

TERRIFIC STORM HITS THE QUEEN CITY; MANY FLOODS, WIRES DOWN, WALLS FALL

A Cyclone and Cloudburst Hold a Fifteen-Minute Session at Toronto With Disastrous Results to Property.

Toronto, Sept. 2. — A severe storm that had some of the elements of a cloudburst, cyclone and electrical display combined, broke over Toronto, shortly after 5 o'clock this afternoon. The storm came from the north, and lasted fifteen minutes. The lightning put some electric light wires out of business temporarily, and fallen wires were reported in several sections of the city. The heavy fall of rain caused flooding in some localities, where the sewer traps for the time being failed to carry off the great rush of water, and the wind did considerable damage.

The most serious injury was done to three houses in course of construction on Kendall avenue, two of which are owned by Ald. R. C. Vaughan, and the other by Mr. Minty. Mr. Minty's house was a fair-sized brick dwelling, and had been completed so far as the walls were concerned, even to the chimneys. The roof was not on, however, and the wind knocked down the upper section of the house. The gables and a considerable section of the walls crashed in to Ald. Vaughan's houses, which were up one story above the foundation. A portion of the north walls were wrecked. The falling bricks from the single house broke the joints of Ald. Vaughan's pair of houses at 77 and 79 Kendall avenue, thus causing a part of the solid brick walls to go down. Ald. Vaughan estimated the damage to his buildings at about $500. Mr. Minty's loss was not known, but it was thought to be considerable.

Many of the streamers which hung across the streets, advertising the exhibition, were torn into shreds, and all the streamers were more or less damaged.

Several awnings were broken down by the force of the storm, and numerous branches of trees scattered on the ground. Three big trees on Bathurst street were blown down, and as a result the residents on the northern side of that street, as well as some distance east and west, were in darkness last night. The electric lamps in the houses, as well as those on the streets, failed to illuminate, and coal oil lamps and candles were hastily pressed into service.

CLAIMS ADJUSTED

Government Divides $32,000 Amongst Relatives of Explosion Victims.

Kingsport, Sept. 2. — A dispatch from Ottawa reports that the widows and other relatives of the men killed by the explosion of an acetylene buoy last year have had their claims adjusted. Thirty-two thousand dollars is to be placed in this proportion, Capt. W. H. Allison, Prescott, $10,000; Capt. N. Couillard, Montebello, $5,000; F. Mulien, Prescott, $7,500; N. Guillard, Prescott, $6,500.

SCARF PIN FOR BERT

Presentation by Newspapermen to Mr.
J. H. Moorhouse.

Mr. J. H. Moorhouse, for some time night editor on the Free Press, leaves this afternoon for Winnipeg, where he is to take the position of private secretary to Premier Roblin.

Saturday night he was waited on by representatives of The Advertiser and Free Press editorial staffs and presented with a gold scarf pin, set with pearls. The presentation was made on behalf of the newspaper men by Ald. Matthews, who assured Mr. Moorhouse that his London friends regretted his removal from London, and would be pleased to hear of his continued success.

The recipient made a suitable reply.

AN ORILLIA MYSTERY

The Body of a Well-Dressed Woman
Found in Lake Simcoe.

Orillia, Ont., Sept. 2. — At 9 o'clock this morning the body of a well-dressed woman was found floating in the lake opposite the park dock. The body was brought to shore and Coroner Dr. McLaren notified. The body was identified as that of Mrs. Edward Pratt, of Parry Sound. Mrs. Pratt came to Orillia on one of the Muskoka expresses yesterday afternoon at 3:40 from the south, and was driven to Mr. David Thompson's, on Front street. She returned south at 4:30 to Toronto, and again came to Orillia at 4 o'clock this morning, in company with Mrs. Clark, mother of Mrs. Thompson. Mrs. Pratt retired to sleep on a lounge in a downstairs room, and this morning was missing, having left the house during the early hours of the morning.

ONCE WITH WHITE SQUADRON.
Kingsport, Sept. 2. — James Gille, for many years an engineer of the White Squadron, has been appointed engineer at the government dry dock in succession to R. McLeod, deceased.

EXPRESS WAS STALLED

Cause, Passenger Threw His Coat
Over the Bell Rope.

No. 5 Grand Trunk express, due from the east at 5:20 p.m., was stalled for a half an hour between Hyde Park and Komoka on Saturday owing to the innocent act of a male passenger who was not accustomed to travelling. In search of solid comfort the man took off his coat and threw it over the baggage car, instead of hanging it in the proper place. This caused the bell on the engine to ring, the result being that the driver thought it was a signal from the conductor, and he accordingly brought the train to a sudden stop. The drawback on the baggage car was pulled out, and half an hour was lost before the express was able to resume its journey.

BAD STREET CRASH

Trolley Hit Delivery Wagon and Two Men Are Severely Injured.

Toronto, Sept. 2. — Late Saturday afternoon a southbound car came into violent collision with a Peters Bros. bread delivery wagon at Alexander and Yonge streets. Driver James Lenahan was hurled from his seat to the outer rail of the down track, fracturing his leg and inflicting a fearful wound across the top and back of his head. Lenahan was removed to the Toronto General Hospital and operated on. He is in a critical condition. His assistant, Matland, was thrown out of the wagon on to the track, and the fender ploughed his legs under it, pushing him along in front of it, and badly burning his legs from the knee down by the friction. The horse was killed outright.

LABOR DAY PROGRAMME WILL BE THE BEST YET ATTEMPTED

Great Variety of Sports To Be Pulled Off at Queen's Park
This Afternoon.

This is Labor Day—the day of the workers alone, but a day to be participated in by all classes of citizens. And if the weather proves favorable, it is an assured fact that a splendid time will be had by thousands at Queen's Park this afternoon, when the 15th celebration of Labor Day will take place.

The programme is one of the very best the labor men have as yet attempted. It includes a list of sports, which will be sure to please all, and there will also be plenty of music. At two o'clock sharp, the proceedings will be opened by an address by President McAndrew of the Trades and Labor Council, followed by an address by Mayor Judd, Mr. D. A. Carey, of Toronto, and others.

The bands of the 7th and 28th Regiments will be present and will render special programmes of music during the afternoon.

The 15th Annual.

In the preface to the programme, Chairman J. M. McCormick and Secretary J. L. Goodburne have the following to say:

In presenting our Souvenir Programme for the fifteenth annual celebration of Labor Day in London, Monday, Sept. 3, 1906, we wish to take this opportunity to express our sincere thanks to the citizens of London and outside patrons who attended our last year's celebration and helped to make it such a splendid success, and at the same time extend to you one and all a most hearty and cordial invitation to be with us again this year. The intention and efforts of this year's committee in charge is to make Labor Day a home holiday for our citizens and have as many visitors as possible from outside to enjoy the day with us.

In the way of a change the usual parade has been dispensed with for this year in order to allow the vast army of workers to enjoy the entire day with their families and friends. Queen's Park is an ideal spot for such an outing as is arranged for Labor Day, and with the splendid list of sports and special attractions booked our citizens will have no need to go out of the city for lack of entertainment at home, which has been too often the case on former holidays in London.

No less than four special trophies will be competed for, viz., Canadian Club Trophy, Gillean Trophy, Cigar-makers' Union Trophy and Trades and Labor Council Trophy, which alone would be sufficient to furnish a good afternoon's programme. However, that is only a small part of the big day's doings.

In conclusion, we again extend to you a most earnest invitation to be with us on Labor Day, and enjoy the entertainment, which we feel confident will meet with your approval.

The Sports.

1.—Relay bicycle race, one mile (open). Teams four men. Entries 440 yards. Prizes: 1st, $5; 2nd, $3; 3rd, $2.
2.—Married ladies' race, 50 yards. Continued on Page Six.

LOVERS VICTIMS OF PRACTICAL JOKE

Scared "Ghost" They Wildly Leap from a Boat Into the Water.

Hamburg, Sept. 1. — A couple of lovers who had gone for a row on the Alster—Hamburg's charming lake—and had chosen one of the most secluded parts, with overhanging trees, to rest and dream away the happy hours in the moonlight, were the victims of a cruel jest the other evening.

Out of the dark water there appeared a white object, which floated slowly toward the boat. "Look a dead body!" exclaimed the young woman in terror, and her sweetheart at once seized the oars and made an effort to escape the uncanny thing.

Suddenly the body rose half out of the water, and in sepulchral voice said, "Give me your boat," and at the same time a hand was stretched out to seize it. "This was too much for the sweethearts, who sprang out of the boat into the water, screaming loudly for help. This brought several other boats to the scene, and the couple were rescued, but the humor which had played the cruel hoax had vanished.

A VICIOUS OFFENSE

Adelaide Township Farmer Alleged to Have Committed It.

Joseph Harris, an Adelaide Township farmer, was charged at Strathroy recently with a peculiarly vicious offense. Peter McKenney, a neighbor, had Harris summoned before P. M. Noble for wilfully attempting to kill or maim a horse belonging to him. McKenney's horse had gone over to Harris, when the latter is alleged to have procured a shotgun and poured a charge of shot into the animal. Another neighbor named McIntyre swore that he had four cattle shot, one killed and another horse blinded by McKenney's horse had gone over to Harris, when the latter is alleged to have procured a shotgun and poured a charge of shot into the animal. TREPOFF LEAVES THE CZAR'S PALACE

His Presence at Peterhof Considered Dangerous for the Imperial Family.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

St. Petersburg, Sept. 2. — The withdrawal of Governor Trepoff from the position of governor of the palace of Peterhof is an event of supreme importance in the Russian crisis. The causes of his departure are not disputed. His sedentary and secluded existence for the last eighteen months, without the outdoor exercises which his energetic constitution required, has severely impaired his health. The recurrence of pains in his chest have latterly been more frequent, and the doctors warned him that there were no prospects of recovery if he continued his present duties. They therefore ordered that he should take a long rest abroad. Apart from the medical aspect of the case, it is unquestionable that the recent outbreaks of terrorism have contributed to his retirement. The Czar was deeply shocked over the assassination of prominent generals, such as Kozloff and Mehl, in the immediate neighborhood of Peterhof, and Gen. Trepoff was fully aware that he himself would be a target at which revolutionists' bombs and bullets would be directed. Trepoff has throughout subordinated every national and political consideration to the preservation of the lives and authority of the imperial family. He has been brought to see that these interests are no longer served by his daily control of the palace.

Had Czar's Confidence.
It is altogether too soon to say that General Trepoff's retirement is a victory for progressive ideas. His intrepid character and simple personal life have an unprecedented personal influence with the imperial family, influence is directed single heartedly to preserving the Emperor's safety. On rare occasions when he was brought in contact with independent politicians they found him a man of moderate mental endowments and conscious of his limitations. When the memorable zemstvo delegation came to St. Petersburg in July, 1905, to impress the Czar with the urgency of granting representative institutions, it was Trepoff who obtained them access to the Czar after the present minister of the court had refused to do so. It was the personal view of Trepoff that led to the questions against his advocacy of M. Stolypin as premier when the dissolution of the Duma had been decided upon was admittedly because he approved M. Stolypin's energy in combating the radical Duma. Revolutionary onslaughts cannot be expected to abate with his retirement, nor Government reprisals, but the fact remains that the man on whom the Emperor bestowed the greatest confidence and attachment has withdrawn from the scene.

OBTAINS INJUNCTION

One London Company Moves In Courts Against Another.

A Toronto dispatch says: The Ideal Concrete Machine Company of London, Ont., have procured an injunction against the London Concrete Machine Company. The Ideal Company claim that the London Company have been infringing on their rights. Mr. Pocock, of the defendant company, was out of the city, but the injunction was served by telegraph and holds good till Thursday. It restrains the London Concrete Company from working, selling, or in any way dealing or infringing on the Ideal Company's patent, No. 95122, which covers a hollow concrete building.

STUNT WAS NOT IN RUNNING ORDERS

Grand Trunk Freight Performed
It in Local Yards on Saturday Night.

A Grand Trunk westbound freight train, so heavy that, although hauled by a Mogul engine, a pilot had been called to help it up the grade to Hyde Park, did a little stunt at 11 o'clock on Saturday that was not included in its running orders.

The train was a very long one, made up largely of loaded cars, and it was bound from London to Sarnia Tunnel, in charge of Conductor McDonald and Engineer Kirkwood, of the latter place. It was pulling through the local yards at a rate of about five miles an hour, and on reaching a point between Wellington and Clarence streets it was to cross over to the next track south. When the front wheels of the engine struck the switch they left the rails, and in less time than it takes to tell the locomotive and the tender were bumping along on the ties.

As soon as Engineer Kirkwood realized what had happened, he applied the brakes, but owing to the pilot at the rear end, the train was not brought to a standstill until the leading engine reached the west side of Clarence street. By that time the Mogul was heading for up-town, after tearing up considerable of the crossing.

Replacing the tender on the rails was not an easy task, by any means. The tender, with its fresh supply of coal, and between 5,000 and 6,000 gallons of water in its tank, was down two or three feet in the sand, while the locomotive itself was also firmly embedded in it. Owing to the great weight of the Mogul it was thought advisable to order the large derrick from Hamilton to place it on the rails, but before the apparatus arrived three engines from the local roundhouse, directed by Mr. Thomas Treleven, had accomplished the task. The freight engine was little the worse for its wanderings, the only damage being to its pilot.

A peculiar feature of the accident was the smashing into splinters of the car near the center of the train. The car was of the New York butchers' express line, and the weight of the cars behind it, together with the resistance from ahead, lifted it several feet in the air, and crushed it into kindling wood. Not another car on the train, save the caboose, was damaged. The rear platform of the van was broken by the pilot engine.

FIRE AT ROUNDHOUSE

Small Damage Done on G. T. R. Property
in East End.

A spark from a locomotive set fire to a pile of slabs in the rear of the Grand Trunk roundhouse, corner of Rectory and Simcoe streets, at 9 o'clock last night, and the firemen were called. The flames were subdued in half an hour.

The electric lights were out and the drivers of the different pieces of apparatus had a hard job to find their way along the dark thoroughfares. Many of which are torn up just now. The fire loss will be small.

ZORAYAS A FLYER

Runs Away from the Temeraire in Toronto Bay.

Toronto, Sept. 2. — It looks as if the Zoraya, the Fisher cup winner, will go through the racing season with a clean record. She has yet to be beaten in her class on Lake Ontario this summer. Saturday afternoon, in a southwest breeze, which varied in strength from twelve miles to a zephyr, she again won. It blew up nice and fresh for the start, and it looked as if Temeraire had a grand chance to break into the red flag class. They were sent away together, but breeze or no breeze, Zoraya was not to be denied. Inch by inch, foot by foot, she drew away from the Erie creation. She was slowed down until the rail was awash, and she carried a royal bone under her forefoot, but though the Temeraire sat up better in the breeze she could not clean up the slippery cup winner. When the wind dropped there was nothing to it. Zoraya commenced to gain by the yards. She finished the course and got the gun at the buoy in the bay opposite the R. C. Y. C.'s Island club house, when Temeraire was still in the lake off the island.

DEATH OF A J. P.

Harriestville, Aug. 31.—The death of John J. Jelly, justice of the peace, occurred at his late residence this afternoon, aged 67 years. The deceased was a son of the late William Jelly, who died some years ago. He was born at Brookville and came to Middlesex when quite a young man. He took an active part in the Fenian raid, for which he was awarded a veteran's jewel, as well as a land grant of 160 acres in New Ontario from the Dominion Government. He took up the profession of teaching school in his younger days, after engaging in a general store business for a number of years. Mr. Jelly was a Conservative in politics, and in religion a member of the Church of England. He was married to Matilda Emery, who survives him, together with four sons and two daughters—William, of Phoenix, B. C.; James, of this place; Clinton and Richard, of Toronto; Alberta, of New York city, and Mrs. D. F. Kunz, of White Oak. The funeral will take place to Dorchester Cemetery on Monday, under Masonic honors.

Poured Kerosene on Fire Young Man Badly Burned

Wm. Ball Saved from Fatal Injuries Through Neighbors' Presence of Mind.

William Ball, an Englishman, 21 years of age, attempted to light the fire with kerosene yesterday morning. He is now in Victoria Hospital, suffering from a number of serious burns, but Dr. English, his physician, says he will recover.

Ball lived with his brother-in-law at 147 Nelson street east. He has been out from England two weeks. Yesterday morning the brother-in-law (who had to work all day), arose and lighted a fire in a wood stove in the summer kitchen to get his breakfast. Ball rose about 9 o'clock, and also attempted to cook a breakfast. He didn't reckon on his brother-in-law having started a fire in the stove, but poured about a quart of kerosene on the ashes.

An explosion followed, and the doors and lids of the stove were blown in the air. At the same time Ball was covered with burning oil and ashes. He was almost blinded, but he rolled into the yard, screaming with pain.

The neighbors saw him writhing in agony on the ground with his clothes blazing furiously. Several of them at once secured blankets, some of which they first soaked in water, and wrapping them around Ball, subdued the flames.

Dr. English was called and had the patient at once removed to Victoria Hospital. There it was found that his arms, chest, face and hip were terribly burned. His injuries were attended to and he is resting easily.

The presence of mind of the neighbors alone saved Ball's life.

SLAUGHTER ALL
FOOLISH VOWELS

No Quarter to Letters That Clutter Language of State, Says Roosevelt.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
New York, Sept. 2.—Professor Brander Matthews and Mr. Carnegie indulged in more figurative handshaking today when Secretary William Lock, jun., gave to the reporters a copy of the letter written by President Roosevelt to Public Printer Stillings, wherein the President tells the Government printers to show absolutely no quarter to foolish vowels and things that now clutter the language of state.

One reason for the Government's adoption of the simplified spelling, the President writes, is to keep abreast of the band wagon, or words to that effect. Should the crippled words run so far ahead of the band wagon, however, as to be lost to view, why then, the letter continues, the simplified spelling "will be dropped, and that is all there is about it." And if ever there was a word that conveyed the impression of something solid being pushed off the platform roof, that word is "drop."

The President regrets the uproar of ignorance that has greeted the announcement that all letters that don't make a noise are to be tied to the electric chair for good and all. What in the name of common sense, asked the vowel slaughterers, is the use of an "ough" that is pronounced "uff" in enough, "ow" in plough, "oo" in through, "o" in though, "off" in cough and so on to the end of the list? "Anyhow," concludes the President, "a whole lot of folks are making a big fuss over something that isn't anything very great at all."

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 2. — Capt. Thos. Donnelly has left for Hamilton with the steamer Donnelly and a wrecking crew to raise the Government dredge Nipissing, which sank near Hamilton a week ago, during the strong northeast gale.

PALMA REFUSES TO ARBITRATE; REJECTS PLEA OF THE VETERANS

Members of Army of Liberation May Go Over to the Insurgents.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Havana, Sept. 2. — Gen. Cabreco, representing the Cuban veterans, had a long talk with President Palma today, with a view of arbitrating the difference between the Government and the rebels. President Palma told the committee that the veterans were at liberty to wait on the rebels and persuade them to lay down their arms, in which case they would be free to leave the country or return unmolested to their homes by virtue of the recent offer of amnesty. But, he added, if the veterans took this course they would act merely as private citizens. The Government would not consent to treat through them or in any other way with the rebels.

When Gen. Cabreco left the palace he met Gen. Mira, the chief disbursing officer of the army of liberation, who, on seeing Cabreco's downcast face, said: "Didn't I tell you that the old man would not listen even for the country's sake?" Gen. Cabreco answered sadly: "You were right." This killed the last hope of an amicable settlement of the present trouble and will cost the Government the sympathy of the veterans.

General Miro, who was one of the most prominent generals in the war of liberation, succeeding Maceo when the latter was killed, said to the correspondent afterward: "The Government's folly in not recognizing the Veterans is apparent. Cubans such as are now in the field can hold out indefinitely by breaking up into numerous parties of 40 or 50 men. Spain's experience should have taught the Government officers better, but they are not the men who fought in the war for independence. I could take a few negroes and defy all the forces the Government can raise."

General Cabreco said after leaving the palace that he dreaded the task of telling the veterans the answer he received from President Palma.

A MISSION FULFILLED

CHAPTER VIII.
The Elopement.

The next day, true to his word, Ronaldson departed from Capri by the Naples boat. He did not, however, inform his friend Spencer of his departure, and Spencer did not inquire for the two parted with a certain coolness which weighed little upon Keith's mind, divining as he did how soon it would be removed. It was a gloomy day, breezy and showery, and Ronaldson made the weather a reason, rather than readily accepted by the other, why he should not accompany him to the steamer.

But the weather did not prevent Spencer later on from starting on a long trudge up the Anacapri hill and round the island. He was more annoyed than he chose to admit, even to himself, by Keith's enigmatical behavior, and by the suspicious which it aroused in his mind. A long climb and a good drenching did him but little good, and he came home to dinner in a bad temper, which the rising storm and consequent enforced confinement in doors to the little smoking-room did not tend to improve.

The next morning he was dressing, when Antonio, one of the waiters, knocked and entered apologetically. "Signor," he said, "Stefano Rucci, the fisherman, is here, waiting to see you. I told him that it was too early, and that you were not now up; but he insists that he must see you at once."

A horrible quail shot through Spencer's mind—he had grown so intimate with some of these Capri fish-people, and with none more so than Stefano, whom he respected as a sturdy and upright young fellow.

"It's all right," he said, "you can show him up here, Antonio. I was just going down."

In another minute the young fisherman entered. He was a tall and handsome young fellow, darker and sterner looking than his friend Germino, with a certain air of dignity about him that seemed to belong to all his family. Usually he was neat and clean to per-

Designed by Martha Dean.

A Dainty Blouse of VOILE.—6484.

The dainty blouse has become an indispensable bit of finery in the well-dressed woman's wardrobe. The present blouse is as fine and elaborate as human fingers can fashion, with the result that it is rather expensive if purchased ready-made. Here is sketched one of the newest ideas in a blouse for home construction, which is simply made, yet very effective. The front may be embroidered or trimmed with applique or braid in design. The three narrow tucks on the shoulders give extra fullness to the front. A finely tucked material, or embroidered fabric, as well as lace, would serve for cuffs and chemise, the latter being removable. The design may be utilized in the making of a blouse or taffeta blouse, while eolienne would be especially attractive. In the medium size the pattern calls for 2 5-8 yards of 36-inch goods.

fection, with spotless shirt and well-scrubbed face; but today his dark hair was all rough and untidy, and his shirt tumbled, and he had not even, the other observed, taken the trouble to wash the signs of yesterday's toil from his strong brown hands.

One glance at his face told his tale to Spencer; nevertheless, he endeavored to look cheerful as he inquired, in his usual friendly tone: "Well, Stefano, and what is it?"

The young man had to struggle with his emotions for a moment, so strong were they, before he could speak. "It is this, signor. Where is your friend, the Englishman?"

"You know as well as I do, Stefano, that he went off by the boat yesterday."

"And I carried his luggage down for him. I wish I had flung both it and him into the sea, signor! but now—where is he?"

"I know not, Stefano; I know no more than you. Why do you ask?"

"Because, signor"—and the young fellow clinched his hands and drew his breath hard—"because my sister is gone too. She is gone after him, signor. Dio! that she should so disgrace herself! But I will find him, signor—I will kill one or both!"

"Gone, Stefano! Are you sure of it?"

"Sure of it, ay!" And Stefano laughed bitterly. "She disappeared last night while I was at work at the Piccola Marina. She never came home all night—last night I have been looking for her; and this morning they tell me one of the rowing boats is gone, and that Serafino and Giuseppe Marazzi are also lost. They have rowed her over to the mainland, signor, those two boys—"

"What, last night? Through all that wind and rain?" exclaimed Spencer.

"It was not too stormy for those who know the coast," remarked his companion; "they would get there safe. But if not—if they are all three drowned, so be it—it is better so!" he added, passionately.

"Hush, Stefano, hush, my poor boy; don't talk so madly. There may be less harm done than you think. Ronaldson is not a bad sort—it may be he has married Margherita, or is going to marry her."

"What! An English signor, rich and noble, marry a Capri coral girl—a girl of the fish-people? Ah, no, signor, such things do not happen!"

"They do sometimes, Stefano. At any rate," continued Spencer, earnestly, "I will help you all I can to find your sister. If," he continued, with a heat rarely provoked in his calm and equable disposition—"if Margherita has really been tempted away by Ronaldson, I shall not be much less hard upon him than you. Only be calm, Stefano—let us talk the matter over without excitement."

He was still speaking, when there came another tap to his door, and this time Antonio entered with a note.

"It was brought by Serafino Marazzi, signor," he explained, as he put the soiled and crumpled envelope into Spencer's hands; "but, so soon as he heard that Stefano yonder, and he jerked his head with some curiosity toward the fisherman, 'was here, he ran away at full speed, and would not stop.'"

The note was in Ronaldson's handwriting, and Spencer tore it open. Only a few words, Stefano, studying his features anxiously, saw their expression of anxiety change, as he read, to one of relief. His friend might be a fool, but that was his own lookout; at any rate, he declared himself to be no scoundrel, and that under present circumstances, was no small comfort.

"Listen, Stefano," he said, his voice betraying his excitement. "I will read you every word. Margherita is not disgraced, thank God! Why did we fear such a thing, knowing the girl as we do?"

"Dear Spencer—Margherita and I are married (if you doubt my word, you may ask the fat old padre P. at the chiesa just beyond you). So now you may set your conscientious mind at rest, and comfort yourself with the reflection that I am not a ruffian after all. You may also, if you are a good fellow, which I think you are, go down and tell her people this, and tell them not to be frightened about her, as I mean to make her an excellent husband. Tomorrow morning we shall get the civil contract ratified before the prefect, and then be off elsewhere. I'm not quite sure yet where, but Margherita shall write and tell her mother ere long. I am afraid neither of us is particularly sorry for our sins just yet."

"Ever yours, K. R. P. S.—Don't let that stalwart young Stefano pound poor Giuseppe and Serafino into absolute pulp—they didn't know the wickedness they were in for. Margherita says, till they were halfway across, and then she wouldn't let them go back."

Inside this letter was another smaller piece of paper, covered with a few words written in a straggling and inexperienced hand:

"God bless my dear mother, and Stefano, and Serafino, and Elmina. Don't be angry, dear Stefano—forgive me, madre mia. We were married before I went. I would not have gone otherwise. He is so good to me, I will come back some day, dear madre, dear Stefano, Yours,

"MARGHERITA."

In silence Stefano listened to the first letter, as the light, careless words were translated to him. In silence he received and read the second, his bronzed face working with emotion.

Then he suddenly turned toward the wall, and leaning his face upon his arms, broke down, sobbing aloud. His excitable Italian temperament could no longer control itself. But he soon rallied and choked down the heavy sobs that were shaking his broad chest.

"Ah, signor," he said, his black eyes glistening, "she is gone from us forever, though not to shame!"

Spencer could not but feel that this was probably only too true; but he endeavored, in his consolations, to avoid this part of the question, and to persuade the young man that so grand a marriage for his sister was a matter of congratulation. Stefano shook his head slowly and sadly.

"Ah, no, signor, such things are not wise. It does not do for a man like the Signor Ronaldson to marry an uneducated girl like our Margherita. It is not for happiness. Ah, she knew I thought so—she knew I would not let her do it—that is why she ran away at night. Ah! Margherita! Margherita, you will grieve one day that you listened to the Signor Ronaldson!"

"But," said Spencer, who in his heart agreed cordially enough with his companion, but endeavored to disguise the fact, "Ronaldson is a kind-hearted fellow; I do not think he will ever ill-treat Margherita."

"Ah, but there are other ways, signor, besides ill-treatment. He will tire of her; she will be unlike the signora he is used to. The signorine, his sisters, will mock at her ignorant ways; the fine ladies in England will be cold and strange to her. She will be sad at heart and lonely."

He stopped, his voice breaking, and Spencer too was silent, not knowing what to say. He was pacing up and down thoughtfully when Stefano began to move toward the door, cap in hand. "Signor," he said, pausing; "I thank you for your goodness. I must go now and tell the madras. This, no doubt, will comfort her," and he put Margherita's little note into his pocket.

"Perhaps, Stefano," said Spencer, ignoring the respectful salute, and taking the young fisherman's hand in a friendly grasp, "perhaps, your mother will believe more in Margherita's happiness than you do?"

"Perhaps, so, signor—it is likely. She is but a woman, after all, though a good one; and women are easily blinded by their vanity. Doubtless she will be proud for our Margherita; but I—no, signor! and he broke off hurriedly and left the room.

Meanwhile we must be allowed to retrace our steps, and return to the incidents of the previous day. Before noon Ronaldson had arrived at Sorrento, and it may be imagined that the rest of the day was spent by him, notwithstanding his naturally easy disposition, in a somewhat restless and anxious frame of mind. Most of it, indeed, despite the uninviting weather, he was either upon the balcony of the hotel, where he had ordered dinner, or pacing up and down the narrow shore.

The marriage ceremony had that morning been duly accomplished, amid the dimness of the gray old church, by the well-trimmed and accommodating, but not highly-to-be-revered, old padre, the knot, though hurriedly, had been safely tied, and Margherita Rucci and himself were now, according to the religious rites of the Roman Church, at the door, distinctly man and wife.

The civil ceremony he had arranged for, having once decided on the fact, Ronaldson had no desire to accomplish it by halves—was to be performed the next morning as early as possible in Naples, whither he intended to journey that same evening with his bride as soon as practicable. He had as yet scarcely spoken one word to his wife, made the moment the ceremony had been performed she had fled homeward in terror, he whispering, as he laid his lips hurriedly to her forehead, "Tonight, my Margherita!" and she merely answering, "If I can—if not, tomorrow."

SUICIDE BECOMES
EPIDEMIC IN PARIS

Love and Guilty Conscience Motives Which Impel Men to Seek Death.

Paris, Sept. 1.—An epidemic of suicides has broken out here during the last two days.

A doctor from Buenos Ayres, who has lived in Paris for the last 30 years, shot himself in the Bois de Vincennes yesterday. A young man shot himself in the Square Montholon, leaving a letter saying that he took his life because the woman he loved had rejected him.

A young man of 25 shot himself opposite the Trocadero this morning, having first dressed himself in new clothes from head to foot.

At the Gare de Lyon a railway employee threw himself in front of a train, and a workman killed himself by jumping from the fortifications into the dry ditch below, because he had stolen a comrade's bicycle and been found out.

CAN'T GET TOGETHER

English Tilters at Toronto Exhibition Go on Strike.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—The four English tilters who were imported to take part in the tournament of "Ivanhoe" have gone on strike. Their knightly exercises have been the joke of the exhibition, for they seldom could get their horses near enough together to deliver the deadly strokes which they were supposed to inflict upon each other. The men blamed the horses for all the trouble, and demanded cavalry steeds from the barracks. These were supplied, but with no better results, and, struck till they were supplied with the kind of animal that will enable them to get together in the melee.

A MEDICINE FOR THE MINER'S BACK.—Prospectors and others going into the mining regions, where doctors are few and drug stores not at all, should take themselves with a supply of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It will offset the effects of exposure, reduce sprains, and when taken internally will prevent and cure colds and sore throat, and as a lubricant will keep the muscles in good condition.

IN SIGHT OF 15
MAN IS MURDERED

Laborers Held at Bay While Friend Is Stabbed Fifteen Times.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 31.—Placido Albanese, an Italian repair man on the Pennsylvania Railroad, was murdered last night in his shanty lodgings near Gap, Pa., in the presence of fifteen of his countrymen. The sixteen men were asleep when four Italians entered and during which Albanese received fifteen knife thrusts in his chest and head and a bullet in the shoulder. One knife thrust over the heart caused his death. He defended himself with a razor, and is believed to have slashed one of the robbers. During this melee the other Italians were kept in subjection by a robber standing guard at the door, who covered them with a revolver. The robbers made their escape, but a posse has been organized, and is in pursuit.

All submitted without resistance except Albanese, who denied he had $15 secreted about his person as charged by the robbers. A struggle ensued, and Albanese received fifteen knife thrusts in his chest and head and a bullet in the shoulder. One knife thrust over the heart caused his death. He defended himself with a razor, and is believed to have slashed one of the robbers. Black Dress Goods
Lead The Fall Fashion Procession

From every Fashion Center of note comes confirmation of our early predictions that Black Dress Goods would lead the Fall Fashion Procession.

The steadily increasing demand that we are experiencing is evidence that the ladies of London and vicinity are following the trend of fashion very closely.

Black Dress Goods of every description, from the sheer, silk-mixed fabrics to the medium dress weight and tailored suitings, are correct for fall wear.

Most favored materials for dressy gowns are Voiles, plain and embroidered; Poplin de Soie; Drape Eolienne, plain and embroidered; Albatross, Henrietta, Crepe de Chines and Poplins.

Broadcloths, Panamas, Vicunas, Coating serges, Worsteds, Prunellas and Venetians are most fashionable for tailored suits.

Just a partial list of the most popular fabrics:

The above list will give you some idea of the vast assortment of Black Dress Goods carried by this store.

As we have numerous lines not mentioned on this list, the only way to get a true idea of the immensity of our collection is to come and view it with your own eyes.

There are few stores in Canada that show as immense a variety, and we don't believe there is any store more particular in the selection of their goods or that can offer you values one whit better.

LONDON, MONDAY, SEPT. 3.

A BOOMING TRADE.

The fact reported on Saturday that the customs collections in London during the month of August amounted to $77,464 42, being $1,024 44 in excess of the unusually good August of 1905, is not only an indication of the business activity of our city; it is an illustration of the condition of Canada, and shows that the wave of prosperity which has been steadily rising for several years is still growing higher.

The reports some time since from Ottawa of the trade figures for the year ending June 30, showed that during that period Canada bought in the foreign markets goods to the value of nearly $30,000,000 in excess of the previous year, while our sales abroad were about $45,000,000 more than the previous year.

And the customs returns do not show all the business transactions of our people. There is an immense volume of domestic trade that cannot be so easily tabulated. But evidently we are just as busy buying and selling among ourselves as we are in dealing with the people of other countries.

All classes are prospering. That the manufacturers are doing well is shown by the difficulty they find in filling orders. There seems to be a greater demand for their goods than they can supply. Mechanics are doing well, for there is work for all and good wages. Laborers are doing well — the only trouble being that there are not enough to do the work that has to be done. Farmers are doing well. It is estimated that the crops of the three northern provinces will produce $90,000,000, while live stock, vegetables and dairy produce will increase the amount to $100,000,000.

Evidently the whole Dominion is booming as it never did before. The only danger lies in the tendency in prosperous days to run towards personal extravagance and business inflation. May our people have discretion, and not lose their heads. With the exercise of reasonable judgment the era of prosperity upon which we have entered should long continue.

FEWER PROVINCES.

Some people up around Sault Ste. Marie have been trying to start a movement for a division of Ontario — putting off the northern part and making a new province. It is safe to say that the agitation will not amount to anything. Ontario had trouble in the past in getting its northern boundary fixed where it is, and there will be no disposition to move it any further south. Not unnaturally, the people of Northern Ontario want all the legislation of the Province conducted for their special benefit, irrespective of its effect on the rest of the Province; and if they cannot always have their own way some of them will want to secede. But it cannot be done. As long as Southern Ontario holds the controlling power it will not agree to the amputation of the north, and when the north gets strong enough to control the situation it will not let its southern half separate. So all parties may as well understand that Ontario will remain intact, unless it could add to its already comely proportions by getting a slice of adjacent territory.

Instead of having more provinces in the Dominion it would be better to make the number less. It would be a good thing for the three Maritime Provinces if they were united in one. Still, we have no expectation of any such union. There are local interests down east — more properly speaking, personal interests — which are concerned in preserving provincial boundaries as they are. But whether they unite or not, we in Ontario do not propose to divide.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS, HOME WORK AND TIME FOR SLEEP.

The public schools reopen on Tuesday next, and in London, as well as all over the Province, teachers and parents are exercising their minds as to the means to achieve the highest success for the pupils that is possible. There is always a risk, in these days of hurry and rush that, with the very best intentions, doubtless, the health of the scholar may be impaired by over-devotion to study. This point was strongly emphasized at the meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science by several eminent medical men. Dr. Acland, in speaking on "The Physiology and Physiological Value of Rest," dealt with the subject from the point of view of the practical physician, and confined his attention to young children and those in the period of adolescence. He indorsed the statement of Sir James Crichton Browne, who asserts that in the years of rapid growth more sleep is required than in the later years of life, and he declared that one of the causes of physical deterioration now in progress in the old world is the insufficiency and dislocation of sleep. Far less harm, it seems, is relatively done by curtailing the hours of sleep in adults than in growing children, to whom prolonged and regular periods of rest are an absolute necessity. Yet the experience in Great Britain, as we are certain it is in Canada, is that highly strung, nervous, keen, sensitive children, who are forward in their school work, often get the least rest, though they require the most. It should never be overlooked that what food is to the body, sleep is to the brain and nervous system, and to stint growing boys and girls of sleep is to hinder the processes of growth and development and to impair the efficiency of those higher nerve centers, upon the well-being of which their individual intellectual future so largely depends. Sir George Darwin, another eminent scientist, asserts that if it be a question of giving up some hours in school, or giving up sleep, the former is immeasurably preferable, and Sir George further maintained that lack of due sleep is responsible for a good deal of slackness and staleness.

This curtailment of rest is usually countenanced by parents in order that their children may complete the tasks assigned to them by their teachers. To some children, these tasks may prove light. They are naturally quick learners. Others of different physical and mental make-up are slow in their processes of mental development, and may require twice as long a time to acquire a similar amount of information as their neighbors. But the requirements of the school regulations are such that the pupils must keep up with the procession, or work more overtime in school as a punishment. Is it wise to do so? Assuredly not, even when the home work is undertaken, not by the aid of the evening lamp, but in the early morning. "The fetish of early rising," indeed, was strongly condemned at the British Association meeting as being responsible for a large amount of the nervous breakdown and strain, the insomnia, chorea, and even epilepsy, now prevalent, and this breakdown, Dr. Acland has discovered, often begins as a result of insufficient sleep obtained at school and continued afterwards at the universities. The experiments of Professor Patrick and Dr. Allan Gilbert all go to show that if a boy has to work hard and play hard he must perform be given a large amount of sleep or disastrous results will soon accrue, because of the lowered vitality, the marked diminution of bodily vigor, and the lessened acuteness of the intellectual faculties. Parents should know, if they do not, that the conclusion of experts in diseases of children and mental disease is that there shall be a minimum of nine hours' sleep, at any rate, up to the age of eighteen years — that is, all through the ordinary school period. Moreover, statistics of forty of the great schools in Great Britain and five in this continent show that nine hours' sleep is advocated and put into effect as the means of obtaining the best results, both mental and physical, from the boys. Indeed, to stunt a child of rest, no matter on what pretext, is a mischievous way of attempting to teach him self-control, and defeats the very object in view by making him less efficient in body and mind than he is capable of becoming.

We are well aware that in the time of good King Alfred the day of 24 hours was, nominally at least, supposed to be divided into eight hours for work, eight hours for sleep, and eight hours for recreation, though there were some who thought that a self-respecting man should never remain in bed longer than seven hours. But we must remember that in those days of few inventions the exhausting character of modern life was not experienced. There was, as an essayist in the London Telegraph has well put it, less wealth and more contentment; less competition and more security; fewer distractions for both old and young, but more simplicity. Work was easier, slower; and care, anxiety, apprehension — in a word, worry — did not feed, like the worm in the bud, upon the hours exempt from toil. In these days, in the case of the grown-up, as well as of the young, we, too often, are remorseless in overtaxing the delicate mechanism of our minds and nerves. And it is yet an open question just how many of the new diseases that physicians have discovered the race to be afflicted with are really the result of these new conditions — these new taxes on the mental and nerve faculties — which react on the physical frame in which these agencies of life have to do their work, and with which they are most intimately associated.

Let it be never forgotten that for both old and young it is ever true of Sleep, as is written in the noble address to it: "Without thee, what is all the morning's wealth? Come, blessed barrier between day and day. Dear mother of fresh thought and joyous health."

THE WORST TO COME.

[Detroit Free Press.]

"English is a very difficult language to speak," observed the foreigner who was struggling to learn it. "Cheer up," said his American friend; "it isn't half as hard to speak, as it is to spell."

TERRIFIC JOLT.

[Chicago News.]

Sapleigh — The doctors say cigarettos smoke kills microbes, doncher know? Miss Caustique — Then how do you account for the fact that you are still alive?

NATURAL RELATION.

[Detroit Free Press.]

"You're a great big calf!" cried the huffy girl. "Suppose I am," replied the good-natured youth; "my father was a cowboy."

FLASHED ON HER MIND.

[Baltimore American.]

"It's just flashed on me who that young man was that spoke to me just now."

"Who is he?" "I forget his name, but I was engaged to him in the mountains before I went to the seashore."

EVEN FOREIGNERS NATURALIZED.

[Harper's Weekly.]

Two Irishmen, much disturbed for the future of this country, were recently discussing the matter, when one of them observed:

"I tell you, Carroll, them furriners is gettin' an awful hold in the United States."

"Ye say true," assented the second Celt. "Why, I was readin' over the list of min naturalized be the circuit court yesterday, an' ivery wan of thim was furrin."

WANTED TO TEST HER.

[Chicago Daily News.]

The weary tramp with the red beard halted in front of the wayside cottage. "I called, mum," he announced, "because I found dis sample package of dyspepsia tablets down the road."

"Dyspepsia tablets?" snapped the woman with the broom. "What have I to do with dyspepsia tablets?"

"Why, er — I thought maybe you might give me something to eat dat would gib me de dyspepsia so I could test dem."

HONEST ADVICE.

[Pittsburg Press.]

Dr. Leonard Pearson told at a dinner in Philadelphia a horse anecdote. "A farmer," he said, "wrote to the editor of the Farmer's Friend this letter:

"Mr. Editor: Sir, I have a horse that has been afflicted for the past year with periodical fits of dizziness. Please answer through your valuable paper, and let me know what I should do with him, as he seems to get worse instead of better. I am afraid he will be unfit for work if something is not done soon."

"The editor replied in the next issue as follows: "Our honest advice, based on a careful perusal of that excellent work, 'Every Man His Own Horse Doctor,' would be to take this horse some time when he is not dizzy and sell him to a stranger."

DISENCHANTEL.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Colorado Man — Yes, sir, we're going to have great doings out here this fall. This is the centennial year of Pike's peak.

Stranger — Gosh! Ain't Pike's peak no older'n that?"

EXPLAINING IT.

[Chicago Tribune.]

"Josiah," said Mrs. Chugwater, "this paper says one prizefighter knocked another one out with a 'left hook.' What does that mean?"

"The left hook," impatiently answered Mr. Chugwater, "was one of the implements they had used in pulling off the fight."

DON'T KNOW NOR CARE.

[Topeka Capital.]

What by the way has become of the old-fashioned woman who used to cut her husband's hair?

NOT ENOUGH BATHS.

[Post Dispatch.]

Two crack milliners representing a big Pittsburgh house, who are here studying poems for the fall, started out yesterday to engage bachelor apartments. The young women entered a splendid bachelor apartment house of marble halls and glittering lights, hoping against hope that there might be something cheap in the back. The brass buttoned lackey ushered them into a palatial suite. "Ten rooms," said he, "with three baths." The girls backed timidly away. "I am sorry," one faltered, "but it does not suit. There are not enough baths," she added, after a moment of inward thought.

A HAZARD OF NEW FORTUNES

[Philadelphia Bulletin.]

"Are you crazy?" demanded the bank's vice-president. "What's wrong?" inquired the president.

"This new man you've taken on as cashier's wealth?"

"Are you aware that he goes by the sobriquet of 'shifty Sam'?" "I am. That is why I hired him. I'm tired of being skinned by 'Honest Johns.'"

SOLDIERS TO BE TAUGHT A TRADEMinister of War Introduces Technical Instruction Into Army's Daily Routine.

Paris, Sept. 1. — The minister of war issued a circular to the commanders of all army corps yesterday directing attention to be paid to the technical education of young Frenchmen while they are serving their time in the army.

He points out that young men when they join the army are already fairly well skilled in their trades, and what is required is that their interest in their trades should be maintained and stimulated. Three classes, he thinks, should be formed — commercial, industrial and agricultural — in each of which a special form of instruction should be provided.

Lectures are to be given and visits paid to manufactories and commercial houses. Commanders are ordered to draw up programmes in accordance with these instructions, and submit them by October 1.

HARVARD MOVING FAST.

Putney, Sept. 1. — Harvard did the full course trial this morning, covering the distance from Putney to Mortlake in 18 minutes and 50 seconds, only three seconds outside the record. Harvard benefited by a full tide and a helpful wind. Cambridge did only a mile trial, covering the distance in 4 minutes and 3 seconds.

MCLELLAN SAILS.

Paris, Sept. 1. — Mayor McClellan, of New York, sailed for New York today from Cherbourg on the American Line steamer St. Paul.

FARLEY AT QUEENSTOWN.

Queenstown, Sept. 1. — Archbishop Farley, of New York, has arrived here, and will be the guest of the Right Rev. Robert Browne, Bishop of Cloyne, until he sails for New York on the steamer Campana tomorrow.

Pills and Piles.

A prolific cause of Piles is the use of cathartics and pills of a drastic, violent nature, which is always followed by a reaction on account of the resinous, drying properties they contain. There are other causes, but no matter what the cause or what the kind of Piles, Dr. Leonard's Hem-Roid can be relied upon to cure — to stay cured.

It is an internal remedy that removes the causes of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Suppurating Piles.

A guarantee goes with each package containing a month's treatment. It can be obtained for $1.00 at druggists, or The Wilson-Pyle Company, Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont.

Faulty DigestionCauses Physical and Mental Breakdown—Mi-o-na Will Strengthen Stomach.

Few people realize the intimate relation between the mind and the stomach. Worry and excessive mental work react on the digestive system, while on the other hand the greatest cause of nerve and brain impoverishment is a weak or faulty digestion.

When the stomach does not assimilate the elements of strength and nerve force that are in the food we eat, the energies we expend in the active processes of life are not replaced, and physical and mental breakdown results.

If the stomach does not have action, soon becomes unable to act, just the same as a muscle that is not used becomes weak and valueless. Just as soon as you find that your food is not properly digested, that you taste it after eating, that the tongue is furred, the breath heavy, the appetite poor, the head occasionally dull and aching, begin the use of Mi-o-na.

This reliable remedy contains no poison, and is an absolute strengthening of the digestive system. In fact, it is a guaranteed cure for all diseases of the stomach, excepting cancer. It is not a patent medicine, and its formula is furnished to physicians, druggists, and all intelligent people who may desire it. Mi-o-na differs from any other remedy on the market in its lasting effects.

Mi-o-na costs but 50 cents a box. If you cannot obtain Mi-o-na of your druggist, it will be sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. Write us for advice on your case from a leading stomach specialist which will be sent free. The R. T. Booth Company, Ltd., N. Y.

Still held by some women is that it is impossible to make good pastry from flour made of Manitoba Hard Wheat. Consequently they buy hard wheat flour for bread and soft wheat flour for pastry, and go to a good deal of unnecessary trouble.

Since the appearance of "FIVE ROSES" FLOUR on the market there is no need for any housekeeper to do this, as the brand is made by a process which renders it not only the ideal flour for bread, but which guarantees equally good results for pastry when used the "Five Roses" way.

"FIVE ROSES" FLOUR will make lighter and flakier pastry than any ordinary brands on the market, whether made from hard or soft wheat. All we ask is that you will give it a fair and unprejudiced trial for pastry on your next Baking Day. The results will, we know, more than satisfy you.

REMEDY FOR CANCER?

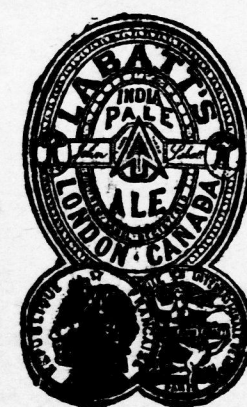

Doctor Says Has Discovered Bacillus and the Cure.

Berlin, Sept. 2. — Dr. Otto Schmidt, of Cologne, has succeeded in making cultures of the cancer bacillus in a certain mildew forming on plants. When transferred to animals the bacillus caused genuine cancer.

In an interview with the correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger, Dr. Schmidt said:

"I am the first man to prove that cancer can be produced artificially on animals."

Dr. Schmidt showed several animals with cancer communicated through infection. The doctor affirmed that a remedy for cancer is now possible. Since he discovered the bacillus, Dr. Schmidt has been experimenting with the remedy, which has given good results, but apparently a cure is only possible when the case is little advanced. Where the ulceration was old, however, the disease was brought to a standstill and the condition of the patient showed great improvement. Dr. Schmidt apparently has not told what his remedy is, but it is not a serum.

Physicians maintain a cautious attitude toward Dr. Schmidt's discovery.

TOTS FOR LAND OF THE FAR AWAY

Billy and Rosie Wandered in Search of Adventure.

LITTLE CHAP HAS WANDERLUST

Once More Back in the Home of the Red Flowers, But Will Soon Be Abroad Again.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Almost every lively must be done with Billy Bird.
Billy Bird is 2 years old, a dreamer and adventurer, and when he isn't running away he lives at 92 Milton street, which is near the Long Island end of the Greenpoint ferry. But Billy Bird suffers from chronic wanderlust that it is an episode in Billy's little life to stay a whole week in Milton street without returning.

If some night when you are trying to find the keyhole you stumble across a sleepy little boy wearing a blue blouse and knickerbockers, black stockings and shoes and no hat, that's Billy Bird.
Sergeant Colmena, of the Greenpoint avenue police station, says he is just sick and tired of sending out general alarms for Billy. Billy has begun now to take his 6-year-old sister Rosie with him on his expeditions. At 10 o'clock yesterday morning, when Billy and Rosie were found asleep in a hallway over Charles Joch's saloon at 355 Second avenue, Manhattan, Billy, instead of being properly ashamed of himself, said that he intends to keep right on excursions until he gets as far as "Coney."

But 6-year-old Rosie had enough of seeing New York for one day. A long time ago, Rosie confessed, Billy had begun to try to persuade her to leave home on one of his personally conducted tours. The home she had left, she said, was away off some place with red flowers in the front yard and a piano inside with a picture over it of a man named Uncle John, with marvelous black whiskers.

It was on Monday afternoon that she fell. Billy had come to her at 1 o'clock and with another hitch and tightening of the running string of his blue knick-ers he announced that the call of the Far Away had him in its grip again and he must go. Would Rosie come and see the big bridge hanging on wires and the ships sailing under it miles and miles below, and places with trees, among which men made out of iron sat in iron chairs fastened to the tops of big blocks of stone and best of all, one place on the Bowery with three red umbrellas without handles swinging from the second story and tossing about like the biggest penny balloons ever made? It wasn't so dumb far away and besides, Billy would hold Rosie's hand, and if she got too tired maybe Billy'd carry her.

But there were so many things to see on Billy's side of the river that it was dark when the two travelers finally started westward across the bridge, hanging on wires, too dark to see the ships hundreds of miles below. Still, the red and green lights on the sides of those ships were very pretty, and far down the river was one beautiful string of orange colored stars that swung across the black water high in the air and looked like a necklace of shiny beads. But Rosie could not enjoy all these wonders as she had thought she would, because as she stumbled along with Billy, hand in hand, her eyes refused to stay open for long and down in her tummy something was seriously wrong. Rosie had not eaten anything since noon.

123, and as the building was merely a black pile of stores and offices, there seemed no possibility of a parlor within containing a picture of black whiskered Uncle John over a piano. Billy Bird hemmed and hawed and opined that perhaps he had been mistaken in the number.

Policeman Dealing then took Rosie and Billy over to the East Twenty-third street station. In front of Sgt. Mc-Guire was a description of a Master
Bird and sister, traveling somewhere in Greater New York incognito, and the description kept tab with the traveling clothes worn by Policeman Paul Deal-
ing's charges.

As Billy had exhausted his imagination of the Charles Joch audience he started all over again with Sgt. Mc-Guire. Glancing from the raconteur to Rosie the sergeant saw Rosie's rosybud mouth drawn up into a great round O
as her brilliant brother told his tales.
Wherefore Sgt. McGuire took Rosie

Guire was a description of a Master
Bird and sister, traveling somewhere in

ing's charges.

Long before the family had reached the Twenty-third street ferry to go home again Rosie's tousled head had dropped upon her father's shoulder and Rosie was in the land of nod. But sleep was far from Master Billy Bird—Wil-Ham, who has the honor of having his description always kept on file in the Greenpoint avenue police station. Stondly he gazed out into space as he took his seat beside his tremendously quiet father in the ferryboat and his little mouth was set in a manful way. But as the ferryboat pulled out into the river and there loomed before Billy Bird the red flowers and the path that leads through them toward the wood-shed Billy's lips began to tremble and he buried his face in his father's coat for a good long cry.

It was on Monday afternoon that she

This Old World of Ours Is All Out of Plumb.

CAUSE OF THE EARTHQUAKES

Long Series of Dreadful Catastrophes
Impending—Secret of Universe Discovered.

New York, Sept. 2.—Something possible who takes even a passing interest in this old world of ours—and Mr.
Rockefeller's—no matter how cold and rueful it may be, doubtless would feel some apprehension to learn that not only one but a long series of dreadful catastrophes is impending. Of course, no one, excepting a few billionnaires, has more than a life interest in this mundane sphere, yet its past, present and future are all a source of general concern.

The foregoing calm, dispassionate creeping up to the subject in hand is premeditated, so as to allay as much as possible the alarm that may be occasioned by what is to follow.

Alarm No. 1.—The world is doomed or worse!

Alarm No. 2.—The flood of Noah's time will not be a marker to what is coming.

Alarm No. 3.—The season for catastrophes is upon us!

The information to the Star late yesterday afternoon, after all but a few of the hands had decided to call it half a day's work and had gone home or some other place. Outwardly the communication presented the harmless appearance of a baseball score or a society item contributed. But inside it was bursting with dire portents. A live bomb with its time for business operations thirty seconds off would probably have caused greater consternation. The text of the communication was as follows:

"Cause of Earthquakes."—The earth is out of her place, or upright position. It is gradually resuming it.
Whenever it is pushed or pulled more rapidly than it can move, earthquakes occur. We are now in one of those periods, from Mt. Pelee, 1900, to 1915. Again from 1925 to 1946-1-2;
from 1955 to 2000 A. D.

"In 1982 the earthquake is of such extent that all the cities of all the nations will be destroyed. From 2035 to 3144 A. D. the earth is in a period of perturbation, and in the latter year settles to its upright position. This brings in the new heaven and new earth.

A Search After Knowledge.
While this information was sufficiently exciting, it was considered hardly sufficiently explicit, so a reporter was immediately dispatched to the address given by the writer to ascertain the source of his inside knowledge of the future. The near-enlightened news-person's heart was throbbing softly with apprehensions as he approached the house on New Jersey avenue northwest, when Mr. Stevens lives. Glancing timidly into the open window as he went up the front steps the visitor observed a gentleman with his hat on sitting in the parlor. He was evidently preparing to go out. The reporter's nervousness may be imagined when it is stated that he jerked the handle on the end of the bell cord clean out of the front door frame when he rang. A pretty young lady answered the bell just as the reporter was about to cut and run for it. She was answering charges for breaking the ring.

Upon inquiry the seeker after knowledge learned that the man in the parlor with his hat on was Mr. Stevens.
He was called. The reporter extended his hand, which Mr. Stevens took, shook and gave back to him. Mr. Stevens did not look the part the interviewer had picked out for him. He was not one of those highly organized, extremely sensitive high-brows who throw bouquets at themselves and refuse to talk to the philistine of the press unless they get space rates for what he writes. On the contrary, Mr. Stevens was of sensible build and his somewhat youthful,

WESTERN MEN SHOOT WELL

Secured the Largest Representation on Next Year's Bismley Team.

Ottawa, Sept. 2.—In the annual D. R. A. matches, concluded on Saturday morning, the western men from Victoria and Vancouver found the strongest representation on the Bismley team, and were most successful in the team matches. The Toronto corps secured the best of the match prizes, with the Hamilton men a close second. The Maritime men who attended shot very well, but the attendance was not large.

MR. BRYAN DIMS HIS PARTY'S HOPE

By Stand for Government Control of Railroads.

SHOCK TO BEST FRIENDS

New York Speech Startles and Disheartens the "Peerless One's" Sanchest Followers.

New York, Sept. 2.—Even Mr. Bryan's closest friends and admirers admit that he distinctly has lost prestige by his appearance here in New York and by his speeches in Connecticut.

The more than five elements in the party was by no means prepared for the "peerless one's" radical adherence to the doctrine of government ownership of trunk lines, involving, as it does, the transfer of billions upon billions of actual property from private ownership to the control of the Government.

Old-time conservative Democrats, like Senator Daniel, of Virginia, had no hesitation in saying that they could not keep pace with the progressiveness of the Nebraska leader.

Even such a leader of the new thought as Governor Folk, of Missouri, did not hesitate to take issue with the government ownership ideas of the "peerless one." In the course of an interview during the afternoon, the Missouri governor said:

"The time has come when it may be feasible for the national government to own and operate the railroads of the country. I doubt much, however, if the people of Missouri would ever consent to bond their property for the sake of securing control of the railroads of the state.

"Forty years ago Missouri practically owned all the railroads within its boundaries. We issued bonds at that time to aid in the construction of the Wabash, Missouri Pacific, Iron Mountain, Burlington, Hannibal and St. Joseph, and other lines. All of the lines were foreclosed and the railroads were bought in by the state. The result was that the people of Missouri found themselves with millions upon millions of bonds which had to be paid, and in the long run the railroads were back in the hands of the people who built them."

When the smoke, and turmoil, and enthusiasm of the big meeting at Madison Square Garden had cleared away there was a distinct feeling of disappointment, and the rank and file of the Democrats, as well as the real leaders, were only too willing to express the feeling that Mr. Bryan's homecoming has been anything but a political gain for him.

People hereabouts, many of whom have investments in railroad securities, have by no means relished the declaration of Mr. Bryan that it favors the purchase by the Federal Government of all trunk line railroads in the United States.

Criticism which has been expressed regarding his platform has not been by any means confined to the Democratic party. Bryan also advocates the ownership by states of local railroad lines.

The declaration of his original programme, as it was understood, was devised for the express purpose of satisfying the state sovereignty idea of the southern party leaders. But everyone knows that nowadays practically all the railroads are parts of a trunk system, and it would be necessary for the national government to purchase control of what were practically the whole railroad system of the country, because the lines which are included within the boundaries of a single state are almost too unimportant to be mentioned.

Throughout the financial district in New York today the opinion generally expressed is that if the platform so glibly expressed by Mr. Bryan last night is to be adopted by the party at large, there will be a repetition two years from now of the memorable campaign of 1896. Mr. Bryan himself cleverly buried the silver issue in his speech last night, but by his adherence to the doctrine of government ownership of railroads he has aroused a feeling of the most intense opposition on the part of the great financial interests of the country.

It is declared his declaration for government ownership of railroads is quite as radical as the stand he took in 1896 for the payment of the debts of poor people through the medium of a depreciated dollar. Bankers, financial men and people who are accustomed to speak for the solid interests of New York are amazed that Mr. Bryan should assume to make such a declaration two years in advance of the next presidential election.

They say that because he modifies his platform there will be a repetition of the campaign of 1896, to the extent that a vast campaign will be waged and the country will be aroused through the medium of campaign education practically identical with that by means of which Mark Hanna overwhelmed Bryan ten years ago.

Everybody who was present at the big meeting in Madison Square Garden last night recognized the fact that Mr. Bryan had made a mistake. There were dozens of party leaders there, like Bailey of Texas, Daniel of Virginia, McGraw of West Virginia, and others who did not hesitate to say that Mr. Bryan had struck a false note, and that he was endeavoring to commit the party to a platform which was dangerously near the rankest kind of socialism.

Long before the meeting was closed and long before Mr. Bryan had concluded his address, people began to leave the garden. The mood of Bryan's eloquence apparently had faded, and the same thing was noticeable today during his incursion into Connecticut. Mr. Bryan was warmly welcomed into New Haven, where a set speech had been arranged for, but at Stamford, South Norwalk and other towns along the line there were practically no crowds at the railroad stations, and there was apparently not the slightest interest manifested in the return to his native land of the distinguished traveler.

BIG ELEVATOR BLAZE.

Ottawa, Sept. 2.—Dowd's flour mill and elevator at Quyon, Que., were destroyed by fire early this morning. Defective electrical apparatus is held responsible. The loss will exceed $5,000, and comes as exceptionally severe, as it is only a few weeks ago since the company's elevator at Pakenham, Ont., was destroyed from an alleged similar cause.

THE WIRETAPPERS TRAPPED AT LAST

Slick Gang Rounded Up by Windsor Detectives.

LOCATED ON COUNTRY ROAD

Surrender as Officers Draw Their Revolvers—News of Arrest Flashed to Track.

Detroit, Sept. 2.—"Well, Burley, old chap, they got us at last."

That was the message that flashed over the G. N. W. telegraph wire to the office at the Windsor race track yesterday afternoon. It was received by Charles Burlingame, representative of the Payne pool room service, and was sent by Frank Robinson, from a point five miles from the track, where the wires had been tapped.

"Throw up your hands!" cried four officers as they pounced down on the wire-tappers. Up they went, all but Robinson's, and he told the tale of their frustrated plans in this short message to Burlingame.

It was one of the biggest wire-tapping seizures made by the police in any section of the country in some time. For four days the wire has been tapped and this fact was known. Lined men had been dispatched as they suspected that it was not a great distance. Messages that went out in the regular course of the telegraphic service on either side of the river led to the conviction that a grand coup was to be pulled off yesterday noon, and when the layout was discovered, the straight tip was furnished to Provincial detectives Campeau and Mahoney.

The officers were at the Windsor track early in the afternoon and before the racing started they stepped into a carriage with two other officers and were driven hurriedly down the Tecumseh road. Their objective point was close to five miles from the race track. They drove toward the Pelette road in Sandwich East, and when a quarter of a mile east of this thoroughfare they told the driver to stop.

Pull Their Revolvers.

Revolvers slipped into the hand from the pocket and they made a hurried march through a cornfield which lies between the Pelette road and the Grand Trunk Railway. This brought them near the quarry, but the men they were looking for did not see them until the officers had sealed a fence and yelled the command—"throw up your hands."

The men were seated in the shade of a tree and the summons was promptly obeyed by all but Robinson, who sent first word of it to the track, then submitted to handcuffing with the rest. There was no show of resistance nor attempt to escape, the men showing up like clams and one of them observing that "another chance to get ever with d-d books has gone wrong."

The detectives made an examination of the surroundings and found a telephone booth, a single state wire, and a battery. One wire ran from the instrument to a nearby pole and connected with a wire which it sustained. The men and the implements were immediately taken to the Windsor police station. They registered as Frank Robinson, of St. Thomas, and A. S. Walsh, of Detroit. All of the men are young and they refused to talk.

It is expected that the officials of the Great Northwest Telephone Company will prosecute them as the wire is owned by them, and the pool room service went over to the east.

Suspected of Former Work.
One of the quartet, Robinson, is an operator and worked at Ottawa, while Walsh is known as an operator in Detroit. The identity of the others is not known by the police, who have been endeavoring to get a line of their supposed confederates at the points where money would have been bet if the wire-tapping scheme had gone through.

The Windsor police and race track officials are of the belief that this is the same crowd that tapped the wire during the meeting held in June, when it is claimed that thousands of dollars was won in the New York and other pool rooms. Efforts to locate the men were fruitless at that time, and if the point where the tapping occurred was discovered it was kept quiet. Ten years ago a gang of wire-tappers were caught over there near the point where yesterday's arrests were made.

Detectives Campeau and Mahoney have no doubt of making a case out of this raid, as they say they caught the four red-handed. The men will probably have a hearing in Windsor on Tuesday.

MR. MCINTOSH HONORED

Elected 1st Vice-President of Division Court Clerks' Association.

The Division Court Clerks' Association of Ontario held their 21st annual meeting last week in the railway committee room at the Parliament buildings, Toronto. The old question of payment by fees for the various items in connection with a suit that does not exceed $10, instead of the present system of a lump fee of $125, was discussed. The proposed fee would amount to about $15 in a suit of this size. The hope was expressed that the Legislature would deal with the matter at the next session.

The following officers were elected: Messrs. E. H. Duggan, Toronto, president; F. J. Bell, Peterboro, first vice-president; J. W. McIntosh, London, second vice-president; Peter McIntyre, Woodville, secretary-treasurer; executive committee, Messrs. Benjamin Allen, of Owen Sound, F. W. McQueen, of Woodstock, George F. Bruce, of Beaverton, C. E. Bourne, of Jarvis, E. J. Wilkins, of Galt.

The following were named as a legislative committee: Messrs. E. H. Duggan, Benjamin Allen, J. W. McIntosh, E. F. McMahon, of Richmond Hill, and J. Dougherty, of Mitchell.

There's Only One Best

In Baking Powder—it is Strong's. There are a number of good reasons why it is best, but the three principal reasons are:

- 1st.—Only the purest and finest materials are used.
- 2nd.—It is all Baking Powder—no adulterants added to make weight.
- 3rd.—It is always fresh and of full strength. Another very good reason is that it costs one-half the price of other good powders. Have you tried Strong's Baking Powder?

GRAND IS A UNION HOUSE THIS YEAR

Mr. Stewart Increases Wages of the Stage Crew—Attraction Today.

Manager Stewart announces that the Grand this season is a union house from front to back.

Saturday night, the local stage workers' union to hire union men, and he has also agreed to a union orchestra—that of Mr. Fred Evans.

This orchestra boasts of one, who is probably the finest violinist in Canada, Mr. Maurice Power. He is first violinist.

Altogether the house is being run on a higher standard than last season. The stage crew is receiving higher wages than ever before, and much higher than they would receive had they been employed by Mr. Small this season. The reason for this lies in the fact that the men were bound by an agreement to work for Mr. Small this season at lower wages, but the loss of the house to the Toronto man voided the contract.

Matinee Today.

At 2:30 this afternoon, the Grand will be thrown open to the public. Gangs of men worked until midnight Saturday putting down carpets and cleaning the house, and they began their labors again at 12 o'clock Sunday night, so that they did not break the Sabbath.

The result of their work is very noticeable. The floors are covered with handsome, soft red carpets, which cast a cosy glow over the house. As far as possible the house has been thoroughly cleaned, and some needed painting has also been looked after.

This afternoon and evening a first-class vaudeville direct from Hammerstein's, New York, will be presented as the opening attraction. It includes acts by the world-famous Four Livingstones, the refined and gentlemanly acrobats, a funny sketch by Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hlatt, who are known as the very best of fun makers; Swan and Bambar, eccentric comedians; Robin, the juggler; Gus Williams, the funny man, who tells stories, etc.

Special attention is drawn to Miss Louise Campbell, the Scottish prima donna, who will sing a number of old Scotch songs. She is said to be a vocalist of rare merit.

"The Greater Love."

The engagement of Mr. Aubrey Boucault in "The Greater Love," for the Grand next Friday night, Saturday matinee and Saturday night, is attracting widespread attention. "The Greater Love" carries about double the amount of scenery which has as yet graced any production at the Grand, and also an orchestra of fifteen pieces, and eight first-class vocalists.

Londoners should not fail to remember that in the independent attractions they have the finest in the world. All these productions are staged by the greatest producer the world has as yet known, David Belasco.

It is told of him that once when rehearsing David Warfield for a play, he kept the famous actor six hours floating bubbles from a pipe, before he would say that Warfield was natural.

It is also pointed out that London is the only city in Canada which will see Mr. Boucault this season.

PHILADELPHIA'S CRASH

Trust Company's Affairs Found To Be in a Very Bad State.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 2.—The creditors of the Real Estate Trust Company, which failed last Tuesday, are still without any definite knowledge of the true condition of the institution. Receiver Earle says he is very far from having reached the bottom of the affairs of the company.

"I do not believe," he said, "there is any collateral here that amounts to much except that furnished by Adolph Segal, who borrowed more than $5,000,000 from the company."

Mr. Earle is giving considerable attention to the matter of responsibility for the condition of the trust company.

Public attention was called today to William F. North, the treasurer of the trust company, and Horace Hill, the auditor. Some of the directors feel these men should have discovered Mr. Hill's irregular transactions. Mr. North refuses to talk, and Mr. Hill says all the securities he examined were regular and he saw nothing wrong.

The Rev. Dr. William Henry Roberts, stated clerk of the Presbyterian General Assembly, has made formal application to the receiver to examine the securities of the trustees of the general assembly. These were in the custody of President Hipple and amount to nearly $1,000,000.

"I feel sure that all the securities of the general assembly are safe," said Dr. Roberts.

How to Fool a Lazy Liver with Artificial Exercise

EVERY serious Sickness has a small beginning. And, in nine cases out of ten that small beginning is made in the Bowels.

Indigestion is the beginning of most diseases. It paves the way for all others. Lack of exercise, hasty eating, improper food, are its first causes.

Laziness, and postponement, permits it to grow into Chronic Constipation, which means life-long Discomfort.

It isn't necessary to be sick-a-bed, you know, in order to be mighty uncomfortable.

Even slight indigestion affects the nerves, dulls the mind, and obscures the merry sunshine of Life.

And, indigestion once started, grows fast, corrodes temperament, and discounts happiness, good cheer, capacity.

It does that long before it puts you on the Sick list.

Every thinking Doctor knows why.

AN ALPINE HEROINE

She and Her Husband Ascend Two of the Most Difficult Ranges.

Geneva, Sept. 1.—Count and Countess Dunois, of Paris, who are staying at St. Gervais-les-Bains, have ascended two of the most difficult aiguilles in the Mont Blanc range.

Accompanied by the guide Magnier Auguste, they ascended the Aiguille de Beranger, 11,257 feet in height, and two days later they reached the summit of the Aiguille de Midi, 12,668 feet high.

The countess, who is well known in fashionable Parisian circles, is a keen sportswoman, frequently driving a motor car, or navigating a yacht. She is an ardent Alpinist, and has climbed the chief peaks in France and Switzerland.

The proper time to adjust them is the very minute you suspect they need adjustment.

Established 1866. Over 30 Years of Success in Toronto, Ont. J. Y. EGAN, Specialist, P.O. 539, Toronto.

Rupture

THE MOST RELIABLE and Successful Authority—Greatest success in the treatment of Hernia (Rupture) Varicocele (False Rupture) of all known agencies in modern times. He who makes a specialty of one department must certainly be more experienced and capable than those having "many irons in the fire." Don't put off your case, believing it to be simple—Remember neglect often proves fatal. Have your case attended to now, and thus avoid danger. Stop wasting time and money elsewhere but come to one whose life-long study has taught him what to do. Do not despair or be deterred from seeking further advice, or because of repeated failures consider your case incurable. Because others failed in your case you may have become discouraged. This is the very time you should consult me as my reputation has been made in curing hopeless (so-called) cases.

METHODS—Look to your children—Now is the time to have them cured, while young. Don't allow them to grow up handicapped in the race of life, with rupture.

MY CHARGES are within reach of all, the poor man as well as the rich. Terms can be satisfactorily arranged, no reason why you should not consult me now, during this rare opportunity.

MEN OF ALL AGES SUFFER from this terrible affliction in some way. There is no other affliction to which more men are heir than to completely unfit him for the duties or pleasures of life as Varicocele.

VARICOCELE, FALSE RUPTURE

The universal tendency of these conditions is to grow worse and more complicated—leading to impotency, nervous debility, wasting, stricture, lumbago, sexual exhaustion, etc. Do you intend to allow this insidious affliction to sap away your vitality? It is doing so now and if not checked will result in the above conditions. No matter how serious your case may be, time afflicted, or the fall as you may have experienced in trying to be cured by medicine—free trials, or Electric belts—my Biostene system will cure you; the worry, worry, worry, return to their normal condition and hence the sexual organs receive proper nourishment, the parts become vitalized and manly powers return. No temporary benefit, but a PERMANENT ONE. NO OPERATION necessary. No detention from business. If you have the usual experience you have no doubt the usual large sums of money and still larger quantities of time searching for the remedy that I offer you here.

SNAP-SHOTS AT VARIOUS SPORTS

Norman McLeod's Walter S. and Dr. Fred Wood's Clipper and Bobbie T. will start at the Toronto Exhibition this week. Some of the good coin of the Queen City will nestle with us, sure enough.

Eddie Slevier pitched his best game of the season Saturday. He shut St. Louis out with three hits.

Berthina Bars, the Listowel pacer looks fast. She ought to be fit for the big ring next year.

Football rows are Hamilton's pet diversion. It is the close season for rassing.

When they prohibited betting at the Detroit Fair races, the handbooks did a thriving business. That city is almost as bad as Toronto, Ont., where handbooks were invented.

Gans and Nelson hook up today. The colored boy may turn the truck, but the Battler looks good enough for us.

That was a remarkable game between the Athletics and Bostons on Saturday, and it will probably stand as a record for some time to come. Both pitchers, Coombs and Harris, are new-comers in fast company, and their work on that account is all the more wonderful. That they should succeed in deceiving the best batters on both teams for so long a stretch augurs well for the future. Coombs is one of Connie Mack's latest college finds, and this is his first season at the big game. The astute Connie has discovered many of the good ones, and it looks as if he has found a worthy successor to Plank, Waddell, and the rest. Harris finished last season with the Bostons, and has shown promise. Of course he has been handicapped by a poor team behind him, but he is game and will do. The work of Myron Grimshaw was a feature. He accepted 26 chances without a skip, many of them difficult. The number of assists of both teams was the same—33. Boston made two errors and Philadelphia one, only three misplays in 213 chances. It was a hummer, sure enough.

The games Saturday in the N. L. U. did not change the standing in the race at all. The Toronto finished up their season by defeating the Detroit Shamrocks, having won 7 and lost 5 contests, a good record. The only other game scheduled was between the Montreal and the Cornwall. These teams battled for two hours, but could not decide a winner. The standing is:

Club	Won	Lost	To play
Capital	6	3	3
Cornwall	6	4	2
Montreal	5	4	2
Toronto	7	5	0
Tecumseh	5	4	3
Shamrocks	7	5	0
Nationals	3	8	1

The game.

All major league records—in fact, all records for professional ball—were broken by the twenty-four inning game played at Boston on Saturday. The previous American League record was twenty innings, and was set by the same teams, the Athletics, with Waddell pitching, beating Boston, with Young pitching, on July 4, 1905. The score of that game was 4 to 2. This is generally regarded as the major league record, but as a matter of fact it shares the honors with a game played by Cincinnati and Chicago, in the National League, in June, 1902, which went twenty innings to a 7 to 7 tie score.

No game played by teams in organized baseball ever went as long as that one of Saturday. There is a record of a semi-professional game that went longer, Fargo and Devil's Lake, South Dakota teams, battling for twenty-five innings in 1891, to a 0 to 0 score. Still earlier, in 1877, Harvard University and the Manchester, N. H., team, in an exhibition game, played twenty-four innings, neither side making a run. The classic game of big league ball of the early days was the famous eighteen-inning 1 to 0 game, between Detroit and Providence, in the latter city. Radbourne, the famous pitcher, that day playing right field for Providence, won the game by a home run drive.

Locally the American League record is fifteen innings, Boston beating Detroit in that length of time, 4 to 1, in 1902. Young and Mercer were the opposing pitchers. The longest local game of the present season was the 3 to 2 Detroit-Boston contest, played on the last visit of the Boston club, Donahue and Tannehill were the pitchers.—Detroit Free Press.

Edward Blackwell, of St. Andrew's Golf Club of Great Britain, is said to have driven a ball 366 yards a few years ago.

All sportsmen who find pleasure on the waters or in the woods of Canada, will be glad to note the vigor shown by the Ontario Fish and Game Protective Association. That association has just held its first annual convention, and it has adopted a series of resolutions looking toward a revision of the game laws intended to help in the preservation of fish and game from extermination. Every sportsman likes to find his hunting or fishing trips successful. It is recognized nowadays that nothing but judicious restrictions upon the men with rods and guns will maintain good sport. The Ontario association considers that fish and game are a valuable asset of Ontario, by their attraction to the tourist; and it proposes to perpetuate them, and to keep the game lands and waters the property of the public.

Among the resolutions adopted by the association was one forbidding the use of firearms in any lumbering, bark or railroad camp except during the open season for red deer. Another proposes to forbid the use of nets in the eastern parts of Georgian Bay, which are to be kept for the sole pleasure of the angler. The association put itself on record against the export of food fish, and it would increase by an inch the measure of certain kinds of game fish that may now be legally caught. These things illustrate the spirit that the association showed at the convention. The recommendations made by the committees were adopted by the association as a whole, and it will now be presented to the Provincial Legislature. They have yet to take the form of law, and there is certain to be discussion and probably modification, but with the general tendency which they express sportsmen will be in hearty accord.—Buffalo Express.

COVERPOINT.

Meant Chance for Minto Cup for Winning Twelve

Much Depended on Result of Montreal-Cornwall Match—Ended in a Tie.

Cornwall, Sept. 1.—The greatest and closest game of lacrosse ever played on Cornwall turf was witnessed this afternoon by a large crowd of 3,500 people. The Montreals and Cornwalls were playing a game which meant a chance for the Minto Cup for the winner, and down and out for the loser. Both teams were desperate, and every man on the field tightened his belt and went the limit. Although 90 minutes of overtime was played, the match resulted in a draw, the referee calling the play on account of darkness after the third period of overtime.

Each team had scored six goals, and honors were even, when the match finished. While there was little roughness at any stage of the game, the play was always strenuous, and several men of both teams were placed hors de combat, principally by accident. Reddy McMillan had his collarbone dislocated, and was forced to retire at half-time, McCourt replacing him. Hamilton got a swipe on the mouth and

Stars Lose for First Time to Rockets; Busby Boys Are Blanked by Champions

League Leaders Were Not In It at Any Stage of Saturday's Game.

The Rockets got busy Saturday and for the first time this season they beat the Stars. They made a good job of it when they did start. The Champions blanked the Soldiers, through the masterly pitching of Walter Gibson, who held the khaki boys down to two hits. There was a great crowd of fans present.

The first game was the Rockets' from the start. It was not Clark's day, in fact, it was not the Stars' day, and the combination did not put up their usual brilliant ball. The Rockets were hitting and hitting hard. They slammed the ball where "they ain't," and were always to the good. McNeerney pitched well. He held the Stars fast for five innings, and as the game looked easy he loafed a little. He was spanked by good and plenty in the sixth, but after that he was good enough. By times his help pulled off some swell plays. "Majah" Hosie made a couple of brilliant plays, and Gatecliffe got some beauties. Bill Arthur was all to the mustard, and his swatting was a K. S. Keeler, and then some. It was a bad day for the outfielders, the sun bothering them somewhat more than usual.

McNeerney Sprung a Surprise.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the game was the fact that McNeerney stole a base. No, Maude, he did not have an auto. No, he thought it so funny that he forgot to throw the ball.

For the Stars, Bill Graham had a busy day, and did most of his work well, although he did not handle throw balls as he usually does. C. Jeffries had a bad time with grounders in the outer pasture.

This is the first game the Rockets have won from the Stars this season.
