Penny was apparently careful about those with whom he communicated, and made a careful study of the men. He then wrote them letters, offering $10 bills at $20 a hundred. $5 bills at $25 per $100, and $1 bills at $30 per hundred. He gave no name, and asked all answers to be sent to G. B. T., Box 108, Owen Sound. The writer put no name on his letter, either, but was known by a number.

One letter too many was written. A county constable was put on the case, and soon was led to believe that B. G. T. was Penny. The latter was arrested, as he asked for the letters in Box 108.

THE TURKISH VERSION. The Turkish legation at Washington has received from the Sublime Porte the following telegram under yesterday's date: "The Armenian revolutionists of Pinkan, a village situated in the Province of Sivas, after putting fire to their own houses, ran away. But they returned again and put fire to the houses that had not been burned the first time. The local authorities took every precaution to extinguish the fire. The object of the revolutionists is evidently to make the people believe that there is no security in their country, but their efforts to again provoke trouble have been frustrated, thanks to the efficient measures adopted by the Imperial Government.

CECIL RHODES.

London, Sept. 29 .- A petition for the reinstating of Cecil Rhodes as Premier of Cape Colony has been numerously signed in Johannesburg and its vicinity. Many German farmers signed it. When he went to the Matoppo Hills to meet the Matabele chiefs and talk peace he was accompanied by only three men, and they were unarmed. There were present at the parley more than 100 young native warriors, all armed with Martini rifles and assegais. One who took part in the conference says that every white man concerned looked forward to it as involving serious risk. At a council before starting it was agreed that he should be shot by his own party rather than be allowed to fall into the hands of the enemy, should treachery be attempted. Those who had questioned Mr. Rhodes' personal courage are now silent on in Constantinople, the foreign residents naturally fearing the wrath of the Mussulmans at the insults to the Sultan uttered by the speakers at the public meetings and by the journals of England. The statement continues: 'Despite the organized agitation, vituperation and clamorous provocation emanating from London, the Porte has succeeded, by dint of en-ergy and watchfulness, in proving to Europe that the alarm of its English insulters is unfounded. The Porte does not associate the British nation, for which it has the highest regard, with the agitation of a few hot-brained politicians who are led astray by their passions. The moderation of the European nations will far more than the vociferation of England help the Porte to protect foreigners and Turkish subjects in the capital against the plots of Armenian revolutionists. A dispatch from Constantinople says that the Sultan has exiled his second wife and a number of palace courtiers, on suspicion that they were plotting with the heir to the throne and his brother, the ex-Sultan Murad, to depose him.

SOUDAN CAMPAIGN.

London, Sept. 29.-A dispatch from Dongola says: The gunboat Abuklea has returned from the pursuit of the Dervishes. The officers on the gunboat report that the Dervishes are in full retreat, that a veritable panic prevails, and that the sheiks are moving in the direction of Omdurman. Many of the lecal sheiks mave been brought into the camp. About 200 Dervishes are reported killed. The Sirdar, Sir Herbert Kitchener, is sending the first Staffordshire Regiment back to Kosheh, en route to Cairo, which seems to indicate that there will be no further advance up the Nile for the present, at least. The Times, speaking of the order of Sir Herbert Kitchener for the return of the First Staffordshire Regiment from Dongola to Kosheh on the way to Cairo, says that the inferences to be drawn from the order are that the Dervishes' power has collapsed, and that it is not intended that there should be a further forward movement on a large scale at present. The Bullet That Killed Levi Gardner Found-Statements of the Neighbors.

Woodstock, Sept. 29 .- As a result of the post-mortem examination on the body of Levi Gardner, the colored man supposed to have been murdered at home on Saturday, a bullet was found in his head, and on a lounge in the room a discharged cartridge was found.

James Dunlop, an employe of the Thomas Organ Company, - heard screams coming from the Gardner cottage, and he at once left the office and rushed over to see what was the matter. On arriving at the house he found Gardner lying on the floor dead. his head surrounded by a pool of blood and wounds in the head and face, as previously described. Alex. Stewart is an old man who

Mr. Tarte-I have seen the letter in the Journal mentioned. I had received two tenders for the supply of coal to the public building at St. Jerome. The prices were equal. If there had been a difference the lower tender would have been accepted as a matter of course. But, as they were equal I was free to accept either. If Mr. Pettet wrote such a letter as is given in the question, he did so without my knowledge and the knowledge of the department, and I emphatically disprove of and condemn it. No action has been taken on the tender. It is my determination that in every case in which tenders are in-vited, the lowest tenders shall be accepted if the parties are responsible. The letter mentioned in the question was part of an article of a libelous character, reflecting on the administration of my department, and the letter was used for the purpose of support-Immediately on having my attention drawn to the article, I caused steps to be taken to prosecute the author. and the proceedings now pending in court will be prosecuted as vigorously as the law will permit.

THE ALLAN CONTRACT. Mr. Pouliot inquired whether on June 23 the late Government had authorized the High Commissioner by cable to sign immediately a contract with the Allan Company for a fastline of steamships between Canada and England at a subsidy of $750,000 yearly for ten years. MR. DAVIN'S QUESTION. Mr. Davin, rising, was greeted with loud cries of "Oh, oh," and "have pity on us," and other demonstrations of impatience. He said they had in the House the member for South Oxford (Sir Richard Cartwright), who had just returned from a conference with the Hon Losenh Chamberlain and the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, and the House would be interested to know whether these two statesmen had discussed the fast Atlantic service, the Pacific cable, or what other Imperial Sir Richard replied that it was true that he had had a long, pleasant and extremely interesting conversation with Mr. Chamberlain, but he did not think it consonant with his duty to the House or in the public interest to give any further details at pres-ent. The profit amounted to 1 per cent. Mr. Mulock said he had thought that this was a privilege which should be given to those needy persons to whom it might be useful. He had, therefore, given the privilege to Mr. Wm. Hew-itt, who used to be a wholesale hardware merchant, who had falled, but was a most worthy man. But, Mr. Mulock added, he had suggested to Mr. Hewitt that he should not disturb two men at present employed until they should get other employment. If Mr. Wallace would tell him of any other case of the same kind, he would act upon the precedent set in this

The main estimates were all passed In the Senate yesterday, in reply to Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Sir Oliver Mowat defended the position taken by Hon Mr. Blair with regard to the dismissal of offensive partisans. He had no desire to repudiate the policy laid down. While he was opposed to anything like the introduction of the spoils system into Canada, he could not help knowing that the civil service was full of sympathizers of the late Government, and that it was an important thing that the Government should have about them officials with whom they could be in sympathy and in whom they could repose perfect trust. While Premier of Ontario he had never dismissed any official fe cause of his politics, even when he knew that officials had been actively engaged in opposition to the Government at elections.

I write you today to know what you intend to do for me in this matter. I shall await your answer. Business is business, as you know. Respectfully yours."

It is well known that Paine's Celery Compound is woman's best friend when digestive vigor fails. It renews and builds up her system when she is weak, nervous, sleepless, despondent, melancholic and broken-down. It is the only medicine that can banish her rheumatism, neura liver and kidney complaints and blood

There is not the slightest reason why any woman should continue in suffering, when Paine's Celery Compound, that source of new life, can be so easily procured.

Weak, sickly and disease-laden women are easily pointed out in any gathering or assembly. They excite our pity, but can never command our admiration. It is the healthy woman, with bright face, sparkling eyes, and quick, firm step, that both men and women delight to praise and honor.

Paine's Celery Compound quickly restores to sickly women all the charms that attract attention and admiration. This great medicine is truly woman's best friend in her time of danger and sickness, and does more for her than all the efforts of doctors. Bear in mind that "Paine's" is the kind that makes people well; imitations and substitutes will only aggravate your maladyperhaps endanger your life.

MISSING CAPT, STAMOUR. He Went to Detroit on the Night of Wallaceburg, Sept. 29.-The fact that Capt. S. E. Stamour, of this place, was missing, was reported some days ago. He left here for Port Stanley on Aug. 24 to join his boat, the Mount Clemens. He was at the Dake House, St. Thomas, on Aug. 24, and said he was going to Port Burwell. That was the last that could be learned of him. The captain had $50 in his possession, and his friends are anxious to learn of his whereabouts.

It was supposed the captain went to Port Burwell and Tilsonburg on the 24th, but if he did he left the next day for Detroit. Mr.George Shaw, M. C. R. brakeman, who was a pas-senger of No. 37, M. C. R. express, the night of Aug. 25, states that Capt. Stamour was on board the train, and went to Detroit. There were two men with him, who were evidently confidence men, and were passing the bottle round frequently, not taking any themselves, but pressing the liquor upon the captain. Mr. Shaw, who got off at Windsor, then warned the captain of the character of the men who were his companions.

It is stated that Sir Henry Havelock Allen, M.P., intends leaving for the East in the course of ten days or so, to watch the military operations in connection with the rising in Crete

The Wholesale Dismissal of Inspectors of Weights and Measures.

A Conservative contemporary strongly objects to the carrying out of the proposal that all civil servants who made common cause with the late Government, and engaged in canvassng and in publicly speaking against the Liberal leaders, should be dismissed from the public service. Our contemporary says that if this just disposition of the civil service is carned out there will be severe reprisals when next a Conservative Government gets the chance. A strict measure of justice meted out with regard to the flagrant cases of civil service active interference in politics would be of great advantage to the efficiency of the public service, and in the very best interests of the servants of the people as well. We take this position without respect to polttics. No civil servant who has kept strictly to his duty has anything to fear from the rearrangement of the service, necessitated by the action of less than 2,000, and does not account offensive partisans. The man who de- for the natural increase. sired to be known more as a politician than as a civil servant need not be surprised if he is taken at his word, and invited to step out of the position which he has compromised. The subject of dismissals from the civil service might well be avoided by supporters of the lately deceased Government. Are the memories of Conservative editors so short that they do not remember that, after the defeat of the Mackenzie Government. the whole of the men employed throughout the country in the administration of the Weights and Measures Act were dismissed at a moment's notice by the Conservative Government which succeeded to power? The pretext afterwards given was that it was within a year after the whole of these faithful officers had been dismissed, each one of the positions thus rendered vacant was filled by the appointment of a Conservative.

We would like to have our contemporary continue its investigations, and tell us what it thinks of these wholesale and unwarranted dismissals. It certainly cannot find a parallel in the history of a Liberal Administration in Canada

The Equipment of Young Men for Life's Battle.

The contents of a letter by Prof. Ostwald, the noted German chemist. to Prof. Ramsay, of England, just made public, demonstrate in a marked degree the causes for the great progress of the German people, and manufacturers, and commerce during the last 30 years. German education is now intensely practical. Prof. Ostwald shows that there is a close al-Hance between the German manufacturers and the universities and high grade technical schools. For example, in the chemical industry, strong inducements are offered to the graduates of technical colleges to enter the laboratories, which form a part of the equipment of the factories. These young men are chosen for purely ex- Nichols, M.A., are the joint authors periment work. They become skilled inventors, discovering and perfecting improved processes and methods of manufacture. Of this system Prof. Ostwald says: "The research laboratory in such a work is only different from one in a university by its being more splendidly and sumptuously fitted than the latter. I have heard from the business management of such works that they have not unfrequently men who have worked for four years without practical success; but if they know them to possess ability, they keep them, notwithstanding, and in most cases with ultimate success sufficient to pay the expenses of the former resultless years."

There is, Prof. Ostwald says, often more than one hundred Ph. D.'s in a single factory, and as this little army is occupied solely in "making inventions," it is easy to see how Germany has jumped into first rank in the contest for markets for products of skill. The skilled theorist and the trained mechanic are united in seeking for the best results, and by experiment, invention and design almost invariably attain the highest eminence.

Germany has also adopted other methods for encouraging and extending her trade. She has established special methods of trade which are intended to deal with questions of home and foreign trade in the broadest possible manner. There is no question connected with the development of trade interests, of manufactures, credit capacity of foreign countries, advantages to be obtained by treaty stipulations, injuries resulting from asures adopted by other nations in restraint of trade, which is no thoroughly discussed and carefully considered by the many German Chambers of Commerce scattered over the country. These bodies report to the Minister of Commerce with regard to the influence and bearing of all such matters, as they are connected with the commercial interests of the various localities, and by petition or otherwise they often secure action through their Minister and the Minister and chief of the Order of ister of Foreign Affairs which is of great advantage to them."

In the future, our population must be supplied with the best possible equipment, if they are to hold their own with the British and United States producers, and their keen and far-seeing rivals on the European continent. Education must become more and more practical, and thorough, if our industrial population are to take that position in the world which our climatic advantages and ample resources of raw material warrant. The recent suicide in Toronto of an unknown man, who apparently moved in good society, has again brought out the fact that there are always many 'missing" men

From every part of the United States inquiries have been addressed to the Toronto police as to the appearance of the suicide. In every case, information was sent of some one who had mysteriously disappeared, and who had not since been heard of. At his suggestion the local members of the committee waited upon the assistant general manager and the vicepresident of the C. P. R. They formulated their grievances. Some of the operators, who are employed as station agents, complain of having to sweep out the offices, and either scrub the floor or pay a woman to do it for them. Others state that their profession is degraded because they are obliged to give an eye to the water deed, he will report any facts which might be of service for dissemination trains. Of course these are not the most serious complaints, as there are in many cases demands for increased pay, or statements that the former rate has been reduced. In this case this has not been done, none of the assistant superintendents, nor any of the general superintendents having been notified of the complaints submitted to the management. A $25 Verdict Against R. G. Dun-Ac quitted of Indecent Assault.

MONDAY AFTERNOON.

The case of James Dobie, of Glencoe, vs. Margaret McIntyre, of East Williams, wife of Dugald McIntyre, cattle dealer, occupied the court's atten-tion nearly all the afternoon. Mr. Mc-Intyre failed last June. He indorsed notes, which led to his difficulties. A seizure was made to satisfy Mr. Dobie's claim, but it was then found that everything around the place, with a few exceptions, belonged to Mrs. Mc-Intyre. At the time of her marriage, 28 years ago, she possessed a farm of 150 acres, implements, and a quantity of stock. She stated in evidence that it was with her own money the farm and implements had been purchased. Her husband had sold her produce and bought her cattle. She was the head of the firm, and her husband only a merchant. She had mortgaged her own place and paid off the indebtedness upon a parcel of his property, which made it hers, thus making her the owner of 250 acres. The judge, in his charge, said the jury were the persons to say whether or not Mrs. McIntyre, as wife of the man who indorsed the note, was hable.

The jury's verdict was: "We find that McIntyre was an agent for his wife, so far as farm and chattels were concerned. We also find that McIntyre had a proprietary right in the crops grown on the farm. Verdict for plaintiff, as to four acres of corn and one acre of peas, uncut.

AN ACTION FOR LIBEL. Mrs. Louisa Church, of Thorndale, brought an action to recover $2,000 damages from Wm. Hueston, farmer, of Nissouri, for libel. The plaintiff is the mother of seven children and daughter-in-law to the defendant, who married her mother in 1884. Mr. E. Meredith appeared for Mrs. Church, and made an address to the jury, de-nouncing in strong terms the man who would resort to such conduct as Hueston had been guilty of. He had filed a plea, but failed to appear in support of it. He stated that Mrs. Hueston because her husband was too parsimonious to provide her with proper medical treatment. She was at that time suffering from tumor, and it is alleged he was anxious to get rid of her. She removed to Toronto to live with her sister, and died shortly afterwards. Mr. Meredith stated that in May last Hueston had written a letter which had never reached the party to whom it was addressed, in which he stated that Thos. Brown was the father of Mrs. Hues-ton's children. Following this was a letter to his wife's sister, wherein he stated that Mrs. Church was guilty of abortion, and another letter stating that Mrs. Church was guilty of child murder and had induced her mother, Mrs. Hueston, to go to Toronto, with object of murdering her. One of the letters contained the statement that if they would pay him $40, the amount of Mrs. Hueston's funeral expenses, he would let them go free, but if they refused he would expose them in the Toronto daily papers. The jury returned a verdict of $1,000 for Mrs.

TUESDAY MORNING.

tention of the assize court this morning was that of James Howe, who is accused by Elizabeth Johnston of at-tempted indecent assault. The woman was called and said that on the early morning of June 3 last, James Howe came to Mr. Link's house, where she was employed as a domestic. He had entered her bedroom through the win-dow while she was in bed, and made improper proposals to her. Mrs. Link was ill at the time, and had taken morphia to produce sleep. It was for this reason she did not scream, being afraid of disturbing her mistress.

Cross-examined by Mr. Wilson, Mrs.

Johnston admitted the Links to be in poor circumstances, but she had been engaged at $3 a month for three months. She said that Howe had been very kind to the Links, and on one occasion had left eight yards of red flannel, which he said witness could make up for Mrs. Link. Witness thought this was very kind of him, and they took the flannel. After she had told Mrs. Link of the affair, the accused had called and asked Mrs. Link if instead of buying milk she would not rather have a young cow of her own. No transaction resulted from this proposal. Howe had spoken to witness of the affair, and offered her

$4 if she would settle it. Mr. Ira Link said he left home early on the morning in question, and had first heard of the trouble from his wife on June 2 or 3. He made an examination of the premises, and found a man's footprints under the window. Mrs. Johnston had been employed as a domestic for some months.

To Mr. Wilson witness admitted going to Squire Torrance with Mrs. Johnston and swearing to the fact that Howe had been in his house two or three hours, and also that the foot-prints spoken of were his. Witness said he had no ill-feeling against Howe, and said he was not afraid to swear that the footprints were his, although he admitted he did not know the size of Howe's feet. Samuel Clark, postmaster on the Indian reserve, Caradoc, deposed that Howe remained at his place during the night of June 2. Joseph Fisher and Squire McLurg gave evidence to bear out the state-ment of Mr. Clarke, that he could not have been there on the night in question at the hour named. Mrs. Link was carried into the court room to give her evidence. To Mr. McLaren she said that she had not seen Howe more than three or four times, and that he had come to her house and left the flannel. He came again a few days after about 3 a.m., and had tried the door. She had Johnston, and after that had told her husband. She said that she had been carried out of her bed to give evidence in this case, and that she had not been out of her bed since January last. Wilson, in addressing the jury, claimed that an alibi had been distinctly established

HOWE ACQUITTED.

The jury retired in the Howe case, and the court adjourned for luncheon. At 2:15, when court resumed, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and Howe was acquitted of the charge of ndecent assault. In view of this Mr McLaren decided not to press the charge of housebreaking, and it went over until the next assizes. The grand jury returned no bill against James Ward, charged with

How It Affects the C. London.

Almost the Entire Station Staff Have Quit Work.

Passenger Trains Are Running Pretty Well on Time-Freight Trains More Dilatory-The Local Yard Clear.

The circumstances leading up to the C. P. R. telegraph operators' strike are recorded in a dispatch from Montreal, given in another column. The word was received here about 9 o'clock The case which monopolized the at- last night, and was not altogether unexpected by the men

The entire staff of railroad operators here are concerned in the strike. They include the station agent, Mr. James E. O'Neill, Mr. Robert Routledge (dispatcher), Mr. Francis Casson (yardman).

Mr. Jas. Houston, the freight agent here, is doing Mr. O'Neill's work at the station in connection with his own. This is but a reversion to the position he occupied some time ago, and does not greatly inconvenience him. Another old telegrapher is filling the position of the other strikers. The car-checker is still working, but does no operating.

Locally there has been no unusual delay in passenger trains. No. 4 was half an hour late, and the train due at 11:15 a.m. was about an hour be-hind time. The freight train service was more affected. The beef train from Chicago was nearly eleven hours behind. However, the yard was cleared this morning, and everything was going on in the usual order.

The greatest uncertainty prevails, and news from headquarters is anxiously awaited. A prominent C. P. R. A official says that in every station in this division where there are strikers the vacancies will be filled by tonight. The commercial telegraph system of the C. P. R. is not affected, except in small places, where the railway and commercial offices are combined.

Mr. P. Scott, B. A., Receives & Purse Containing $50

From the Ladies of Waterloo Street South Mission - Mrs. Wm. Chunas 's Presented With a Bible-Farewell Meeting

Mr. P. Scott, B.A., who has been in charge of the Waterloo Street Presbyterian Mission for the past six months, has made a host of warm friends during his stay here. He leaves to take his term at Knox College, and a farewell meeting was held at the mission last night. The place was so crowded that standing room was at a premium and many remained in the ante-room throughout the programme.

Mr. A. Greenlees was chairman, and in his opening address mentioned that four or five years ago Presbyterian workers in the First Presbyterian and Knox Churches thought there was room in that part of the city for a Sunday school. It was started, and at From the encouraging reports receivgenial way he had done his work.

Rev. W. J. Clark, of the First Presfinancial responsibility was concerned, of the Knox and First Presbyterian Churches, but it was also under the Presbytery. They would look to the next six months as a test, and it was hoped that next spring an organization would be established, one or two elders chosen, and a supply provided. "The baby who has been walking, aided by somebody else's hands, would stand on its own sturdy legs," said he. He referred to Mr. Scott as possessing one of those kindly and genial faces which made it impossible for him to have any enemies. His efforts this summer had been of avail. Mr. Clark bespoke a kindly greeting for Mr. Scott's suc-

Mr. Scott made an excellent speech He spoke of the welcome he had al-ways received in connection with his work. Everything had been such that he had nothing but pleasure in his work. There was a much greater interest in church work shown now by some than they had shown when he cam. The oc-casion was of the saddest character, It was the fourth mission he had worked in, and had never become so attached to any before. A short time ago, in looking forward to attending college, the prospect was bright. But the sudden death of two of their brightest classmates, Messrs. Brown and Torrence, would make it a sad re-turn for the class. Mr. Scott made an earnest appeal for united effort of the other Presbyterian churches. He highly complimented the scholars and the teachers of the school.

Mr. Andrew Thompson, a staunch ers, le Presbyterian, and a great friend of the can. street ences in Scotland, and spoke of the progress of Presbyterianism in this city during the past 30 years.

Mrs. Wm. Clunas, an active worker in the mission, and president of the Mission Band, also leaves the city this week, and on behalf of her fellow-teachers, Mr. Scott presented her with a handsomely bound Bible, ac-companying the gift with high praise for earnest work.

Mr. Greenlees replied for Mrs. Clunas. The chairman then said the ladies of the church had wished to give Mr. Scott some visible, tangible expression of their appreciation of his work, and on their behalf presented him with a purse containing $50. Mr. Scott, although not taken completely by surprise, was almost overcome by the generous way in which he had been treated. He replied very suitably. Interspersed with the speeches were don two excellent solos by Mr. E. W. Knowles, two recitations by Miss Mac-The fourth, a silver butter dish, to Arthur, and a piano solo by Mr. W. H.

Barron, left the conservatory yesterday afternoon in busses for Bryanston, a twelve-mile drive, where they provided a musical treat, difficult to surpass. The concert was held in the church, which contained nearly four hundred people. The soloists of the evening were Miss Higgins, Miss Templeton, Miss Bur-nett and W. C. Barron. Miss Irene Proudfoot's elocutionary efforts were loudly applauded, and encores were the order of the evening. The choruses by the choir were another feature. At the close a vote of thanks to Mr. Barron and the kind friends from London was moved by Rev. James Grant, pastor of the church. The visitors were then escorted to the house of Mr. Grant, where they partook of sup-per, and returned home, arriving back here about 2 o'clock in the morning, well pleased at the success of their ef-REV. THE EVENING GAME. This was expected to be a very close game, Messrs. Ed. Horsman and John Sheere being the contestants. Sheere won the pink, and chose to break, expecting to leave a safety. But a combination was picked out by Horsman, which he not only pocketed, but broke up the frame so nicely that he scored 14 out of it. The next frame was also an unlucky one for Sheere, although he played well. When recess was called Horsman was 29 balls in the lead, just about where he stood after the first few frames. On resuming play Sheere made a good start and pocketed 14, also making some brilliant shots towards the finish, although he was apparently losing in strength. Mr. Horsman played an excellent game from start to finish, if a couple of easy misses are excepted, but he left him-self open to technical fouls several times, which his opponent very quick-ly tok advantage of. He also had a fair proportion of luck, while Sheere's share of the latter was nil, his cue ball having a knack of getting tied up at all stages. The game was a splendid exhibition of pool all through, although rather one-sided to be exciting. Score:

He felt that he must go ly on, trying to move Katherine what he really believed was her est interest. And he permitted thing to discourage him for very long. Dominie Van Linden was also a prudent man. He had no intentior in his wooing to make haste and lose speed. As to Katherine's love troubles he had not been left in ignorance of them. A great many people had given him such information as would enable him to keep his own heart from the wiles of the siren. He had, also, a wide knowledge of books and life; and in the light of this knowledge he thought he could understand her. But the conclusion that he deliberately came to was, that Katherine had cared neither for Hyde nor Semple, and that the unpleasant termination of their courtship had made her shv of all lover-like attentions. He believed that if he advanced cautiously to her he might have the felicity of surprising and capturing her virgin affection And just about so far does any amount of wisdom and experience help a man

The gardens grew every day fairer, the air more soft and balmy, the sunshine warmer and more cherishing Katherine was not unhappy. As Hyde grew stronger, he spent his hour in writing long letters to his wife. He told her every trivial event, he commented on all she told him. And her letters revealed to him a soul so pure, so true, so loving, that he vowed "he fell in love with her afresh every day of his life." Katherine's communications reached her husband readily by the ordinary post; Hyde's had to be sent through Mrs. Gordon. But it was evident from the first that Katherine could not call there for them. Col. Gordon would soon have objected to being made an clandestine correspondence, and Joris would have decidedly interfered with visits sure to cause unpleasant remarks about his daughter. The medium was found in the mantua maker, Miss Pitts. Mrs. Gordon was her most profitable customer, and Katherine went there for needles and threads and such small wares as are constantly needed in a household. And whenever she did so, Miss Pitts was sure to remark, in an after-thought kind of way, "Oh, I had nearly forgotten, miss. Here is a small parcel that Mrs.

Gordon desired me to present to you. One exquisite morning in May, Katherine stood at an open window looking across the garden and the river and the green hills and meadows across the stream. Her heart was full of hope. Richard's recovery was so far advanced that he had taken several drives in the middle of the day. Always he had passed the Van Heemskirk's house, and always Katherine had been waiting to rain down upon his lifted face the influence of her most bewitching beauty and her tenderest smiles. She was thinking of the last of those events; of Richard's rapid exhibition of a long folded paper, and the singular and emphatic waves which he gave it towards the river. His whole air and attitude had expressed delight and hope-could he really mean that she was to meet him

As thus she happily mused, someon called her mother from the front hall. On fine mornings it was customary to leave the door standing open, and the officers, also, and the privates of his own troop had been on the deck to see visitor advanced to the foot of the own troop had been on the deck to see stairs and called once more: "Lysbet him sail. His departure was beyond Van Heemskirk! Is there naebody in dispute. to bid me welcome?" Then Katherine knew it was Madame Semple, and she ran to her mother's room and begged suffering and loss of time and prestige, and she found it hard to forgive also her positive rejection of his suit. For her sake she herself had been made to suffer mortification and disappointment. She had lost her friends in a way which deprived her of all the fruits of her kindness. The Gordons thought Neil had transgressed all the laws of hospitality. The Semples had a similar charge to make. And it provoked Madame Semple that Mrs. Gor-don continued her friendship with Katherine. Everyone else blamed

Katherine altogether in the matter; Mrs. Gordon had defied the use and thrown the whole blame on Neil.

Somehow, in her secret heart, she even blamed Lysbet a little. "Ever since I dulge his own temper at the expense of their child's good name and happiness. Taking these faults as rudimentary ones, Lysbet could enlarge on them indefinitely, and Joris had un-doubtedly been influenced by his wife's opinions. So, below the smiles and kind words of a long friendship, there was bitterness. If there had not been,

What the Gate of Carbuncles Typifies -Obstructions in the Paths of Christians to be Pushed Aside.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.-From a neglected text, and one to most people unknown, Rev. Dr. Talmage yesterday morning produced a sermon appropriate to individual and national circumstances. The subject was: "Gates of Carbuncle," the text being blamed Lysbet a little. "Ever since I told her there was an earldom in the family, she's been daft to push her daughter into it," was her frequent remark to the Elder; and he also re-

Perhaps because a human disease flected that the proposed alliance of Neil and Katherine had been received of most painful and ofttimes fatal character is named after it, the with coolness by Joris and Lysbet. As if to make all ages appreciate this precious stone he ordered it ... 'n the first row of the high priest's breastplate in olden time, and higher up than the onyx and the emerald and the diamond, and in Ezekiel's prophecies concerning the splendors of the Tyrian court, the carbuncle is mentioned, the brilliancies of the walls and of the tessellated floors suggest-ed by the Bible sentence, "Thou hast And who wi' him, guess you, but Capt. Hyde, and no less. They say he walked up and down in the stones of fire." But in my text it is not a solitary specimen that I hand you, as the keeper of a museum might take down from the shelf a her mother shut to the door of the sitting-room. A great fear made her turn faint and sick. Were her father's precious stone and allow you to examine it. Nor is it the door that you might stand and study words true? Was this the meaning of the mysterious wave of the folded pafor its unique carvings or bronzed traceries, but there is a whole gate of it lifted before our admiring and astounded vision, aye! two gates of it, aye! many gates of it: it. Her heart failed her; she uttered make thy gates of carbuncles." What a low cry of pain, and tottered to a gates? Gates of the church. Gates of anything worth possessing. They were amazed at her caimness. And for some lisaish was right when he spoke of those gates as gates of carbuncle. of deepest hue, a gate of carbuncle. What is true in spirituals is true in temporals. There are young men and older men who hope, through the right settlement of this acrid controversy between silver and gold, or the bimetallic quarrel, that it will bo come easy to make a living. That time will never come. Unless they got it by inheritance, you cannot mention twenty men who have come to honorable fortune that did not fight their way inch by inch, and against fearful odds, that again and again almost destroyed them. For some good reason God has arranged it for all the centuries that the only way for most people to get a livelihood for themselves and their families is with both hands and all their allied forces of body, mind, and soul to push back and push open the red gate, the gate What is true of individuals is true of nations. Was it a mild spring morning when the Pilgrim Fathers landed on Plymouth Rock, and did they come in a gilded yacht, gay streamers flying? No. It was a cold December, and from a ship in which one would not want to cross the Hudson or the Potomac River. Scalpingknives all ready to receive them, they landed, their only welcome the Indian war-whoop. Red men on the beach. Red men in the forest. Red men on the mountains. Red men in the valleys. the prayer will be heard and relief will come. If we have nothing better to depend on than American politics, relief will never come. Whoever is elected to the Presidency, the wheels of Government turn so slowly, and a caucus in yonder white building on the hill might tie the hands of any President. President.

But we must admit it is a hard gate to push back. It is a gate made out of empty flour barrels, and cold fire grates, and worn out apparel, and cheerless homes, and unmedicated sickness, and ghastliness, and horror.

It is a gate of struggle. A gate of penury. A gate of want. A gate of disappointment. A red gate, or what Isaiah would have called a gate of carbuncles.

Now, as I have already suggested, as these are obstacles in all our paths, we will be happier if we consent to have our life a struggle. I do not know any one to whom it is not a struggle. Louis the fourteenth thought he had everything fixed just right and fixed to stay, and so he had the great clock at Bordeaux made. The hours of that clock were struck by figures in bronze representing the kings of Europe, and at a certain time of day, William the Third of England and other kings were made to come out and bow to Louis the Fourteenth. But the clock got out of order one day and just the opposite of what was expected occurred, as the clock struck a certain hour Louis the Fourteenth was thrown to the feet of William the Third. And so the clock of destiny brings many sur-prises and those go down that you expected to stand, and at the foot of disaster most regal conditions tumble. In all styles of life there come disappointment and struggle. God has for ome good reason arranged it so. If it is not poverty, it is sickness. If it is not sickness, it is persecution. If it is not persecution, it is contest with some evil appetite. If it is not some evil appetite, it is bereavement. If it is not one thing, it is another. Do not get soured and cross and think your case is peculiar. If our life were not a struggle we would never consent to get out of this world, and we would want to stay here, and so block up the way of the advancing generations. We have in this world more opportunity to cultivate patience than to cultivate any other grace. Let that grace be strengthened in the royal gymnasium of obstacle and opposition and by the help of God, having overcome our own hindrances and worriments, let us go forth to help others whose struggles are greater than our own.

Mark well and underscore with heavy dashes of the pen the order of the gates. Gate of carbuncle before gate of pearl. Isaiah the Prince saw the one gate centuries before St. John the Exile saw the other. The one you must push open. The other stands open. Gate of a Savior's atonement before the gate of Divine pardon. Gate of a Savior's atonement Gate of poverty before gate of affluence. Gate of earthly trial before gate of heavenly satisfaction. Through much tribulation you enter the kingdom of God if you ever enter it at all. But heaven will not be so much of a heaven to those who had everything in this world. But when those who had a hard push with the red gate of my text, the gate of carbuncle. come to the gate of pearl and find it wide open, they will say: "Why, how strange, this is." This is the first gate of valuable entrance in 40 years that I have found open." And the welcoming angel will say to some Christian mother who reared a large family of children, and prepared them for usefulness and heaven. "Go where you please and sit down on what vel vet bank or cushioned throne you may take care of? My head was so tired, planning for the household on small means, my eyes were so tired with sewing and knitting, my back ached with doing work that made me stoor for so many hours. There was nothing in the universe I so much needed as rest. Now I have it. Blessed Jesus! Blessed heaven! Blessed

SUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES

Surround the Death of Robert Carpenter's Wife at Hagersville. Hagersville, Ont., Sept. 20. - There is much excitement among the people where Robert Carpenter lives, on the edge of the Indian reservation, about two miles from Hagersville. Coroner Heath, of Brantford, with a jury, is holding an inquest on the body of Carpenter's wife, who was found dead on Thursday morning, amid circum-stances which look suspicious. Carpenter is livin on a rented farm on Indian land. He was mar-ried last month to a Hagers-ville girl, named Lilla Winkworth, who was about 22 years of age. They did not seem to get along well to-gether. He is said to have a violent temper and a bad tongue. Witnesse swear that they heard them quarreling on Wednesday, in the morning and at noon. About 3 in the aftermoon Carpenter drove to Hagersville to the house of his cousin. Mrs. Giles, where he remained for some time, Mrs. Giles accompanying him. On arrival they found Mrs. Carpenter dead in bed. Carpenter called in Dr. Mc-Donald, of Hagersville, who believes that the woman had been dead some hours before his arrival. Next day (Thursday) Carpenter decided to have the burial, and asked Mr. J. H. Scott at the registry office for a burial per-This was refused, unless Dr. McDonald would give his certificate. Carpenter went away, but returned saying that he had obtained verbal consent of the doctor to the burial and the registrar then granted the permit. He, however, learned, afterwards from Dr. McDonald that Carpenter's statement was untrue; that the doctor held that the circumstances looked suspicious, and that he could not give the burial certificate. The registrar withdrew the burial permit, and telegraphed Coroner Heath, of Brantford, who ordered an inquest, which is not yet finished. The post mortem was held by Dr. Jones, of Hagersville. He reports that there was no organic disease, and believes death may have resulted from the wounds found in several places on the head and temples, and a severe indentation above the crest of the ileum of an inch and a half, which must have been caused by a kick. Mrs. Carpenter was buried in Springvale Cemetery on Saturday. It is reported that Carpen-

JOHN BOYLE'S DEATH

The Coroner's Jury at Chatham Decide That It Was Accidental.

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 29.-The jury empaneled to inquire into the death of John Boyle, who was at first thought to have died from injuries received during a drunken row at Morpeth, on Saturday, 19th inst., last night returned a verdict of accidental death. The exidence of Dr. Fleming and Dr. F. Bray, who made the post mortem examination, showed that Boyle had fallen from the wagon, and a wheel the liver. Evidence was also put in, showing The damage was slight. that Boyle was sober when he left Chatham on the night of his death.

Officers Elected to Carry Out Arrangements-Contest for a Gold Medal.

The Seventh Fusiliers, both battalion and band, turned out fairly well last night. Some of the companies look exceptionally fine, and nearly all are full, but it seems a difficult task to get the men out. No. 6 Company but came up smiling in the drill. The battalion was given notice that after dismissal the presence of the men was requested in the band room. Col. Lindsay took the chair, and said the meeting had been called to make arrangements for the annual battalion shooting match. Major Hayes said as that was the annual meeting of the Seventh Rifle Association, the first thing was to elect officers. Col. Lindsay was re-elected president, Capt. child is about 45 years old, and the Moore secretary, and Major Hayes son of a well-known Cincinnati fintreasurer. The colonel addressed the ancier and jeweler. He was sentenced men, and said the officers desired to battalion, while the men were anxious to excel each other in the matter of point-making. Some objected to the matches always being held on Thanksgiving Day, and if this was not satisfactory, it was in their power to have the season.

them just when they wanted them. Last year they were held too late in Color-Sergt. Galbraith said thought the matches might with convenience and advantage be held a lites be held on Wednesday, Oct. 15. Corp. Ross thought Thanksgiving Day would be more convenient for the men, and wanted the matches held on Color-Sergt. Galbraith's motion carried. Col. Lindsay suggested that only one match, with a large number of prizes, be shot, instead of two matches with a smaller number of prizes, thus doing away with the nursery match. Sergt.-Major McCrimmon thought there should be a nursery match, as the matches were held chiefly to perfect young shots. Major Hayes explained that heretofore the nursery matches had obtained two-thirds of all the subscriptions collected. Last year there had been 25 cash prizes offered in this match, and only 30 prizes in the battalion. The nursery men, after shooting in their own match, had the privilege of shooting in the battalion. In the extra series there had been fourteen prizes in series No. 1, and ten in series No. 2.

Capt. Kingsmill moved that any further arrangements be left in the hands of the officers elected, with power to add to their number. Major Haves moved that a committee be appointed to collect subscriptions, and after several motions and amendments, Capt. Kingsmill, Capt. Graves and Capt. Graham were elected the committee to look after that Vanzandt for contempt of court, resulting from inability to comply with the orders of the county judge as to the liquidation of a judgment, Vanzandt pulled a revolver and ordered the offier to keep his hands off. "I'm no subject for the cooler. I have paid money enough to meet that Division Court judgment," he said. "You just lay a hand on me, and I'll bore holes through you." Chief Young was told of the occurrence, and promptly sent P. C. Groves, fully armed, to aid Mc-Gregor in making the arrest, which was effected.
