MUTINY SPREADS TO LIBAU; FOUR THOUSAND TARS REBEL

Guns of Battleship Shells Odessa===Trouble at Constadt == Romanoff Dynasty Lost If Revolt Be Not Stopped.

Libau, June 30. - About four thousand mutinous sailors are surrounded in a small wood near the port by infantry and reinforced by machine guns. One thousand of the mutineers have already surrendered and given today is $41,534,873, an increase of $1, up their arms.

The mutiny started Tuesday night, when the sailors of the First Equipage, as the naval units are known in Russia, revolted because the food was bad. They were joined immediately by the Sixth, Ninth, Thirteenth and Fifteenth Equipages-5,000 bluejackets in all.

The guard at first tried to oppose them, killing one and wounding seven, but the sailors got the upperhand. They seized the guardhouse, broke open stores, securing says Gen. Czernolucki, chief of the Besarms and ammunition. Pandemonium followed throughout the night. They wrecked the barracks, attacked the quarters of the officers, and fired volleys at random until morning. The city was terrorized when troops with artillery arrived Wednesday morning. All entrances to the city were closed and gradually the sailors were driven Four Canadians Who Will Be Rememinto the wood, which they have since held.

Much firing, mingled with the humming of machine guns, has been heard, but as everyone is forced by the police to keep off the streets and away from the ports, some distance below town, nothing is definitely known member of the military division, Gen. The revolutionary agents have seized the opportunity to distribute proclamations from house to house.

A sensational report is current that 8,- firing upon the city. Odessa Blockaded.

London, June 30. - A dispatch to the Evening Standard from Odessa today says: "Since midnight the Russian battleship Kniaz Potemkine has established a blockade of the port in regard to all steamers flying the Russian flag. Not one is allowed to enter or depart. Six of these steamers are now anchored in the roads under the battleship's guns. The port thus is in the extraordinary position of being blockaded on the sea side by a mutinous warship, and the land side is impassable owing to a military cordon which seals up every approach to the har-

Romanoff Dynasty Totters.

St. Petersburg, June 30. -- 2 p.m. Not since the unsuccessful insurrection in December, 1825, when a portion of the guard regiments joined in an attempt to set up a republic in Russia, has the situation of the autocracy and the Romanoff dynasty been so serjous. Nevertheless, the crisis may be passed in a few days. Either the open revolt will by that time be stamped out, or the flames will have spread possibly beyond the hope of control. At the admiralty it is said that Rear Admiral Kruger's squadron is expected to arrive at Odessa during the day. No explanation is offered of the delay in the squadron's sailing from Sevastopol, nor of the nature of Kruger's or-

There he straightened himself to Odessa from Khersen. The troops should have arrived at Odessa this and said good-night again. morning. With these reinforcements, and the city under martial law, it is believed the military governor will be strong enough to attempt to suppress the rioters by force. The plan is believed to be for the troops to crush the disorders in the city while Kruger's squadron holds the entrance of the harbor. It is apparently questionable whether Kruger will engage the Kniaz Potemkine if she refuses to surrender, as firing upon the vessel might be too dangerous a test for the sailors on board his ships. Besides, it would involve necessarily the destruction of the ship, costing several millions, and damage to the city. Admiral Skrydloff's plan of starving out the mutinous crew is more likely to be followed.

At Libau the mutinous sailors to the number of about 5,000 were finally corraled by troops and artillery in a wood on the wrong side of it, and it gave the near the port, and by this morning a thousand of them had already surrendered. Their comrades possibly will be starved out. Whether there wasy great loss of life is as yet unknown. Great precautions are being taken to prevent the possible spread of the mutiny to the sailors of St. Petersburg

Warsaw, June 30.—Perhaps the most hated and certainly the most dreaded spot in all Warsaw is the citadel, once a fortress, but now a political prison, behind the walls of which many grim and terrible tragedies are enacted. Many a Warsaw family is mourning a husband, father, son, or even daughting the most dreaded and deprived of the "tenth pavilion," where they are searched, photographed and deprived of their money and any other valuables, from watch to shirt study.

Built by Russian hands but with Polish gold after the revolution of 1863, the citadel forms the apex of the triangular-shaped fortifications that stretch from the Prussian to the Austrian frontiers. It is to Poland what the fortress of Saints Peter and Paul in St. Petersburg is to Russia. Should this country ever escape from the Russian yoke it will meet the same fate as the bastile during the French revonution of 1789.

Sartaoff at Odessa Destroyed-Miles of Buildings Lost in Great Conflagration.

St. Petersburg, June 29.-It is reported that the volunteer fleet cruiser Sartaoff has been burned at Odessa. Admiral Kruger's squadron is expected to arrive at Odessa tonight. His orders are to summon the Kniaz Potemkine to surrender, and, on refusal, to sink her, after which he is to assist in restoring order in the peror has issued the following ukase addressed to the ruling senate: "In order to guarantee public safety and to terminate the disorders at SHIFTS MATTER Odessa and neighboring localities we have found it necessary to declare a state of war in Odessa and district and to invest the commander of the troops in the military district of Odessa with the rights of military authority and special rights of civil administrator for the defense of order and public West Kent Commissioners Refuse tranquility." London June 29. - Odessa stands on broad plateau on the northwest shore of the Black Sea. It is the principal grain exporting port of the Black Sea, has a number of Government works, many manufactories, and a population of 150,000. The site of the city was selected in 1792 by Catherine II. A wide stairway of 200 steps

The Weakness of Autocracy. It has been a maxim, very widely accepted, that autocracy, with all its drawbacks, had an advantage over popular forms of Government in the efficiency with which it could pursue an object and adapt means to ends; Russia has been a favorite illustration of this theory. Until the present war broke out, other nations were agreed in ascribing to her an uncanny superiority in the sphere of diplomacy Her rulers could work in the dark; they were not responsible to public opinion; they could employ what methods they pleased. The system permitted a continuity of aim and policy which is not possible in a country whose administrators change with popular favor and where the affairs of state must be transacted in the full light of day. Diplomacy is a game in which a democracy is obliged to show its hand to its rival. A Russian minister of foreign affairs is not interpellated by members of Parliament; he is required to make no explanations. Men have pointed to what they call the "glacier-like" expansion of Russia as a proof of the advantage of a system which can work stealthily. secretly and steadily toward its goal. They imagined the Russian bear was distined to extend his huge carcass over the whole of Asia. They were haunted by the vision of millions of bayonets which could be mustered at the word of the Czar. Russia was the bogey of the nations; they shuddered at the thought of her potential strength, her inflexible and remorseless determination to realize the ambition of Peter the Great, her masterful and unscrupulous diplomacy. Two years ago Russia was in her apogee. She was absorbing Manchuria, the richest province of China, and there was apparently no effective barrier to her schemes of Asiatic domination. No one divined that an Asiatic race would suddenly rise to roll back the tide of Muscovite invasion. But the mysterious efficiency which the world ascribed to the Russian autocracy crumbled in the supreme test. Her diplomacy overreached itself in Manchuria and was even stupid in its duplicity. Her armies were routed, her ships destroyed, her generals and admirals discredited. The corruption which had eaten like a cancer through the entire administration, civil and military, was exposed in all its foulness. All the latent discontent in the empire, political and social, rose to the surface. The bureaucracy was shown to be a house divided against itself. honeycombed with intrigue and jeal ousies, the Czar a weak, vacillating creature, the vaunted might of Russia an imposing sham, the empire a huge hulk unanimated by the soul of patriotism.

The Russian people have not had the uplift of a national ideal, for there can be no real patriotism in a nation where the spirit of liberty is strong thrill with a love of country when they identify the state with tyranny and oppression. The world has looked on the Russian Empire as a vast and terribly potent machine, the more potent because controlled by a single paralyzed because the qualities of the Russian people have not been developed under free institutions. The lesson is How oft have they listened to love tales a reassuring one for democracy.

A Candid Friend.

Mr. Phillip Bowyer, Conservative member of the Legislature for East Kent, appeared in the role of a candid tactics of those who took charge of the Conservative campaign in London and North Oxford. He has been rapped over the knuckles by the Toronto Telegram and other Conservative newspapers of the same rabid stripe, but he sticks to his guns. In his newspaper, the Ridgetown Dominion, he says he had no fault to find with the decision of the Conservative party to contest London and North Oxford on the platform of provincial rights. "What the Dominion did condemn," he says, "was the bringing into the ridings from outside of men who are not Conservatives, and the offensive plan of campaign followed, or permitted without protest, on the platform, in the press, and in the canvas, as well as the circulars and cartoons circulated and published in never very friendly to the Conservative

London, June 30.—During the discussion of the naval estimates in the House of Commons yesterday, Edmund Robertson (Liberal), a former civil lord of the admiralty, asked for further information concerning the new battleships. Mr. Pretyman, secretary of the admiralty, replied lengthily, claiming the highest efficiency for the navy under the new but said Great Britain proposed to lead arate court for several more distant relaand not follow other nations in naval

Sir John Colomb (Conservative) said he did not agree with the Opposition speakers in saying the time had come ers heard confessed speakers in saying the time had come the love that lies locked in a little brown when the naval expenditure might be reduced. On the contrary, Sir John said, everything pointed to the necessity for Britain. The real question now was "Who is going to rule the Pacific?" President Roosevelt said the United States in tended to rule the Pacific. The United States was giving every sign that this was her intention by the extraordinary increase in her naval power.
Sir John declared that in the not dis ant future questions would arise in the Pacific affecting the policy of Japan, the United States and Great Britain. He asked what Great Britain was doing against the time when her interests ceased to be identical with those of the two great powers whose naval bases were in the Pacific. No one believed that the Anglo-Japanese alliance would last for ever. Great Britain looked with dread

ver. Great Britain looked with diedand horror to a rupture with the United States, but she could not shut her eyes to the fact that ruptures had occurred between the most friendly nations. Sir John asked what the Government was doing to remind Canada and the British colonies of the great responsibilities which they would incur when their seaports and immense interests in the Pacific were imminently threatened. Secretary Pretyman, replying to Sin John Colomb, said Great Britain did not desire the mastery of any sea beyond securing an equal opportunity for British rade interests without fear or favor. To say that Great Britain desired the mas-tery of the Pacific or any other sea might give a false impression Mr. Pretyman added that the British warships in the Pacific were sufficient for the needs of British trade interests at resent, so far as could be foreseen for

LANDED ESTATES

Carries On Business and Frequently Borrows Money-Imperial Table Notably Inferior.

June 30. - The German Emperor, with an annual income of approximately £1,000,000, is a poor man, and has great difficulty in making both ends meet. He does not receive a farthing in his capacity as German Emperor, but fulfills the duties of his honorary position free of charge to the federation of German states. The Kaiser draws his income first as King of Prussia and second as private landowner.

His income as King of Prussia amounts approximately to £800,000 per annum. The Emperor of Russia eceives an annual allowance of approximately £1,000,000, and the Emperor of Austria an annual allowance of more than £8,000,000. Both these monarchs receive additional allowances for certain definite purposes, and both of them own vast landed estates far superior in acreage to the German Emperor's possessions.

The Sultan of Turkey receives an annual allowance of £2,000,000, and the King of Italy draws over £600,000 per annum; while the incomes of several monarchs of smaller states are the national exchequer, but irom revenues from state dominions which were formerly the private property of the Prussian royal house. The crown lands were handed over to the state, and in return the state pays a fixed annual income t the monarch.

The Kaiser owns 83 landed estates, comprising a total of 250,000 acres. He is the greatest landowner in Germany, and his possessions far exceed those of the three landowners whose estates rank next to detrimental to its growth, or his own in acreage. These are the Prince of Pless, who owns 125,000; the Duke of Pless, who owns 125,000; the Duke of Ujest, who owns 100,000 acres, and the Duke of Ratibor, who owns 75,000 acres. Some of the land of the Kaiser's estates is rented to farmers; but the Emperor carries on business on his own account in several parts of the country.

The Kaiser's workmen are taid abnormally high wages, and all his employes receive liberal pensions in their old age or in case of sickness. He also provides or in case of sickness. He also provides liberally for their widows and children out of his private purse. All this payments consume a large proportion of the profits, so that the Emperor's income from his estates is comparatively small.

Practically speaking the German Emperor of the profits of the profits of the Emperor's income from his estates is comparatively small. Practically speaking, the German Emperor is thus obliged to live on his royal income of £800,000 per annum, which is altogether insufficient for his requirements cuisine of the German imperial residence is notorious for its inferiority.

The Kaiser is not a dandy, and spends a comparatively small amount every year on his clothes. The horses he rides are not of particularly good breed, and not unusually expensive. He is not a gambler, and does not indulge in other dissipations which would be excusable in his position He is, however, extravagant in one re spect, namely, in keeping up the imperial magnificence of his court on a scale never previously attempted by a King of Prussia. The support of relatives forms a first charge on the Kaiser's income. There is a president of heraldry, a senior lord-in-waiting, a court marshal, a master of the hunt, a master of the kitchen, a master of the royal chambers, a house marshal, a master of the stables, a master of ceremonies, and numerous councilors attached to all these departments. The Kaiser travels in the same splendor in which he lives at home. Wherever he goes he is accompanied by a large suite of officers and gentlemen, and or house-hold and court officials. He takes with him his own carriages, his own horses, his own coachmen and grooms, his own stablemen, his saddlers, his smiths, and so forth. As he journeys his entire stud is transported from place to place During his recent Mediterranean trip be Kaiser gave away 80 diamond rings, 150 diamond pins, 33 necklaces, 30 gold watches, 100 golden eigarette cases, and twenty other articles of jewelry to various persons from whom he received attentions in the course of the journey. The whole Mediterranean trip is estimated t have cost over £60,000. The cost of the Kaiser's journey to Palestine six years ago exceeded £100,000. Apart from his expenditure for purposes of royal display, the Kaiser devotes a large sum every year to the encourage-ment of art and of the drama. He is continues ordering monuments to be erected at his own expense, and buys pictures for presentation to public gal-

House, the Royal Theater in Berlin, and the Royal Theater at Wiesbaden at his own expense. All three theaters are conducted only partially as profit-making on his income, and has been obliged to borrow money from some of his wealthy subjects. The Kaiser has never borrowed money from Prussian noblemen, but only from great commercial magnates and millionaire manufacturers.

> New York, June 30.-A frightened, shivering mite of a foxterrier, with bloodshot eyes and foam-flecked jaws. kept a hundred or so otherwise idle people at bay in Fifth avenue yesterday morning. There was a blood-curdling rumor abroad that he was mad, and that here was a chance something without getting into jail. He had come tearing down the street from nobody knew where with a vociferous crowd of boys and men clattering after him. He fled for refuge into the areaway of a fine brownstone house near Fortieth street, and there made his

LOCAL MARKET.

London, Friday, June 30. The market today was supposed to be a substitute for Saturday. In point of attendance, however, it was about up to the average midweek market. The supply the average midweek market. The supply of strawberries was nearly as large as on the previous day; there was a good demand, and all the loads offered were soon bought up; the lowest and highest prices (wholesale) were 7 to 9c per box; most of the sales were made at 8c per box; retail, 9c and 10c were the ruling figures. Some of the growers say that there will be more berries than a great many of the buyers expect, especially if there should come some rain and sunny weather to bring the berries to perfection.

Sales were brisk in all lines, and there Sales were brisk in all lines, and there was not much to sell after 11 o'clock. Prices as a rule were firmer.

Grain—About 15 loads of oats were offered; must of the sales were made at $1 36 per cwt. One load of wheat went at $1 per bushel.

Dressed Hogs—About a dozen offered, and sales were made at $8 50 and $9 per Fruits—Strawberries were, of course, the feature in this line; sales were very brisk, at 7½c and 9c per box wholesale, and 9c to 10c per box retail; gooseberries sold at 5c per box; cherries, 9c per box. Vegetables and Roots—There was a considerable trade done in this line; there was no change in prices quoted.

Butchers' Meats—Not much offered; prices were about the same as yesterday.

At Monday's market there should be a good demand for hay, oats and cherries.

Camps-Strange Lake of Youth and Beauty.

Lachine, Quebec, June 29. — It rather surprising to find confirmed arsenic eaters among the lumbermen of the north woods of Canada. It appears that a middle-aged foreigner, who passed for a Galician and worked as an expert axeman in one of the shanties, attracted the attention of his fellows by his youthful appearance, freedom from sickness at all times, ability to endure fatigue and to keep his wind upon long tramps through deep snow or in the teeth of

He attributed these virtues to the use of a tiny bit of a white substance with which he dosed himself three or four times a week. The name he gave the stuff, hidrak, communicated nothing of its character to the others. Adventurous companions were soon willing, indeed anxious, to buy the drug from the owner, but found they could obtain only a minute portion at as to the use of it, and began with a little morsel the size of a pin's head.

THE BIG ADVANCE Gradually the dose was increased until double that amount was taken. The Galician himself took a bit the size of a large garden pea. All the men who had been questioned report that the first dose produced burning pains in the stomach, sore mouths, vomiting and feverishness. When these symptoms passed a feeling of exhilaration and strength was experienced, and greater zest was added to the appetite.

It was noticed that when the grip became epidemic in its intestinal form the hidrak eaters, and they alone, escaped its ravages altogether. So with other ailments. The fame of the nedicine consequently spread in the district. Andrake Minskiniske, the Galician, was the only source known for the drug, and though his charge was high, he was not at all anxious to dispose of any of it. The probabilities are that he had in some surreptitious manner obtained possession of a large quantity of the drug in his own land, and feared lest he should not be able to get more in this country. Men who used it for some time found that without it they became sub-831/8 ject to violent palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits and irritability. 1121/2 1131/4 The craving for it would not be satis-

They could work without fatigue. The most quarrelsome among them had no desire to be unamiable. As it happened, one of these men had a warm regard for the medical man who attended his family, and told him of the precious drug he had discovered. The doctor looked into the matter and found that the man was an arsenic fiend, who in his two years' use of the drug, had trained himself to take something over six grains daily of pure arsenious acid-more than a deadly dose to one not habituated to its use. Most of the men used a similar quantity daily, or every other day, as the case might be, as each one felt 1261/4 126% in that neighborhood.

This week when the great procession moved through London, as the carriage conveying the duke and duchess of Connaught and their daughters passed through the crowd, some one had the temerity to cry "Three cheers for the future Queen of Spain," and found a very hearty response among the bystanders. So there is evidently an idea abroad that the king may com-

It is now proposed that the children shall themselves choose their own books from a publisher's list.

There is, however, another aspect to the question, and that is that a prize differs in a measure from any other book. It is not one necessarily to be read immediately by the child, but rather one that he keeps all his life, and for this reason it is perhaps well til the age of sixteen, when according that it should be a book that would

THE MOST RELIABLE and Successful Authority—Greatest success in the treatment of Hernia (Rupture) Varicoccle (False Rupture) of all known agencies in modern times. He who makes a specialty of one department must certainly be more experienced and capable than those having "many irons in the fire." Don't put off your case, believing it to be simple—Remember neglect often proves fatal. Have your case attended to now, and thus avoid danger. Stop wasting time and money elsewhere but come to one whose life-long study has taught him what to do. Do not despond or be deterred from seeking further advice, or because of repeated failures consider your case incurable. Because others failed in your case you have become discouraged. This is the very time you should consult me as my reputation has been made in curing hopeless (so-called) casea.

LADIES suffering from Navel or any form of Rupture should not hesitate in having their case attended to at once. Everything strictly private and professional.

MOTHERS—Look to your children—Now is the time to have them cured, while young. Don't allow them to grow up handicapped in the race of life, with rupture.

MY CHARGES are within reach of all, the poor man as well as the rich. Terms can be satisfactorily arranged, no reason why you should not consult me at once, during this visit.

MEN OF ALL AGES SUFFER from this terrible affliction in some way. There is no other affliction to which man is heir that so completely unfits him for the duties or pleasures of life as Varicocele. The universal tendency of these conditions is to grow worse and more complicated—leading to impotency, nervous debility, wasting, stricture, lumbago, sexual exhaustion, etc. Do you intend to allow this insidious affliction to sap away your vitality? It is doing so now and if not checked will result in the above conditions. No matter how serious your case may be, time afflicted, or the fallure you may have experienced in trying to be cured by medicine—free trials, or Electric belts—my Biotone system will cure you; the wormy veins return to their normal condition and hence the sexual organs receive proper nourishment, the parts become vitalized and manly powers return. No temporary benefit, but a PERMANENT one. NO OPERATION necessary. No detention from business. If you have had the usual experience you have no doubt spent large sums of money and still larger quantities of time searching for the remady that I offer you here.

The message was as follows:
> "Toronto, June 29, 1905.

Mayor Campbell, London: "Just returned today with samples Port Stanley water for examination. Several wells abandoned and filled; others cleaned or being cleaned. Authorities there doing all possible to furnish good water. R. W. BELL."

SUDDENLY AROUSED DOG BITES WOMAN

The Wound Not Serious, and Canine Shows No Signs of Rabies.

A dog belonging to Mr. James Don-nelly, of Cromwell street, bit Mrs. Allen, of Cheapside street, on the arm vesterday morning, and the matter was reported to the police, and to Dr. Stork, the Dominion Government officer, Both officers thoroughly investigated the case, but no trace of rabies was found in the dog. The animal is a beautiful sette. It was tied in its master's yard and was suddenly aroused by Mrs. Allen, who had taken a shortcut to a neighbor's house through Donnelly's premises. The wound was not a very serious one, and no bad results are anticipated b. Dr. Stork. However, in order to be on the safe quarantine-that is, it is tied in the yard and muzzled. It will be visited from day to day by Drs. Stork and Tennent, and if it should develop any bad symptoms it will be destroyed. It is felt, that as a man's home is his castle, and as Mrs. Allen was in Donnelly's yard the dog should not be destroyed, unless unmistakable symptoms of rabies are shown. The wound made by the dog was cauterized and every other precaution will be taken to insure her safety.

Dr. Stork states that so far he has peen unable to locate a single case in the city which could be construed into a symptom of rabies, but the Government does not feel like taking any chances, and if it were necessary half London inside of a few hours.
