HANG YOUR LIGHT LIKE THE SUN

IMITATE Nature in its hanging of the sun if you would have the best arranged lighting system for your home.

for your home.

The sun is hung high in the heavens where there is no danger of it shining directly in the eyes.

Instead of a tiny intense light near at hand, which always tends to contract the pupil of the eye, and decrease the illumination on the retina, Nature has given us a sun several times larger than the earth so that the light will be diffused, tending to oven the retina of the eye and increasing the illumination.

To imitate the sun one is asked to hang the light high above the level of the eyes, and if possible, so to arrange the light that $\frac{1}{2}$ the shines over the left shoulder when reading.

reading.

Also use yellow or orange shades.

They give less glare than the white ones.

To diffuse the light as much as possible several small lights of low cower should be used instead of one big strong light.

When electric lights are used the ground glass bulbs are preferable to the plain glass. They soften the intense glare of the electric filament.

The wrong kind of light will eventually ruin one's eyes. In addition to this danger, eye strain causes headaches and a tired feeling. MORE ROOM FOR DANCERS

High School On to What?

Ambitious parents understand this is no year to let the grass grow under the feet of the Boy or Girl just out of High School.

They realize that FUTURES are fewer, that it is getting harder and harder to find them means of making money and progress. They know the only welcome is to young folks trained to the minute.

That training is now available in the Summer Term of the Modern Business College—New Brunswick's youngest in years but largest in graduates-in fact an attendance above all others combined.

There are reasons. Ask-placing your Boy or Girl successfully depends on quick action and safe judgment.
