COMPULSORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

The School Board of Bridgetown has already taken measures to carry out the requirements of the law respecting the compulsory attendance at school of all the children of school age in the town. But, in order to a more careful observance of the law as amended, they have ordered the Trustee officer to furnish a new list of all the children of the town between the ages of six and sixteen years, specifying the names of the parents and the age of each child. This list will be compared with the school rolls, and the parents will be asked to show cause why any child of the ages mentioned, whose name is not on the school register, does not attend school. The law as amended requires that every teacher shall inform the Principal of the School of the name of every child who is absent for five consecutive days, without a satisfactory reason, and the Principal must report such cases to the Secretary of the School Board, in order that inquiry may be made. Any person who refuses to give the name and address of every child living with him, or gives a false name or age, or willfully gives false statements, is liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars, or in default of payment, imprisonment for a period not exceeding twenty days, and the same penalty is incurred in the case of a child kept from school for five consecutive days without sufficient reason.

THE WAR POSTAL SERVICE

When the mother or sister takes a letter or parcel to the local office to be forwarded to the son or the brother in the army, she has little idea of all that is involved in the carrying of that letter or parcel to its destination. In the first place it was found that it was impossible for the London Post Office to take upon itself this additional burden created by the war. A new building was necessary as well as a new army of clerks. The building was erected in Regent's Park, covering one hundred and fifty thousand square feet, and is now being enlarged by the addition of fifty thousand square feet. Supposing it to be a square building, any school boy or school girl can tell how long each of the four sides must be. It is divided internally into great apartments, one of which is labeled Austria, another New Zealand, another Canada, and so on, as letters and parcels come from and go to all the places where the various units are located. And as the locations of these units are continually subject to change, and a letter or parcel sent to a man at one address might not meet him there, telegraphic communication must be continually kept up so that the proper designation in each case may be secured. The number of letters passing through this military Post Office is enormous. But, the number of parcels is very much larger, the average, dispatched daily being two hundred thousand. Night and day the work goes on unceasingly, employing more than six hundred men, and a large number of girls. One hundred War Office horses besides Post Office vans are on constant duty. As the letters and parcels are received at the various apartments referred to, they are first sorted as to their general designation, and then as to the special designation, and all that the final distributors know is that bags labelled with a certain color go to one station, and those with another color go to another station, whence they are dispatched by other agents to the proper centre. There are several other departments in this great building, to which many letters and parcels are sent. One is labelled with the one word "Hind". When addresses are insufficient or obliterated, or uncertain, they are sent here, and every effort is made to find the need supplied. Another is the packing department. As many as three thousand parcels are sent to this department every day. Sometimes the paper wrapping is poor, sometimes the box is broken, being too fragile for its long journey, and sometimes the contents are missing, having fallen out in the handling. Still another department receives letters and parcels which have been sent to Oporto or Saloniki, or France or elsewhere, but are returned, because the men for whom they were intended lie in soldiers' graves. A London Baptist clergyman who made a careful investigation of the work of this Military Post Office says, "As I realize the magnitude of all this work, and the wonderful efficiency with which it is conducted, it seems to be a duty to let the public know how great is its debt to the men who are keeping open so completely communication between the men at the front and their friends at home."

Advertising is the mighty engine of trade—it has come to stay.

It is no longer a half-million game—it is considered today a safe, sure and sound investment.

Merchants that retire from business because they didn't find it profitable usually are found to be non-advertisers.

This is an advertising age—life and sustenance of business demand it.

Modern competition is sharp, keen and pitiless and there is practically no way to stem the tide except by persistent advertising.

Twentieth Century ideas and methods must be in vogue in a live establishment if they wish to march triumphantly.

Closer business relations between Russia and Canada seem to be a certain outcome of the present struggle.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER CONTAINS NO ALUM

POULTRY PRODUCE MORE EGGS

(By F. C. Elford, Dominion Poultry Husbandman)

Canada wants eggs and more eggs. Never were the prospects for a bigger demand and better prices more promising than right now.

In spite of this, with the cost of grain high and the prices for poultry meat good, the tendency will be for farmers and poultrymen to sell stock that should produce the high-priced eggs this winter. The fear is that eggs cannot be produced at a profit, but, though a good price can be obtained for the meat to present and high prices will have to be paid for the feed, eggs will be correspondingly high, and eggs can be produced at a profit even with the high prices of grain if proper conditions are supplied.

Last winter at the Experimental Farm a pen of 100 pullets whose per cent egg yield by months ranged from 5% in November to 50% in April, an average of 27% for the six months, produced eggs at a cost of 24c per dozen. The percentage of egg yield determines more than anything else the cost of production, for instance, when the egg yield was 20% the cost was 21c per dozen, and at 40% yield the cost was only 19c per dozen.

This pen was selected as it was thought to be equal in production to an average farm flock. The average

Each bird of the heavy varieties and four to the lighter or Leghorn type. If there are too many pullets for the available space call out the poorer ones. Fifty pullets with sufficient accommodation will give more eggs than sixty in crowded quarters.

Feeding The question of feed is the hardest one to solve this year because practically all feeds are high. It will pay to feed the pullets well from the start, though the hens might be fed more lightly till the middle of January. Where possible, use feeds grown on the farm. Good wheat screenings, shrunken wheat, barley, oats, or buckwheat, all make suitable feed. Clover and milk curd are also good. If these can be had, animal foods such as beefscrap, fish meal, or fish heads, and high-priced mash can be eliminated and cheaper ground feeds such as bran substituted. Two or more of the grains may be mixed in equal proportions for the grain ration. The mash may consist of ground barley and oats, or bran may be added. If grain has to be purchased cracked corn is as cheap as anything and makes a suitable addition to any grain ration. Bran is as cheap a food as one can buy for his mash.

The mash can be fed dry in a hopper or mixed with milk and fed moist once a day. Any table scraps should be used in the mash. If milk is not available, leaf scum or other animal food should be fed in the mash. In a good heavy litter, feed a mixture of the grain ration morning and night, allowing the hens sufficient grain so that they will always have some in the litter, but not so much that they can get a crop full without scratching for it. In the Prairie Provinces, there is considerable shrunken wheat available. Shrunken wheat if it is dry is as good a poultry food as wheat fit for milling purposes. Care must be taken that it is not damp or otherwise spoiled. Shrunken wheat alone, if there is no other grain, will answer for the grain feed. For the mash use bran, middlings or chopped oats. Elevator screenings, free from black, seeds, make a good feed for either grain mash. If alfalfa or clover can be had, by all means give the leaves to the hens. In Central Canada, Ontario, and Quebec, grain is scarce and it is likely some will have to be purchased. If there is feed wheat from the west available, it should be used. Cracked corn may be purchased and other farm grains which may be on hand or purchased locally such as barley and buckwheat, might be used. Bran can be used in mash feed and the good crop of clover in Ontario and Quebec will do much to cut down the cost of the ration. The clover may be fed dry or stemmed and used in a mash.

In the Maritime Provinces where grain is usually purchased for the poultry, the same advice may be given as that for central Canada not forgetting the clover and milk. If small potatoes can be had for poultry feed they may be boiled and fed in the mash.

In every case, grit and shell should be before the layers at all times. In some localities the grit can be secured from the local gravel pit and in other cases sufficient lime can be secured to do without the commercial grit. If neither of these is available they should be procured and as much given to the birds as they will eat.

It does not pay to start the layers if they do not get the feed they will not lay the eggs. As a rule, a laying hen will not get too fat. Therefore feed the pullets well. If green cut bone is available and there is no milk, the former may be fed to the pullets at the rate of about half an ounce each per day. The proportion of grain and mash usually eaten is from two to four of grain to one of mash.
