr. William Tessler, who has been receiving treatment at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, returned by the Sackem on Saturday.

Lovers of the speaking stage often proclaim that the motion picture cannot draw the fine distinctions in meaning, nor tell the greatest truths of life, because of the lack of speech. It remained for Universal to actually disprove the idea. It is done in "A Chapter in Her Life," the new Universal feature to be shown at the Star Movie Theatre, commencing to-day.

"A Chapter in Her Life" is not spectacular, but its grip on the heart-strings is said to be powerful. It is the simple story of the love of a little child. There are two dominating characters.

Proposal to Abolish Wigs and Gowns Stirrs Irish Bar

Dublin, Feb. 4 (A.P.)—The bill which proposes to abolish in the Free State the traditional legal system of centuries and set up in its place a more modern system, has passed through the Dail and now is in the Senate. In the latter body much of the preliminary discussion of the bill had to do with the question whether wigs and gowns shall continue to be worn. The bill provides that the decision as to whether the judges and members of the bar shall wear any special costume and what that costume shall be shall rest with the minister for home affairs acting with a committee representing the legal interests.

Increase in Radio Stations

Ottawa, Feb. (Can. Press.)—Revived interest in radio in Canada is revealed in figures issued here the other day by the Department of Marine. Since December last 11 licenses for broadcasting stations have been issued by the Department, making a total of 45 broadcasting stations in Canada. The new stations are, by provinces, located as follows: Ontario 5, Nova Scotia 1, Quebec 1, British Columbia 2 and Alberta 2. Montreal leads in the number of receiving licenses issued to amateurs with 6,600, while in Toronto 3,400 have paid the $1. fee for the government permit. These figures do not represent the number of those listening-in, as the work of collecting the license fees is not nearly completed. Approximately 27,000 radio licenses have been issued to amateurs in Canada up to January 31, according to the records of the Department of Marine.

Dispensing With Justice, Clara Kimball Young at the Nickel

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—Look at this. In Saturday's Telegram under the heading "Dispensing With Justice" appears the following: "One is a department where there is reported to be a $40,000 shortage. Rumor has it that arrangements have been made whereby no prosecutions will follow. It is stated that the basis of this arrangement is a guarantee for the return of $25,000 to the Treasury."

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG in "ENTER MADAME". The above is a scene from the spectacular photoplay "Enter Madame" which is the big attraction at the Nickel Theatre commencing to-night.

Placing a Premium on Dishonesty

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—My attention has been drawn to an item in your paper of the March 1st, which states that a civil servant who misappropriated an amount of $40,000 from his department has not been prosecuted because he is furnishing a guarantee for the repayment of $25,000. While it may be a satisfaction to the much overburdened tax payers to know a large part of that misappropriated amount will be repaid to the Treasury, it does not clear the Government's position to the public interest and to encourage a dangerous precedent. Moreover, such under-estimated leniency is scarcely likely to cause the people to place implicit trust in the administration.

Portraits Presented

At the adjourned annual meeting of the Benevolent Irish Society, held yesterday, W. J. Higgins, Esq., K.C. presiding, Messrs. M. J. O'Mara and W. S. Dunphy, on behalf of the Portrait Committee, presented two beautiful oil paintings of past presidents...

Mr. O'Mara occupied the chair for two years, during which time he regrettably passed away. He, however, was first to introduce the club-rooms, theatricals, etc., and also, some three of four months previous to the big fire of 1882, was instrumental in having considerably increased the insurance on St. Patrick's Hall...

The picture of Sir Joseph Little was donated by Hon. Daniel A. Ryan, M.L.C. and that of John T. O'Mara, Esq., by William J. Halley, Esq.

"A Woman's Woman"

News of paramount interest to motion picture theatre goers is contained in the announcement by the management of the Majestic Theatre that the widely discussed and much heralded photoplay, "A Woman's Woman," with Mary Alden in the leading feminine role, and supported by an all-star cast, has been booked as the feature attraction for three days.

"A Woman's Woman" tells an actual truthful story of that sort of inner home life that is to be found every day everywhere, whether it be in Main Street, Gopher Prairie, or in the exclusive social circles of the bigger cities. And from all who have seen this remarkable picture come words of praise for production, story, star and cast, direction and photography.

"A Woman's Woman" is a Charles Giblyn production, and a film adaptation of Mrs. Nalbro Bartley's Saturday Evening Post story of the same title. Indeed, so closely does the picture follow the story that the screen character have the same names as those in Mrs. Bartley's story. It tells the story of a woman, who after twenty years of married life finds herself facing a choice of two paths. Will she continue to accept the role of the unpaid domestic drudge, who has sacrificed everything for husband and children except her own personal ideals, or will she cease to be the homemaker, branch out and keep pace with the times.

The Zylors will be seen and heard in their final performances to-day and to-morrow, and a splendid program is prepared.

Coin Collectors Will Bid on Robber Baron's Loot

Halle, Germany, Feb. 3 (A.P.)—Back in 1701 a certain German robber whose principal vocation was the robbery of passing travellers, secreted some of his loot in the castle walls, and then died before he had a chance to spend it. Thus it was that one Wilhelm Kraas, of this generation, is to-day the owner of a fine collection of old coins. He became possessed of the castle which is near Eberbach, and discovered the robber's hoard. The collection is really interesting and valuable, and consists of 1,150 specimens. Mr. Kraas is going to sell them all at auction, and expects coin collectors from all over Europe to attend the sale.

Scandal

(By a Psychologist.) Scandal, which we should like to think of as being confined to the mentally and morally weak, occurs nevertheless among people of all castes and all degrees of intelligence.

Nor can we console ourselves with the thought that it is commoner among savages, as everything points to its being a product of civilisation. Savages, it is true, are good and constant liars, as, like children, they are keenly imaginative, but they rarely calumniate one another.

No doubt this is partly because they can express their displeasure by direct action and therefore do not have to resort to backbiting. For the same reason, though men are by no means free from it, scandal is more common among women.

Owing to the fact that it is more often a clever distortion of the truth rather than a direct falsehood, scandal spreads with incredible rapidity and has a long life.

There is always a certain amount of difficulty in sifting the truth of any matter, but scandal can be accepted without any effort. Unfortunately, few of us really ever go to the bottom of the things, either pleasant or unpleasant, which we hear about our neighbours. Hence it comes about that we not uncommonly give as our own opinion that which we have heard from others.

Jealousy is probably the driving force behind all scandal. In civilised life we rarely enter into bodily combat, but we are nevertheless in keen competition with one another in the struggle for our daily bread. For the manly man there is always the lust of the fight, even in civilisation; but certain miserable people, more especially women, dislike keenly all those who are more favourably circumstanced than themselves.

It is not necessary that the people they scandalise should have done them any direct harm—on the contrary, they may even have incurred their rancour by doing them a good turn. Their fault is that they have been more successful in life. Few of us pass through life untouched by scandal, and we should always be on the lookout to prevent even its accidental spread.

In hotels, on trains, aboard steamers, in travellers' bags you will find Ivory Soap, for now, everyone realizes that they can get just as much satisfaction from Ivory as from the most expensive soaps.

Iceberg Freaks

Brown to Pieces by Air.

Icebergs are full of air, which has nestled in the midst of these huge frozen masses for hundreds of years, and which blows them to pieces when they reach warmer temperatures, according to Professor Barnes, of McGill University, dealing with this subject before members of the Rotary Club here.

Professor Barnes illustrated his lecture with many beautiful lantern slides showing the various formations of the bergs, which represent anything from the face of a child to a sleeping dog.

The colours of bergs, he explained, at the outset are beyond description, so varied and beautiful are their hues.

BAIRD'S ANNUAL WHITE SALE

Opens up amid great splendour on FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 7th and continuing for two full weeks

Great preparations have been made for this vast unburdening of SNOW WHITE MERCHANDISE, and judging from the goodness of the offerings to hand, and the values as we find them, we have no hesitation in saying that this year's WHITE SALE reaches the zenith of perfection in volume, in variety, and in value.

See Thursday's Evening Telegram and Friday's 'Daily News' for complete details of this important event.

THE FAMOUS JEWETT SIX ENGINE — PAIGE BUILT

THE SECRET OF POWER

HEREWITH is displayed the secret of the enormous power of the Jewett six-cylinder motor car. It is worthy of careful consideration. Ponder well on this exceptional engine. The engine that has been first in hundreds of hill-climbing events. The engine that accelerates on top gear from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds. The engine that is the smoothest to start and the first to get away. 110,000 Jewett motor cars with this engine have proved its worth.

- Extraordinary cylinder construction produces amazing power. The 3 1/2-inch bore and 5-inch stroke, give the Jewett engine a positive piston displacement of 249 cubic inches. Piston displacement determines power. Just contemplate what this means for a motor car of even greater cost than the Jewett.
- Forced pressure oiling: The Jewett Six has a high pressure, hollow crankshaft system that forces two gallons of oil per minute through all main and connecting rod bearings. Whether driving at top or low speed, oil is continuously forced through at 20 to 40 pounds pressure.
- Extra large wrist pins: Wrist pins are hidden, but vital to an engine's operation. The power blow of each explosion is transmitted through the wrist pin to each piston. Jewett wrist pins are approximately twice the size in diameter of the wrist pins of other cars in the same class. The extra strength of Jewett's wrist pins contributes to long motor life.
- Oil-bathed valve-gear: The oil sprayed by the high pressure system reaches the crankshaft and push rods of the Jewett valve assembly—quiet operation the result. Valve springs are made of expensive electric furnace vanadium steel of great tensile strength. The entire valve assembly is easily accessible.
- Eighty-three pound crankshaft: A heavy shaft—much heavier than issued in comparable cars. Jewett engineering standards require a crankshaft material that tests to an elastic limit of 70,000 pounds per square inch. Jewett's crankshaft compares point by point with those in far more costly cars.
- Easy acting clutch: With the new Paige-type clutch, however fast you lift your foot, you can neither stall the engine nor jerk the car. The reason? A light-weight driven clutch member, weighing less than 3 1/2 pounds, has one-third the usual weight, and with one-third the momentum, quickly adjusts itself to speed changes. It engages smoothly and releases under the gentlest foot pressure.

Scouting

On Friday 29th Inst. the Chief Scout, Sir W. L. Alford, K.C.M.G., inspected the 4th St. John's (Methodist College) Troop Boy Scouts at their Headquarters. His Excellency was received by Captain Ronald Ayre, M.C., Scoutmaster, and among those present was C. P. Ayre, Esq., M.B.E., one of the Executive Committee of the Council. The Troop was drawn up in Horse Shoe formation for the General Salute and remained in that formation whilst Warrants were presented to Asst. Scoutmasters J. C. Hogg, M.C. and F. W. Burt, Wolf Patrol, leaders in the Patrol Competition were presented with a Patrol Flag, and should be very proud of the distinction. After the presentations, the Troop formed column of sections for inspection by the Chief Scout, Seal, Caribou and Badger being under Asst. Scoutmaster S. M. Bart; Wolf, Fox and Beaver, Asst. S. M. J. C. Hogg, M.C. and Fulford and Otter, under Asst. S. M. H. Gordon-Curtis. The inspection having been completed, the various Patrols proceeded with their work consisting of Signalling, First Aid, Knot Tying, Points of the Compass, etc. The evening closed with an inspiring address by the Chief Scout, who pointed out to the lads how useful knowledge gained whilst young can be in after life. His Excellency described some of the thrilling experiences he had during his career, one of which was a sixty mile journey in an open boat during very heavy weather, when as night drew on and obscured the land which they were approaching, he had to rely entirely on his knowledge of the compass after allowance for leeway, etc. This knowledge of the compass was invaluable, as to reach an anchorage a line of dangerous reefs had to be negotiated. Being born and bred by the sea the average Newfoundland boy is well able to visualize the tight corner, the Chief Scout and his crew found themselves here and there, and he is to be commended for his determination to make the best of their present opportunities. No. 6 St. John's under the able leadership of Captain Ayre will no doubt make rapid strides, and we feel confident that the lads will loyally support their Scoutmaster and his Assistants. The Chief Scout hopes to be able to inspect the other St. John's Troops very shortly. We have already heard of the splendid anniversary entertainment given by the 1st Harbour Grace Troop, and note the rapid strides being made by them. Good news comes from St. Anthony where the movement is progressing. 1st St. Anthony have to do a good deal of inside work at present owing to the intense cold, which they are able to comfort by having steam heated H. Q. Later on they hope to be able to resume their out of door activities. Grand Falls, Bay Roberts and Carbonar Troops are in full swing, and doing good work. News comes from Lewisporte that a Troop numbering approximately 50 is being formed, showing that Scouting is "catching on."

Rod and Gun.

THE MARCH NUMBER. The story of Three Yankee Hunters who came up from New York to have some hunting in New Brunswick is well described by Charles E. Williams of New York one of the party, in the March issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, and all sportsmen will enjoy this narrative. For those who have never visited Jasper National Park, or for those who wish to renew their remembrance of this beauty spot, C. E. Trowbridge's well illustrated article on Jasper Park will be of particular interest. "Fishing on the Eastern Slope of the Rocky Mountains" is a good story by D. E. Elliott, while Bonnycastle Dale has a good account of moose hunting in Nova Scotia. In this, H. W. Fry and J. R. Mattern continue their good articles in the new series, while R. P. Lincoln, W. C. Motley, J. W. Winson, F. V. Williams and F. H. Walker have filed their various departments with interesting reading for the sportsman. The March issue of Rod and Gun in Canada contains something to interest and all toward of hunting, fishing, shooting, and kennel interests, while there are articles dealing with many phases of outdoor life.

Mrs. J. J. Mahony will be "At Home" the afternoons of Monday and Tuesday, March 3rd and 4th, at her residence, 3 Waterford Terrace, Waterford Bridge Road.—mar.3.11

Tiding Over the Stringency

WASHINGTON—(By Can. Press)—The failure of an unusual number of banks in the agricultural sections of the northwest has brought about a movement here to advance to the banks of these sections $100,000,000 in order to provide them with cash to tide over the emergency. Members of Congress who are getting calls for relief from their constituents say the proposed relief should be given through the War Finance Corporation or some other Government Agency. As the War Finance Corporation has been engaged to some extent in the mission of relieving the agricultural industry, it seems to be the natural agency to afford relief in the present crisis.

Representative Dickinson, Iowa, a prominent member of the farm bloc, has introduced a joint resolution having a great deal of support which is intended to extend the life of the War Finance Corporation and give it authority to make loans to banks in the agricultural region. The banks would be required to put up real estate or other security for the loans. This action would give the banks ready money and many of them are short of that now.

It happens that many of the banks have plenty of paper, based on real estate or other security which will be good eventually. The trouble is they cannot convert their paper into liquid assets. Too great an amount of their assets are "frozen" by reason of the agricultural depression and the low prices of farm products. This month and March when much of the paper has to be renewed is looked on as a particularly critical time. Mr. Dickinson says immediate action is necessary to meet the emergency and that the government alone has the resources necessary to rescue the banks from the situation.

SALTING IT DOWN.

I draw my humble wages and put a shanty in brine, for I have read the cases whose maxims glow and shine, the Solons of the ages, who say that thrift is fine. The burden of their story is "Live within your means"; don't ride, in bogus story, in mortgaged limousines; so live that when you're hoary you'll have a park and beans. Whatever wage you're earning, salt down a seemly slice nor yield to any yearning for costly things on tea; if, to your wallet turning, you find you lack the price." The grand old lads have written such wisdom most sublime, for doubles they were smitten by bailiffs in their time, and had to soak the kitten to raise a needed dime. Their burning words are pasted within my Sunday hat, for I, like them, have tasted the grief of being flat; no more my coins are wasted, they're pickled in a vat. You sometimes see me blowing the hard-earned tin; but first you see me going to put some in a bin. I feel that I am guided by wisdom rich and rare; I save what I've decided to be a proper share; by spendthrifts I'm derided, but little do I care.

WALT MASON

Mr. Dawson pointed out that the present freight rates from certain portions of the prairie provinces to the Pacific Coast are equal to the rates to the head of the Great Lakes. At the same time navigation on the Great Lakes is closed from about December 1 to April 1, or four months, whereas the Pacific Coast ports are open the year round. This causes a rush period in the movement of grain, and to meet this the railway companies have to maintain a large equipment which is more or less idle during the remainder of the year.

To meet the conditions which are bound to come, Mr. Dawson declares, the Pacific Coast ports are preparing to improve their harbor facilities, and to seek the erection of elevators and other equipment necessary for the quick despatch of grain.

WANTS TO HELP OTHER WOMEN

Grateful for Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for backache and for weak and dreary feelings caused by my condition. Sometimes I felt so bad that I couldn't do my housework. My neighbor told me of your medicine and I read about it in the 'Toronto Telegram' and thought I would take it. I got very good results. It built me up and I have told several friends what it has done for me. You may use this testimonial as it may be of help to some one who has suffered as I have."—Mrs. J. Lee, 25 Harvie Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Mrs. Lee is willing to write to any girl or woman suffering from such troubles, and answer any questions they may like to ask.

Women suffering from female troubles causing backache, irregularities, pains, bearing-down feelings and weakness should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is the worth of this splendid medicine shown by such cases as this, but for nearly fifty years letters like this have been received from thousands of women.

You might be interested in reading Mrs. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon the "Ailments of Women." You can get a copy free by writing the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario.

Prairie Wheat Will Move West

PREDICTS VANCOUVER GREAT WHEAT PORT IN FIVE YEARS.

"In five years fifty per cent. of the grain grown on the prairie provinces will be shipped through the Ports of Vancouver and Prince Rupert," predicts F. G. Dawson, of Prince Rupert, British Columbia, who was a visitor in Montreal yesterday. Mr. Dawson is one of the directors of the Canadian National Railways.

Umbrellas Were Ludicrous

A fair damsel of Windsor, Connecticut, walked forth one rainy day less than 200 years ago bearing above her hearty head an umbrella that had been brought to her from the West to put some in a bin. I feel that I am guided by wisdom rich and rare; I save what I've decided to be a proper share; by spendthrifts I'm derided, but little do I care.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR A GUEST

HABITS. Habits are things which you do and you shouldn't. Things which a good little stussy boy wouldn't do. For instance, to sprawl on a bed in your clothes. An' yank off a shoe and don't look where it goes. An' take off a stocking an' give it a fling. So that when it comes morning you which you know you tok off. It should be on the chair. But habit has kept you from putting it there.

Habits are funny. You do 'em, that's all. And do 'em without ever thinking at all. You say that you won't toss your hat on the floor. Or bite down your nails till your fingers are sore. Or sniffle your nose or sit humped in your chair. An' twist up an' play with a bunch of your hair. An' you mean that you won't when you promise it then. But the first you know you have done it again.

Habits are things that your mothers detest. Like twisting the button that's sewed on your vest. Or scuffling your feet as you walk through the hall. An' you won't even know that you do them all. You don't even know what's the matter when they bring you up with a jerk with that: "Stop it, I say!" Then they preach an' they talk an' they scold you a lot. And it's all on account of that habit you've got.

Undermining Civilization

Perth Western Mail: Truth is strong and will prevail, and those unpleasant home truths which the gloomy Deans communicate from time to time and which are directed to the faults and follies of men and of women of high and low degree, cannot be promulgated wholly in vain. "We are," he says, "breeding from the bottom and dying off at the top." . . . Does the Dean speak on such questions with authority? Unfortunately, the biologists the world over, and this is their special field, are preaching much the same doctrine, telling the same story of the multiplication of the unfit. The underman, by this process is, we are told, becoming increasingly a danger to all countries, his attitude being one of instinctive and natural revolt against a civilization to which he is incapable of relating himself.

Pigs are Prophets

The cat has always been regarded by observant people as a reliable weather prophet. When Kitty rushes around with her caudal appendage high in the air, they say "pussy has wind in her tail, its going to blow." Fishermen declare that the cat and wireless as a weather prophet cannot compare with pigs. A pet pig in the codishing barque Seawell foretold storms in the far north with such accuracy, they assert, that it saved the lives of all on board three times. Hours in advance of a storm, the pig would run to and fro on deck squealing and leaping sideways. The fishermen made their preparations accordingly, and on each occasion the storm failed to take them unawares.
