CHAPTER XVIII. A Strange Story.

Norah's face brightened for the first time since Cyril's absence, and as she looked out of the window, she said: "How happy every one seems, papa! Do you hear them laughing?"

"I do, indeed," replied the superior earl, with a kind of groan. "And I anticipate a hot and noisy day. I suppose it will be possible to escape before one is quite exhausted."

"Oh, I hope you will not be too tired to stay till the end," said Norah, with a sinking at the heart.

The earl groaned aloud this time. "At any rate," he said, "you may remain. Perhaps Lady Ferndale can find room for you to-night."

The moment the carriage stopped, Lord and Lady Ferndale came up, and Lady Ferndale kissed Norah with a maternal warmth.

"Isn't it delightful—the weather, I mean, dear? Lord Arrowdale, I thought you were never coming. Ernest, I dare say Lord Arrowdale will start the next race for you. They have brought some ponies, and Ernest has got up a little steeplechase. Come along to the marquee, dear; I want to show you how prettily they have fitted it up," and she carried Norah off.

They found themselves surrounded long before they reached the huge tent, and Lady Ferndale had to stop while Norah received the homage of her numerous courtiers. Each gentleman was anxious to carry her away, and show her the part of the fete for which he was responsible; one wanted her to go with him and see the Punch and Judy which was performing to a delighted audience in a corner of the lawn; another insisted that she ought to go and see the flowers in the show tent, and a third declared he had been waiting for Lady Norah to open the lawn tennis tournament. But Lady Ferndale held her tightly by the arm, and absolutely refused to relinquish her.

"No, no," she said, "I am going to have her all to myself for half an hour at least," and Norah laughingly was led away.

"Everybody seems to be here," she said, as she kept bowing and smiling to the groups of village people, who took off their hats or courtseyed to her.

"Yes, I hope so," said Lady Ferndale. "We wanted everybody to know that it was an open day."

"All Santeigh village is here, I am sure," remarked Norah. "How happy they all seem!"

"Yes," said Lady Ferndale, triumphantly. "I flatter myself this is rather better than the usual garden party at which people stroll around bored to death and trying to look as if they were amused. It's a dreadful thing to say, my dear, but it is perfectly true, that the poor people are the only class which knows how to amuse itself; the rich have lost the art of being happy. Hear how they laugh and shout! Now, Norah, you are not to get completely knocked up before the evening. You mustn't let them tire you out, as they will do if you permit them. I want you to save yourself up for the dancing to-night. You can't imagine how well most of the people dance. Some of our village girls can waltz as gracefully as if they had gone through a course of lessons under a celebrated professor—it comes instinctively, you know. And, Norah, you won't mind dancing with some of the young men, the tenant farmers and such like, will you?"

"I'll dance with anybody—everybody," said Norah, promptly; but even as she spoke, her heart ached. Why was not Cyril here that she might dance with him?

She made the round of the tents with Lady Ferndale, and of course a train of admirers, some of whom implored her to promise them a dance, but Norah smilingly refused. She would not engage herself to any one she said, until the ball commenced.

Then she went and distributed the prizes to the winners in a footrace, and of her own accord made up a tennis set with five young farmers and the sweetheart of one of them, who played quite as well as the "swells," and, indeed, Norah thought rather better.

They were in the middle of the set when she heard a voice close behind her, and a gentleman got her ball and handed it to her.

It was Guildford Berton. He was carefully dressed, and cool and self-possessed as usual, quite cool, though other people were hot and perspiring under the warm sun. He remained just outside the court behind Norah, and never failed to field for her, and keep her supplied with balls, but he scarcely spoke, and, though Norah would have infinitely preferred going after the balls herself, he did his ministering in so quiet and unobtrusive a fashion that she could not very well decline it.

"Has he not? I am sure I do not know where he is."

In the evening the large marquee was cleared of its tables and rout seats, and the dancing commenced.

Lady Ferndale had insisted upon Norah going up to Lady Ferndale's rooms "to rest" for a little while, but Norah had spent the time superintending a children's kiss-in-the-ring, and when she entered the canvas ball-room, she felt rather tired, not so much physically as mentally. There is nothing that is so exhausting as hope deferred. All day long she had been looking and longing for Cyril, and now the shades of evening had fallen and he was still absent.

She stood looking at the dancers in an absent, preoccupied fashion, and so lost in thought that she started palpably when a voice at her side said: "Will you give me this dance, Lady Norah?"

It was Guildford Berton.

A refusal rose to Norah's lips, but she checked it. If she refused him now he would probably ask her again, and, thinking that it would be best to "get it over," she yielded.

To her surprise, he danced admirably. With the cool presence of mind which characterized him, he steered her through the large crowd with an apparently effortless ease, and unlike most men, found breath to talk as he danced.

"What a delightful day it has been," he said. "Thanks to Lady Ferndale—and yourself, Lady Norah," he added in a low voice.

"To me?" said Norah. "Why to me?"

"Because you have been the spirit of the whole thing," he said, quietly.

"Everyone recognizes that fact, Lady Norah. What happiness to be able to bestow happiness on others!"

Norah laughed uneasily. A compliment from Guildford Berton was somehow not to be laughed away as most compliments are.

"How pretty the place looks, and how charmingly most of the girls are dressed!" she said.

"Yes," he said, just glancing round, but letting his eyes come back to her face in a moment.

"Look at that pretty girl over there," she said, inclining her head.

"Why, it is Becca South, isn't it?" and she smiled admiringly.

Guildford Berton looked in the direction indicated.

"Ye-es, I think it is," he said, carelessly.

"How pretty she looks!" said Norah.

"Don't you think so?" That crimson rose lights up her hair so nicely; it is just the color that suits her."

And yet from the moment he appeared, her pleasure in the game seemed somehow to decrease. While he was near, she found it impossible to concentrate her attention on the game, and his cool, impassive presence seemed to diffuse a chill, and she turned to him almost coldly when the game being over, he asked her to let him take her to the refreshment tent.

She could not very well refuse, but she walked beside him almost silently. She noticed that, generally so silent himself, he talked quite fluently, and got her some lemonade and waited upon her with the quiet, unobtrusive manner with which he had attended her at tennis.

All the morning he seemed to be near her, and to her secret annoyance, he occupied the place next her at lunch, notwithstanding half a dozen men had schemed and plotted to obtain the coveted position. How had he managed it?

The day wore on most successfully, and in the latter part of the afternoon, when the fun had waxed decorously furious, Norah missed her father.

"The earl has gone home, my dear," said Lady Ferndale, with a laugh. "I think he has behaved nobly, and I didn't expect him to remain half so long. He declared that he had enjoyed himself extremely, poor man! And you are to stay the night with us. No journey home alone and upsetting the carriage, that young man might rescue you! By the way, I haven't seen the hero. Where is he? He accepted the invitation, but he hasn't come."

Norah's face crimsoned, then turned pale, but Lady Ferndale was too busy cutting cake for a crowd of hungry children to notice it, and Norah managed to reply, with seeming indifference:

"Has he not? I am sure I do not know where he is."

In the evening the large marquee was cleared of its tables and rout seats, and the dancing commenced.

Lady Ferndale had insisted upon Norah going up to Lady Ferndale's rooms "to rest" for a little while, but Norah had spent the time superintending a children's kiss-in-the-ring, and when she entered the canvas ball-room, she felt rather tired, not so much physically as mentally. Cleanses Your Hair Makes It Beautiful, Thick, Glossy, Wavy

Try this! All dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanser" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

"Yes," he replied, still more indifferently. "Yes, I suppose she is pretty, but I don't admire that kind of face."

"No," said Norah, with surprise. "I think I should like to go and speak to her," she added, seeing that Becca had stopped dancing, and was standing against the back of the marquee.

"Certainly," he said. "But mayn't we finish this waltz?"

Norah stopped.

"Thank you, no, I will go now. She will be sure to be dancing again directly."

He offered her his arm, and they were making their way toward the radiant Becca when Norah saw a tall figure enter the marquee, and stand for a moment looking round him.

It was Cyril; Cyril at last!

The blood surged to her face, and her heart seemed to stand still for a moment, and then she was seized with a desire to fly to him. But almost instantly a revulsion of feeling set in. She had been waiting, longing for him all day, but now he was here, woman-like, she felt angry with him. Why had he kept away from her? Why had he not sent a single word to tell her why and where he had gone?

She stopped short and turned pale.

"There—there is a terrible crowd," she faltered, scarcely knowing what she said. "It doesn't matter; I can speak to her later on."

"Very well," he said. "Shall we finish the dance?"

"No—yes," she said, for at that moment she saw Lady Ferndale shake hands with Cyril, who directly afterward went to Becca, and the two commenced dancing.

"Your maid has found a partner," said Guildford Berton. "We should have been too late."

"Has she?" said poor Norah, her brain throbbing painfully.

"Yes," he said; "Mr. Cyril Burne. He has just arrived, I suppose, and naturally chooses an old friend for a partner."

"An old friend?" asked Norah in a low voice.

"Yes," he responded. "What a capital hand, isn't it? Oh, yes, Becca and Mr. Burne are very great friends, I believe."

(To be Continued.)

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."

"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggists."

A SIMPLE, PRACTICAL STYLE.

1596—Ladies' House or Morning Dress.

In linen, khaki, gingham, seersucker or percale, this style will be most serviceable. It is made with overlapping fronts, and round neck outline, and has a four-gored skirt cut in comfortable fulness. The sleeve in wrist length is finished with a hand cuff. In short length a neat turnback cuff forms a suitable trimming. The model could also be developed in serge, flannel or flannelette, and is nice, too, for lawn. The Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 6 3/4 yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch size. The skirt measures about 3 yards at the lower edge.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A SMART AND PRETTY STYLE FOR MOTHER'S GIRL.

1891—Girl's Dress with Added Trimming.

Serge, gabardine, voile, prunella, checked suiting and plaid mixtures, taffeta, velvet and corduroy are nice for this style. The trimmings could be of matched satin on serge or of checked or plaid suiting. The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. It requires 3 3/4 yards of 36-inch material for a 10-year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

BLAIR'S.

We offer:—
REAL GOOD TEA @ 40c. lb.
EXTRA GOOD TEA @ 45c. lb.
SUPERIOR QUALITY TEA @ 50c. lb.

We are enabled to do this as we import these teas in large quantities direct from Ceylon where the markets are at their lowest, and we give our customers all the benefits. We have on these values quadrupled our Retail Tea Trade during the past year, as all our customers find our teas are the very best they can get for the money. The above are all straight Ceylon Teas, but we can also give you the milder Blended Teas as packed by Messrs. Lipton, Ltd., London (and which have always had a large sale), at 50c. and 60c. lb. The other teas previously mentioned are put up by ourselves to suit a large portion of the Newfoundland market which does not care for blended teas.

The War Week by Week.

By OBSERVER.

The interruption of the telegraph lines is particularly regrettable at this time, when the situation is pregnant with all kinds of possibilities and any day may bring startling surprises. Particularly in Roumania are events moving with great rapidity and it is impossible to estimate the position any length of time ahead. Two or three days ago the Germans claimed to be in Craiova, which would threaten the complete conquest of Wallachia, but nothing further has been heard from that quarter or the more mysterious one of the Dobruja.

Though it may prove less important than this campaign, the outstanding feature of the week has been the capture of Monastir, restoring to the Serbians their temporary capital and robbing Bulgaria of one of the most cherished objects of her intervention in the war. Thus in a moral sense at least the victory is of very great importance, for it will undoubtedly have discouraged the Bulgarians even more than it will have held out hope and encouragement to the Serbians. Its value from a purely military point of view is more doubtful, though we think there is too great a tendency to underestimate it in some quarters. The brilliant attack by the Serbians which gave them command of the hills northeast of Monastir on the Cerna necessitated the evacuation of the city and gives our Allies a fine starting point from which to continue the drive. The road to Prilep was essential to the Bulgarians' retreat and they still hold it. The latest news is that the line chosen by them a few miles north of Monastir is still held, but it is too early yet to expect it to be broken. Within a very short time we shall know the relative strength of the two sides. If victory continues to crown our arms, the effect will be increasingly great: if our troops are held the reason will be almost equally satisfactory, for we will know it has been effected by reinforcements of the army drawn from one or the other of their precious Roumanian armies.

Before Monastir fell, certain Bulgarian units were recognized among the defenders which were those of the Mackensen's army. The fact is eloquent and may explain his retreat. It also explains Germany's manœuvre, for, if the Mackensen's army have been drawn from this source if any other had possibly been available. The Dobruja campaign continues a mystery. That Falkenhayn has voluntarily or compulsorily retreated from his advanced position we know, but how far is uncertain. There has recently been very severe fighting at Silistria, the Roumanians attacking; but this is so far south of the real battle area that it looked like a feint to cover an attempt by the Roumanians to cross the river elsewhere and attack Mackensen's vital lines of communication. If so, the attempt has not been made and what the real position is it is hard to say.

It is not much easier to estimate at its true value that in Wallachia, where things look so critical. Some time ago it was plain that the efforts of Falkenhayn to break through in northern Roumania had definitely failed. Better success attended them in the centre, the region of Pradeal, but they are there still far from attaining anything worth while. They have progressed far enough, however, to exert a pressure upon the Roumanians simultaneously with their army in Wallachia, and herein lies the chief danger. Shifting to the southwest the direction of their greatest offensive, the Germans have retaken Orsova, on the Danube, and claim to have got as far as Craiova on the railway that runs to Bucharest. The loss of Craiova has not been admitted by Bucharest or Petrograd, but we may accept it on Berlin's authority. Since the first announcement there has been a strange silence concerning this region. It is impossible to forecast coming events unless we know the strength of the Roumanians and of the reinforcements Russia has been able to send her. The element that makes the position so dangerous for our ally is the paucity of railways, but if they can hold Pitesti and other important junctions the same element will operate against the enemy. The situation is an anxious but not altogether a desperate one.

On the Italian and West fronts little of importance has happened this week. As we write there are indications of fresh activity on the Somme, probably heralding another drive by the French. By taking Sully they gained complete command of St. Pierre Vaast Wood, a place most necessary to secure before the attempt can be made to take Peronne. The latest British gains on the Aisne have been so valuable and have placed them in so favourable a position that they are not likely to remain long idle. The German positions north of the stream are being flanked one by one. First Miraumont and then Achiet will be our objective: if our troops can hold the positions north of the stream, we must keep our eyes for some time; the extension steadily northward of the British line is to be noted. With this salient and not Bapaume on which we must keep our eyes for some time; the extension steadily northward of the British line is to be noted. With this salient and not Bapaume on which we must keep our eyes for some time; the extension steadily northward of the British line is to be noted.

require a brain test with every license number. The driver who is in such a hurry that he can't wait for seven steel coaches to pull by at eighty-two miles per hour is likely to have all eternity in which to reduce speed.

Some day there will be no railroad crossings running into blind alleys, but until that day comes it is better to slow up and make sure than to dive ahead and pass away in a hurried and fragmentary manner.

Capt. Leo Coady in Command

Youngest Captain Out of Port
Capt. Leo Coady, brother of Mr. Wm. Coady, of the parcel post at the G.P.O., takes command of Job Bros. & Co.'s vessel "Elate Burnette" when that ship sails on Monday next with a cargo of herring and salmon for Barbados. Capt. Leo is the youngest commander now sailing out of St. John's, and as he only came to the city from Hudson Bay a few days ago, his engagement by the old firm of Job Bros. speaks highly in his favor. Another brother, Capt. Fred Coady, is now in command of the steamer Falks out of this port. The days that produced young and capable seamen are not yet past, as is evidenced in this case, for Capt. Leo Coady is but twenty-five years of age. May time and tide treat him well on his voyage and fair winds give him a "spanker" trip.

Don't Neglect Your Cough.

A little cold may not seem a dangerous thing—you may feel inclined to let it go on hoping that to-morrow it will be better—but can you afford to take chances? Just as the little insignificant acorn grows if let alone, the mighty giant oak, that cough if not stopped may grow to a very serious illness. When a Cough starts there's no telling where it will end. You know no doubt, of cases right among people you have known, where serious complications and fatal illness have had their start from a neglected cough or cold. "Don't neglect your cough." Stafford's Phorone Cough and Cold Cure is what you should take. For sale at Stafford's Drug Store, Theatre Hill, and Stafford's Pharmacy, Duckworth Street. Price 25c, postage 5c extra.

No trouble to take this cough remedy.

Store Broken Into.

Mr. A. S. Wadden has reported to the police that his store on Water Street was broken into, and that a small amount of cash and a quantity of goods were stolen. The thief to all appearances was well acquainted with the surroundings. This is the second raid on Mr. Wadden's store this year. The culprit on the previous occasion was captured by the police and given a term of imprisonment.

Veteran Seaman Laid to Rest.

The mortal remains of the late Philip Constantine were laid to rest yesterday afternoon. A large concourse of citizens attended the funeral, amongst the mourners being a guard of honor from the Star of the Sea Association, of which the deceased was a prominent member. Philip Constantine was a seaman belonging to the "old school" and was well known in the community and for many years sailed with the late Capt. Arthur Jackman. He was boatswain on the s.s. Eagle from the time she arrived in the country up to shortly before his death.

THE RAILROAD CROSSING.
The railroad crossing is a modern substitute for sudden death which kills more people every year than any other cause.

There are few more harrowing experiences in life than to approach a railroad crossing at night in a rain storm, with the curtains up and the engine missing. This is particularly the case if the crossing is situated in a low gully flanked on either side by the reverse curves and bluffs thirty feet high. The law says that a man thus situated should stop his car, climb out into eighteen inches of clay mud and walk three-quarters of a mile down the track in each direction before proceeding. If he fails to do this and is accidentally struck by a wild freight, all he can recover is the price of a rear fender and a new tail light.

A prolific cause of railroad crossing accidents is the speed maniac with a head shaped like a rat tail. He who thinks he can beat the afternoon limited to the crossing in a 1909 touring car. When one thinks of the number of innocent people whose lives are jeopardized every day by these road insects, he yearns for a law which will

Cheap Cathartics and Cheap Salts Can't Cure Constipation

ABBEE'S EFFERESCENT SALT ACTS GENTLY AND GIVES PROMPT RELIEF

Purgative pills, sweet lozengers, cheap salts and other cheap cathartics cannot cure constipation. They merely irritate and sting the tired bowels.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt overcomes constipation in an easy, gentle, normal way. It acts on the liver, stimulates the flow of bile, regulates the bowels and kidneys, and puts the whole system in a vigorous, active condition. Take it first thing on arising in a tumbler of warm water.

FOR THE NERVES there's nothing like Abbey's Vita Tablets—50c. a box.

TOO EASY?

By RUTH CAMERON.

In one of the most interesting letters I ever received from a letter friend occurs this paragraph: "I go to school every day, papa he says that I got a fine chance for an education and he said he ain't never been to school but just got his education here and there."

There is something about that sentence that touches me deeply, because it opens a vista into the life of those two and of thousands of others like them. One generation struggling along, getting its education here and there with no chance for regular schooling, and as a consequence, appreciating what such an opportunity means; the next, given the opportunity freely, taking it for granted and not making the most—nor the half—of it.

Some of the Things People Who Were Handicapped Did.

When one sees what people who are handicapped accomplish in the line of educating themselves, one almost wonders if it is not possible to make the path to education too easy.

When Phoebe Cary tried to find time at night to do a little reading and writing, her stepmother was not willing she should have a candle to work by (the family was very poor). But that could not daunt a girl who really wanted an education. She used a saucer of lard with a bit of rag for wick.

Somewhat similar to this is the case of Charlotte Bronte. She writes in her diary, "We were all sitting around the warm blazing fire, having just concluded a quarrel with Tabby concerning the propriety of lighting a candle, from which she came off victorious, no candle having been produced."

Please remember, that the candle light would have been used for reading of the most improving kind, that any parent of to-day would be tremendously proud to have his child willing to do.

He Taught Himself French And German.

Wait, the inventor, was much handicapped by a scanty education, because there were many important books on science in French and German which had never been translated into English. He could not afford a tutor, but refusing to be balked, he taught himself French and German so that he could read them in the original.

When one reads of such accomplishments in the face of such odds doesn't it make one ashamed to think of how little one has accomplished with every advantage? "The day departed silent, I, too late, under her solemn flet, saw the scorn." Only, thanks be, it's never too late to educate one's self. A woman went to college at eighty-three last year. And in these days of free libraries and courses of all sorts, one does not need to go to college for an education.

Wrappers for baby are most useful, not only for the cold days for extra warmth, but before and after bathing. Putting on the wrapper after the bath for the baby's nap not only saves time and much discomfort on the baby's part, but it keeps his dress and petticoats fresh and dry for the rest of the day.

These wrappers are little kimono made out of French flannel, challis or flannelette; the edges are embroidered, scalloped, hemmed, featherstitched or bound with ribbon. They tie down the front with three sets for ribbons.

The bath apron should be made of flannel, elderdown or heavy flannel. There should be two lengths one yard long. The bottoms should be featherstitched and the fold at the top should be made into a casing through which the ribbon or tape may be drawn, and tied around the waist. In fact, it is two aprons fastened to one belt.

Everyday Etiquette.

"When sending a dinner invitation in the form of a note to a husband and wife, whose name should be on the envelope?" asked Mildred.

"The envelope should be addressed to the wife alone," answered her mother.

Palms and ferns should be kept away from draught and gas. To fry fish properly, they should be put into boiling hot fat.

SATURDAY, Nov. 25th, 1916.

CLOUDS ON THE HORIZON.

A despatch has gone from Berlin to America to which some quality of mystery appears to be attached. Complications, Germany thinks, are impending. We are ready to believe it. Washington has asked a little coldly to be informed of certain facts relative to certain performances of certain German submarines, and Germany knows the only sort of information she can give. The world is not paying very much attention to the matter, being too well accustomed to such episodes, but it is likely enough that the world will get a surprise. Wilson is still waiting for a reply and shows that he intends to have one. It is easy enough to find in the submarine controversy a theme for sarcasm, and the picture is certainly a little ridiculous of a great power looking on at the lawless acts of another great power waiting, it almost seems, for what may be a mere accident to fulfill the technical conditions which will constitute a breach of a compact arrived at between them; but it must be remembered that technicalities are essential to all systems of law, private or international, and we should examine carefully what they are in this instance before we dismiss lightly the latest ebullition of the "correspondence school." And we are compelled to admit, as we have before frequently stated, that after the so-called agreement had at length been reached by Germany and the States about submarine operations, no violation of it even technically, could be laid at Germany's door until the recent events which have revived the trouble. Germany kept within the line; now, in the case of the Marina and in a lesser degree of the Arabia and others, she has clearly overstepped it. She knows it, and it looks as if the States knew it too.

Few officials cognizant of inside affairs will be surprised if a break does at last occur. That it will come sooner or later no-one can doubt. Germany is getting desperate and, notwithstanding Roumania's straining, is fighting with her back to the wall. Before the end she will become more and more ruthless, less and less careful of consequences. In the matter of the Belgian deportations she is defying the world and vaunting the wrong she does. She has at present the official friendship of America, the private detestation of the overwhelming majority of Americans. Official friendship, however, rests as we have said, on formalities and may be removed by them; relations with the body of a nation depend upon realities and the realities for which Germany is responsible are well enough known. There is no need to examine in detail the tremendous effects upon Germany of a rupture with the United States, which would probably be far greater in the succeeding peace than for the remaining months of hostilities, the point is that Germany seems to be falling more and more into the mad mood of disregardment entirely. Armageddon may yet claim another mighty combatant and draw the nearer to its desired end.

Furlough.

The letter which we publish to-day from a soldier at Ayr is a good illustration of a complaint, if it can be so called, which has lately been somewhat widely ventilated, on the subject of alleged discrimination in the matter of sending wounded or convalescent men home on furlough. As those to whom such complaints are addressed are often ignorant of the rules and conditions governing this matter, they frequently elicit a little more sympathy and create a little more trouble than is necessary. No one can read without sympathy the story which "J.S." tells, yet no reasonable person will jump at the conclusion that he has been unfairly treated. That comparative injustice is occasionally done is undeniable, for it is unavoidable, but that it should be deliberately done is out of the question. The medical authorities, the doctors at Ayr, are the supreme judges as to the condition and treatment of the members of the regiment, and if the doctors' opinion is that J.S. or any other soldier will be fit for service within a certain time (we believe it is three months), furlough cannot be expected to Newfoundland. The desire to return for a few too brief weeks is natural enough, and no one will blame "J.S." for having it; but even on his own statement we cannot condemn the authorities of unfairness. These general remarks will apply to many similar cases, and for that reason we give the letter publication. At the same time our correspondent has our sympathy for all that he has suffered and our admiration of the splendid service he has given.

Methodist Women

Attend Intercession Services Yesterday
The Methodist women of the city assembled at Gower St. Church from 10 a.m. to 12.30 p.m. and from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. yesterday to offer prayer and make intercession on behalf of the millions of people whom the light of Christianity has not reached in the Canadian North and North West, China and Japan. The prayers and supplications for those who live in darkness and ignorance of the great blessings, as taught by the Christian Church were made to the Great White Throne by the devoted women who attended the services. From 7.45 to 9.30 p.m. a public service was held when prayers for the success of the Allies and for peace were offered by the large congregation. Several of the Methodist clergy took part in the different services.

Suspect Arrested For Theft of $3.15

As a result of a spree held on board the schooner Mabel H. on Tuesday night last in which five Placentia Bay men participated, one of the party became out of pocket $3.15, not a cent of which he saw the going of. He reported the loss of his money to the authorities and last night Detective Byrne arrested another member of the party who took part in the celebration, charging him with being responsible for the sudden disappearance of the 'dough.' The suspect appeared before Mr. Hutchings, K.C., this morning and at the request of the prosecution was remanded till this evening when the charge will be heard.

FOR A RED NOSE.

Does Madam's precious nose oft resemble a glorious American Beauty Rose in color? Maybe it is not the effect of the cold weather, but a plain case of indigestion which is a prime factor in producing the undesirable color.
You may detect this symptom by noting if the nose becomes red and swollen. Rich foods which tax the digestive organs must be avoided, or those which, wholesome for others are poisonous for you.
For example, the luscious strawberry is quite impossible for some persons, and shortly after eating even a few the nose assumes a similar hue and a rash breaks out over the skin, accompanied by a dreadful itching sensation.

And when madam's nose must begin to diet, even though she deprives herself of many delicacies she loves. All stimulants, including tea and coffee are blacklisted. Simple, but none the less palatable foods easy of digestion and assimilation, should be chosen.
Dieting is the only remedy, and it is the toll for eating things that the palate craves but the stomach loathes.

WAR REVIEW.

LONDON, To-Day.
Seemingly the forces of the Central Powers are endeavouring to drive on Bucharest, the Rumanian Capital, from three directions. To the west the troops of General von Falkenhayn have reached the Alt River; to the north the Germans and Austro-Hungarians are pressing south from Predeal and Terzburger passes; and somewhere along the Danube, either to the south or southeast, the forces of Field Marshal von Mackensen are crossing the river. Western Wallachia is apparently entirely in the hands of the Teutons, as both Berlin and Vienna report that the line of the Alt has been reached. Some of the Rumanians remain in the rear around Orsova, but that town as well as Turna Severin has been occupied by the Teutonic troops and the Rumanians doubtless have fled into the mountains northward. The pressure of the German and Austro-Hungarian troops continues to the north and northwest of Bucharest. Violent fighting has again broken out in Dobruja. While attempting to hold the Russians and Rumanians in check north of the Tchernavoda and Cvonstanza railway line, Field Marshal Mackensen, Berlin records, has thrown men across the Danube at several places, but just where is not stated. Bucharest says an attempt by the Germans to cross the Danube at Seimnita, 70 miles southwest of Bucharest, has failed. Fighting has been reported in the region of Silistria on the Danube, S. E. of the Rumanian capital, during the past few days, and it may be the Germans' crossing of the river was made between Tchernavoda and Clujkovo. The Russians and Rumanians have taken the offensive successfully in Dobruja north of the Tchernavoda-Constanza railway. Bucharest and Petrograd assert that the Rumanians advanced on the whole front, especially in the centre and on the left wing, and occupied five towns about 15 miles north of the railway line. The Russians progressed to 12 miles north of the railway. Berlin declares the Russian offensive in Dobruja was thrown back. In Macedonia the offensive continues to progress. The Serbian troops have occupied Rapesch, east of Monastir, and north of Suhudol the Serbians put the Germans to flight. Berlin says there has been renewed artillery firing along the front in Macedonia, and Sofia claims to have repulsed attacks east of Peralovo between Lakes Presha and Ochrida. There has been no infantry activity on the front in France on a large scale, but artillery bombardments by both sides north and south of the Somme are increasing in intensity. Berlin reports the repulse of several small British attacks; London declares a German attempt south of Puisieux was frustrated. In the eastern and Austro-Italian theatres there has been little activity. In Armenia, Constantinople says, Turkish troops have advanced their right wing twenty miles against the Russians.

NO FURTHER INFORMATION.
NEW YORK, To-Day.
The Agents of the White Star Line in this city said to-night they had received no information concerning the sinking of the Britannic beyond a cable yesterday from the main office of the company.

MINED, NOT TORPEDOED.
LONDON, To-Day.
Reports yesterday received in a message from the Admiralty were said to be erroneous. It is said the sinking of the Graesmar Castle at a point comparatively close to the spot where the Britannic was sunk, probably strengthened the opinion in London to-night that both steamers might have been torpedoed.

THE WORLD DENOUNCES THE EMBARGO.
NEW YORK, To-Day.
Most of the prominent New York newspapers have taken a strong position editorially against the proposed embargo on the exportation of foodstuffs on the ground that the measure is an obviously political move. The World is most outspoken on this issue. Defeated in all its plans, the World declares, German propaganda still advises the embargo. When strikes and terrorism engineered by German agents failed, the movement became political and economic. The re-election of President Wilson leaves nothing to German agitators but the forlorn hope that Congress will forbid the export of foodstuffs. Members of Congress who may innocently have fallen into the trap should be warned not only by our obligations as neutrals but by the experience of our own American predecessors in 1897-15.

RAPPAHANNOCK GIVEN UP.
LONDON, To-Day.
The British steamship Rappahannock, long overdue at Halifax from England has been given up for lost, according to an official statement issued here to-day, which says, "The Furness Withy Liner Rappahannock left England for Halifax on October 17th and nothing has been heard of her since." A Berlin official announcement on November 8th stated the ship had been sunk. Unless any of the officers or crew who numbered thirty-seven were taken aboard the submarine or transferred to another vessel, neither of which courses was followed as far as is known, there is no longer any hope for their safety. If the crew were forced to take to their boats it is clear it must have occurred so far from land or in such weather conditions that there is no probability of their reaching shore. The German pledge not to sink any vessels without saving the human lives has thus once more been disregarded. Another of their submarines has been guilty of constructive murder on the high seas. Later the Admiralty said the Rappahannock was on her way from Halifax to England instead of the reverse.

SERBIANS FURTHER SUCCESSFUL.
SALONIKI, To-Day.
Further in-roads upon the German-Bulgarian lines from northeast of Monastir are announced by the Serbian War Office to-day. The capture of the village of Rapesch was effected white north of Suhudol within the bent of the Corna, the Germans are declared to have been defeated and forced to flight.

DEPORTING WOMEN.
LONDON, To-Day.
Some two hundred female textile workers have been deported from Ghent by the German authorities according to a report emanating from an authoritative source.

BRILLIANT WORK BY NAVAL BATTALION.
LONDON, To-Day.
The Commander of the British Naval battalion which captured Beaucourt north of the Aisne, in a daring dash on November 18th, recently related in despatches from the front, was Bernard Cecil Freyberg. Lieutenant-Commander Freyberg, who is twenty-seven years of age, had served with distinction on the Gallipoli Peninsula where he was wounded and won the Distinguished Service Order. He was four times wounded during the Beaucourt exploit.

ANOTHER STEAMER SUNK.
PARIS, To-Day.
The British steamer Brierten has been sunk and the crew landed.

ROUMANIAN FORCE CUT OFF.
AMSTERDAM, To-Day.
A telegram from the Rumanian front to the Cologne Volks Zeitung dated Wednesday, November 22nd, says the Rumanian battalion at Orsova cut off from retreat to Craiova constituted a comparatively small force.

AMBASSADOR TO AUSTRIA.
LONDON, To-Day.
Count Bette Von Wedel has been appointed German Ambassador at Vienna says a Reuter despatch from Amsterdam.

STILL ANOTHER.
LONDON, To-Day.
Twelve members of the crew of the 3,000 ton British steamship Ernsten were landed to-day. They reported the steamship had been sunk and the Captain and the remainder of the crew are in another boat whose whereabouts are unknown.

TURKISH DEFEAT IN ARMENIA.
PETROGRAD, To-Day.
The Turks have evacuated the town of Sharaskhan in Turkish Armenia west of Mush it was announced to-day officially. In the region of Kighi the statement adds, an attempt by Turkish scouting parties to reach our positions was repulsed by our fire. In the Ognet region the Turks evacuated Sharaskhan. It has been again observed that the Turks are using explosive bullets.

ROUMANIAN REPORT.
PETROGRAD, To-Day.
Attacks launched by the Germans along the Kovel-Manevitch railroad in Volhynia at a point northeast of Kroco yesterday, were repulsed by the Russians, according to a statement issued to-day by the Russian War Department. Bucharest says that on the Moldavian front there was no change. In the region of Dragelsbarr there was a listless artillery bombardment; in the Alt Valley also artillery fighting occurred. On our right wing, centre and on the left, the enemy made violent attacks. In the Oltenic Valley our troops under pressure of a superior enemy force have withdrawn. On the left bank of the Oltetz River along the Danube infantry fighting occurred with active artillery co-operating. We captured an enemy airplane between Calafat Tju. In the neighbourhood of Zimnita there was violent artillery bombardment. In the Dobruja we advanced on the whole front, especially in the centre and on the left wing where we occupied Gatenjic, Basarila, Estera, Palazumie and Tachaul.

MISSING STEAMER SAFE.
BOSTON, To-Day.
The Greek steamer Nachaloss Athanamis, long overdue on a voyage from Penarth, Wales, for this port, and believed to be lost, is at Montevideo, Uruguay, according to a cable received by the agents here to-day.

BRITANNIC NOT TORPEDOED.
BERLIN, To-Day.
The chief of the naval staff announced that the British patrol ship Britannic was not sunk by a German submarine. The Berlin War Office announces to-night that the army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen crossed the Danube River at several places, and also stated that the German forces in Wallachia had reached the Alt River. No important events were recorded on the Somme.

SERBIANS PURSUE THE ENEMY.
SALONIKI, To-Day.
Yesterday we continued our advance northward despite the violent resistance of the enemy. We captured the village of Rapes on the Eastern Corna, sixteen miles northeast of Monastir. North of Suhudol we have beaten the Germans and forced them to flee. A number of German and Bulgarian prisoners and important booty have fallen into our hands. In the retreat the enemy abandoned food depots, engineering implements and other material.

PAPAL SYMPATHY.
ROME, via Paris, To-Day.
Pope Benedict has sent a telegram to the Queen of Rumania deploring the recent bombing of the Royal Palace at Bucharest by the aircraft of the Central Allies.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.
LONDON, To-Day.
During the day hostile artillery has been active against our front in the neighbourhood of Les Boeufs and Beaucourt on both sides La Passee Canal. Enemy infantry south of Puisieux was dispersed by our artillery fire. Yesterday much successful work was accomplished by our aircraft. Twelve of our machines encountered an enemy formation of twenty aeroplanes. As a result of the fight the hostile formation was dispersed. One of the enemy machines was destroyed and several others driven down damaged. All our machines returned safely. In another fight in the air four of the enemy's aeroplanes were destroyed; three of our machines are missing.

THE DUMA'S VICTORY.
PETROGRAD, To-Day.
The resignation of Bois Vladimirovitch Sturmer as Premier and Foreign Minister, which became known to-day, with the announcement of the appointment of M. Trepoff as Premier, had long been accepted as an inevitable outcome of the struggle between the present Cabinet and the Duma.

PEACE TALK FUTILE.
LONDON, To-Day.
Rumours that there was a possibility of some definite negotiations towards peace were discounted to-day by Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Trade, who told the Associated Press that in view of the Belgian deportations and the sinking of hospital ships talk of peace at the present time must be futile. Lord Robert continued, "We have not yet had in the case of either the Britannic or the Braemar Castle any official report as to whether the ships were torpedoed or mined, but the proximity of the disasters inevitably leads one to believe that a submarine must have been responsible."

Aching Bones and Sore Joints Cured All Rheumatic Tendencies Destroyed

Away Go the Crutches, Every Sufferer Made Well Quickly.

Old age is usually afflicted with rheumatism. Very few past fifty escape its tortures.

Many it bends and deforms. Upon the countenance of others it marks the effects of its awful suffering. Nerviline will cure rheumatism. It takes the pain out of throbbing muscles and swollen joints. It untwists gnarled knuckles. It does this quickly and surely.

Nerviline is not used internally. You just rub it on—lots of hard rubbing is required for a minute or two, and then you feel Nerviline penetrating through the tissues, you feel it drawing out the congestion, feel it sink in deeper and deeper till at last it touches the core of the joint or the heart of the muscle affected.

You won't stay in pain with Nerviline—no one ever does. Just try it—you will be amazed at its magical power over pain, a power it gets from the extracts and juices of certain rare herbs and roots it contains. It's harmless—any child can use Nerviline, can rub it on for a sore throat, for a bad cold, for stiff neck, for earache. No family remedy half so useful.

The large 60 cent bottle is the most economical; trial size 25 cents. All dealers.

ON THE ROMANIAN FRONT.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 24.

On the northern and northwestern fronts, on the western Moldavian front and to the Buzek Valley, there have been no changes. At Bratocca and Predelus there were minor infantry actions. In the Valley of Prahova there were artillery bombardments and light infantry actions. In the region of Dragelovele we fortified ourselves in the captured positions. In the valley of the Alt there were infantry actions. In the centre, artillery bombardments. On our left wing our troops were withdrawn from the valley of the Jiu and now occupy their old positions. On the Cerna, enemy attacks were violent. On the southern front on the Danube there was an exchange of infantry fire and artillery bombardments, especially in the sector between Zimintza and Ghentze.

In Dobruja there were artillery bombardments. On our left wing the villages of Tosane and Takpolas were occupied.

ON THE MACEDONIAN FRONT.

PARIS, Nov. 24.

The Entente forces on the Macedonian front are making progress in their attacks on the German-Bulgarian lines according to today's war office announcement. The gain of further ground during the continuation of the battle east of Monastir, is claimed, while to the west the Italians are continuing their progress and have reached Nijipile.

Sofia—Heavy fighting in the Lake Prespa region, on the Macedonia front, west of Monastir, is reported in today's official statement by the war office.

HUN SUBMARINE CAPTURED.

MILAN, Nov. 24.

British naval forces recently captured a large German submarine, according to the Courriere de la Sera. The newspaper says that a British minesweeper landed thirteen sailors and two officers of the crew of a submarine at an Italian port.

LIVELY BOMBARDMENT.

PARIS, Nov. 24.

There was a lively bombardment on the Somme front last night, in the region of Sully-Sallisel, north of the river, and that of Ablaincourt, south of the stream, the war office announced today. The night was uneventful on the remainder of the front. French aviators took part in forty aerial engagements on the Somme front, during which five hostile machines were brought down. Sub-Lieut. George Guynemer accounted for his 23rd German machine.

HOSPITAL SHIP SUNK.

LONDON, Nov. 24.

The British hospital ship Braemar Castle, of 6,290 tons gross, bound from Salonika to Malta with wounded, has been mined or torpedoed in the Aegean Sea, it was officially announced today. All on board were saved.

ENEMY TRENCHES RAIDED.

LONDON, Nov. 24.

Raid on the German trenches last night are reported in the official statement issued by the war office today regarding the operations on the Franco-Belgian front, as follows: Last night we raided enemy trenches south-east of Crenay and in the Peasbert and Bois Grandier sections. Otherwise there were no events of importance.

A PROTEST.

HAVRE, Nov. 24.

The following telegram has been sent by the Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs to the Belgian Ministers at Rome and Madrid to be communicated to Pope Benedict and King Alfonso. The situation in Belgium is becoming day by day more frightful. Raids on valid Belgians now extend through the whole country. If they are not sent to work in Germany in munition factories, they are sent to occupied parts of France to work on a system of trenches and strategic railways of Lille, Aubray and Givenchy. The German hosts of having already deported 250,000 men.

THE GERMAN SERVICE BILL.

LONDON, Nov. 24.

The German auxiliary service bill is considered by Secretary of Interior Von Loebell, as surpassing in importance all previous war measures, according to Amsterdam despatches describing the debate on the bill before the main committee of the Reichstag. Secretary Von Loebell opened the debate on the bill which provides for the services of all men from the ages of 17 to 60 years. He said that beside the millions of whom it would render liable to service in the army, it would affect three million others to be called upon for other services in this war which is not only a war of armies, but a war of political economy and a war of nations. Explaining that the object of the bill was the mobilization of labor, the minister declared that instead of lack of employment which prevailed at the beginning of the war, there was now a positive lack of labor, especially in the manufacture of munitions and war material of all kinds.

STEAMER SUNK; CREW SAVED.

LONDON, Nov. 24.

Despatches from Goeteburg, Sweden, report the arrival there of the trawler Delphin, with the crew of the Swedish steamer Arthur, sunk by a German submarine.

SAVED FROM BRITANNIC.

ATHENS, Nov. 24.

All of the nurses on the Britannic were saved, as far as is known. Those who were drowned were stokers and engineers.

RUSSIA'S NEW PREMIER.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 24.

M. Trepoff's appointment as Premier is announced in the newspapers. This Petrograd despatch announcing the appointment of M. Trepoff as Premier is a continuation of a despatch which was filed earlier and which has not yet been received. It was presumably held up by the censor. The portion of the despatch received does not identify the Trepoff referred to, but the most prominent official of that name is Alexander Fedorovich Trepoff, Minister of railways.

SIR HIRAM MAXIM DEAD.

Sir Hiram Maxim, inventor of the automatic system of fire arms, died at his home early this morning. Sir Hiram Maxim was born in Sangoville, Maine, on Feb. 5, 1840.

MINISTRY CONFIRMED.

LONDON, Nov. 24.

Emperor Charles of Austria has sent an autograph letter to Premier Tisza, of Hungary, confirming him and the Hungarian Ministers in their posts, according to a Budapest despatch.

BERLIN DESPATCH AROUSE MUCH INTEREST IN OFFICIAL CIRCLES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.

The wording of the Berlin despatch, that a period of complications may be impending in German-American relations, aroused much interest in official circles, especially as the despatch was allowed to pass very strict censorship. The officials refused to disclose details of the inquiries sent to Berlin on the ground that they were only inquiries for facts, and would have very bad effect on public opinion if an alarm were given, only to be shown to be groundless. Many cases are now being investigated. It is admitted that they may fail to develop a violation of Germany's pledge, but some are known to be serious. In the Marina case American affidavits seem conclusive, but no action will be taken until Germany's reply is received.

ROUMANIAN SITUATION DISCUSSED.

LONDON, Nov. 24.

It is for Hindenburg to decide whether the gains of the German army in Roumania pay for the losses sustained on the other fronts by the withdrawal of divisions for his operations, said Major-General Maurice, Chief Director of military operations of the war office, discussing to-day with the Associated Press correspondent the latest military developments. It is impossible and foolish to prophesy the outcome of the German campaign in Roumania, continued General Maurice, but I can say that the first efforts to cut through by way of Predeal Pass

In TRAINING

Thousands of men suddenly called to undergo the hardships of winter training find the sustaining power of Oxo Cubes invaluable for supporting health and strength.

Oxo Cubes have a body-building power out of all proportion to their bulk. Many a young soldier, wet through, and physically exhausted by hours of marching or other duties, has had cause to bless the invention of Oxo Cubes.

Oxo Cubes are so convenient and handy that they can be carried on the person without adding to the weight of one's equipment. A cup of Oxo or an Oxo Cube sandwich enables one to go for long hours.

THE REASON FOR WARNING.

PARIS, Nov. 24.

A Havas despatch from Athens says the warning given by Vice-Admiral De Fourmet to the German and other ministers of the Central Powers that they must quit Athens, was the result of a German decision to sink all vessels transporting Greek revolutionary troops, which the Entente Powers regarded as a declaration of war against the Greek revolutionists. The despatch says the Turkish Minister asked the American Minister to take charge of Turkish interests in Athens.

RUSSIAN DREADNOUGHT SUNK.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 24.

Russia officially announces the loss of the Dreadnought Imperatritsa Maria, in a statement issued to-night which reads: The Russian Dreadnought Imperatritsa Maria has been sunk by internal explosion. Two hundred of the crew are missing. Early in November's report was circulated that the Imperatritsa Maria had gone to the bottom, and that nearly all her crew had perished.

SERBIAN OFFICIAL.

SALONIKA, Nov. 24.

The Serbian official communication issued to-day says there was violent fighting yesterday over the whole front against the German forces. Nevertheless the Serbians advanced in places towards the north and repulsed hostile counter attacks. The area of Serbia now liberated aggregates 120 kilometres.

NEW MINISTER OF MILITIA.

For Pain in the Back Try

The famous remedy GIN PILLS, known from coast to coast. Pain in the back and sides, aching limbs, swollen joints, lumbago, rheumatism, are all the result of impure blood, which in turn, means that the kidneys are out of order and are not purifying the blood stream as it passes through them every three minutes.

GIN PILLS heal and soothe the kidneys and thus remedy the trouble right at the very root. If you are suffering from any of the troubles mentioned above, take the advice given in hundreds of letters we have here on file, and try GIN PILLS.

Your money will be returned if you are not absolutely satisfied. 50c. a box, or 6 boxes for $2.50 at all druggists, or a free sample upon request to

FOR THE KIDNEYS

"We Are Fighting for the Nailed Hand Against the Mailed Fist."

Britain a Righteous Weapon in the Hands of God, Declares His Lordship the Bishop of London.—The War Will Not Weaken the Religion of Britain, But Will Strengthen It." (By Edward Marshall, in London Daily Mail.)

Undoubtedly the most picturesque non-military figure in England during these war days is a distinguished clergyman, the Right Rev. A. F. Winnington Ingram, Bishop of London. He is the church militant incarnate, and has been ever since the war began. A great novelist might make him the venerable hero of one of the most fascinating psychological studies of war born emotion ever written. He has stirred the clergy of the Empire to the fighting pitch, sending hundreds of them, most of them as fighters, to the front. All creeds and decent classes love him; sham, clerical or otherwise, intensely fears him. A visit to his fine old residence rarely finds him without some cleric in uniform as a companion. He himself, despite his sixty-eight years, has made many, many journeys to the trenches, both of France and Flanders, and has preached scores of sermons to the troops, not only within the sound, but within the range of gunfire.

It has been my privilege to listen to his sermons more than once, and his Christmas sermon in St. Paul's, London, which, at just about that time, undoubtedly had been marked as an especial target for Zeppelin bombs, although none ever hit it, was perhaps the most intensely stirring discourse that I ever heard. When he gave me the card for a special sitting in the cathedral, he explained to me that it would place me between a blind peer and a lame duchess. The peer proved to be Lord Ramsey, who while a prisoner in Germany was forced by his captors to work daily at cleaning sinks.

But not peers nor duchesses were the impressive members of the vast congregation which gathered on that particular morning or at any other time when I went to listen to the Bishop of London. He holds the eye as well as the ear and thoughts. The great edifice of St. Paul's, when he is to preach always holds many hundreds of khaki clad fighting men on leave from the front or in training for departure, ranging in importance from the greatest general who chances to be in England at the moment to the humblest Tommy, veteran or raw recruit, all listening intently, all grim faced and stirred, all sure to leave the massive, ancient pile animated by a new determination to fight on to the bitter end.

To the old and fiery bishop this is a holy war, which must be won by the allies if the cause of right and of religion is to triumph in the world. The day before I heard him preach the last time he told this, and just as I was preparing to go to France, while I sat in the Athenaeum Club in London talking with Sir William Osler, greatest of the world's surgeons, he told me so again, his face glowing, as he spoke, with the sunburn of another journey in the open of the fighting country and his heart fired by freshened indignation born of new horrors he had witnessed.

To arrange with the Bishop of London for a set interview is an easy matter, but to carry the plan through seems to be an impossibility, for interruptions either by visiting clerics in uniform off to the front (perhaps to preach, but far more probably to fight) are certain. In the following quoted paragraphs therefore, I am giving bits from several conversations, linked in this article, but not in actuality, and others have been elaborated out of sermons he has preached in St. Paul's or in some minor edifice, or more probably, in the actual fighting field, to congregations of men grimy with trench mud, stirred by battle spirit, listening during lulls of gunfire and in the presence of the peril of imminent and dreadful death.

One sentence, as he spoke it to me in his plain residence, still rings in my ears, more because of the manner of its speaking than because of its impressiveness of wording. He did not cast it fiercely at me as he sometimes throws his words at listening soldiers, but thrust it at me very grimly, very solemnly, as if it might be somewhat of the nature of a new declaration of faith, made necessary by unprecedented times.

"I," said he, "a man of peace and a bishop of the God of peace, regard this war as worthy and as necessary. I believe that God is on the side of the Allies and that our struggle is a holy one."

"We are fighting, not for our own profit, nor for the extension of the British Empire or of the French Republic or the Russian domain or for any one of our governments, but for the freedom of the world."

"Religious men and women, wherever they may be, must, I believe agree with me almost universally, for during years past Germany out of her own mouth has cried to me and to every thinking Christian that her dominance as a world power would mean wherever it was felt, a defiance of Christianity. To my mind it is absolutely clear that the victory of Germany would mean the domination of the world by the pagan idea."

"It has been a pagan war which Germany has fought and it would be a pagan peace which would come after the success of pagan arms."

"I do not, I will not believe, and I am thankful to say, nothing in the military situation makes it reasonable for me to believe that such a victory is possible. The Christian idea, not the pagan, will live dominant."

"The Christian idea includes chivalrous treatment of women, kindness toward the right development of children, responsible regard for the weaker people, of however humble station, as well as respectful because fearful regard for powerful nations; the Christian idea involves honor in national and international relationships as surely as it involves honesty in dealing between individual men."

"In other words Christianity means freedom. Freedom is a part of it."

"The role which the allies play in this great war is that of an organized power struggling for the freedom of the race, which must be free if it is to progress and which must progress if it is to work out its best destinies. Thus freedom becomes holy and a war for freedom is a holy war. Peace is admirable; it is desirable above most things; but there is at least one thing which ranks it in desirability and that one thing is freedom."

"In the minds of many thousand Englishmen is the conviction that our nation now is being used as a weapon in God's hands. These men and women know that the nations which sank the Lusitania, which betrayed and ravaged Belgium and stood by while 300,000 Armenians were done to death would not have done these things had they not lost their fear of and their faith in God. To those who think this out, faith becomes more desirable than ever."

"The man who long has been a Christian and suddenly starts out to fight a righteous battle, feeling that he is a weapon in God's hands, will not become irreligious; the nation as a whole has felt, a mighty spiritual uplift which must help it, not degrade it. War never emphasizes the forms of religion; to warriors fighting for the right the substance of religion must inevitably be emphasized. No; the war will not weaken the religion of Great Britain; it will strengthen it."

Largest Telescope is Near Victoria, B. C.

Finest Observation Station in the World is Now Located in Canada.

The giant 72-inch reflecting telescope at the summit of little Saanich Mountain is now in full operation. It is due to the ability and energy of Dr. J. S. Plaskett, Chief Astronomer of the Dominion of Canada, that the finest observation station in the world is now located in the vicinity of Victoria, B.C.

It ranks in size as the world's largest telescope, and weighs fifty-five tons, and rests on massive piers of reinforced concrete. The tube is thirty-one feet long and weighs twelve tons.

Enormous Mirror.
The enormous mirror, which in this type of telescope takes the place of a lens in concentrating the rays of light, weighs two and one-half tons, measures seventy-three inches in diameter over all, twelve inches thick at the edges, and is pierced by a hole ten and one-half inches in diameter. It is so accurately supported that no texture can distort the surface which must nowhere deviate from the theoretical curve more than a two-hundred-thousandth of an inch. The silvered upper surface is a parabola to bring the reflected light to a focus thirty feet above the mirror.

In three different ways this telescope is designed to be used, but what is known to astronomers as the Cassegrain focus will be used most frequently. When so employed the light striking the large mirror is reflected back to the upper end of the telescope tube to a 19-inch convex mirror, and thence back through the central hole in the large mirror to an eye-piece.

Every attachment that will add to the convenience and accuracy of operation has been provided. The telescope is moved from one position to another and set and guided wholly by electric power.

No less than seven motors and several solenoids and magnetic clutches are required for these motions. A very slight pressure of the upper end of the tube suffices to set it in motion, moving with the greatest smoothness. Some idea of the ease with which it can be handled is conveyed by the fact that the actual increase of current to move the instrument in quick motion over that needed to run the motors is barely sufficient to light a 15-candle-power lamp.

Of unusual interest from an engineering point of view is the great steel dome which is sixty-six feet in diameter and weighs 120 tons. The dome revolves with ease. The 15-foot wide shutter opening can be adjusted to take in any portion of the heavens. Each shutter weighs five tons, and runs lightly and noiselessly.

The telescope, which is to be used more for research work than for observations in connection with the relations between the sun and the stars, is expected to be of scientific, literary and educational value. Dr. Plaskett will have full charge of the observatory. He is well known to the scientific world.—Toronto Globe.

Born? With the advent of each "little stranger" happiness increases, but so does responsibility. A child has been called "a bundle of joy" because it brings joy to the parents. Every child is an unanswerable argument for a Mutual Life Policy—each child is "an accredited agent" of the Mutual.

Married? Every man who assumes the responsibilities of marriage requires a single life insurance protection. The husband will maintain his home in the greatest comfort while he lives. Should the unexpected happen and should he be called away, who will keep that dear old spot on earth? Albert Hubbard said: "Life insurance avoids the necessity of leaving things to the neighbors."

Died? Whenever you hear of the passing of any acquaintance who had no life insurance, it is a sad story. It is not this quiet another unanswerable argument for life insurance protection? Every child, every marriage, every death, advocates the benefits of sound life insurance such as the Mutual issue.

Home Defence.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Now that the war has been brought nearer to our own doors, would it not be a good plan for the Government to raise a company of volunteers for Home Defence from those who have been "turned down" from the Army and Navy.

They could be given three or four nights drill per week for a couple of months, and then sent around to the wireless stations and different important points around the Island.

By doing this they would release a lot of men for active service, and at the same time enable those who have been "turned down" to do a little towards keeping the old flag flying.

Trusting the authorities will give this their earnest consideration and thanking you for space, Mr. Editor, I remain,
Yours truly,

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your columns to ease my temper by saying a few words to the public about my experiences, etc., etc.

By the time that I am finished this little letter you will very well know that I am a member of the 1st Nfld. Regiment. I think I have a very good reason for saying that I am one of the first battalion, as I have been away from England ever since the 1st Battalion left Aldershot in August of last year.

I left Aldershot with the 1st Battalion on August 21st, 1915, and proceeded to Egypt on a ship called the Megantic. After we had spent a few weeks at Cairo in barracks and camp, we got used to the hot climate, we were sent to the Darganelles (Gallipoli Peninsula). After being there for some time I was taken very ill and when I could not walk about I was sent to hospital for treatment. First of all I was "carried in a basket" on board the hospital ship Dover Castle to Alexandria; from there I was sent by train to a very nice hospital known as Giza Red Cross Hospital which is about miles from the city of Cairo. After I was there for two weeks I began to get a bit better, so with the kind permission of the matron I was allowed to go into the Zoological Gardens and a kind lady helped me there. I stayed there for some two hours and had to be carried back to the hospital on a stretcher. I was in terrible agony all through the night; I rapidly grew worse and in the morning I could not speak, after vomiting up some milk, the only thing that I could drink for all the day previous. I was then taken away in my bed and put into a quiet room (ward), as they thought, to die, but I did not die; if I had died then I would not have been obliged to write this letter. For thirteen days and nights I was lying on my bed in the ward mentioned above (the quiet room) living on absolutely nothing but milk and soda water, with doctors and nurses watching over me all the while, and all those long thirteen days and nights I could not move hand or foot. After that I recovered, but I owe my thanks to a good Englishman, Dr. Paine, he saved my life. After spending some time at Boulaque in Convalescent Home, I was sent back to my depot which was then at a place called Sid Bishr. My battalion was then at the Suez Canal. After asking several times to get back, I was sent with a bunch of men; although I went back I was not at all feeling well, but I asked to go because I wanted to be with the other boys doing my bit. I was not there long before I contracted pneumonia and was sent to hospital at Port Tewfik. I had double pneumonia while I was there and the doctors thought that I was going to peg out but I recovered and when I was well enough I insisted on getting out of hospital. I was spitting and vomiting blood for a long time while I was in hospital at Port Tewfik. After I began to recover from my illness at Port Tewfik I was visited several times by a very kind lady and was also invited to her house. This kind lady of whom I speak is Mrs. Davidson, a sister-in-law to Sir W. E. Davidson, the present Governor of Dear Old Newfoundland. Yes, Mrs. Davidson was so kind, she often brought oranges and cigarettes and lots of other things that she thought I needed.

It will take too long to tell all about what I have gone through since I left Port Tewfik. This is part of it. After everything was put right with me, I was sent to France and joined my Battalion again at B. I was there until July 1st, and was one of the men to go over the top on the morning of the attack, where I had a perfect right to be. After watching hundreds of men fall from either side of me, I was hit with an explosive bullet through my right forearm; I was no more good to fight as both bones in my arm were badly smashed and I was bleeding quite a lot, so I was compelled to fall into a little shell hole just in front of the enemy's barb wire and had to stay there for some twenty hours. I thought it was as many months; there were six of us in and around the one little shell hole, so we did not have room to move in any way, no not even our feet, bits of lead was flying in abundance in every direction which was possible to come from the enemy's lines; that was not all, shells were hurling through the air and dropping everywhere around us, hundreds of our wounded were sent hurtling in the air after falling in some shelter; yes, hundreds were killed by the enemy's shell fire after they had been hit with machine gun bullets. The Germans took delight in shelling the wounded. Before I could get a man to bandage me up I nearly bled to death, and I tried to stand on my feet to walk back to our trenches the next morning I fell down twice through weakness, but the third time I succeeded in getting in safe. A man named McNeill fell in the shell hole and died lying across my legs, he never spoke after he fell but died quite easy. After going through this and much more what I have not got time to mention now, I arrived at the old spot (Wandsworth Hospital) on July 4th, was operated on on July 20th and had several pieces of bone extracted from my arm. After receiving the necessary treatment for some two months or more I was sent to Escher Red Cross Hospital for over a month. On being discharged I was granted ten days furlough and spent that time in London. When my furlough was over I came to my Depot here and I have been here ever since. I was only here two days when I was presented with a rifle to do manual exercise with but I could not use it owing to my right arm being so weak; this is the way that they treated me here which I do not think is quite fair, while other men who were not wounded half as much as I were being sent home on furlough. I can name one man in particular who was in the same ward as myself in Wandsworth Hospital with only a flesh wound in his arm, his arm was not fractured and for that reason he would be fit for the front long before myself. That man of whom I speak is home this very night. But why is it that they will not let me go home? I can easily get there and back before my arm will be strong enough for active service. I will not be so personal as to give any name this time, but if this thing continues I will tell the public know all that I think is reasonable for them to know. My father is dying at home and I may never see him again, for if I go to France again I may never return. If I had been allowed just one glimpse of home this time, I would go back to the front quite happy, but as I have seen everything as I have stated it makes my blood boil, it makes me angry to see some men, to which I am fit again, and then I will be sent out to France again without the least consideration whatever. I could find enough to write about, if I was to stay writing until daylight, but I am too angry to write any more just now. If the public at home would consider these lines, I think everyone would be treated alike, and if they do not intend to send all the men who are unfit for any five or six months; if they do not intend to let them all go home, it's up to the public to kick against it and see that nobody at all gets home. This is business. But as we are under the orders of the British Army we are not in a position to say anything as regards that; and again all of us Nflds. who are over here have too much respect for ourselves to kick against anything especially in a strange country. I say again to all readers of my letter please consider this case for the benefit of those who are far away, and under the thumb of others. Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor, I am,

SOARING PRICES.
Ah, nothing could be sadder than is the "high cost" fad, which stings like an adder, and biteth like a snake. The records just examine, and you will understand it was no "year" of famine in this country's land. The country's barns are bursting with wheat and corn and rye, while sufferers are pining for bread and pone and pie. And while I write these stanzas, which lack the "customed stifles," the farmers out in Kansas have wheat stacked up in piles. Dame Nature, in her bonny, has done a kindly turn, and every western county has wheat and hay to burn. Yet when we seek the grocer, and ask him for some meal, he says, "I s'pose you know, sir, the price is raised one wheel? The war in Asia Minor has shut off the supply, and hence the extra shiner you cough up when you buy." The wolf is drawing closer, and shorter grows the kale; it stay the merry grocer, but what does that avail? I seek the floral splendor, to buy a buttercup; "The war," remarks that dealer, "has sent the prices up."

A Genuine Rupture Cure

Sent On Trial To Prove It

Don't Wear a Truss Any Longer

Even Soldiers from the Trenches of Europe Write to Tell How the Wonderful Brooks Appliance Cured Their Ruptures, Sound and Well. Sent on Trial to Prove It.

From the battle front in Europe comes a letter written by private John C. Brooks, whose home address is Shaw View, Halifax, telling of his complete cure of rupture from wearing the Brooks Appliance.
April 18th, 1915.
Dear Sir,
I received your letter by first post this morning. I beg to thank you for your Appliance which was instrumental in the way it cured me of my rupture. I have now been in the army seven months, and I have never felt any pain or trouble. I remember when I was in the hospital at Port Tewfik, and the doctor had to operate on me, and he said I was to be a cripple for the rest of my life. I give my consent to use my letter as a testimonial to anyone who has been cured. Hoping you and your firm much success.
Yours truly,
John C. Brooks.

If you have tried every other cure, where others fail, where you have my greatest success. Send attached coupon today, and I will send you free my Illustrated Book on Rupture and its cure, showing the Appliance and giving you prices and names of many people who have tried it and are cured. Remember, I use no knives, no bars, no ties.
I send on trial to prove what I say is a thankful because a Brooks Appliance cured me so I could go on and serve my country. I am, C. E. Brooks, 11 Richardson St., Richmond, Surrey, April 11th, 1915.
Dear Sir:
A line to thank you for that your Appliance has done for my son. After wearing it for December to the following September he was never serving his country in France at his own trade, a splendid smith. You can make what use you like of these, my thanks.
I am, yours,

Wouldn't Take $100 for Appliance
Cranworth, Ont.
Dear Mr. Brooks—I am pleased to write you and let you know what your Appliance has done for me. I think it is all right now, as I have not seen the first sign of it since last fall. I can now run, jump and hit all alike and would not take $100 for it if I could not get another. I do not wear it except when at hard work. Your appliance is just as good as ever. You can use this letter as you like for the benefit of others.
Yours sincerely,
GEO. KENNEDY.

Rupture Thoroughly Healed
Ingersoll, Ont., Feb. 6, 1914.
Mr. C. E. Brooks:
Perhaps you will be interested in hearing that your Appliance has done for me. I know without doubt that after a term of sixteen years' suffering, and I attribute any restored and healed condition to the wearing of your Appliance, which held the bowel firmly and painlessly during the healing process. I have not worn it for months, neither do I feel in need of it.
Yours truly,
C. NIXON.

Cured Me Completely
Ferd Centre, N. B., April 25, 1914.
Mr. C. E. Brooks:
Dear Sir—I received your letter regarding the Appliance you sent me. It was a complete success, and now I don't know that I ever had a rupture. It has cured me completely and I thank you very much for it.
Very truly yours,
H. A. SISSON.

A SEMI-ROYAL WEDDING.

There will be a muster of Royal guests at the wedding of the Grand Duke Michael of Russia's daughter, Countess Nadezhda Torby, with Prince George of Battenberg, the eldest son of Prince and Princess Louis of Battenberg. I understand they will marry early this month, and the bride, the younger of the two charming sisters so well-known in London society, is busy with her trousseau. Prince George of Battenberg, who is thoroughly popular in the Navy, is a grandson of the late Princess Alice of Hesse, and great grandson of Queen Victoria. The elder of his two sisters married King "Tino's" heir, Prince Andrew of Greece, who has lately been visiting his relatives in London. Princess Andrew, whom I have heard described as one of the most beautiful women in Europe, was a special favorite of her Russian cousins, the daughters of the Czar, who assisted at her wedding.

A QUEEN WHO IS SHY.

A friend just back from La Panne tells me that the King and Queen of the Belgians have their thirteenth villa that crowned heads can ever have lived in. The famous La Panne Hospital, belonging to the Queen of the Belgians, is almost entirely provided for by England. The Queen goes in and out continually and without ceremony, but so shy is she that she rarely addresses any of the staff and confines her conversation to wounded patients, with whom she seems at home. King Albert, strange to say, is equally retiring, and when he has to decorate any inmates of the hospital he is described as running upstairs and getting the job over as soon as may be. He is devoted to his army, but is intensely averse to ceremony. In pre-war days at Brussels he caused much alarm amongst the debutantes presented to him by his extreme reserve.

"GREY OF F."

Just as the Prime Minister has come to be familiarly and not irreverently known in Parliamentary circles as the "P.M.," Bonar Law as "Bonar," and Lloyd George as "L.G.," Viscount Grey of Fallodon, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, seems destined to be crowned with a similar abbreviation—"Grey of F." I do not know who invented this distinctive label for the Minister, but I rather fancy it emanated from the Foreign Office itself, for a member tells me that all his answers to questions on foreign affairs reach him in envelopes signed in the corner in a neat hand "Grey of F."

AFRICAN LABOR FOR FRANCE.

I hear that arrangements have been made for sending a labour contingent of 10,000 blacks to France. General Botha, it is understood, states that the natives have expressed a desire to be allowed to assist in the war in Europe, and that at the request of the Imperial authorities it has been arranged to send five battalions, each of two thousand, to do dock labour in France. The precise conditions of recruitment have been explained to, and accepted by the natives, who will form a unit under military discipline, but they will not participate in fighting and will be housed in close compounds. Each battalion will be under the direct control of European officers and have a chaplain and medical officers, while a fully-equipped hospital will be provided for the contingent. Privates will be paid the flat rate of £2 a month, two-thirds being deferred.

Children Had Eczema Doctors Failed to Cure.

Two Letters Which Prove the Efficiency of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a Cure for Eczema.

Fortunate are the mothers who know the virtues of Dr. Chase's Ointment, for there is no treatment so suitable for use after the bath to relieve irritation and chafing and to thereby prevent eczema and similar skin diseases.

Mrs. W. L. Barnes, Timmins, Ont., writes:—"I want to tell you about the case of my little boy, who had baby eczema when he was three months old. It started on the top of his head, on his forehead and around his ears. The doctors failed to do him any good, so I tried Dr. Chase's Ointment on the recommendation of a friend, and in a month's time the child was entirely free of this disagreeable skin disease. He is now four years old, and has never had any further trouble from ailments of this kind. I also have great faith in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and believe that it cannot be beaten as a restorative for pale, nervous women."

Mrs. George McNair, River Charles, writes:—"We use Dr. Chase's Ointment in our home, and would not burn for anything better for cuts, burns and bruises. A few years ago a friend of mine, whose baby was terribly afflicted with eczema had her child treated by their own family physician, but the little one got no better. They tried several remedies, but they all proved useless in this case. Upon the advice of a neighbor they got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and before the first box was used the child was completely cured. I can also recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to suffering friends who I know will be glad to learn of something to relieve their nervous trouble. You have my permission to use this letter for the benefit of others."

and paid to the natives on their return.

WINTER WEAR IN THE TRENCHES.

Considerable quantities of woollen clothing are being taken over from factories and ware-houses for military account, in addition to those turned out week by week under long forward contracts. There need be no anxiety as to the adequacy of the supplies that will be available for winter wear in the trenches and elsewhere. Some of the types of clothing which met with some demand a twelve month ago were found by experience to be capable of improvement, and others were found to be of dubious value as "comforts." The bearing of these transactions upon the general market cannot, however, be overlooked, as they mean a necessary increase in cost of woollen fabrics when the present stocks are depleted. For some time manufacturers have endeavoured to steady the prices, knowing that they had reached an economic maximum, but week by week they have lengthened the time demanded for the execution of contracts. The explanation is that owing to the shortage of labor it takes longer to get goods through the mill, but does not cost appreciably more.

THE FRENCH AT VERDUN.

"If this pile were a little higher, father, Verdun would be in sight," was the text under Raemaekers' terrible cartoon of Verdun which he drew this summer. The Kaiser and his son were standing on tip-toe on the top of a awful pile of dead German soldiers. The pile is higher yet to-day, but Verdun is further out of sight from the German camp—indeed at one part it is back to the situation in February. The enthusiasm for the French aroused in London, particularly amongst those best qualified to judge the conditions, is higher than I have ever seen it. We should be used to surprises of the kind. The bound forward of the French on the first day of the combined action on the Somme and the number of prisoners that were captured astonished everyone. Now, in addition to their great deeds on the Somme, there comes this sudden and splendidly conducted offensive at Verdun. The point which strikes many people is that, beyond the military importance of the blow, there is, something in the deed characteristically and ironically French. You see it to-day in the faces of Frenchmen when they speak of Douaumont. There is a smile along with the fire of their satisfaction. At a high moment of German pride the French army has done the one thing that would most wound it. The failure of the attack on Verdun, so tremendously launched, so enthusiastically recorded, so closely bound up with the prestige of the dynasty, is the one thing the Germans would most gladly forget. Here, at the moment of the Dobruja victory, "Verdun" is heard all over the world again, and the fort of Douaumont, which was to the Germans the chief evidence to which they could point as proof of their eight months' offensive, has fallen in a day.

THE HUMP IN PICCADILLY.

One would think that the sight of a camel walking down Piccadilly would make anybody stare, but the curious thing was that when this theatrical property took its constitutional past the clubs this morning many people walked by without noticing it. Those who did stopped to gaze, and soldiers from Egypt greeted it as an old friend. The camel—very beautiful, brown and furry, with one upright hump and one that sagged over as if it had been punctured—walked with a lofty mien, thrusting its long lower lip out contemptuously at all the noisy buses and motor-lorries, not in the least perturbed by any of them, though they crowded it unpleasantly. It gave the small boy who led it very little trouble till it came to the island of the Wellington statue, where it insisted on resting in the shade of the trees while it thoughtfully manured its fore feet. A few steps further on the policeman in charge of Hyde Park Corner sprang to attention bristling with horror at the camel's evident intention of entering the Park. "We don't allow them in Hyde Park," said the inspector firmly, adding, "Not that we are often asked for leave in respect of camels." The creature, baffled, turned from the green glimpses of the Park to the gates of Constitution Hill. "That's another place camels may not go to," said the inspector; "he must keep to Piccadilly." And sadly the camel wandered again past the clubs.

"Real, True Joy."

What One Officer Found at the Front.

An officer serving in France writes: "After a nice little rest we are going up again. So here's to our jolly good luck. Don't worry about me going up the line again, as I am looking forward to it, and have a splendid sleep. You can have no idea how I love my men. My whole life at present is in two little wood huts. Two splendid sergeants who can stand under shell fire just like waiting in a queue at the pit, early doors. They're for the most part miners from "North" as they say, but all just like babies—you almost have to dress them and feed them, and that's where the fun comes in, and that's where the friendship springs up. The whole thing is discipline, the real, true stuff. Not bully stuff. When I say "Shun!" I mean "Shun!" and by H—if any man talks or moves a hair, he gets it—not too. Yet I wouldn't let the men go about with a pair of worn boots for all the world. And they know it and appreciate it. Feed, clothe, and look after a man, find him a place to rest his head, look after his ailments, find out his peculiarities, his weaknesses, his strong points, praise him when he tries, show him you know your job, trust him, treat him like a man, and behave like a gentleman yourself, and any man will follow you to hell. I've twice been there and seen it. Somehow or other I don't think any one of No—section would leave their officer, their very own officer in a fix.

Salves Can't Cure Eczema.

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this: Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT.

The D. D. D. Prescription is a new skin discovery which is becoming famous throughout Newfoundland and Canada. It is a simple wash, compounded as a scientific antiseptic remedy for Eczema, Bad Leg, Ulcers, Sores, Pimples and all skin eruptions. This wash penetrates to the disease germs and destroys them, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

Don't delay—this wash will cure. Get a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to-day. Sold everywhere. Recommended by T. McMurdo & Co., A. W. Kennedy, M. Connors, Peter O'Mara.

An Absent-Minded Peer

Among the many excellent stories which Mr. Leslie Ward, the famous cartoonist "Spy," tells in his Reminiscences, published by Chatto and Windus, are one or two concerning the absent-mindedness of Lord Crewe's father, the post-peer, better known as Monkton-Milnes.

"I remember," says "Spy," "the eccentric Lord coming into the club one evening looking tired and hungry. On the mantelpiece a white paper gleamed. It was a list of the Derby Lottery. Something stirred in his mind, which was far away on other subjects bent, and reminded him that he was hungry. He scanned the Lottery

List . . . and at last he was heard to murmur in dissatisfied tones: "Walter, I don't see anything to eat here."

On another occasion, after a careful scrutiny of the actual menu, he ordered a herring:

Monkton-Milnes used to dine at the Athenaeum, and usually at the same table. Another member came rushing in one day to obtain a place for himself. But every seat was occupied save that reserved for Lord Crewe. "Tell him when he comes," said the would-be diner to the waiter as he sat down, "that he's dined!" It is to be supposed the waiter found the deception worth while, for when Lord Crewe arrived he was met with surprise and quiet expostulation. "You dined an hour ago, my lord," said the unscrupulous servant. "So I did," murmured the poor victim, as he retraced his steps.—Tit-Bits.

Penalty of a Rime.

Caustic Collingborne Paid for His Taunt at Richard III.

Did you ever hear of a spring poet who came to his death because of a rime? Doubtless many spring poets have merited the same fate, but in our day justice tarries and the world suffers in silence.

It was not thus when Richard III., last of the Plantagenets, ruled England. In the main the people who did not agree with the Duke of Gloucester were wise enough to keep their opinions to themselves, but William Collingborne thought to stretch poetic license to make it cover an attack on his majesty at a time when the murder of the two princes in the Tower ought to have taught prudence.

The king was under the sway of a beautiful and clever woman, Mrs. Lovell, who was thought to dictate much of his policy, which was hopelessly bad. Now, Collingborne had recourse to the fact that the wolf dog was called a "lovel," and so he penned the famous rime: "The rat, the cat and lovel, our dog, rule all England under the hog." As a result, England was decidedly "on the hog."

Did the rime escape the eagle eye of Gloucester? Well, if it did it was not overlooked by the lady. That was a year before the famous battle of Bosworth, when the Earl of Richmond came to the rescue of his suffering people. Richard had put down Buckingham's rebellion, and all the traitors had paid the price with their heads, so another head more or less did not matter. Collingborne was summoned into court, given a perfunctory trial and sent to the block. However, there is no evidence that he was punished for writing atrocious poetry.

GIVE ME A CHANCE TO Cure Your RHEUMATISM FREE

Mr. Delano took his own medicine. It cured his rheumatism after he had suffered tortures for thirty-six years. He spent thousands of dollars before he discovered the remedy that cured him, but I will give you the benefit of his experience for nothing.

If you suffer from rheumatism let me send you a package of this remedy absolutely free. Don't send any money. I want to give it to you. I want you to see for yourself what it will do. The picture shows how rheumatism twists and distorts the bones. Maybe you are suffering the same way. Don't. You don't need to. I have the remedy that I believe will cure you and it's yours for the asking. Write me to-day. F. H.
