A Bigamy Case.
Tony Aprea, an Italian, was sent to Perth gaol lately by the police Magistrate of Smiths Falls, to be tried for bigamy. Aprea was married in Italy fifteen years ago. Shortly afterward he came across to the United States, leaving his wife in Italy. For two years he sent money to his wife, then stopped sending it for what he regarded as good reasons, claiming that she was not faithful to him. For thirteen years he had not heard from her. Over a year ago he married a Miss Heathcote in Smiths Falls, and things went O.K. with the couple till lately, when wife No. 1 trailed the lost husband to Smiths Falls, and put the police on his tracks. By correspondence she secured Aprea's arrest and committal sending along her marriage certificate, etc. The trial came off before His Honor Judge Scott last Friday, when Aprea pleaded guilty, had his story told by his counsel, Mr. C. J. Foy, who stated that it was money No. 1 wife was after, as shown by the correspondence. No. 1 Mrs. Aprea did not attend court. Under all the circumstances the Judge gave the bigamist thirty days in the county jail.—Perth Expositor.

Married in Winnipeg—Dolan-D'Arcy.
A wedding that is of interest to many of our readers took place at Winnipeg last Wednesday, when Mr. W. F. Dolan, son of our townsman, Mr. John Dolan, joined the ranks of the benedicts. The Winnipeg Tribune gives a lengthy report, from which we glean the following particulars: "An April wedding about which much interest centred was that of Kathleen, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. D'Arcy, and William Franklin Dolan, of Calgary, which took place last evening at 7.30 in Holy Trinity church. Archdeacon Fortin read the nuptial service in the presence of a number of the bride's girlhood friends and officers of the 90th Battalion, of which her brother, Lieut. Norman D'Arcy, is a member. The bride entered the church accompanied by her father to the music of the wedding march played by Mr. Naftel. Her toilette was a striking travelling suit of navy blue taffeta with collar and vest of white corded silk embellished with gold braid. Here and there could be seen the rose shaded lining which harmonized with the rose straw brim of her hat, which was topped with the navy blue Georgette crepe and cluster of metallic flowers. Her house was of white Georgette crepe with touches of gold, and her bouquet of white roses and valley hites. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Madeline D'Arcy, wearing a pretty green and blue shot taffeta suit, blue hat with an unique rose-colored straw ornament, and blouse of pink crepe de chene. She carried pink roses. The groom was assisted by Mr. R. L. McAdam. After the church service the wedding party journeyed to the home of the bride's parents, 75 Edmonton street, where a reception was held. Over the bride's table hung a bridal bouquet of white roses, from which draped satin ribbons falling toward the huge mound of frothy wedding cake that crowned the centre beneath. Mr. and Mrs. Dolan left last evening for their honeymoon on the 9.30 train for Toronto. After a visit in Detroit and other eastern points, (including Carleton Place), they will return to the city for a few days before going to their new home in Mount Royal, Calgary.

The Health Lecture.
The visit of Dr. P. J. Maloney, of Cornwall, District Officer of Health, to Carleton Place last Tuesday was well received, and many of our citizens took advantage of the occasion to see the views and learn what they could of the science of health. In the afternoon the instruction was devoted to the school children, who had a part holiday for the purpose, and some of the views were so vivid that they likely remain in the memory of the youngsters for some time to come. The evening was intended for adults, although many little ones were out again. In the absence of Dr. Sinclair, the local medical health officer, Mr. R. J. Robertson, principal of the public school, occupied the chair, and discharged the duties of the position with becoming grace. The health officer dealt with tuberculosis, typhoid, infant mortality and its causes, measles, small-pox and such like and explained how these diseases were to be avoided or treated when taken. Views of unsanitary buildings, impure milk and such like were shown, even our intimate friend the common house-fly receiving his true character in not very complimentary terms. Patriotic films and pictures of prominent public men were given to vary the programme, and a number of choruses were rendered by the pupils of Mr. Robertson's room. Rev. Mr. Newton also contributed a solo in a very acceptable manner.

Another Carleton Place Soldier Wounded.
In the last Canadian casualty list appears the name of Pte. Wm. Tyril, Carleton Place, who is among the wounded suffering from a gunshot wound. Pte. Tyril is a young Irish boy who worked here for a while with Mr. Leslie. His sister lives with Mrs. Rodger across the street, and received the sad intelligence from the department a few days ago.

Sunday Evening Song Service.
The second song service under the auspices of the Women's Institute was held on Sunday evening in the town hall, the proceeds from which go to providing comforts for our soldier boys at the front. The hall was well filled, and the proceeds amounted to $48.85. Mayor Smythe occupied the chair and introduced the singers. The programme opened with a selection by the Methodist S.S. orchestra, which also rendered a number of pieces later. The audience sang, "Onward, Christian Soldiers." There were solos by Mrs. Lopdell, Miss Maguire and Miss Quennie Allen, and by Messrs. Geo. Dummert, Sam'l Hale and Rev. Mr. Newton, and a chorus by the ladies of Zion choir, Miss Simpson taking the solo. Miss Helen Allen rendered a violin solo. The list closed with the doxology and the national anthem. Miss Hazel Allen and Mr. J. W. Given were the accompanists of the evening.

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Pleasant Evening Reveries dedicated to tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

ROAD THAT LEADS TO HOME.

It's ho! for the road that leads to home
When my toil is done and the night draws near;
What matter if bones and muscles ache
When I go to the refuge dear?

The welcoming lights from the windows gleam,
And a chubby face at the pane I see
As I hurry my steps, with a quickening heart,
To the dear ones who wait for me.

And when I arrive—how they close me in!
I am showered with love, as the needs require.
And laughingly led to my easy chair
In the glow of the open fire.

There's a smile and a kiss from my chum and wife,
And a love that she can't conceal
Comes shining out of her eyes to me
As we sit at our evening meal.

Then we read and chat of the day's events,
Till sleep comes to the eyes of blue,
And someone says, with a drowsy kiss,
"Good night, daddy, I love you!"

So it's ho! for the road that leads to home,
Dear land of the heart's desire,
To the loyal and loving ones who wait,
And my easy chair by the fire.
—BEATRICE MCCORMICK.

Children in a family should be treated as a gardener cares for his flowers. He realizes that they require different lights, soils, moisture, shade and attention. The treatment that would make a rose win a gold medal at a horticultural show, might kill an orchid. He studies the plants, their habits, needs, peculiarities and individuality. He seeks to discover how each grows naturally. He does not force his process on nature; but seeks humbly to follow her guidance and revelation. He realizes that Nature not only deals but leads. Parents do not always learn this lesson; they do not always realize that in showing us how children grow most naturally Nature is revealing to us the best method of training them.

God placed somewhere in the heart of each of us a tender memory, which enables us to touch with a gentle hand or soothing word the heart of the afflicted. What a comfort to know that for every heartache, there is somewhere in the universe a heaven inspired soul to comfort those downcast. Let us make our words as dew from heaven, touching with gentle hand the withered flowers, giving new vigor to the hardy.

A Japanese Printing Office.

Japanese newspaper offices lack that indispensable aid to rapid composition—the linotype machine. The great number of Japanese characters—there are almost ten thousand of them—makes the typesetting machine impracticable, and so the Japanese compositor sets type by hand. How he does his work, under difficulties unknown to his Western fellow craftsmen, a correspondent of the New York Sun tells:

Our printers deal with an alphabet of twenty-six letters—so for capital letters, small capitals and plain letters, the compositor has, in all, seventy-eight letter boxes in a "case" of type. But the body type of a Japanese newspaper, for example, includes nine thousand five hundred separate characters, of which four thousand are in constant use; so you can understand how difficult it is to "set up" copy in the vernacular. No row after of linotype machines is possible, and for comparison with an American composing room you must go back to the rows of cases mounted on frames, with a man in front of each case, that met the eye in the composing rooms of the American dailies twenty-five years ago. The Japanese cases, about twenty feet long and five feet high, are set up at a sloping angle with a four-foot passageway between the lines. The characters are in little compartments, face outwards.

In his left hand the compositor holds his wooden "stick" and chants in a peculiar drone, with the air of a mystic, whatever he is putting into type. When he comes to a character that is stored elsewhere, he grunts to a small boy the name of the ideogram, and the boy bounds off for it, and comes skipping back a moment later. To hear forty men chanting in this drone as they march up and down at a lively gait before the cases, with boys darting in and out like little demons playing tag, is to meet a new experience.

The man nearest me was chanting Japanese: "He was putting his foot down"—hum, hum, hum—"putting his foot down"—hum, hum, hum—"putting his foot down"—hum, hum, hum. And so on—all the news of the day set to music. It would have driven Ben Franklin crazy; but it gives one a glimpse of the Oriental patience to think of adapting type to such an enormous diversity of signs.

The Daisy.

Did you ever hear the story of the daisy which looks like a star? Once upon a time there was a little star up in the sky that belonged to no group of stars at all, but just had to wander around by itself all the time. Every evening it watched the evening star, the new moon over the edge of the dark and envied it. It heard much talk among the other stars, some of them of less magnitude envying those of greater magnitude, and the little lone star thought to itself that no one saw it even to envy it. Down on the earth it looked so much easier to get into a group and have companions, so one day when the earth was swinging over from dark to daylight the little star did not try to preserve its equilibrium, but just dropped down, down, until it came to earth. It fell so far that it fell deep down into the earth, but some star seeds at its heart, shot up from the earth, changed through the influence of the soil, and there stood a beautiful star flower, and never is it lacking for companions of its own kind.

Conventionality.

Woman is much less conventional than man. She does all the conventional things and attacks other women savagely for breaches of convention. But you will generally find that where a man may with impunity break a convention he will not do so, while if a woman is guaranteed a woman will please herself first and repent only if necessary. It follows that a man is conventional because he respects convention, women conventional because she is afraid of what may happen if she does not obey convention. The typical Englishman of the world wrecked upon a desert island would get into his evening clothes as long as his shirts lasted; his wife alone in such circumstances would wear a low cut dress to take her meal of coconuts, even if her frock did up in front.—Atlantic.

Pencil and Notebook.

There is a satisfaction and a very certain educational value as well in being able to record one's impressions by rough notes and sketches and to show others one's ideas in the same manner. Every boy, even though he possesses no talent whatever for drawing, may learn to roughly sketch an outline if he properly develops a simple sense of proportions. The noting of interesting facts, read over often more than once later, fixes them in the memory and is good practice in expression if one tries constantly to set forth these notes clearly and correctly. Try it.

Frost Cracking Trees.

The traveler in the winter woods during extreme cold and especially after nightfall is sometimes startled by sounds like pistol shots and as loud, near and far away. It is not difficult to locate these sounds as coming from the larger trees around, the frost so shivering the wood as to cause the fibers to separate in the weakest places, and they do this in such a hurry as to resemble an explosion.

Poverty of Language.

Travelers tell us that there is a very wild tribe near the upper Amazon that possesses a language singularly devoid of needed words. For instance, they have nothing to express a number greater than three, but this word is one of nine syllables.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson IV.—Second Quarter,
April 23, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Cor. xv, 1-28. Memory Verses, 3, 4—Golden Text, I Cor. xv, 20—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

It is a great privilege to have before us so constantly in the lessons of this year the great fact of a risen living Christ, so that we may be said to have many Easter lessons instead of, as in other years, only one in the year. The lesson chapter for today is pre-eminently the resurrection chapter, leading us on to the resurrection of the righteous who shall then be alive and encouraging the saints to constant victory through our Lord Jesus Christ and to be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord (verses 50-58).

Let us notice first what the messenger says of himself. Although he has been forgiven, he cannot forget that he was, once a persecutor of the church of God, but he always magnifies the grace of God which saved such a sinner, and he calls himself the least of the apostles. Later he says that he is less than the least of all saints, and still later he calls himself the chief of sinners (verses 5, 10; Eph. iii, 8; I Tim. i, 15). That is true growth in grace, for as we learn to know our Lord better we cannot but sink lower in our own estimation. The whole world is guilty before God, and "sinners" is the only fit name for every one, without exception. But He came to save sinners, and only by His merits can any one be saved, so that it is never a question of what we are or what we can do, but only who is He and what can He do?

As to the message, the gospel by which we are saved, it is that Christ died for our sins, was buried and rose again the third day and was seen alive many times by His disciples and, last of all, by the writer of this epistle, who saw Him after He had ascended to heaven (verses 1-9). Paul did not think out these things, he received them and delivered them as he received them (verse 3). No minister of the gospel is expected to think out his own thoughts and put them into the form of a sermon or essay and give them to the people as bread from heaven. But the true messenger of God must receive the message from God and deliver it as such, not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power (I Cor. ii, 4). The prophets were to speak only what God told them, and even our Lord Jesus was told by His Father what to say (Jer. i, 7-9; Ezek. ii, 7; III, 4; Deut. xviii, 18; John xii, 49, 50).

The messenger who speaks merely out of his own heart his own message is not a true messenger (Jer. xxiii, 16, 26). As well might Israel think to manufacture their own manna for a preacher to get up or think out his own discourse. Then notice how Paul repeats the words, "According to the Scriptures" (verses 3, 4), and remember how the risen Christ opened and expounded the Scriptures by Moses and the prophets and also the Psalms (Luke xxiv, 27, 32, 44; Acts i, 3). There are four great truths which we cannot magnify enough—the supernatural birth of Christ by the Holy Spirit, His bearing our sins on the cross as our substitute, His resurrection from the dead and His coming again to set up His kingdom of righteousness and peace on this earth. Apart from His resurrection from the dead there is no forgiveness, no salvation, no glorious future for any one, but that great event secures all and enables us to see ourselves as risen with Christ and seated with Him in the heavens. He our life, our affections there and we waiting with Him for the completion of His body, the church (verses 14-20; Eph. i, 4-6; Col. iii, 1-4).

Believers now being gathered from all nations to form His body must have their resurrection bodies in order to be fit companions for Him when He shall come to reign. Christ the first fruits rose from the dead three days after His crucifixion and forty days later ascended visibly to heaven, where He waits for His completed body, which the Holy Spirit is gathering. At His coming all the bodies of His redeemed shall be raised and the living believers changed, and all together meet Him in the air for the judgment seat of Christ and the marriage of the Lamb. Then He shall return with His saints to judge the living nations and to begin His reign, for He must reign till He shall have subdued all things unto Himself and conquered the last enemy—death (verses 23-26).

The "afterward" of verse 23 covers all the present age between the resurrection of Christ and that of His redeemed. The "then" of verse 24 covers all the millennial age when He, with His saints, shall be reigning and subduing all things unto Himself (verse 25; Rev. v, 9, 10; xx, 4). He will not begin His reign till we come back with Him in His glory. Then shall be fulfilled Isa. xxxiii, 1, 17. All the discipline and the training of believers now is to fit us to reign with Him in His kingdom. The last clause of verse 28, "That God may be all in all," is the highest peak in Scripture.

CANADIAN RED CROSS.

The Canadian Red Cross Society was not prominently in the public eye before the outbreak of the present war, but none the less it has been in existence for 20 years, a period which covers almost half the life of the International Red Cross, which was founded in 1864.

The Canadian Red Cross was organized in 1896 by Dr. now Surgeon General G. Sterling Ryerson, and was the first branch established in the Overseas Dominions on the Empire. It is also older than the American Red Cross.

It was incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1900, and is now the official channel between the Canadian Public and Canada, the British Red Cross Society and the Military Authorities. The immense volume of work which the Canadian Red Cross has performed since the war, shows conclusively the value of preparedness. For the future, every citizen should do everything in his power to enable the Red Cross to discharge its obligations toward our sick and wounded. The Society although invested with an official status, received no income from the state. It relies altogether on public contributions.

RED CROSS NOTES.

4,524 cases of Red Cross supplies have been shipped since the war from Quebec City.

Bashby Park which the King loaned to the Canadian Red Cross has been transformed into a hospital and is now receiving patients.

The Duke of Connaught at Xmas gave 100 pheasants to the Canadian Red Cross hospitals in England and France.

The activity of the Canadian Red Cross in England and at the front is closely connected with the prosperity of the Society in Canada. Any diminution of Red Cross enterprise on this side of the water would mean inevitably an increase in the suffering of the wounded.

In consequence of this the Canadian Red Cross abroad is able to report a steady expansion of the scope of its activity. It is now supplying comforts to Canadian wounded in 71 hospitals in the Shorncliffe area. From its Bologne warehouse it issues supplies to four Canadian General hospitals, four Canadian Field Ambulances and five Canadian Stationary hospitals in France.

In addition, there is a Canadian Red Cross hospital, to which five motor ambulances are attached at St. Cloud near Paris. This is supplied by a Canadian Red Cross warehouse in Paris which has also made reciprocity arrangements with the French Military Hospitals. Further, the three Canadian Hospitals in the Mediterranean are not lost sight of, and these are supplied from Alexandria.

The Prisoners of War Department has now on its list 1,400 prisoners of war in Germany. To these, fortnightly shipments of food have been sent, and they have been well supplied with blankets, overcoats, underclothes and other winter clothing, which has been very acceptable owing to the severity of the season in Germany.

The Parcels Department sends out a monthly average of over 4,000 parcels of food and clothing. At Xmas 3,500 lbs of turkey and 3,000 pounds of plum pudding were distributed to the Canadian sick and wounded in England and France.

Mr. Morris Macfarlane has enlisted as a despatch rider in the corps being organized by Lt. McKimm.

Mr. Geo. Comba has enlisted with a company of engineers, and left for the city on Monday. He expected to leave very shortly for overseas.

ALMONTE.

From the Gazette.

Mr. D. Garvin has returned from Ottawa, where she spent the winter with her daughter, Mrs. G. Humphreys.

Miss Olive Cavers, of Carleton Place, is the guest of Miss E. Young.

The engagement is announced of Effie Lenore, daughter of Mr. Chas. Warwick, New Westminster, to Mr. Allen Hamilton Wylie, accountant, Bank of Montreal, Port Alberni, B.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Wylie, Almonte, Ont.

A mild case of smallpox has developed at Cedar Hill, the sufferer being Mr. John Dowdall. Where he acquired the disease is a mystery, as he has not been anywhere that it had been. Mr. Dowdall is now recovering, and every care has been taken to prevent a spread of the disease.

Miss Jennie Beach spent the weekend with Carleton Place friends.

A very quiet wedding took place on April 1st in Toronto, when Florence C., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dossenback, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Wallace B. Cumming, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cumming, Almonte, were united in marriage by the Rev. Alexander McLurg, M.A.

In response to an invitation from Granite Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, a number of Companions from Renfrew, Carleton Place and Smiths Falls visited their brethren here on Wednesday evening. A couple of degrees were conferred by members of the local lodge, and the work was highly complimented by Ex. Comp. Henry Cox of Renfrew, Ex. Comp. Connors of Smiths Falls and others who were present. At the close of the business of the lodge the visiting brethren were entertained at a banquet at the Davis House.

Mr. Adam Miller of Cedar Hill met with a very peculiar and dangerous accident on Wednesday. He had gone to see a neighbor's sick cow, and when in the byre another cow came in, and Mr. Miller went to drive her out. But a dog came behind the animal and nipped her on the heels, and made a bound forward and knocked Mr. Miller down, and as he was falling one of her horns entered his mouth and cut a gash an inch-and-a-half long clear through the palate. The only external evidence of the injury was a slight abrasion on the lower lip. It was a narrow escape from what might easily have been a more serious injury, and Mr. Miller is very thankful that he got off so well.

Miss MacLaurie, of Carleton Place, is the new stenographer in Mr. P. A. Craig's law office.

Mr. Geo. Reeves, who has conducted the Renfrew Journal for the past two years, has sold out to Mr. T. T. Shaw, of Chateaufort.

Mr. Kenneth Conn was in town last week paying a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Conn. He has qualified as a lieutenant, and will shortly be attached to one of the overseas battalions.

So far thirty employees of the Rosamond Woolen Co. have enlisted in the various battalions for overseas service. The last to join the colors is Mr. Clifford Goodall, who served in the British navy several years ago.

LANARK.

From the Star.

Mr. Peter Stafford, who recently sold his farm in Drummond, has leased Rev. A. W. Stewart's farm on the outskirts of the village.

Mr. Abe Robinson, part of whose work for many years has been hauling fuel from wood yard to boiler house in the Clyde Woollen Mills, has just given over his duties in that respect to another. An estimate of the wood handled during his filling of the position gives a pile of wood one cord high reaching from Lanark Village to a point forty miles east of Montreal. Under the law of the aggregate, man accomplishes wonderful things, and we think that the record of "Abe" will stand a lot of comparison before another record is found to equal it.

On Thursday, April 6th, Mr. John Purdon, of McDonald's Corners, passed away to his reward. He was born on the 9th line of Dalhousie, on the farm now owned by his son Robert, and had reached the age of 72 years and 9 months.

The City of New York.

A baby is born in New York every four minutes of the twenty-four hours. Every four years New York takes into itself a city the size of Boston or St. Louis.

New York is the largest Jewish city in the world. It is the largest Irish city, there being 674,721 of Irish blood there. There are also 723,333 Germans, 301,422 Austrians and 735,477 Russians in the city.

Every day 290,000 persons arrive or depart from the city through the railroad stations.

Every thirty minutes a new business corporation is formed in New York and every forty-five minutes one is dissolved. There are 3,087 miles of water pipes under the city; the capacity of the reservoirs is 170,000,000 gallons, and the conclusion of the Schuylkill project will add 80,000,000,000 to this.

The Police Department costs $16,241,323. There are 10,674 policemen. The Fire Department costs $9,719,945.10.

The debt of the city is $1,361,483,821.28, greater by more than $250,000,000 than the debt of the United States, and six times the combined debts of Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago.

Young at 85 Years.

To Mr. Wm. Richey of Smiths Falls belongs the distinction, we are sure, of being the youngest old man in the County. To see him going about the streets or to meet and converse with him, one might take him for a man of perhaps sixty-five, and yet on Saturday he celebrated his 85th birthday. Of him it may truly be said that his eyes are not dimmed, his natural strength is but little abated, and his interest in the things of life are undiminished. Rideen Record. Think we could match with Jas. McFadden at 88, Gen. Tait at 85, Peter Cram at 85, or even Dr. Howard and there are others here, too.

Writing from France, a Pembroke boy in the 21st Battalion tells his mother that in parleying from his trench with the front line German trenches, he found one German who spoke good English and who asked where the Canadian came from. On hearing that he was from Pembroke, the German replied: "Why, I know Pembroke. I worked for the Pembroke Lumber Company there." The man refused to disclose his name.

PROFITABLE CROP ROTATION.

Central Aim Should Be to Leave Fields in a Better Condition.

The most profitable crop rotation does not consist merely in changing the crops around from year to year regardless of the relation of the crops to each other. The central aim in all crop rotation systems should be to leave each field in a better state of cultivation, better physical condition, and reasonably free from pests at the end of each rotation cycle.

No hard and fast rotation system can be laid down for any community, but the most profitable system must be worked out for each farm and indeed for each field. There are certain general principles, however, that should be borne in mind in this connection in order to accomplish the most satisfactory results. For soil improvement there should be at least one leguminous crop in each rotation cycle. To this class of plants belong the clovers, alfalfa, peas, beans, etc. There should be also a sufficient quantity of live stock, especially milk cows, on each farm to utilize the roughage and to supply the desired quantity of stable manure, which in addition to green crops plowed under will furnish the necessary amount of humus to the soil. The conditions resulting from this treatment if the soil is properly handled will make the succeeding crops more vigorous and capable of offsetting in some measure at least the effects of any pests that may appear. Again, the successive crops in any rotation should be so selected and arranged that no two upon which the same pest may thrive will be grown in succession. The principles of disease control by means of crop rotation are based upon the fact that certain pests can thrive only on certain kinds of plants. Therefore when the crops are changed and the food supply thereby cut off the pests must perish or be greatly reduced in number.

A Familiar Enemy.

Just now the chinch bug is lying dormant in the winter quarters chosen in early fall. Along the fences, in grass patches, under the fallen leaves of the woods pastures and in a thousand other hiding places the bug waits the coming of spring. Fire set in such places will destroy armies of them. The most effective way of fighting the chinch bug is to fight with fire during the winter, for every one burned in the grass and fence rows there will be a thousand less to cross from wheatfield to cornfield next summer.—Farm Progress.

How to Make a Rag Doll.

The early frost last year caught much of the seed corn, and it must be picked out ear by ear to make sure it is not dead. A simple but accurate seed corn tester is easily made as follows:

Take a strip of muslin about nine inches wide and eighteen inches long for testing five ears, twenty-eight inches long for ten ears and about forty-eight inches long for twenty ears. Mark on it as many two-inch and three-inch divisions as there are ears of corn to be handled in the tester. Number the divisions 1, 2, 3, 4, etc. Make a wick about an inch wide and a foot long of any old cotton cloth.

Number the ears to correspond to the divisions; placing five kernels from ear 1 in space 1, etc. The rag doll should be dampened before placing the seed corn in it. When all the spaces have been filled, carefully roll the rag doll up, starting from the left hand end, making sure that the seeds are not mixed by careless rolling; then, when the last row of seed has been rolled in, place the wick in the rag doll, letting about eight inches of it hang out, and finish rolling to the end. It should then be dipped in water, rolled in a wet towel, and the wick placed in a glass of water. Several rag dolls, testing fifty to one hundred ears, may thus be placed in the same towel. Feel of the towel every day, and if it is not moist dip it in a bucket of water and correct the condition that caused it to dry. In about six days the test is ready to count, and all ears showing weak, dead, or moldy kernels should be thrown into the feed box.

A commercial traveller called upon a grocer at Ganeshead the other day, and at the same time a poor old woman entered soliciting alms. The grocer, wishing to play a joke on the traveler, told the woman "to ask the master," at the same time pointing to the commercial traveler.

The traveler was thunderstruck for the moment, but regaining his self-possession, at once said, turning to the grocer, who was a very small man: "Boy, give this poor woman six-pence out of the till."

The grocer paid.—Tit-Bits.

What Economy Means.

What economy means has been put in concrete form by the Chicago Great Western Railroad, which has recently compiled facts to show what may be compassed in saving the little things. The following items show what must be done in service, expressed in haulage of one average ton of freight, to produce the value of the articles mentioned when lost or ruined:

Two-cent postage stamp, equivalent to hauling a ton of freight 3 1/2 miles; lead pencil, 2 miles; track spike, 2 miles; track bolt, 3 1/2 miles; one pound of waste, 1 1/2 miles; white lantern globe, 20 miles; red lamp globe, 75 miles; lamp chimney, 10 1/2 miles; station broom, 35 miles; water pail, 20 miles; track shovel, 90 miles.

TUESDAY, APRIL 18TH, 1916

THE WEEK IN THE LEGISLATURE.

A Bill has been introduced by the Government to provide for the full development of power at Niagara Falls. The premier described the object of the bill as providing for the development of the unallotted water at Niagara Falls belonging to the Province of Ontario, in accordance with the recommendations of the Hydro Commission. Mr. Rowell, on behalf of the Opposition, expressed concurrence in the general principle that the Province should retain control of all undeveloped power for the benefit of the people of the province.

The "McGarry" Bill, appointing a Comptroller of the Accounts of the Hydro Commission, has been given its second reading. It provides for the appointment by the Government of a Comptroller to the Commission, and involves practically the control by the Government of the financial affairs and methods of accounting of the Hydro Commission. The Bill is likely to be the subject of much controversy, and in some quarters is regarded as equivalent to an expression of want of confidence by the Government in the Commission. The principle, however, of too much control by the Government is not all favored by the municipalities concerned.

TEMPERANCE ACT.
The Government has announced that Wholesale Vendors employed by the Government will dispense liquor in the Province under the new Act, as the wholesale druggists were disinclined to handle the business.

Another feature of the Bill, which was characterized by Mr. Hanna as "ridiculous," and by Mr. Sam Clarke as "a farce," is the provision which allows alcoholic beverages to be shipped out of the Province and re-imported. The question will receive further consideration with a view to discovering a solution of the difficulty.

A new clause has been incorporated in the Bill, covering future hotel accommodation. "Standard" hotels have been provided for under a nominal license fee of $1 per annum; and if the clause passes, these hotels will secure the exclusive privilege of vending soft drinks, cigars, etc.

TREATMENT OF ALLIED SOLDIERS.
Mr. Rowell raised a very important question in the House in urging that the Government extend the powers of the Soldiers' Aid Commission to include Italian, French, Russian and other servants of the Allies who had left Ontario to go to the war, so that on their return they might enjoy the benefits of the Commission's activities in common with native-born returned soldiers or those of British origin. That the matter had not occurred to the Government, but was recognized as of the utmost importance, was evident from the manner in which the Premier seized upon Mr. Rowell's suggestion and promised its adoption.

MEDICAL STUDENTS.
A further item of foresight on the part of Mr. Rowell was his plea to the Government to permit fifth year medical students now in military service at Saloniki to take their lectures from officers in command of the University Base Hospital there, and so complete their courses and receive their degrees after examination by the officers in charge of the hospital. The fairness of this suggestion was so apparent that the Premier promised careful consideration, and intimated that so far as legislation was concerned he thought the widest possible latitude should be allowed so as to place no handicap on young men serving their King and Country. The Minister of Education promised to bring the matter to the attention of the University authorities.

Regulation 17 again came up for discussion during the week, and the Acting Minister of Education (Hon. T. Howard Ferguson) attempted to explain the regulation to Mr. S. Ducharme, M.P.P. for North Essex. It transpired from an inquiry of Dr. Pyne by Mr. Rowell that there are about ninety-three English-French Schools in the Province unable to secure qualified teachers.

Before the Public Accounts Committee, Hon. T. W. McGarry intimated that the Government had decided to have books and accounts of the Hydro Commission audited by the firm of E. R. Clarkson & Co., as a result of the controversy which had arisen over its methods of accounting.

Dr. Pyne has introduced a Bill respecting compulsory school attendance for adolescents under the age of 17.

TURK CAPITAL RAIDED

Allied Airmen Bomb Constantinople Powder Factory.

After a Flight of Three Hundred Miles Against Adverse Winds, Three British Naval Aeroplanes Drop Bombs on Munitions Works—Adrianople is Also Visited and Railway Station Bombed.

LONDON, April 17.—Starting out from a British naval base "somewhere in the Aegean," three British naval aeroplanes flew to Constantinople last Friday, and bombed a powder factory and aeroplane hangars in the Turkish capital. Despite wind, rain, and thunderstorms, all three returned safely, having achieved the greatest aerial feat of the war, as far as distance is concerned. The flight to Constantinople and back covered a distance of more than 300 miles. At the same time another British seaplane flew to Adrianople, where bombs were dropped on the railway station. This machine, too, returned unharmed.

The Turkish War Office admitted in a statement Sunday night that "villages near Constantinople" were bombed by two enemy aeroplanes, but made no mention of the attack on the hangars in the capital itself. Last Friday's raid was the second substantial achievement of the new type of British naval plane since the outbreak of the war. On March 27 last a squadron of five seaplanes was conveyed across the North Sea by warships and bombed the "home" of the German planes in the Province of Schleswig, east of the Island of Sylt. Both in point of distance covered and in that of success the visit to Constantinople—the first to be made by British aircraft—and Adrianople overshadows the raid on the Schleswig hangars, for from the latter only two out of the five machines returned, while last Friday none of the planes was harmed.

The official report of the British Admiralty on the Constantinople raid reads:

"On Friday evening three of our naval aeroplanes carried out a raid on Constantinople. Bombs were dropped on the Zeilkul powder factory and aeroplane hangars. Another naval aeroplane visited Adrianople and dropped bombs on the railway station. All returned safely.

The flight to Constantinople and back measured 300 miles. Although fine weather prevailed at the start, an adverse condition supervened, with wind, rain, and thunderstorms. The aeroplane raid on Constantinople is the longest flight in the course of the war, the previous record having been held by a French airman, who flew from Nancy to Stuttgart and back, a distance of 240 miles.

Flight Commander J. R. W. Smyth-Piggott, who led the Constantinople raiders, already has received the Distinguished Service Order Medal for an exploit last November, when he attacked the railway bridge of the Orient railway at Kuleli-Burgas, Bulgaria.

This is the second time that the Zeilkul powder mills have been attacked, they having been bombed by a submarine which visited Constantinople.

The Constantinople version reads:

"On Friday night two hostile aeroplanes ascended off the Dardanelles and flew over Constantinople at a considerable height. They dropped several incendiary bombs on two villages nearby, without results."

BIG DRIVE FOR DVINSK.

Hindenberg is Putting Forward Every Effort to Break Line.

LONDON, April 17.—The warfare along the whole northern Russian front continues with the greatest intensity, and military critics here find indications in the regrouping of the German forces and preparations now in progress behind the German lines that Field Marshal von Hindenburg is about to make a maximum effort to take Dvinsk. On Saturday night the Russians took the offensive in the sector comprising the village of Givovka, occupying the hills to the south. The Germans launched numerous counter-attacks, but all were repulsed.

"The battlefield between these hills and the enemy's trenches were covered with German dead," declares the Petrograd official report, which adds:

"During the fighting Wednesday night at Trzibouchovize, Austrians armed not only with rifles and bayonets, but with daggers, approached our trenches. They threw away their rifles and raised their arms, crying out that they surrendered. When they reached close quarters with our troops they used their daggers and force hand-to-hand fighting ensued."

Often Raise Price of the Captives.

LONDON, April 17.—Discussing the prospects of the release of a prominent Canadian who is held a prisoner by the Germans, Mr. W. L. Griffith, secretary to the High Commissioner, deprecates newspaper publicity being given to such negotiations. There have already been several instances, he asserted, where men might have been liberated, but the Germans, noting the importance attached to these personages, had hardened their hearts and were encouraged to ask higher bids.

British Success South of La Bassee.

LONDON, April 17.—Sir Douglas Haig reports that after the explosion of two mines British troops on Saturday night carried out a small raid against the enemy trenches south of the Bethune-La Bassee road with satisfactory results.

On Saturday night the Germans made several bombing attacks on the British craters at St. Etol, but they were all repulsed. Five mines blown up by the enemy opposite Hulluch did slight damage.

LANARK SPRING ASSIZES.

The Spring Assizes for Lanark County were held at Perth last Tuesday afternoon, the Hon. F. R. Latchford presiding.

Stiff Lotok, of Port Elmsley, who is a native of Poland, Galicia, was recommended by the court for naturalization as a Canadian citizen.

The criminal side was represented by a number of Italians from Smiths Falls. James Brondo was sent to the county goal by Police Magistrate Sparham on a charge of attempting to murder Sale-mandro Nicandro on Dec. 12, 1915.

The Grand Jury brought in a true bill, and Brondo pleaded not guilty. In this case Frank Spinello, merchant of Smiths Falls, was sworn as interpreter, and the court-room audience had a good example of the difference between the rapid-fire Italian language and that used by Canadians.

Mr. Gordon Paul and his little niece, Yola McDougall, are visiting friends in Poland.

VILLA REPORTED DEAD.

U. S. Officers Think Statement is Merely a Carranza Ruse.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—News reached Washington Sunday from Mexican Consul Garcia at El Paso that Villa, the Mexican bandit, had died from his wounds, and that his body was being dug up and was being conducted by a special train to Chihuahua.

As the reports are based entirely on information received from Mexican sources, and as details are lacking, Secretary Lansing declined to express an opinion as to whether the information is true.

Not only has Gen. Pershing, whose headquarters are in the region where Villa's body was supposed to have been discovered, failed to report his death, but not a word on the subject has been received from Consul Marston P. Letcher at Chihuahua.

State Department officials admitted Sunday night that if the report proves to be true, there will be no further reason for the standpoint of the Administration to keep the troops in Mexico, and that they would be withdrawn at once.

Press reports which have preceded the despatch from General Funston purport to disclose alarming features of the report, the most sensational of which is that it was not an unorganized mob of citizens that attacked the American troops, but an organized body of 150 Carranza soldiers from the Sierra garrison.

PROGRESS ON TIGRIS.

General Lake Reports Steady Advance of Relief Expedition.

LONDON, April 17.—Further progress in the efforts of the British army advancing up the Tigris to the relief of the force besieged at Kut-el-Amara was reported Sunday in the following official statement:

"Lieut.-General Sir Percy Lake reports that on April 14 a heavy gale blew all day. On the 15th gradual and steady progress was made on the right bank, and the enemy's advanced lines were driven in and occupied. The enemy left many dead and a considerable number of prisoners in the captured trenches."

Drain of War Is Not So Great as Loss of Child Life, Says Bernard Shaw

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, the Irish author and playwright, who has by reason of his remarks on the war earned successfully the condemnation and the approval of the British public, draws some comparisons between the losses to the nation in times of peace and in times of war. His conclusions are startling.

"Which is the greater—the drain of war or the drain of peace?" he asks. "In an intelligent and well-organized nation the question would be ridiculous, but we are not an intelligent and well-organized nation."

"The drain of war is shown by the figures just published. We have lost 100,000 men killed in the war. If we take for the purposes of comparison the first year of war we had under arms in that period 3,000,000 men. Seventy-five thousand men were killed. It is the military tradition that a country is defeated when it loses 20 per cent. of its men. We have lost only 2 1/2 per cent.

"Take the other side. Of the 800,000 babies born in England every year 100,000 die before they are one year old. This means dirty milk or no milk at all—slums, bad food, and ignorance. We lose 100,000 before one year of age; we drop another 200,000 before they reach the age of fifteen, just when they are becoming industrial producers and available for military service.

"That is 37 1/2 per cent. destroyed in peace for the 2 1/2 per cent. destroyed by the whole German army firing shot and shell at them."

Mule Beats Camel.

The mule has proved a far more reliable and useful transport animal than the camel in the Mesopotamia campaign. If beasts were decorated the mule would be covered with ribbons. He knows not defeat. His hardness is proverbial. None of the plagues of Mesopotamia have affected his sang-froid.

The camel so far has been but an auxiliary. The breed used in Mesopotamia, called "Judi," is not, like his "Bedawi" brother, trained to go without water, but he is proof against the ubiquitous camel fly and has certain other virtues of his own. In spite of his wobbly extremities and grotesquely proportioned limbs, the camel is a dainty beast. His haughty gait and supercilious glances are generally attributed to pose; as a matter of fact, they are the expression of an inward and unsuspected delicacy. Too often the camel's uncouth bulk gives a false impression of hardness. He is not hardy.

He is brittle, and will break his leg kicking against a stone, and he will split up and die if his legs split apart in the mud. In Mesopotamia snow kills him. He is as sensitive to damp as a city clerk, and will catch a cold if asked to sleep in a swamp. But well cared for, sufficiently equipped and tactfully treated, he is second only to the mule as a beast of burden.

Children Learn Russianism.

The Tag of Berlin has been discussing the alarming increase all over Germany of crime among children and young people since the war. It seems to be beyond doubt that a wave of criminality has swept over the rising products of "Kultur," and that it takes the form of roving bands engaged in robberies, accompanied by violence. "A most naive explanation is that 'the children are imitating the soldiers.' We must take it, therefore, that some of the Huns who have been wounded or sent home on holiday leave have been bragging about what they did in the way of plundering and ill-using unfortunate Belgians and Poles, and that the recital of their exploits fired the imagination of juvenile listeners. The latter, not being able to practise on the enemy, have tried their practice hands on their own people.

Kaiser's Peace Terms.

It is reported here that the Berlin banker, Herr von Bleischoeder, has informed German-American bankers that the Kaiser is prepared to discuss peace on the basis of the cession of Alsace-Lorraine to France in exchange for one of her colonies, such as Madagascar; Russia to have Constantinople, with a protectorate over Turkey in exchange for Poland, which Germany and Austria would divide. No war indemnity is mentioned in the alleged proposals.

Maunoury Came Back To Do His Share in the Army of Revenge

ONE of France's most popular army leaders is General Maunoury, the victor of the Ourcq. He took a brilliant part in the early phases of the campaign on the Belgian frontier, and was afterwards in command of the army south-west of Paris. It was this army that attacked the German right flank at the battle of the Marne. Von Kluck's right was held in a fiercely contested battle lasting three days, whilst the British drove the Germans across the Pettit.

General Maunoury has declared that September 9th, 1914, was the happiest day of his life. "When I saw the Germans retreat," he said, "I said to myself, 'now it does not matter what happens, I am satisfied.'" He was wounded last spring in the trenches of the Aisne, but is now recovering from his injuries. To some villagers at his country seat who recently gave him an enthusiastic reception, he said, "A little place will be found for me at the front, I hope."

General Maunoury was 67 years of age and on the retired list when the war came, but he responded with joy to the call to fight again for France as he had done in 1870. He has given his best years to the training for service of the army of revenge.

General Maunoury's great services will not be forgotten by the nation, whose gratitude has just been expressed in an address presented to him by the Deputies of the Department of the Seine, in the following terms:

General.—To-day, September 9th, 1915, the group of the Deputies of the Seine being met together, we all have your name on our lips. We are thinking of a former sitting held in this same room at the Palais Bourbon on September 9th, 1914. On that day each of us said as he entered:

"There is good hope if Maunoury can hold out on the Ourcq."

Maunoury did hold out on the Ourcq, and the German wave of invasion was broken. On September 10th, as you watched the enemy's rout, you uttered these words: "This is what I have been waiting for 44 years." Your expectation had been long, but the gratitude of the people of Paris will be eternal. We also have the honor to represent them in Parliament come to, give you this assurance.

Never will these few words be disconnected in their minds: "Maunoury on the Ourcq and Paris saved from the Germans."

Russia's Many Races.

The population of Russia is more varied than that of any country of the world. It consists of over one hundred and forty different peoples, nationalities, and races, all differing in their customs, religions, language, and dress. There are: Fifty million Great Russians, or actual Russians; "Muscovites" (the inhabitants of the former Grand Duchy of Moskov) now ruling all Russia.

Twenty million Little Russians, formerly a part of Poland.

Twelve million Poles.

Six million white Russians; formerly a part of Poland.

Two million Lithuanians; formerly a part of Poland.

Two million Germans.

One million and a half Armenians.

One million and a half Rumanians.

Five million Jews.

Sixty million of 130 other different nations and races, as: Tartars, Kurds, Bashkirs, Samoyedes, Kirghizes, Kalmucks, Turks, Bulgars, Greeks, Gypsies, and 120 others. Mostly all of these live in groups and clans on their ancient territory.

Respirator on a Pig.

How a respirator saved a pig's life is described in a letter written home by a Thatcham soldier, who says: "We are having pork for dinner. It was like this: A comrade caught a little pig a few days ago. Afterwards we were gassed, so had to don our respirators.

"We also put one on the pig. It was the most comical thing I ever saw, and it caused no end of fun. One of our fellows stayed with it all night to keep the respirator on, but it was worth the trouble.

"It saved the pig's life, and also our dinner."

MONKS TURN TO CZAR. Religious Brethren of Mount Athos Seek Protection.

The monks of Mount Athos have appealed to the Holy Mother Church of Russia for protection. Disturbed in their quiet unworldly lives by the approach of the world war to a Balkan battlefield several months ago, the Holy Synod of the Community, which constitutes the thoroughly democratic government of the twenty convents, long deliberated the peril threatening them. They are not ignorant of war. At one time their convent walls were mounted with cannon, and in the early part of the last century they took, with sad results for themselves, a prominent part in the Greek war for independence from Ottoman rule.

War, therefore, is a very positive horror to the monks of Mount Athos. So after due deliberation they decided to send two of their presidents (of whom there are four named in rotation from each of the convents each year) to Athens to lay their fears before the representative of the secular head of the Greek church. In pursuance of this decision, armed with a loaf of black bread, a little paper of salt, and an ikon of great beauty, newly painted with loving monkish care, the two black-robed elders of the ancient religious republic left the protected peace of their cliffs and walls, sea girt, and ventured the troubled waters of the Aegean to put their difficulties before Prince Demidoff, Imperial Russian Minister to Greece.

The secular head and most powerful defender of the Greek Church in the world outside of Mount Athos is the Emperor of All the Russias. To him in person they could not go. So they went as best they could to his representative, dressed in their simple flowing robes, their pot hats like outworn "tiles" turned upside down, and their uncut hair and patriarchal beards.

And the Russian Minister received them, gave them food and drink in his exquisite palace in Athens—in return for their bread and salt, and, treating them with great respect, assured them their case would be put before the Emperor himself, and that a contingent of Russian marines would be sent to guard the peninsula if they had to come all the way from Archangel to get there.

The monks in a vague sort of way know that their treasures of golden images, brilliant studded altar utensils and manuscripts centuries and centuries old are sufficient to tempt almost any man. They fear not perhaps an organized attack, but a raid against which their hired guard of fifty soldiers would be helpless. So a second deputation has been despatched to Athens, and some of the more precious of their sacred possessions—their bits of the true cross, their saintly mementoes of the holy founders of the various convents, around which shrine after shrine has been built through the ages—have been placed in the security of the steel safe of the Imperial Russian Legation at Athens.

Certainly one of the most extraordinary and beautiful sights of the whole world is convent-crowned Mount Athos. The Chalcidic peninsula, stretched south into the Aegean Sea like three fingers of a great hand, has the mountain itself as the nail on the easternmost finger. But the mountain is merely a sort of lofty marble white and oaken green landmark, on the garlanded sides of which are hundreds of shrines and huts of individual anchorites. The whole peninsula itself is the garden ground of twenty convents, most of them either at the water's edge or perched high upon cliffs or mounted on the terraced hillsides overlooking the water. Their architecture, their extraordinary settings, stages a scene for the passer-by on the deck of the coasting steamer rarely to be equalled in the entire world.

The Battle of a Week.

The battle of a week was the great conflict at Tours in which Charles Martel overthrew the Saracens. A. D. 732. The members of the Saracen army are variously estimated at from 400,000 to 700,000, and the historians say that 375,000 were killed on the field. It is suspected that these figures are a gross exaggeration, but it is certain that few battles of history have been either so bloody or so decisive.

Production and Thrift

"CANADA from her abundance can help supply the Empire's needs, and this must be a comforting thought for those upon whom the heavy burden of directing the Empire's affairs has been laid. Gain or no gain the course before the farmers of Canada is as clear as it was last year—they must produce abundantly in order to meet the demands that may be made, and I believe this to be especially true in regard to live stock, the world's supply of which must be particularly affected in this vast struggle. Stress and strain may yet be in store for us all before this tragic conflict is over, but not one of us doubts the issue, and Canadians will do their duty in the highest sense of that great word."—HON. MARTIN BURRELL, Minister of Agriculture.

"MODERN war is made by resources, by money, by foodstuffs, as well as by men and by munitions. While war is our first business, it is the imperative duty of every man in Canada to produce all that he can, to work doubly hard while our soldiers are in the trenches, in order that the resources of the country may not only be conserved, but increased, for the great struggle that lies before us. 'Work and Save' is a good motto for War-time."—SIR THOMAS WHITE, Minister of Finance.

THE CALL OF EMPIRE COMES AGAIN IN 1916

We must feed ourselves, feed our soldiers, and help feed the Allies. The need is greater in 1916 than it was in 1915. The difficulties are greater, the task is heavier, the need is more urgent, the call to patriotism is louder—therefore be thrifty and produce to the limit.

Bruce got home long before his father's return. In spite of his feeling concerning his father's fears, Bruce was worried. As for his mother, she had always opposed her husband's entry into public life, and she was worried every time he was a few minutes late in getting home. Bruce tried to calm her increasing nervousness, but he himself was worried, and as it grew dark he stood in the hall, looking for the rays from the headlights of the car that would herald his father's coming. At last he saw them, far down the drive that led to the house. His heart leaped happily, and he went back to call his mother.

"Here he comes, mother. It's all right, of course!" he cried. "You were silly to be worried."

She was in the conservatory at the back of the house, cutting flowers for the dinner table, and he had to go well away from the front door to find her. Then he slipped an arm around her waist, and they walked through the great hall together. They heard the car stop outside, and heard Dudley Larnigan's voice giving some order. The car started again, and then outside there was a muffled cry. Mrs. Larnigan screamed. Bruce leaped forward. The door burst open, and his father staggered in, clutching convulsively at his side, and fell. Bruce took one look. He saw the blood that stained the floor, and then, as his mother, transformed by the need of action and gaining control of herself, went to work to stanch the flow of blood, Bruce raced for the telephone. He gave a number and waited impatiently for the answer.

"Hello, hello!" he cried at last. "Dr. Morgan? Hurry, over here, doctor. Bruce Larnigan talking. My father's been badly hurt. It's very serious, I'm afraid. Yes, bring your instruments."

Then he helped his mother to do what little there was to be done before the doctor's arrival. Together they got the wounded man on a couch and made him as comfortable as they could. He had fainted and was no longer conscious. His breathing was heavy, and a growing, spreading grayness in his cheeks told Bruce, little as he was used to such scenes, that there was little hope, if any.

Then Bruce telephoned to the police. But he could give no clue—he had not taken the time to try to find the assassin. But then, as he heard the doctor's car chugging up outside, Bruce tremendous effort, he spoke again, one word. "Mary!" he said feebly.

With tears streaming down his cheeks Bruce turned to his mother. She leaned over, and it was in her arms that Dudley Larnigan died. And, standing over his body, Bruce swore that he would be true to the trust his father had imposed upon him—that he would avenge his death and bring his murderers to justice.

Against the advice of his friends, against the pleadings of Dorothy Maxwell, against his mother's urgings even, Bruce stuck to his determination.

The murder of Dudley Larnigan had thrown the reform elements of the city into a panic. This terrible and sinister proof of the powers of the forces of graft had caused a revulsion of sentiment. Men who had assailed the dead district attorney as a fanatic and a hysterical demagogue for his great speech attacking graft had to admit that there had been some basis for his sensational accusations. But these same men were afraid to move. So it had been easy for Bruce to secure the reform nomination for district attorney. No one else wanted it. The graft syndicate had made it too plain that peril as well as honor went with the office.

Bruce was making a splendid campaign, too, against the forces of graft. All the lower, vicious elements of the city were arrayed against him. From the dives, the gambling houses, the haunts of the drug sellers and the men and women who lived on vice and depravity, on crime and ignorance, the forces of evil sent out their cohorts against him. But Bruce, dwelling always on his father's martyrdom, on his own determination not only to avenge the dead man, but at whatever risk to himself to continue to fight against all the forces that were exploiting the poor and the ignorant, made a great impression and increased his own popularity tremendously.

He developed into an effective speaker, and his bitter, ringing speeches made many converts to his cause. Dorothy Maxwell had opposed his entrance into the campaign since she feared for his safety. Dorothy was beginning to be haunted by frightful suspicions, suspicious she had not dared as yet to communicate even to Bruce.

But once he was in the fight she stood by him. Ungrudgingly she consented to the postponement of their marriage that was made inevitable since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman here go to the polls with some man and see that he votes right—for Larnigan and decency, against graft and corruption." Thousands of women took up that cry, and the graft organization, which had expected a walkover when it had eliminated Dudley Larnigan, began to be worried and to see that it had removed one only to raise up another in his place whose youth made him even more formidable and dangerous.

And meanwhile Dorothy grew more and more suspicious. She learned that her father was bitterly opposed to Bruce's election.

"I won't have you taking part in his campaign," he said. "You make me look ridiculous."

He said this in the presence of Stanford Stone, but Dorothy was not afraid to speak her mind.

"I have a right to live my own life!" she flashed. "Why are you so opposed to Bruce?"

"Because he's a demagogue, a dangerous man," said Maxwell. "He, a rich man, is siding with the poor—the Socialists and the anarchists. He is a traitor to his own class."

"Now, Maxwell, Miss Dorothy is entitled to her own view," said Stone soothingly. But Dorothy had begun to distrust Stone. She refused to accept him as an ally. Bruce had told her of a discovery he had made. Stone, while pretending to be friendly, had secretly contributed heavily to the campaign fund of the opposition.

Election day came. Bruce, in his office, waited, knowing he had done his best. The result was with the voters. Would they trust him? Would they give him the power he required to do his work? He was waiting for Dorothy. She came at last.

"You're going to win, Bruce," she said as he took her in his arms. "I know it. I feel it!"

And then came Stone.

"Well," he said, "how does it look?"

"Bad for you," said Bruce uncompromisingly.

Stone laughed, with an excellent assumption of amusement.

"My dear boy," he said, "why do you mistrust me? I'm your friend."

Bruce looked at him. And just then there was a scuffle at the door. A rough looking man burst in and made for Bruce, waving a knife. Stone with a quick leap grappled with him, seized his hand and beat the wrist back till the knife dropped. Then quite calmly he pushed him out.

"Just an election rowdy," he said, with a smile. He handed Bruce the knife. "Perhaps you'll believe I'm your friend now. Well, I'll leave you." "I'm grateful, Mr. Stone," said Bruce. But he was puzzled as he looked at Dorothy. Then his eyes fell on a bit of paper the thug had dropped. He picked it up and cried out in surprise and delight. "Look!" he said.

He gave it to Dorothy, and together they looked at it. It was a typewritten slip and read:

Come alone. For safety we will admit but one man. Will outline plan regarding Larnigan should he be elected. Number 15 Hester street. Rap one, then two, then one. THE FIFTEEN.

"It's my chance," cried Bruce, with glowing eyes—"my chance to get on the trail of this secret enemy at last! I'll go!"

"Bruce, there'll be danger!" said Dorothy.

"Then I must face it!" he cried. "My dear, you know I must!"

"Then I'll go with you!" cried Dorothy.

That evening before the count was finished Bruce gave the signal and was admitted to a dive that looked like a fit meeting place for conspirators. Dorothy attempted to accompany him, but was thrust back.

"We thought you'd come," said a man. "Mr. Larnigan, you walked into a trap. Now, you have one chance. Sign this paper agreeing to obey the commands of the fifteen or your political career is at an end; even your life is at stake."

Bruce stared at him, then laughed. "Do you think," he said, "you and your cutthroats can intimidate me?"

"Mr. Larnigan!" he said.

He made for the door.

"Stop him, Bradford!" cried some one near the door. The man who had accosted him struggled with Bruce.

Outside came a pounding on the door. Dorothy in terror called for the police. As the door burst open a shot rang out. The police snatched Bruce from his assailants.

"Mr. Larnigan!" the sergeant said.

"Yes, Larnigan!" said he.

"Officer, arrest these men and call the coroner. Bill Bradford is dead."

As Bruce and Dorothy left the room Bruce entered Bradford's name on a page of a memorandum book headed, "The Men Who Have Paid."

He looked toward Dorothy, smiled and then said: "I wonder who will be the next to pay the penalty? Thank God, I have rid the community of one of the fifteen!"

JOKING RELATIVES.

Peculiar and Embarrassing Custom of the Crow Indians.

The Crow Indians are divided into thirteen clans. In former times the number was probably greater. These groups are called by nickname-like designation, such as Whistling Waters, They Bring Game Without Having Killed It, Kicked In Their Stomach, and so forth. Every individual belongs to his mother's clan, and it is considered highly improper to marry a person of one's own clan, since all the marriageable women of that group are reckoned as belonging to the status of either a mother or a sister.

Those individuals whose fathers belong to the same clan stand to each other in a very special relation, which for want of a better name may be called the "joking relationship." They are privileged to play pranks and practical jokes on each other without giving offense, says the Southern Farmer. More particularly is it the function of one of them to administer a stinging rebuke when the other has transgressed some rule of tribal morality or etiquette.

In such a case the "joker" will bide his time until some public occasion arises. Then he will boldly come forward and twit the culprit with his deed in the face of the assembled throng and to his utter discomfiture. Against this punishment there is no redress, for nothing said by a joking relative can be resented. The only thing a man can do is to wait for an offense on the part of his denouncer and then treat him to a dose of his own medicine.

Different.

"They say marriage is a lottery," remarked the morose young man.

"It isn't," replied Miss Cayenne. "In a lottery you can go on buying tickets."

After taking 1000 ZUTOO TABLETS Says they are Harmless

Mrs. (Dr.) Shurtleff, of Coaticook, says "Zutoo Tablets must have cured 500 of my headaches, for I have taken 1000 tablets. After trying every remedy within reach, I discarded them all four years ago for ZUTOO, which I have taken ever since. I find the tablets a harmless and efficient cure for all kinds of headache." 25 cents per box—at all dealers.

The Oil in Tobacco. Although the Havana or Havana seed tobaccos are low in nicotine, they are high in oil. The settlement in a pipe stem or the brown stain obtained from blowing tobacco smoke through the meshes of a handkerchief is not nicotine, as commonly supposed, but is in reality tobacco oil, nicotine only being obtained in extract by an elaborate process of distillation and double distillation. The oil in cigar tobacco prevents the smoke being inhaled, as it would cause a strangulation and painful irritation.

How to avoid Operations

These Three Women Tell How They Escaped the Dreadful Ordeal of Surgical Operations.

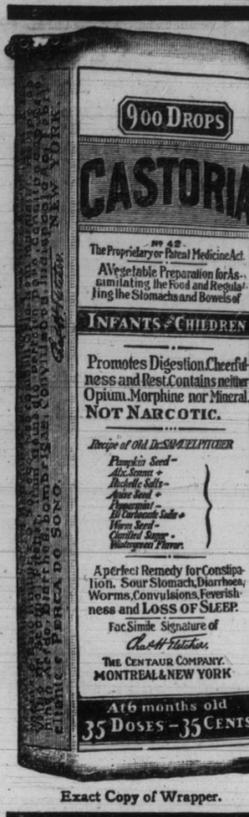

Hospitals are great and necessary institutions, but they should be the last resort for women who suffer with ills peculiar to their sex. Many letters on file in the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., prove that a great number of women after they have been recommended to submit to an operation have been made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here are three such letters. All sick women should read them.

Marinette, Wis.—"I went to the doctor and he told me I must have an operation for a female trouble, and I had to have it done as I had been married only a short time. I would have terrible pains and my hands and feet were cold all the time. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was cured, and I feel better in every way. I give you permission to publish my name because I am so thankful that I feel well again." —Mrs. FRED BEINKE, Marinette, Wis.

Detroit, Mich.—"When I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was so run down with female troubles that I could not do anything, and our doctor said I would have to undergo an operation. I could hardly walk without help so when I read about the Vegetable Compound and what it had done for others I thought I would try it. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and used them according to directions. They helped me and today I am able to do all my work and I am well." —Mrs. THOS. DWYER, 989 Milwaukee Ave., East, Detroit, Mich.

Bellevue, Pa.—"I suffered more than tongue can tell with terrible bearing down pains and inflammation. I tried several doctors and they all told me the same story, that I never could get well without an operation and I just dreaded the thought of that. I also tried a good many other medicines that were recommended to me and none of them helped me until a friend advised me to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. The first bottle helped, I kept taking it and now I don't know what it is to be sick any more and I am picking up in weight. I am 20 years old and weigh 145 pounds. It will be the greatest pleasure to me if I can have the opportunity to recommend it to any other suffering woman." —Miss IRENE FROELICHER, 1923 Manhattan St., North Side, Bellevue, Pa.

If you would like special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Bruce Was Making a Splendid Campaign.

went to the door and flung it open. Pinned to the door was a note written on rough paper in an unformed hand.

"Compliments of the fifteen!"

That was all. But it was enough. Bruce shuddered with terror and remorse as he realized that his father had been right—that he had been marked for death by an implacable organization, which had struck him down at last on his own doorstep. Then the doctor came. At the sight of Larnigan he looked grave. Gently he examined the wound.

"I'm sorry," he said, his voice showing his emotion. "There is nothing I can do—except perhaps to bring him to before—before he—he goes."

Bruce, speechless, nodded, and the doctor bent down and used a hypodermic needle. In a few moments its effect was manifest. Dudley Larnigan's eyes opened, and he reached out a hand gropingly. Bruce took it and bent down to listen.

"You will believe—now"—he said painfully and with a mighty effort. "It is the work of the fifteen—the graft syndicate. Hunt them down—free this land of this mighty graft trust. Finish my work—run for district attorney!" His voice died away; then, with a

BACKYARD GARDENS.

Every citizen can render service in the production of foodstuffs. Even in the heart of populous cities something can frequently be done. Cellars and roofs have been utilized for this purpose in New York. One fact worth bearing in mind is that every ounce of needed produce grown is so much added to the wealth of the country. If some part of the energy of every householder in Canada were bent upon producing something edible, no matter how small, thousands of tons of valuable produce would be forthcoming, all of which whether consumed in the household or not, would help to make available for use in other ways an equal quantity and would aid in modifying the cost of living. Last year considerable progress was made in the appropriation of seemingly waste land in towns and cities to useful purposes. Considerable success was achieved and this year it is not to be doubted the experiment will be extended with greater results. In fact in many centres plans made last fall or during the winter are already being carried out.

Germany has laid down utilization of the land, every foot of land, as one of her first principles. Every inch of land, according to the Teutonic proclamation, that is not used is so much of the country's resources wasted. France has adopted a regulation to the effect that every bit of space must be used for production; failing this being done by the owner the state is to take possession. Britain has given orders that golf courses and all meadow land are to be used for grazing purposes, and that previous pastures are to be put down in crops. Private parks are also being wooded out and the land devoted to practical agriculture. A campaign is being conducted, having for its object the utilization of backyard gardens and all manner of vacant land. Thus the chief belligerents are setting the world an example in production and thrift that Canada would be wise to profit by as widely as possible, and that municipalities and public bodies should do their utmost to encourage.

Scores of reports of the operations carried on in the season of 1915 by small householders speak of produce being grown worth from twenty-five to fifty dollars, every dollar of which meant so much added to the wealth of the country as well as saved in the cost of living. Financial profit is not the only gain forthcoming. Lessons of industry and thrift are inculcated and the whole household, from the oldest to the youngest, come under the influence of those qualities. They also have the gratification of eating fresh vegetables, the enjoyment of which is tremendously enhanced by the proud knowledge that they are home grown. What the families cannot eat themselves they have the pleasure of giving or selling to their neighbors or sending to some charity. It is hard to imagine any greater or more enduring satisfaction than a household in modest circumstances can experience than that to be derived as the reward of loving industry in a backyard garden.

School Matters Discussed.

A special meeting of the School Board was held last night to discuss the high and public school inspectors' reports. It was suggested that any shortage in supplies in either school be attended to at once. The question of water supply for the Dufferin Ward school was left in abeyance until the commission decided upon the mains on Victoria street. In Victoria Ward the mains pass the school, and the Contingent Committee were instructed to get an estimate and report on cost of water and sewerage for that school. Messrs. McCallan, McNeely and the Chairman were appointed a committee to prepare a programme for Empire Day. The high school inspector's report was considered satisfactory for this year only, certain accessories to be provided, but a new school is imperative if Carleton Place is to remain on the list. This phase of the report is to be considered later.
