The Local Newspaper

The local newspaper is absolutely necessary in these times to any community. It is the home paper, managed by those who have grown up with the place and are thoroughly in touch with the people...

The local newspaper is a great builder of business in the communities where it is established. Its editors are ever alert for business items which will boom their town or city.

The press and the people must keep along step-by-step with each other, for their interests are identical. The grave questions of the hour need to be discussed and their merits so depicted as to give information which will yield good fruit...

Pulpwood Again

The Canadian press is again calling attention to the desirability of taking connection in regard to our forest products. The subject has been revived chiefly in consequence of President Roosevelt's reference to it in his Annual Message to Congress.

Ontario has for many years been discouraging the export of logs and consequently of pulpwood. The press of Canada is almost a unit against the export of pulpwood at least and we believe that when the subject comes to be considered by the Federal Government under the present conditions, Mr. Fielding will revise his tariff laws so that we may keep our own timber and extend our own industries.

Mr. George W. Allen, M. P. P. passed away at his residence in Fredericton, shortly before five o'clock Wednesday afternoon as a result of a bullet wound inflicted by his own hand during the day. Mrs. Allen found him lying on the bed...

unconscious a revolver clenched in his right hand, and a bullet wound in his forehead. Medical aid was summoned and everything possible was done to save the unfortunate man's life but without avail.

DOMINICUS MILLIKEN, I. P. The death on Saturday afternoon, of Dominicus Milliken, removes from our midst a gentleman of the old school, a native born citizen, who for eighty-two years has dwelt within hearing of the flowing Magaguadavic. He saw the country when it was covered with forests of pine, he was an old man when the sound of the locomotive awoke the echoes of the county side.

THOMAS McCracken The community was shocked on Tuesday morning to hear that Mr. Thos. McCracken, the well-known house-painter, had died suddenly during the night.

His death was caused by him having drunk a quantity of wood alcohol in mistake of stomach medicine. He did not tell of his mistake until several hours afterward, when he was suffering intense agony.

The physicians who were summoned did what they could to alleviate his distress but the deadly drug had got too firm a hold upon him. He died before midnight.

The deceased was 56 years of age and is survived by a widow, one son, Herbert with whom he had been living, and one daughter, Mrs. Harry Wiley. Mr. McCracken was well known here, having worked here only last fall. He had many friends in St. George who will learn of his death with deep sorrow.

General regret was expressed yesterday when the death of Edwin B. Coakley, the popular young barrister, was announced. He had been under treatment for some days so that his death was not unexpected. The deceased was in his 35th year, was a son of the late James Coakley. He is survived by a widow, one child, also his mother, brother and sister. The deceased was associated with Mr. T. A. Hart in a lively business.

MITCHELL SILVERSTONE. Mitchell Silverstone, a well known citizen of Calais, died at his home here, Friday night, after a lingering illness. Mr. Silverstone, who until his break down in health, conducted a successful merchant tailoring business, was a native of Posen, Prussia. Mr. Silverstone was a musician of high order, and for many years was the leader of the old Calais City Band, one of the best musical organizations of Eastern Maine. The funeral services were held at his home Sunday afternoon, and were conducted by Rev. Chas. G. McCully. The funeral was under the direction of Fellowship Lodge, I. O. O. F., who marched in procession to the tomb, headed by the Calais City Band. Mr. Silverstone is survived by a widow and one daughter, Othelia F. Deceased was in his 74th year. Advertiser.

EVERETT LANK. Everett Lank of Campobello, who has been a great sufferer for several days from a serious internal trouble, was operated on by Drs. King, of Portland and H. V. Jahan of Eastport, on Monday last. Indications pointed to successful results from the operation, but complications set in and Mr. Lank died Tuesday morning following. The deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lank, his age being about 22 years. He was very recently married his wife having been Miss Bertha Townsend. Beacon.

GEORGE W. ALLEN, M. P. P. Mr. George W. Allen, M. P. P. passed away at his residence in Fredericton, shortly before five o'clock Wednesday afternoon as a result of a bullet wound inflicted by his own hand during the day. Mrs. Allen found him lying on the bed...

Mr. Albert Paul has gone to visit his friends in Boston. Mrs. Emily Eldridge is seriously ill. She is being attended by Dr. Taylor. Basil Paul and Hayward Sparks are attending Business College at St. John. Mr. Milton Eldridge returned from a business trip to St. John this week. Miss Blanche Holmes has been confined to her home for some time by ill health. Her many friends hope to soon see her around again. The ladies of the Foreign Mission Society of the Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Fred Paul on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Harding of the firm of W. Frank Hatheway & Co. was in the village on Tuesday.

Empire Liniment Co. Bridgetown, N. S. I have been very much troubled with pains in the soles of my feet for over four years but I am glad to say that I have found a cure in your EMPIRE LINIMENT. Eternal Dish Washing We may in this item be repeating to our lady readers a tiresome truth, but it will show them that at least one editor appreciates their one condition in life. The quiet fidelity with which "Emp" will dish-wash her life away for "him" is a marvel of endurance and grace. Just here is the servitude of woman the greatest. No sooner is her work done than it requires to be done again. Man asks for jobs, ends them, and takes his pay. This pay can be translated into something else desirable. A man works all day and draws pay for his day's work. This pay allows him, as cats a horse, to be home and job, and although work is not done, he is paid for his day's work. Thus men work by the hour, and although work is not done, they are paid for their day's work. No wonder she breaks it and is glad of it. What a relief it must be when she can say "I have done with that dish."

SHE IS WHITE AS A GHOST Is it a matter of pride to be pale as a lily, certainly not. What every woman wants is strength, color, vigor, buoyancy and health are the right of every woman, and these she need not lack if she only uses Ferrazone. It gives appetite, creates strength, enriches blood, gives vigor to the nerves, color to the cheeks, and brightness to the eyes. Ferrazone is at once convertible into health, beauty and strength. There is power in Ferrazone, try it, and know what you have missed; 50c. at all dealers.

Perhaps one of the wittiest toasts on record is that of Franklin. After the victories of Washington had made his name well known throughout Europe, Franklin changed to dine with the French and English ambassadors, when these toasts were drunk: The son of Britain rose and proudly remarked: "England—the sun whose beams enlighten and the earth the remotest corners of the earth." The Frenchman, glowing with national pride, drank: "France—the moon whose light, steady, cheering rays are the delight of all nations; consoling them in darkness and making their dreariness beautiful." This furnished Franklin with a fine opening, and his quaint humor bubbled over in his retort: George Washington—the Joshua, who commanded the sun and the moon to stand still and they obeyed him.

The brothers surviving are Ben, Frank, Chas, Edward and Jessie. Joseph was drowned in Lake Michigan, George and Cleopatra are dead. The sisters are Mrs. Marsh, Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Seelye and the youngest Ella. The funeral was held on Monday afternoon from his late residence to the Baptist church, thence to the cemetery. A very large number of citizens paid the last tribute of respect to the deceased. Mr. Milliken was a Deacon of the Baptist church, and a consistent Christian.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL Woodlands, Jan. 17th. Mr. Editor: You may perhaps think that I have forgotten my promise to write you from Woodlands. The fact is, I have not had time. You take a man working eight full hours every day and he does not have much time to spare. My arrival in Woodlands was an event. It seems words of my coming had in some way reached here—the band in full uniform met me at the train—the whole population turned out. Needless to say I felt flattered. Representatives of labor organizations from all over the country were there. Yes, I was a curiosity, a thirteen hour day man in this age, is bound to excite comment wherever he goes. They examined me carefully and put me to work. Several hands were detailed to keep an eye on me, to see that I did not injure myself. The strain of those first days was something terrific, four times in one day they held me fast till the mill caught up to me. You may perhaps have heard that 100 men were laid off, the public were informed that the financial stringency was responsible, that is a mistake. It was my arrival, everybody here is aware of the facts. The strain of eight hours has worn me to skeleton. The wear and tare on the brain of a man who realizes that he must allow two men to do the work of one—that a kick is useless, that from the grinders over the wet machines to the hydraulic press it is ever the same two men eight hours a day—where one could do just as well for thirteen hours a day and not injure the machinery. Your muscle development relaxes and your brain is bound to seek outdoor exercise and this alone took me to St. Stephen on the night of the opposition convention.

I arrived there mentally prepared to absorb anything political, oratorical or common. I survived everything till Mayor Teed introduced a resolution on "purity"—"the subsequent events interested me no longer." I left the hall in a whirl. I had visions of gentlemen leaving St. Stephen bearing carefully guarded hand satchels the day before election. I could see again election day at Penfield. I could hear the old time Liberal say "the Mayor is offering ten good plunks a vote." I knew no more till I awoke next day at Woodlands. Perhaps when time has dimmed that great granting of the request would mean much to the island people in their isolated position and would be but a simple act of justice. Courier.

BEAVER HARBOUR A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lunghealing mountainous shrub, furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the Doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Always demand Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Sold by All Dealers.

What is the longest time that a married couple have lived together in this country? asks the London Chronicle. A graveestone in the ancient graveyard of Perranabook, in Cornwall, gives particulars of Philip and Grace Mitchell of that parish, who died, one in 1862, the other four years later. Each was 100 years of age, and they "lived in wedlock for more than 70 years." It is probable that this record will take a good deal of beating.

Residents of Grand Manan and of the mainland have united in a petition addressed to Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Minister of public works, praying that the government of Canada replace the single telegraphic cable between Grand Manan and the mainland with a double cable that would give the telephone system now established on the island connection with the rest of the county and the world at large. W. W. Clerke had the petition in charge in St. Stephen and readily secured many signatures. The granting of the request would mean much to the island people in their isolated position and would be but a simple act of justice. Courier.

NASAL CATARRH PRODUCES DEAFNESS RELIEF IN PE-NU-NA. Mr. R. J. Arles, 401 City Hall Ave., Montreal, Quebec, is an old gentleman of wide acquaintance, having served thirty-eight years in the General Post-office of Montreal, a record which speaks for itself. Concerning his use of Penuna, see letter given below.

"I have been afflicted with nasal catarrh to such a degree that it affected my hearing. This was contracted some twenty years ago by being exposed to draughts and sudden changes of temperature. I have been under the treatment of specialists and have used many drugs recommended as specific for catarrh in the head and throat—all to no purpose. About three years ago I was induced by a confidence man to try Penuna. After some hesitation, as I had doubts as to results after so many failures, I gave Penuna a trial, and am happy to state that after using eight or ten bottles of Penuna I am much improved in hearing, and in breathing through the nose."

Dogfish or Halibut?

The recent startling intelligence spread abroad through the press that dogfish in rapacious hordes, have invaded the feeding banks on which the noble halibut chiefly congregates, has carried home, to even the most mildly epicurean bosom, a sense of dire dismay. To venture on a historical comparison, it is a dismay akin to that with which the first news of the sack of classic Rome by Alaric and his barbarian Goths was received by entire Europe, in or about the year of grace 400. And it is grounded in the same imperishable elements of human nature.

Who that has ever indulged in the pastime of sea fishing does not know and hate with a Carthaginian hate the dogfish. In comparison with this the sentiments the fisher entertains for muckle-mouthed sculpin and spiny skates, are pure sweetness and light. The dogfish is not a fish at all. He is a pseudo shark. He is a brute of such cerebral density that, after being clubbed on the head for half an hour by Shrewsbury clock, he will begin to thrash around afresh in such ferocity of gyration as to send everybody aboard scuttling up the rigging. No faintest trace of finer piscine culture is anywhere discoverable in him. He will boldly swallow whole tin cans of spoiled meats, and then, with the virulent intensity of his gastric juices, dissolve the solder to get at the putrid inside contents.

The bare thought then, of any such ravaging pirate of the seas being let loose on the haunts of the halibut--above all of the chicken halibut, taken "ere sin can blight or sorrow fade"--is obnoxious to every culinary sentiment of the soul. Every day will he gorge his weight of a celestial sea food, indistinguishable by his blunted sensibilities from soldered cans of rancid herring; just as one of Alaric's barbarian Visigoths in Rome would daily be smashing with his club priceless Greek vases breathing statues, and exquisite masterpieces in porcelain, never knowing them from cracked old kitchen iron ware. Here then lies the tragedy, that so much delicious halibut should be consumed, and never a thrill of transport impart a titillation to any discerning spirit.

Many years ago, was it, that the great naturalist, Louis Agassiz, pronounced it the standing opprobrium of man that, while, on land, he had annihilated the wolves, bears, foxes and kites in behalf of his cattle, sheep and poultry; yet, on the sea, he had still left the salmon, the sole, the shad and the turbot, so largely at the mercy of the sharks. May not the exceeding bitter cry now going up over the dire fate menacing the halibut, awaken some consecrated epicurean Peter the Hermit to inaugurate a new internecine crusade against the infidel dogfish?

The Country Paper

He was getting home from business--he a merchant well to do--
The wheels of the electric car were throwing sparks of blue,
And around him were acquaintances who were they stood or sat,
By look or word or gesture were inviting him to chat.
But quite ignoring all of them, except a bow and smile,
When hailed by someone at the door or just across the aisle,
He read, with boyish eagerness, white speeding on the street
The poorly printed pages of a little country sheet.
He read of Tom Jones' enterprise in adding to his barn,
And learned that "Solon Huddleson has got a bran' new yarn."
That 'Auntie Simpkins gave a treat' that crops are pretty good,
And that "Ab Bailey came to town and bought a load of wood."
Well, yes, these things are trifles perhaps to you or me;
For him they are reminders of the times that used to be;
And from his busy city life he glances back with joy
To see the town that circumscribed his doings as a boy.
Each poorly printed paragraph upon the homely sheet
Presents a scene familiar or a friend he used to meet;
And maybe--you can tell it by the smiles that quickly come--
There's mention of his mother and the other "folks" at home.
Men wander far from fortune and find it, too, and yet
The farm and stolid village and it's folks they never forget,
And there's not a thing in city life which greater joy can give
Than the little country paper printed where they used to live.

They Were Safe

Of Marshall Field III, an amusing story was recently told at Lakewood. The boy, according to the story, approached an old lady in a Lakewood hotel and said to her:
"Can you crack nuts?" "No my dear, I can't," the old lady replied. I lost all my teeth years ago.
Then, said the little boy, extending two hands full of walnuts, "please hold these while I go and get some more."

Sapient Sayings

Some men never perceive a point unless they happen to sit on a tack.
In law, who cares what is right or just provided the rules of the game are observed.
Between the fumes of incense and those of good roast beef, even poets hardly hesitate.
Judging from the careful style of the love letters of some famous men, one would say they loved for publication.
You never know what a man means by a will or a contract or a public promise, however plain the language to the ordinary sense, until a court speaks.

"How gray I've gotten," said the lady miserably. "Yet, before I came here to the shore I hadn't a white hair."

"Madam, it is the bathing," said the masseur. "Salt water, while in a way it strengthens the hair, also coarsens, dries and grays it. You have bathed every day since June. In consequence your hair has thickened, but it has also turned a little gray."

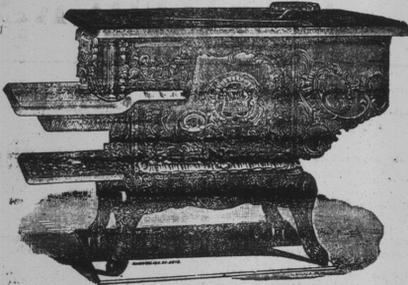

"Salt water bathing, madam, would be a most excellent tonic for the hair if before going into the sea and after coming out of it one rubbed a little pure oil into the scalp. The hair would then grow strong in the salt air and the sunshine without growing coarse or white. In need as its strength increases, it would increase in like manner in fineness, suppleness and brilliancy."

DAVID GETS FIVE YEARS

Fredericton, N. B., Jan. 12--The trial of Thomas David, the Syrian peddler on the charge of murdering his wife, which has been going on before Judge McLeod and jury in the York circuit court since Tuesday, was brought to a close last night, when the jury, after deliberating one hour and a half, returned a verdict of manslaughter of the lowest degree, and made a strong recommendation to mercy.

There was a large crowd in the court when the verdict was announced, and it seemed to meet with general approval. The prisoner, who seemed to be greatly pleased with the jury's findings, was remanded to jail until 9 o'clock Monday morning, for sentence.

Judge McLeod, after thanking the jury and announcing that he had no fault to find with the verdict, discharged them from further attendance. Solicitor-General Jones and J. D. Hazen, K. C., who conducted the prosecution and defense respectively, with marked ability expressed themselves as being satisfied with the verdict.

The contingent of Syrians from Lowell who raised funds for David's defense and have been in constant attendance during the trial, were greatly delighted with the result. The fact that the presiding judge's approval of the verdict is taken as an indication that David will not get a heavy sentence.

The prisoner, although a stranger in a strange land, was treated with the greatest kindness all through the trial by the court officials, from the judge down. While the jury was out deliberating upon the verdict he was taken from the dock and allowed to smoke a cigar in the court.

The sentence of the court was, that the prisoner be confined for two years.

What a Girl can do to Make her Room Look Pretty

She can put a pad of pink or blue tissue paper under the bureau scarf. She can clean her bureau silver, take down all the last year's dance orders from the mirror, and brighten up the gilt handles of the bureau itself with a bottle of radiator gilt. If there's any left she can retouch the frames of her pictures.

She can remove all the quick-knacks from the mantelpiece and convert it into a shelf for her new books. They may be supported at the ends by a pair of book racks made of firm cardboard covered with linen.

She can recover her utility box with flowered chintz and wash the cover of the pillow on it.

She can remove the white cover of her chamber stand, put on blotting paper and use it as a writing desk. A peach basket stained dark green will make a pretty wastebasket, or she can make a pretty chintz covered one of cardboard.

She can clean her willow rocking chair with strong soda and water and set it out in the sun till it bleaches out. Then she can make cretonne cushions for the back and seat. Or it may be stained with the same green that she used on the wastebasket.

She can cut the tops off of her muslin window draperies and shorten them till they come just to the sill like cottage curtains.

She can take down all her college flags, of which she is getting a bit tired and make them into patchwork sofa pillow covers. Or she can take a big sheet of black felt and stitch the banners and pennants into it to make an afghan.

She can take the shabbiest chair in the room, get brother to saw an inch off of the legs, paint it white, make chintz cushions for it and use it to set in while she sews.

Then with the pretty new pictures, books and fancy work bags which Santa Claus brought, her room will look as fresh as if refurbished.

Scattered accidents	230	400
Total	35,612	23,307

If the total number of persons who lost their lives as the result of accidents throughout the world in 1907 were gathered in a single community, a city the size of Brockton, would have been wiped out of existence as effectually as was Pompeii.

The list for the year in the accidents chronicled by the New York Tribune shows an aggregate of 35,612 killed and 23,307 seriously injured, or a grand total of 59,919 unfortunate who in one form or another, suffered death or painful injury in many cases as the direct result of carelessness.

Day by day throughout the year, these figures mean that almost 98 persons perished by violence in every 24 hours, while nearly 159 were either killed or maimed.

The harvest by earthquakes, landslides and other disturbances of nature stands at the head of the column with a grim total of 21,512 killed and 3,092 injured. Explosions and mine disasters, chiefly in America, holds third place with a total of 3,086 deaths and 2,721 injured. Mine disasters claim fourth place with a total of 2,269 lost. Fire victims rank fifth in the list with 1,203 fatalities and 667 injured. Sixth in the column are the 811 who lost their lives in railroad wrecks.

Despite the great hue and cry about careless operation of automobiles, their victims in the aggregate are few compared with other forms of accidents. The grand total of automobile accidents is 229 killed and 704 injured, while the roll of street cars and wagons is 136 killed and 292 injured.

From careless handling of firearms 197 were sent to their graves. Seventy-five persons were killed and 160 injured in runaways.

In the various sports football ranked first in the list of accidents. About a score of players received fatal injuries and more than 100 were seriously injured.

The Home Doctor

To cure nose bleeding, tie a string very tightly around the small part of the thumb below the knuckle.

Half a teaspoon of table salt dissolved in a half glassful of cold water will give instant relief in case of heartburn.

People with poor digestion should drink no water with meals, but take a glassful half an hour before and drink plentifully an hour or so after each meal.

To inhale steam from a bowl of boiling water is very good for a sore throat. The sufferer should lean over the steam, drawing it in both throat and nostrils.

Many cases of indigestion, headache, neuralgia, cold hands and feet can be quickly cured by drinking slowly one or two pints of water so hot that it almost burns the throat.

Warts may be entirely removed by washing the hands two or three times a day with the water in which potatoes have been boiled or by bathing the wart several times with potato water.

CROCKETT DISCHARGED.

As was expected, Judge McLeod granted the request of Mr. Hazen for the discharge of the defendant at the January sitting of the Supreme Court. There was nothing else for him to do. It was the result of Mr. Emmerson's decision to withdraw from the case when met with the "public interest" decision, which meant that the defendant Crockett must have a verdict whether his charges were true or not. Fortunately Mr. Emmerson has been able to place his sworn testimony which places the libellous character of the charges before the public and he may contentedly abide by the verdict of an unprejudiced public opinion. So closes the chapter in this Hammanian attempt to ruin a man's reputation.

SOME THOUGHTS FOR ST. JOHN PEOPLE.

As a further contribution to the knowledge of those good citizens referred to in previous articles, "who do not know the C. P. R.," despite their opinion to the contrary—these men, of much faith and corresponding apathy, should ask themselves: Does the C. P. R. really own anything here, beyond the railway plant and equipment? Is their liking for St. John so pronounced that they have established in this city or immediate vicinity, machine shop or repair works? Do they own any real estate in this city, whether such real estate has been exempted from taxation or otherwise? The answers to such questions are obvious, and the complacent citizen must be more or less surprised—if not indeed alarmed—when he realizes the force of the facts in this connection.

Let, even then, he remain unconvinced of his error, it may be suggested to him—and to all others who, like him, have been indulging in delusions—that there is a place, somewhere in this province called "L'Etang." Of course our apathetic citizen knows all about it, where its real location is, how far from St. John; what kind of a place it is; what size; what line of business, if any, it is adapted for, and what, if any, kind of business is being carried on there at present.

This name "L'Etang" has appeared in the press at different times during the past summer, and, mirabile dictu! was generally connected with some mention of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. Strange is it not, Oh sceptic? This mention does not take, in itself, quite direct form, it is true, but it has been more than hinted that the C. P. R. is becoming interested in that locality; it is rumored they are purchasing property about there, and that certain legal men from the upper provinces have been observed around there looking over the situation, presumably in the interests of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Now as the C. P. R. is not likely to purchase the L. C. R. from Moncton to Bathurst, it is a fair inference that "L'Etang" is not anywhere on the north shore of the province of New Brunswick—it must therefore be somewhere along the southern shore of the province. A railway along this same south shore is even now in actual operation, but the name "L'Etang" does not appear on the list of stations on that line. Rumor however, also has it that this southern railway has been secured by the C. P. R.

Why do not the business men of St. John generally, wake up and acquire some active, realizing sense, some grasp of the situation? Why do they not try to view matters and circumstances about them and try to understand how the welfare of the city and the material interest of every individual citizen is affected thereby?

The best authority on the subject sets forth the statement that "L'Etang" is the official name of a beautiful and safe harbor on the coast of Charlotte county. It is also asserted by some that vessels leaving L'Etang are practically out at sea. Presumably, remarks of that kind however are made by persons more or less partial. Being on the seaboard of Charlotte county, it is clear that L'Etang cannot be distant, more than a few miles from the existing shore or southern railway. To know just what the C. P. R. contemplates or what the C. P. R.

has decided upon with reference to that locality would be very interesting information for our public men and the people generally. Again may one properly and consistently ask: Why do they not wake up and get busy? Even our self-constituted guides or aspirants to the leadership and directorate of public opinion, might contribute to benefit the whole community if they would permit themselves to admit that the real peril of the situation had never before occurred to them; that it is clear the C. P. R. is by no means definitely established in St. John as a fixture.

Once fully comprehending the possibilities all citizens, the common council and the board of trade should spare no effort to so arrange matters as to make the city and port of St. John and their welfare, safe in every feature, and to procure such understanding that the C. P. R. will become and be directly identified with this "City by the Sea," and so arrange also that the city's interest and the company's interest will be made mutual and continued so, as a permanency.—Times.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists. Price 75c. per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

BY THE WAY

Look out for this ice. Words of wisdom: "Never bet on anything that talks."

Is a lie well stuck to as good as the truth? It may not prove so.

Free your mind, gentlemen, regardless of consequences. You at least amuse the people.

It is growing more evident every day that the present local government will be excused.

Greetings wishes to inform its masculine readers that this year of 1908 is a leap year—the feminine portion of our readers knew it all the time.

A certain amount of intelligence can be utilized in pushing a candidate for office. To make effective any movement it is necessary to have complete harmony in the ranks.

The appearance of some buildings is hardly consistent with such surroundings as the new Baptist church and the beautiful new edifice of the Church of England which will soon be under construction.

Charges and criticisms should not be lightly made against men in the public service, especially when men are giving their time and attention to the public without charge. It is hard to get men to fill the positions and it will be harder if unfair criticism continues.

The Robinson government at Fredericton hasn't the ghost of a chance in the coming election. With the exception of Westmorland and probably, thirteen other counties, the province will go overwhelmingly opposition. Cut this out and pin it on your calendar.—Union Cors. Calais Advertiser.

Pres. Eliot, of Harvard, declared that the Canadian anti-strike act is the best in the world for the prevention of strikes and lockouts, despite the fact that there is no arbitration in it, and there is no compulsion. The appointment of a board of three members to investigate the quarrel is its keynote. No strike or lockout is legal until the report of the tribunal is rendered. In a great many cases one of the sides finds it has not got a case and a settlement follows, before the report of the tribunal is given.

According to the accepted authorities leap year is so called because it contains 366 days, and leaps over a day more than a common year, giving to the month of February twenty-nine instead of the usual twenty-eight days. This is exact and precise enough for all practical purposes. The trouble with it is that it fails to explain why a leap year possesses the significance attached to it, particularly by bachelors and maids. Why is it that it will be the privilege of a woman to usurp the masculine function of popping the question during the year. We pause for reasonable and adequate replies to the fascinating conundrum.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Ten pure bred "War Horse" Roosters will be sold at a bargain.

WM. HOLLAND.

A boy, weighing 15 pounds, has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Elfridge, Beaver Harbor.

Skating has been good on the lake and large numbers are taking advantage of the opportunity to enjoy this fine exercise.

Some cold weather is needed for the ice dealers. At present the ice is not very thick and is unfit for storage purposes.

A social gathering of young folks was held at the home of Miss Kate McCarten on Tuesday evening for the pleasure of Miss May Curran of Calais.

Capt. Lew. Simmons met with a painful accident Thursday by which he received a badly sprained ankle, and other injuries. He is under the care of Dr. Taylor.

Bernard Ripley, of Milltown, N. B., has been appointed to the position of customs officer at Milltown to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hugh McAdam.

Frauley Bros. mark down sale attracted many out of town buyers. Good bargains, up to date goods, prompt service and courteous treatment make this store a popular place for buyers.

E. M. Cherry is in Boston this week attending the annual convention of the New England Master Painters and Decorators. Mr. Cherry will also visit the New York Wall Paper exhibit before returning.

If many other of the necessary commodities remain at almost unobtainable prices in this city, the price of coal is considerably lower than in most of the larger cities throughout the state. In Calais, only 30 miles from us, the dealers are getting $7.50 per ton, while here in Eastport coal of excellent quality is selling for $6.75.—Eastport Sentinel.

Mr. E. Nesbitt of St. Stephen will build the new English Church. The building committee opened the tenders for the construction of the building on the 15th and found Mr. Nesbitt's offer was the lowest. As soon as the contract was signed the preliminary work will start and it is expected by spring, the work will be well under way.

The St. John Street Railway Company are making provision for any further shutting off of the city's water supply by installing an arsealian well in their premises on Nelson street. Since the serious break in the main some weeks ago, when, owing to the lack of water, the power was shut off for some time the Street Railway have had this plan under consideration. The work of boring for the water has now been commenced, the contract having been given to Mr. Kent of this town.

The little steamer so generously donated the building committee of St. Mark's church, by Mr. Jos. Meating, will not be disposed of by lottery as first intended.

On account of the immense amount of work in connection with a lottery, the members of the committee find it impossible to devote the time necessary to carry out the affair successfully and they have decided to sell the boat at private sale. The com. extend their thanks to those who already purchased tickets and will be pleased to return the amounts paid, which can be had by calling at Tayte Meating & Co.'s store at any time.

The feeling in St. George at the present time is that the pressing professional demands that are being made upon Dr. Taylor will prevent him from accepting the candidature which was tendered him by the opposition some weeks ago. The people of St. George say they would esteem him as a representative but they value him still more highly as a physician, and they would be loath to be deprived of his skillful services. This kindly feeling, which is shared in by people of both parties, should be a source of gratification to the genial doctor.—Beacon.

A very pretty wedding took place last evening at the home of Mrs. Delong, 11 Elliot Row, when James E. Mawhinney of Mace's Bay, Charlotte county, was united in marriage to Miss Alberta Brown of St. Martins, N. B. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. Camp, M. A. pastor of Leinster street Baptist church. The bride was gowned in white embroidered silk. The groom's present to the bride was a diamond pin. After a short honeymoon they will reside at Pennfield, Charlotte Co., N. B.—Sun 14th.

If it's at Frauley's it's correct. It's correct if it's at Frauley's.

10 per cent off for cash buying is certainly a great inducement for getting stocked up on clothes at Hanson Brothers at this time.

Great interest is being taken in the revival services in the Baptist church. The pastor Rev. E. V. Buchanan is being assisted by Mr. Williams.

Rev. Dr. Raymond, of St. John, will deliver a lecture in O'Brien & Gillmor's hall, Monday Eve. Jan. 27th. The subject will be a most interesting one: "In the days of the pioneers," with Indian legends of the province, particularly in the vicinity of St. George. The well-known reputation of the speaker and his ability to handle this subject will undoubtedly draw a big house. The lecture will be under the auspices of St. Mark's church, the proceeds to be applied to the building fund.

During the year which ended on Tuesday thirteenth employers of the I. C. R. on different parts of the road, met accidental death. These were as follows: S. C. Teachers who have taught twenty years and who from any cause may be incapacitated will be entitled to a pension of as many thirtieths of the full pension as years of service, up to thirty years. The full pension is $400 for men and $250 for women.

The death of Mrs. Best at Beaver Harbor, last week is the second break in a remarkable quintet of widows and sisters, who held a reunion some few years ago at their home Beaver Harbor.

At that time the ages of the ladies were the subject of much comment, the youngest being seventy eight and the oldest one hundred and one. Of the five Rachel, the widow of Tom Parker was the eldest. She is still living at Hills Harbor, New Scotia and is 103 years old. Capt. Lon Simmons is her grandson and strange to say his mother, daughter of Mrs. Parker is also living, being over 80 years of age.

The other four sisters were Mrs. Best 93, Mrs. Mary Holmes 88, Mrs. Amy Baker 85 and Mrs. Fulton Ash 78. Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Best are dead. They were children of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Cross and were all born in Beaver Harbor.

The Neighborhood Club met at Drageorgian Hall on Wednesday evening of last week. It was the event of the season, a large number of ladies and gentlemen attended. The weather men to punish the members for not meeting earlier in the season, sent a cold snap. However once in the hall the pleasure of the event drove Jack Frost to the back ground and the dance was king on the main floor, on the elevation, whilst reigned supreme. The floor was glossy and smooth the music was lively, for the waltz dreamy, the dancers were eager and animated, so the dance was good. Where whilst reigned, silence was only broken by the good natured sally and laughter of the players and the interest in the games was certainly evident in the attention given the cards, so the whist was good. The disappearance of the coffee, sandwiches and cake gave ample evidence that the lunch was good. It was a good night's entertainment, a night that everybody enjoyed and it was only a forerunner of other nights to follow. The following efficient committee looked after the welfare of the guests: Ed. McGrattan, Fred Smith, C. H. Lynott, H. M. Hay, Lew Murray, Ross Mann and Roy McKay.

Courage of Effie Drood

It was an account worth much effort and some sacrifice of dignity to get hold of. All the three bank managers in Bellington understood that; the respective general managers at the respective head offices understood it even better, and wrote emphatic letters on the subject. "You must offer Sir Julian every possible inducement to give up his business now that he has definitely decided to do it all in Bellington. If necessary, all commission on the account may be waived, and interest allowed at bank rate. The directors look to you to do your best in the matter, and you will feel greatly disappointed if you allow yourself to be out-manoeuvred by your rivals." So said the general manager of the South Midlands bank to Mr. Grundy, manager of the Bellington branch. Mr. Drood and Mr. Steel, local managers of the National United Bank, and the Royal Bank, were hammered at by their chiefs in much the same tone especially Mr. Drood. The great "King account was at present with Mr. Droods head office at Sheffield, and his directors were determined to keep it in the family." Sir Julian King, himself meanwhile seemed enchanted to sit on the fence and let the three worried gentlemen bid against each other for the privilege of his custom.

The host of chimneys of the King Iron Works, blast furnaces and rolling mills, smoked hard in the lowlands beneath Bellington, and the matter hadn't advanced at all in a month. And now once again Sir Julian called on Mr. Drood. He stepped into Drood's private office with smug triumph on his fat face, as if he looked forward to the enjoyment of another bout of wits. "I want to tell you," he said, straight out, "that Steele's people are disposed to allow me half per cent above bank rate, and Grundy says he won't be beaten by anything they can do. I thought I'd let you know."

Drood shrugged his shoulders. It's an awful business Sir Julian," he said, and there won't be a penny profit in it, but I'll go a quarter per cent better than that. Assuming your credit balance keeps about thirty thousand pounds, we will give you a quarter per cent over bank rate, and charge you no commission on a three months' agreement. Sir Julian seemed surprised. "The deuce you will, Drood?" "Since you say it, Sir Julian the deuce I will. And I'll tell you why I'm rather ajar with my authorities, and I'm afraid they'll remove me from Bellington if I fall in this."

"Ah!" said Sir Julian. Don't dust their boots for them quite as they like, eh? "I expect that's it. I can't toady to them or any one." The great man laughed. "You're too independent for your job, I can see, Drood," he said. Well, thanks. I'll make note of your amended terms. By the way, how's your pretty young wife?" Mr. Drood winced ever so slightly. "Thank you, she is well, he replied. Sir Julian didn't notice the wince. He smiled as he lit a cigar. He knew Drood disliked tobacco; also that a bank manager's sanctum ought not to be sullied with a taproom reek. But though he was a baronet, the second of the name he was no gentleman, only a man enriched by the sweat of his thousands of operatives.

"Well, look here, Drood," he said, after a puff of smoke, "you can tell her if you like that if I transfer my account to you it'll be more for the sake of her pretty face than—Hullo! what's up? Drood had risen sharply. "I won't have your account!" he exclaimed; "I withdraw my offer and wish you good afternoon."

"Bless the fellow!" said Sir Julian, sitting still; "you're too touchy. They'll kick you out of your berth here to a certainty, if I say the word. "I don't care what they do. I'll thank you to leave my office." Sir Julian jumped to his feet. "Me! Leave your office? Are you out of your senses, man?" "Well, sir," said Drood, hesitating before the fate he was challenging, "perhaps I am a little out of my senses. I've had a good deal to put up with of late. If you will apologize for bringing my wife into the matter—"

Me apologize to you, Drood? I'll see you hanged first. Go to the devil your own way, my friend. Such a first! He strode from the room into the general office, turned and gave poor Drood the finishing stroke of humiliation in the presence of his own clerks. "I'll see your folks at head office tomorrow, Drood," he said waving his hand with the cigar in it. "They'll be deeply interested, I warrant Good-day to you!" Drood made no reply. He and his staff watched the rich boor strut through the door held open for him by the porter. "We have lost his account, Bridge," said Drood simply to his cashier, as he returned to his own room.

So it seemed. Straight from the National United Bank, Sir Julian King drove to the South Midlands bank. Here, after very little parleying, Mr. Grundy offered the same enhanced terms as Drood. "I'll let you know tomorrow," said Sir Julian courteously, and he made for the third bank in the town. With still less parleying, Mr. Steele was also ready to allow the great iron-master the same exceptional facilities to do his business. "I'll decide in the morning and finish it," said Sir Julian.

An hour later the banks shut for the day; and, a little later still, Drood went upstairs to his wife, and—well, he couldn't keep the depressing news to himself. "It's all up with us, Effie, girl, he said afterwards. "We must make up our minds for a move downhill somewhere, I'm afraid." But Effie was a brave little wife. "The coarse wretch!" she declared, with a beautiful flush, when her husband came to the source of the trouble. "He always was like that, Adam. Father used to say he was horrid as a young man, and such a coward. If he hadn't all that money he wouldn't dare hold his head so high."

"Yes," said Drood; I dare say he is just a common bully. But I couldn't do anything else, could I?" "Yes," said Effie. You might have kicked him out. That's what I would have done, I truly believe. Drood tried to smile. "I believe you would, Effie," he said. "Yes, and I'd like. I've half a mind—No, no, I don't mean that, Adam." She laid her pretty head on her husband's shoulder. "I'm a tomboy still at heart, you know," she whispered. "I would dearly though, like to—punch his head. That's what comes of growing up with eight brothers, Adam."

"And being a champion at hockey, eh, Effie?" "Oh, yes, all that kind of thing. But don't let's see red before red comes, old boy. We'll have some tea, and bye and bye a nice little dinner—with oyster patties, and—oh! that tiresome telephone!" Adam patted her loved head and went to the tube. The general manager himself was at the other end, and soon Adam rejoined his wife with a particularly glum expression. "Mr. Severn must have heard something already," he said. "He says I am to move Heaven and earth to keep the account. My salary will go up to fifty if I do it."

"And did you tell him, Adam?" "No, I hadn't the courage. I just thanked him. That's all. Effie nodded. Her eyes had suddenly become very bright, but she didn't seem eager to meet her husband's gaze. She turned rather towards the fireplace. "Do you mind, dear," she said gently if I cycle out to old Mrs. Forrest's before dinner? I shan't ask you to come with me. Have your tea by yourself, old boy, and then just potter about in the garden. Will you?" Effie was still too new a wife to have much difficulty in making her husband behave as she pleased in small things. She rewarded his obedience with a kiss, ran upstairs, and was soon riding for Hooten.

Old Mrs. Forrest lived at Hooten, and so did Sir Julian King. Effie's father had been vicar of Hooten and Mrs. Forrest had nursed her as a baby. Mrs. Forrest's cottage was close to the lodge gates of Hooten Hall. Little that went on in the Hall escaped the dame's eyes and ears. She was won't to watch the comings and goings as if they were as precious a part of her life as the geraniums on her window sill. "No, dearie," she said, "Sir Julian isn't home yet, but he's due. It's half past 5, and he hasn't been later than that any day this week. Fine and pert he keeps for his age, too."

"That's all right," thought Effie. She engaged the old woman with her rheumatism and topics of equal interest for ten minutes. Then the rush of a motor car was heard, and Sir Julian flashed up to the Hall gates. "There he goes, dearie!" cried Mrs. Forrest. "What a dust he do leave behind him, to be sure! There's no keeping one's curtain clean for it."

Effie rose to leave. "Poor old curtains!" she said gayly. "I'll go and tell him about it." She sped up the Hall avenue as if that really was her intention. Mrs. Forrest shook her head at the sight. She had never known such a wild, determined and yet lovable child as Miss Effie in the old vicarage days. "I do believe she's going to do it," she whispered.

Some 20 minutes passed and Effie returned with glowing cheeks. She paused at the cottage to leave half-a-crown for a new set of window curtains. "Didn't I tell you?" she said. "Sir Julian thinks you're an old silly to live in his dust, though, and so you are—a beloved old silly."

She was on her bicycle and away before Mrs. Forrest's tongue had a suitable reply ready. So back to the bank, were Drood was smoking a thoughtful and rather melancholy pipe in the greenhouse. She came to him with laughter on her lips and in her eyes, and gave him a letter. "Read that, old boy," she whispered. Drood recognized the great man's handwriting on the address, frowned, and opened the envelope. "Hooten—Dear Sir: I have pleasure in informing you that my account will be transferred to your branch from head office on the proposed arrangement of three years ago, by which you allow me one-half per cent. Interest above bank rate on my credit balance with you and charge me no commission. Yours faithfully, Julian King."

There was also another note: "I hereby apologize to Mr. Drood for my rude reference to his wife this afternoon, but hope he will do me the favor to destroy this as soon as it is read. Julian King." Drood stared at his wife's laughing face. "What does it mean, Effie?" he stammered. "Mean! Why, that you've got a capable wife, my dear. Look at this. Don't say a girl is no good at business. I bushranged him in his own study. The fun of it, Adam, too, once I persuaded myself that it had to be done. He stood it splendidly. He's not half a bad sort of brute. But I promised to see this burnt, so let's do it. Fifty on to our salary, old boy. Hurray!"

She herself struck the match which burned Sir Julian's apology. Drood meanwhile fingered the revolver she had produced after the letter. "You—dared, Effie he asked. "Dared! Why rather! And now, old boy, I'm going to see to the patties. Cook has a lot to learn from me about oyster patties."

How to Raise Flowers in Winter

Everybody loves flowers, and it is so easy to raise a few blossoms, even in the dreariest winter weather, that no one need be without them. The very simplest of all flowers to raise are those grown from bulbs. They are always sure to blossom and give good results.

Be sure to get two or three Chinese sacred lilies, and put them into a bowl partly filled with pebbles or marbles and a few lumps of charcoal, as this keeps the water sweet. Before putting them into the water carefully pare off all the dark part upon the under side.

By all means get as many narcissi as you can, for they not only bloom well, but the blooms will last so long. In them one can find such a variety of sizes and shapes, in all combinations of white and yellow.

Then, if you want something pretty, get a half dozen of single Roman hyacinths and plant in soil, letting the crowns come above the dirt. Water well and set in a dark, cool place for a month, unless they show signs of coming up sooner. The Roman hyacinths are so graceful, and generally have from two to six stalks of blooms.

The double hyacinths have a bad habit of beginning to bloom before they get above the leaves. This can be remedied by placing a cone of dark paper, with the apex cut off, over the plant. This will cause the stalk to run up to the light, and when it does this the cone can be removed.

Freesias are very lovely. Take half a dozen freesia bulbs and plant them in a five-inch pot of rich, fine soil; water well and set in a cool, dark place until they show signs of coming up. Then bring them into the light, but not into the sun for several days. If you have never seen any of them you will wonder how such tiny bulbs can contain so much sweetness. If they grow up quite tall and are inclined to lop over, clip off the ends of the leaves, and you may have to furnish a support for the flowers. The white ones are the prettiest by far, and the red ones add variety.

In planting bulbs one must always pare off the brown substance upon the under side, or the roots will be unable to get through it.

The Men to Marry

An alleged authority on mankind has given his views on the sort of men that make the best husbands. Among the really nice one he classes the man who is fond of fishing, the lawyer and the all-round journalist.

He does not get enthusiastic over the popular doctor as a husband, and a musical genius or a man of letters gives him cold chills and shudders. The author, he says, is so fond of his fine sentences that he is disagreeable when the baby cries, and makes himself generally odious about his food, and noise of the children, and any domestic infelicities that may come along.

The musician cares for little except his art, and the wife is often secondary to the claims of a prima donna.

All in all, the good journalist seems to have the most strong points. He is a bit of a philosopher, is likely to be practical, makes the best of what cannot be helped, and is full of alternatives. The lawyer is good to have in the house. He is likely to be alert, a good judge of human nature, a good talker and quite as fond of listening as of hearing the sound of his own voice. He studies human nature at home as well as abroad, and is altogether a good fellow.

Home Remedies

Nervous headache can be quickly relieved by snuffing up some freshly-scrapped horseradish that has been slightly warmed.

Olive oil is very good for weak people or those who suffer from indigestion. It should be taken with the food whenever possible, and a teaspoonful taken before going to bed will do wonders in keeping the digestive organs in working order.

The following lotion will prove very beneficial when the hands perspire too freely and become uncomfortable in consequence. Take ten grains of tannic acid, half an ounce of simple tincture of benzoin, two ounces of elder-flower water and three ounces of rose water. This mixture should be used on the hands, and the result will be that they will remain fresh and cool.

People sometimes get a dull aching at the lowest part of the back of the head, which is increased on movement. This is caused by rheumatism of the muscles supporting the parts. Great relief is afforded by filling a small bag with hot salt and using it as a pillow. It should lie in the hollow of the neck, and the neck below the seat of pain should be protected by folded flannel.

Odd Things Women Are Doing

Miss Sophia French of Trinidad, Col., met and fell in love with Fidencio Canon of Austria when he was on a visit to this country two years ago. Eight months ago she went to Austria to give him a chance to renew his courtship, and as a result they have just been married in Trinidad.

Because her sweetheart drove to meet her with a dilapidated wagon and a pair of common-looking horses, Miss Bessie Schwartz of Benton county, Mo., told Frank Warden of Rye, Col.: "What she thought he was a rancher and not a farmer and took the first train for home instead of marrying him."

"I don't care whether my husband cuts his throat or not. He can do it if he wants to, said Mrs. Grace Evangelista the young wife of a Denver (Col.) Italian laborer, when informed that her husband had threatened to cut his throat should she consent to have her two children placed in an orphan asylum, and she put them in St. Vincent's home.

Miss Mary Hittner of Rockport, Ind., was sued for damages by Matthew Pennington for beating him almost to death because he interfered in a family fight over a feather bed, but the jury found against the man.

After hunting for 20 years and writing nearly 3000 letters to all parts of the United States, Mrs. Harriett Mecker of Evansville, Ind., has found her sister, whom she had not seen or heard from in 40 years, in Mrs. G. W. Moates of Peoria Ill. and three sisters whom she had not seen in 35 years and whom she thought dead.

Badora Kinsley, a 19-year old girl who was kidnapped from her deaf and dumb parents in a little Oregon town when but 6 years of age, has been found in Phoenix Ari., and returned to her parents in Woodland, Cal.

"Oh, there it is, was all little Alice Wyss of Upper Sandusky, O., had to say when the doctor cut a piece of iron nearly an inch long from her hand, in which it lodged four years ago at an oil well explosion in which seven persons were killed.

Pay for Your Paper

No one expects to be given a spool of thread at a drygoods store or get a pound of coffee or sugar from a grocery for the asking, but many persons have no compunction about entering a newspaper office and walking off with a paper without paying for it. They seem to think that is all right, but that newspaper bears its share of the total cost of the Edition and is worth just as much in profit as the spool of thread, the pound of coffee or the pound of sugar. It is a constant outlay to publish a paper and considering its value to the public at large a newspaper debt should stand on an equality with the doctors or grocers bill. But it does not—with some people... Exchange.

Married Men

There is an expression in the face of a good married man who has a good wife, that a bachelor's face cannot possess. It is indescribable. He is a little nearer the angles than the handsomest young fellow living. You can see that his broad breast is a pillow for somebody's head, and that little fingers pulled his whiskers. No one ever mistakes the good married man. It is only the erratic one that leaves you in doubt. The good one can protect all the unprotected females, and make himself generally agreeable to the ladies, and yet never leave a doubt on any mind that there is a precious little woman at home worth all the world to him.

Quick Nut Bread

Sift together four cups of flour, one cup of sugar, one teaspoon of salt and four teaspoons of baking-powder. Add one cup of chopped English walnuts and one egg, with a cup and a quarter of milk. Put into a greased bread tin and let it stand half an hour before baking for one hour in a moderate oven.

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person or by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situated. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of the homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line, exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must advise the Agent for the District of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.
