

MR. JOSEPH C. JUDD ELECTED AS MAYOR; MUNICIPAL ELECTION RETURNS IN DETAIL

Saunders an Easy Winner for Water Commission—New Blood on Both Council and School Board—Waterworks Bylaw Snowed Under—License Reduction Carried.

The election yesterday resulted in the return of Mr. J. C. Judd, an ex-alderman, ex-water commissioner, and well-known lawyer, as mayor. Mr. Judd was elected over his opponent, ex-Ald. Stevely, by a majority of 323 in a total vote of 6,405, or exactly 100 less than in 1905, when Dr. Campbell defeated Mr. Judd by a majority of 23.

Nine of last year's aldermen were returned, as well as one ex-alderman, and two of what are known as "young blood." Mr. W. E. Saunders defeated Mr. J. R. Minihnick for the water commission, and for the next two years will represent the people on that body. Trustees W. T. Strong and Dr. Teasdale were returned to the school board, while two new-comers are elected—Mr. J. W. Westervelt and Mr. G. N. Weekes.

The bylaw to reduce the number of liquor licenses in London to 26 was carried, but the bylaw to issue $445,000 debentures for an extra main to Springbank was snowed under.

Not Much Interest.

Interest in the election did not appear to be very great at any time during the day. Last year Mr. Judd claimed that his defeat was due to his not having sufficient vehicles to carry voters to the polls, and yesterday he appeared to have made up his mind to take no chances on this score. Everywhere were rigs with Judd banners.

As compared with the support given Dr. Campbell, a year ago, Mr. Stevely's support showed a falling-off in nearly every subdivision. No. 11 of ward 1 furnished the surprise of the day, however, by giving Mr. Judd a majority of five. A year ago this subdivision gave Mayor Campbell 79 majority.

Every ward in the city gave Mr. Judd a majority, as follows: Ward 1, 110; ward 2, 8; ward 3, 118; ward 4, 58. The following is the vote by wards:

Judd, Stevely.
Ward 1 ..... 839 729
Ward 2 ..... 547 541
Ward 3 ..... 928 820
Ward 4 ..... 1,040 951

Totals ..... 3,364 3,041

Majority for Judd, 323.

Mr. Stevely's Statement.

When the result had been made known from the subdivisions, Mr. Stevely gave out the following statement to the newspapers:

"Though defeated, I am satisfied with the result. During the years I was on the council I did my best for the citizens of London, irrespective of creed, class or color. Now that the fortunes of war have decided that I shall be retired from municipal life, I feel that it is perhaps as well, and that I shall have at least more time to look after my own business. I desire to heartily thank all who supported me. I have no complaint to make of the result."

Mayor-Elect Judd Speaks.

In front of the Free Press a number of electors were gathered, and the enthusiasm was largely the effervescence of the small boy, who had to express himself in some way. Confidence in Mr. Judd's election was soon in evidence, and as the returns came in that impression was soon verified.

At about 9:45 Mr. Judd appeared, and he was in a very happy mood. He was greeted with cheers as he appeared at the window. He said: "The corporation lawyer has been elected mayor of the city of London, and for the balance of the year will devote his energies to the interests of the corporation of London. I congratulate the electors of London on electing a native-born Londoner. I thank my workers most sincerely for the energy and enthusiasm they have shown in my support. I thank The Advertiser for the abuse it heaped upon me, as it largely increased my majority. I thank the Free Press for the splendid campaign they put up. We have fought a good fight."

"I have a great deal of sympathy for my opponent, as I have been in the same position. (Laughter.)"

"I hope we are all satisfied. We shall devote all our energies to the corporation of the city of London."

"I must thank my Liberal friends in South London. (Cheers.) When all the returns are in from that section, there will be a majority for me, I am sure, or at least a very small one against me."

"I will advance the interests of the city as best I may. I wish you all a happy new year, and thank you for the way you have stood by me today." (Cheers.)

There were no other speeches, although several of the successful aldermanic candidates were present.

The Council.

The council includes nine of last year's aldermen and three new men. Two of these have never sat in an aldermanic chair, but the third, Ald. Armstrong, was an alderman several years ago.

The old aldermen are as follows: Matthews, Gerry, Greenlees, Cooper, Forristal, Wyatt, Gillean, Garratt, Saunders.

The new blood is made up of Ald. Armstrong, Stevenson and Booth.

Mr. R. S. Abram, who had sat for some years in the council, was the only alderman of last year who is counted among the slain.

A Few Facts.

Ald. Armstrong is the head of the London Brass Manufacturing Company, of Carling street.

Ald. Stevenson is the well-known Dundas street physician; and Ald. Booth is a master painter, residing on Colborne street south.

The occupations of those who compose the council are as follows: Two manufacturers, a printer, a builder, a lawyer, an auctioneer, a retired merchant, a jeweler, a contractor, a physician, a painter and a blacksmith.

Ald. Stevenson made a splendid run. A year ago he was a candidate for school trustee, and he gave a good account of himself, polling 1,801 votes, whereas the lowest elected man polled only 1,845. Last year he was a member of the board of health, and he was one of the most active workers on that body. His victory is a popular one.

Ald. Armstrong has the experience of former years to aid him in his deliberations in the council, and he will be sure to prove a valuable addition to that body.

The Other Winners.

All of the former aldermen, with the exception of Ald. Abram, made excellent runs. Ald. Matthews, who headed the polls two years ago, and who was in second place in 1905, heads the list again this year. He is a persistent advertiser and reaps the fruits of his persistence. Ald. Gerry, the sixth warder, comes next, with Ald. Greenlees, a close competitor, and Ald. Wyatt well up in the list. Ald. Cooper, as usual, made a good run. He has been so long before the people they appear to have become resigned and take him as a matter of course. Ald. Forristal, who stands sixth, found himself in the unique position of being supported by both political parties, though his name was on the Conservative ticket. He has made a good alderman, and has been fair, and was for this reason supported by Liberals in general. A year ago Ald. Gillean stood only eleventh, but this year his gain in public favor is shown by his promotion to seventh place. Ald. Garratt comes next, and Ald. Saunders is returned eleventh on the list.

Political Standing.

From a political standpoint, the council is made up of six Liberals and six Conservatives, as follows:

Liberals—Gerry, Greenlees, Gillean, Stevenson, Saunders and Armstrong.

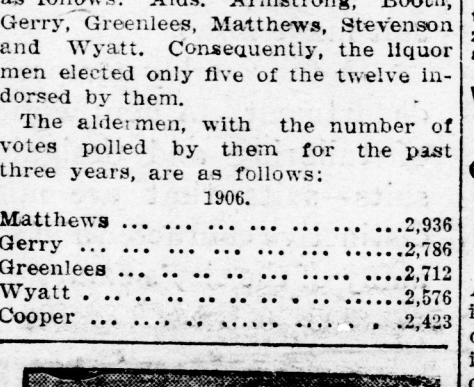

Conservatives—Matthews, Wyatt, Cooper, Forristal, Garratt and Booth.

This is, of course, counting Ald. Forristal as a straight Conservative, but as a matter of fact, Ald. Forristal was brought out and supported by both parties, and is really an independent.

The temperance people elected seven of the twelve candidates they endorsed, as follows: Ald. Armstrong, Booth, Gerry, Greenlees, Matthews, Stevenson and Wyatt. Consequently, the liquor men elected only five of the twelve endorsed by them.

The aldermen, with the number of votes polled by them for the past three years, are as follows:

1906.
Matthews ..... 2,336
Gerry ..... 2,172
Greenlees ..... 2,172
Wyatt ..... 2,172
Cooper ..... 2,423

Greer ..... 1,818
Judd ..... 2,018
Matthews ..... 2,245

The following are the defeated candidates, with the votes polled by each:

Scarlett ..... 2,097
Stuart ..... 2,056
Moorehead ..... 2,018
Hamilton ..... 2,018

Abram ..... 2,014
Rowntree ..... 1,983
Bernard ..... 1,965
Buchner ..... 1,870
Everett ..... 1,860
Moore ..... 1,828
Thompson ..... 1,078

The defeat of Mr. Alex. Stuart, K.C., came as a surprise to very many Londoners. Mr. Stuart would have made a good alderman and should have been elected. Mr. Charles G. Moorehead, made a magnificent run, and announces that he will be in the field again next year. Messrs. Buchner

Jerome After Life Grifters

New York, Jan. 2.—The World this morning says:

"District Attorney Jerome will today begin the serious work of preparing for the prosecution of officers of life insurance companies who have abused their trust. It was stated yesterday by a man in a position to know what is going on with the various insurance companies that Mr. Jerome will undoubtedly receive aid from unexpected sources. He added that before the month was out Mr. Jerome would receive overtures from at least one 'squealer' in each of these companies: The Mutual Life, the Provident Savings Life, the Life Association of America, and the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association. While no promises of immunity are ever made by the district attorney to a 'squealer,' it is the unwritten law of Mr. Jerome's office not to prosecute those who give evidence which enables the people to convict offenders who might otherwise escape punishment."

Albuquerque, N.M., Jan. 2.—After twelve hours of steady snowfall, one of the heaviest snows for many years now covers the whole of New Mexico. The depth of the snow varies from several inches on the mesa and in the Grande Valley, to as much as five or six feet in the mountains. Conditions are unprecedented. The zero weather is causing much suffering among natives and Indians.

Wireless defies storms.

Christmas greetings reach liner plunging through huge seas.

New York, Jan. 2.—Far out on the Atlantic, their ship lashed by a furious gale, and half-buried by tremendous waves, a cheery Christmas greeting was sent from the liner La Touraine, on Christmas Day by the passengers on their wireless telegraphy, having Majestic when flashed from an wireless station. The operator on the Majestic succeeded in reaching La Touraine, then far to the westward, and the message was given to the latter's passengers while the storm was at its height. La Touraine came in today, two days late, and her officers reported an extremely boisterous passage. For five days the wind blew with the violence of a hurricane, and at times the great waves swept almost entirely over the vessel. No serious damage was done, however, and none of those on the steamer was injured.

WALKED ON TRACK, STRUCK BY ENGINE

W. H. Smith Instantly Killed Near Komoka—Did Not Hear Engineer's Warning.

W. H. Smith, a farmer who lived two miles west of Byron, was killed by an engine running light on the Sarnia branch of the Grand Trunk a short distance west of Komoka about 8 o'clock last night.

Smith was walking on the track, and did not pay any attention to the signals of the engineer. He was thrown a considerable distance, and was badly mangled.

Coroner Ross, of Hyde Park, inquired into all the circumstances and concluded an inquest was not necessary, as Smith's death was clearly due to accident, with no blame attaching to the company.

MOSCOW IN MIDST OF MERRYMAKING

The Revolt Crushed and Grim Tragedy Forgotten.

BIG REBEL LEADERS CAUGHT

Voikov and Malinkoff in Hands of the Police—Short Shift for Those Caught With Arms.

Moscow, Monday, Jan. 1.—Night—Via St. Petersburg, Jan. 2.—Except for the numerous military patrols in the streets, and the pillars of smoke lazily floating above the ruins of factories and houses in the Presna district, there is little to recall the nightmare of the past ten days. As if by magic in 24 hours the appearance of the city has changed. The stores everywhere have been reopened, and the streets are crowded with holiday shoppers, making belated purchases for the Russian Christmas, which, according to the Julian calendar falls on Sunday. As the early northern night fell the guards were doubled, but the electric street lamps brilliantly lighted the shop windows, reassuring the people who lingered on merry-making with the careless indifference of the Russians to the dramatic tragedy just ended.

Searching for Their Dead.

The Presna district, however, presented another picture. There people by the hundreds, who had been burned out, were excitedly searching the ruins or bemoaning the loss of dear ones, while the police and troops continued their unceasing hunt for hidden revolutionists. A batch of Drujniks surrounded in a sugar factory in the suburbs, during the night, surrendered this morning, when they found that further resistance was useless. The attack made by a body of Drujniks upon a detachment of troops stationed at a bridge, with instructions to cover the work of the firemen. The soldiers when attacked turned right about face and fired a volley, killing three students and wounding several others.

Two Leaders Caught.

This was the coldest day of the winter, the thermometer registering 15 degrees below zero. The roaring fires at which the revolutionists were gathered to the streets. Two most important captains were made today, Voikov and Malinkoff, the chiefs of the fighting organization and members of the national revolutionary committee. The authorities are promising amnesty for information regarding the leaders and the hiding-places of arms, but only a few are helping the police comrades. It is understood that the prisoners will be tried by court-martial and some of the papers say that those caught with arms in their hands will be given a short shift.

MATTHEWS WILL RUN FOR MAYOR

"Dick" Says He Intends to Seek the Honor After Mr. Judd Retires.

Ald. Matthews, who headed the list of councilors, made a speech from the window at the Free Press last night, and gave the party to understand that he was going to run for mayor next year.

"Gentlemen and fellow-electors," he said, amid great applause, "you have done for me today in the same way you have now done for three years. As on two other occasions I have headed the polls. I thank you all for the magnificent vote rolled up for me."

"When are you going to be mayor, Dick?" asked an elector.

"When our good friend Judd has done all he can for you, then I will ask you to do for me what you have done for him now."

Ald. Matthews advised them all to read the papers, follow what is going on and then see whether the slanders uttered against good men of the council are not unfounded. He declared that Mr. Judd was a good man and would stand by the city.

Mikado Receives Komura.

Tokio, Jan. 2.—Baron Komura, the special envoy of Japan to China, who negotiated the Japo-Chinese treaty, returned here tonight from Peking, and was received in audience by the Emperor immediately after his arrival.

This exceptional reception of the statesman on New Year's Day is believed to be connected with the impending change of cabinet.

Rev. Dr. Dougherty Dead.

New York, Jan. 2.—The Very Rev. Dr. James Dougherty, rector of St. Gabriel's Roman Catholic Church in this city, died suddenly Sunday morning.

Heart disease was the direct cause of death. Father Dougherty was born in Rondout, N. Y., 63 years ago. He was educated at St. John's College, Fordham, and at St. Sulpice, Montreal.

Wife's Error Causes Death Of a Waterloo Street Man

Benson Winegarden Given Carbolic Acid in Mistake for Olive Oil, and Dies in Ten Minutes.

Benson Winegarden, of 729 Waterloo street, died yesterday morning as a result of drinking carbolic acid, administered to him by his wife in mistake for olive oil.

Winegarden has suffered from kidney trouble for upwards of eight years and has been practically an invalid during that time, although able to be up and around occasionally.

New Year's Eve he was very ill, and his condition did not improve as the night advanced. About 4 o'clock in the morning he asked his wife to steep some herbs which he thought would bring him relief.

Mrs. Winegarden proceeded to do so. This medicine did not aid Winegarden a great deal, however, and about 6 o'clock his wife arose to give him a dose of olive oil.

The Winegardens are members of the Latter Day Saints' Church, and as Mrs. Winegarden stated to the Advertiser this morning, she believed olive oil a balm for all suffering. Her husband had been using it for years. The cure did not lay in the medicinal properties of the oil alone, but depended on the faith in which it was applied.

It seems that some time ago a daughter-in-law of Winegarden brought a bottle of carbolic acid from St. Mary's. She had been using it to kill the poison in a slight wound. The other day a daughter of Winegarden injured her hand with a pin, and after using the carbolic acid on the wound, she placed the bottle, which was half filled, on the sideboard on the dining-room. The olive oil bottle had been nearly emptied previously and the two bottles were very much similar in shape, though one was slightly larger than the other. The bottle of olive oil was not left in its usual place, and Mrs. Winegarden, not knowing this, and also being unaware that the acid had been left on the sideboard, took the poison in mistake, and offered it to her husband. The latter drank about a teaspoonful before discovering his mistake.

"My God!" he exclaimed. "What is that?"

Mrs. Winegarden ascertained that the bottle was labeled poison, and became almost hysterical. She notified her son, who speedily secured Dr. McCallum and Dr. Macgregor, but Winegarden succumbed before they arrived. He only lived ten minutes after taking the dose.

The deceased came to this city about three years ago from Norfolk County, where he was a respected farmer. He was 56 years of age, and leaves besides his widow, a family of eight children—all living at home. They are Charles, R., James, Norman, Alfred, Nina, Bertha and Alice.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon.

A physician stated today that Winegarden's life might have been saved had he been given a quantity of alcohol or whisky. The latter is the only antidote known to the medical profession for carbolic acid poisoning, as it unites with the acid in making a non-poisonous compound.

1,000 PRINTERS OUT

And Thirty-Two New York Houses Have Declared a Lockout.

New York, Jan. 2.—One thousand printers went on strike here today in support of a demand for the 8-hour day, and 32 printing shops declared a lockout against their employees. The strikers immediately placed pickets in the vicinity of all shops where the lockout was declared, and three halls were secured by Typographical Union, No. 6, to accommodate strikers who wish to make their headquarters in.

In 160 printing shops the Typographical Union gained a victory without a man quitting work, as these shops granted the 8-hour day and the closed-shop principle demanded by the union.

JUST WALKED STREETS.

Police Did Not Make an Arrest on New Year's Day.

Not a single New Year's drunk graced the police court this morning. On Saturday only one drunk was run in, and on Sunday another. Both were discharged Sunday, when they sobered up. Not one drunk was arrested yesterday. This is remarkable, and is the first instance of the kind in many years. It speaks volumes for New Year's resolutions.

The holidays have been remarkably quiet. On Christmas only three drunks were apprehended, while on that day in Toronto the Good no less than 122 were run in. There was scarcely any shop-lifting, and other misdemeanors were few.

Police Magistrate Love had little to do this morning. Sidney Saxe has been in for over a week on a charge of drunkenness, and after being warned by the magistrate to turn over a new leaf he was discharged.

Elizabeth Rice, who figured in the Christmas fight with Mrs. Jacoby, was remanded another week, as she is still in the hospital. Mrs. Jacoby, her partner in the row, was also remanded for a week.

County Constables Are Getting Ready These Days.

County Constables McLoud, McCall, McIntyre and Barclay last night raided the house at The Gore kept by Lily McGraw. Three women only were found in the place. The women were: Lily McGraw, keeper, and Flory Grant.

Not Elated.

According to statute, Mr. Baker made his way to the auditorium of the city hall at noon and from the platform read the result of the election. The audience was not large, but select. It was composed of the municipal reporters of the daily papers. The statement was as follows:

ONTARIO CHOOSES NEW EXECUTIVES

City, Town and Township
Elections in Province.

COATSWORTH WINS AT TORONTO

Interesting Contests at Hamilton,
Chatham, Sarnia and Windsor—
Mayor of Ottawa Re-Elected.

As usual, yesterday was municipal election day throughout the Province, executives for city, town, village and township being elected. In most cases the contests passed off very quietly, no unpleasant disturbances or illegal methods being reported. In Toronto, there was a lively contest, Coatsworth winning over Spence. The license reduction bylaw was defeated. There were interesting contests at Sarnia, Hamilton and Collingwood, the latter voting for local option. Mayor Ellis, of Ottawa, was re-elected, defeating the French-Canadian nominee in a battle that was slightly tinged with religious and race sentiment.

Coatsworth at Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 1.—Coatsworth is elected by over 2,000 majority. All the returns are not yet in.

License reduction is beaten by probably 1,000.

The liquor interests backed Coatsworth, and a big vote was polled.

All rigs in the city were in commission.

Hastings, ex-license inspector, failed to secure election to the board of control, which is composed of Hubbard, Shaw, Jones and Ward.

No alderman seeking re-election was defeated.

Alb. Lynd, retired owing to civic inquiry, had his place in ward 6 taken by Adams.

Ex-Ald. McMurrich takes Jones' place in ward 4.

Hamilton's New Council.

Hamilton, Jan. 1.—The following were elected aldermen for 1906: W. W. Main, J. M. Eastwood, Wm. Findlay, Thomas Allen, Wm. Birrell, W. Bailey, J. McLeod, H. J. Gilbert, M. Nicholson, H. G. Wright, Hugh C. Sweeney, Chas. Baird, H. A. Martin, Samuel Howard, A. M. Lewis, N. J. Clark and Hugh Wallace.

At the Capital.

Ottawa, Jan. 1.—Mayor James Albert Ellis is re-elected mayor of Ottawa for the third term by a majority of 238. The fight against Mr. A. A. Taillon, ex-mayor of Sorel, and local manager of the Banque Nationale, was a keen one, and for awhile the result was in doubt. Mr. Taillon beat Mayor Ellis about 100 in the city outside of Hildeau ward, where the mayor lives, which gave him 235 votes and only 28 to Mr. Taillon. While the fight took on a slightly religious and national character, Mr. Taillon polled a surprisingly large percentage of the Protestant vote in Upper Town. The total vote for mayor was 1,000.

At Stratford, Ont.

Stratford, Jan. 1.—W. J. Ferguson, Mayor (re-election), second term.

Aldermen (elected in the following order): J. C. Mcintosh, E. K. Barnsdale, W. Gordon, W. S. Duggan, J. Keller, A. Naddell, E. H. Edt, C. McIlhenny, J. D. Hamilton, S. J. Mallan.

Water Commissioners—Thomas Savage, William Hepburn, Mayor Ferguson (ex-officio).

Bylaw for $32,500 for storm sewerage and for proposed box factory, were both easily defeated.

Windsor Elects Wigle.

Windsor, Jan. 1.—Municipal elections went off quietly, but a very large vote was polled. Mayor E. S. Wigle was re-elected by a majority of 199 over his opponent, J. W. Drake. The following aldermen were elected: Bedford, Bridges, Foster, Moyer, Koodah, Stewart, Watson, Trumbull, Seabert, Lounsbury, Jacques, McKay.

At St. Thomas.

St. Thomas, Jan. 1.—Calvin Lawrence was today elected mayor over both his opponents, Mayor Meek and Alderman Union.

The contest was unusually lively, and a heavy vote was polled.

The poll stood: Lawrence, 1,081; Meek, 604; Lutton, 238.

The old council was practically routed, only two of last year's members, Aldermen Trot and Guest, being elected. Both, however, about headed the bottom of the list. The election of P. Meehan and J. McManus is still in doubt, returns giving the former 1 majority.

Exciting at Woodstock.

Woodstock—In the most exciting municipal contest in Woodstock, John Butler was elected by 264 majority. The vote stood: Ald. Butler, 755; ex-Ald. McKenzie, 471. Mayor J. S. Scarff, 452. Mr. Scarff held the majority chair the past two years.

The feature of the aldermanic fight was the election of two new men at the head of the poll. They are John G. McBeth, manager of the Canada Furniture Manufactory, and Thomas H. Snell, superintendent of the Kern Organ and Piano Company.

The following are the aldermen elected for 1906, with their majorities: J. G. McBeth 1,008, T. H. Snell 852, George Phillips 786, W. M. Baker 759, R. G. Sewell 736, Dr. McManus 752, C. Kemp 741, W. S. Hurst 725.

The adoption of the system of election of aldermen by general vote has given Woodstock the strongest council in years.

Results at Chatham.

Benson, Thomas Scullard, E. C. Radley, J. N. Massey, W. M. Stone, J. N. Edmondson, J. A. Thompson, Charles Austin, William Potter. Wards 2 and 5 were the only ones in which there were contests for school trustees. R. L. Brackin and William Somerville were elected to represent these wards. Mayor W. S. Marshall, acclamation. Water commissioners, W. D. Shelton, G. W. Cornell (acclamation). School trustees, Dr. G. T. McKeough, H. Andrew, Wm. Robertson (acclamation), R. L. Brackin and Wm. Somerville.

The Romance of

A British Poet

Lifelong Friend of Swinburne

Marries Amanuensis After

Years' Companionship.

London, Jan. 2.—One of the most charming romances that the world of letters has known is disclosed by the announcement of the marriage of Mr.

Walter Theodore Watts-Dunton, the poet, to Miss Clara Jane Reich, of Putney.

Thus a woman breaks in upon one of the most remarkable friendships ever recorded in English history—the friendship between two poets, Mr.

Watts-Dunton and Mr. Algernon

Charles Swinburne, England's greatest living poet.

The wedding between Mr. Watts-

Dunton and Miss Reich is, it appears,

the culmination of an intimate friendship covering a period of some fifteen years, during which time Miss Reich assisted the poet materially in his work, and matured the love grew the same interest that his scattered treasures were collected, to be republished in book form under the title of "The Coming of Love."

Friend of Swinburne.

Mr. Watts-Dunton and his work are widely known, of course. For years, he has been the constant companion

under the same roof with Mr. Swinburne at the Pines, at Putney Hill.

Recently, however, the third companion to these inseparable poets has been

Miss Reich.

"My marriage will make no difference at the Pines," said the poet. "I never expect to be separated from Mr.

Swinburne during life, and we shall all live together."

The little home of the two poets was in disorder recently. At the Pines changes have become necessary owing to the new order of things, and the make room for Mrs. Watts-Dunton house adjoining will be added for the home, and used as an annex to hold the 10,000 or more volumes belonging to the distinguished men. As no wedding journey followed the ceremony, the moving is now well under way.

Mr. Watts-Dunton could not believe that his wedding would be of so much interest to the outside world. "It is of no importance," he exclaimed, "but his eyes sparkled merrily when he was asked how it happened, and what his plans were."

A Clever Woman.

The new member of this select literary household is the youngest daughter of G. A. Reich, of Canada

Lodge, Putney, S. W., a prominent merchant of London and Moscow. She is accomplished in art, literature and music, but considerably younger than either of the poets. She is a friend of

Mr. Hall Caine and has a large circle of acquaintances in society and among

STILL FUNNY MAN—IS ERNEST HOGAN

Colored Chap of Vaudeville
Fame at the Grand With a Musical Extravaganza.

"Rufus Rastus," the famous musical extravaganza which has at its head Ernest Hogan, of vaudeville fame, immensely pleased large audiences at the Grand New Year's afternoon and evening. The cast is made up of colored people, and indeed they are a creditable lot of show people. Hogan has the reputation of having drawn as high as $500 a week in vaudeville for a number of years, and those who saw him yesterday are willing to agree that he was worth the money. Undoubtedly he is the funniest colored man on the stage, and he knows when to stop and not overdo the fun. His singing qualities aren't of the finest, but he sang a song which made a big hit. It is called "Wouldn't It Be a Dream?" is a topical ditty, and Hogan's rendition of it made it an instantaneous hit.

The colored comedian was supported by a very capable colored cast, several of the members possessing very fine voices. "Rufus Rastus" is a decidedly story running farce, with a very funny, sumptuous, one of the most magnificent boat scenes ever exhibited at the Grand being introduced in the second act. The costuming is rich and tasty, and on the whole the production ranks among the very best of the musical attractions on the road.

Shadow and Sunlight

Lithe and active, with every muscle as supple as an Indian's, she sits along the stony road, still mindful of the hungry companions awaiting her, and holding the tarts gingerly; but her pursuers are still in possession of their senses, and have wit enough to divide and intercept her, and before she can realize it she finds herself hemmed in and surrounded, helpless in the hands of three "gentlemen" eager for a little diversion.

Panting, breathless, her beautiful face flashing scorn and defiance, she stands and confronts them.

"Hello! This is a pretty sort of game!" says one. "Wot do you mean by running away to a gentleman, when he wants to speak to you?"

"What's the hurry?" demands the second; the third rather further gone than his charming companions, contents himself with what he considers to be a seductive leer.

Madge looks from one to the other, and pants.

"Let me go!" she says, not pleadingly, but indignantly. "Why do you stop me? I do not know you!"

"There's no reason why you should not. Let you go! Wot, after running yourself to death like this! Now, is it likely?" says No. 1.

Madge gains her breath.

"What is it you want?" she asks.

"Is it money?" I haven't any."

A burst of derision greets the question.

"Wot do you take us for—a lot of thieves? We don't want your money. Gives us a kiss."

And the speaker comes a little closer, but stops before the blaze that flashes at him from the dark eyes.

"Let me go!" says Madge, "or I will call the police. Help!"

And she does call.

"Stop that," says one of the "gentlemen"—"we don't want the police. What have you got there? Let's see!"

And he lays his dirty paw on the bag.

Madge's spirit rises and she jerks the precious tarts, for which she has risked so much, out of the reach of contamination.

"Oh!" says her assailant, "mustn't touch, eh? Well, give us a kiss, and we'll let you go."

Madge shrinks back even to the very wall, and her face grows white with an awful despair. Then, as if the word is not too grand for such creatures—begin to tell upon her. A faint sickness seems to be creeping over her; the thought that in another moment she will be in their power—that she may feel their hands upon her—overwhelms and daunts the proud maiden spirit of the girl.

"Let me go!" she pants.

But the foremost blackguard laughs, and lays his hand on her arm to draw her nearer to him; and then, as if smitten by lightning, his arm drops to his side, and with a yell he falls back.

What has happened? Madge scarcely knows; she is conscious that one of her persecutors is flung pell-mell into his native gutter, that another lies on the pavement at her feet, and that the third has disappeared. An hour, a year, a minute may have passed; and then she is conscious of someone standing beside her, and a pair of keen, dark-gray eyes looking down at her.

She is conscious, too, that an arm is supporting her, and also that there is something like amusement in the expression of the gray eyes.

Perhaps it is this that brings her to so quickly. With a gesture that may be one of gratitude, she moves away, and in so doing casts within the light of the miserable gas-lamp.

Then a voice speaks—a voice wonderfully calm and composed, considering that the owner has knocked one man down, and nearly broken the arm of another.

"I hope you're not hurt," it says.

Madge shivers slightly, then looks up, still silent; a man—a gentleman, evidently—stands beside her. He is tall and stalwart; is dressed in evening attire, which his light overcoat barely conceals. The glove on one hand, the right, is split, and irretrievably spoiled. But it is not his dress nor his height which Madge notes particularly. All her attention is taken by his eyes, which are bent on hers with a half-curious, half-amused—still half-amused expression. Still silent, Madge, woman-like, looks at him, and takes in a woman's first impression. He is very handsome; he is young, notwithstanding that the dark, closely-cut hair is touched here and there with faint threads of gray. He has a heavy mustache, and there is a slight scar on the left cheek. Handsome! That is not the word for it. He is noble-looking! All this, Madge, still womanlike, takes in at a glance. But it is his eyes which absorb her attention. Gray—almost dark enough to be black—they rest upon her face with that intent, yet reserved look which eyes wear when the owners have a history worth learning. To Madge they seem as if they were penetrating to her soul. She becomes for the moment unconscious even of the fact of all she owes to her preserver; the eyes and the history absorb her; and for a moment she speculates as to hand, but shrewd and firm, as if it had been used rather than kept in lavender—and laughs. It is the first time he has laughed, and the laugh strikes Madge as the eye had done. It is such a grim, mirthless, cynical expression of amusement.

"My glove doesn't count," he says.

"Now, if it had been the precious tarts!"

Madge is a school-girl and sensible to ridicule.

"I think I will convey them to their destination, before they come to more harm," she says. "Good-night."

"Not alone—you cannot go alone," he says, more decidedly than he has yet spoken.

"I'd rather—"

"Do not be alarmed. I will go with you as far as the corner, and keep out of the gas-light."

Madge inclines her head and they walk on quickly.

"Will you tell me the name of the school-mistress again?" he says. "I fancied I remembered it."

Tebury, replies Madge. "It's a horrible name, isn't it?"

"It isn't very musical," he says; then he looks down at her curiously. "You are very much obliged to me, I think you said."

"Yes," said Madge, staring at the strangeness of the question.

"So much obliged that if I were to ask you a question, you would, in simple gratitude, deign to answer it?"

"That depends upon the question," answers Madge.

"It is a very harmless one," he says.

"Will you tell me your name?"

Madge hesitates, and a faint color comes into her face. Is it not a harmless one? What good can come of his knowing her name? The best thing that could happen to her, so far as this night's adventure, is that it should be buried in oblivion.

He looks down at her—they are under another gas-lamp by this time—and smiles.

"Never mind," he says. "Perhaps it isn't a fair question. We may meet again some day; the world is very small."

"My name is Madge Yorke," says Madge, breaking in.

"That is musical enough," he remarks. "Thank you."

Madge is silent and expectant. Of course, he is now going to tell his name. No such thing—he strides on with that far-away look in his dark-gray eyes, his hand absently stroking the thick, dark mustache.

At the corner Madge pulls up.

"Thank you. No further, please. I am quite safe now."

"We part here, then?" he says, with palpable reluctance. "I am very sorry. I hope you will not brave the dangers of the streets at night again, Miss Yorke."

"This has been very probable," says Madge.

"This has been a pretty severe lesson, has it not?"

"Yes, do you think your school-fellows will be properly grateful?"

LEOPARDS' SKIN FOR COATS

Another Animal Made to Contribute to the Fashion.

London, Jan. 1. — The leopard is the latest of savage animals to contribute to the wardrobe of women, and its pelt is now being used to make smart feminine motor coats. Yesterday a beautiful woman, enveloped in the spotted fur of a leopard, attracted considerable attention as she flashed by in her car.

This fur is not only conspicuous, but becoming, and is an ideal motor wrap, as its short hair does not harbor or show the dust.

Women are this winter carrying umbrellas of various kinds, which are covered with rhinoceros hide and with pig-skin. The latter is smarter than rhinoceros and much prettier. Of a light cream shade, it has earned its great popularity on account of the neatness with which it can be stretched and stitched over a light-weight handle.

Dragons and griffins figure on the Chinese coats that now form fashionable feminine raiment for afternoon and evening wear. They are embroidered by hand in the repose manner. Some of the coats are of waist length only, but their meager area is a riot of blossoms and beasts upon a splendid Chinese blue background.

"It is around the corner here. I thought everybody knew Miss Tebury."

"Innocence in this case is bliss, it appears," he says. "Tebury! Tebury! Stop a moment. I seem to remember it. No matter; go on."

Madge puts at the tone of command and looks at her eyebrows. They are beautiful eyebrows, that, when she frowns, come straight across her brows.

"I don't know what there is to tell. Oh, well, I said they shouldn't go without their supper, and I went to the pastry cook's for the tarts—I hope they aren't crushed, they'll be so disappointed—the girls, I mean."

"They appear to be all right," he says. "And so you went out alone, and at night, to buy tarts for a set of foolish girls. A mad proceeding."

Madge looks at him defiantly.

"Mad! Why? If I hadn't met those dreadful creatures—"

"If!" he says laconically.

Madge bites her lips.

"But I haven't thanked you yet. I'm very much obliged."

"And now let me see your back."

Madge starts with alarm. Go back to Miss Tebury's with a companion—and that companion a six-foot gentleman in evening dress.

"Thanks; please don't trouble! It's of no consequence—I can find my way quite handsily. If you won't mind standing by the lamp-post till I get inside the door—I left it ajar."

"I don't mind standing by the lamp-post all night if I can be of service to you," he says with a smile; "but between this lamp-post and your destination you may meet with half a dozen young men who may insult you, and I should think you have had enough of that for one night."

"Quite enough," says Madge. "What should I have done if you had not been here?"

"I can't say," he says. "No doubt a policeman would have turned up in time to save you from those eads."

"You are better than a policeman," says Madge, naively; "they make such a fuss, do they not?"

"Generally," he says, rather absently, his eyes fixed on her face with an expression of slowly increasing admiration. The pallor had left her face, the look of fright died out of her eyes by this time, and the glorious splendor of her youthful beauty is shining out under the murky gas-lamp, and telling upon him; steadily but surely telling upon him.

Two minutes ago he was anxious to have done with the affair and be off; now he is in a hurry to part company with the school-girl with the face of a Diana, and the frank courage of a boy.

"Yes," he says, more for the sake of keeping her than anything else. "Yes, I am glad I came up. I was going to my club to get some dinner."

"I'm afraid this will destroy your appetite," says Madge, sweetly. "I have given you a good deal of trouble—and spoiled your glove."

He holds up the hand—it is a shapely

HORIZON OVERCAST AS YEAR CLOSES

Apprehension Expressed by Some London Journals.

WHAT ARE KAISER'S PLANS?

Suspicion as to German Emperor is Principal Cause of European Anxiety.

London, Jan. 1. — The close of the most eventful year in recent history finds European opinion inclined to regard the immediate political outlook with anxiety and apprehension. It is a pleasure to be able to sincerely disagree with the prevailing pessimism and to record a firm belief that the scarcely disguised fears of a general war in the near future will prove unfounded. It is in England and France that political alarm is the greatest, and it finds a frank expression today in the usual reviews of the year in the chief journals. Thus the Times declares that the year closes with the horizon overcast with anxiety. The Spectator says: "It cannot be pretended that the new year opens auspiciously, and 'grave apprehension as to the future' is entertained in Paris, not merely by the man in the street, but by persons of knowledge and responsibility."

Case of Anxiety.

The sole cause of all this anxiety is the universal suspicion felt regarding the purposes of a single individual whose name in England and France has become a synonym for danger to the peace of the world. And yet no man in Europe protests more insistently his love of peace than the German Emperor. It has literally come to pass that Emperor William is suspected and feared most when he proclaims the loudest his peaceful purposes.

The Spectator speaks on this when it says that many well-informed Frenchmen believe the Germans have decided to attack them and that they will be attacked with all the suddenness and overwhelming force that modern military organization renders possible.

The Sun's Paris correspondent writes today after consulting the French foreign office, says: "France is not misled by the Kaiser's private pacific utterances. Nothing has been officially to confirm the newly-developed peace views of the Emperor. The French authorities are surprised that official representatives of Germany in France are so right as to say: 'At least they show no eagerness in bringing officially to French ears the change of soul in their illustrious master.'"

Francis is Prepared.

The best answer to all these alarms is contained in the question: "Is it reasonable to expect that Germany will attack France today after she is forewarned and ready, when she held her hand last summer at a moment when France was unprepared and almost at her mercy?" The time for Germany to have struck, if ever, was last June. That opportunity will not recur. It is now a matter of common knowledge that war was only averted then by Great Britain's firm declaration that she would make common cause with France if Germany wantonly attacked her.

That position remains the same, for Sir Edward Grey, the British minister of foreign affairs, has taken the earliest opportunity to announce the Liberal Government's adherence to this policy. In addition the French military position has completely changed in the past six months, and now the French army so powerful as today.

There is some confirmation from Berlin itself that the German Government realizes that the time has gone by for attacking France. It is reported that there is a growing coolness between Chancellor Von Bulow and the Kaiser. The latter sees now that the chancellor has played his cards badly. Instead of separating Great Britain and France he has thrown them completely together and has given France an opportunity to make all necessary military preparations. So, it is said, the Kaiser has abandoned the idea of reducing France to impotence.

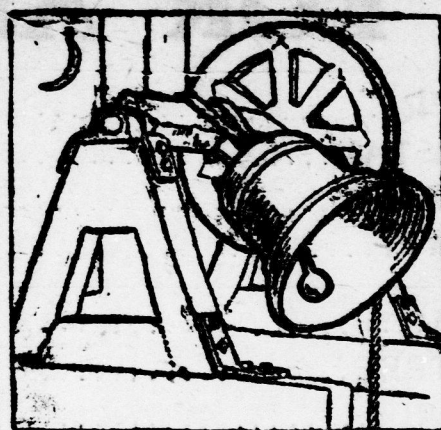

French Are Pacific.

There is little doubt that Germany's attitude at Algiers will be as aggressive and blustering as is apprehended, and nobody knows how to play this game better than the Kaiser. Heavy bluffing in a serious international crisis is dangerous, but it is least so when all the other participants are sincerely pacific in their intentions. The widespread attitude of the French nation is admirable, and there is small chance of their being harried into a bellicose spirit or tactics. The panic of last summer has entirely disappeared. They are still intensely pacific, but are possessed of a stern determination to defend themselves to the uttermost.

The attempt of a section of the German press in the past few days to make it appear that the new Liberal Government of England cannot be relied upon to support France, has not had the slightest effect in Paris. In fact, all the governments which are to be represented at the Morocco conference are earnestly determined to settle all questions fairly and peacefully. Germany alone may have ulterior ends in view. It is difficult to see how she can bring about a rupture save by the most wanton provocation. Even the Kaiser, inordinately ambitious as he is, can hardly put himself in the attitude of forcing an unnecessary war upon an unwilling world. Alarmists are justified, perhaps, in believing that he will attempt to create inextricable confusion, in which the responsibilities will be obscured and any outcome may be possible, but if he succeeds in this, it will be the fault of the members of the conference.

It is not too much to assume that the Governments select representatives of sufficient ability to make this impossible. He can, of course, always turn to some other cause of dispute. This would mean that Emperor William is determined in one way or another to plunge Europe into war for what he might be able to gain from a general catastrophe. Such, indeed, is the only assumption on which the fears are based which find general expression today. Whatever may be said of the German Emperor nothing in his words or deeds justifies a belief so abhorrent.

THE CHURCH SUPPER.

"Ding-dong!" said the big church bell, "A supper to-night and things to sell; Ding-dong! I do declare, I've a mind to stick and refuse to ring, For I wasn't donated for such a thing. But my, oh, my! How sweet that smell! The bell swung out above the pews, And as he swung there, all content, Said down below good pastor Pipp, Fingers tapping, tip to tip, 'I have been asked by all who're here To say unto the sister dear, Who brought the coffee here to-night, That we consider it her right To thus be thanked in public wise— She finds great favor in our eyes. May all her deeds small sweet as this By which she brings her neighbors bliss.' Thought blushing Mrs. Jones, 'I knew What CHASE & SANBORN'S brand would do.' Good deeds, you know, are only lent, And so she smiled in deep content.

Turning from the immediate crisis to the general European situation, there is nothing to arouse fears of a general war. The Russian situation is strictly domestic. No one can forecast its end. Whether the country remains one nation or splits into several sovereignties need not involve the destiny of other powers. The balance of power in Europe has undoubtedly been destroyed by the Russian collapse. It must be restored by one method or other, but the problem need not involve the arbitrament of the sword. No nation in Europe except perhaps Germany, has any territorial ambitions on the continent. The desire for peace in the world at large was never before so strong. The Morocco conference itself instead of involving dangers to the world's peace may furnish the inception of that league of peace between Great Britain, France, and the United States which is gradually becoming large in the domain of practical politics.

FALL CATARRH

Disease Prevalent Now, But Can Be Quickly Cured by Hyomel.

A great many people suffer more with catarrh during the fall months than at any other season of the year. The changes in weather seem to have a bad effect upon the diseased.

Some of the cures made by Hyomel seem marvelous when one remembers that the patient has suffered from catarrh since childhood and that for years they had been unable to get a good night's sleep, on account of the disagreeable tickling and dropping at the back of the throat caused by this offensive disease. A few days' treatment with Hyomel brought quick relief, and its continued use made a complete and lasting cure.

By breathing Hyomel through the pocket inhaler, the catarrh comes with every breath, and the air passages of the lungs and throat are filled with air laden with Nature's own remedies for the cure of catarrh. All diseased germs are killed, and the irritated mucous membrane is healed.

The complete outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles 50 cents. Compare this small expense with the fees charged by specialists.

If you cannot obtain Hyomel of your dealer, it will be forwarded by mail postage paid on receipt of price. Write today for consultation blank that will entitle you to services of our medical department without charge. The H. T. Froehlich Company, Hyomel Building, Ithaca, N. Y.

TELLS OF TRIALS IN FROZEN SOUTH

How Nordenskjöld Met the Antarctic Perils.

FLOATING ON A CAKE OF ICE

For Sixteen Days the Crew of Sixteen Men Lived on Their Floating Home.

New York, Jan. 1.—A man with a scientific temperament, a man who has made his name in the Arctic and Antarctic explorations, arrived in this country Saturday from Sweden after a particularly rough passage. He is Dr. Otto Nordenskjöld and he is accompanied by his wife.

Dr. Nordenskjöld was formerly professor of geography in the University of Upsala, Sweden, but is now connected with the University of Gothenburg. He will deliver a lecture on Jan. 5 before the American Geographical Society.

Speaking of the northwest passage, Dr. Nordenskjöld says that the developments will be of a purely scientific character and not commercial. He has explored both the north and south, but most of his work has been in the south.

While given up for lost for two years in the frozen south he experienced all the contemplative horrors of starvation and freezing to death. He says the south is like the north country, only colder. For months he lived upon penguin soup and seal blubber. Dr. Nordenskjöld had inherited the staying qualities needed in making such a trip. For he is a nephew of the famous Arctic explorer, Baron Adolf Nordenfjöld, whose voyages in 1878 and 1879 around Europe and Asia, making the so-called northeast passage started the world.

At the invitation of the Danish Government he went to East Greenland in 1900. The party went far into the heretofore unknown Jameson's land. He had long cherished a plan to make a trip into the Antarctic and upon his return from Greenland laid definite plans to that end. His first step was to purchase the ship "Anarctic" and under his command the expedition set sail from Gothenburg on Oct. 16, 1901. According to the original plan, the party was to cruise the first summer, then establish a winter station. When the winter station, the idea was to make observations and take scientific observations.

The first part of the plan worked without a hitch, but the Antarctic met with ill luck. Upon trying to get back the ship sank. It got caught in an ice jam first and a party of three made a dash on sledges to reach Dr. Nordenskjöld at his winter station, but failed and was compelled to make improvised winter quarters of their own. The others of the crew stayed, with the ship until compelled to abandon it, then all hands found themselves on a high cake of ice floating. For sixteen days the crew of sixteen men lived on their floating home. The cold was piercing.

The men had given up in despair when they discovered an island on the horizon. Sixteen days after they had abandoned the ship they set foot upon land.

The return trip of the expedition was in the nature of a triumphal tour. At Buenos Ayres a reception was tendered. Dr. Nordenskjöld, At Malmo, Sweden, where he arrived in April, 1904, an enormous chorus singing the national air, greeted him.

At Stockholm the whole city wore holiday dress and the celebration extended over several days. As a result of his labors, Dr. Nordenskjöld has been made an honorary member of the Geographical Societies of London, Amsterdam, Brussels, Madrid, Buenos Ayres, Vienna and other cities.

He says that his lead into this southern country has not only a scientific value, but a commercial, for companies are now sending whalebone expeditions into these hitherto unknown seas.

SIXFOLD MURDER

Prisoner Wears in Court a Flower in His Buttonhole.

Brill, Jan. 1.—Julius Linke, a glass manufacturer, was placed on trial for a six-fold murder at Cametz, Saxony, Friday.

The victims were his wife, four sons, whose ages ranged from 5 to 10 years, and his mother-in-law. The wife and children had been killed with an axe while asleep, while the mother-in-law, who appears to have been aroused during the murders, was strangled.

A watchman on a church tower saw Linke's house ablaze, and called the fire brigade, which put out the flames. The mutilated remains of the six victims were found in the bedrooms, and Linke, who was in the house, declared he was unaware of the crime until he was aroused by the cries of fire in the street.

Linke, who is 36 years of age, is a tall, intelligent-looking man of distinguished appearance and dandified dress. He wore a flower in his buttonhole, and was cool and self-possessed in face of the hostile feeling manifested against him in court.

When the judge pointed out to Linke that his shirt and trousers, stained with blood, were found hanging upon his own bedstead, the prisoner replied: "I suppose they were placed there by the murderer to excite suspicion against me."

The skulls of the victims were produced in court, and the prisoner alone, of all the spectators, appeared to remain quite indifferent while Dr. Strell explained the nature of the injuries.

SEES A WAR FOR GOLDEN THRONE

German Paper Says Britain Is After the Treasure—Will Fight With Ashantis.

Berlin, Jan. 1.—One of the stories by which a section of the German press strives to discredit British colonial policy is published in the Chemnitz Allgemeine Zeitung.

This journal announces that Great Britain is on the eve of a war with the Ashantis for the possession of the historic golden throne, which is one of the treasured relics of the Gold Coast.

"The British have long desired this relic," it says, "and promised to King of the Ashantis if he would betray its whereabouts. The man was actually made a chieftain, but the scheme for the theft failed, owing to another native's vigilance."

"It is now demanded by the Ashantis that the upstart shall be removed from the chieftaincy. The British authorities have refused this, but their prestige has been greatly impaired, and the Ashantis are determined to initiate a war."

"This will be long and difficult, for if the Ashantis are successful at first they will receive the support of the Fanti negroes."

The Chemnitz Allgemeine Zeitung received its story from a German trader at Tarkwa, on the Gold Coast.

New Bunch of Peers.

London, Jan. 2. — On the recommendation of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, King Edward has conferred peerages on Lord Edmund George Fitzmaurice, brother of Lord Lansdowne; Sir Arthur Devitt Hayler; Hon. Philip James Stanhope, youngest son of Earl Stanhope; Charles Hart Hemphill, Sir James Joicey, Charles Henry Wilson and Sir William Henry Willis, and Lord Reay.

The following were sworn in as members of the Privy Council: John Edward Ellis, Richard Knight Causton, Thomas H. Haw, Edmund Robertson, Thomas Hart, Sir Walter Foster and Henry Labouchere.

NOT A NAUSEATING PILL.—The expelling of a pill is the substance which enfolds the ingredients and makes up the pill mass. That of Parnell's Vegetable Pills is so compounded as to preserve its form and they can be carried into any latitude without impairing their strength. Many pills, in order to keep them from adhering, are rolled in powders which prove nauseating to the taste. Parnell's Vegetable Pills are so pre-delicate.

A few years ago only men of great fortune possessed private cars. Nowdays there are so many of these palaces on wheels that their value is estimated at $2,000,000.

DEATH TRAPPINGS STOP A WEDDING

Bridegroom Regarded Them as an Augury of Bad Luck.

Paris, Jan. 1.—A funeral a wedding that was to be and a broken engagement are the principal features of an extraordinary lawsuit which will shortly be tried in the Paris courts.

In the will of Mme. Marrs, an eccentric old woman who died not long ago, was a proviso to the effect that $14,000 should be spent on her funeral. The heirs spent all they could, but found when they had concluded the arrangements that they had a few pounds still in hand.

To get rid of this they gave orders that the black and silver draperies put up over the door of the house on the occasion of the funeral should be left for five days.

Another resident of the house, whose daughter's nuptials were to be celebrated yesterday, objected to the trappings of woe, and asked the conseree to remove them.

The conseree did not remove them, and when the prospective bride

NEW MEMBERS OF THE CITY COUNCIL.

ALD. ELECT STEVENSON.

ALD. ELECT BOOTH.

ALD. ELECT ARMSTRONG.

ELECTION AFTERMATH.

With the city council standing six Liberals to five Conservatives, and with Ald. Forristal, independent, the Liberals have no fear that they will not be treated fairly this year. The school board is also just to the liking of the Liberals, and fair play to all is assured this year, there being five Liberals and five Conservatives, with the balance of power in the hands of the Liberals.

As far as the council is concerned, the Liberals are in a vastly improved position this year. Last year there were but five Liberal aldermen, and the mayor. This year, there are six Liberals, and as Ald. Forristal was supported mainly by the Liberals, he may be depended upon to see that his Liberal colleagues are not treated unfairly. Owing to the alderman's attitude in the last Hyman-Gray election, when he supported the Minister of Public Works, a large section of the party attempted to knife him. Ald. Forristal was loath to run for the council again, as he has large business interests to attend to, but he consented to stand in response to a large petition signed by members of both parties. His name appeared on the Conservative slate, but a large number of the machine workers scratched it off. However, the Liberals, recognizing the worth of the alderman and his fairness in the past, gave him a strong support, and he was again returned.

Speculation as to who will secure the chairmanships of the several committees of the city council are already being made. A suggestion was made that Ald. Greenlee be chairman of No. 1, Ald. Forristal of No. 2, and Ald. Matthews of No. 3 committee. Another guess is that Ald. Forristal be chairman of No. 1, Ald. Gerry of No. 2, and Ald. Matthews of No. 3 committee. That this arrangement will not suit Ald. Matthews there is no room to doubt. Having headed the polls, he feels that he is entitled to the chairmanship of No. 2, but so far the feeling appears to be against him.

The first meeting of the new council will be held on Monday morning next at 11 o'clock, when Mayor-Elect Judd will be installed. In the meantime, Mayor Campbell is attending to the duties of the mayor's office.

The first meeting of the school board will be held on Thursday night at 8 o'clock, the law stating that the first meeting shall be held the Thursday following the first Monday in January.

Rumor has picked Trustee Strong for the chairmanship of the board, though Mr. W. W. Gammage's name is also mentioned. If Mr. Strong accepts the chairmanship of the board, it is not improbable Mr. Gammage will be made chairman of No. 2 committee.

Today a number of persons were looking up the assessments of the several school trustees, as it is upon these figures that the balance of power now hangs in Liberal hands. A scrutiny of the assessment rolls shows that Trustee Strong is by long odds the largest taxpayer on the board of education, his assessment running somewhere in the neighborhood of $10,000 over the next highest taxpayer on the board, Trustee MacRobert. Thus, the parties being equally divided, Trustee Strong has the casting vote for chairman and on all other questions which result in a tie.

The fact appears to be that very little will be heard of politics in municipal affairs this year. Sensible citizens hope it will be so.

The city council is somewhat more representative of all parts of the city this year than last, but both East London and West London, as usual, failed to elect a district representative. This year ward 1 has three aldermen, all residents of South London; ward 2, none; ward 3, three, and ward four, six aldermen. Mayor-Elect Judd also resides in South London.

Last year's council boasted of the mayor and eight aldermen to sit in the city council. The following are the aldermen from the different wards:

Ward 1—Ald. Armstrong, Gerry and Greenlee.
Ward 2—None.
Ward 3—Ald. Stevenson, Forristal and Booth.
Ward 4—Ald. Matthews, Cooper, Gilman, Garratt, Saunders and Wyatt.

It was said today that the liquor men are searching the titles of the assessment aldermen to sit in the city council. If any of them should be caught and found wanting in qualifications, trouble is promised.

Water Commissioner-Elect Saunders has issued a statement to the electors, in which he thanks all for the support given him at the polls. He also expresses regret at the defeat of the new main proposal, and declares it was due to the fact that the people were not quite sure that there is plenty of water for years to come at Springbank. He now feels that it will devolve upon this year's commission to prove that there is plenty of spring water down the river, and he says that if this is done, the people will without hesitation sanction the expenditure for a new main, which he declares to be an absolute necessity.

Ex-Ald. Stevely is making no complaints regarding his defeat. He takes it philosophically, and is cheery through all. But many of his friends say that he was badly hampered by a lack of conveyances to carry voters to the polls. A local Conservative stated today that Mr. Judd had 120 rigs, against 36 for Stevely.

There are six Methodists, four Presbyterians, one Roman Catholic and one Anglican on the council this year. They are Ald. Matthews, Gerry, Wyatt, Cooper, Saunders and Booth, Methodist; Ald. Armstrong, Greenlee, Greenlee and Stevenson, Presbyterians; Ald. Forristal, Roman Catholic, and Ald. Garratt, an Anglican. The mayor-elect is also an Anglican.

The temperance people are jubilant today over the result of the election. They have seven men in the council whom they endorsed, and they look for the carrying out of the bylaw to reduce without any trouble whatever. As the law is read around the city hall, the commissioners will be compelled to cut off the licenses if the by-law is carried. The act says the council has the power to fix the number of licenses which shall be issued in London, and the council will be asked to fix the number at 26. Thus, when the licenses are being granted in May next only this number will be issued.

If the council were to merely instruct the commissioners to cut off six licenses, the cutting off would be optional with the commissioners, but the council is paramount in the matter of fixing the number of licenses which shall be issued. It is not likely that any of the licenses will be cut off until the 1st of August, as the regulations will not be made, if the by-law carries, until May, and then it is customary to give the proprietor three months to dispose of his stock.

City Clerk Baker intends to ask the city council to increase the number of polling booths in London from 42 to 50. The population of the city is increasing so rapidly that several of the voting subdivisions are becoming unwieldy and it is the clerk's intention to cut these subdivisions in two.

One of them is No. 11 of ward 1. This year and last the returns from this subdivision have been very late. In reaching the city hall, and the newspapers, the deputy last year was George Young, and then he was blamed for the delay. But this time A. R. Calcutt acted as deputy and he was equally as slow. It is felt that the deputy is not to blame for all the delay. And Mr. Baker intends to have the subdivision divided for next year.

Last year Mayor Campbell secured a majority of 105 in East London. This year Mr. Judd had a majority of 112.

The election proved that only one voter's name was left off the lists this year. A great many people who thought they had voted registered complaints with City Clerk Baker, but investigation proved that they had no legal right to be on the lists. This fact speaks very highly for Mr. Baker, who has been courteous and fair to all in his work as compiler of the voters' list and returning officer.

SURPRISED HOTELMEN

Inspector Galpin Visited Number During Prohibited Hours.

Inspector Galpin and some police officers were busy on Sunday, and raided several hotels. At the Western Hotel on Richmond street, kept by John B. Jennings, they are said to have found two bars in full operation—one located in the cellar, where several men were caught drinking.

At the London House, kept by John P. Evans, it is reported that four men were found indulging.

At the Boswell House, kept by Brammer Harrison, it is also said a large number of men other than boarders or guests were found.

The Grand Central Hotel, kept by Wm. Mahon, was also visited. A large number of men are reported to have been gathered in there. Informations have been sworn out, and the cases will come up in the police court in a day or so.

One hotelkeeper gave as his excuse for selling that he thought it was Monday morning, not Sunday, but as there is also a heavy fine for selling on election day, it is probable that he will have to pay the piper.

Several other hotels were visited, it is said, but there was nothing doing.

HENDRIE-MCCULLY.
On Wednesday last the home of Dr. McCully, Cedar Springs, Ont., was the scene of an interesting event, when his daughter Mary became the bride of Wm. E. Hendrie, B. A. of New York city. The bride was assisted by Miss Margaret McCormick, of Chatham, and the groom by W. N. Sexsmith, B. A., of the Deseronto High School staff. Mr. and Mrs. Hendrie are former pupils of the London College Institute, and have many friends in the city.

FINE VAUDEVILLE BILL.
Numerous Good Acts at Bennett's This Week.

What is perhaps the best vaudeville bill of the present season was presented to crowded houses, both matinee and evening, at Bennett's yesterday. Three of the offerings proved to be distinct hits, and all of the others are quite good.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins Fisher, in "The Half-Way House," proved themselves comedy artists of the first order, and carried off the highest honors. A more pleasing vaudeville sketch has never been seen in London. As Lilac Court, the landlord of a New England country inn, Mr. Fisher presents a character study of the real Yankee. His quiet humor is delightfully refreshing, and fairly bubbles over with bright and witty lines. Mrs. Fisher, as Belle Younger, an actress, who comes to join a theatrical troupe, is equally good.

A laughing hit was scored by Albert E. Reed and Co. in a merry sketch entitled "Making a Man." Mr. Reed is a talented comedian, and is ably assisted by Miss Mignon Auburn and Robby Markham. As a downright laughter-maker, "Making a Man" is a huge success. Last night's audience gave a party to eighteen young girls in honor of Miss Vera Keen, who is home from college.

Garner and Muller have a novel act, in which Mr. Muller gives some clever impersonations of famous actors. It is interspersed with sweet singing by Mr. Garner.

Harrison brothers pleased greatly in a good "rube" sketch, and a German dialect skit was presented in an amusing manner by Downey and Willard.

Mr. Wm. Rogers, of Stratford, presented in splendid voice, and some good moving pictures completed an exceptionally fine programme.

SARA'S GOOD SENSE
Great Actress Patronizes a London Concern and Sets Good Example.

Sara Bernhardt, "the divine Sara," is not only a great actress, but a keen business woman. She recognizes that to her accident is of as much importance as fire insurance is to the merchant or manufacturer. She does not, however, invest in a policy without investigating the propositions of the various companies, and it is therein she shows her true business instinct. This year her investigation has been thorough, and it is therefore not surprising that a few days ago, while in New York, she sent an application to the Empire Accident and Surety Company for a $10,000 policy, which was promptly made out at the head office here. The great Frenchwoman has thus given a "straight tip" to the people of Canada, who are themselves generally beginning to realize what she did not take long in finding—namely, that the propositions of the Empire Accident and Surety Company are the best offered anywhere.

—The officers of Star Lodge, A. O. U. W., are to be installed tonight by District Deputy Grand Master Armitage, assisted by the officers of other lodges.

LONDON JUNCTION.

LOCAL MARKET.

London, Tuesday, Jan. 2. Very little can be said of the market today, as the attendance was light. The supply of small stuff was far below the average, so far as quantity was concerned. There was a good demand for what was offered. Prices as a rule were firm.

Grain—There was quite a large supply of oats offered; sales were brisk at $1.90 to $1.95 per cwt. Wheat is steady, at $1.90 per bushel.

Hay and Straw—There was a good demand for the 22 loads of hay offered; sales were brisk at $7.50 to $8.00 per ton. Hay and straw sold at $5.50 per ton, or $3 per load.

Butter and Eggs—The supply of butter was not large; prices were firm at 25c and 26c for pound rolls, and 23c for crocks. Eggs were in fair supply, and sales were made at 26c for packed eggs and 27c to 28c per dozen for fresh-laid.

Dressed Hogs—Not many offered; sales were brisk at $9.25 per cwt.

There was not enough poultry, apples, potatoes or butchers' meats to warrant a change in prices.

TO HUSH UP SECRETS

Princess Louise, of Saxe-Gobourg, Takes $1,000,000 to Keep Silent.

Paris, Jan. 2.—The conditions of the settlement of the long-drawn-out triangular quarrel between the Princess Louise of Saxe-Gobourg and her father, King Leopold of Belgium, and her husband, Prince Philippe of Saxe-Gobourg and Gotha, are as follows:

The prince pays her as alimony $11,000 annually, and also the sum of $1,000,000 by instalments, while King Leopold guarantees his daughter an annuity of $10,000. The princess undertakes to hand over to the prince's lawyer all the documents and photographs intended to be used as evidence, the divulgence of which will annul the arrangement. The two parties agree to accept a decision of the court of Gotha in its decision.

The settlement is most opportune for the princess, as it will relieve her of a monetary embarrassment so extreme that she actually has not been able to pay her hotel bills.

It will be remembered that Leopold had his daughter, Princess Louise of Coburg, shut up in a private asylum because she had thwarted his will. The story of her escape and her arrival in Paris has been told. On arriving there Princess Louise put up at the Westminster Hotel, where she has been ever since. In order to satisfy her father and the Belgian authorities as to her sanity, and to justify her claim to her share of her mother's fortune, Princess Louise contented to submit to a medical examination by experts chosen by the court.

They proved that the daughter of King Leopold was in full possession of her reason. However, the King will have it that she is crazy, and crazy she has got to be, whatever anybody may say to the contrary; and if she won't be crazy of her

STREET NAMES

WORRY LONDON

There Are 106 Queen Streets and 78 Albert Streets.

THE CONFUSION IS ENDLESS

County Council Grapples With Problem, and May Forbid the Duplication of Names.

London, Jan. 1.—London street names are causing almost as much trouble as the unemployed problem, or fiscal reform. Even the postal authorities are beginning to be worried. As for strangers in the metropolis, it is practically useless to ask them their way about unless they can give more detailed information than the mere number of the house and name of the street they want.

The reason is simple enough. There are literally hundreds of streets in London with identically the same name. Even such well known places as Trafalgar Square are duplicated in name in several places; and there are exactly 106 streets named after Queen Victoria. To illustrate the position, the story of some touring women who recently "wanted to know" might be cited.

Trouble for Tourists.

They were looking for Bond street, and followed the time honored precedent of asking a policeman.

Then the policeman asked a question: "Do you want Bond street, off Amwell street, Pentonville, north; Bond street, Vauxhall, southwest London; Bond street, off Piccadilly, west; New Bond street, or Old Bond street—which?"

The ladies were staggered, but suggested that out of the five Bond streets, perhaps it was the one off Piccadilly, "where the rings come from."

In the addressing of London letters the utmost confusion exists, and thus has grown the custom of placing on each London envelope some initials indicating the point of the compass in the direction of which the street might possibly be found. Some one has suggested that out of the five Bond streets, perhaps it was the one off Piccadilly, "where the rings come from."

It is not at all an unusual thing for a person living in John street to have his letter go completely round the circle of the city—from north to south, east, and west, and finally again to north before it gets to him—for, be it known, there are no less than 48 different John streets in London. Besides this, there are bewildering compounds of John street that simply drive you into a state of coma. There's John Carpenter street, and John Campbell road, and John's yard, and John's mews, and the changes are rung on John so much that if you are looking for a man who lives anywhere in a street with a John to it, you may as well employ a district messenger to locate him first before you begin writing. Then, for instance, if you wished your letter to reach him, you could address it thus:

"John Johnson, 15 John street, East North-East, Halfway between St. Paul's Cathedral and the Guildhall, just opposite St. Swithin's Church, and around the corner from the Fire Station, London."

Seventy-Eight Albert Street.

Suburban estate builders have run the gamut of family names—one builder naming his streets after his daughters; another after his sons; a third after his deceased wife's sisters, and so on. And thus, in London, the man looking for a person in Albert street has just 78 different Albert streets to select from—"he pays his money and takes his choice," so to speak. Incidentally he may find going to all the 73 Albert streets instructive. It is one way of learning something about London. Again you may have a friend whom you promise to meet in St. George street, not knowing there are 57 other streets of the same name. Unless you are specific to indicate the particular street, to name the exact district, to describe some conspicuous building, or to mention some famous landmark of the place, you are as likely as not to fail in the appointment. Speaking of these family names, London has 36 St. James streets, 23 Alfreds, 24 Thomases, 18 Henrys, 16 Alexanders, 42 Elizabeths, 34 Marys, 9 Mary Annas, 5 Emilys, 5 Emmas, 6 Elizas and 2 Sophias.

Even the names of great statesmen have been honored in many parts of London in endless duplication. There are 8 Gladstones streets, 10 Palmersons, 8 Pitts, 7 Beaconsfields, and so on.

To Straighten Out Tangle.

Another favorite expedient in street names is the adoption of the names of flowers. There are 24 Rose streets, 8

Damage Done on Holiday at Cook's Shoe Store.

Yesterday morning a fire broke out in the shoe store of the J. P. Cook Company, Dundas street. It was caused by a chimney fire at the rear of Mills' book store on Richmond street, a stopper in the wall having blown out, allowing the fire to make its way into the shoe store.

Though a holiday, it happened that Mr. Cook and a number of clerks were in the store, engaged in stock-taking, and the blaze was noticed the moment the stopper fell out. An alarm was at once sent in and the firemen responded promptly. Only the chemical engine was used, but the flames were soon overcome. The loss will be in the neighborhood of $1,000, covered by insurance.

—“The Gypsy Girl,” will be presented at the Grand on Thursday evening at popular prices, with Dolly Kemper in the title role, supported by a company of well known artists. The play is full of human heart interest. As a special feature of the programme Miss Kemper will introduce Albert Von Tiltzer's latest song, entitled “Swinging Under an Old Oak Tree.” The melody is one of those catchy airs, which is immediately picked up by the boys in the gallery and whistled on the streets after the first performance. During each of the choruses Miss Kemper throws natural flowers to the audience.

OUR DECEMBER WEATHER

Past Month's Record Unusual But Not Phenomenal—Official Figures.

Many people in the city regard the weather that Londoners experienced in December of 1935 as of a remarkable nature. In comparison with the December previous the past month may perhaps be thought rather remarkable, but as a matter of fact it was pretty much the average December weather that has been experienced for many years back. The actual figures at the observatory confirm this statement.

Usually the sleighing has been better, though the fall of snow last month was not much less than that of other years. Many previous Decembers have passed with less snow and more sleighing. After nearly every light snowfall last month the weather became warmer and melted it into slush. Eight and three-quarter inches of snow were registered during the month. In 1889 and 1894 December showed only 2-10 of an inch snowfall. 1892 had only a very slight fall. In 1884, 20 9-10 inches were registered, and in 1904 21 inches. 1904 was undoubtedly a record breaker. The highest temperature during last December was 47 degrees above zero and the lowest 3 degrees below. This low temperature was reached on the morning of Dec. 1, when a severe frost set in.

The rainfall during the past month was registered at 2 50-100 inches. In December, 1935, it was 1 86-100 inches.

The December weather of the past year, though unusual, perhaps, was by no means remarkable.

A QUIET HOLIDAY

Outside of Elections, There Was “Little Doing” Yesterday.

New Year's Day was passed in this city very quietly. The day was given over chiefly to pleasure. The scarcity of snow made sleighing almost impracticable, but there was sufficient frost to allow the rinks to open. Princess Rink had a very fine sheet of ice though the constant wear of the several hundred young people present gradually cut it up. The crowd presented a truly pretty winter scene as the skaters glided around.

Westminster Rink, and South London was also crowded. Large numbers congregated on the coves, where there was a splendid sheet of ice.

The theaters did a very good business yesterday, both houses being very well patronized.

SERGEANTS ENTERTAINED

Non-Coms. of Wolseley Barracks Were Hosts on New Year's Day.

The non-coms. of Wolseley Barracks held their annual New Year's reception at the sergeants' mess yesterday afternoon, and a very large crowd of citizens paid the jolly soldiers a visit.

The quarters were very finely decorated. Refreshments were served to the visitors from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Several hundred invitations were issued to the friends of the sergeants among the civilians, and also in the Seventh Regiment. Representatives from some of the regiments in Toronto, Brantford and Hamilton were present.

Col. MacDougal, the commanding officer, and other members of the staff dropped into the mess during the afternoon. The affair was the best yet held by the sergeants. The committee having in charge included Quartermaster Sergt. Husband, Sergt. White, Color Sergt. Bingham and Sergt. Cockburn.

The regular winter short course for instruction opens today. It is expected that 10 officers, 15 sergeants and 4 corporals will be in attendance.

JOSEPH C. JUDD ELECTED MAYOR

and Scarlett also gave a good account of themselves.

The School Board.

The result of the election for school trustees is eminently satisfactory to the citizens. This year only four were to be elected, as the five who secured the highest number of votes thereby secured a two-year term when they were elected last January. The four who dropped out were Messrs. Strong, Blackwell, Teasdale and Yeates. The latter refused to again enter the field, as his firm, the London Machine Tool Company, is leaving London for Hamilton. The other three again appealed to the people, and two of them, Mr. Strong and Dr. Teasdale, were re-elected. Two new faces will also appear on the school board this year.

By yesterday's vote, Mr. James A. Westervelt, well known as an educationalist all over the province, and Mr. G. N. Weekes, a popular local lawyer, and a former school teacher, are returned to the board.

Thus three of the four trustees elected are Liberals, the only Conservative being Dr. Teasdale. As there are two Liberals among the two-year men selected last year—Trustees Gammage and Tillmann—it is seen that as far as political complexion is concerned, the board will be evenly divided. A lively struggle for the chairmanship is likely to result, but it is also likely that the Liberals will control this part of the school business, as the law states that the trustee who pays the largest amount of taxes shall have the deciding vote—and Mr. W. T. Strong happens to be that gentleman. Thus fair play is assured for all on the board this year, as the control of that body has passed out of the hands of the Conservatives, who have ruled it by machinery for some years.

General regret will be felt at the defeat of Mr. D. W. Blackwell, who has been an efficient member of the board of education for a number of years. Dr. Burdon, who is also among the defeated, has been a member of the board, as was also Mr. Colerick, and Mr. Toil was a newcomer in the educational field.

The following are the trustees elected:

Strong ..... 2,479

Westervelt ..... 2,378

Teasdale ..... 2,245

Weekes ..... 2,245

The following are the votes polled by the defeated candidates:

Burdon ..... 1,977

Blackwell ..... 1,965

Colerick ..... 1,531

Toil ..... 764

The Water Commissioner.

Mr. W. E. Saunders, the well-known wholesale druggist, made a phenomenal run for the water commission, defeating his opponent, Mr. J. R. Minihinnick, by a majority of 517.

Mr. Saunders' election is a victory over the Conservative machine. Mr. Minihinnick's name was on the Tory ticket, but Mr. Saunders refused to run as other than an independent. He is a Conservative, but under the circumstances he was supported by a large number of Liberals as well as those of his own party who are opposed to machine rule, and the result is that he is returned by an overwhelming majority.

A somewhat peculiar feature of the election is that Mr. Saunders was in favor of the second main, but the main was defeated. On the other hand, Mr. Minihinnick opposed the main, and yet he was passed over by the electorate.

The following is the vote polled for water commissioner:

Ward 1 ..... 705

Ward 2 ..... 455

Ward 3 ..... 825

Ward 4 ..... 821

Totals ..... 2,806

Majority for Saunders, 517.

The Bylaws.

The result of the vote on the question of reducing the number of liquor licenses in London to 26 occasions but little surprise. It was a foregone conclusion that it would carry, though many expected a larger majority. The temperance people worked hard to secure the indorsement of the measure by the electors, while the liquor interests worked equally as hard to defeat it. In a vote of 6,117, the bylaw had, however, a majority of 373. The following is the vote:

For ..... 3,243

Against ..... 2,806

Majority for Saunders, 517.
