CHAPTER XIV.

The months passed by, and spring came round again. The London season had been an unusually early one, and Lord Caledon, not feeling quite so well and strong as usual, had gone to Chantoo early in May.

John Bardon and Lady Avica had not been up to town, for the great desire of the millionaire's heart had been granted. An heir was born to his son, and the family which he had founded, and of which he was so inordinately proud, bade fair to stand high in the social scale. His delight and exaltation knew no bounds. It was generally believed that he considered Lady Avica the queen and ornament of her sex for having given an heir to Hyne Court. To show his satisfaction, he presented his daughter-in-law with a parure of diamonds, and his son with a superb service of gold plate, to be used for the first time at the christening; he also gave to Hyne Church a richly-carved marble font. A royal duke and duchess were invited to be sponsors; and the day of the christening of the infant heir was a proud day for Richard Bardon.

"I have founded a family, Julia," he said to his wife, "and years after I am dead and gone the name of Bardon will be a power in the land."
"I hope so, my dear. If little Dione prospers, all will go well." For amidst the superabundance of names that they had given the child they had introduced that of "Dione"—Basil High Dione Albert Francis Bardon; and they had elected to call him "Dione."

Lady Avica would not hear of going up to town. She hardly trusted the child out of her sight, and all the love that was in her nature was lavished on her babe. Her love for her child made her kinder and more gentle, and even seemed to soften her heart to beautiful women. In spite of their beauty they had not little Dione, and she would rather be Dione's mother than queen of England.

One morning at breakfast, John Bardon took up the "Times," and after reading awhile, he said to his wife—
"Here is news of a friend of mine. You remember Lieutenant Allan Osburn?"

"Yes," replied Lady Avica, whose thoughts were just then occupied with the weighty matter of an embroidered pelisse for the baby heir.
"He has been appointed captain, vice the Honorable Berkeley Vane, resigned, and I am heartily glad of it." Then the paper fell from his hands,

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to cure C, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.
You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families have loved it, and feel that they could hardly keep it without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.
Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.
It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the mucus, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. It's tried for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.
Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.
To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

and his face blanched as it had blanched before. Lady Avica, lost in contemplation of her baby in a new pelisse, did not notice his peculiar manner. The "Times" fell upon the floor, and he began, with a troubled face to walk up and down the room; his thoughts grew deeper and his fancies darker. One picture would not be put away. It was of a woman's face, pale with passion and scorn, under an almond tree.

"John," said Lady Avica, "baby is asleep, and I am afraid those heavy steps of yours will disturb him."
No answer came from her husband. The baby might wake for all he cared just then; vengeance was within his grasp, and he was weighing it against the happiness of two lives.

"I called him 'friend,'" he said to himself. "How can I be a traitor to him?"
Yet revenge would be sweet. How he would like to see the proud beauty humbled, to see her lips quiver, and tears fall from the eyes that had looked upon him with such scorn. He paced rapidly to and fro; Lady Avica's mild warnings were all unheeded; darker grew the frown upon his face, and more bitter his thoughts. Presently a hand was laid upon his arm and Lady Avica looked with a smile into his face.

"Listen," she said—
"Let every sound be dead—
The Emperor softly tread—
Baby sleeps;
Let Mozart's music stop,
Let Phidias' chisel drop—
Baby sleeps;
Demosthenes be dumb—
Our tyrant's hour has come—
Baby sleeps."

"I am obliged to quote poetry to you, John, to bring you to your senses. You seem to forget that we have a new day-nursery, and that it is the next room to this. You also forget my dear, that baby is asleep. All the affairs of Europe are as nothing compared with the fact that 'baby sleeps.'"
By this time John Bardon had quite recovered himself, and his face softened as it always did at the name of "baby."

"I am very sorry," he replied; "I hope I have not awakened the little one. I was thinking so deeply that I did not quite hear what you said."
"John," said Lady Avica, "will you tell me of what you were thinking? I have never seen an expression on your face before."

It was the first time that Lady Avica had shown deep interest in him; and John Bardon was flattered by it.
"Nothing very pleasant, my dear," he replied. "I was thinking of a story that I heard some time since."
"A story?" she repeated. "Tell it to me, John. I am going to take my work under the cedar, and sit in the shade there. I am about to make some lace for baby; and such lace—finer than a spider's web! You shall see it. Bring your cigar, and you can tell me your thoughts and your story there."

John Bardon did as he was told. He carried her sunshade and her work-basket, arranged a comfortable seat for her, and then lit his cigar; but the words did not flow so readily, as he had expected they would.
She waited for some minutes in silence, and then, in a soft, gentle voice, she asked—
"What was the story, John?"

But he seemed unwilling to speak; his lips grew hot and stiff, and in fancy he saw a woman's lovely face with a ripple of scorn on it, while he thought he heard a woman's sweet voice with a ring of passionate pride in it.

"It is the same old story that is ever being told—only a love story; but I heard it, Avica, and I was thinking of it."
"Let me hear it," she said quietly.
And again he thought he saw the fair, scornful face.

"It was of a man humbly born but rich; and he fell in love with a beautiful proud lady—an earl's daughter. He—so I have heard—worshipped her and loved her with the passionate love of a man's whole heart. She told him that she was interested in his career; and he was foolish enough to think that the words meant more than they really did, and he lived for a time in vain empty hopes. She was kind to him, gave him advice, and told him he could distinguish himself. He almost lost his senses over her."

He stopped abruptly, for it seemed to him that the wind quietly stirring the cedar branches sung over again the sad refrain—

"The wind that comes from over the mountain
Will madden me."
"Well," said Lady Avica, kindly, "how did it end, John?"

"Just as you may imagine. One beautiful summer evening he told her, without warning, how he loved her, and what a love like hers might do for him; and she—
"And she?" repeated Lady Avica, finding that he was silent.

"She treated him with the most cruel scorn, told him that his love was an insult, and dismissed him contemptuously. What do you think of a woman like that, Avica?"

Lady Avica was pale and agitated. "I think ill of her," she replied. "The love of an honest man can never insult the woman who is the object of it. The girl who said so had but little sense."

"I am glad to hear you say that, Well, Avica, he swore to be revenged. He did not wish to hurt or slander her; but he wanted to make her feel the same pain and anguish that he had felt; and—in after years—the opportunity came to him when he could make her suffer. What I was thinking of was this—was he right, when the opportunity came, to avenge himself of it, or should he have let her alone?"

Lady Avica's face grew paler and sterner.
"I think that, if he had sworn vengeance, he should take it. She should have been punished if she made a good man suffer."

The hands that held the white face trembled a little as she spoke. He was silent for some time.

"Avica," said John Bardon, at last. "I think I shall invite Captain Osburn down for a few weeks; he has leave of absence, I know. Would you like him to come?"
"Certainly; but we must ask some nice people to meet him. He would not enjoy himself with us alone. All my time is taken up with baby; and you have so many claims on yours."

"Yes, we will have a party to meet him, and make things pleasant. There will be plenty of gaiety in the neighborhood this summer."

"You are thinking," said the wife, in a quiet tone, "that he will in all probability be invited to Chantoo for the summer fetes."
"Yes," replied John Bardon, in even a quieter tone; "Lord Caledon is sure to take a fancy to him, and Lady Iris will certainly like him."

A fine summer morning, and a warm sun shining on the green lanes round King's Forest—lovely green lanes, with tall hedge-rows on either side; here and there pink and white may, and sweet honeysuckle in long trailing sprays; green banks covered with wild-flowers, and tall trees meeting overhead and forming a cool, pleasant shade.

Liner's Blue Riband.
BRITAIN'S BIG SHIPS ARE THE SWIFTEST.

To hold and keep the record of the fastest voyages from America to England during some fifteen years is a thing to be proud of. The Cunarder, Mauretania, has done it, but not without a struggle.

But it is good to know that the record is Britain's, and has been for well nigh seventy years, with the exception of a seven-years' lapse.

From the middle of last century the record of the Atlantic has been a jealously guarded British possession. It was held successfully by such vessels as the Scotia, a Cunard paddle-steamer; the Britannic, the White Star racer of '70; the twenty-knotters, Majestic I and Teutonic in '89, and in '93 by the Campania and Laconia.

Both these last ships developed speeds of over 22 knots. They were the last word in speed; but to maintain this the owners ran up terrific bills.

Germany Gets Envious.
For every twenty-four hours' steaming Laconia burned 500 tons of coal. She had a prow like a knife, but when she met a heavy sea she drenched everything from stem to stern. For four years Laconia was the quickest vessel ever to sail the Atlantic.

Then foreign competition began. It came from Germany. For long she had looked anxiously on our fast liners.

In 1897 two German boats appeared on the Atlantic route—Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse for the Norddeutscher Lloyd Co., and Deutschland for the Hamburg-American Line. For seven years nothing could touch these vessels for speed.

But then their owners were subsidised by the German Government. Not till our Government realised how useful such fast boats would be in time of war did they subsidise our big shipping companies.

Then came the Lusitania and Mauretania from Clydebank and Tyne-side. Both did over 25 knots on trials. The blue riband was ours again.

Where the "Course" is Stagnated.
Mauretania held, and holds, the record. Before the war she averaged 26 knots for a passage. On a recent voyage from New York to Southampton she averaged 25.26 knots—doing the journey in 5 days 8 hours and 5 minutes.

A new comer is Majestic II, an ex-German liner of 56,000 tons, also driven by oil. In trials she did 25 knots, and her owners predicted that the record would go to her. As a matter of actual fact, Majestic II. touched 27 knots for a short time on her maiden voyage, but failed to equal Mauretania's records.

For the purpose of establishing a record a liner's log—the speedometer of the sea—is set at Ambrose Channel, 24 miles out of New York, and is taken up at Daunt's Rock, west of Queens-town. Between these points ships are driven "all out." Once past these spots their captains are not particularly particular.

It is doubtful whether this record will ever be equalled, since 20-knot boats are now the usual thing with our large shipping companies.

The Marriage of Priests.
MADE EASIER IN RUSSIA.

MOSCOW—Questions relating to the right of marriage of the clergy have been thrashed out at the congress of the "new living church," which aims to succeed the old orthodox church of Russia. The conclusion was reached by the "young clergy," as they call themselves, that virtually all restrictions of wedlock be removed.

After devoting several days to discussing matters of matrimony it was decided to permit married priests to become archbishops; to allow priests to marry a second time and retain the same dignity as before; to permit monks to marry after they have renounced their vows and without losing their rank of honor, and to permit priests to marry widows. It was also decided not to consider as an obstacle to marriages the fourth degree of relationship.

Requests to the Soviet government providing for the transfer of all the treasures of the churches and monasteries of the old regime, were framed as part of the programme gradually to take over the affairs of the old-orthodox church.

The new living church desires the establishment of a single church treasury, and in this connection it has made plans for handling all the sums collected in the various churches throughout Russia, the government having been asked to make it possible for the new element to take over administration of church affairs. This includes a tax to be collected from the worshippers, revenues from the cemeteries, and the various other sources from which money is derived.

MOTHER!
Clean Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Even a sick child loves the taste of "California Fig Syrup." Its little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, or has colic, a teaspoonful will fail to open the bowels. In a few minutes you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works out the constipation poison, sour bile, and waste of the tender, little bowels and gives a well, playful child again.
"Millions of mothers keep 'California Fig Syrup' handy. They know a spoonful to-day saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine 'California Fig Syrup' which directions for babies and children all ages printed on bottle. Most You must say 'California' or you get an imitation fig syrup."

Former Emperor William Enjoins From His Seclusion.

DOORN, HOLLAND, BY A.P.—The dismissal of the Prussian King Von Gothaard, former Emperor William's Court Marshal, from the household here, William has begun lead a much freer existence, and no longer appears to fear the gaze of the public. Count Von Gothaard, a strong advocate of the strict seclusion, but now that he is no longer in office the former emperor does not hesitate to work in his garden full view of passers-by. He clips trim trees within a few feet of the footpath which encircles the grounds, and with only a wire between him and the public he talks incessantly on forestry and the care of trees. The former war hero is having the dense woods which surround the park thinned out, and himself taking an active part in the work. He looks cheerful and happy.

The Mighty Fallen.
SMALL COMMANDS NOW THE LEAD OF GERMAN MARINERS.

PETROGRAD, BY A.P.—The port of Petrograd, principally frequented by small-German steamers, is abuzz with the news of the confirmation of Germany's blockade of the Allies. The German merchant marine, once upon the bridge of Atlantic liners carrying thousands of passengers, these officers are now commanding, or standing watches on tiny tubs that skirt the shores of the Baltic. From over 50,000 tons to less than 1,000 tons has, for example, been the change in the command held by William Witte, once captain of the "Imperator." He recently brought 350 ton Karlsh from Cologne to Petrograd.

Mudania Agreement Signed By Allies and Turks.

Kemalists Secure Most of Their Demands — French Influence Dominated Convention — Bluenose Will Defend International Fishermen's Trophy.

MUDANIA AGREEMENT SIGNED.
LONDON, Oct. 10. — After numerous delays and interruptions the work of the Mudania conference reached a concluding stage yesterday with the presentation of the Mudania agreement. The agreement, which is accepted by all the Allies, which, as Lt. General Harrington described it, would give to the Turks their aims for the next forty-five days. The Convention, consisting of fourteen clauses, drawn on liberal lines, showing traces of French influence on the side of the Kemalists. Under the agreement the Eastern Mediterranean will be evacuated within fifteen days, and the transfer to the Turks in an adjacent month. The Turkish civil administration will follow closely on the heels of the departing Greeks, the entire transfer being made under the supervision of the Allied Missions and Allied forces provisionally occupying Thrace not exceeding six battalions. The number of Turkish gendarmes in the Province during the interval is left undefined and the discretion of the Kemalists, subject to Allied approval. The Turkish side guarantee not to place an army in Thrace until peace is ratified, while a new neutral zone will be delimited by a fixed commission. Ismet Pasha expressed the hope that the Government would approve the agreement and promised an answer by the end of this evening. As the Government has instructed its agents to sign the Convention, if the Turks sign, there appears good prospects of a peaceful settlement, ending the general persecution of the Armenians in the Convention. Ismet Pasha declared that Great Britain's last word and reminded the Turks of the serious danger of making a conflict with British troops. To the Associated Press correspondent General Harrington explained the Mudania Convention has been signed, according to semi-official advice here tonight.

ARMISTICE SIGNED.
MUDANIA, Oct. 10. — The Armistice Convention was signed here tonight at eleven o'clock. The representatives of all powers concerned affixed their signatures.

TURKS DISAPPOINTED.
MUDANIA, Oct. 10. — The Turkish Delegates were somewhat dismayed and disappointed over the turn of events of the past two days. The new attitude taken by France after the Paris Convention puzzled them and they were amazed that French friendship on which they had counted as their main prop in the negotiations did not yield the results expected. At the session on Monday night when Ismet Pasha expressed dissatisfaction at the terms the Allies offered, he said to General Harrington, "but your new Armistice Convention is in contradiction to the assurances given me by General Charpy. The Convention instead of paving the way for peace, only makes matters worse."

AN ELECTION BEFORE CHRISTMAS.
LONDON, Oct. 10. — It is as certain as it can be that there will be a general election before Christmas, announced the political correspondent of Lloyd George's organ, the Daily Chronicle, following a meeting of the Cabinet at which the question discussed was the meeting of Parliament in November.

LEOYD GEORGE WILL FIGHT.
LONDON, Oct. 10. — Premier Lloyd George has clearly no intention of resigning office at the orders of his numerous newspaper critics. On the contrary he is determined to fight them, and at Manchester on Saturday is expected to make a vigorous reply to his critics and defend the Near East policy. Should there be a new crisis in the Near East it may of course entail a change in his plans.

HORNE POSTPONES TRIP.
LONDON, Oct. 10. — Sir Robert Stevenson Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has indefinitely postponed his debt refunding mission to the United States, according to the Daily Express. The action is in consequence of the political situation in England.

BLUENOSE WILL COMPETE.
HALIFAX, Oct. 10. — The Lunenburg fishing schooner, Bluenose, last year's International Champion, will represent Canada in the International Races off Gloucester on Oct. 21 and 22. It was announced following a meeting here this evening of the Nova Scotia Race Committee and the Captains of the vessels entered in the Nova Scotia Championship series.

On agreement of the Captains of the four entries it was decided to award the prizes on the standing of the vessels in the first race on Saturday—first, Bluenose; second, Canada; third, Mahaska; fourth, Margaret K. MARTIAL LAW IN ATHENS.
ATHENS, Oct. 10. — Martial law was proclaimed in Athens tonight. This action was taken to prevent the hot-heads in the army from opposing the Government's decision in accepting the loss of Eastern Thrace.

RACE AGAIN CALLED OFF.
HALIFAX, Oct. 10. — To-day's race was called off at two o'clock when it was obvious that the boats could not cover the course in the time limit. The Canada was leading, Bluenose second, Mahaska third, and Sisti last. The Bluenose was forced to make a fresh start after beating the gun across the line.

UNKNOWN STEAMER SINKS.
NORTH SYDNEY, Oct. 10. — A two masted steamer with funnel amidships, apparently a coal boat heading into the Gulf of St. Lawrence sank two miles off the shore at Bay St. Lawrence during heavy weather on Thursday afternoon. The Dominion Coal Company, and the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company, said all their boats were accounted for.

HIERARCHY PRONOUNCES AGAINST REBELLION.
DUBLIN, Oct. 10. — A definite pronouncement against the anti-Treaty rebellion was made to-day by the Irish Hierarchy and it is expected to have an important influence on the situation. The Hierarchy issued a pastoral letter condemning in the strongest terms the guerrilla warfare against the Free State Government, declaring "the killing of National soldiers is murder before God," and denouncing robberies and destruction to roads and railways. The letter enjoins the persons guilty of such crimes shall not be given absolution or admitted to Communion if they persist.

Lawyer Withdraws Action.
AMICABLE SETTLEMENT IN GIBBS-O'NEILL CASE.
The action taken by Hon. M. P. Gibbs against William J. O'Neill for assault has been settled out of Court and the accused has undertaken to refrain from causing any annoyance to Mr. Gibbs in the future.

Great interest was taken in the action as the principals are so well known in the community, and a very large number of people were present in the Police Court yesterday afternoon when Mr. H. A. Winter, for plaintiff, stated that the charge would not be pressed. Mr. C. J. Fox, representing the defendant, said his client had been aggrieved by financial troubles and had acted without getting legal advice. He would not give any further annoyance to Mr. Gibbs.

Steel "Heals" Itself.

Very remarkable indeed is a machine set up in France for making repairs to airplanes. The machine is said to be the only one of its kind, and is due to the ingenuity of Gustave Babin. It may be described as a device for causing "wounded steel" to "heal" itself in something like the way wounded flesh heals.

The device is almost automatic, is operated by electricity and is based upon the galvanic principle. It needs only one or two men to watch it, they being guided by a chart, showing in many colors the piece of metal to be repaired, the exact repairs necessary, the composition of the galvanic bath, the current needed, the diameter of the conducting wires and the time of immersion. All this is worked out mathematically to the minutest fraction.

The machine is employed to restore worn or broken parts of delicate motors; most of which are difficult to replace. When an American observer saw it, there were lying on a table beside it parts it had just repaired that would have cost $6000 and much time to replace. In the week previous it had turned out 300 pieces, all of great importance, for nothing less is confided to it.—Washington Star.

Well, here we had the making of a tragedy. The ship, quivering, lunged forward. The captain, Kean, commanded cap'n Kean. The ship, quivering, lunged forward. The captain, Kean, commanded cap'n Kean. The ship, quivering, lunged forward. The captain, Kean, commanded cap'n Kean.

death. One less or one more throw means nothing to them, absolutely nothing. Men of iron? Steel!

In all my knockings up and down this tough old world I never have found a race in any way to compare, for fearlessness, endurance, cheerfulness, patience under severe punishment, gluttony for work, and general all-around he-banhood, with this superb breed. The heroism of the Iceland fishermen, bepraised by Pierre Loti, isn't it for a moment with that of the Newfoundlanders. Bronzed with gale and ice glare, laughing, hearty, bold as lions, simple as children, lovably unsophisticated, making free with the hungry and waiting north, they stand as a type unique and all but indescribable.

They are a combination of sailors, hunters, coal heavers, blasters, explorers, gymnasts, martyrs, and heroes. Their feats of skill and strength would fill volumes; their daring and adventures would furnish forth material for a score of novels. Amphibious, sure-footed, agile, using their gait like a bird and in most amazing ways, they find nothing too perilous to undertake, nothing too laborious to complete. The skin of their teeth is for them a wide margin of safety. Their lives are one long miracle.

These supernoments of the sea, sprung from the loins of Scotland, Ireland, England, in the long ago, and have developed a race all their own. Summers they wear the iron coats of Labrador, codfishing. Winters how they live, god knows. Dr. Greenhall can partly tell you. Spring, after spring—and March in Newfoundland is some spring!—from the northern bays and outposts they troop to battle with ice and blizzard, fire and frost and in return get only a scant handful of dollars, sometimes none at all.

SIGNING ON.

Many of them walk forty, fifty miles over snow-drifted headlands and frozen bays, then come along to St. John's in bare, half-warmed cars, camping out with incredible hardships such as would kill us softer folk. They sign on, take their crop, or outfit—nine dollars worth of anything they like for which twelve dollars are later deducted from their share—go aboard the unutterably dismal, dirty ships; five long weeks in hold or dungeon; labor in fearful cold and buck withering storms. All this time they never undress, but just tumble into their punks, sometimes boots and all. I know, from personal experience, what that means; and I have also learned that the highest ethics, is really after all only a matter of geography. While brown men live easily and idly in fruitful tropics these pure white men of our own race—absolutely splendid Nordic stock—"labor and muck for a try at luck"; then back home they go to their barren tilts and settlements. Coal-blackened, greasy, soaked, blood-crusted, they are content if they have a little oiler to jiggle in their pockets, a few seal flippers on a cord or a barrel of frozen carcasses to carry with them. And, by the way, millions of pounds of excellent meat are every year left on the ice. Here's a tip for some enterprising capitalist.

"When you're got in a trip of fat you earn your money, sir," one sealer confided to me; but this is about as near any complaint as they come. "It's a bit airsome" is all they'll admit about terrific tempests. Their whole lives are hardships. They know nothing else, expect nothing else; possibly would sicken and die with anything else. Vikings of the North, indeed.

The annual swillin'-racket is the Northern Newfoundlanders' one big thrill. It's his huge blow-out, his great slaughter; the full and free laissez-faire of the killing lust that lurks in all of us. Money isn't the motive. It's the kill itself that lures. To miss your spring is a supreme misfortune. These northern-bay men beg and scheme for berths, are grateful for what to us would be a horrid nightmare of misery, talk about the last racket and plan for the next one all year long. The captains are just as eager for it as the men. Cap'n Kean, over seventy, hasn't missed a spring for fifty years. In the midst of ice jams and gales he often shouts, "Who wouldn't sell their farm and go to sea?"

Cap'n Bishop, with whom I returned, stared at me with perfect incomprehension when I asked him, "Well, cap'n, I suppose you're glad to be going home?" The fact is, that question was almost an insult. My stock with Cap'n Bishop fell low after that remark.

A NEWFOUNDLANDER'S HEAVEN.

Even the Newfoundland boys yearn for the kill and for a sight of the wonders and glories of St. John's—their only contact with real streets and shops, their only chance to click up and down real sidewalks in spiked skin boots and see the wonders of a big city. St. John's, I believe, has between thirty and forty thousand people. Every ship carries stowaways, half-died wretches who work for nothing at all but a little gathern'-collection—from the men, for the trip and the rough fare of salt junk, bread, hardtack, fish and brews, beans and tea; the ice made from the melted ice, yellow and brackish in rusty tanks. Such fare, to many, constitutes real luxury. A ship without a stowaway is flunked, or hoodooed, from the very start—one of the many superstitions that govern sealers. One and all share Cap'n Kean's famous dictum: "G'f me a good ship, a good crew and a good patch of seals, and I won't ask for any better heaven!"

At midnight black as the wintry Pole, snow-swept and terrible, you'll hear the sealers singing Johnny Boker and other chanteys as they toil by torch fares. You'll see them happily laughing and skylarking when we would shrink and shiver and curse the North I, bundled in masses of heavy clothing, coats, furs, often used to see them going about the decks in shirt sleeves, open-throated, bare-headed. How do they stand it? No task out for them is too severe, no peril too deadly to hold them back. No men of any breed work like these strange men; none are so insensible to pain, so swift to recuperate, so magnificent in endurance.

And right here let me say that one of these fine days some fight promoter is going to wake up to the fact that in Newfoundland is lying dormant a world-beating pugilist. Why should a highly organized, Frenchman who can be hurt and knocked out, try for the belt? Your Newfoundlanders may not have science, but he's unhurt. He can stand anything anybody has to give, short of a sledge hammer or a gun, and walk right ahead. And he has the punch. If one of these men ever gets in a single blow—good night! I wish I had the money to buy that man a pure digression.

Just as they seem not to feel pain, they appear to have no imagination concerning perils. If a thing doesn't happen, why bother? At the beginning I got used to seeing men sit on powder cans and calmly smoke their pipes. Later I saw them fill other cans with loose powder, still smoking. That was a mere commonplace. They hands cartridges with magnificent familiarity. One "boy" dropped a bag of them and it went off; but as nobody happened to get shot what did it matter?

Speaking of powder, our lazaret with twelve casks of it lay directly under the red-hot stove in the cabin. The stovepipes went up between the narrow companion stair and the Marconi room, so that a fire would have cut off our exit and also our chance of sending wireless. This pipe was unprotected, about two inches from beams calcined by heat. One day I ventured to point out to Uncle Abalom that we had all the makings of a fine sea tragedy.

"Ain't never burned up nor busted yet," he assured me, scraping charred wood from behind the stovepipe. "Us his de pipe rid-hot too," he proudly added.

No; nobody can beat it. But a sealing steamer is no place for a nervous man.

Aboard the Eagle seal oil was leaking through into the engine room, trickling down a wooden bulkhead. One touch of fire and up the steamer would go. The men calmly told me about a ship catching fire that way; but they didn't mind the leaking oil. Why worry? The fact that so-and-so once floated ashore from a wreck on a coffin with a corpse inside it wasn't considered much of a stunt. Men often purposely fall into the sea, between loose ice, to get a swallow of rum. Cap'n Kean has stuck to the bridge, with his face frozen, while a white seal snow to that side to keep him from freezing more. Nothing was thought of a mast breaking off, with the scunner's barrel, and the scunner hanging, head down, in the barrel, aloft till rescued. The ships scot in around icebergs with a familiarity quite shocking to a "youngster"—that is, a man like myself. In the little hell hole back of the cabin I used to sit at the way the men would throw matches as a tobacco-sparks close to fuses and percussion caps. A ship going down in the ice is only a trivial incident.

I have seen men working with one hand, while the other was so cruelly lacerated that any American with such an injury would holler for a doctor and go to bed. Men hardly able to stand up will go on ice and haul tow. Men stab through to their feet with gaffs and go on working. They get seal fingers—that is, infections from tainted seal fat—and plug right along. They work even with pneumonia. And they rarely die. I heard of only one man who ever really died in the pack.

"Us led us down on de deck-house an' brung us to port," a sealer told me. He said it as if mentioning a side of beef. The only one man to die out of thousands is a married sealer. The sealers aren't hard-hearted; they simply don't feel. Now and again they show tender streaks.

"Dere was dat time," a master watch said, "a feller got mad at a whitecoat for not beln' big enough, an' ripped us up. Nodder un' brung an' abird, an' sewed us up wid needle an' cord. Whitecoat got well, too, an' us his un' fer a get!"

Among the sealers you have to stand on your own feet and take chances; and if you can't stand, then lie down in your bunk and keep still. No use saying anything. They don't. The most they'll complain of is: "I ain't bodily sick, sir, but I got a soro stummick."

Overworked Women.

Miss Dorothy Dix, in her new book, "My Joy-ride Round the World," says that her sympathy goes out to the Japanese president women. "They lead most laborious lives," she writes, "and have been so degraded by it that they look like stunted Shetland ponies. They are heavy-set, with enormous muscles and incredible strength. I saw a girl of sixteen walking along a road with a telephone pole on her shoulder.

"You may see the women drawing heavy weavers, working up to their knees in the slime of the rice fields, pulling on the oars of a boat, coaling ships, and always on their backs is strapped the inevitable baby, for to their never-ending toil in field and factory they add incessant maternity."

Japanese women have, however, one great advantage as compared with Chinese women. They can walk out with ease and comfort. Their Chinese sisters for the most part cannot walk at all—they can only hobble.

This is because of the hideous practice of foot-binding.

One Too Many

A very absent-minded professor, whose thoughts were usually in the clouds, was left in sole charge of his large family for one evening while his wife was out.

On her return she found him alone. "Was my dear little wife did get the children to bed without any trouble?"

"Yes, all except one red-headed little creature. He struggled and kicked the whole time, and I've had to look him in. He's quietened down now."

"Good gracious," exclaimed his horrified wife, "why, that's the little boy who lives next door!"

A Strange Story.

It will be remembered that not so very many days ago, the Advocate in its advocacy of the Humber Deal made some startling statements, the tenor of which were that a certain group of people in this Colony were deliberately, and with malice aforethought, engaged in a conspiracy to force Newfoundland into Confederation by the throwing down of the proposition which Mr. Coaker so valiantly opposed in 1915 and so gallantly champions in 1922. The kernel of the story was that by the open hostility shown toward this proposition, it was doomed to failure, and by its failure Newfoundland would be driven into the arms of her big sister across the Gulf, and thereby enwrapped in the embrace of Canada, whether she liked it or not. This old bogey of Confederation is always revived by fifth class politicians—the lewd fellows of the baser sort—who are never at a loss to bring forward any old catch cry that will suit their purpose, especially if it tends to divert attention from the main issue. The divagations of the Advocate in this respect are so well known, that they scarcely need controversion. Any mouthpiece of such a famous son of the soil as the President of the F.P.U. is declared to be who would go back on the strident declaration of its mentor that "the price of fish is what Coaker makes it" is not worthy of attention by the fishermen themselves on matters which affect and interest the toilers solely. Therefore the Confederation cry of the Advocate would really not be worth noticing, were it not for the fact that cognizance is taken of its frothy mouthings by reputable journals outside the boundaries of the island. In connection with the scare cry of Confederation, shouted by the Coaker organ the Toronto Globe administers a sane and dignified rebuke in the leader which we have much pleasure in appending.

"The St. John's, Newfoundland Evening Advocate publishes with a sensational display of type a story that certain Canadian interests have organized and lodged a strong protest with the Imperial government against financial concessions being granted for industrial development in Newfoundland. These interests, it is said, are now attempting to get a combination of English pulp and paper manufacturers to join them in the concession to Newfoundland. We cannot say what the "interests" are doing but the Advocate goes on to charge that there is a plot to force Newfoundland into Confederation. It declares that Confederates see the dawn of their lives dissolving in the dream of prosperity which opens upon Newfoundland through a new industry. Their idea is that "if Newfoundland is crushed financially, industrially, and economically she will have to go to Canada on her knees and plead for Confederation." But if Canada believed that Newfoundland can be muzzled in this way she is mistaken. Newfoundland will decide her own destiny without pressure from Canada, and the Canadian attitude might turn Newfoundland to the United States if outside help were needed.

This is an awful blast from our usually quiet neighbor and we can assure our St. John's contemporary that there is no occasion for it so far as Canada is concerned. We do not want to see Newfoundland on its knees to Canada; we do not want to crush Newfoundland financially, industrially or com-mercially. We want her to prosper and we are perfectly willing that she should decide her own destiny. In all friendliness we must also say that there is not only an utter absence of any desire to force Newfoundland to come in with us but there is no movement even to persuade her to come in. No invitation is being extended. That may sound rather inhospitable but it is true. If an offer came from Newfoundland it would be received in a courteous and friendly way, but at present the mood of this country is against any such addition to our responsibilities and political complications. We are friendly but our affection is of the brotherly rather than the more ardent kind. We shall certainly not woo the bride with a club in caveman style. With the industrial and other aspirations of the Island we sympathize, and we desire the freest commercial and human intercourse with her sturdy people. But we are too much occupied with our own affairs for an annexation of territory."

The Price of Fish.

FISHERMEN DETERMINED ON BETTER REMUNERATION. From messages received in the city during the past few days it is learned that the Northern Fishermen are alarmed at the poor prospects of disposing of their voyages at prices that are anywhere near profitable. The meeting held at Wesleyville early this week has been followed by others in various parts of Bonavista Bay, and it is apparent the fishermen are determined to hold back for better prices. Yesterday the following messages were received in the city:

"To Capt. A. Kean." Two mass meetings held. People greatly alarmed owing to recent conditions and outlook for coming winter owing to low price of fish. Starvation staring them in the face. Demanding everyone to hold back fish. Motor boats gone around Bay holding meetings demanding every shipper to hold his fish for satisfactory prices which all have agreed to do. Twenty deputations going to St. John's. WILLIAM WICKS, SAMUEL ROBERTS, FROM WESLEYVILLE. To Mr. Abraham Standford, C/o Winsor & Warfield. Joint meeting Saturday night, including Greenspond, Newtown, Valleyfield. Resolution passed sending Committee from every place to St. John's to get away fish to be shipped unless paid five dollars for Labrador and seven for shore. Advising all fishermen."

SPECIAL TO EVENING TELEGRAM. The following message, dated Oct. 10th, was received from Greenspond yesterday by the Evening Telegram: "Resolutions to co-operate with Wesleyville and other places re price of fish and reduction of taxes passed unanimously. Last night the Hall was packed. Determination stamped on countenance of everyone. Sending representatives to St. John's with power to fight to a finish anything or anyone found to be the actual cause of the Country's present condition. E. J. WORNELL."

HIS DIARY. Oct. 10.—Up betimes and to Water Street, where meeting Povy, he tells me of the recent saying of the wits, which is the "currant" price of fish, and the reason of it is that a merchant did but yesterday barter a cargo of fish for one of currants. Anon to the Green Lantern where I lunch with the Rotary Club, and meeting Rev. Dr. Power, that is the Presbyterian Pastor, he tells me how he did often desire to meet me, and is indeed glad to make my acquaintance. A mighty pleasant man, and as I did discover him to be later, a most excellent speaker. Sitting down to table, I did have discourse with Mr. Hickman, Dr. Mitchell and Mr. Macpherson of the country's system of Education, and all very worth with it. A most strange thing is that all the members did have in their coats, great discs of celluloid, and on these, in glowing letters, their first names. This, I learn, is that none may break the rule of the Club which makes to pay a fine each member who fails to call a fellow member by his first name. The news of the war is bright and the Conference at Madania like to come to an amicable settlement. The weather mild but much mist.

MASONS OPEN SEASON. The first of the Masonic auction forty-five tournaments for the season was played last night. Nearly 50 members of the club took part. The prizes were tied for by Messrs. B. Peel and C. Miller, but the former won out in the play-off. Mr. J. Lindberg won the "boobie" prize. These tournaments will be held every Tuesday during the fall and winter. Our Book Review.

THE STUDIO. The "Studio," published at 44 Lancaster Square, London, since its first issue 30 years ago, has attained a foremost place amongst art magazine issues. In addition to its regular 12 monthly parts, special numbers are published which are much sought by art lovers. Some 56 of these special numbers have been published, the latest being the 1922 Autumn Number, which is a treatise on Landscape painting in water color by David Cox. In an introduction to the work by A. L. Baldry, he says David Cox is justly counted amongst the great British Masters, and therefore his Treatise on Landscape painting and effect, as contained in the volume under review, deserves as ready an acceptance to-day as it received when first published more than a century ago. David Cox was born in 1825, and, at the age of thirty, was elected a member of the English Society of Painters in water colours. The special Autumn number affords a splendid opportunity of studying the methods of this famous artist. The volume is replete with examples in outline, sepias and colours, in addition to the treatise. In all there are 43 plates, 17 of which are in colours, with explanatory notes. "The Studio" special number is sold at 7/6 in wrappers and may be obtained at the local bookstores.

THE BLACK GANG. Sapper's new novel, "The Black Gang," a copy of which I have received from Dicks and Company, is a melodrama of the type which was popular a decade ago, but which seems to be recovering from its temporary oblivion. It is as exciting as it is improbable, but modern taste in literature is such, that the latter quality, if it may be so termed, will not detract from the book's popularity. "Bull Dog Drummond" is again the hero and in this story, is the leader of the Black Gang which he has formed to suppress Bolshevik movements in England. The activities of the gang are similar to those which Baroness Orczy immortalized in her Scarlet Pimpernel stories. In a tale of this sort, literary merit is a side issue, and while it is not so good as the stories which gained Sapper his reputation during the war, it is very readable, and after all what more can one ask.

Father Matthew Anniversary.

T.A. SOCIETY CELEBRATES EVENT. Last evening the members of the Total Abstinence Society celebrated the Father Matthew anniversary in a manner befitting the occasion. The first part of the celebration took the form of a concert, which was held in the theatre of the hall. Occupying seats of prominence on the stage were the officers of the Society and Auxiliary, the Guardians and officers of the Juvenile Branch. Rev. Fr. Piggy, spiritual director of the Society, opened the entertainment with an address on the life and labors of the great Apostle of Temperance, Rev. Theobald Matthew. The address was a gem and was beautifully delivered, giving a deep insight into the character and work of the splendid man who was its subject. At the conclusion of Father Piggy's remarks a vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. George J. Coughlan, Secretary of the Society, which, on being heartily seconded by Mr. Jas. J. Spratt, Chairman, was tendered the reverend gentleman with spontaneous acclamation. Following the panegyric the concert began, Miss Ida Howlett rendering the opening number. She was obliged to respond to several encores. Other vocal numbers were given by Messrs. James J. Spratt, Thos. Dohoney, W. Mylor and R. J. Power. The Misses Grace executed a pretty dance which won much applause. Misses Harris and Garland were accompanists during the evening, and performed their duties in a very pleasing manner. At the conclusion of the concert the gathering repaired to the armoury where a dance was held to music being furnished by Bennett's Orchestra. An interval was taken about 11.30 when a delicious and appetising supper prepared by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Society was served. Dancing was then resumed and continued to an early hour this morning. During the evening a display of fireworks was given by Mr. P. Halley. The Committee in charge of the celebrations are to be complimented on the manner in which the affair was carried out, and in this a special word of praise is due to Mr. James Clancy who was responsible for the decorations.

RUMOR THAT GOVERNMENT WILL PURCHASE LABRADOR FISH. The delegations at Wesleyville who are anxious to get to St. John's have wired here asking to have S. S. Malakoff, which is plying on the bay route, diverted to here. The Malakoff was at Port Union yesterday but it is not known if the Reid Co., who are operating the ship, will comply with the request. There is a rumor to the effect that the Government is making arrangements to store the Labrador catch for the fishermen and paying a small advance pending settlement of the present dispute.

Repairing Leaky Main. LEAD JOINTS BLOWN OUT. During the past week the Council's employees have been engaged near the Long Pond repairing leaks in the main which supplies the higher levels. Four leaks have been located within a distance of 200 yards. They were caused by the pressure of water blowing out the lead with which the joints were caulked. This main was laid a few years ago, and the joints where the leaks occur are at the lowest point of the service, and consequently where the heaviest pressure comes. The job is very difficult and the men employed have to work in water up to their knees, as it would be a big fire hazard to shut off the supply whilst repairs are proceeding.

The Turks and some of Our Problems

The "sick man of Europe" is not so sick as some of us imagined he was. For a quick come back the Turk is on most of Europe. It has been so. But at the same time we can scarcely imagine the unrepentant Moslem to be a serious menace to Britain unless the other Mohammedan races, and there are more Mohammedans than Christians in the British Empire, take a hand. "Holy wars" are a thing to be dreaded, but the Prophet for a good many years with what might be termed a good deal of success, and this is particularly true of the Turk.

As a fighter the Turk is the best of the bolings in and about the Balkans. He has won the great war in consequence of those who fought under the Crescent to be square, honest, foemen, with no little sense of humor. Major General Sir Charles Townsend, hero of a hundred fights against Islam in Egypt, India and Arabia, and written apparently a great admirer of both the Turkish and their military leader Mustafa Kemal Pasha, has in a sensational interview published in the London "Times" given the warning that unless Britain gets out of Constantinople and stays out, all her Moslem subjects will start to war against her, that is to say India, Egypt and the mandated countries from Jaffa to Bagdad. In the opinion of the General the occupation of Constantinople is the biggest political blunder ever made. That it was one thing to have your naval guns trained on the Sultan's palace, but quite another thing to occupy the capital city.

So far back as Turkish history goes it has always been a case of "when the devil was ill the devil a saint would be, but when the devil was well, a devil a saint was he." While it is in the seventh century that the Turks emerged from goodness knows where in Asia. It was not until 1360 that they made their first serious assault upon the already tottering Byzantine empire, to be followed nearly a hundred years later by the fall of Constantinople. The sword in hand, and the hoisting of the Crescent upon the dome of St. Sophia at Constantinople. From that day to this the Turk has been a European problem. Under Mohammed, the victor at Constantinople, the Turks penetrated Italy, while by the time Soliman the Magnificent was through with his campaigns early in the sixteenth century the Turkish domain spread to Germany, Hungary and into the gates of Vienna. However, this was the high tide of Turkish domination in Europe, for after the death of Soliman the last of the great soldier Sultans to leave the Empire greater than he found it, the ebb began again toward southern Europe.

From that day to this it has been one treaty and one peace after another. The Turk more often than not being the bettering ram between two or more great powers, and very often between several small ones. So far back as history tells us the Government administration of Turkey has been corrupt. At least this is true of later centuries. The Turk has no literature to speak of, and what he has is frankly copied from the Persians. Of art in its real sense he knows nothing. The beauties of Constantinople such as St. Sophia are among the memories of the conquered. But they are Bonnie fighters, and ever have been.

As this is being written the cables tell us that an agreement has been reached whereby Turkey will be re-established in Europe on practically the lines held previous to the great war, that is to say the Allies, England, France and Italy, have agreed to hand over to Turkish domination Anatolia and Thrace, including the ancient capital Adrianople. The Greek dream of hegemony is over, as are the lines what Venizelos gained for her at the Peace Conference. Under the circumstances we will shed few tears in respect to the defeat of the Greeks, and if the waterways between Europe and Asia are freed from Turkish domination, as it planned, then Europe may once more settle down to the real business of curing her war scars.—Saturday Night, Toronto.

Railroad Restaurants in Russia

OFFER FOOD IN PLENTY. IVER, Russia.—The old time scenes at American railway junctions, when the brakemen came through the train shouting: "Blank! 20 minutes stop for supper," are being duplicated in Russia as the normal conditions of travel are being restored and railway station restaurants, foodies and closed for four years, are opening again. Passengers during the revolution had nothing to eat on long journeys except what they brought with them. But now practically every station restaurant offers almost a pre-war bill of fare. As the trains pull in a scramble for food ensues that would rival an American quick lunch counter during the rush hours. Some of the more important through trains have dining cars, but they are patronized only by first-class passengers, and even many of these enjoy the rush at the station restaurants more than the decorum of the wagon-restaurants.

Auction Bridge.

SUPREME TEST OF A BAD HAND. Luck at auction bridge is an uncertainty if fascinating. Her vagaries are inexhaustible. Two skilled players may sit down against two rabbits and lose rubber after rubber. They hold no cards; their hands will not fit, fustices will go wrong; all the opposing trumps will be in one hand.

No one will deny that auction bridge is a game of skill, but the element of luck is much heavier than is generally supposed. It has been laid down by some statistical fiend that the percentage of winning chances of a good bridge player as against the average player are very low—something like 5 per cent. Statistics lie no more anywhere than at cards—as all poker players know—but in this, experience seems to agree. The unlucky player may console himself with the reflection that in the long run things will even themselves, although mathematically there is no reason why he should expect a good hand because he has already held fifty bad ones.

The supreme test of a bridge player is in the call to play of bad hands. He bears in mind the saying of the old Persian philosopher: "A wise man sometimes does not know when to begin, but a fool never knows when to stop." He will cut his losses. With the hand of the jinx on his collar he will not hurt himself by useless struggles. He will go quietly, ever alert for an opportunity of escape.

A freak distribution of the cards is a frequent cause of disaster. But if the calling is sound and closely watched, an astute player will often escape small danger. It is he who is hypnotized solely by his own cards to forget partner and opponents, who most often falls into this trouble. More often irretrievable downfall or smashing victory depends on the location of one card. If it is in the wrong place there is no hope of salvation unless an opponent be mad enough to revoke.

Talking of revokes there is something to be said in favour of the bitter endians—those people who will have a hand played out even after it is laid on the table. The odds against a player—even a good player—making a mistake in such circumstances are not so heavy as they are imagined. At all events there is nothing but time lost in having the game played out. I have seen one of the best players I know with only two cards left in his hand and a grand slam seemingly inevitable, revoke in a fit of Carelessness—Luck—yes, but if the game had been conceded it could not have happened.

Of course, without the element of luck, exasperating though it can be at times, bridge would no longer be a game; it would be a science like chess. Nevertheless, the person who tries to play it as a game of luck pure and simple is taking a ticket straight for perdition. He will feel himself very clever when he has bid no trumps on a couple of kings and finds his partner with a varied array of good cards. He will flatter himself when some mad gambling lead comes off, but he will find it expensive. Bridge as a gamble may be amusing; it is not profitable.

Take advantage of luck when it comes your way by all means, but if you want to win more rubbers than you lose, cultivate the proper way to call and play your cards. And, incidentally, if you play often with the same people, try to get a line on their card psychology. To have an idea of your opponents', or your partner's, possessions of thought and habits at the table will serve you in countless ways.

Mrs. Harding's Humanity.

When President Harding appealed for the life of a devoted dog condemned to death under a disgraceful Pennsylvania law which prevents an alien from owning one, he acknowledged that he was acting as Mrs. Harding's suggestion. His kindly interference in behalf of a faithful dog commanded the widest approbation. Another evidence or expression of the true-born humanity of Mrs. Harding was made manifest with the presentation of her check for $100 to "Clover," the fifty-one-year-old horse of Catawissa, Pa., an account of whom was published in the September Our Dumb Animals. In her letter to "Clover's" owner, the Rev. Dr. Myers, she expressed herself deeply moved by the sense of justice and gratitude and faithfulness which has given you a long life of willing service.

"It seems a strange ingratitude," the letter continues, "that demands such a sacrifice because your failure to attain wealth has not made a cruel and inconsiderate master of you." "For example's sake I hope Clover will long continue to be the oldest horse in the world, and that somehow there will grow an impression that the loving God never intended either dumb friends or self-sacrificing men to be consigned to mother earth, merely because the most and best of their strength has been exhausted in human service.—Our Dumb Animals.

An Arab Editor.

One afternoon we set out to take tea with an Arab Sheriff. It seemed that not only was this man a direct descendant of the Prophet, and thus of great religious prestige and influence among his own people, but he was also an exceedingly shrewd manipulator of politics. In the early days, after the establishment of Anglo-Egyptian control over the Sudan, he had shown evidences of being a potential enemy. But some one had conceived the brilliant idea of making him editor of a subsidized Arabic newspaper, and the Sheriff had responded with surprising elasticity to the new conditions.

He had made one memorable journey to London to take part in the great procession held in honor of Armistice Day, and he was a man of practical knowledge. He understood, he said, that I was a fellow-editor, and that the Journal I represented concerned itself exclusively with the East. It had occurred to him that it would be a good thing if we should exchange publications. Each of us might then reprint excerpts from the other's paper. I assured him it would give me the greatest pleasure in the world to arrange for such an exchange, but since he did not know any more English than I, or the rest of the staff of Asia, knew of Arabic, I feared the exchange would be unfortunately little mutual benefit. Ah, the Sheriff replied triumphantly, he had a son! And this son was studying English, so that, as soon as he became a little more proficient, he could edit an English section which his father planned to add to the paper. The son was now in the third grade. He would have him called in, so that I might talk with him a little and see how well he already spoke the English tongue. As for Asia, surely in the great and enlightened country of the United States, it would not be difficult to find some one who could translate Arabic for us! But there was one other point to be taken into consideration, I put forward tentatively. My paper was a monthly with only twelve copies in the whole year, whereas his was a daily. As I was about to point out the difficulty of using in Asia many clippings dealing with the Sudan, my fellow-editor interrupted me to assure me that, in spite of the apparent discrepancy in value of our respective journals, he was really asking me for no money whatever. He might suggest, however, that we be good enough to advertise his paper and push its sale as much as possible in America.—From "An African Interlude."

Raffles in Real Life.

INTERNATIONAL CRIMINALS DIRECTED BY ABLE CHIEF IN LONDON. LONDON.—The police are seeking in this city the head of what is said to be a remarkable group of international criminals. A veritable "Napoleon of Crime" is believed to have established his headquarters here. He is alleged to command a well organized band of international crooks, every one of whom is a past master of nefarious craftsmanship known in the underworld. The include men of education, scientific attainments, and social charm. Under the leadership of this mysterious chief they are credited with conducting burglaries, cracking safes, and committing costly jewel robberies that baffled detection. They are declared to work in accordance with plans of campaign prepared by the master mind with all the skill of a great military strategist. Several papers print this story with varying degrees of sensationalism. Of late there has been an increasing number of jewel robberies. As a result an insurance company which insured a good deal of valuable jewelry has increased its premium charged on this class of risks by 25 per cent. J. W. Bell, one of London's leading assessors, says that recently robberies have been so well planned and executed that the police can do little more than suspect the authors. "The people who engineer these crimes are not the common, ordinary type of thief," Mr. Bell says. "There is more than one real Raffles in existence to-day. They haunt society gatherings, and in the hotels they are popular guests. I know one man who has a letter address, a country house near Bournemouth, and two fine motor cars, who is more than suspected of complicity in some of these great robberies, but up to the present there has never been the slightest chance of connecting him with any of them. He is of good appearance, always well dressed, and would, in the ordinary way, be accepted as a guest at the houses of wealthy people. I know one instance in which a director of thieves is reputed to be worth $150,000. Another successful director is a woman who has a university education, and is a cultured and charming personality. "The victims, both at hotels and private houses are often watched and shadowed for days before a suitable opportunity for the robbery occurs. It may easily cost $1,000 or $1,500 to meet the expenses of a successful haul and the big thieves require frequent bribes to maintain themselves."

American's Gift.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER GIVES MEDICAL SCHOOL TO LONDON. LONDON.—Through the generosity of John D. Rockefeller, London is soon to have one of the finest medical schools in the world. Work has already begun on the first part of the building programme, on which more than $1,000,000 is to be spent. This includes provision for a new nurses' home for the University College Hospital, an obstetric building of six stories, and an enlargement of the medical school. Houses in University Street and Huntley Street are shortly to be pulled down in order to make room for this large scheme. Later an open-air ward for septic cases and further research laboratories are to be built. The project will reach completion some time in 1925.

Believe Earth Older Than Sun.

Lecturing in London, G.B., last week, Professor A. Bickerton said he was strongly inclined to believe that the earth was much older than the present structure of the universe and also much older than the sun. In his opinion, the sun originated in a collision between two other previously existing bodies, one or both of which had an enormous number of meteors, planets and other bodies revolving around them. Sun spots were probably caused by meteors striking the surface of the sun. In reference to the origin of life, the professor dismissed the doctrine of eternal death and declared that the message of science was of a higher and finer optimism than that of any superstition priestcraft or formal dogma. Professor Bickerton, who is 80 years old, was the originator of the theory of the birth of stellar systems. When he put forward his views on this subject in 1902 he was professor in Canterbury College, New Zealand, and the governing body of the university charged him with a revolutionary. He had practically to choose between his theory and his chair as a professor. He chose the former. Since then he has written much about the "third bodies" born in space by grazing impacts, and is one of the world's greatest authorities on the stellar system.

Havana to Name Street in Honor of Brazil.

HAVANA, Cuba.—To compensate somewhat for Cuba's failure to send a special diplomatic mission to the Brazilian Centennial and erect an exhibit at Rio de Janeiro, the city council has approved a motion to change the name of Teniente Bay Street to Brazil. The change will be made with appropriate ceremonies as soon as the mayor approves the ordinance.

Squashing a Heckler.

Viscountess Astor, our first lady Member of Parliament, is credited with having uttered what is probably about the wittiest reply made on the spur of the moment to a heckler at a political meeting. She was speaking on the subject of farming at the time, and after her address was finished a burly agriculturalist rose in the body of the hall and said:—"You seem, ma'am, to know a lot about the problems we farmers are confronted with. Perhaps you will answer one of them for me?" "Certainly," replied Lady Astor. "What is it?" "How can you tell a bad egg?" A roar of laughter from the audience greeted this query. Her ladyship waited patiently till it subsided, then she said:—"Well, so far as I personally am concerned, if I had anything to tell a bad egg—I should break it gently."

He Didn't Bite.

A farmer saw a boy plucking apples from one of his best apple trees. He tried to catch him, but the boy was too quick for him, so the farmer changed his tactics. "Come here, my little son," he said, in a soft voice, with a pretended friendliness, "come here to me a minute. I want to tell you something." "Not likely," replied the boy. "Little fellows like me don't need to know everything."

Never Again!

An early morning customer in an optician's shop was a young woman with a determined air. She addressed the first salesman she saw. "I want to look at a pair of eyeglasses of extra magnifying power." "Yes, madam," replied the sales man, "something very strong?" "Yes, while in the country I made a very painful blunder which I never want to repeat." "Indeed! Mistook a stranger for an acquaintance?" "No, not exactly that; I mistook a bumble-bee for a blackberry."

WHAT'S NECESSARY.

There is no more interesting indoor sport than classifying people by various tests. One such test is what do they consider the necessities of life, and what do they regard as luxuries. There are people who think that it is absolutely necessary to have a good car but that education for their children is a luxury that only the rich can afford.

They Can't Afford Mind Food.
There are people whose dining tables are loaded with the best in eatables and whose living room tables are bare of books and magazines. Such people evidently regard the best to eat (I don't mean the most nourishing but the best tasting) as a necessity, and food for the mind as a luxury.

There are also people who can afford to keep themselves always dressed in the height of fashion, but who apparently regard proper food for the family in the light of luxury.

And then there is another line in which people have different ideas of luxuries and necessities—the line of ethics.

He Must Get a Seat.

For instance, there is a man to whom it is necessary to get a seat in the street car every night. It isn't necessary to him to give the other fellow a fair chance in the inevitable pushing and crawling; it isn't necessary to him to give a woman with a child a seat; it isn't necessary to him to follow any of the rules of courtesy; but it is necessary for him to always have a seat.

Then there is the man or woman to whom it is necessary to win in any game. It isn't necessary for them to give the other fellow the benefit of the doubt when any question as to some point arises, it isn't necessary for them even to be fair, these are luxuries, but winning is a necessity.

She Didn't Have To Be Decent.
I heard a woman say to a dressmaker one day: "I must have that gown Monday. I am leaving town Monday night." The dressmaker looked worried to death. "Perhaps I can make it if I can persuade my embroiderer to work evenings," she said. "I she hasn't been feeling well and I don't want to work over time." At we left the establishment my companion said: "I'm not really going on Wednesday but I wanted to be sure of it, so I said Monday. That's the best way." Evidently it was necessary for her to have that gown but not necessary to treat those who work for her as if they were human beings.

What are your necessities?

Buried in a Carpet.

STRANGE FUNERAL OF SUSSEX POET.

A strange request of the dead poet and traveller, Mr. Wilfrid Scawen Blunt, who died at the age of eighty-two, as to the manner of his burial was carried out in Sussex in accordance with his wish.

The body was wrapped in an old carpet, and there was neither coffin nor casket.

In the instructions he left for his burial the poet stated:—
"I wish to be buried with the least possible delay, and in the simplest manner, being laid in the ground wrapped in my old Eastern travelling carpet, and without coffin or casket of any kind, at a spot in Newbuildings Wood known to my executors, without religious or other ceremony, or the intervention of strangers, but by the men employed on my Newbuildings estate.

He also bequeathed a sum of £10 each to the men who were chosen for the purpose by the executors, and requested "That my nurse, Elizabeth Lawrence, shall accompany me to, and arrange me in my grave."
These instructions were fully carried out.

MANHOOD.

Manhood, my son, demands but this of you: The Truth where profit whispers "tell the lie!" A fair name, which advantage can buy. A hand that's quick small kindly deeds to do. Courage enough to see the battle through. To fall to-day—tomorrow rise to try. Devotion to the flag that lights the sky. The will, above all splendors, to be true.

Respect for women, mothers of our race! Regard for others, howsoever they live. Willing on earth that each shall hold his place. Ready to take, and just as glad to give. Bringing your best to every morning's task. These, son of mine, are all that Manhood asks.

Corns Go

Just say Blue-jay to your druggist.

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. A touch stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in a colorless clear liquid (one drop does it) and in extra thin plastic. The action is the same.

Pain Stops Instantly

RIGHT AND WRONG.

Last week some feed in human form were turned off on me a phony buck, and wrath rose in me like a storm. I strongly yearned to run a r u c k. "Ah, well," I sighed, when a cooling down, "all is not lost, there's hope in a h e a d; there's some poor fish in this man's town who'll fall for this bum coin of lead. The grocer's eyes are weak and dim, he'd never wise up to the game; I'll shove this bogus plunk on him—he'll never know from whom it came." First impulse always sways me thus, for self defense is in me born; I must get even with the cuss who steps upon my choicest corn. But second impulse comes and swings my mind around when I get cool; it is the outcome of the things I learned at home and Sunday school. "Some guy has wrought me ill," I think, "but that's for Passengers.

MADE COMPULSORY ON LIVERS.
As a sequel to the Egypt disaster, when so many lives were lost through confusion while manning the boats, passengers on practically all outward bound liners from Southampton are compelled to attend boat drill, whether they want to or not.

Strongly worded notices have been posted in the ships calling the attention of passengers to the fact that boat drill is held as the ship goes down Southampton Water, and that they are to fetch their lifebelts from the cabins and assemble in the appointed places, details of which are given in the notice.

The captain has full power to compel every passenger to obey this instruction.

No Excuses.
Drill is carried out while in or near Southampton Water, in order to avoid any alarm or anxiety that might be occasioned if the passengers were Pessimism in Austria Results in Money Hoarding.

LONDON.—The people of Austria are hoarding their money; it would take £10,000,000 to place Austria on her feet again financially, yet Austrians have in Swiss banks an amount estimated at £18,000,000. These statements are contained in a report made by the British Department of Overseas Trade on the economic condition of Austria. In summing up the Austrian situation this report says: "The psychological difficulty is the prevalent pessimism which inhibits initiative on the parts of the Austrians themselves, and makes them look sadly abroad for salvation. The amount of foreign credits generally estimated to be necessary to place Austria on its feet again by stabilizing the currency and founding a new bank of issue is about £18,000,000. "It is an open secret that, despite the law to the contrary, very much larger sums in foreign currencies than this are hoarded by Austrians, both inside and outside the country; the amount lying in Swiss banks alone has been estimated at £18,000,000." But these resources lie idle because the owners have no confidence in the government or the future of the country. Probably both the political and psychological difficulties can be overcome most easily by financial assistance given by foreigners under suitable control and conditions. The Austrians, however, must show that they are ready to co-operate by taking at least the first steps to put their house in order themselves. There is some prospect of this being done at an early date.

Some Pudding.

An old lady from the country, on seeing an electric light for the first time in her life, was so amazed that she could not resist entering the shop—a large grocery store—and asking the assistant about it.
"I say, mister, how do you make that big light of yours? I'm tired of paying for paraffin."
"Oh, it is caused by electric currents," was the answer.
"Oh, is it?" she replied. "Then I'll buy a pound. When they're done for fighting they'll come in handy for a pudding."

When H. R. H. Got Lost.

A good story is told of the Prince of Wales's recent world tour. While his Royal Highness was staying in Japan, at the Imperial Palace, in Kyoto, the third biggest in the empire, a slim foreign stranger walked into one of the police stations there, and roused the suspicion of the inspector on duty by timidly asking the way to the palace. Suspecting a possible plot, the police put the stranger through a long series of questions, to which he returned more or less evasive, halting and confused replies. So, unsatisfactory, indeed, were his answers that they were on the point of arresting him, when a high Japanese Court official came hurrying in and bowing low to the stranger, started apologising profusely. The suspect was none other than the Prince of Wales himself. He had, it appeared, slipped out of the palace by one of the rear exits, with a view to exploring the city at his leisure, and incognito, but finding matters while that he had completely lost his bearings, he entered after a while that he had come to get directions without disclosing his identity.

Emergency Exits.

PUBLIC SHOULD BE SAFEGUARDED.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—The question asked by Mr. Arthur English a few days ago through the medium of the Daily News, viz., have our theatres and halls of entertainment enough exits, or in other words is the safety of the public, while attending shows, properly safeguarded, is one that should not be casually dismissed. I, Mr. Editor, unhesitatingly say that we have nothing like proper precautions for public safety in the city in this direction, and it is very doubtful if any of the halls and theatres now catering to the public, would be allowed to operate in any other city in the world.

It was fortunate that the Majestic Theatre was the one threatened by fire recently, as this is probably the only hall in the city that has anything like a "proper" equipment in case of emergency. In two, at least, of the theatres in town the conditions are dangerous in the extreme. One with the heater situated directly under the exit, rendering escape impossible in the event of fire in the boiler room. The other with but one exit for the accommodation of often one thousand patrons, where there should be at least three exits. In this latter hall during a performance held some years ago, a fire lit on the stage in course of the production, got out of hand, and but for the presence of mind of some of the performers a panic must have ensued which would probably have resulted in a catastrophe.

As the theatrical season is now soon to open would it not be advisable for the Inspector General to make a rigid examination of the different halls in the city and insist on proper arrangements for public safety being made. No consideration for the pockets of the bodies or individuals who control places of amusement such as theatres, movie halls, etc., should be allowed to stand in the way of the proprietors being compelled to install a full measure of protection for the public who patronize them.

Yours truly,
PARENT.

BLUENOSE AGAIN CHAMPION.

The Lunenburg fishing schooner Bluenose, Capt. Angus Walters, which has been chosen to represent all Canada in the International races off Gloucester on Oct. 21st and 23rd was designed by W. J. Rowe of Halifax. She carried a crew of thirty, including Captain Albert Himmelman who sailed the Independence in the Elimination races of 1920 and 1921. Her measurements are: Length over all, 141 feet, waterline 110 feet, beam 27 feet, depth 11 feet, sail area 10,937 square feet.

The Canada, awarded second prize in the Elimination Race, is commanded by Capt. Conrad. She was built in Shelburne, and competed unsuccessfully in last year's elimination trials.

Both the Mahaaka and Margaret K. Smith resemble the Bluenose. They are smaller than the champion, and it is claimed are built along finer lines. Of the trio the Mahaaka is the smallest craft, being ten feet less overall than the Bluenose. Her beam is over a foot less, and her waterline two feet shorter than that of the winner of last year's races. The Margaret K. Smith is built practically of the same model as the Mahaaka except that she is about three feet longer overall. Both vessels are not rigged as high as the Bluenose, and do not carry as much canvas.

Catholic Prelate Denounces De Valera.

THIS PRETENDER THE MOST DESPISED MAN IN IRELAND.

(From The Catholic Register.)
The most Rev. Michael J. Curley, D.D., Archbishop of Baltimore, arrived home last week after a two months' visit to Europe. Speaking of conditions in Ireland, Archbishop Curley said: "I return to America from Ireland, broken-hearted. I come back saddened and amazed by the realization that the men who should be striving with all their might to help Ireland to her place among the nations of the world have taken up arms against her and are trying to impede her progress and humiliate her before the world."

"De Valera," the Archbishop declared, "is the most despised man in all Ireland." Archbishop Curley and De Valera were formerly close friends and referring to this His Grace said that a year or so ago he had held the highest admiration for the Irish leader, but now he feels that he must speak without mincing words concerning the former head of the Sinn Fein Government.

COLLINS RESCUED DE VALERA.
"Michael Collins was the man who rescued De Valera from Lincoln Prison," said the Archbishop, "but the same Michael Collins, one of the great heroes of Irish history, was killed by the men who gave their allegiance to De Valera as their leader. The people of Ireland were plunged into the depths of sorrow by the untimely taking off of the man who did so much to win them a place among the nations. They hate the name of De Valera. He is the most despised man in Ireland. I speak frankly and I speak truthfully. This is no time to gloss over the sins that are being committed against Ireland and the Irish people. America is sending over money to Ireland in support of De Valera's men. The money is being used to hurt the cause of Ireland, to thwart her in her determination to become prosperous and happy. That money is doing untold evil and the men and women who are donating it are enemies of Eria. They may think of them as friends, but they are not. I am grievously disappointed in De Valera. He has placed himself against the people who honored him and to whom he owes so much. He has opposed the wishes of the Irish hierarchy and ninety-five per cent. of the population of that country."

NINETY-FIVE PER CENT. FAVOUR THE TREATY.
"There are no factions in Ireland. Ninety-five per cent. of the people favor the Treaty. The other five per cent. are continuing the work left undone by the Black and Tans. Ireland is carrying on. The Parliament and army both are functioning and the country is bound to prosper, no matter what her enemies among her own sons may do. The men and women in this country who really love Ireland must realize that they are helping the cause of Ireland's enemies by helping De Valera and his small band of destructionists. They should know the truth."

After leaving Rome, the Archbishop went to Paris, where he was joined by John McCormack, the famous Irish tenor, who is a boyhood friend of the Archbishop. The latter declares that McCormack's voice is in better condition than ever before and announced that the singer's first concert in the United States will be given for the benefit of St. Mary's Industrial School at Baltimore.

Canada Humiliated.

(From the Sentinel.)

There has been a discussion between Right Hon. Arthur Meighen and the Prime Minister as to whether Canada is obligated, by having signed the Treaty of Sevres, to send troops to defend that Treaty. In the ordinary affairs of life and man's signature requires him in honor to carry out the terms of the document he has signed. There cannot be a different code for nations.

AN UP-TO-DATE ATTRACTIVE COSTUME.

4097. Comfortable and practical is the development of this style. The skirt with its slenderizing plait fullness, is mounted on an underbody. The blouse long of line, and with a smart vest finish, may have its sleeve short or in wrist length. This model is excellent for silk, kasha, crepe, and for linen and other wash fabrics. The Pattern is cut in 8 sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 5 1/2 yards of 32 inch material. To make underbody, sleeve facings and vest portions of plain material as illustrated 1 1/2 yards 40 inches wide will be required. The width of the skirt at the foot is 2 3/4 yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

FOR THE WOMAN OF MATURE FIGURE.

4082. Fashion has planned this style for grace and comfort. Striped and plain ratine are here combined. This is also a good model for tub silk, taffeta and crepe. The Pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 48 inches bust measure. To make the dresses for a 38 inch size will require 8 yards of one material 33 inches wide. As illustrated, it will take 2 1/4 yards of plain material for sleeves and front, and 3 1/2 yards of striped material. The width of the skirt at the foot is 2 3/4 yards, with plaits extended.

present situation. Britain found herself confronted with the possibility of war with Turkey. Her Government cabled a message to the Dominions which was interpreted by Australia, New Zealand and Newfoundland as a request for a contingent if needed. All three replied promptly with an offer to back up the Motherland. Only Canada, of all the British Dominions, has declined to be committed to participation in the conflict if one develops. The Prime Minister's conduct is that of a man who does not want to accede to the request. He asks for more information before he will consider the case. He still hesitates to say what this Dominion will do in the event of hostilities between Britain and Turkey. When his course is compared with that of the Prime Ministers of the other Dominions, it makes Canada blush with shame for their Government.

King Edward's First Visit to India.

The proposed visit of the Prince of Wales to India, brings to mind the fact that on October 11, 1875, his grandfather, the then Prince of Wales—later King Edward VII.—left Marlborough House at a few minutes to eight for Charing Cross Station, and at five minutes past eight, he started for Dover—the first stage of his journey to the East. A large number of people had assembled at the station to bid the Prince farewell, and as he drove up a hearty cheer was raised. On the platform were the Dukes of Edinburgh, Connaught, Princess Louise, and the Marquis of Lorne, and a guard of honour of the Scottish Fusiliers. When the Prince and Princess, who was to accompany him as far as Calais, alighted from their carriage, the Prince was literally mobbed, and the cheering was reiterated, while the band struck up a new anthem composed for the occasion, and the Prince had to wedge his way, shaking hands on all sides, to the saloon carriage in waiting for him. The train, which was driven by Mr. Alfred Watkin, the Locomotive Superintendent, and son of the Chairman of the South Eastern Railway, arrived at Dover at 9.53. Upon arriving at the Pier, the Prince and Princess were received by Captain Bunce, the Admiralty Superintendent, and Lord Granville, the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports. The Pier was crowded with spectators, the way being kept by the 78th Highlanders, and a guard of honour of the 104th Regiment of Foot. The train finally stopped opposite the "Castalia," which had been repainted and decorated for the occasion. A party of soldiers lined the gangway, holding red and blue portfires; and, amid the strains of the National Anthem, the Prince and Princess walked on board, being received by Lady Granville. Captain Prince was then presented, and the Prince in answer to loud cheering from the thousands on the Pier, stood for a short time on the deck, bowing his acknowledgements. The Mayor and Corporation then presented, the inevitable address, receiving a simple "I thank you, Mr. Mayor" in return. The steam whistle of the "Castalia" gave the signal that all was ready, the cheering became still louder, the National Anthem gave place to "God Bless the Prince of Wales," and at ten minutes past ten the vessel moved slowly off, the Prince still bowing from the gang way, to the assembled crowds.

C.C.C. Band Promenade Concert, Prince's Rink at 8.30 tonight. Hear the new Fox Trot: "If you look in Her Eyes" and "No Use Crying." Admission 20c. Total attendance last week 2300 people. Larger attendance expected this week.—oct9.m.w.f

German Potash Mines.

INCUR HEAVY OBLIGATIONS.

BERLIN.—Unless the coming six years see a radical improvement in the value of the mark, Germany's potash industry probably will be seriously embarrassed in liquidating stock shares held abroad which must be paid in currency of the country from which the capital was subscribed. Other industrial concerns are said to be bound by similar obligations contracted during the war. The potash mines of Winterhall, Alexanderhall, and Saxon-Waldau are reported to have taken up 10,000,000 marks capitalization each at the rate of 1,220 Swiss francs to every 1,000 marks. With the fall of German currency it would require to-day no less than 2,050,000,000 paper marks to fulfill these agreements. This sum exceeds, it is said, the total capital of all the Winterhall mines.

Owing to scarcity of labor in the potash fields of the Werra Valley, in Central Germany, a large number of university students are spending their vacations working in the mines. Many of them are housed in barracks. Richard Barthelmess, hero of "Broken Blossoms" and "Way Down East." See him to-day at the Majestic in "Experience." oct11.11

20TH LEAGUE MATCH.
C.C.C. vs. B.L.S. Result: C.C.C. 1 Goal; B.L.S. 0.—Played on Lewell's Grounds, Aug. 22nd, 1898.

There was not a large attendance at last night's game, for many thought the heavier team would win easily, but it was not to be, as the gallant Cadets came off victorious—their only win for the season. At 6.30 p.m. the teams lined up as follows:—
C.C.C.—Squires, goal; Evans and Vinalcombe, backs; Murphy, H. Donnelly and Cullen, halves; Brophy, Rourke, Power, Rowd and J. Donnelly, forwards.

B.L.S.—O'Neill, Goal; Halley and McLoughlin, backs; Donnelly, Connolly and Crotty, halves; McKay, Higgins, O'Mara, Jordan and Tobin, forwards.

The Irishmen played with the ground and breeze in their favor in the first half, but did not have that dash about them one would expect. Play was for a time in Cadet territory and several corners had to be conceded which proved fruitless, however, and the Cadets took a turn at pressing, and after some nice bits of passing, Fergus Donnelly centred to Rourke, who beat O'Neill for the first and only goal of the match. There were then several rushes on the Eastern net by the Irishmen, but the Cadets put up a stubborn defence and they crossed over, determined to beat the boys in green. The second half was one of continuous rushes on the Irish goal and O'Neill had hard work in clearing. The Cadets kept up the pressure till the finish but no scoring occurred, the match ending as given above in a one goal victory for the Cadets.

Referee—F. Waynard.
Linesmen—P. Skirving, (Saints); R. Osmond (C.E.L.).

NOTES ON THE GAME.

One or two things will shortly have to be accomplished! Either begin sharp at 6 p.m., or reduce the time periods to 25 minutes, for at 7.30 p.m. it is too dark to see the ball.

The Cadets individually and collectively played well, and had they practiced the passing game a little more, would have scored repeatedly. Cullen put up a fine game, and will, under good training, make a fine player. Fergus Donnelly played a fast game, but towards the close missed one or two easy chances. Evans and Vinalcombe in the back division are regular "stone walls" when pushed.

For the Irishmen, O'Neill in Goal was the outstanding feature. He had lots to do last night, and did it well. The forwards were lacking in combination and will want some practice at the passing game before their next appearance. Last night's result was only the fortune of war and they must be as good as the B.L.S. on Wednesday night. St. Andrew's vs. Terra Nova, the last but one of the League fixtures.

SPECIAL NOTES.

It is worthy to note that in 1898 season the Cadets in the last League fixture of both teams, defeated the B.L.S. by one goal and that this year (1922) should succumb to their Irish successors by a solitary goal, after four drawn games, which victory gives the Irish outright possession of the second Championship Cup put up by the League, after some 17 years of actual playing for by all League Teams. Another coincidence in connection with these two teams is the fact that it was Raymond Halley who scored the winning goal for the B.L.S. this season, and that his father was a prominent "Back" for the Irishmen in 1898 when the Cadets defeated them. Then it is also worthy of mention that the B.L.S. Football Club, (Present League Champions) were the first to check the St. Andrew's team that in that memorable drawn match in 1897, (second year of the League) and this year's successors of the League, in their regular League fixture—one goal each—a drawn match that occasioned the 4 successive meetings of the Cadets and B.L.S. in order to decide the Championship.

Freemasons and Public Schools.

The Masonic Grand Lodge of Saskatchewan has exhibited an interest in the educational conditions of that province in so practical a manner as to make its action unique in the history of fraternalism. Finding that there were many school sections where the settlers were unable to pay salaries sufficient to attract the efficient teachers, the Grand Lodge raised fifteen thousand dollars to distribute among such districts in sums of $500 each, supplementing by that amount the remuneration paid by the ratepayers. This enabled a grant to be made to fifty schools where the taxpayers could not give more than $1,000, by the aid of this fund the teachers receive $1,500.

The results achieved during the first year were so far beyond expectations that the Grand Lodge has undertaken to do the same thing for another year. The young men and young women who took charge of the schools under the conditions became as enthusiastic as the sponsors of the plan. They threw themselves into their work with such energy and cheerfulness that the schools became pleasant places for the pupils, and a joy to the teachers. This became apparent to the parents also, and led to the making of greater sacrifices on their part. It is a new departure, but one that has already repaid itself to the donors of the fund the wide possibilities of their generosity.

As fully as an organized body of men—if not more so—the Freemasons represent the wealth and intelligence of every community where a lodge is held. It is a tradition with the order that it should keep out of politics. This has been so broadly interpreted that the order has refrained from engaging in any public movement. The conferring of degrees, and especially the fourth degree, has absorbed the time, attention, and funds of the lodges. A new departure, has, therefore, been made by the Craft in Saskatchewan. It cannot be said truthfully that providing aid for Public Schools in new districts is a political move. Unless we are mistaken, that charge will be made by those who are not anxious to see the Public Schools strengthened. They will find some prominent member of the order who, for business reasons, will lend himself to the schemes of the opponents of the Public Schools to put an end to this laudable enterprise. In that new province it will be hard—if not impossible—to divert the Masonic Grand Lodge from its purpose.

Home From Home.

The burglar had entered the house as quietly as possible, but his shoes were not padded, and they made some noise. He had just reached the door of the bedroom when he heard someone moving in the bed, as if to get up, and he paused.

The sound of a woman's voice floated to his ears.

"If you don't take off your boots when you come into this house," it said, "There's going to be trouble, and a lot of it. Here it's been raining for three hours, and you dare tramp over my carpets with your muddy boots on. Go downstairs, and take them off this minute."

He went downstairs without a word, but he didn't take off his boots. Instead he went straight out into the night again, and the girl who was waiting for him saw a tear glisten in his eye.

"I can't rob that house," he said, "it reminds me of home."

Brighten Your Bedsteads.

If your bedsteads are looking shabby, here are a few hints to make them look as good as ever.

Even bedsteads that have been enamelled black, or some dark color, should be rubbed well with a cloth moistened with paraffin. Afterwards, remove all traces of the oil, rub with some good furniture polish, and finish off with a soft duster.

Stains on white enamelled bedsteads can be removed by the following process.

Wring out a cloth in hot water, sprinkle on it a little paraffin, and rub into the stains, using plenty of elbow grease. Then wash the paraffin off with warm water and dry with a cloth.

In the case of brass bedsteads, polish these with a cloth moistened with a little olive oil.

Mahogany and other dark woods should be cleaned with a cloth wrung out in vinegar and cold water, and then polish off with furniture polish, while boiled linseed oil applied with a soft cloth and well rubbed in gives a fine polish to oak bedsteads.

Cub Cigarettes are appreciated, not only by the smoker but by those in his company.
