THE MIDNIGHT GUEST. (Continued.) "Oh, that is an easy matter," Berti said. "I had the privilege of seeing Countess this evening; but she does not call herself Countess now. She is Mrs. Louis Delahay."

"Enigma," he said, "the woman seemed to be without feeling altogether, from the time that I arrested her until her final acquittal. I never knew her to display any feeling at all. Even when I had to announce to her that she was at liberty, she gave no sign of pleasure or thankfulness. It was like some people you see who are deeply addicted to the drug habit. I have seen her executed by a mob of excited people, and taking no more notice of them than if she were dead. Yes; she was a most extraordinary woman."

"That is distinctly a point in your favor," he said. "I confess that the fact that both ladies possessed the same maiden name comes as a shock to me. And yet, even now, I can't altogether abandon the idea that this is nothing more than a coincidence. But, tell me what opinion did you form of Countess Flavia's character?"

"The Italian smiled and shrugged his shoulders. "Enigma," he said, "the woman seemed to be without feeling altogether, from the time that I arrested her until her final acquittal. A RIGHT-ABOUT-FACE

The changed attitude of the Liberal party in Canada in regard to the franchise, as shown by its present attitude contrasted with that of 1885, when the franchise act was before the commons, is shown by the Vernon, B.C., News, by a judicious use of parallel columns. Commenting on the News says: "At one time it was considered a cardinal principle of the Liberal party that provincial rights never should be allowed to be made subservient to the federal powers."

BETTER TIMES AHEAD

There are signs of improved business conditions in the United States. Perhaps the following statement by the New York American is rather optimistic, but it shows at least that the tide has turned. We quote: "The country is waking up. Mills and factories that have been idle for months are again humming and whirring with activity. Trade is improving. New York merchants are reinstating employees they were forced to dismiss with last fall because of the hurry in Wall street. The same is true in other cities. In Chicago commercial men are preparing for a prosperous season. Soon the wheat fields will turn brown. It will take an army of men to harvest the crop. In the northwest and in the great manufacturing centres of the east there has been a revival of activity. Many chimneys that were long dormant are now sending up their former volumes of smoke. Orders roll in. There is money in the banks, and the spectre of family distress is banished. There is money in the banks, and the spectre of family distress is banished. There is money in the banks, and the spectre of family distress is banished."

THE DEADLOCK

Although the Liberal press declares that the obstructive tactics of the opposition at Ottawa make great campaign material and provide the government with much capital for use in the federal elections, yet it is a curious fact that there is a hollow note in the sound of rejoicing and that the alleged folly of government opponents is received with wrath rather than blessing.

THREW CARBOLIC ACID IN INSTRUCTOR'S FACE

Toronto Woman Assaults Physical Instructor of a Well Known Athletic Club. Toronto, June 2.—An attempt to main Edward Chandler, physical instructor of St. Charles Athletic Club, took place on Lee avenue about 6 o'clock last night, as a result of which he may lose his eyesight. Chandler's assailant is described as a woman about 28 years old, tall and dressed in dark clothes. She is a resident of the West End, married and the mother of two children. The attack was made upon Chandler with a bottle of carbolic acid. As he passed her on the street she spoke to him and as he stopped to reply she threw the contents of the bottle in his face and got away.

position at Ottawa anything it pleases. The point for the people of Canada is whether the Aylesworth election bill does or does not violate their right to a free and pure election. "The bill has a double purpose and for one of them no defence of any account has been offered. It is a proposed curia in coming from a so-called Reform party to legalize ballot papers which, in addition to the gross necessary for voting, carry other markings by which the identity of the electors to whom they are issued may be ascertained. This is a grossly improper infringement of the secret ballot whose inviolability beyond doubt the great majority of the electors of Canada desire to have maintained. Knowing this determination, the Ottawa opposition would be indeed recreant to democratic and constitutional principle if it failed to oppose the proposal to the uttermost of its ability. There can and should be no surrender on a vital matter of this nature upon which the majority has no mandate from the people, who are the real rulers of a self-governing nation. And the issue that will go to the people is not wanton obstruction, but the maintenance in its integrity of the secret ballot. "The other purpose of the minister of justice wants to achieve is to have the federal voting lists for Manitoba and British Columbia compiled by federal officials. It is alleged that the provincial officials in support of the charge, and in Manitoba the supervision of the lists is by statute committed to the judiciary. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has himself admitted the strength of the opposition arguments by suggesting that the adjustment of the lists should be made judicially. But the Manitoba Liberal leaders want the bill as it stands and their refusal to sanction a compromise that would secure impartiality in the preparation of the lists is of evil omen, more especially when coupled with the attack on the secrecy of the ballot. No honest and fair-minded elector, whatever his party affiliations, can blame the opposition for its strenuous resistance to this dangerous and unjustifiable bill, but he will blame Sir Wilfrid Laurier for weakly sacrificing the first essentials of the commonwealth to partisan expediency for the means of exercising electoral control."

THE PULPWOOD DUTY

The Ottawa Citizen takes very strong ground in favor of an export duty on pulpwood. It holds that the investigation into the operation of the alleged paper trust in the United States reveals clearly the dependence of that country upon Canada for its future paper supply, and adds: "Why this country has not already put an export duty on pulp and pulpwood is a mystery. There is no satisfactory reason given why no action has been taken in this direction, action which would be fraught with splendid advantages for this country in giving us not only a monopoly of the raw material but practically a monopoly of its manufacture in America. It would become one of the greatest industries in the Dominion. Instead of bringing this about, Canada supinely allows her stores of pulpwood to be depleted in order to maintain great industries employing thousands of workmen and millions of capital all for the benefit of a foreign country. If the circumstances were reversed the United States would not hesitate a moment. In Europe, Norway and Finland enjoy the same relations to other countries in the matter of pulpwood supply that Canada does to the United States. A few years ago Norway was regarded that the heavy exportation of pulpwood would sooner or later deplete its natural resources, therefore in 1904 it placed an export duty of 25 cents per cord on pulpwood and it is now proposed to increase the duty to $1.20 a cord, so as to make it practically prohibitive. And Finland, the chief source of supply for Germany and not long ago an export duty was established, which, not being found sufficient, was doubled, and there is now an agitation for a still further increase. The Finland government also insists on large export duties on the pulp in Finland as much wood as they take out of the country. As a result one of the largest German manufacturers has lately constructed a 200-ton mill in Finland. Austria also exports a great quantity of pulpwood to various other countries but it has as yet neglected to put on an export duty. The reason for this is that only 7 per cent of the timber lands in Austria is owned by the government, all the rest being in the hands of private owners and all the proprietors of great estates. There are opposed to any check on their operations but there is a strong movement in Austria at present for such a duty as a means of forest preservation."

An appeal is being made in Victoria, B. C., for funds to complete and enlarge the Royal Jubilee Hospital, opened in the year 1889 in memory of Queen Victoria's Jubilee. The following noble poem by Clive Phillips-Wolley is printed in the Colonist:

OUR ALTAR OF FIFTY.

Beyond the city's fever and the cries Of Man's Delirium, where the shamed streets run To hide them in the grass when April skies Dimple the purple plough lands we have seen And all the Cloth of Gold around Camosun. We built our altar, not as conquerors, vain Of some achievement of unmasquined sword, But having tried all heights and depths of pain To find man only by the Whiteman's Word. We build to Thee, Thee, Thee, Oh Lord! Here we no triumphs, no blood-drunken kingly No glories gathered from another's shame; In lieu of censures, see the wallflower brings Her cups of incense, meadow larks acclaim Our Queen accomplished, while the broom's wild flame Burns round our altar—dreams of laden men Saggered to sleep along our endless trails. Her fulfilment ere life's last amen— The dream which comes when all the body falls; Of rest and cottage flowers, lush grass and what the sun has dried.

HIS TESTIMONIAL. In the largest firm of wine merchants in London that started they sent Lord Percy a dozen of sherry, which they represented as being a handsome Boston terrier. That night, accompanied by my four-footed friend, I went to the party. Presently a waiter, formerly from Chicago, accosted me and said: "No dogs allowed. You'll have to take him out."

"Come, old man," I replied, "he's offending no one."

"Can't you see people who have dogs, I tell you," continued the waiter wrathfully, "collecting an armful of water without joining table. You'll have to get out!"

"Just then a friend of mine, well, well, Ban, said to me: 'How's the dog?'"

"I told him the water rushing toward me with outstretched hands."

"He exclaimed, cordially, slapping me on the back: 'Didn't you say, 'What'll you have—shall I get the dog?'"

RED SOX AND DOVES YET HOPE

What the Manager of Boston Teams Has to Say of Things

Says Arthur McPherson in the Boston Journal Jesse Tanshill, the Boston American southpaw, has been traded for Case Patten of the Washington club. The pitchers will report to their respective clubs at once. This gives the Red Sox a club which can take its turn with the other twirlers. He comes at a time when the club is sorely in need of a good consistent performer.

Case Patten, the new twirler for John I. Taylor, is a steady, heady, clever veteran of the club.

He has been with the Washington club since the American League branched out and landed the Red Sox. He was a real stumbling block for the Boston. He comes from St. Albans, Vt., and pitched one year in the Southern League before joining the Washingtons.

The Red Sox are still in last place, though they made a gallant fight to get up from the rear of the procession, winning four out of the eight games played last week. With the Western trip ahead of them there is no hope to be had for a possible even break.

Manager Jim McGuire is far from being discouraged by the way things have broken for his team of youngsters. He views the situation from a philosophical standpoint and again says: "Well,

"The boys can play ball, as you know," said he yesterday afternoon. "We've a bad start through lack of hitting on the road. If we had hit the ball at the start the way the boys have been hitting it lately, we would be well up."

"It takes a team of youngsters some time to get going, but they will come and win. That's the way it is with every team," he said. "They are sadly missed just now, but I hope they will come and win."

"It is slow work mending a shoulder. He gives it one last look and says: 'The boys have been weak ever since. He'll be all right soon. I hope. Jack is a manny player. He has his ball come too. Oh, yes, our club looks bad when he goes wrong, but he'll get over his nervousness and be a fine third baseman. It is harder to break even on the road than at home, but we'll be all right after the games to play ball for all the year, and I hope our fans will see us climb out of that place.'"

"I would like Philadelphia to win the pennant. The Phillies in McGuffin have the best pitcher of the year and the best manager. They have a fine batting team and strong handling in the field. This may surprise the baseball fans, but I can't see how they can beat out the Quakers."

"This was the statement made by President George B. Dewey of the Boston Nationals last evening. Charley Leavitt could hardly believe his ears and said:

"What's that?"

"When he heard it the second time he interrupted on a bet for a bet on the proposition, and then he gave George another one that Philadelphia would win the pennant."

"You're on," said Dewey.

"We had hard luck in the rain at the start of our trip in the games at New York and had hard luck in the games at Philadelphia. The dampness at both cities knocked us out of a lot of money and hurt us in the victory column," said Dewey.

TWO GREAT SIRE OF TROTTERS GONE

Todd and Admiral Dewey Were Among the Best Sons of the Great Bingen.

Boston, June 2.—Within a short time two of the best sons of the great stallion Bingen have died. The death of Todd (2:14.4) has been followed by that of Admiral Dewey (2:04.34), the noted son of the ex-queen of trotters, Nancy Hank (2:04). While the latter stallion had not demonstrated that he was to be as successful a sire of speed as Todd had done, there is no doubt that when his get have had an opportunity they will demonstrate that the death of the stallion was a great loss to the breeding interests of the country.

Bobby and Fenny's Picnic Dinner

A STORY FOR THE WEEDONES, BY MAUD WALKER.

Bobby was seven years old. He had curly hair and freckles and a big nose. Fenny was Bobby's sister, aged five. She had curly hair and freckles, but no nose. Now, the sore big toe was what kept Bobby home from school one day. It hurt him to wear his good shoes. He didn't mind wearing his old shoes—those with the holes in the toes. Oh, no, indeed, he liked wearing those old shoes for then his sore big toe could take a peep out of doors—or I should say out of shoe—every little while. And as Fenny was still too young to go to school (they lived in the country, where there were no kindergartens) she did not need a sore big toe to keep her at home.

The fact is, Fenny would have loved to go to school, although her brother Bobby washed very much to stay at home every chance he got.

"I'll tell you what let's do," said Bobby on the morning of our story. "Let's have a picnic down behind the chicken-coop. Mamma won't care if we go there, for that won't hurt my sore big toe."

"Oh, doo-doo!" Won't 'at be 'st' fine?" cried Fenny. And she clasped her hands in glee. "I love a picnic. I do, bruvver."

Fenny remembered a picnic that her mamma had taken her to almost a year ago.

"What'll we have for our picnic dinner?" asked Bobby. "Mamma's gone to town an' Nancy, she's so cross to us that I'm afraid to ask her for cake an' bread an' jam."

"I'll ask her," suggested Fenny, running off to the kitchen. When she entered she found the old servant very busy baking cookies. "Oh, Nancy, will you please drive bruvver an' me some cookies for our picnic dinner? We're going to have a picnic down behind the chicken-coop." Thus spoke Fenny, addressing the sour-faced old Nancy, who never liked to have children come about her domain.

"None, you can't dip into my bakery," Nancy snapped. "It's had enough that my mamma told me to cut out a lot of cookies in the shapes of animals for you and Bob. I can't take time to bake a lot of extra ones for you to eat because, if you wait till bedtime, you'll have a lot of elephants, cats, dogs, and the goodness only knows what else to eat. Yer mamma got a lot of them little animal-cutters last time she went 35 MILES IN 10 HOURS.

Plattburg, June 2.—Harry C. Pray of Boston walked Saturday from Lake Placid in the Adirondack mountains, to this city 35 miles, in 9 hours 54 minutes and 30 seconds. He finished strong and was greeted by cheers from fully 1000 people.

The first five miles of his walk was up a steep grade, and then came 10 miles of sand in places ankle deep.

THE TURF

TRACK AND RACE.

Lena Watson, dam of Watson (2:07 1/2), has foaled a colt by Cochato (2:11 1/4). Walter Cox will get Harry Wood's good trotter Sid Axworthy ready for the $30,000 race.

It is reported that the much touted California pacer Phoenix (trial 2:03 3/4) was necessary to enable him to race at the terrific clip where he had the speed to go. As a 3-year-old he was started in two races, both at Rondville. He won them both, taking a record of 2:14 1/2 in a $2000 event for 3-year-olds during the grand circuit meeting in August. He was second race a $5000 event for 3-year-olds. He also won, but in slower time. He did not start again till his 5-year-old form, when he stood at the Brighton Beach and Revere grand circuit meetings, being behind the money at both places.

This practically ended his racing career, though in 1905 Dr. McCoy gave the stallion a careful preparation and succeeded in giving him a record of 2:04 3/4 in a trial against time behind a wind shield. He finished strong and was greeted by a huge throng of spectators. It was time that he first saw a track, and had he been kept sound it is difficult to estimate what he might have accomplished.

GOLF

TRAVERS TO DEFEND TITLE.

New York, June 2.—Jerome D. Travers will have to defend the New Jersey State Golf Association title at the Englewood Golf Club Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The competition is limited to residents and non-residents who belong to none save New Jersey clubs, yet as 64 qualify for cups and runner-up prizes, the entry is always over 100.

There are hundreds of feathered birds, who though their lays are fine, can hardly be termed songsters, walking around the farm, and Rooney is producing new ones every day, with the aid of monster incubators, which turn out five hundred chicks at one emptying.

There is a small gymnasium and handball court attached to the farm.

THE RULED OUT CONSERVATIVE

Quebec Returning Officer Plays a New Election Game to Secure Seat for Liberal.

Quebec, June 2.—Dr. Coxe, ex-M. L. A., was declared elected by acclamation at the St. Sauveur division yesterday by the returning officer, but the latter will probably be brought before the courts to answer for his action in refusing to accept the nomination of L. P. Robitaille, who was put in nomination by more than twenty-five electors, and the legal deposit of $200, made by Charles Smith, president of the Conservative Union, at ten minutes to 2 o'clock.

The returning officer when presented with the petition in favor of Mr. Robitaille, was also handed $200 by the latter's agent. He began checking the names on the petition to see if they were on the electoral list, and before he completed his work and had counted the amount of the deposit, 2 o'clock struck and he handed back the money and petition on the ground that he could not complete the proceedings before 2 o'clock.

Beware

Be careful! Don't speak! Dear Dolly's asleep. And she must be waked. You know. She hasn't been waked for quite a long spell; And her poor health is only so-so.

"Well, if she didn't bring us a spread!" exclaimed Bobby, limping up to the picnic cloth. "Well, Nancy ain't so cross after all. But say, I'm as hungry as a wolf from the forest behind us. Suppose we fall to."

"Ugh! but this elephant is dood!" exclaimed Fenny, eating off the trunk of the largest elephant. "An' dat 'filla' tolt of 'fing man—ugh! I'm doin' to eat 'em next."

Bobby was too busy with eating dogs, elephants, cats, mules, all mixed up together, to say anything more for 10 minutes. In the meantime a pair of eyes were watching the little picnicers from behind the chicken coop. They belonged to old Nancy. Upon missing the animal cookies from the platter she had started in quest of them, thinking that Bobby and Fenny had shyly taken them away during her 40 winks. But just as she neared the shady spot behind the chicken coop she was surprised to observe the little dough animals capering about, jumping from the apron which lay spread as an innocent lamb. Let 'em eat the elephants, the dogs—the whole fowl dough menagerie, for I'll go in an' bake a lot more of 'em. But of all the tricks I ever saw in my life this one beats 'em. Dough animals—baked good and hard—getting up and running off to serve as a picnic dinner! Pah! it's too silly to talk about. I reckon the whole thing's a dream. But I'd better go into the kitchen or my bread will take legs and run away the next thing."

And that's the story of the picnic dinner that came to Bobby and Fenny on the edge of the great forest where terrible animals and fairies abounded. And it may be that it really happened; but we have no way of finding out about it, for it happened so very, very long ago, and Bobby and Fenny are grown up now and have forgotten about it while Nancy, now a very old woman, will not talk of the time when 'dough animals came to sure-nough life."

CELEBRATION OF PENTECOST

Jewish People Will Celebrate It Commencing Tomorrow and Lasting for Two Days.

The Jewish people the world over will celebrate the anniversary of the Feast of Pentecost commencing tomorrow evening and continuing for two days.

The following statement regarding the celebration was given to the Times this morning by Rabbi Amdur.

"The relation of seasons brought us once more the day when Israel the world over celebrates the anniversary of the feast of Pentecost. The Biblical name for it is 'Shavuot,' feast of weeks, for on this day it concluded the seven weeks from Passover, which according to Mosaic ordinances, had been devoted to the work of harvesting in the field, from the Jews then as a nation, in a political sense of the word, and dwelt in Palestine. When full was the barns with Nature's bounty, a most auspicious time for a festive day had come. The Bible also names it the day of the first fruit (Leviticus) number 23-26, for the reason that of the many kinds of fruit the first ripe ones were, in this season of the year, brought as a thank offering in the temple. But in course of historical development it lost its original significance and in post Biblical history other ideas, higher and nobler than those that in the first became connected with this day, the institution of Pentecost. Since time immemorial Israel celebrates this feast as a day of jubilation, commemorating the fact in which God blessed Israel with holy law, proclaiming the ten commandments on Mount Sinai, and formed them into a nation. It took place on the sixth day in the third month (Sivan) since their emancipation from Egypt.

Fredericton, N. B., June 2. Hon. J. D. Hazen, D. C. L.

Dear Sir,—Included in my late father's estate we have 25 volumes of the old Morning News from the year 1839 to 1862, inclusive.

Hardly a month passes but enquiry is made from one source or another as to certain historical facts contained in these files.

My mother has suggested my writing to you to ask if the government would accept of these 25 volumes as a donation to the Legislative Library, if so she would be pleased to hand them over.

The bride will be accompanied in a dark creation of chiffon taffeta trimmed with Irish point lace and will carry a shower bouquet of bridal roses.

The happy couple have been the recipients of a goodly number of wedding gifts.

Richardson-Donovan

A quiet but very pretty wedding took place in St. Thomas Church, Canterbury, N. B., on Wednesday morning at six o'clock, when Elizabeth M., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donovan, Canterbury, was united in marriage to Bennett L. Richardson, M.D., of Providence, R. I.

The church was prettily decorated in green and white. Nuptial Mass was celebrated by Rev. M. L. Murphy, of Debec.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was becomingly gowned in a dark blue tailor made costume with white picture hat, and carried a white prayer book.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Ellie who wore cream silk with pink, and tussan hat and carried pink sweet peas. Little Miss Marie, in a lovely blue and white dress was flower girl and carried a basket of white sweet peas. The groom was ably supported by L. E. Higgins of St. John.

The popularity of the young couple was shown by the very many beautiful gifts received. The groom's present to the bride was a gold watch and fob. To the bridesmaid he gave a Tiffany bracelet, with sapphires setting, to the groomsmen a pearl stick pin and to the flower girl a monogram locket and chain.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left on the 7:30 train for a honeymoon trip to the White Mountains, after which Dr. and Mrs. Richardson will be at home to their friends in Providence, where the groom is superintendent in the R. I. Hospital.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the wedding party will adjourn to the dining room, where a dainty supper will be served.

In the floral decorations, which are exceedingly bright and pretty, yellow and green form the predominating colors. On their return from their honeymoon, the newly married couple, who have been the recipients of numerous beautiful wedding gifts, will reside at their own home, Cranston avenue.
