A young lady asks an exchange how best to whiten her hands, and the sage reply was, "Soak them in dish-water three times a day while your mother rests."

Cow chains 3 for $1.30, halters $1.00 to $2.25, lanterns, stable pails, brooms, shovels, etc., at lowest prices at Howden's.

Another chain prayer is on the rounds, with a threat of misfortune if it is not passed on. The best place to pass it to is the waste paper basket and run chance of the dire calamities following.

Wm. Lamb, Jr., printer, who has been working in Sarnia since his return from overseas, joined the U.S. army at Port Huron last week and leaves today (Thursday) for Honolulu for three years.

Owing to a miscount when printing the inside pages of the Guide-Advocate last week a few of our town subscribers had to be content with only four printed pages. We hope they will kindly overlook the accident.

Send in your news—such as marriages, births, deaths, visitors at your home or any items that would be of interest to the readers of a newspaper. If you like to see a live local paper, jam full of news, why not help to make it so?

Buy the big shirts and overalls at Swift's.

The big ditching machine making the excavation for the water mains is attracting a lot of attention, many people not having seen one in operation until now. The trench is about five feet deep and is being made at the rate of a lineal foot or more a minute.

Last Sunday in the Methodist church the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered. The service was very impressive. In the evening Rev. Mr. Tiffin preached a very helpful sermon from the text, "Having loved His own which were in the world, He loved them unto the end."—St. John 13:1.

Smart new caps for young men—$1.50, $2.00, $2.50.—Swift's.

Two new postage stamps will shortly be issued by the Post Office Department—one for 13 and one for 15 cents. Since our registration fee has increased to 10 cents the combined postage and registration fee in Canada and to Great Britain and the United States and certain other countries is 13 cents. To most foreign countries it is 15 cents. This is the reason for the demand for the two new stamps. The 7 cent stamp, which is rarely used, will be withdrawn from circulation.

At the last meeting of the Strathroy council the Andrews Wire Works proposition was further discussed, and the council practically decided to have the bylaw to provide a loan of $25,000 voted upon at the coming municipal elections in January. The councilors report a very favorable feeling among the citizens generally towards the proposition, which, if adopted, will mean another thriving industry for the town. The Andrews people are building a big extension to their plant at Watford, and we understand the local branch now has more orders than will keep all their hands busy through the coming winter.—Strathroy Age.

Don't miss one of those $19.75 Ladies' Coats, full range of sizes.—Swift's.

Local merchants are looking forward to a more than ordinarily brisk Christmas trade. One factor is that the people appear to have the money to spend on holiday goods.

Another war seems imminent—a war on prices of personal and household expenses. The public will not grumble at this. It will be a welcome change.

Two years ago today the fighting ceased and the guns were silent, but the promise of universal peace has not been fulfilled. Some half score of wars are still in progress and the League of Nations seems no nearer consummation than it did a year ago.

A committee appointed some time ago by the directors of the Lambton Mutual Fire Insurance Co. to procure a suitable building for an office, has purchased one directly across the street from the Roche House. The lot is a part of village lot No. 28 in the west side of Main street, Watford, and was previously owned by Mrs. Ellen Kilpatrick. There is a vault and three rooms on the ground floor and when fitted and furnished will be found quite comfortable. The company has been working now for forty-five years, has over ten millions insured, nearly all in Lambton county, and an office somewhere last year in a farmhouse was a necessity.

New prices on Furs at Swift's. Black wolf sets showing today.

High County Constable W. J. Coulter and Provincial Detective C. Ayres went to Arkona on Friday last and arrested Harold (Curly) Smith for failure to support his wife and family who are living in Watford. Taylor, Mrs. Tye and Miss McLeav were appointed to canvass the east half of the town in aid of this worthy object. A very pleasant meeting closed by the singing of the National Anthem and serving of refreshments. The next meeting of the chapter will be held at the home of Mrs. Shirley on the first Friday of December.

Death came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Goodman, John street, on Tuesday afternoon and called to his eternal home their only son, George Dennis, aged 12 years, 4 months and 3 days. Some three years ago deceased met with an accident while at play, receiving severe injury to his knee. Notwithstanding the best of care and medical treatment the leg did not straighten and he was an invalid since the accident. About two weeks ago he became worse and pneumonia put an end to his suffering on Tuesday afternoon. Besides his sorrowing parents he is survived by one sister, Elsie. The funeral took place on Thursday afternoon to Watford cemetery. Service was held in Trinity church, the pastor, Rev. S. P. Irwin, officiating.

Eighteen members of Lambton's 149, I.O.D.E., and one visitor enjoyed the charming hospitality of Mrs. Alex. Elliot on Tuesday afternoon when she entertained the Chapter at its regular meeting. Featherly white and pale amber mums formed the basis of the tasteful floral decorations and a most enjoyable as well as industrious time was spent in planning the autumn's work. The Regent, Mrs. Pritchett, occupied the chair. The Chapter was divided into four groups for the purpose of adding funds to the treasury. Each group will put on some social affair before the end of the year. $50.00 was donated to the building fund of the new Sick Children's Hospital in London, and $10 to buying gramophone records for the soldiers in Westminster Psychopathic Hospital, London. $75.00 was promised to the insured Board in the spring. DANCE

EVENT OF THE SEASON

Dance devotees of Wyoming and surrounding localities will be enabled to enjoy an informal dance with music by the justly renowned Imperial Jazz Orchestra of Sarnia. Wyoming may be considered very fortunate in the fact that it has been chosen for this delightful event, due principally to its proximity to Petrolia, Sarnia, Watford and other surrounding towns. Several new features will be introduced, including waltz solos by the popular baritone, Mr. F. H. Hollands.

All lovers of a good time and real music are cordially invited to attend this enjoyable affair. Remember the date—Tuesday, November 23rd, at Butler Hall, Wyoming.

WATFORD HOCKEY TEAM TO ENTER O.H.A. AND N.H.L.

A very enthusiastic hockey meeting was held in Roche's Hotel on Friday evening last, with Capt. R. H. Stapleford in the chair. It was decided to enter a team in the O.H.A. and also in the N.H.L. if good groupings could be obtained. The whole of last year's team is available this year and several good new players are living in the vicinity. It looks as if Watford will have an extra strong team this year. Training will commence in the Armory as soon as possible to put the boys in shape. The following officers were elected:—

President—P. J. Dodds
Treasurer—Jos. McManus
Secretary—Reg. Brown
Manager—Fred Rogers
Assistant Manager—Alex. Elliot.

CORN GROWERS MEET

A meeting of the Lambton County Corn Growers was held in Petrolia on Friday evening last. A resolution was made of the prize list and a new department added for children who exhibit corn at the School Fairs. The Association supplied 300 school children with seed corn with the understanding that they would take part in the exhibit at the Corn Show. The matter of a winter fair building was discussed but nothing definite arrived at for this year. The dates of the Winter Fair were set for February 9, 10 and 11. About twenty directors were present, the chair being occupied by the President, Mr. B. W. Fancher. As an evidence of the splendid quality of corn grown in Lambton County the letter of the secretary of the Albuquerque U. M. Corn Show, requesting that he be permitted to retain the Lambton corn and distribute it to the foremost growers in order "to improve the grade of corn they are now growing" should suffice.

Messrs. Rundle and Chambers, of Alvinston, have sold their hardware business to Dalton Sifton, of Strathroy.

The economic confusion resulting from the war has led to many strange and illogical conditions and traffic tendencies. Scotland and England have bought United States steel rails. United States and Canadian coal has gone to England, the greater exporter of coal. Britain has been on butter rations, while Danish butter crosses the ocean to New York. Denmark is buying coal from China and Australia is selling to Scandinavian countries. A cargo of newspaper comes to New York from Germany, and in Argentina the Government is attempting to buy back wheat sold to European Governments.

LETTER FROM MRS. WAKELIN

Tells Remarkable Story of Sickness and Recovery.

Toronto, Ont.—"I suffered greatly from weakness, seemed to be tired all the time, and had no ambition to do anything or go any place. My nerves were in bad shape, I could not sleep at night, and then came a breakdown. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and several of my friends advised me to use it, and it surely put new life into me. Now I am quite able to do all my own work, and I would strongly advise every suffering woman to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial."—Mrs. CHARLES WAKELIN, 272 Christie St., Toronto, Ont.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for more than forty years.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

Sugar Industry Is Bound To Bring Great Wealth To Pearl of the Antilles

JAMAICA, the Pearl of the Antilles, is the second oldest colonial possession of the crown. It is situated in the Western Caribbean, in close proximity to Cuba and Haiti. Jamaica, which has as dependencies the Cayman Islands to the northwest, and the Turks and Caicos Islands to the northeast 450 miles distant, is the largest of the British islands in the Caribbean. For centuries the colony has been regarded as one of the most important, if not the most important, outposts of Empire in that quarter; it has certainly increased considerably since the opening of the Panama Canal, not only from a commercial point of view, but also from the strategic side, standing as it does between Europe and America; and, with the canal 500 miles immediately to the south, Jamaica offers special advantages for trade, not only between the points mentioned above, but also to places in the Pacific.

First a Spanish colony, Jamaica in 1665 passed into British hands, the Spaniards surrendering on May 11 of that year to a force of 8,000 troops under Gen. Venables, Admiral Penn and Capt. Butler. Nelson, Rodney, Boscawen, and Hyde-Parker were closely associated with Jamaica. Boscawen is buried in the parish church of Kingston. A statue to Rodney stands in the public square of Spanish Town, the former capital of the island. Nelson passed a portion of his career at Fort Charles, Port Royal, and on the ramparts of the old fort there is still to be seen a slab which serves to remind those who are permitted to visit the spot that "in this house the great Horatio Nelson dwelt; seek to emulate his noble example all who pass this spot in the service of the Empire."

Jamaica is a crown colony. She surrendered her political constitution in 1866, when her finances were in a parlous state. In 1884 there was a "step in advance," it being decided that the people's representatives should be in the majority in the Legislative Council; at the same time power was given the chief executive to bring in additional nominated members which would give the Government the majority, should such a step be necessary. From 1899 until the present time, the Government majority has been maintained. On the elected side there are 14 members, for Jamaica is divided into 14 parishes; on the Government side there are 15 members. On a financial question, however, the issue is decided if nine elected members vote together, for or against. The governor has a Privy Council of six or seven members, the majority being officials; not even one member of the elected side of the Legislative Council is on the Privy Council. An agitation has been started for a new constitution which will give the people a wider measure in the management of the colony's affairs, by establishing a House of Assembly and a Governor-in-Executive Committee.

The entire island of 4,450 square miles is fanned by breezes that come up from the West Caribbean, with a temperature of between 57 and 90 degrees on some of the coastlands to 45 degrees in the mountain sections. A magnificent land-locked harbor at Kingston—one of the seven best in the world—Bogue Islands, off Montego Bay, and Navy Island at Port Antonio, add to the tropical beauty of Jamaica. With an interior famous for foliage of almost every description, and large streams and waterfalls, a scene presents itself to the traveler that is almost unsurpassed in any part of the world.

The island's population of about 900,000 includes several classes—whites, colored, blacks, East Indians, Chinese, and Assyrians. Unfortunately, adverse economic conditions within past years have caused many thousands of the inhabitants to migrate to Central America, Cuba, and North America to earn their livelihood. Thousands of Jamaicans assisted in building the Panama Canal. Thousands are still on the isthmus; others have obtained lands in the interior of Panama and are adding to the wealth of the republic by tilling the soil.

Millions of coconuts are exported annually to Europe and America; with one possible exception (the Republic of Guatemala) Jamaica produces the finest quality bananas in the New World; her luscious oranges and grapefruit are sought after; her spices have made her famous; and in this connection Jamaica is the only place in which pimento of the proper quality is grown; the coffee trade is once more expanding, and the celebrated Blue Mountain grade is bringing record prices; this year the coffee crop should realize £300,000, surpassing all previous figures in the history of the present generation. With the decline in cane years ago, vast tracts of land were brought under banana culture, for which a profitable market obtains in Great Britain and North America.

But with the revival of the sugar industry banana lands in many districts are being used for cane culture. It is no longer a case of the majority of planters putting all their eggs into one basket. Bananas are good in their way, but the future of the colony is bound up with cane, and it is gratifying to note the strides this industry is making. Modern factories are being erected, old mills have in some directions given way to new ones, and sugar, as also its by-product rum, is again becoming the staple industry. Last year Jamaica produced about 50,000 tons of sugar; this year it is hoped that the output will be 80,000 tons, and there is no reason why the output should not exceed 120,000 tons.

BANK JOBS GO BEGGING.

Serious Shortage in Clerks Worrying the Managers.

Think of it, our once-exclusive banks are hanging out cards asking for clerks, just as factories do when they want help. Neat little placards in this connection are hung up near the tellers' cages. Hark to the contents of one of them:

"Employment on the staff of this bank offers an attractive future for young men. We are in a position to place a number of boys with High School education at our different branches throughout Canada."

"For particulars please refer to the manager."

Can't you imagine one of Canada's bygone general managers, pompous of mien, revisiting old haunts and nearly having an apoplectic fit at the sight of such a placard. Advertising for clerks! The very ideal Twenty Years Ago or more such an expedient would never have been dreamed of. Why, there was keen competition to get jobs in banks. In those distant days of Canada's hard times banks had waiting lists just like modern golf clubs, and picked and chose the young men who were to have the privilege of working for them. Applicants for positions approached a manager in humility and awe.

Not only good appearance, but social pull was necessary for admittance to one of the larger institutions. A boy's ancestry loomed larger with some general managers than did his penmanship. A bank job was the goal of most youths whose parents could not afford them a profession. For the post was a sure thing—banks never actually firing their clerks—and promotion, though slow, was regular up to a point, at least. Moreover—alas! that appeal to snobbishness—a bank clerk was some pumpkin socially in the city, and in the country towns he was absolutely IT. But that was twenty years ago.

Junior clerks started their career of finance in those days with as little as $150 a year. To-day bank juniors are hard to get at $600 and $700 a year. And they have adding machines to do the dirty work. Twenty years ago—yes, less than fifteen years ago—branch managers with long service, several clerks under them and heavy responsibility, frequently received per annum no more than street car conductors and motormen are rejecting as insufficient to-day. Ask any senior bank man.

About fifteen years ago the native supply of bank clerks began to peter out in Canada. Better times had come with the opening up of the West, and opportunities offered in the professions and other occupations for young Canadians. The demand for clerks rose simultaneously with the shortage, as new branches were springing up on the prairie overnight, like mushrooms. One or two large banks began importing clerks from Scotland, which has since furnished Canada with hundreds of hard-head bankers.

The outbreak of war made the situation more stringent. Girls, whom banks had mostly employed as stenographers or at work which did not bring them into contact with the public, presently appeared at tasks hitherto considered unsuitable for feminine endurance. To-day they run the big deposit ledgers and in some country offices even that nerve-racking post, the cash, where she might have to use the loaded revolver lying ready at her side to defend the money from robbers. Some girls receive $1,200 and $1,500 a year in banks.

One Canadian bank has opened no less than 200 new branches within the past two years. Two or three of the larger institutions have from 400 to 500 branches each. All of which illustrates the growth of Canadian banking and the opportunities it offers.

One of Four Millions

(A Photograph Direct from the War-Stricken Area)

$1 per Month Preserves the Life of One Child

Millions of war orphans in Central Europe are growing up undernourished and stunted.

Thousands of them are dying of typhus, tuberculosis and small-pox.

There is almost a complete lack of the nourishing foods growing children need, of clothing, of doctors, nurses and medical supplies. The condition of the children is pitiable in the extreme.

Upon this coming generation depends largely whether these nations will be healthy and right-minded or a hot-bed of anarchy and degeneracy—a menace to the world.

It has been found by experience that the cost of caring for a waif child is approximately three dollars per month; that of the supplies that are required by imports about one dollar is needed; and therefore the dollar that we provide, together with the local support of local governments, local municipalities, local charities and local services practically preserves the life of one child.

WORKMEN MUST SPEED UP

Speaking of price reduction which in many cases means that production costs will have to be lowered, and in order to do so and maintain the present standard of wages workmen must speed up. An exchange puts the matter in this way:—"The real secret of wages maintenance is more efficiency. Not a cent need be cut off the weekly earnings of an employee if the workers bring production up to a point where costs are reduced to the new levels required. Labor slacking during the boom period was notorious in some trades. More production per unit betrays more production more business as a whole, and good times for everyone."

HARD-ON MARRIED MEN

In London, Eng., editorial writers and preachers are making public reference to a recent statement by Mrs. Shaw McLaren of the Women's Freedom League that the value of the father in the home is negligible and that he should be thrown out after five years of marriage. "The father's present place," she said, "is one of supremacy, for the law gives him full power over the wife and children. Some people think that the father should be put out of the house altogether after the first five years of married life. He should support it but not interfere with it. His arguments are that he is bad for the children, and that home supremacy, and the sense of supremacy is bad for him. He abuses his supremacy, and the sense of supremacy is not good for his character. If he is a creative genius, he is lost to the world for he settles down." He is bad for the children for they require more delicate handling than he generally gives them. "My own opinion is that we should not 'hoof' him out, but reform him. I reform the whole marriage position." The Daily Telegraph opines that the shibboleth of all modern and intellectual literature is contempt for fathers and mothers. A chivalrous attempt has now been made to save the mother by throwing the father to the wolves.

THE MUNICIPAL VOTERS' LISTS AND THE REFERENDUM

THE VOTE NEXT APRIL. (The Collingwood Bulletin) In many places in Ontario the municipal voters' lists have been prepared without the names of those entitled to be included in part three, to wit, those entitled to vote for Legislative Assembly only. Collingwood is in the number. On first thought it would appear that those whose names are omitted would be deprived of a vote on the referendum in April next or in case of a general by-election for the Provincial Legislature. This, however, is not the fact, according to information furnished a committee of the temperance workers in Carleton Place by Mr. J. H. Stewart M.P., who wrote: "As I understand the law governing those who will have the right to vote upon the referendum to be taken in the Province of Ontario under the Canada Temperance Act, there will be an opportunity for registration by those electors entitled to vote in the urban municipalities. In the rural municipalities there will not be any registration, but upon the day of the voting any resident of the municipality, who would, under the provisions of the law, be entitled to be entered on the voters' list if a revision were being held, will be entitled to vote if vouched for by some duly qualified elector in the polling sub-division. This makes it perfectly clear that the present state of the law does not affect the real issue. In the towns the revision will take place before the County Judge or whoever may be appointed to assist him. The provision for the rural municipality is very much broader than that for the towns and on the day of voting a person who would otherwise be entitled to vote will have an opportunity to do so if he or she is vouched for by some elector in the polling sub-division. The omission of the name is due to the fact that the legislation which was passed at the last session did not come into effect until June 3rd, by which time many of the lists had been prepared and printed."

COWAN-STEWART

A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Stewart, 157 Walnut street, at 2.30 Saturday afternoon, Oct. 23rd, when his sister, Katherine Isabel Stewart, was united in marriage to William E. Cowan, of Deloraine, Man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Rupert Stewart in the presence of the immediate relatives. The bride, who was given away by her brother, wore a smart suit of grey duvety with a cream georgette blouse and a hat of Copenhagen-blue with touches of silver. She wore a corsage bouquet of Ophelia roses. After a short honeymoon in the south Mr. and Mrs. Cowan will take up their residence in Deloraine. Winnipeg Free Press.

MORE FARM OWNERS.

Conditions Have Changed In Province of Ontario.

One reason for the increase in the shortage of hired labor for the farms is the increase in the number of farm owners, and though this feature may result in a decrease in production of foodstuffs for distribution this year, the outcome within the next few years should be a vast improvement of the present condition. In the past, where productive acres have fallen into the hands of a comparative few, production has been retarded, and though it must be admitted that the farmer can, on the average, operate to his own best advantage on a fair-sized place, it is essential that he have help in order to do so. If he can't secure the help in any case, it is better that the land should be divided among a large number of small holders than that it should lie idle in the hands of large owners.

For the promise of a dividing up of much of the land now held in large quantities by individuals, we may thank conditions that have gone to raise land values and at the same time place many in positions to purchase who were never before in such position, and might have gone land hungry for the rest of their lives, but for the opportunities arising out of war conditions. Up to Benjamin Franklin's time, there may never have been a good war. It would be wrong to say that the past war was a good one, but it is certain that there are many good results of it; and the increase in farm ownership is probably one of the best. The most pleasing feature of this particular result is that native Canadians will, in large measure, become the owners of land in Canada.

It is stated that the population of the Province of Ontario is less at present than it was the year previous to the war, and the shortage of houses in the cities shows that the city population has increased. But, is this increase in the cities due to an influx of former farm owners? Many farms are changing hands this summer and this would seem to indicate that the original owners are giving up farm life and these men are in great part moving to the cities, the chief addition to the city population is doubtless due to the number of farm hands who have left the farms in the hope of securing higher wages. That the farms are changing hands may not be a bad indication after all; it is not as though they were abandoned. A Toronto law student, who spends most of his time in searching titles, said the other day that the greater number of the farms in one township of York county had been sold this year but the purchasers were mostly men who had had previous farm experience. Probably the new owners will be better able to entice labor to their farms than were the former owners, their enthusiasm will perhaps make up for any lack of experience they have to labor under, and a new broom sweeps clean "anyhow."

Co-operation among farmers has of late years gotten away from the form of co-operation for production that existed in the early days, and has taken the form of co-operation for the marketing of products. When the new movement started it was sorely needed, and even now, with prices of farm products such as to allow any farmer a profit, the system is an advantage to both producer and consumer. What is more needed however for the benefit of all, is a return to the old-time practice of helping one's neighbor in the actual farm work. It is quite likely that the new farm-owners will give more attention to this matter than did their predecessors.

When Rule of Road Changes.

When at a date yet to be indicated by the Lieutenant-Governor of the province, British Columbia falls in line with the rest of the American continent and changes its rules of the road from left to right, one of the largest and most intricate feats of engineering in the history of street railway operation in Canada will confront the British Columbia Electric Railway Co., costing anywhere from $500,000 to $1,000,000. Large crews of men will have to work at least 150 days in Vancouver, probably somewhat less in Victoria where the problems are not so involved.

All cars, with the exception of the interurban are built to conform with the "keep to the left" rule, and to change the rule of the road does not simply mean turning the cars around and running them on the other track. Many replacements must be made. All switches must be taken up, and new ones installed, but perhaps the most delicate operation involved will be the rectifying ofrolley wires, which do not follow the natural curve of the car around the track, but are adjusted to the swing of the car. As the result of the change a large influx of automobile tourists, eager to view the splendors of the Sunset Province, and undeterred by fear of accident, is expected.

This is a new feature of the Guide-Advocate—a corner devoted to the doings of our rapidly growing manufacturing industry and its people.

The new factory buildings at the Wire Works are now being roofed. Mr. J. E. Fowler is in charge of laying the double roofing and is laying it so well that it will surely last for many years.

Miss Nettie Spalding has not been able to be at her work for several days on account of the illness of her mother.

The new steam boiler for heating the factory will be set in place this week.

Mr. Nelson Hood is spending a fortnight as a guest of the Wire Goods Co., Worcester, Mass., observing the workings of the Taylor system of management which has been in use in this and several other American factories for some time. The Andrews Wire Works prides itself on being among the first in Canada to adopt this very efficient system.

In spite of the sharp November winds, Messrs. Marwick and Stanger have made excellent progress with the smoke-stack for the new heating plant and have it nearly finished. It will be 78 feet over all when complete and large enough so that additional boilers up to 100 horsepower may be added as the growth of the industry demands.

"A woman can't learn to throw a baseball straight," remarked Mr. Rafferty as he passed to observe some athletic practice. "No," replied Dolan, "no more than she can a flat iron or a stove lid or a rollin' pin, and isn't it a wise provision of Nature." It's evident that neither Rafferty or Dolan ever witnessed the Androck girls' baseball team in action.

Our New Linotype and Commercial Printing

WHEN we installed our new Linotype—or typesetting machine—a few months ago, we intended it mainly to assist us in giving our subscribers a first-class news service. Many of them have already congratulated us on the better appearance of The Guide-Advocate news pages. We have also found it a great help to the advertiser, assuring him of clean-cut, new type continually in his advertising—type that is made to read.

But our biggest surprise and satisfaction comes from the discovery that this wonderful machine will cast type for Commercial Printing just as easily as setting news for the news columns. We have discovered that practically ninety per cent. of the type we require for any kind of printing can be set and cast new. This simply means new type for every job, giving that fine, clean-cut appearance to all our work which only new type can give.

We would advise you to remember this when you require any printed matter.

A host of friends join in extending congratulations and wish the young couple every happiness in their new sphere of life. Morgan were united in marriage by the Rev. W. M. Shore, in the presence of about fifty relatives and immediate neighbors. The bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march played by her cousin, Miss Evelyn James, and took her place under an arch of evergreens beside the waiting groom. The bride was becomingly dressed in white silk crepe-de-chene with pearl trimmings. During the congratulations Miss Alma, sister of the bride, played very sweetly, "Blest be the tie that binds." After signing the register the company sat down to a well-prepared dinner. The bride wore a traveling suit of navy blue serge with black furs and hat to match. The happy couple left for a short honeymoon amid showers of confetti and good wishes and on their return will reside on the groom's farm in Warwick. The presents were numerous and costly. All join in wishing the happy young couple much prosperity in their new home.

THE GREAT MOMENT

By A. MARIA CRAWFORD

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

He had just asked her to marry him, but even when he took her in his arms and kissed her gently, as a brother might have done, Milly felt that she was being cheated of her birthright. For it is the sum and substance of every girl's life to love and to be loved, and Milly knew instinctively, as it is always given to girls to know, that while Dick Carter passively held her there in his arms he was thinking of Juanita Estes and of what a joy he would have experienced in possessing her. But Juanita had wantonly jilted him six months before.

Since the days when she was hailed by boisterous schoolmates as "Freckle Face" because of the fine dusting of brown flecks across the bridge of her pretty nose, Milly had loved Dick, and because of that love of ten years' growth she had felt a comforting sense of possibility when she heard the welcome news of his jilting by the proud, cold beauty, Juanita. With no compunction of conscience, Milly had set herself the happy task of comforting him and now he had asked her to marry him, but Milly did not feel the wild elation of heart and spirit that she had so hopefully anticipated. After all, she reflected, as she stood there, her cheek resting lightly against his regularly beating heart, she had gambled with the odds against her and she had won him, but she had lost the thrill of that great moment in every girl's life when the heat of a man's passion kindles the fire of her own. Suddenly she remembered old Grandma Winston's eagerly proffered advice, "Two people never love each other in the same degree. It's safer to marry a man who loves you better than you love him."

"You are going to marry me, Milly, dear, aren't you?" questioned Dick in that rich, throaty voice of his to which the cords of her heart had always responded like the strings of a musical instrument to the hands of a master.

"Oh, yes, Dick, you know that I will. I have always loved you," she answered without a moment's hesitation. Then she was hurt, humiliated over her confession, for Dick had not said that he loved her. He had merely told her that she was the very finest girl he knew and that it would make him very happy indeed if she would marry him.

But he held her a little closer at that and a flush crept over his face. "I don't deserve you, Milly," he said thickly, "but I am going to try mighty hard to make you happy."
 And Milly, with age-old wisdom, out of the mother heart of every woman who loves truly and is therefore forgetful of self, slipped her arms around his shoulders in utter abandonment of pride to help him through what she felt was a trying situation. He was giving her the best that could offer. Fate had cheated him just as it was cheating her, and more than anything else in the world, she wanted her love for him to help him, to comfort him, to make him forget the girl who had held the priceless boon of his love so lightly.

"What kind of a ring do you want, dear?" he asked then. "I want you to have it before the dance tomorrow night, if," he smiled down at her whimsically, "if you will do me the honor to wear it then."
 "I'll love to wear it, Dick. I want a solitaire, if that suits you. A gold band, but the stone mounted in platinum," she answered directly.

"You're so sensible, Milly. You're going to make me a wonderful wife." She knew why he wanted her to have the ring before the next night. Juanita would be there, home from a six-months' visit in New York, where she had promptly taken herself after jilting Dick.

Milly had always been much more economical than she really needed to be, and when her mother chided her about her lack of interest in new clothes, the girl had always told her that she was going to be an old maid and that her parents would have to support her as long as she lived. It was not like having a daughter who would soon be married and off their hands for life, she said.

Her mother, of course, was thrilled over her engagement. She was beginning to fear that Milly would indeed be an old maid, which state of affairs invariably seems to hurt the mother more than the daughter. It is a sort of shock to their own pride to feel that they have produced something which no man wants. Milly's mother was delighted when, the next morning at breakfast, the girl expressed a desire for a new evening dress. "Something nice, mather, and a hat. No homely girl can dress up as suddenly appear to be a ravishing beauty, but fine feathers make fine birds, and a masseuse, hairdresser and really gifted buyer for a ready-to-wear shop certainly did do wonders to Milly on that momentous day. Dick actually blinked his eyes a bit as he stood at the foot of the stairway and watched her walk slowly down. She wore an apple-green tulle dress with a long floating veil caught at the shoulders and worn like a court train. Her yellow hair was held high on her head by a man-shaped Spanish comb, and a string of lustrous pearls circled her slim throat. Dick folded the heavy green velvet wrap with its short cape of ermine around her and then caught her close to him with arms that trembled a little. Happiness lighted her eyes and curved her smiling lips.

"You're beautiful, Milly," he said, and then added, unsteadily, "and you're mine. You make me think of spring, eternal spring, and apple trees in bloom."

She had made a good beginning, Milly thought, as he slipped his arm back of her in the automobile and bending toward her, whispered, "Let's go home a little early. I'd like you all to myself for a while."

But her period of happiness was doomed to be short. Juanita was already in the ballroom, regal, superb in sheathlike white satin, and from the time Dick entered the room everybody there was instantly aware of the astonishing fact that Juanita had evidently changed her mind again and that she not only openly wanted Dick, but that she had also decided to take him. That it would not be an effortless task was a foregone conclusion, for everybody knew that Dick had adored her and that he had been crushed when she had jilted him.

Milly was instantly surrounded, for men naturally gravitate toward beauty as flowers grow toward the sun, but she was not so entirely surrounded that she did not hear Juanita's soft voice murmur to Dick: "Dick, dear, I've missed you terribly. See, I've saved half of my dances for you."

In the ear turned a little toward the two Milly heard Dick say: "Well, you're mighty kind, but I'm fully up, all but one," and Dick's voice was reassuringly steady. There was not a hint of regret in it.

Even when the news of their engagement spread like a little running forest fire in the dead leaves of small talk, Juanita still angled for Dick. Milly's heart under the soft green tulle was as heavy as lead. She was just a dog in the manger. She could never make Dick happy, and she was keeping him from Juanita, who could crown his life with joy. Behind some palms that screened them from the ballroom where they were sitting out a dance, Milly turned to Dick and, stripping off her shining new engagement ring, said heroically: "Dick, you've always loved Juanita. I want you to be happy. Nothing else matters to me."

She was wholly unprepared for what followed, for Dick seized her in arms that appeared to have been hungering for her for untold ages. He kissed her with a passion that kindled the fire of her own. His heart pounded like the heavy waves of an angry sea. "Oh, Milly, girl," he said brokenly, "I love you—more than I ever loved anybody before. I never dreamed that there could be a girl in the world for me like you, so beautiful, so sweet, so unselfish. I think that I have been in love with you ever since I called you 'Freckle Face.' Remember, sweetheart? I feel a blissful contentment with you that I never before experienced. You're my girl. You're going to be my own dear little wife. When, Milly, dear? Don't put me off! I found out today that I could buy the Henderson place, way up there on the hill, if you like it, dear. Home there—with you waiting for me—When, Milly? I love you so. When?"

He was not to be denied. "Soon, Dick, if you really want me," she said happily, but there were tears in her eyes when he leaned down to kiss the sparkling ring on her finger and the little pink palm that fluttered in his hand like a homing bird.

Life had not cheated them out of the thrill of their great moment after all.

A Prime Dressing for Wounds.—In some factories and workshops carbolic acid is kept for use in cauterizing wounds and cuts sustained by the workmen. Far better to keep on hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It is just as quick in action and does not scar the skin or burn the flesh.

IS "SPRINTER" AMONG BIRDS

Australian Emu Unable to Fly but Gets Over the Ground With Remarkable Speed.

"The emu is a large bird, half the size of an ostrich," says Lee S. Crandall, curator of birds in the New York zoological park, writing of "The Troubles of Father Emu" in Boys' Life. "It is found only in Australia, where there is also a closely related bird—the cassowary. The wings are rudimentary, so that the bird is unable to fly. But it does not suffer from this lack, for its strong legs enable it to run with great speed and agility. In fact, the emu is hard to catch and a dangerous opponent when cornered, for it is as elusive as an eel and can kick with tremendous force. When engaged in combat it leaps high in the air, and launches a triphammer blow strong enough to send a heavy man head over heels.

"The feathers are loose and hair-like, with much the same consistency as dried seaweed. Each feather appears to be double, for the after shaft, a small feather which accompanies the main feather in some birds, here reaches an unusual size. In spite of its apparent inefficiency, however, the plumage is quite waterproof, and the emu can endure almost unlimited amounts of rain, snow and cold without discomfort.

"The voice of the emu is a resonant boom. In the male it is a rapid, comparatively light tattoo. The female possesses a large air sac, which hangs down below the chest, and with this she makes, at short intervals, a sound like the beating of a drum. These notes, with variations, are used for all vocal purposes, including courtship. In the emu, advanced creature that it is, the female makes the advance and it is then that her ventriloquial throbs are heard at their best."

ZUNI INDIANS FLEET-FOOTED
 Remarkable Racing Tournament in Which Runners Usually Defeat Mounted Competitors.

The Zuni Indians of Northwestern New Mexico occasionally hold a racing tournament in which a number of the fleetest runners of the tribe contest for prizes to be given those who first complete on foot a circuit fully 25 miles in length, after a week of severe preparatory practice. The contestants are compelled to kick a small stick the entire distance of the race. Sometimes they bare the right foot and grasp the stick between their toes so that in taking a step they can fling it a surprising distance in front of them as they run.

The rule of the race is that this stick is never to be touched by any part of the body other than the foot. The contestants may get into severe difficulties when the nomadic piece of wood happens to fall into the midst of one of the large thorny clumps of cacti which abounds in that country, or if the river has to be crossed in the race. So extraordinary are the endurance and speed of these runners that they often cover the entire 25 miles in a little more than two hours. Sometimes Indians mounted on swift ponies enter the race against the foot runners. At the end of ten miles the horses begin to show signs of fatigue, and when 15 or 20 miles have been traveled they have often to be withdrawn from the race. The foot runners are almost always able to win the race over their mounted competitors, and seem to suffer no serious effects from the great muscular strain to which they have been subjected.

Annoying Both Ways.
 Miss Elsie De Wolfe said at the club:

"Servants—and not necessarily good servants—now get $15 a week, and at that they are hard to find."

"A young girl about to marry said to a middle-aged matron the other day: 'I suppose housekeeping has its annoyances?'"

"'It certainly has!' the matron answered. 'You've either got a servant or you haven't.'"

Its Natural End.
 There is one occupation which no matter how well a man succeeds in it is bound in the end to go down hill.

"What's that?"
 "Mountain climbing."

What are Peps

Peps provide a new treatment for coughs, colds and lung troubles. They are little tablets made up from Pine extracts and medicinal essences. When put into the mouth, these medicinal ingredients turn into healing vapors, which are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes. The Peps treatment is direct. Swallowing cough mixtures into the stomach, to cure ailments and disorders in throat and lungs, is indirect. Peps are revolutionizing the treatment of colds and their price is within the reach of all. All dealers, 50c. box. Send 1c. stamp for FREE TRIAL PACKAGE.

Nature's Mirror

When a woman is well and healthy—there's a sparkle in her eyes, a roe tint in her cheeks, and she has rich red blood. After taking Nature's Tonic which Dr. Pierce called "Favorite Prescription," there's elasticity in every movement and a spring in her step. Love comes to every woman who has bounding health—but when she is pallid, dull eyed, languid, she has no magnetism nor does she appeal to any man.

SAVED A LIFE
 Elmira, Ont.:—"I have a very kind feeling for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for it once saved my mother's life. When going through middle age her health failed very fast, she suffered with pain in her head and backache, in fact, she had pains all through her body. She lost weight, was very nervous, would become dizzy and at times faint and fall wherever she chanced to be. This necessitated our watching her all the time, we dared not leave her alone. She was as miserable as one could be and live. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was recommended to her. She took six bottles and was completely restored to good health."—MRS. B. E. Facts About the Barbados

BARBADOS lies on the eastern edge of the Caribbean Sea. It is with pride that a Barbadian will tell you that since his coral island home became a British possession many years after it had been discovered by Portuguese mariners—who simply named it Los Barbados and passed by, evidently not being impressed with the low-lying land—it has remained British.

In many respects Barbados occupies a unique position. Within her borders, 166 square miles, there are at least 200,000 persons, which makes the island one of the most thickly populated places in the world; the development of industries is carried out on the most scientific lines possible; the system of taxation is scientific—the means, and not the necessities, of life being taxed; in the matter of experiments in the production of the best kind of sugar cane she is without a rival.

The Barbadian is a traveler; he is an observer; and despite the fact that the struggle for existence among the peasant class must of necessity be keen, it is safe to say that there is no more contented lot of people in the West Indies than the natives of Barbados. Doubtless the spirit of self-determination to work out the colony's salvation has been fostered by the privilege she has enjoyed since the Union Jack was hoisted there in 1606. She has adhered steadfastly to Representative Government, and she has done well. Many of the early settlers were men and women of high literary attainments, who brought with them aspirations that helped to make Britain great, and in Barbados they planted seeds which have produced a people who are known for their industry, intelligence, and community of interests. She possesses a House of Assembly, to which each of the 11 or 12 electoral districts sends two representatives. There is a Legislative Council which is to the Barbadian what the House of Lords is to the man in the Homeland. Then there is a Governor-in-Executive Committee, with an equal number of the people's representatives and officials, to advise the chief executive in the preparation of estimates. Barbados has her Speaker in the House of Assembly, and Mace Bearer.

Barbados is essentially an agricultural centre. In the production of foodstuffs, canes, and cotton, she is ahead of any area of her size in the West Indies. Every square yard of close upon 80,000 acres of land available for agriculture is cultivated. There are upwards of 400 sugar estates; the majority of them are, it is true, very small, but in her worst year Barbados has been able to produce not less than 50,000 tons of sugar, besides molasses and rum. Barbados has for more than twenty years been the headquarters of the Imperial Department of Agriculture in the West Indies—an institution which came into being when the Caribbean Islands were passing through a period of economic depression through the gradual decline of cane sugar, the mainstay of every island of the group. Barbados was the first place in which a variety of sugar cane which gives 45 tons to the acre was propagated, as against 23 tons obtained elsewhere by other varieties. To-day Barbados seedling canes are being cultivated in the other colonies. Barbados was many years ago the home of cotton production, but it was abandoned, to be revived, however, thanks to the efforts of the Government, the Imperial Department of Agriculture, and the Cotton Growers' Association of Manchester. To-day cotton is produced and ginned in the island. When the colony was passing through a period of industrial stagnation, the Imperial Government, in addition to establishing the headquarters of the newly-created Department of Agriculture in the West Indies there, made a grant of £80,000 to the Government to assist agriculture. This amount was used to form the nucleus of an agricultural bank, from which advances are made to planters.

The colony is known for its yams, potatoes, and other articles of foodstuffs. Thousands of her sons migrated to Panama during the construction of the canal; in fact, Barbadians are to be found in almost every quarter of the globe; but the Government has so conserved the interests of the people that very few persons from other lands are seen there. Chinese or Assyrians are not permitted to land to engage in business, as is the case with Jamaica or British Guiana; East Indian laborers are not to be found on the sugar plantations. It is the Barbadian first and last.

Barbados is regarded as a good field for petroleum. An English company is there prospecting for oil. A railway service is operated by the Government, and the mule car service of Bridgetown is about to give way to electric trams. Barbados was the first West Indian colony to produce a newspaper, the first to appoint trading agents in England; she was one of the first colonies of the group to signify her intention of entering into a reciprocity treaty with Canada, by which she has been able to find a steady market for her sugar, molasses, and other produce. Barbados is anxious for improved shipping facilities with Canada and the Mother Country, and also better arrangements to supply ships with water and fuel at Carlisle Bay—her only shipping port. And the people are in favor of a Federated West Indies.—London Times.

The first air-brake patent was taken out by Westinghouse in 1872.

Body Heat.

The immediate nearness of a large and robust person at the theatre or in a street car on a hot summer day may be a cause of discomfort by reason of the amount of heat given off by his or her body.

Such radiation from the human body is so considerable that, as proved by recent experiments, the presence of a man can be detected in the dark, with the help of suitable apparatus, at a distance of 600 feet.

Apparatus of the kind—consisting of a concave mirror to focus the heat rays, a "thermopile" and a galvanometer—proved very useful during the war. If a man crossed the range of the instrument the latter instantly perceived the fact. Even the lifting of a head out of a hole in the ground was registered.

Taken From His Sock.

A humorous story comes from the country districts where an automobile salesman had one of the biggest surprises of his life when an Italian farmer, who had ordered a car, made an old-fashioned specie payment and all in silver coin. The salesman was asked to "wait a minute" for his money. After an hour and a half he was summoned to the back yard where the farmer had laid out the price of the car on two tables. The coins were all quarters, halves and dollars, piled $10 in a stack. When the salesman undertook to check up he quickly understood why he had been left sitting on the front doorstep so long. It took him another hour and a half to make sure that he hadn't been overpaid.

The Strike Leaders.

Men convicted at the recent trials in connection with the big Winnipeg strike are employed in congenial work at the prison farm, according to a report made by Robert Ringland, secretary of the Dominion Labor Party, at a meeting of the party. William Ivens, former preacher, is head gardener; R. E. Bray, former butcher, is head poultry man; George Armstrong, carpenter by trade, is supervising the building of hen coops. W. A. Pritchard and R. J. Johns are working in the fields as farmers. Aid. John Queen is wielding a sledge in the construction of fences.
