MALINES' CONFERENCES TO BE RESUMED.

LONDON, June 17. The fact that the famous conferences at Malines, Belgium, under the patronage of Cardinal Mercier and several dignitaries of the Church of England and Roman Catholic Churches, are to be resumed, was announced last night by the Earl of Shaftesbury, at a meeting held here on the question of Church Union. The Earl of Shaftesbury declared that the goodwill of the Pope and the Archbishop of Canterbury had been accorded the coming conference. However, it would be rash, he said, to expect too much from it, although the difficulties in the way of re-union, were not insurmountable.

LONDON, June 17. Unemployment in Great Britain which was announced as totalling 1,243,300 on June 6th, increased a further 43,894 during the succeeding week, it was learned to-day, largely owing to the closing of more collieries.

DISPOSSESSED OF A PLACE OF WORSHIP.

TORONTO, June 17. Declaring that the wrongs from which the continuing Presbyterian church is suffering are still in progress with thousands of its members "dispossessed and homeless" in the matter of a place to worship, Rev. Knowles, journalist, and former Presbyterian minister, the confidence of the Presbyterian was shattered and that without such confidence there could be no real co-operation with the United Church.

QUIET IN CAPE BRETON.

SYDNEY, June 17. (Can. Press)—Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, continued to-night to focus attention as a possible conciliator of the differences between the British Empire Steel Corporation and the miners of Nova Scotia. His morning conversations with the miners' district board were continued this afternoon. He spoke also with Vice President J. E. McLaughlin this morning, and met the corporation representatives again to-night. Mr. Murdock does not feel justified in making any statement, but he does not consider the situation without hope. Fans were restarted to-day in mines numbers two, nine, ten, eleven and twenty-four, as the result of the re-operation of the number two power plant. It is planned to commence pumping when the gas has been cleared out and the mines made safe for entrance. This may possibly be to-morrow in some collieries. The power house is strictly guarded by troops. The occupation of the New Waterford plant was the chief event to-day affecting the movement of troops. This was the scene of the fatal rioting of last week. A tour through the colliery districts to-day showed absolute quiet, with not many people in evidence. This followed a night of comparative calm and the hope is expressed that possible future outbreaks will be at least of minor importance. In addition to the large number of troops stationed at various points, more than two hundred mine workers have been sworn in as special constables under the Glace Bay police force.

"Zeebrugge" Still Running at the Nickel

Crowded Houses Greet Wonderful Naval Epic.

"Zeebrugge," the wonderful naval epic, which has caused so much comment this week is still running at the Nickel. This film has surpassed all previous motion picture triumphs in the annals of pictures in Newfoundland. Each afternoon and night the Nickel Theatre is filled to its capacity with enthusiastic spectators who are moved by the spirit of patriotism at the screening of this truly unusual attraction. Among the many high tributes paid the management regarding "Zeebrugge," is the endorsement of the Clergy now visiting the Priests' Convention. In "Zeebrugge," we have the astonishing and delectable spectacle of anti-British propaganda, made in Germany, being used to reinforce a British patriotic picture.

GOLD RUSH OVER.

VANCOUVER, June 17. The pendulum of excitement in Dease Lake country is swinging back and the small army of stampedeers, who went in over the snow to be first on the field, are hitting the trail again on the return with their fortunes still to be made, reports Miss Mary Wolverson, who has returned from a visit to Dease Lake country.

INVESTIGATING TRAIN WRECK.

NEW YORK, June 17. Five separate investigations were under way to-day in connection with the wreck of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad tourist special train. The train carried 182 German Americans mostly from Chicago, and bound for Hoboken, N.J., to embark on the Republic to visit the homeland. Only eighty sailed on the Republic yesterday. It was the breaking of the pipes that caused the deaths of at least thirty.

Girl Knocked Down

About 4 p.m. yesterday, as Mr. Chesley Daws was proceeding east along Merrymount Road on a bicycle, he jumped off to escape the hitting of a young girl, Emma Lee Dodd, but his body struck her and she was thrown to the ground. Obituary

MRS. CATHARINE McCUE.

Mrs. Catharine McCue, one of the most highly esteemed residents of Bar Haven, and a woman who was greatly admired and dearly loved by all who had the privilege of her personal acquaintance, passed peacefully away at her home, of pneumonia, on Saturday morning. Her death was the ending of a beautiful Christian life, spent in the comfort and solace of others and in the performance of multitudinous acts of charity. Her friends were legion and all who knew her were impressed with the depth and intelligence of her nature. While her fondest interest was her family she found time to be a great help and inspiration to those of the community by whom she found herself surrounded. In spite of her years, her intellect remained keen and bright, and she took a profound interest in present day affairs. She was a gifted lady, highly cultured and thoroughly devoted to her church, which meant so much to her in life. Her death, even though it came as a natural thing in the evening of advanced years, was, nevertheless, a great loss to the community and her immediate family. The funeral was held from her late residence to St. Francis Xavier's Church, Bar Haven, where Coleman High Mass of Requiem was celebrated for the repose of her soul. The pall bearers were James Brown, Joseph Coady, John Wadman, Thomas Bennett and Thomas Morris. The hymns, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," "Nearer My God to Thee," "Lead Kindly Light," and "Jesus Lover of My Soul" were sung at the close of Mass. Before intoning the Libera, Rev. Francis Cacciola, in preaching the funeral sermon, spoke of the unblemished life and noble aspirations of the deceased to serve her people and her perfect resignation to God's will. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery, Bar Haven.

ALPHEUS WICKS.

On May 18th, there passed to his eternal reward, Mr. Alpheus Wicks, who had been a sufferer for some months past, yet amid it all was very patient and when the summons came there was no fear. The deceased was formerly of Greenspond, B.B., and not only in his home town, was he liked and respected but also during the years which he had been living in this city. He has made many friends who will remember him with respect. He was an employee of A. H. Murray & Co., and a loyal member of the S.U.F. There are left to mourn their loss, a loving wife, an aged father, four sisters, Mrs. E. Barry and Mrs. S. Carter, of Port Nelson, B.B., and Mrs. John Butler and Mrs. E. Loveless, of this city; also two brothers, Jacob, of Greenspond and Herbert, of the M.G. C.A., of this city, besides a large circle of friends.

Mrs. Wicks (wife of the deceased) wishes to correct the statement made in the Telegram a few days ago, regarding two children being left to mourn. The deceased left no children.

Returned Soldier's Statement

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—I saw a piece in your paper concerning a soldier and a sailor, who you said were on the street begging. Well I am the soldier whom it concerns; the soldier was not begging he was selling. I wish to contradict the statement regarding the soldier. My pension is only $34.50 a month in respect of tuberculosis. I am not in receipt of any help from any other organization. I have a wife to keep out of that rent to pay, and my boy earns $3.50 a week.

The Truth!

Perhaps you consider Sunlight Soap too good to wash your floors with? Well! the purpose for which you use soap, requires pure soap. If you use impure, or inferior soap it cannot do the work of pure soap, because it does not possess the necessary qualities; consequently, pure soap such as Sunlight Soap, is best and most economical, and cheapest for ALL washing purposes. Soaps which cost less than Sunlight Soap are worth less, and so of Lever's Sunlight Soap, it can be said with pride, 'tis best and cheapest of all soaps, which cannot be denied

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR CORNS.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

June 17th—This morning it rained so hard that it wakened me and I had a fortunate thing, since I had my window open and a great pool of water was forming on the floor, which troubles me for fear that our millinery may be ruined. So compelled I found me a cloth with which I do wash up the floor, and do then put it against the window to stop any further leak.

Come this day a book of poetry from Mr. Ogden, that I did meet at the Corner Brook, and indeed, a vasty pretty book, which he calls "Ballads of Corner Brook" and its contents of verses things that did happen there in the construction period. All the verse in light, Gilbertian style, and that he do ridicule many things, 'tis in the most good humoured fashion that none may take offense. 'Tis well night impossible to quote much in this journal of mine yet I may not refrain from printing a little of Mr. Ogden's verses that those who read my scribbles may appreciate what manner of verse he writes. One little verse do make light of our railway yet do pay it an excellent tribute in the last stanza.

But still we must own that all credit is due for the valiant efforts they make to get through:

Though in snowbanks you often get buried alive
The snowman or other you always arrive."

Then I do like also this plaintive verse from a parody of the Rubaiyat:

This Daily Bottle may do fairly well
For those who thirst and in a city dwell
But where no daily Trains to Out-ports run
How can they take it—Can the Sages tell?"

The last poem in this book is a poem of Corner Brook in the future and from this I quote some extracts: "Tis an injustice to no excellent verse that only fragments of it may be printed here.

The Mill was finished and working fast
And permanent roads were paved at last
The mud belonged to a period past—
That mud so deep and sticky."

And houses with well found frames supplied,
Babelised the landscape far and wide:
Their watertight cellars a thaw defied and fears of flooding banished.

A dearth of houses no longer rife,
And dwellings on hand for man and wife,
That bar to a bachelor's change in life
Had altogether vanished."

Indeed, I do recommend to all that would have and hour's amusement that they buy them this little book. This might do put on my new spring suit, which I did have made in the most fashionable shade of pearly, but do look mighty fine in it, being more all proud of my Oxford trousers which I have cut 27 inches at the bottom. Being thus attired, to the "Millers' Spring Dance, where a goodly company, and divers costumes were that were mighty diverting. Among other things, many imitations of Gene Pearson, the female impersonator, and the judges do find the greatest difficulty in awarding the prizes for the best costumes. I did take the greatest pleasure from this dance albeit do frequently trip in my trousers, and how they may be worn every day is a matter beyond my comprehension.

Cochrane St. Sunday School Anniversary

In 1880, an off shoot from Gower Street Sunday School commenced work in the Old Temperance Hall, and in 1892, when the new Church was built, moved to its permanent quarters. This Sunday School celebrates its forty-fifth anniversary this year, and the services next Sunday will be devoted to this purpose. The school comprises about five hundred workers, and under the late Hon. H. J. B. Woods, was brought to a high degree of perfection, while its band of workers cannot be excelled for loyalty and earnest devotion. On Sunday morning next, the Pastor, Rev. C. H. Johnson, will conduct the Service, while the Rev. R. J. Power of the Kirk will preach in the evening. In the afternoon, in the Church Auditorium, there will be a programme of varied entertainments, in which the different Departments of the School will take part. Parents and visiting friends will be accommodated by the Church bazaar, and it is hoped to have large congregations.

the United States, according to Harry Landis, United States Commissioner of Immigration for the Montreal District. From fifty to one hundred and seventy-five dollars a head is the fare charged by these smugglers of human contraband, and over one thousand persons a month are being thus transported safely to the south.

An open border of 675 miles of country and river patrolled by an insufficient force of officers has stimulated the traffic till the number of immigrants crossing the Canadian line is far in excess of that smuggled in by way of Cuba and the Florida coast, the commissioner said to the Herald recently.

To stem the tide pouring across this long border by auto and boat are only thirty-five patrol officers.

These officers are active as shown by the fact that thirty men were tried in American courts last month for smuggling aliens, but the force would have to be multiplied many times to create an effective blockade.

"I do not think the traffic from Montreal is organized as is the case in Havana," continued Mr. Landis. "It is carried on by individual taxi-drivers and autoists. They do not need to organize because their roads are so open."

"They pick up their human contraband on the streets of Montreal, among those who have just landed with the express purpose of illegally entering the States or have been living in Canada for some time and are now drawn to the States by prospect of higher wages.

"The smugglers have practically abandoned the use of the trains since we placed men on all trains for the south. The motor roads are now the main arteries of the traffic."

The price charged by the taxi-driver who is solicited by an alien for the dash to the promised land varies according to the ignorance and financial circumstances of the passenger. It often exceeds $175 and as a carload of half-a-dozen is often carried by one driver, it can be seen that the profits are high.

One female evader of the quota law recently broke through from Montreal to Malone at a bargain price, the fare charged by the unmercenary chauffeur being only $15. However she was soon detected by the U.S. authorities and is now being held for deportation to her native Belgium.

This girl worked in Montreal for two years and then decided to cross to New York where friends promised her better pay. A married sister living in the States joined her here.

Strolling along the streets, the sister says she saw a nice looking young man in a nice looking touring car and promptly put the proposition up to him. He agreed to carry the unwanted alien, her sister and two friends to a point near Malone for $15—and did so without encountering any difficulties.

While this business pays high profits smuggling of booze is regarded as safer and saner by the Montreal knights of the road. The liquor cargo is more easily camouflaged, more quickly disposed of—and never turns on its transporter.

On the other hand the taxi driver heading south with men instead of grain behind them may turn to face a gun or may be temporarily put out of the way by a blow on the head, to find on regaining consciousness that his passengers have not only departed without paying their fares, but have relieved him of any loose cash in his possession.

Cases where the passengers turned on their drivers have been numerous during the past few months, and a crew of two armed men to a car is now deemed the only safe allowance by the smugglers.

So if you were thinking of making a little easy money with your Ford this summer remember that if you keep free of the patrol officers, you may have your skull cracked by one of your passengers, or possibly be completely done away with and never return to your home in the Canadian metropolis.

A FEW THOUSAND GIVEN AWAY IN "TIPS."

The enormous bill of costs in connection with the Police Probe is considered not short of scandalous by many. Speaking to one of the Aldermen, an intimate friend of mine, he said: "The costs in the Police Probe are fully three times too much. I think that one-quarter of the amount charged would have paid the different officials well. The whole thing is exorbitant, a crime and a scandal. The judge was drawing his salary, and asks over $3,000 for his work in connection with the Probe. It must not be forgotten that the city's money was wasted on 'tips.' Doorkeepers and others were liberally rewarded for their services. Sums ranging from $20 to $500 were handed out to them, making a few thousand thrown away and added to 'extras.' The Aldermen were willing to pay the bill if it were reduced one half. But the lawyers and others want the whole hog or none at all. There is one lawyer, Alban Germain, who is resting on his oars. "Mum" is the word with him, awaiting the final verdict, and if his confederates win the fight, his bill will be the same. The city will be required to pay three-fourths and his clients the balance." If the case has to go to the Privy Council, and the city loses, the costs will then be probably double the amount.

TWO CATHOLIC SCHOOLS CHANGE COMMUNITIES.

Two Catholic Schools, St. Michael's Academy, under the direction of the Marist Brothers of the American District, and St. Dominic's School, under the direction of the Brothers of Christian Instruction, whose Mother House is at LaPrairie, P.Q., are changing communities. St. Michael's Academy will be in charge of the Presentation Brothers of Ireland, and St. Dominic's School will be taken over by the Brothers of the Christian Schools of the Ontario District. The change of vocations, especially English subjects, is the cause of the changes in both schools.

PEOPLE EXHIBIT POOR JUDGMENT AT TIMES AT THE MOVIES.

Certain things shown at the "Movies" are loudly applauded, showing want of common sense and poor judgment. Crime in any form is debasing and calls for condemnation rather than approval. A case in point: When a judge was speaking on the toleration of vice here in this city, the court room was crowded, and he was loudly applauded for his speech. Deluded people, whose end is destruction, and who glory in their shame. Collier's, under the heading of "Why Applaud Criminals," says editorially: "The picture of Gerald Chapman drew noisy applause when it was shown in a moving-picture theatre at New Britain, Conn., where the escaped convict was being tried for the murder of a policeman. The picture of Chapman's accomplices who confessed and testified for the State was hissed by the same movie fans."

Why was the criminal applauded? The people of New Britain do not approve burglary or murder. They are not different from other Americans. Yet this spontaneous outburst would suggest that in some fashion the descendants of the puritans had condoned violent crime, expressed a liking for a man charged with murder and loathing for the man through whom he was being brought to judgment.

It was probably not Gerald Chapman's crimes which aroused cheers. His coolness and courage were doubtless the traits which appealed to these New Englanders. All the world likes daring. Admiral Francis Drake was a buccaner, and he is still a hero. Captain Kidd was a pirate, but boys continue to honor his name. On the other hand, the traitor, the Judas, the Benedict Arnold, is held in contempt even when he professes to be a tool of justice. Chapman's accomplice was counted a traitor.

In spite of all that, applause for an acknowledged criminal is a poor exhibition. Chapman turned high quality ties to base uses. Courage and intelligence which might have been used in honest work revealed only in robbery. That such a man was given the approval of the spectators of a theatre helps to explain why the United States leads the civilized world in crime.

Murder is not so serious an offence in America as it is in England, Germany or France, because public opinion enforces or mitigates the laws. The applause given Gerald Chapman was proof enough that in this country public opinion is willing to make excuses even for professional criminals caught in the act of attempting to kill the defenders of the law.

Yesterday's Gale Swept the Island

VESSEL REPORTED ADRIFT AT MARYSTOWN.

The gale of south west wind which came on early Tuesday morning was felt all over the island and did not subside until this morning. As a result the Coastal boats and trains have been interrupted, and put off their schedule for several hours. The Kyle met with the full force of the gale crossing the Gulf, and did not reach Port aux Basques until 10 o'clock yesterday morning. The trip occupied 13 hours, when under ordinary conditions, it generally takes only six hours. The express with mails passengers did not get away from there until after twelve o'clock, consequently the train will be several hours late in arriving.

The storm was felt severely along the West Coast, and according to a message received this morning by Hon. J. J. Long from the Sub-Collector at Marystown, a small boat owned and operated by John Kelly has drifted to sea, and the Argyle was out searching all last night for the missing craft, but up to noon to-day no tidings of her whereabouts had been received. The Gloucester relieved the Argyle this morning to continue the search. The Meigle which was storm-bound off Twillingate yesterday reached that port during the night and left there coming south this morning. Messages received this morning state that a heavy snow storm prevailed in the District of Twillingate all day yesterday, but no damage was done. It is feared, however, that much damage has been done to fishing gear in places where the storm was felt, but nothing has been received up to the present. A heavy rain storm pre-valled along the railway all day yesterday, whilst in some sections snow fell. There were no washouts reported along the line, and clear of the lateness of the express all other trains are running pretty well on time.

INTERNATIONAL CEMENT HAS ATTRACTIVE FEATURES.

New York, June 9.—The recent firmness in International Cement has been due to buying by investors attracted by the growing earnings of the company, its progressive management, and the probability of a dividend increase before many months have gone by. Cement is a standard article of commerce which must be manufactured fairly near where it is to be used because of its low selling price in proportion to its bulk. It is a commodity where high freight rates give a distinct advantage to the manufacturer nearest the job to be done. The International Cement have seven plants in operation, one near New York City, one in Kansas, two in Texas, one in Cuba, one in the Argentine, and one in Uruguay. An eighth plant will be in operation this summer at Norfolk, Va. The present capacity is about 7,000,000 barrels of cement a year, which will be increased to about 8,500,000 barrels by midsummer when the new plant is opened and additions which are now in progress are completed at other plants.

The company has a good financial structure with no capital obligations except $3,411,800 preferred stock coming ahead of the 400,000 shares of no par common. Earnings per share on the common have been gradually expanding as plant capacity has been enlarged. Last year the company earned $7.14 on its junior issue, against $6.37 in 1923, and $4.08 in 1922. Profits for the first quarter of 1925 were 60 per cent. in excess of those for the same period of 1924. If this rate of improvement is to continue throughout the year a balance of around $11 a share will be shown for all of 1925. The present common dividend is $4. Current profits give reasonable expectation of a higher disbursement rate.

Making a Losing Mine Pay

Coal is the foundation of our national wealth, and the present crisis in the mining industry acts, therefore, not only coal-owners and miners, but the country as a whole. What is the best way to tackle it? The Vauxhall Colliery experiment suggests a possible answer to this question: this new factor in the problem of the mines has therefore been investigated on the spot by our special representative. The results of his enquiries are contained in two articles, the first of which appears below.

The eyes of the world are focussed upon the Vauxhall Colliery, which lies close to Wrexham in the North Wales coalfield. In this mine an experiment is being tried that may revolutionise our coal industry and solve many of those labour problems which are occupying the anxious attention of our great statesmen and economists.

From the various accounts that have appeared, it was difficult to grasp all the points of this experiment. It was in order that the Editor of Answers might be able to set the whole matter out quite clearly for his readers that I was dispatched to Wrexham to learn exactly what was afoot, and gather the views of all parties as to the amount of success with which the experiment is likely to meet.

Some reports had it that the mine had been handed over to the men to run as they thought best, the only stipulation on the part of the owners being that the colliers should indemnify them against a working loss.

Dropping £70 a Week.

Such accounts are not true, as I soon found on my arrival in the North Wales coalfield. Upon visiting the colliery, I learnt the full facts of the case from Mr. J. Smethurst, the manager of the mine, and a man of vast experience in all branches of the coal industry.

The Vauxhall Colliery is a typical, well-run mine, and has been working for many years. It is well known that for a long time many colliers in all parts of the country have been working at a loss, and some of the older mines have had considerable difficulty in paying their way. The Vauxhall

Colliery, during the last twelve months, has numbered itself amongst these, and the average weekly loss amounted to £70.

Perhaps it would be as well for us to see here just why it was that this mine, in common with the rest, was failing to pay its way.

Hit by the Seven-hour Day.

There were several reasons for this state of affairs, the chief being the fixing of the minimum wage at 9s. 5d. a day, the heavy fall in selling prices, and the introduction of the seven-hour day. The first two of these reasons, Mr. Smethurst said, were not nearly so important as the last.

In Mr. Smethurst's opinion, and in that of several other colliery managers with whom I discussed the matter, it is the Seven-hour Act which is at fault. This Act lays down that the working day of a miner shall not exceed seven hours from the time the first man leaves the bank to the time the last man returns to it.

Now, especially in the older collieries, the workings are often a considerable distance from the pit-shaft. Consequently, a considerable part of the stipulated seven hours is occupied by the miner in a long walk from the bottom of the shaft to the coal-face where he is to commence work.

Facing the Crisis.

To the uninitiated, the obvious remedy for this would seem to be the sinking of new shafts. This, however, as Mr. Smethurst explained, is quite impossible in the majority of cases, owing to surface conditions. In many cases seams run below the sea under mountains, while in others it would be impracticable to bring the railway to the new pit-head.

"No," said Mr. Smethurst; "the only remedy for this for the Act to be amended, allowing extra time in those collieries where pit-shaft is any considerable distance from the workings."

However, the law lays down seven hours and then, without due debate and legislation, cannot be altered. So what did the Vauxhall miners do?

Here was the position. They all had got their notices of dismissal. They fully realised that the following week they would all be receiving a very inadequate dole, and that they, together with their wives and families, would be the greatest sufferers. So they held a conference among themselves to consider the position.

Finally, they were able to approach the management with this suggestion: "We are sensible men, and we quite realise that it is impossible for the directors of this mine to carry on at such a tremendous loss. We are not blind to the fact that the Seven-hour Act is at fault; but, in spite of that, perhaps we have not done all that is possible in the past to spend every available moment at the coal-face.

The Miners' Offer.

"But we are anxious not to be out of work, and we propose to co-operate with the owners in making this mine at least pay its way. Therefore, we propose to raise among ourselves a guarantee fund, out of which any loss on the working of the mine is to be made up to you. We are still to receive the agreed minimum or maximum wages, and the colliery is to continue to be run exactly as it has always been."

This, quite shortly, was the gist of the miners' proposition. A more sensible attitude it would be hard to imagine. The arrangements suggested, it should be noticed, do not interfere in any way with the district rate of wages and work, do not contravene the Seven-hour Act, do not interfere with the rules of the miners' trade union—the North Wales Miners' Association—nor do they undermine any of the principles embodied in the miners' present national agreement.

The result was that the owners of the colliery agreed to the suggested arrangement, and the gathering together of the money for the guarantee fund was commenced. Almost every workman employed at the colliery contributed at once and in a few days they had raised £200 for the fund among themselves.

No More Ca'canny.

As soon as the residents and tradesmen of Wrexham heard what was afoot, they, as one man, applauded the scheme, and showed their sympathy in a practical way by sending subscriptions. The local trades are united in supporting the miners, and hardly one of them but has "done his bit" for the guarantee fund.

Under these happy auspices, the threatened catastrophe was averted, and the new scheme has so far met with every success. The experiment is being tried for three months, pending the result of Government negotiations concerning the whole matter of miners' working hours. For the first time for many months the mine is paying its way, increased working time having been made possible by an agreement under which the miners are conveyed to and from their actual working places.

All this I learnt from Mr. Smethurst during my talk with him. Everything that he told me was later confirmed during my visits to other prominent men in the neighbourhood.

"And to what do you attribute the fact that there is increased output, and that the mine—ran under practically the same conditions as before—is now paying its way?" I asked Mr. Smethurst.

Mr. Smethurst smiled. "It is the usual story," he said. "While my men are the best lot of fellows in the world, it would be asking too much of human nature to expect them to really put all their efforts into the work until they had got some real interest in it. For the first time, now, every man is in honour bound to do his best for his comrades. There is no 'ca'canny' about any of them. Every collier is working with a will. Each man knows that upon his individual effort depends, not only his own job, but the money that a sympathetic public has so generously subscribed. Trust a miner not to let his comrades down."

Keeping Their Jobs.

I could think of no better spirit than this in which to meet a crisis. Here are the men and the owners collaborating together for their own good and for the good of the country. Six hundred and forty men are employed at the Vauxhall Colliery which means to say that, through their own efforts, nothing short of a thousand people have been able to keep good jobs. Full district wages are being paid, no longer hours are being worked, and more than seventy-five per cent. of the staff men are getting the maximum wage, while no one gets less than the minimum. That means to say that many of the miners are getting £4 a week.

Mr. Arthur E. Evans, chairman of the local Unemployment Committee, Deputy-Lieutenant of Denbighshire, and a royalty owner in the Vauxhall mine, has associated himself prominently with the movement. He said:

No Use for the Dole.

"I congratulate the six hundred and forty men working at the Vauxhall Colliery upon the splendid spirit they have shown, and the effort they are making to keep the colliery going. They have shown the desire for work rather than the dole. I am not in a position at the moment to make any definite statement as to future developments, but I pray that all will keep united and will be willing and anxious to help those who have shown themselves willing and anxious to help themselves. What is required is joint action among all concerned. A long pull, a strong pull, and all pull together in the interest of this great industrial centre."

When Mr. Evans speaks, his voice is that of the entire neighbourhood, and his words express general public opinion. It may be remembered that, in a mining district such as Wrexham, the general public have their interests bound up with, and know more than a little about such matters as the coal industry.

The spirit in which the royalty owners have approached the matter is shown by the fact that one of the largest royalty owners has contributed handsomely to the guarantee fund.

The Coal Problem Solved?

It may be mentioned, in passing, that the Vauxhall Colliery is now producing coal at slightly lower prices.

I can now imagine the reader exclaiming:

"Six hundred and forty men retained in employment, the colliery which hitherto has been run at a loss now paying its way, men and owners well satisfied—the latter earning more money, and coal being produced at more saleable prices. The whole problem of the coal industry is solved! Let every other colliery follow the lead of the Vauxhall!"

But there are other sides to the question, which I must present to the notice of the reader before we draw any conclusions. We have not yet heard the point of view of the great North Wales Miners' Association—Answers.

Scores the Professional Uplifters

Rev. Dr. Fiske, Episcopal Bishop of New York, Says People Cannot Be Made Good by Legislation.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., June 4.—"I am a modernist but not an extreme modernist. I am a fundamentalist, but, I hope, a sane one. My position in the church prevents me from saying what I'd like about William Jennings Bryan; and God save us from any more constitutional amendments."

Thus did Right Rev. Dr. Charles Fiske, Episcopal Bishop of Central New York, sum up an address here last night in which he arraigned extreme modernists, fundamentalists, evolutionists and prohibitionists and outlined the position of his church on those questions.

"The curse of America to-day," Bishop Fiske declared, "is that we think we can make people good by legislation. There are too many professional uplifters who think they can crystallize morals by putting laws on the statute books."

"I like the old-fashioned religion of men who worship and serve God in their own way and don't attempt to correct others, by legislation. A couple of hundred such men will do more good for the community than all the professional uplifters in the country."

The Greatest Man

"To-day the greatest man in the world is taking a holiday. In all modesty we give the hero his identification: The British taxpayer. When all the world was mad after the war he alone was sane," said the Daily Express on Whit-Monday.

"While others were proclaiming that they had won the war, and revenge swept over Europe like a plague, he shouldered the burden of his own country and most of the world besides."

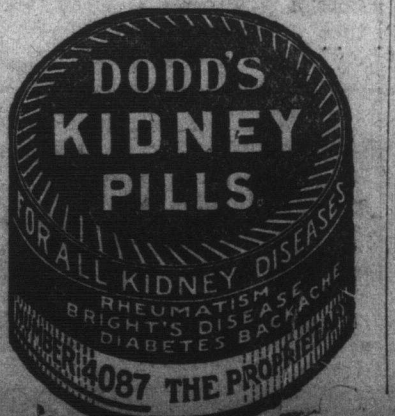

"He helped his enemies to recover from despair. He submitted to a merciless taxation. He ministered unto Europe until the fever there began to go. Nothing but his courage and compassion made Europe's recovery possible. Without him there would have been chaos, and America's gold would have remained useless and idle in her vaults."

"Does Europe understand? Does America, the creditor, acknowledge her debt?"

M.G.C.A. SPORTS DAY.

Held At St. George's Field.

The Methodist Guards Comrades Association held their fifth annual Sports Day at St. George's Field yesterday afternoon, under adverse weather conditions. The committee in charge had all arrangements made for the conducting of a successful sports, but this was marred considerably by the wretched weather which followed during the afternoon. After the heavy rainfall of the night previous, the ground was left in a very soggy condition, but there was hope yesterday morning when the weather changed, and everything pointed towards a fine afternoon. It was for this reason that the Committee met and decided to go ahead with the programme at 3 o'clock instead of 2.30, and give the grounds an extra half hour to dry up. Just previous to the hour of commencing, and when a large number of people had wended their way to the field, a sudden change took place in the weather, so that hundreds who had intended to be present, stayed away. While the sports were on it was cold and disagreeable, making it uncomfortable for competitors and spectators alike, but in spite of this every event was carried through with despatch, and great interest was shown by all present in the various contests. The high wind and condition of the ground after the heavy rain, made fast time in the different track events impossible, although a few records went by the boards in the weight events and high jump. W. Coffield bettered the shot put of last year by eight inches, while J. Howlett retrieved himself by winning back the hammer throw, with a distance of 90 feet, beating Henley's previous record by 8 feet 6 inches. In the high jump, Gordon Long, a new comer, cleared the bar at 5 feet 5 inches. Mr. Long is a former resident of St. John, N.B., and came to the city only recently to reside. He is a member of the M.G.C.A. track team, and his showing yesterday indicates that he will be a valuable addition to that team. Clifford Stone won the mile and half mile events, while Grant Burnell ably upheld his previous reputation in the 1 mile walk.

Three Mile Race.

Ronald O'Toole captured the 3 mile turf race from a field of five. In the early stages of the race Gower Stone held close to the champion and passed out to the front for a short distance, only to be again headed by O'Toole. Drawing into the second mile O'Toole hit up a lively pace and gradually drew away from the field, with Stone about 50 yards behind. In the last mile O'Toole was running strong, and increasing his lead romped home three quarters of a mile in advance of Stone, with J. Ralph one lap and a half in the rear of the latter runner. O'Toole completed the distance in 17 min. 19 sec., which can be considered very good under the conditions.

The Saints defeated the B.I.S. in the final football sixes and were each presented with silver cups. Two teams had entered for the tug-of-war, but only one turned up, and the Guards won by default. During the evening the M.G.C.A. Band, under Capt. Peet, was present and gave very pleasing selections between the events. Owing to the uncertain weather conditions, His Excellency the Governor and Lady Allardice were absent, and expressed their regret to the Association. Lt.-Col. Rendell who was present as one of the guests, very graciously presented the prizes to the winners after each event, at the same time extending hearty congratulations to the various athletes on their prowess. The sports were brought to a close at 5.40, by the playing of the National Anthem.

The following is the complete list of events and winners:—

POSTPONED GAME.

The Junior League Football Game between the C. Y. M. C. and T. A., scheduled for last night, was postponed. A consultation between the captains of the teams and the official referee resulted in the game being called off. It will now be played at the end of the schedule.

MITCHELL'S BOUT TO-MORROW.

The Amherst News says:—Jack Dorrington, the Joggins scrapper who will step into the ring with Roy Mitchell on Friday evening at Joggins is reported to be a powerful puncher, and that he has a much better chance against the Haligonian than did the veteran Edgar Martin, who was put away by Mitchell, a few weeks ago in the tenth round of a fight. Dorrington uses a right upper-cut with telling effect.

Miss Bleibrey challenges Miss Wainwright to meet her in a race of any distance from 50 yards up. She is also willing to race Miss Wainwright at any style stroke, and she is willing to allow Miss Wainwright a handicap at any distance over 220 yards.

Since Miss Bleibrey's retirement from amateur swimming Miss Wainwright has been widely acclaimed as the world's greatest woman swimmer. Miss Bleibrey's unqualifiedly disputes this claim.

CLIPS NURMI'S MARK.

STOCKHOLM, June 8.—Edwin Wide, Swedish runner, established a new world's record for 3000 metres yesterday. He ran that distance in 8 min. 27.4-10 sec. Nurmi did 3000 metres in 8 min. 28.6-10 sec. Aug. 27, 1922, in Finland.

STENGEL SUSPENDED.

ALBANY, N.Y., June 8.—Casey Stengel, manager of the Worcester Eastern League baseball club, and BJ McCorry, manager of the Albany Eastern League team, to-day were notified of their indefinite suspensions as a result of their actions in the game yesterday. Stengel threw a ball into the grandstand and McCorry threw a bat at a pitcher.

TO MEET AGAIN.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Mike McTigue and Paul Berlenbach have signed with Tex Rickard for another encounter at the Stadium some time in August, although it was understood that Jack Delaney would be given the first chance at the crown.

FOR 15-ROUND BOUTS.

The International Boxing Union, at a meeting at Paris, decided that henceforth championship matches will be for 15 rounds instead of 20 rounds. The Union ruled that as the European champions had no opportunity to meet the American champions in the lightweight, welterweight and light-heavyweight classes, it will not recognize the title of Pancho Villa, flyweight; Phil Rosenberg, bantamweight; Kid Kaplan, featherweight; Harry Greb, middleweight, and Jack Dempsey, heavyweight.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

NOT A PECULIAR MAN.

A Letter Friend writes me that she has a very peculiar husband. He hates to see anything go out of the house, either thrown away or given away. She simply cannot understand this trait in him for he is generous enough about buying things, and also fairly generous about giving money. But he just hates to see anything they have ever bought disposed of.

It seems to me that if there's anything the average woman particularly loves it's to reduce the number of things in her house. And if there's anything the average man especially hates it's to see her doing it.

She Loves To Clear Things Out.

It is because the average woman is more generous than the average man? No, it isn't. She may be, but I'm not trying to settle that question now. And it isn't generosity that makes her want to hand things out. It is because she likes to do that and thus get inexpensively the pleasant glow that feeling generous gives us. But if she couldn't give the things away, she would throw them away. For her main motive is the desire to reduce her possessions.

Possessions mean something different to the average man and to the average woman.

Something To Be Cherished.

To the man they mean something he has exchanged his labor for and therefore something to be cherished. To the woman they mean something she has to look out for, "one more thing to dust" and therefore something to be gotten rid of when they cease to be actively useful.

This Business Of Style.

Men know that this business of style enters greatly into feminine appearances, but they never can quite accept all the facts that flow from that. That what was a perfectly good hat when put away last fall is not always a perfectly good hat this spring. That a perfectly whole dress can be given away without extravagance. Yet if his wife wore that dress or hat out with him he would sense that there was something wrong with her appearance and not be at all pleased. Of course if a man is satisfied to have his wife warmly and neatly clothed and his salary warrants no more, he has reason to expect her to wear her clothes out and not give them away. But if he wants to see her smartly dressed, and his income warrants that, he may as well accept the fact that clothes that are perfectly whole still have to be replaced; and might as well be given away.

Altogether it's just a difference in masculine and feminine psychology growing out of the difference in the masculine and feminine roles in life. They can't either of them help feeling the way they do. But if each other stands that, it may help them to be more reasonable and sympathetic.

Novelist's 85th Birthday

Surprisingly good health, considering his age, is being enjoyed by Mr. Thomas Hardy, who spent his 85th birthday at his home, Max Gate, Dorchester. The veteran poet and novelist was inundated with congratulatory messages. He does not go out very much nowadays, and almost the last occasion was when, some weeks ago, he attended the funeral of Mr. W. W. Watkin, hon. secretary of the Society

Just Folks.

By EDGAR GUEST.

BETRAYED BY CAESAR.

Last night he took my Caesar from the shelf. My school day Caesar of the long ago. For he has come to Latin now himself. The Latin which I learned but do not know. And running through its pages found with glee An old report card which belonged to me.

The ink had faded with the passing years, But legible the figures still remained. Vain is the speech I've poured upon his ears.

For proof of my performance he had gained. He laughed aloud and shouted out: "The best you got in Latin was a three!"

Betrayed by Caesar! Thirty years or more That book has waited for his youthful eyes. Waited for him to run its pages o'er And catch his father in a pack of lies.

"A three in algebra! Just fair!" said he. "Couldn't my dad get better than a three?" I blushed, I know I blushed to see his grin. "You weren't so good yourself," he chuckled low. "I thought you gathered all the honors in. It seems to me that once you told me so." And then I laughed, to hear the raspy add. "You didn't always stick to business, dad."

CONFEDERATION LIFE.

OLD SHOES

WALT MARION

In the daytime I am shod in a most attractive style, and the footgear sharpers applaud, as I walk in single file; I would think it a disgrace, and my self-respect I'd lose, were I seen about the place with a shabby pair of shoes. I remark, "Appearance First." I obey the style's behest, and the bootblack does his worst, and the cobbler does his best. And my shoes are good to see as I pace the trodden pave; one must follow style's decree, or as well be in the grave. But when fall the evening dews, and I to my home retreat, what a solace, are old shoes, to my weary, martyred feet! I have filled myself with trips, I have punished bread and cheese, like a bonfire in my pipe, and I sit and dream at ease. Life would wear a finer curve, it would wear a kindly smile, if we only had the nerve to defy the calls of style. If we only had the sand to put on old number twelves, and with men serene and bland, bid the critics chase themselves! We would dodge the ache and pang that our throbbing tootsies know, if we didn't care a hand for the fits the stylists throw. Often in the night I say, "I shall be a slave no more; I will wear old shoes by day, let the critics wall and roar!" But when morning comes I wilt, and put on my shining shoes, with their nickel-plate and gilt, and their grief to aching thews. Who has courage to be seen in his ancient shoes and tile, in his rusty garbards, that is badly out of style?

ed in a little book called "Germany's Just Frontiers" which has lately been published. In this remarkable work the present Reich, deprived of the territory stolen from its neighbors, is described as "Rump-Germany," and it is claimed that, if only the world was just, 200,000 square kilometres of territory with 18,000,000 inhabitants would be added to it. The author makes a neat list of requirements, which include Austria, Danzig, Memel, Fosen and 44,000 square kilometres of Polish territory, Alsace Lorraine, and large tracts of Belgian, Czechoslovak, Italian, and Danish territory.

That is the programme, and if anybody thinks that Germany will be made happy and peaceful if she is given the Polish territory which separates Germany proper from the oldest of her Colonies, East Prussia, he is wrong. Concessions are useless.

The Tariff Triumph.

But there is no cause for alarm. Ruth Fischer, the Communist and the wildest speaker in the Reichstag, hit the right nail on the head the other day when she replied to an interminable speech on foreign affairs by Dr. Stresemann and said: "For pretty boy" you know perfectly well that you can do nothing whatever without the consent of the Entente." That is the position and the longer it continues the better for the peace of Europe.

To turn from the dreams of the Industrialists to actual attainment: their new triumph is the new tariff to protect German industry and German agriculture from foreign competition. The advantage of this tariff is that the elimination of foreign competition will enable the German manufacturers to charge the unfortunate Germans what they please for their goods. The profits at home will enable them to sell cheaply abroad. As it is there are articles of German manufacture which are cheaper in London than they are in Berlin. The Junkers share in this last triumph. Foreign butter is to be taxed to encourage Germans to make more butter instead of buying in from the Danes. Foreign potatoes are to be taxed and it is explained that Germany can, if she chooses, grow all she wants. Corn is to be taxed. Meat is to be taxed. The German will find that his food will cost more and the simple articles of daily life will cost more, and then perhaps he will understand who are the masters in the German Republic.—Daily Mail.

Masters of Germany

HOW THE INDUSTRIALISTS RULE.

BERLIN, May 29.—The Great Industrialists and their allies, the Junkers or country squires, are passing from triumph to triumph. They must themselves be started at the rapidity and completeness of their success. Let us examine it.

During the period of inflation of currency the Industrialists escaped taxation and made money by paying over to the Government the income tax deduction from their workpeople's wages in depreciated paper marks. The Junkers paid off the mortgages on their estates for a mere song during this period. The coal magnates made a huge sum by deferring the payment of the coal tax of which the general public had been mulcted. This form of exploitation of the nation came to an end with the stabilization of the currency, but ingenuity discovered new methods.

The eight-hours a day was one of the few benefits which the masses of the German people received from the revolution.

"I don't want the Kaiser back," an hotel servant said to me, "because when we had a Kaiser I had to work 14 hours a day, and now that we have a Republic I only work 8."

Rich Served First.

This argument in favour of the Republic must have appealed to millions, and both on political and economic grounds the Great Industrialists were determined that it should lose its force. The occupation of the Ruhr, the collapse of the currency and the alarm which was felt throughout Germany were their opportunity. They produced that Germany could not be saved if the eight-hours a day was maintained and stamped the Reichstag into consenting to its suspension.

The next triumph of the Industrialists was to get the handsome sum of £25,000,000 from the Government as compensation for losses during the occupation of the Ruhr. Thousands of ordinary Germans were clamouring for compensation for the losses they sustained by the collapse of Government securities, but they had to wait for the Government to see whether anything remained over for them after the richest men in the country had been satisfied. They were finally promised a shilling in the pound and told that they ought to be thankful.

These economic successes whetted the appetites of the Industrialists, and the powerful Press which they finance was ordered to give them a political triumph. It secured the election of Marshal von Hindenburg as President of the German Republic. Nothing shows more clearly the aims of the masters of Germany.

Dream of Greater Germany.

It is unjust to set these men down as men who have no better aim than to make money. The money they make and the power they attain are to be used to create an Empire which shall be greater and mightier than the Empire which collapsed when its Emperor fled before the anger of his subjects.

A few weeks ago I happened to meet one of the German Ministers, and I asked him what were the desired frontiers between Germany and Poland. I knew, of course, that he could not give me a satisfactory answer, but was curious to hear what he would say. He began by explaining that the word desire had many meanings. "There is the desire for something which one may reasonably hope to get," he said, "and then there is the desire of the heart which may go much further, and he laughed and declared that there was all he could say in reply.

The heart's desire of the masters of Germany and their agents, the members of the present Cabinet, is exposed before the anger of his subjects.

"So she does," mused the old dog.

Dodge Brothers Set New Record

Deliveries and Production Exceed Best Previous Week in History.

Dodge Brothers have been establishing new high records continuously for several months, as compared with similar periods for previous years, but the record of the week ending April 13th is the best in the company's history. With retail deliveries aggregating more than 7,000, an average of more than 1,500 each production day, the previous week was surpassed by several hundred cars. New retail orders, exceeded the corresponding week of 1924 by 1,000, or approximately 17 per cent.

Although Dodge Brothers Motor cars are now being built at the rate of 1,300 a day, both deliveries and new orders are some 200 a day in excess of production.

"Used dealers' stocks permitted, the number of deliveries for the record week would have been even greater," said John A. Nichols, Jr., Vice-President in Charge of Sales. "It is not a part, but a steady, healthful climb."

American Legion to be Represented

The National Commander Will Go To
Ottawa to Greet Field Marshal
Haig on His Arrival.

OTTAWA.—James A. Drain, National Commander of the American Legion, accompanied by one other National officer, will be the official representative of United States veterans to greet Field Marshal Haig upon his visit to Canada. A telegram received by the Dominion Command, Great War Veterans' Association, from Legion headquarters at Indianapolis conveyed the announcement.

The United States delegates will arrive at Ottawa on June 29, concurrent with the opening session of the British Empire Service League conference, over which Field Marshal Haig will preside.

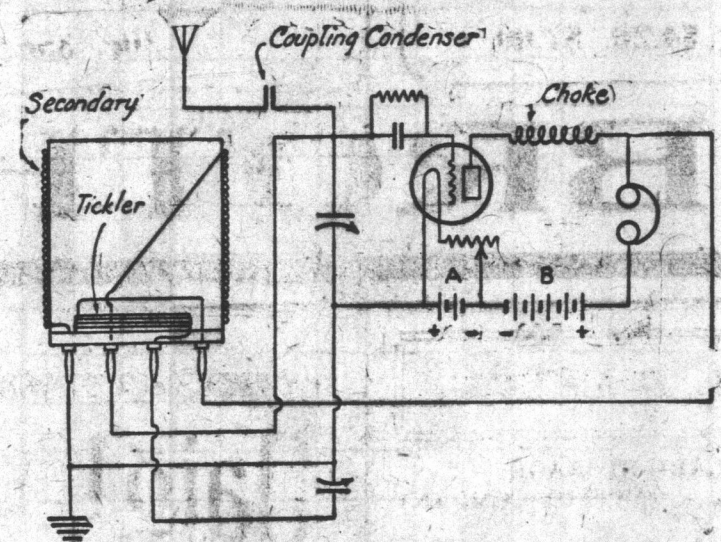

Recent cables from London indicate that Lord Haig will be accompanied by a party of 40, including the delegates from the British Isles and members of their families. Delegates from India, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand are now on their way to Ottawa.

Lieuts. Garland and Quinton, Vice-president and Secretary respectively of the G.W.V.A., will represent Newfoundland, and will leave by Tuesday's express for the Conference.

An All-Wave Broadcast Receiver A MODIFICATION

PART V.
EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

On wave lengths below 200 meters it is not necessary to have a primary winding for each coil. Sufficient coupling between the antenna and secondary or grid circuits can be provided by means of a small "coupling condenser." This condenser is nothing other than a series antenna condenser having a very, very small capacity. The antenna is connected to one "plate" of this fixed capacity and the grid side of the secondary to the other condenser plate. On the broadcasting wavelengths above 200 meters the coupling value which can be gotten by means of this arrangement is not sufficient to provide adequate transfer of energy from the antenna to the detector grid, at the same time keeping the coupling sufficiently "loose" not to seriously affect the tuning of the set.

There are three or four stations in the United States and several foreign stations broadcasting more or less regularly on wavelengths between 60 and 120 meters. In the future this number may be greatly increased. It does pay to have a short wave receiver around to listen to these stations. The ranges are enormously greater on the short waves than they are on the regular 200-500 meter waves. So if you want to permanently rig the receiver so that it will make a most excellent short wave outfit this can be done by adding the coupling condenser (shown in our figure above) and disregarding the regular primary winding entirely. This coupling condenser consists of two 1/4 inch by 1/2 inch brass angles mounted on the receiver sub base. The condensers are held in place by means of two short brass wood screws. They are mounted so that two vertical "fingers" are about one-eighth of an inch apart. The exact distance between the two angles will depend to some extent upon the length and height of your antenna and the length of your ground lead. The correct distance can be found easily by sliding the angles toward each other until the signal strength on a particular station is best.

TAKES ACTION IN BARBADOS AGAINST AGENT.

Monroe Export Co. v. C. H. Kinch.

The further hearing of the above action was continued yesterday before his Honor Sir William Chandler Kt., Acting Vice-Chancellor, when the following additional evidence was taken.

Mr. C. H. Kinch, continuing his evidence in chief, said that the Kinch Molasses Co., of which he was the Managing Director, was incorporated in 1917, but business was not started until 1918 or 1919. That corporation had since been wound up. He and W. S. Barnes were the only shareholders. Barnes used to get one-third of the profits. He (Kinch) purchased molasses in his name and transferred it to the company. The molasses sold to the plaintiff company was sold by the Kinch Molasses Company, but the invoices were made out and signed by him. Sometimes he would draw on the plaintiffs for a shipment of molasses, but when he owed them for fish they would tell him to apply the money due them against the molasses. He used to finance the molasses company entirely while the other shareholder put in his labour. Whenever he was making up invoices for molasses, he had to get the quantities shipped from the stanchion. He never saw the memorandum book which Macaulay produced in Court. It was within his knowledge that the delivery book for molasses was kept at the stanchion. The quantities were either given to him over the telephone or memorandum slips would be sent to him at the Head Office in Palmetto Street. Macaulay's Memo book showed that the 251 puncheons shipped by the Czarina were entered by him as 10, 180, and 51 respectively. On the other hand the numbers on the invoice made out by him were 200 and 51 puncheons. The quantity in the 200 puncheons as shown by the Invoice was put down as 21,415 gals. at 93 cents per gallon, and the quantity in the 51 puncheons as shown by the Invoice was 5,472 gals. at 95 cents per gallon. Macaulay's book showed none of these figures. The same Invoice contained the following entries with regard to choice molasses shipped: 150 puncheons containing 16,199 gals. at 83 cents per gal.; 85 puncheons, 3,778 gals., at 93 cents a gallon. The Delivery Book showed 185 puncheons containing 19,777 gals. of choice molasses. This Delivery Book was never to him. It was kept at the stanchion all the time and produced to the auditor at the end of the year.

Cross-examined by Mr. Walcott the defendant said that he would not admit that he was the agent of the Monroe Export Co., Ltd. for the purchase of molasses in 1919.

In answer to his Honor, Mr. Walcott said that all the invoices for molasses so far as he had seen were made out in the name of Monroe & Co. and not Monroe Export Co., Ltd. This reply Mr. Kinch admitted was correct and went on to say that he dealt with Monroe & Co. in molasses and not Monroe Export Co., Ltd. He had been buying molasses for Monroe & Co. for years prior to 1919. So far as he believed the schooner "Czarina" was the property of Monroe & Co. He would not say that he ever sold Monroe Export Co., Ltd. a gallon of molasses. He saw Mr. Monroe every year he went to Newfoundland from 1921 to 1923. He never interviewed Mr. Monroe as Director of Monroe Export Co., Ltd.

He always interviewed him as W. S. Monroe. He spoke to Mr. Monroe about the 400 gallons of molasses in 1923, not in 1922. It was in 1922 he told Mr. Monroe that if there were anything wrong about the 400 gallons he would pay for it. When he offered to pay, he was not thinking of Mr. Monroe as Director of the Company. He was dealing with Mr. Monroe himself. In the course of a conversation with Mr. Monroe in May, 1914 he (Kinch) again brought up this question of the 400 gallons of molasses.

His Honor: I understand from Mr. Kinch's evidence that the offer to pay for the 400 gallons was made in 1924. This is the first time we have heard of previous offers.

Mr. Kinch continuing said that Mr. Monroe showed him the affidavit from Taylor sometime in May, 1924. He had often received orders from Monroe for molasses after the end of 1918. He had received letters from Monroe & Co. up to 1921. The shipment by the schooner "Czarina" was made to Monroe Export Co., Ltd. When asked who paid for the molasses, he said that Monroe & Co. did so.

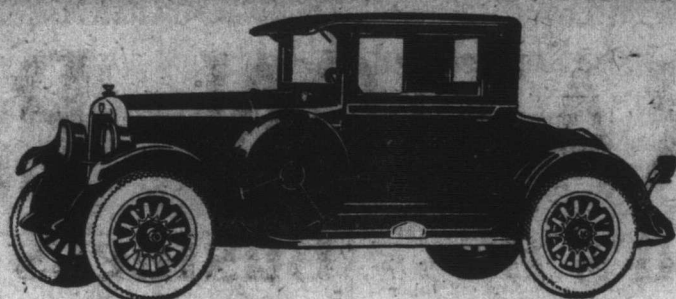

Mr. Walcott: Is this statement in your pleadings, right or wrong? "The defendant was from time to time during the year 1922 agent for the plaintiffs in the Island of Barbados for the purchase on their behalf of sugar and molasses?"

Witness: It is wrong.

Mr. Walcott: It was not then on your instructions that that statement was inserted in your answer?

Mr. Kinch: The Bill of complaint is not particular. The defendant says in his pleadings that he was the agent for these people for molasses all these years. He didn't say that he bought specific shipments.

His Honor: Excuse me, Mr. Kinch, it goes further than that. The pro-

25 Miles to the Gallon

The ever-swelling, nation-wide praise which accrues the brilliant performance of the new good Maxwell will continue to grow in volume because Maxwell will continue to deserve it.

For this great car not only gives performance results and economy heretofore unknown in its class. It is also one of the most soundly engineered and soundly built cars in America—manufactured complete by the Maxwell organization in the great Maxwell plants.

Its motor combines such features as force feed lubrication and fine balance of reciprocating parts—structural practice before confined to cars costing far more. Its transmission, and its rear axle, are big enough and strong enough, for the most strenuous daily service.

The new good Maxwell owner enjoys his 53 miles per hour, 5 to 25 miles in eight seconds, and 25 miles per gallon in the knowledge that this prized combination is exclusive and distinctive to the new good Maxwell alone.

We are eagerly awaiting the opportunity to prove these good Maxwell truths to you.

Solution of yesterday's puzzle.

ecution is absolutely justified. The defendant's statement about purchasing molasses for the plaintiffs is general. Mr. Walcott's question is also general. "The defendant was from time to time during the year 1922 agent for the plaintiffs in the Island of Barbados for the purchase on their behalf of sugar and molasses."

Mr. Kinch: He is not responsible for that. I could ask to amend that pleading.

His Honor: What would pleading be worth, if they could not be cross-examined upon?

Mr. Kinch: I do not want Kinch to be blamed for what he is not to be blamed.

His Honor: I cannot stop the cross-examination.

Mr. Kinch: The fault in this pleading was not Kinch's. I do not want to stop the cross-examination.

His Honor: What you are doing now is an attempt to stop the cross-examination.

Mr. Kinch: I am attempting to show that my learned friend is not examining on particular points.

His Honor: In your motion, Mr. Kinch, that the question be answered or disallowed? Surely Mr. Walcott is entitled to ask it.

Mr. Kinch's objection having been overruled, Mr. Kinch in answer to the question said that he did not give any instructions for the insertion of that paragraph in his pleadings. He did not know how it came to be inserted.

Mr. Walcott went on to labour the point in cross-examination as to whether Mr. Kinch did not know that in 1919 he had been dealing with the Monroe Export Company instead of Monroe Company.

Mr. Kinch said that it was not going on with the cross-examination on this point. His belief was that Mr. Kinch dealt with Monroe Export Co., Ltd., although he used to ship the molasses to Monroe & Co. On the other hand Monroe Export Co., Ltd. accepted Bills from Mr. Kinch in the name of Monroe & Co. without drawing any attention to this mistake. There was carelessness on both sides so far as this point was concerned.

Mr. Kinch went on to say in answer to Mr. Walcott that from 1919 he sold molasses to the plaintiffs as agent for the Kinch Molasses Co. He signed all the invoices "C. H. Kinch." He acted as agent for the purchase of molasses for persons in Newfoundland. To explain, he would say that he made firm sales with the plaintiffs. He would not say there was any agency. The plaintiffs would often give him an open order to purchase molasses. He bought from the Kinch Molasses Co. at the market prices. In fact he went out and bought molasses. The Kinch Molasses Co. never manufactured molasses. As soon as they had a sufficient quantity, he would wire the plaintiff "bought so many puncheons at such and such a price." He received nothing as agent, but the company got the usual profits. He had never directly informed the Monroe Export Co., Ltd., that he was acting on behalf of the Kinch Molasses Co. He never told them that the Kinch Molasses Company had been formed, but they knew of it. In 1922 when he spoke to Mr. Monroe about the 400 gallons of molasses. The plaintiffs might have complained of the prices he was paying for molasses. The figures in connection with the shipment by the "Czarina" as shown by the Delivery Book were the same as those in the Invoice. There was a difference of 400 gallons in his favour and against the plaintiff Co. His explanation of this was that Macaulay must have given these figures to him over the telephone. Macaulay would not send him a slip of memorandum and telephone the figures as well. As far as he recollected Boveil & Skeete only questioned one difference in the shipments. He could not remember whether this invoice for the shipment by the Czarina was made up from figures over the telephone or from a memorandum slip. He did not recollect ever telling Macaulay that it was unbusiness-like to telephone quantities shipped. Taylor has nothing to do with the molasses company's books. It was in March 1922 that Boveil & Skeete saw those memorandum slips. The last meeting of the Kinch Molasses Co. was on the 8th August 1922. He never handed over anything to the liquidators. Mr. Sydney Kinch handed over all particulars. He did not know if these memorandum slips were handed over to the liquidators.

Mr. Monroe was satisfied with the explanation he gave in connection with the 400 gallons of molasses. The amount in dispute was $351, while the invoice was for $51,000. In view of Mr. Monroe's statement that he was satisfied, it came to him as a surprise that this action had been filed for accounts to be taken.

With regard to the fish business, he produced two Customs Bond books. One was begun on the 25th March 1912 and ended 9th April 1913, and the other on May 18th 1917 and ended 14th July 1918.

Mr. Walcott asked that the latter book which dealt with the plaintiff's business, be put in.

Mr. Kinch objected to the book being put in if his learned friend's intention was to inspect it. He pointed out that no notice had been served on the defendant to produce his books for inspection. He would allow the book to be put in if his learned friend would confine himself to the particular entry he wanted, as he had no desire to hide anything in this matter.

The latter book having been put in, Mr. Kinch said that there were two of three books which Fucker-in said he had seen in the safe in his office two weeks ago. The book following the 14th July 1913 could not be found.

None of the Counselment States Book which related to the plaintiff's business could be found. He produced a Rough Day Book, otherwise

"Daytime Wives"

EXTRAORDINARY FEATURES AT THE MAJESTIC.

Daytime wives! Ever heard of them? Well they are sort of new in vogue Boston.
 But over in New York and out on the Pacific Coast they are all the rage; have been for several moons.
 Now the Boston Chapter of the Daytime Wives League is to be formed. Miss Ann Benson, of 21 West Street, New York, arrived in Boston recently to start the move for the Boston branch of the new league.
 Miss Benson, a private secretary to a prominent New York business man, conceived the idea. And now is a nation-wide movement of service to the business man.
 In outlining the proposed activities of the Daytime Wives, Miss Benson said on her arrival from New York to-day:

"We do not consider this movement a risk. I have given closest study to the relations between young women in business and their male superiors. It is my honest conviction—and the absolute belief of every member allied with me in this undertaking—that the modern young business woman is doing more for the advancement of many men to-day than are their pampered and petted wives at home.

"We are dedicating this organization not only to the uplift of conditions among working women and the improvement of morals among working girls, but we intend, in many instances, to give to our male superiors, our bosses, that degree of honest service in the performance of certain domestic functions which they never get from their wives at home.
 "How often have we seen husbands come to work in the morning, moody, morose, unshaven, and unkempt? How often have we seen them come in late after breakfast, unable to give their best to their work? How often have we seen them on the verge of collapse because their wives have neglected them?"

"The modern young woman of the business world is actually doing more today to shape the destinies of her boss than his own wife who is stationed in luxury and ease at home. She thinks only of bridge and dance and dancing and the pursuit of pleasure. The business woman, keen-minded, energetic, loyal and efficient, stands alongside her boss through the long hours of the day—and often in a stuffy office—and fights tooth and nail with him the victory in the struggle for existence. How long would the petted wife last in this grueling battle with the world.

"So we have banded together to give our humble measure of service to our bosses. Within a year we expect our membership to total more than 4,000,000. We are enlisting hundreds every week."

Plans for a convention of Daytime Wives to be held in New York city in August are already under way. At that time, it is believed there will be more than 50 chapters in leading American cities and Boston is to be one of the first.

Daytime Wives is Jane Grey's best story with a strong caste directed by the author and it at the Majestic Theatre to-day.

Where Departments Aptly Interpret Every Requirement as Season's Come and Go.

TO-DAY the Store fairly bristles with enthusiasm over its unmatched bargain array—the result of keen, careful buying months ago, and, as we buy for cash and buy in huge quantities lesser prices must of necessity prevail—and they do prevail—a visit to the Store will quickly convince one of the absolute truthfulness of our statement. Nowhere along the street to-day will be found—greater varieties, greater quantities nor equal values. Summer necessities top the list, necessities for your family, your home and for yourself. No better time to procure them than—
