chudaland and Gripsland will join the Boers after the declaration of annexation. LONDON, Nov. 3.—Special despatches from Ladysmith, dated Tuesday, give further details regarding the renewal of the bombardment.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The War office has issued the following announcement: "The Colonial office has received information to the effect that the British troops have withdrawn from Colenso and have concentrated further south."

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The Havas agency this evening published the following extraordinary despatch from its correspondent at Brussels, who probably obtained it from Mr. Leyds, the Transvaal representative.

CAPE TOWN.—The news of the Boers' two victories around Ladysmith has created considerable excitement among the Afrikaners, who do not conceal their joy.

It is also confirmed that the Free Staters have seized Colenso. LONDON, Nov. 2.—The secretary of the war office, who was shown the Cape Town despatch of the Havas agency, said the statements made were utterly baseless.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Gen. Sir George Stewart White has cabled the war office that in the engagement on Farquhar's farm, near Ladysmith's, on Oct. 30, with Lieut. Col. Carleton's column was compelled to surrender, six officers were killed and nine wounded.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Geo. Windham, parliamentary under secretary of state for war has replied to Col. Sir Charles Howard Vincent's offer of a thousand volunteers as marksmen for South Africa, that it would be against the regulations to send volunteers abroad or to enlist them for a shorter period than three years.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The war office this afternoon issued the following despatch: "Chief of Staff, Ladysmith, to War Secretary: 'Lieut. Edgerpin, H. M. S. Powerful, dangerously wounded this morning by a shell, in left knee and right foot. Life is not in danger at present.'"

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Magistrate Harnsworth has arrived from Kippan and reports that there are six thousand Boers around Kimberley and that all the roads are strictly patrolled.

Stories of Boer victories have spread rapidly along the western border and Magistrate Harnsworth estimates that over half of the Dutch residents of Be-

"Such news, moreover, could not be cabled to Europe except by the Eastern Company's cables after passing through the hands of the military censors at Cape Town and Aden, who would naturally have notified the War office, but up to 12.30 o'clock this morning (Friday) the War office has no information whatever indicating any material change in the situation at Ladysmith."

THE LIFE OF THESE SELF-SACRIFICING WORKERS OFTEN ONE OF HARDESHIP.

workers frequently gives way. Capt. Ben Bryan, whose home is at Maxville, Ont., is well known through his former connection with the Army, having been stationed at such important points as Montreal, Toronto, Kingston, Guelph, and Brockville, in Canada, and at Schenectady, Troy and other points in the United States.

He found Mr. Bryan a healthy, robust man, his appearance giving no indications of his recent sufferings.

The story of his illness and subsequent cure by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills reads like a miracle, and is given in his own words as follows: "While stationed at Deseronto, in July, 1897, I was attacked with what the doctors called 'Chronic Spinal Meningitis.'"

The symptoms were somewhat similar to those preceding a pleuritic attack, but were accompanied by spasms which, when the pain became too severe, rendered me unconscious. The length of these unconsueted spells increased as the disease advanced.

Latest War News. LONDON, Oct. 32.—The war office has received a despatch from General White, commanding the British forces at Ladysmith reporting that the Royal Irish Fusiliers, No. 10 mountain battery, and the Gloucestershire regiment were surrounded in the hills by the Boers, and after losing heavily were obliged to capitulate.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The following is the text of Gen. White's despatch to the war office: "It is not necessary or desirable to refer to these sensational reports more particularly. It is sufficient to say that the government received despatches from Ladysmith, dated as late as noon Thursday, the 29th, in which the Boers were reported to have been completely surrounded."

LONDON, Oct. 30, 1.35 p. m.—I have to report a disaster to the column sent by me to take position on a hill to guard the left flank of the troops. In these operations today of the Royal Irish Fusiliers, No. 10 mountain battery, and the Gloucestershire regiment were surrounded in the hills, and after losing heavily had to capitulate. Poetry.

WHILE THE HEART BEATS YOUNG.

While the heart beats young—oh, the splendor of the spring,
With all her dewy jewels on, is not so fair a thing—
The fairest, rarest morning of the blossom-time of May
Is not so sweet a season as the season of to-day.

While youth's diviner climate folds and holds us, close caressed,
As we feel our mothers with us by the touch of face and breast;
Our bare feet in the meadows, and our fancies up among
The airy clouds of morning—while the heart beats young.

While the heart beats young and our pulses leap and dance,
With every day a holiday and life a glad romance,
We hear the birds with wonder, and with wonder watch their flight,
Standing still more enchanted, both of hearing and of sight,
When they have vanished wholly, for, in fancy, wing to wing
We fly to heaven with them; and returning, still we sing
The praise of this lower heaven with tireless voice of tongue,
Even as the Master sanctions—while the heart beats young.

MY LITTLE WOMAN.

She isn't fresh from college, with a lot of lore and knowledge,
And "voluminous" and "ologies" quite at her fingers' ends.
For the mathematics higher, she has not the least desire,
Nor the faintest notions of deep philosophic friends.

She has organized no mission to correct the world's condition—
On finance and on politics she never wastes a thought;
For a ballot she's not burning, a career gives her no yearning,
And life has no dark problems for her introspective thought.

She has never done the ages
To court the ancient sages,
In learned club discussions never taken any part.
She couldn't tell the scisms, doesn't know the fads and isms,
For her sunny, curly little head thinks only with her heart.

She is just a loving woman, full of impulse, wholly human,
A look of childish wonder in the startled big blue eyes,
As she gazes all around her from the safe home guards that bound her,
On the great world's craft and evil with a simple child's surprise.

Yet far more than books have taught me, has she, all unknowing brought me;
In her I gain a knowledge which in all my books I miss,
She has made life sweet and fresher—my little girl, God bless her!
As all my doubts she answers with the logic of her kiss.

THE DAY OF SATISFACTION.

When I shall wake on that fair morn of morn,
After whose dawning never night returns,
And with whose glory day eternal burns,
I shall be satisfied.

When I shall see thy glory face to face,
When in thine arms thou wilt thy child embrace,
When thou shalt open all the stores of grace,
I shall be satisfied.

When I shall meet with those who I have loved,
Clasp in my eager arms the long removed,
And find how faithful thou hast proved,
I shall be satisfied.

When this vile body shall arise again,
Purged by thy power from every taint and stain,
Delivered from all weakness and all pain,
I shall be satisfied.

When I shall gaze upon the face of Him
Who for me died, with eyes no longer dim,
And praise Him in the everlasting hymn,
I shall be satisfied.

When I shall call to mind the long, long past,
With clouds and storms and shadow over-cast,
And know that I am saved and blest at last,

I shall be satisfied.
When every enemy shall disappear,
The unbelief, the darkness and the fear,
When thou shalt smother the brow and wipe the tear,
I shall be satisfied.

When every vanity shall pass away,
And all be real, all without decay,
In that sweet dawning of the cloudless sky,
I shall be satisfied.
To Prevent Worrying.

If a woman is to protect herself from the ravages of worry and to retain her peace of mind for a longer period, she must come into more frequent contact with other people, as her husband does, and read good books. She must relieve the monotony of her duties and the limiting influence of confinement within four walls by taking outdoor exercise, a walk every day or a spin on a bicycle. In short she must exercise the body and mind in a healthful manner, and she will find the bloom of health and youth remain with her for years after it has faded in other women of the same age. "The ordinary woman," says a celebrated physician, "leads such a monotonous existence that her mind has no occupation but worry. She is almost made up of worry. What she needs is to come out of herself much more than she does. She must have intercourse with more people and take more exercise. This can be done without neglecting home, and every right-minded man will do his best to secure for his mother or his sister or his wife these aids to the retention of usefulness of body and mind."

Nothing is in worse taste than a really low corsage on a young girl, and those who understand how to dress properly never wear one.

The hair is worn on top of the head—at least that is what fashion decrees—but the mode of wearing the hair has always been modified more or less according to individual taste, as nothing has so powerful an effect upon the appearance of the face as the culture, and what is becoming to one person is often fatal to the beauty of another.

Regimen plays an important part with respect to the hair. An excess of animal food has a tendency to cause baldness, while abundance of fruit and vegetables has a contrary effect. Exposure to air and sunlight is also highly beneficial, and the use of the brush is recommended rather than the comb.

The use of this shampoo will keep the hair in perfect condition, rendering it soft and glossy: Shake the yolk of an egg in half pint of alcohol till thoroughly mixed. Strain and you will have a clear fluid left which will keep for an indefinite period.

Into each basin of water used for washing the hair put one or two tablespoonfuls of this liquid. Rub well into the scalp and through the hair. Rinse with clean warm water. Rub with a linen towel till partly dry, and then take a large Japanese fan and fan vigorously till partly dry, when the hair will be delightfully soft and glossy.—Home Notes.

"Behold the fool saith: 'Put not all thine eggs in the one basket,' which is but a manner of saying: 'Scatter your money and your attention.' But the wise man saith: 'Put all your eggs in one basket and—watch that basket.'"

Prosperity rarely brings out the best there is in a man. A man's adversities are often his most stimulating friends.

Did you ever look over a book on human ailments that you could not make one of them at least fit your case, even though you thought you were quite well when you began reading?

The Princess of Wales, as president of the Soldiers Families' Association, has issued an appeal for subscriptions for befriending wives and children of men who have gone or been ordered to South Africa.

And keep the standard of the right Afloat throughout the land,

Scorried are the ranks of wrong, With a stern, aggressive throng, Wanted! Women!

Wanted! Women! who will fight, Not with spear and sword,

But with weapons stronger far, That magic power no man may know

Which woman wields against a foe Wanted! Women!

Wanted! Women! hopeful, true, Resolute and keen;

Who, when men would quit the field, Toil with hoes and spades,

And will leave the fight for none, Till the victory is won,

Wanted! Women!

Wanted! Women! whose strong love Ways the human race,

Who, in love for all that's good Hold the foremost place,

"Last at Cross and first at Tomb,"— In whose pathway virtues bloom, Wanted! Women!

Wanted! Women! They have borne Here and everywhere,

Patience, the heavy yoke Of sorrow, pain and care,

They can tell the saddest tale Of agony's most piteous wail,

Wanted! Women!

Wanted! Women! for their hearts Feel a keener pang

For the anguish sin and woe That our race o'erhang,

Woman sees where man is blind, With her quick perceptive mind,

Wanted! Women!

Wanted! Women! will to wage Against a monster vile,

That's robbing many homes today, With hell's insidious wile,

Why should they only work, not vote 'Gainst those who o'er run's victims' ghost!

Wanted! Women!

Wanted! Women! shall she stand And see her off-spring stain,

Without the power at her command, Such horror to restrain!

Give the franchise—'tis her right Then we'll about with double might

Wanted! Women!

MISSIONARIES AND RUM FOR THE KODIAC.

Christianity and commerce are in conflict, in the Yukon as they are in Africa and in India, and everywhere else where the white man goes. The church accepts the care of the minors as a sacred duty, and will not draw back. But the fight is not with the horrors of an Arctic winter, or the hardship of a frontier field, in the Yukon as in British Columbia, and for that matter in all Canada, the fight is with the saloon. Prohibition, High License, Low License, State Control—life waste and death questions! There it stands—the saloon—the sworn enemy of the church of Jesus Christ, the unmitigated curse of every community.

And in the Yukon, as in the British Columbia mountains. It is most accurate of all.

Here is an extract from a letter received by The Westminister last week from a gentleman who met the Rev. J. J. Wright at the dock at Nanaimo on his way to Dawson City.

"Rev. J. J. Wright arrived in Vancouver on Wednesday, and left for Skagway next morning on the steamer Tees. I saw him at Nanaimo, and had a very pleasant visit with him. But we were surprised at the cargo which went aboard. I have heard of British ships going to Africa with missionaries in the cabin and a cargo of rum in the hold, but I was not prepared to see no less than ten gallons of liquor sent to the Yukon, by the same steamer which took Wright to do mission work. That cargo will stir up more devil in a week than the missionary can subdue in a year. Our church's work in the Yukon must be largely neutralized.

I asked the man who had charge of the cargo if the Dominion regulations did not forbid the importation of liquor. 'There are regulations to keep it out, but,' he smiled as he said it 'it still goes in.' And it will continue to go in, until the men who send it and who sell it are sent to their own place. There is no use being moderate and mealy-mouthed, these traffickers have neither justice, conscience nor bowels of compassion, and the Dominion Government is criminally responsible if the traffic is not suppressed.

—The Westminister.

COOK'S ANODYNE LINIMENT.

Farm and Household.

The Farm.

November days are at hand and the poultry houses should at once be put in order for winter. If eggs are wanted while prices are high there must be an approach to summer condition, both in temperature and in feed, especially the latter. Not warm but comfortable, buildings are wanted, where the windows are tight. Vegetables and sound grain, meat and pure fresh water, and clean pens and pure air are the essentials with every breeder. Supplying these in proper proportions there will be eggs in the basket all the year.

It is very desirable that strawberry plants should be covered in winter. They are very much stronger in the spring for so doing, and the covering prevents the frost from lifting them or throwing them out of the ground. The best cultivators always cover the plants.

This covering does not need to be heavy. Coarse stable litter is undesirable from the fact that it is almost sure to carry weed seeds to the bed, which will prove troublesome the following summer. Well-rotted stable manure spread between the plants is the best material of all for the purpose.

The general advance in value of products of the farm, stimulating as it is to the industry, is not all gain writes the Maine Farmer. There is a general advance in values along all the lines of human industry. This reaches not only what the farmer produces for sale but also that which he must buy. Thus farming tools and farm implements must of necessity sell for higher prices another season than for the year past. Iron and steel which enter so largely into the construction of everything in the form of a tool or machine, have nearly or quite doubled in cost since the material of which the tools and machines now on the market in a complete form were purchased.

Odors that Destroy Germs.

A modern theory regarding the herbs and flowers found in Egyptian mummy cases is that they were placed there more for their antiseptic qualities than as burial decorations. That the odors from various flowers are destructive to many species of microbes has become a well known fact. Some of the fatal odors to germs are said to emanate from cinnamon, cloves, geranium, verbenas and thyme.

Clean Eggs.

Once clean eggs always find ready sale. If they are dirty, they should be washed with warm water. A southern exchange says that if this does not take off all the stains, cider vinegar will. It will pay to try this if you have a nice lot of fresh eggs that by accident or otherwise have become stained, for a dirty egg is distasteful, even if the egg is all right inside. The sight of it outside is obnoxious to the delicacy of one's taste.

Union Blend Tea reaches the masses in all parts of the Maritime Provinces. The Keys have made a great hit, and steady hitting has proved a great winner in the sales of Union Blend Tea.

DRY GOODS SALE.—Everybody should take advantage of the great cheap sale of dry goods at the Walter Scott Store, 32, 36, King Square, Saint John, and save twenty five per cent. Read his advertisement in to-day's paper.

The publishers of the SELF CULTURE MAGAZINE, which, by the way, is the leading cent monthly, advertise in to-day's GAZETTE to give one thousand dollars in premiums to persons sending in the largest list of subscribers. See the advertisement.

IN AFRICA.—William Cox, of Margerville, a young man well known in this city, is serving with the Imperial army in the Transvaal. Mr. Cox went to South Africa in May last and was employed on the railroad until the war broke out. He was formerly a student in Blair & Barry's office here.—Herald.

NOT SERIOUSLY INJURED.—Robert Purvis, who was injured on the Dredge New Dominion near Gagetown on Tuesday, was taken to the General Public Hospital immediately on the arrival of the steamer Victoria. On examination it was found that his injuries consisted of a bad flesh wound on the left thigh and that no bones were broken. He will be about again in a few days.—Globe.

STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS.—Mr. E. J. Webster of Wickham, came down from his home this morning in the Hampstead. As he was leaving the steamer he was attacked by paralysis and fell, but was caught by some by-standers and saved from injury. He was removed to the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Wellington Erb, Victoria street.—Thursday's Globe.

DEATH OF AN AGED RESIDENT.—The death occurred at French Lake, Oromocto, yesterday, after a long and painful illness with cancer, of Mr. Thomas Odubren Stennick, in the seventy-fifth year of his age. He leaves a widow, five sons and three daughters, the latter being Mrs. Albert Tracy, of Tracy, and Misses Minnie and Ellen Stennick at home. The sons are John and Thomas, of French Lake, and Parker, Henry and Martin, at Eau Clair, California. Mrs. Fred Phillips of this city, and Mr. John Stennick of California, but at present residing here, are sister and brother of the deceased gentleman.—Gleaner.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH, LOWER JEMSE.—A very pleasant gathering took place on Halloween night at the Rectory, in commemoration of the Rector's birthday. There were present Miss Foshay, Mrs. David Smith and Miss Audrey Smith, our popular school teacher, Miss Sinnott, Mr. and Mrs. Medley Dykeman, the Misses Susie Dykeman, Florence Colwell and Gertrude Colwell, Messrs. Northrup, Talby Dykeman, Arthur Colwell and Leslie Colwell. Various amusing games such as apple bobbing, conjuring fortune teller were indulged in up to a late hour when refreshments were handed around by the genial hostess and the merry party broke up after a very enjoyable evening.

KILLED A MOOSE.—Two lads named Chase, one aged 17 the other four years younger, recently went out on the low meadows back of McGowan's landing, Sheffield, in search of small game. After shooting a porcupine and a black duck, they came across a moose. The smaller boy promptly climbed a tree. The other brother valiantly stood his ground, and when the moose approached he took deliberate aim and fired, breaking the animal's shoulder. He followed this up with a second shot, got his brother down from the tree, and securing help, dragged his prize home.—Herald.

WEDDING BELLS.—On Thursday relatives and friends assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Roach, Clarence, N. S., to witness the marriage of their youngest daughter, Miss Clarissa S., to Mr. C. Ashley Harrison. Miss Edna Corning, of Boston, was bridesmaid. The groom was attended by H. H. Roach. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. P. Freeman, uncle of the bride, assisted by Rev. E. L. Stevens. The happy couple left for their future home in Margerville. The bride received from the freshmen class of Acadia last year a set of silver spoons.

IN THE INTEREST OF FORESTRY.—Mr. Kinghorn, P. H. C. R. I. O. F., is here in the interest of Forestry.

METHOD CHURCH.—Rev. John S. Allen, who was stationed here over thirty years ago, will preach in the Methodist church both morning and evening for the Rev. I. N. Parker on Sabbath the 12th inst.

DIED IN BOSTON.—Mr. Wm. Nevers received word, on Monday, of the death of his sister, Mrs. Edward Babbit of that place. The remains will be brought to Jemseg for interment. They are expected on Wednesday by Str. May Queen.

POSTPONED.—The Pie Social which was to have taken place on Wednesday evening, Nov. 1st, had to be postponed on account of the rainy evening. It will now be held on Wednesday evening, Nov. 15th. Should the night prove stormy on the first five night following.

PIE SOCIAL.—The pie social under the auspices of the L. O. L. of Gagetown held in the Temperance hall on Monday evening proved a success both as a social event and financially. Numbers drove from Clones to attend the social. Music was furnished by Mr. L. Dunn of that place.

QUEENS COUNTY COAL.—Not much is said about the Queens county coal mines, but the work of mining is going on at the mine a few miles this side of Chipman, and an order has lately been placed for 300 tons for the St. John market. It is said experiments are being made with this coal on the I. C. R. The coal vein is about 30 inches thick, at a depth of about thirty feet. It is hoped that the Central railway will ere long be extended to Fredericton and the Newcastle coal fields tapped by the line.—Sun.

OBITUARY.—After a lingering illness of consumption, Thomas M. Hendry passed away on Nov. 3rd at his home at McDonald's Point, Wickham. Mr. Hendry leaves to mourn, a fond wife and three daughters. One daughter resides in Taunton, Mass., one, Mrs. Dr. White, at Limestone, Maine, and one teaches school at Kars. The funeral took place from his residence on Sunday the 5th inst. at 2 o'clock p. m. Rev. A. B. McDonald attended the funeral and preached a sermon suitable for the occasion. The high esteem in which the deceased was held in the community was shown by the large number that was present at the funeral.

A VETERAN LUMBERMAN.—In the death of Mr. Charles Hamilton, which occurred this morning, St. John lost a resident who certainly possessed the title of a veteran lumberman. Born in 1814 he spent sixty-five years in lumbering and milling, retiring from active participation in business in 1892, when his firm's mill on the Strait Shore was destroyed by fire. Mr. Hamilton was born at Saco, Maine, and was engaged for years lumbering on the Saco and Androscoggin streams. In 1870 he came to St. John and for twenty-two years—the greater part of the time in conjunction with his son, Mr. James F. Hamilton—successfully carried on business here. Deceased was a man who held the esteem of all who knew him. He leaves one son—Mr. James F. Hamilton.—Globe.

TRAPPED A BEAR.—The skin of a black bear was an object of interest in front of S. Z. Dickson's stall in the country market on Saturday. It was stretched across a barrel, and the original wearer had been trapped eight or ten days ago by Bruce Palmer, of Hampstead, Queens Co. There were only two claws on the right fore foot, showing that Bruin had probably experimented with a trap in early life; and left a memento. But the lack of a claw or two did not enable Mr. Palmer to outclass him as a pugilist, for when the latter called in to deliver a knockout blow with an axe, neither jab, nor counter, nor feint, nor hook, nor any other prize ring artifice could be brought successfully to bear on this bear. He had to be shot. The skin was very black and the bear's head was a fine specimen. It was met with the reply that Mr. Palmer had already refused twelve. This is bad weather for bears in Queens county.—Sun.

News From Canada's Troops.

The question of keeping the people of Canada posted about the Canadian troops has been solved by the Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, sending a special war correspondent, who sailed on the Sardinian and whose sole business will be to keep the Family Herald in touch with the troops in action. The Family Herald's correspondent goes thoroughly equipped for his work. He has a photographic outfit, will be mounted on the field and will have a mounted orderly. The Family Herald's correspondent goes by permission of Dr. Borden Minister of Militia, and with instructions specially cabled from the War Office by the Secretary of War.

POOR DOCUMENT

Literature.

FOR PET'S SAKE.

"I say, Calcott, come and dine with us next Thursday."

"A thousand thanks, but don't be offended at my refusing. You know my ways. It is to be a merry-making, and I am not a sociable man."

"No, by Jove!" laughed the other, pleasantly, "a confirmed old bachelor at five-and-thirty. Mais, nous verrons, your time will come. We shall see you yet with a wife by your side, and a tiny olive-branch on your knee."

Owen Calcott shook his head, as he stooped to pick up his glove which had fallen.

"When you see that, Cardon," he replied, "you may reckon it as the eighth wonder of the world."

"Nonsense! How you can bury yourself in your lonely rooms, never cheered by any woman's smile but Mrs. Crispin's, I can't tell."

"We have each our separate likings," answered Owen; your home to you is perfect—so is mine. You have four wife and children—I have my books."

The other shrugged his shoulders. "Poor company at times," he exclaimed. "Even if I said my pretty cousin Joan is coming, and has fallen over her little ears in love with you, that would not induce you!"

"Rather strengthen my refusal," smiled Owen, as together they passed from the hall of their club into the street.

"I see you have forewarned women's smiles and children's laughter."

"I avoid both."

"What an old Scrooge. There, ta, ta. Ugh! Here's a night!"

A dull, stately, wintry night, with a keen east wind, that came down the streets like charges of cavalry. It charged at Owen, who had to bend his face to protect it, as he parted from his friend; but it was not all the east wind, bad as it was, which caused the wrinkles on the brow and the tightened corners of the mouth, as he walked quickly homeward.

He had for five years rented the drawing room suite of one of those old houses in Bloomsbury which have seen better days, and about whose staircases and passages the shadows of the past seemed ever to linger. Mrs. Crispin called him the best of lodgers, as he was, and regarded him as an annuity.

Letting himself in with his key, he ascended to his sitting-room. So methodical was he, that the argand reading-lamp was already lighted, the tea placed as usual, ready for when he wanted it. When he began reading, he did not like being disturbed. By his additions to the furniture, the room was well furnished; large book-cases held many books, and if solitary, it was in appearance comfortable.

Owen, drawing his chair to the fire, adjusting the lamp, opened the book he had taken from a shelf, but he did not at once begin to read; placing the volume on his knee, he seemed to drop into a reverie.

Then he gave a short, quick laugh, and began his customary evening's study. The house, evidently, was well suited to a student. It was as still, hushed as the grave.

What was that?

Owen, startled, raised his head with an absolute expression of horror. Suddenly through the house had rung a child's silvery, merry laugh. As abruptly, it had been followed by a cry, a burst, it might be, of tears—then a door closed; silence reigned once more.

"Some friend of Mrs. Crispin's," Owen thought, irritably. "I wish she would have all grown-up friends."

But before a week was out, it was made apparent to Owen, by repetitions of those first sounds, that the child was a fixture. He was annoyed—indeed, angry. When he had taken those rooms he had made one decided stipulation. If Mrs. Crispin let other rooms, there must never be any children. Now for three nights he had been disturbed by the crying or laughter of one, though it evidently was speedily checked.

"Mrs. Crispin," he said, when next she appeared, "I thought it was understood there should be no children in your house!"

"Oh, Mr. Calcott! you heard it, then?" ejaculated his landlady, with a frightened expression. "But lor', how could you help it now. I'll just tell you how it is, sir. I knew the pretty dear's mother before she was married; and when a week ago, she came up to London, a widow, in grief and sorrow, and came to me and says, 'Oh, Mrs. Crispin, do give me and my little one shelter, until I can look about me; for I don't know a soul here but you, I hadn't the heart to refuse the young thing, so I give her the very top attic. Though a born lady, she can't afford more, and she molls and tells a-giving drawing and music lessons all day, to pay that and live. But—I'll tell her you object—'"

"No, no," broke in Owen; "do nothing of the kind. Only perhaps the child can be kept quiet while I'm at home; and—and I can put a heavier curtain over the door."

A smile of satisfaction hovered over Mrs. Crispin's pleasant features, as, assuring him every care should be taken, she withdrew.

For a week Owen never heard that silvery laugh.

"I trust they don't gag the mite," he reflected, one evening, thinking of it, as he opened the street door with his latch-key.

Then he stood still, gazing into the hall. Beneath the hanging lamp, the rays of which fell full upon her, was a small child of about four. There are children and children. This seemed rather to partake of the fairy species. The tiny figure was so slender and graceful, the features so refined and delicate, the complexion, the eyes so clear and soft, like dew-washed violets in the shade.

As Owen looked at her, she sat silently, almost as curiously, looked at him. Then, as he came in, she slowly advanced, extending the olive-branch of peace in the form of a book.

"It's full of pictures," she whispered. "How is it?"

Owen saw the pearly tears spring to the eyes.

"Poor Fuffy. No. I'm not going to cry or laugh any more, 'cause oo don't like it, mamma says."

Owen flushed.

What an orge they must have been making of him to the child. But this was a bit of scheming on Mrs. Crispin's part.

"Who told you to stand there?" he asked.

"No one," shaking her golden head. Mamma's out, Mrs. Crispin is asleep by the fire, so I come to see oo. I won't laugh or cry."

"That's a good child," remarked Owen, a trifle confused, and passing on.

"Are oo doing upstairs?" asked the child. "So's I."

"And with the trustful confidence of children, running after him, she took his hand."

What is there of magic in the touch of a little child's fingers! What strange electric thrill does it send through the heartstrings! Heaven pity those who do not feel it. Owen felt it. He was vexed, annoyed. Yes, glancing down at his captor, he would have no more thrown that little hand off than he could have struck the owner of it.

Feeling immensely ashamed, though alone, he ascended with his tiny companion. Of her own will she released him at his own door, drawing back.

"What is your name, little mite?" he asked.

"Pet."

"Well, Pet," what made him say it he did not know, "one day I'll bring you a prettier picture-book than that."

"Oh—h—h!" exclaimed the child, drawing a deep breath.

"Yes. Now go upstairs."

"Ees. Dood bye," and she went softly, noiseless, on baby tip-toe, more than once looking back, and nodding at him for—why ever did he—she stood on the landing watching her.

Owen went in and shut the door; but somehow he could not shut out that child face. All came between him and his book. He caught himself listening for that merry laugh, until he remembered that "Pet" had evidently been told never to laugh loud when he was at home.

"What an orge she must think me!" he thought again, petulantly throwing aside his book. Then felt rather, or a good deal pleased, that "Pet" did not think him one, or she never would have had the courage to have descended to face him in the hall.

The next day with a certain sheepishness and consciousness how Cardon would laugh, did he know, Owen paid a visit to a bookseller's in Fleet street, and carried home certain wondrous picture books.

"What an idiot I am," he reflected, half angrily; "but then she is such a pretty little thing."

He opened the door, with an appropriate speech on his lips, and felt grievously disappointed to see the hall was empty. Pet was not there to meet him.

He was very disappointed, even angry, not understanding why, and gloomily ascended the stairs.

Before he reached the landing, a voice fell upon his ear.

"P'ese 'av oo dot it? The book with the boofor pictures?"

And there was "Pet" sitting on the top stair, awaiting him.

Yes, he had got it, and as Pet could not see it there, Pet must come into his room. Then as Pet was not tall enough to look on the table, she said:

"P'ese take me up oo knee. Me ain't heavy."

So, a little confused, Owen obeyed her, when Pet at the sight of the books began to agitate her legs and clap her little waxen hands in delight, crying:

"And what is it about? What is dat man saying?" until Owen found himself concocting wondrous stories to describe the plates.

After that Pet always met him, and there was half an hour spent over the picture books, Owen deriving as much pleasure as Pet herself, and owing solemnly to himself that he felt a better man for it.

One evening, however, a fortnight later, there was no Pet waiting. Why? He made an excuse to ring the bell and enquire.

Poor Pet had caught a roup cough. The doctor had been called, and spoke gravely of the child's delicacy, and the poor young mother was distracted.

Owen could not read that evening, and slept ill. He tried to laugh at the hold

Pet had taken upon him. He should like to do something to help her; but could do nothing. The doctor in attendance he knew to be skilful; besides, how could he have interfered had he not been ill? He had never seen Pet's mother in his life. He did not even know her name.

Mrs. Crispin always spoke of her as "my young lady," interpolating these adjectives to which her class are addicted, such as "poor," "dear," or "poor dear."

More than once he had seen a slim, middle-height figure, attired in mourning, fitting up or down the stairs before him, and he had an idea that she must be like Pet, but that was all.

No; any interference of his, a simple man, would be taken as an impertinence. He could but send up endless picture-books, which poor Pet was too ill to look at, and flowers, and hothouse fruits, which latter she could not eat.

His first question, night and morning, was, "How is the child?"

A week had elapsed when, coming home punctually, he found Mrs. Crispin at the door.

"Oh, sir, I've been looking anxiously for you."

"How is the child?" asked Owen, with sudden fear.

"The doctor says twelve hours will prove sir; but, oh! Mr. Calcott," bursting into tears, "she gives next to no hope."

Owen turned to put down his hat. Bah! why should he be ashamed of this moisture in his eyes? Was it not proof of his humanity?

"The pretty dear, for the last hour," proceeded Mrs. Crispin, "has been asking for you. Would you—would you mind seeing her?"

"Mind!" cried Owen. Certainly not. Indeed, Mrs. Crispin, I am not quite a bear."

"Dear me, Mr. Calcott, you're the best and kindest gentleman as ever lived, I do declare," exclaimed the old lady, as she led the way to the top of the house, where, opening the door, and whispering in "Her" come, dearie," make way for him, and on his entrance closed the door after him.

Owen saw a little bed with poor Pet upon it, and a slim figure kneeling at the side; then the slim figure rose up, and stood trembling before him.

A flush, a sudden pallor, a quick step back, almost a cry, "Helen."

Then she was on her knees, her face bowed in her hands.

"Forgive, forgive," she sobbed. "I never knew you were here when I came. Indeed, indeed, no! Pardon, Owen—I have been sadly punished. Oh! I have repented in sackcloth and ashes."

It was the old story—rental will, a girl's weakness, a hard heart, which was his sin, had rejected; a life of misery and woe, then unexpected ruin, and her husband's death.

"Owen," she ended, resting her hand on the little bed, "will you not pardon for Pet's sake?"

He had turned from her, angry with remembrance of past wrong, agitated by sight of one he had so fondly loved. At the moment, Pet, aroused by the mention of her name, held out her thin little arms.

"It is oo—it is oo. Oo tum an' show me pictures. P'ese tias Pet—Pet sooo ill."

The arms dropped, the smile died from the child's face, the ivory lids quivered down.

Uttering a scream, the mother threw her arms about poor Pet.

"Oh! Heaven! my darling! my child!" she cried. "Father, have mercy—help me!"

Owen too had sprung to the bed, forgetful of all but Pet.

Was she dead?

Thank Heaven! no! Reviving, it was his hand Pet clasped.

"P'ese take me up," she whispered; "me so ill."

Poor Pet, how could he refuse! On Owen's arm she dropped into the sleep from which she awakened back to hope.

And while she slept again, the mother, in tears and contrition at Owen's feet, entreated pardon, only pardon, and one kind word.

How could he refuse, with Pet's fingers clasping his, her golden head upon his breast? Beside, did he not love her, this fair, slight woman, still!

That upper room is a nursery now, and when Owen Calcott comes home of evenings, there are a wife's smile and a child's laughter to greet him, and though his books are not so frequently taken from the shelves, he does not complain.

"Hello! Is that Mr. Highman's residence?"

"Yes."

"Is that you, Fannie?"

"Yes."

"Are you alone?"

"Yes."

"So am I. Everybody else at the office has gone. I want to talk to you a little, Dar'—"

"Sh! Don't you know the girl at central office is listening?"

"Darkness, I was going to say, may come on before I get around this evening. It's a nice day, isn't it? Well, goodby."

A most remarkable spring is located on the farm in Ellsworth, Maine. The spring is located upon a hill and the water is conveyed by a pipe to a watering tub by the roadside. There is an abundant flow of water till about 10 in the morning when it ceases to flow until about 4.30 in the afternoon when it again resumes operations, filling the tub to overflowing with an abundant stream.

Six hundred and fifty thousand pounds of tea are consumed in Britain every day, which gives 5,200 gallons a minute, night and day, throughout the year. The tea drunk in Britain in a year would make a lake two and three-fifths miles long, one mile wide and six feet deep.

Jones asked his wife, "Why is a husband like dough?" He expected she would give it up, and then he was going to tell her it is "because his wife needs him!" but she said it is "because he is hard to get off her hands." A slight coolness followed.

No You Don't.

"I think it would be a good plan to send Willie up into the country for a month," suggested Willie's father. "He's never been on a farm and it would be rather a novel experience for him."

"No you don't," interrupted Willie. "I have heard all about the country, and I'm not not going anywhere where they have thrashing machines. It's bad enough when it's done by hand."

AN EXTRAORDINARILY LIBERAL PROPOSITION.

FOR LESS THAN THE	2 PAPERS AND A... 300 PAGE BOOK	PRICE OF ONE PAPER
-------------------	---	--------------------

FIRST, and properly, in making a choice of reading for the home you select your own home paper. However good may be the reading of other papers, there is none that comes home so closely to you as your local weekly. It is to further increase this interest by adding to our lists that the following liberal proposition is made to subscribers. We have been careful to form combinations only where we knew we were touching safe ground and could thoroughly recommend the publications offered. Read carefully every word of this offer for it means a saving of money to you.

Montreal Daily Herald

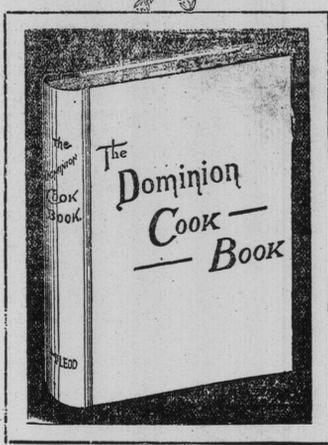

A GREAT METROPOLITAN DAILY

WE are pleased to announce that we have been able to make most extraordinarily liberal arrangements with the publishers of one of the greatest of Canadian dailies—The Montreal Daily Herald.

The Herald has achieved a well-deserved reputation for the remarkable value it gives its readers. It is one of the most enterprising newspapers in the Dominion, and in thousands of home circles is welcomed on account of the great interest it manifests in subjects of special interest to the family. It is admittedly the favorite daily of the women of Canada. To the farmer and business man, it appeals through its accurate market reports and business columns. To the young men, through the attention it bestows on clean, manly sport. To the lover of fiction, through the excellent stories appearing regularly in its columns. To the politician, through the calm and moderate tone of its editorial expressions.

The only reason which prompted the publishers of The Herald to make us the offer, which enables us to club the two papers at the extraordinarily low price given below, is their desire to immediately introduce the Daily Herald in large numbers in this neighborhood. The offer they now make will hold good for a limited time only.

It should be mentioned that subscribers to The Herald during the next few months will enjoy to the full the opportunity which this paper is offering to all readers to secure valuable books at merely nominal figures.

THE... Dominion Cook Book	A Copy for Every Subscriber

IN the best sense of the term this is an Ideal Cook Book—ideal in being a practical book—a book which the housewife will want to keep constantly by her side and can depend on, because of the simplicity and reliability of every recipe. Starting with a chapter on soups, naturally the first course, throughout its three hundred pages and over there are to be found more than 1,000 recipes, winding up with an excellent chapter on sick room cookery. Following the cookery section there is a department entitled "The Doctor," in which are recipes selected from eminent authorities, and which will be found invaluable where the doctor is not readily available. The recipes are numbered throughout the book, and each is prefaced with a list of the ingredients called for by the recipe, rendering it unnecessary for the housewife to read through the entire recipe and make calculation of what is wanted. Size of page is 5 inches by 8 inches, bound in handsome cloth covers. It would be a mistake to confuse this book with any paper-bound cook book that would go to pieces in no time.

Wisdom suggests taking advantage of this offer quickly. If you are now a subscriber to either paper, your time has not yet expired, by taking advantage of our big offer promptly, your subscription will be extended one year from date of expiry. Everything will go to you at once. The Herald, during the closing months of 1899, will make some wonderfully liberal offers to subscribers. The Cook Book is mailed to you promptly on receipt of order, and coming along Fair Time and Thanksgiving Day, and later Christmas and New Year's, you want this book beside you. Drop into the office the first time you are in town, or, if more convenient, sit down now and write a letter, enclosing amount, and everything will have our prompt attention.

Rise up ye Women that are at Ease

REMEMBER THE SABBATH.

"Remember the Sabbath." It is the message and voice of our Father—yours and mine, and full of the tender yearning love of His great heart for His children, created in His likeness and redeemed by His love. He knows our proneness to forget, and so in one form or another He gives the message repeatedly.

He first gave it in Eden, where He set the example of resting after six days work, and better still laid His quieting hand on His eager children to whom the majestic and authoritative voice of our Father, and set apart for them that first day of their married life and each weekly return of the day, for the quiet intercourse with Him which should keep them mindful of their high birth and destiny, and full of love for their Father. So "God blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it" forever.

Later the message was written by God's own hand on stone tablets that it might be preserved among the nation's treasures. It was thunders on Sinai, that it might echo round the world with the majesty and authority of the King of kings. In bondage and captivity as well as in the land of promise, the prophet continually reminded the chosen people that the Sabbath was sacred to God, a sign by the observance of which His people should always be known, their loyalty to Him be tested, and their security and prosperity be assured.

When the Son of God came, and found His rest day an unspokeable burden. He restored it to its rightful place, the day pre-eminently "made for man," to save him from tyranny and provide for the needs of his soul, the crown of his life, the day hallowed and blessed for rest and worship.

In these crowded, restless days in which we live, when the Sabbath is more than ever needed and more than ever practically forgotten, there comes to each of us the command, the very words of which are full of entreaty: Remember the Sabbath. It is as though the heart of God was filled with compassion for the world, because it is missing the sweetest and grandest of His gifts by being ground down by unceasing toil, or corrupted by constant cares and frictions, or crushed by selfishness, and He says, Remember the Sabbath and what it can do for you; embrace it, and let it lead you to peace and gladness, to God and heaven.

As I write these words there arises before me a vast army of railroad men, compelled by their calling to work on Sabbath; and they have said to me, "We are not included; we who perhaps need it most, are shut out from religion because we have no Sabbath." Nay, my friends, in a blessed sense we are not under the law, but under grace. Paul wrote to a servant, "If thou mayest be free use it rather; but if not, 'doing service as to the Lord and not to men.'" So I believe he would say to you—if you can secure the Sabbath do so, if not, still serve the Lord heartily, keeping a conscience void of offence toward God and man, and whether on the train or in the shop or at home. Remember the Sabbath to do no unnecessary work, and use the remaining hours for rest and to secure the greatest moral benefit from the day.

Do all you can by words and petition to secure a national legal rest day, and throw your whole influence in favor of Sabbath keeping. It is a duty you owe to your families, your comrades, your own soul, and to God.

The same message would be given to such help in our kitchens as are compelled to do much work that in itself is needless on that day. Do not thereby feel excused for not using the rest of the day aright, but attend public worship and places of dissipation and amusement.

And let me urge all our young people not to let their bicycles tempt them to desert the house of God or desecrate the day by long excursions on their bicycles or attendance on baseball. And in choosing employments, so far as possible choose those with the most Sabbath privileges. God honors those who honor His day, even at great personal sacrifice; and the tradesman who closes his shop on Sabbath is almost certain, other things being equal, to secure in the long run the best financial success, though his faith is sometimes long tested, and some accounts are left to be squared in the next world; but the Lord is a sure paymaster and He says: "Blessed is the man that keepeth the Sabbath." Would that all wage earners would earn and receive this offered blessing.

Sisters—home makers, and society moulders, oft-times well nigh distracted with the ceaseless problems and burdens of life, needing the rest that seldom comes—upon you the message rings: "Remember the Sabbath, and make it the days of blessing designed." Make it your rest day. Do not, I beg, countenance Sunday visiting and receptions, that make it for many a day of social dissipation; refuse to give place to the Sunday newspaper; furnish a simple dinner, remembering if you have help, with what jealous care God guards their rights, saying "that thy man servant and thy maid servant may rest as well as thou." They may not use the time as you approve; but can you not win their confidence and teach them how to use it? remembering in any event, God commands you to give them rest.

Set your face resolutely against all Sunday excursions, and make it the sweet attractive home day for husband and children, with music, reading rest, and talk commingled; and whether you be a Christian or not, remember it is a sacred day, and accustom the family to attend church and Sabbath school regularly, yourself leading, and not sending them.

On the ministers and active workers for Christ of every name and organization He relies for help. In order to remember the Sabbath in all its relations we need to be often reminded of it by our pastors; and in these days of unsettled convictions, we beseech you, emphasize frequently the sacredness of the day, and never, never by your own example, desert Christian friends, lead others to think you esteem the fourth commandment as of less obligation than others of the ten, or that you are willing by your patronage to encourage Sunday work of our public servants in cars or postoffice. Christian Endeavorers are especially urged to work with literature, example, and influence to save our enlarged Sabbath, both as a civil rest day and a holy day.

As a nation we are at the parting of the ways. The line is being drawn, not between the conscientious and patriotic, but between the conscientious and patriotic, and yet the whole trend of affairs is toward a complete secularization of the day. In that way the Jewish nation went down as God foretold, and that way leads to disaster for us. Upon Christian business men the responsibility largely rests, because they to so great an extent control legislation, and exert so wide an influence; yet every voter, every Christian, every patriot has a duty to the public that may not be shirked, and each of us will find our own lives and those of our own dear ones helped or unhelped according to our treatment of the Fourth Commandment.

"Remember, the Sabbath day to keep it holy. Six days shall thou labor and do all thy work; but the seventh day is Sabbath unto the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work, thou nor thy son nor thy daughter, thy man servant nor thy maid servant, thy cattle, nor thy ox, that is within thy gates: For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day; therefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it."—Ex. 20: 8-11.

"If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day; and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable; and shalt honor him, not doing thy own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words; then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father; for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."—Isaiah 58: 13, 14.

Light Lunch for an invalid.

Good sponge cake served with sweet cream or a glass of milk is an excellent lunch for an invalid. A simple and excellent rule calls for two cups of pastry dough, one cup and a half of powdered sugar, four eggs, one spoonful cream tartar and a scant half teaspoonful of soda, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and a half cup of cold water, or if preferred a half cupful of boiling water put in last. Measure the flour after sifting once, then sift four times. Beat the yolks until lemon colored and creamy and the whites until stiff, adding the cream tartar to the whites, stir well, then the yolks, flavoring soda dissolved in the water, and flour. Beat until light and bake from 20 to 30 minutes in a moderate oven.

A police inspector, being informed that a restaurateur was serving game out of season, visits the restaurant in plain clothes and orders dinner. "Waiter, partridge for me."

The inspector finishes his dinner leisurely and then says to the waiter, "Ask the host to step into my parlour."

"What for?"

"I wish to notify him to appear in court to-morrow and answer for selling partridge out of season. I am the police inspector and have secured the necessary evidence against him."

"Waiter—It wasn't partridge you had. Police Inspector (uneasily)—What was it then?"

Waiter (cheerfully)—Crow. The inspector nodded.

Health and vigor depends largely upon the action of the lungs, and when this important function is impaired disease and weakness must ensue.

A celebrated health club enjoins upon each member the duty of taking one hundred deep breaths every day, advising that these be drawn in sections of ten each, at convenient seasons. Those who practice learn to take advantage of the freshest air to be taken in the course of the day. The first ten are enjoyed after leaving the morning bath. The shoulders are thrown back, the chin is level or slightly raised, the arms held tightly at the side, the lips are firmly closed.

"Never breathe with the mouth open," is an admonition which cannot be too rightly enforced.

The ten breaths are drawn from new, live air, not that which has stagnated all night in the house. Each inspiration is slow and steady, filling the lungs to their depths, the live air is held a few seconds, then expired as slowly as it was drawn. To throw it out in pants is harmful to muscle and tissue.

Ten breaths taken in this way will not only strengthen and refresh the respiratory apparatus, but quicken the blood into a livelier flow so naturally and healthfully that the action of the heart is made irregular. The skin all over the body is tinged with a clear pink, the system having been awakened all along the line of life. In cold weather ten deep breaths, taken on the ferry-boat, the sea salt air tingling in the nostrils, or in the teeth of a north wind tearing down the street, will warm one from head to foot. The thought and the action become an instinct in time, the duty a pleasure which is missed when omitted.

Age and Sleep.

Teels says that negroes live to an advanced age because they sleep so much. He believes that a man has just so many hours to be awake, and that the more of them he uses up in day the shorter his life will be. A man who has to be waked if he could sleep most of the time. The proper way to economize time, therefore, is to sleep whenever there is nothing better to do.—Medical News.

THE WERNER COMPANY, ALBANY, N. Y.

In the Probate Court of Queens County,

To the Sheriff of the County of Queens, my Constable within the said County.

GREETING:

Whereas Charles Hogan, a creditor of the estate of Charles O'Neil, hath filed a petition in the Probate Court praying that a citation may be issued calling upon William O'Neil, Administrator of the estate of the said Charles O'Neil, the heirs next of kin, and all others interested in the estate of the said Charles O'Neil, to show cause why this Honorable Court should not grant a license to sell or lease the real estate of the said Charles O'Neil to satisfy the debt of the said Charles Hogan and any other debts of the said deceased which may yet remain unpaid.

You are therefore required to cite the said William O'Neil, Administrator of said estate, the heirs and next of kin of said Charles O'Neil, and all others interested in said estate to appear before me at a Court of Probate to be held at my office, in the Parish of Gagetown, within and for said County of Queens, on WEDNESDAY, THE EIGHTH DAY OF NOVEMBER, A. D. 1899, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, to show cause why the real estate of the said deceased should not be sold or leased as prayed for.

Given under my hand and the Seal of the said Court, this 13th day of September A. D. 1899.

A. W. EBBETT, Registrar.

JOHN R. DUNN, Proctor for Petitioner.

Tatham.

We are enjoying very nice weather here for this time of the year.

The farmers are nearly all done with their corn crop. Otis Spaulding had 975 bushels of corn this year. Beat that.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pevil of Riverdale gave a party to the young folks of Tatham on the 27th ult. Several games were played. Sweet cider, grapes and bananas were served. Much credit is due Mr. and Mrs. Pevil for their kindness. After expressing their appreciation of the good time enjoyed, the party took a Holyoke car and transfer to Tatham.

Frank Gallagher, of Mapleton, Conn., has been visiting his friends in Tatham. He intends to return to Canada for the winter. Mr. Gallagher says that he never enjoyed himself as well as he has this summer. He cordially invites all of his friends in Canada to come to Uncle Sam's Territory.

Misses Alice Dougan and Katie Conner and Messrs. Jas. A. Dougan, Richard Brown, Clifford Puddington and Frank Reese were guests of Misses Mable Dougan and Mary Cane, and Mr. Ernest Morrison, on the 24th.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lowery, of this place gave a party to the young folks on Monday evening 30th ult. A most enjoyable evening was spent by all present. Several games of whist were played. Ice cream, cake, grapes, pears, bananas, cider and lemonade were served. The party after thanking their kind host and hostess, retired for the evening.

Messrs. Frank Gallagher, Clifford Puddington, and Frank Reese took the eleven Tatham car for Springfield where they will take a steam car for Boston and from thence will go by Stmr. St. Croix to St. John. The warm hand of affection was given them and a cordial invitation was extended for their return in the near future.

Messrs. Frank Gallagher, Clifford Puddington and Frank Reese extend their sincere thanks to their many friends here for the kindness shown them during their stay and on their return to Canada.

Summer Hill.

Nov. 4.—The Methodists of this place held a very successful bean supper on Tuesday evening last. After the tables had been disposed of a very pleasant hour was spent in music and social converse. Short addresses were delivered by Rev. J. B. Gough and Mr. John Dunn.

Most of our young men have gone to the lumber woods.

Messrs. John Reid and Towers Hamilton have gone to Boston.

Mrs. Jas. McCrackin went to St. John yesterday to spend the winter.

To EDITOR QUEENS COUNTY GAZETTE.

Dear Sir: Kindly allow me to call your attention to an article from Peter'sville Church, which appeared in last week's GAZETTE, in which the author after indulging in some slurring remarks about the Summer Hill correspondent, vainly attempts to contradict a report of the Presbyterian picnic. Now Mr. Editor perhaps you are not aware that the matter to which he mostly refers, viz the row, is one of those disagreeable family disputes, which if carried into the public press will make matters worse and also injure your paper. Thanking you Mr. Editor for the space. I remain,

A FRIEND.

Mr. John Robinson, who has been dangerously ill, is reported to be convalescent.

Rev. J. Bennett Anderson, of London, England, preached to a good audience on Sunday at Cambridge, McDonald's Cor., and Lower Cambridge. Mr. Anderson is an eloquent preacher.

Several persons from this place went over to Wickham on Sunday to attend the funeral of Thomas M. Hendry.

Rev. Mr. Anderson, the evangelist and singer, will be at Lower Cambridge on Tuesday evening, Nov. 8th.

Mr. Molesey, who has been confined to his bed for several weeks with an attack of Typhoid fever, is improving.

Americans Want to Enlist.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The British consul in this city, Mr. W. Wyncham, has addressed a communication to the Times-Herald saying that the number of applicants who wish to serve in the British army is so great that he is unable personally to answer them, and for the information of those in ignorance of the fact he says that no volunteers have been called for. He also denies a Minneapolis report that he advised two men who wished to enlist to go to Canada to join the Canadian regiment, which is now full.

To EDITOR QUEENS COUNTY GAZETTE.

The people at the Mouth of Jemseg were very much excited one day last week about sunset when they noticed in the direction of the red light what they supposed to be a ball of fire or a heavenly body of some kind passing through the air. But on further investigation it was found to be the reflection of the red light on the hair or the place where the hair once was) of a young student of Astronomy.

Signed, P.C.M.

A Boy Foot Pad.

HUNTINGTON, QUEB. Nov. 5.—A boy sixteen years of age, named Pryor, attempted to hold up Station Agent Fraser of the New York Central last night. Pryor arrived in Huntington on the night express. He hung around the station until everyone was gone, and when Fraser asked him what he wanted around there, the boy said he didn't know the way to a hotel. Fraser volunteered to show the way, and the two started, after Fraser had put the day's receipts in his pocket. Passing through a dark place, Pryor drew a revolver and fired point blank at the agent. The ball took effect in Fraser's neck. Pryor turned and ran instead of attempting to secure the money. He was evidently green at the business. He was captured about two miles from the village. Fraser was seriously wounded.

Big Fire at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Nov. 4.—The manufacturing and warehouse buildings of the Sun Oil Refinery Company were practically destroyed by fire last night. The fire department was unable to cope with the fire in these buildings, but by strenuous efforts saved the adjoining buildings. The extent of the loss is not known, but is serious. The entire property was practically destroyed.

A Second Canadian Contingent.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The morning papers comment with the greatest satisfaction upon Canada's suggestion regarding the sending of a second contingent to South Africa.

$150,000 for Harvard.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Nov. 2.—Major Henry Lee Higginson, of the class of '65, who gave Soldiers' Field to Harvard University, has given the sum of $150,000 to be used for the erection and equipment of a building suitable for the uses of the Harvard University Club. The corporation in return offers the Warren property at the corner of Harvard and Quincy streets, for the site of the building.

A WISE WOMAN

Was Mrs. Hattie M. Morris, of Burt's Corner, York County, N. B.

She needed some medicine for the kidneys, and she took Dodd's Kidney Pills—she was not deceived by the false pretensions of imitators.

BURT'S CORNER, Nov. 6.—Mrs. Hattie M. Morris, of this place, in her capacity of mistress of an hotel and general store, is known throughout this district as a woman of such shrewd business ability as is possessed, but by law of her sex. This shrewdness did not desert Mrs. Morris when a little while ago she lost her health. Many women, and men too, for that matter, experiment with the various imitations of Dodd's Kidney Pills, thinking that because a medicine is cheaper, it is put up in the same kind of a box, or bears a similar name, it is liable to be better, or just as good as the original. Mrs. Morris had too much business experience for that. She writes:

"A year ago I had occasion to use some medicine. I resolved to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, thinking they would be what I required, and in that respect I was not disappointed. For some time I had been run down in strength and ambition that everything I had to do seemed a drag. I had no ambition to get up from a chair to attend to my household affairs, and, though, of course, I had to do it, it felt like a punishment to move. I did not look sickly, being stout, but I must say I had no energy to do the smallest thing around the hotel. I used three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and can heartily recommend them for that dull heavy, do-nothing kind of a tired feeling. They give you the right kind of snap and push, and fill you with a determination to get around and do something. We keep a store here and a hotel, and I can now do all my work with pleasure and light-heartedness."

Obstructing the Sheriff.

Mr. C. E. Duffy, Clerk of the Peace for Sunbury county, returned last evening from Northfield, Sunbury Co., where he was engaged upon a case which has excited considerable interest, and which has so far resulted in two women being placed in jail.

A few days ago Sheriff Holden went to the home of William Dorey, of Northfield to levy upon a horse in a judgment recently obtained against Mr. Dorey, by Mr. Henry Chestnut, of Fredericton.

When the Sheriff went to seize the horse Mrs. Ruchford and Miss Dorey, daughters of Mr. Dorey, told him that they would not allow the horse to be taken away, and they set a vicious dog upon Mr. Holden and upon his horse.

Although the sheriff expostulated with them and told him that they were interfering with him in the discharge of his official duties yet he had to leave without the horse.

Sheriff Holden at once laid information before Justice Powers and the two women were arrested. Their preliminary examination before Mr. Powers, J. P., took place on Wednesday when the women were committed for trial. Bail was fixed at $50 each but they were unable to procure the requisite sureties. The women have engaged lawyers to defend them, and it is probable that they will elect to be tried under the Speedy Trials Act.

MARRIED.

SEBEE-GILBERT.—At the minister's residence, St. John West, on Oct. 30th, 1899, by Rev. Dr. Hartley, John A. Segee of Fairville, St. John Co., and Miss Emma C. Gillett, of Blissville, S. Co., N. B.
