A QUEEN UNCROWNED

— OR —
THE STORY IN THE LONE INN.

CHAPTER XV.

"Oh, coward and traitor! Is this my son's revenge?"

"Ho! Then he knows, too!" cried Mr. De Vere, eagerly. "I did doubt that; but this confirms it! Then you are guilty."

"What has he told you?" she cried, fiercely.

A flush of haughty anger and humiliation tinged the handsome face of Disbrowe, but he said nothing.

"It is false!" she cried, forgetting in her passion all respect for her questioner. "He must have told you. No one else knew."

She checked herself, and again turned scarlet.

"Knew what?" said Mr. De Vere, with a piercing glance.

She made a frenzied gesture, like one goaded to desperation.

"I will not tell! Suspect what you like! You have laid this trap to ensnare me; I can fall no lower in your eyes than I have fallen now. Think me guilty as you please, the whole of you! I am ruined and disgraced, and it matters little what becomes of me, now!"

"Then you do not deny it?" he said, significantly.

"I deny nothing! I acknowledge nothing! You think me lost, body and soul! Think so still, but let me go!"

"What, without your dear friend? Come hither, Sir Spaniard! Is it the custom in your country, when a wounded stranger is received into a man's house, to return his kindness as you have returned mine?"

"What has he done?" demanded Jacquetta, coming over and laying her hand, half caressingly, half protectively, half defiantly, on the boy's shoulder and looking around like a stag at bay.

"Nay, Jacquetta, you would not have me answer that question. I trust? But, Alfred, I must have an explanation from you! What do you know?"

"Nothing, sir."

"Nothing that you choose to tell, you mean, Alfred Disbrowe, I command you to tell! This—this person is my son's wife, and I have a right to know!"

"I have nothing to tell, sir," said Disbrowe, so stunned by all he had heard, that he scarcely knew whether he was dreaming or waking.

"You have!" said Jacquetta in a ringing voice. "Deny it not! Tell all you know!"

"You have accused me of doing that already!" he said, with a haughty bow.

"Then you have not told?"

He only replied by a look. He would not answer such a charge.

"Ah! and I have wronged you! I am sorry! Will you forgive me?"

"I have nothing to forgive." "No; it is scarcely worth while stopping to forgive so lost a wretch as I. Shall I tell you what he saw, Mr. De Vere, since he will not?"

"As you please. It matters little."

"Jacquetta!" said the boy in a trembling voice.

"Hush! fear not! Then through the door of this boy's room he saw me kiss him!"

"Ah!"

"How very indiscreet of you to leave the door open," said Grizzle, with a laugh and a shrug.

Jacinto started up.

"Jacquetta, I will tell! I will!"

"Do, at your peril! Not one word, sir!"

"Not a word! I will never forgive you if you do."

The boy hid his face in his hands with a groan.

"If you have anything to say, young sir, out with it!" said Mr. De Vere, sternly.

Again Jacinto started up.

"Oh, Jacquetta I must! It was my fault, and I will take the consequences. I will tell! I must tell! I cannot bear to think I was the cause of—"

"You are the cause of nothing. In my guilt and degradation I stand alone! From all blame you are free! You can say nothing that can free me from the crime of having such a father, er, such a mother, and such a child! I am the daughter of an outlaw and a villain, ruined and disgraced!—It has an ugly sound; but it is the truth, though I may never have spoken it before. Good-by my friend; you, at least, believe me innocent of one crime with which I have been charged and that is something. Mr. De Vere, what next? I do not wish to trouble you but as short a time as I can. I await your command to go."

"It will come presently. Jacquetta De Vere, I am sorry for you."

"There is no need, sir. What does it matter?"

"What will become of you when you leave here?"

"I am a small girl, sir; and in the Potter's Field there is room for another vagrant."

Some of the old love he had felt for her came back, as he saw that faint, cold smile.

"Oh! Jacquetta, why have you done this? Why were you so deceitful?"

"We will not speak of it, sir, if you please. I do not think I can quite bear it yet. Forget the past, and think of me as you have learned to do."

"Jacquetta, was it for his home and wealth you married my unfortunate son?"

"I'd rather not answer that question. You have already answered it to your own satisfaction; and nothing a confirmed liar, such as I am, can say, is to be believed."

"You were only a child then—a little child! Was duplicity born with you, Jacquetta?"

"Very likely, sir. You forget my mother."

"Ah true." His brow darkened again. "And so you will go with this man?"

"He is my father, sir."

"Oh! you acknowledge it at last—do you? you unfeeling little mixix!" growled the captain.

"Is the list of my crimes ended, Mr. De Vere? When may I go?"

"As soon as you please. I will ring and give orders to have your things packed up."

"No, sir, you will not! Bare and penniless as I came to Fontelle, I will leave it! Good-by, Mr. De Vere; you were a kind friend to me always, and I shall pray God to forgive you for the wrong you have done me this day. He is more merciful than man, and perhaps He may forgive even so lost a sinner as I am."

Her voice trembled a little as she moved one step away.

"One thing further. Since this is my child, may she not come with me? Neither she nor I will ever trouble you again."

"No!" said Mr. De Vere; "my grandchild stays at Fontelle Hall!"

"I cannot give her up so!" she said, passionately—she is all I have left to love! Orrie I am your mother, will you not come with me?"

That pleading smile; that quivering lip—how pitiful they were to see!

"I am your grandfather, my child. If you will stay with me you shall live here and be a lady. You shall have everything your heart can desire."

Orrie looked from one to the other, and then up at Disbrowe, on whose knees she still sat. His face was averted, but he held her closer in his arm.

"Will he stay, too?" she asked.

"Yes," said Mr. De Vere.

"Then so will I!" said Orrie. "I won't go!"

Something faded out of the face of Jacquetta—it could not be color, for she was deadly white; it was as if a flickering light had gone out from a lamp. She put one trembling hand up before her face without a word.

"The last unkindest out of all," quoted Captain Tempest, touched in spite of himself.

"Ring the bell, Frank, and tell Reynolds to serve dinner instantly," said Mr. De Vere, coldly.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save $1, and you have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $20.00. It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membrane, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine resin, track and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "½ ounce of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Give it to you with absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Just Folks.

By EDGAR GUEST.
AUTUMN.

Red and gold! Red and gold!
Where the waves of frost have rolled.
Youth has fled each sunny garden
And the trees are growing old;
Now in splendor stands the maple
For the critics to behold.

"It is done! It is done!"
Says the elm tree to the sun.
Spring and summer have I labored,
Have I failed, or have I won?
Is the thing which I have fashioned Fit for God to look upon?"

Age is near! Age is near!
'Tis the ending of the year,
And a hush lies on the valleys
As the mist begins to clear:
Now in purple and in scarlet robes
The terrors all appear.

When I'm gray! When I'm gray!
And I reach my autumn day,
And the soul which I have fashioned
As it is, must ever stay;
Like the trees which pass in splendor
May I also pass away.

Using a Nail as a Compass

If you happen to be lost in the woods without a compass you can readily find your direction provided you have an iron nail in your pocket, according to Dr. Kiesel, who tells how to do it in a recent number of Kosmos (Stuttgart). Steel tools are frequently markedly magnetic. Soft iron is not supposed to be so, but his experiments with ordinary nails, which are usually made of soft iron, show that almost without exception these are magnetic, though but feebly. He says:

"If one floats a nail upon water its magnetism is sufficient to make it take a north-south direction like the compass needle. A nail of considerable length should be chosen and thrust through two bits of cork, one at either end, and then laid on water. At first it will be pulled about by the currents in the water, even when these are weak. But as soon as it comes to rest it will gradually take the north-south position, although one must often wait several minutes for the north-south direction to be assumed."

Dr. Kiesel reminds the reader that the direction taken is not the true north-south line, but is parallel to the line drawn between the magnetic poles. He proceeds:

"It has long been known that a steel rod lying in the direction of the terrestrial magnetic lines of force becomes permanently magnetic if while in this position its upper end is beaten with a hammer.

"When this is done the lower end will possess north magnetism while the upper end will exhibit south magnetism. When placed in other positions before being hammered it will become less permanently magnetic, according to its deviation from the lines of force. I found that the same thing was true of ordinary nails, though these are mostly made of soft iron; and since these while being produced in a nail machine incidentally receive a very violent blow, we have a simple and probable explanation as to why they are magnetic. At the same time we perceive that it is easy to make nails magnetic which happen to be non-magnetic—namely, by a few smart blows with a hammer, while holding them against a solid surface and in a direction parallel to the lines of force of the earth. If one does not happen to know the way these run, one needs only hold the nail perpendicular to the earth. Since its lower end will then acquire north magnetism, it will turn to the north when allowed to float upon water. If the position of the nail be reversed and the hammering repeated, the magnetic poles will change, the north becoming south and the south becoming north."

In conclusion Dr. Kiesel says that not only nails but ordinary sewing-needles and knitting-needles, and even pieces of iron wire, are magnetic and can therefore be used to determine the north-south line; while these things, if they are slender enough, can be floated without the assistance of a cork. He says:

"If such articles (which must be quite dry) are allowed to fall in a horizontal position upon the surface of water, from as short a distance as possible, they will not sink but float upon the surface. They can thus be employed to determine the north-south line, but which end is which can not be found, since they will not stand hammering."

The wealthy Canadian, whose extradition Mr. Herrick seeks, is known to Prohibitionists as a bootleg king and is believed to be the backer of an alleged $10,000,000 smuggling ring, which the Federal authorities claimed to have uncovered with the seizure of the Frederick B. Oil Fuel Separator Tests

Oil and shipping experts witnessed at Southampton Docks recently a demonstration of an oil separator, when the oily ballast of the United States liner Leviathan, 59,957 tons, was pumped out into the separator.

The oily water, passing through the separator in about six minutes, was discharged into the harbour clear, while the recovered oil was discharged into tanks on the lighter in which the separator was installed, being then pumped back into the Leviathan's tanks fit for use in her furnaces.

In addition to the value of the separator to shipping companies as a fuel economiser, it is claimed that its use in harbours will solve the problem of sea pollution from oil-fuel ships.

Memorials on Mountain Tops

On the summit of Great Gable, a mountain in Cumberland, a war memorial tablet was recently unveiled, 3,000 feet above sea level. Twelve tablets in all are to be erected to the memory of the members of the Fell and Rock Climbing Club who fell during the war, and each will be placed on a mountain peak. When the Club started its war memorial scheme in 1918, it was suggested that a mountain crag or cliff be bought. Then a hill or small mountain was suggested. Finally, twelve peaks, and nearly all the land in their vicinity above 1,500 feet, were purchased, and handed over to the National Trust. Other peaks purchased by the club are Kirkfell, Green Gable, Brandreth, Grey Knotts, Base Brown, Seathwaite Fell, Glaramara, Allen Crags, Great End, Broad Crags and Lingmell.

Motor Association Meets

INTERESTING ADDRESS BY MR. J. COCKER.

A general meeting of the Newfoundland Motor Association was held at Sterling's Restaurant yesterday with the President, W. R. Howley in the chair. The minutes of the preceding meeting having been read, during the time in which luncheon was served, Thos. Soper gave a brief account of what has been and is being done by the Road Commission. At present, all work had ceased with the exception of Portugal Cove Road. The weather for the year has been very favorable for road building and enabled the Commission to do much important work. The Fall season is one which is generally accepted to be a poor one for road building and repairing, but even at this season there is much good work that might be done if funds were available. That section from Harbour Main Village to Maryvale is in much need of repairs, and should have attention. Ferryland, from Doyle's Bridge, and Fouch Cove Roads are much improved, although not as good as the Commission would desire them to be. The work has been suspended for the year because of the fact that all the funds have been expended, but the Commission hopes to be able to carry on a little longer and make various improvements that will be lasting.

The President expressed his appreciation of the good work being done by Mr. Soper and associates, and felt that in doing so he was voicing the sentiments of all present.

Luncheon having concluded, the President called on Joseph Cocker to address the meeting on fire prevention in connection with gasoline and automobiles.

Mr. Cocker stated in opening that he was not by any means a public speaker, and for that reason he was greatly surprised when he was requested to make this address. He would, however, give a few of his own practical experiences in regard to fires, their prevention and cure with the hope that they might be of benefit to some one. One of the great causes of fires in connection with motor cars is electrical trouble, and the principal reason for this is that one can't always see the electric wires. If grease, oil, and gasoline is allowed to collect on wires and a short circuit takes place, trouble is likely to follow. For this reason, wires should always be kept clean, and they should be renewed oftener than has been the custom. Soon there will be introduced a device whereby a switch will be applied which will cut out all electric current when the car is being put away.

Popping of the carburetor is something which should not be allowed, as it sometimes causes an explosion with a resulting fire in its trail. Instances in the speaker's experience were cited to show this. Gasoline is capable of producing much damage if improperly handled. The vapor of one gallon of gasoline, mixed with air, is capable of producing 8,000 cubic feet of gas, which is more explosive than 83 pounds of dynamite. In this connection the speaker cited many instances to show how dangerous gasoline may be if not carefully handled.

Mr. Cocker gave much valuable information as to the proper methods of handling a fire when it breaks out, and summed up the whole thing in "Keep cool, weigh up the situation and handle properly." The proper method of extinguishing a fire is to endeavour to shut off the air and thus smother it. It is better, he said, to lose a rug than a motor car. Concluding, Mr. Cocker gave some valuable hints which briefly are as follows:

GIRLS BORN 1908 TO 1912 May Need Medicinal Treatment How Two Mothers Helped Their Daughters By Giving Them Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Every mother possesses information of vital importance to her young daughter, and the responsibility for the girl's future is largely in her hands. When a schoolgirl's thoughts become sluggish, when she suffers the consequences of wet feet, pain, headaches, fainting spells, loss of sleep and appetite, and is irregular—her mother should have a care for her health and give her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which has proved a reliable aid to Nature for just such conditions in many cases.

Had Faith in It

Hamilton, Ontario.—"When I was a young girl I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because father and mother had faith in it. It had helped mother and it helped me. I took eleven bottles of it then and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. Now I am on my third bottle for later female troubles. I would go two or three months and then have such bearing-down pains they were unbearable. I would have to go to bed and was unable to do my household work. I was weak and would faint at the least little thing I did. My husband got me the first bottle and I am already feeling better in every way. I can do my washing now and before I could not even walk about at that time. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to every woman." Mrs. CLARA BROADBENT, 285 Fairfield Avenue, Hamilton, Ontario. ©

JACKIE COOGAN in A Boy of Flanders's THE SWEETEST STORY EVER TOLD

From Ouida's "A Dog of Flanders" Scenario by Walter Anthony

A lad in wide pantaloons and wooden shoes; a little maid with a piquant lace cap; a faithful Great Dane dog—Comedy, thrilling drama, beauty and simplicity.

The production supervised by JACK COOGAN, Sr. Directed by VICTOR SCHERTZINGER

Never smoke when having gasoline tank filled. Never leave oily rags around garage, keep in metal container. Never throw on the floor rag that has cleaned a battery, as the acid on the rag may ignite. Always keep a bucket of sand in the garage. Never throw water on gasoline, always have a fire extinguisher in the garage, and finally keep cool, weigh up the situation and use common sense.

At the close a vote of thanks was proposed by J. A. McKenzie, and on being put to the meeting was carried by acclamation. The meeting then adjourned. Before cocoa tapoca cream is chilled, add to it a little marshmallow cream.

Household Notes: Pickled cucumbers make a nice garnish for a fish dinner. Season creamed or buttered carrots with a little grated nutmeg. Use the water at the first boil if you want your coffee to be perfect. A little crushed dried mint favors thick pea soup deliciously. A little lemon juice improves a mixture of curried vegetables.

The Other Fellow

It has been observed that if we ourselves are set in our ways it is just "firmness," but when the other fellow is set in his ways we say he is "obstinate."

When the other fellow takes his time in doing things he is "dead slow." When we do the same we are "deliberate."

When the other fellow treats people especially well he is "loading." When we do likewise it is "fact."

When the other fellow says what he thinks he is "spiteful." When we do it we are "frank."

When the other fellow spends a lot he is a "spendthrift." When we do, it is because we are "generous."

When we meet a man who does not like someone we say he is "prejudiced." In our case, of course, it will be that we are "judges of human nature."

The other fellow giving way to a fit of temper is regarded as "ugly." With us it is only a case of "nerves."

When Buying an Autumn Hat

Wear the coat or frock which you wish it to accompany.

See the hat not only in daylight, but if it is a colored one, in artificial light as well.

Remember that some colors may match your frock, but may prove trying to your complexion.

Examine your profile and the back view as well as the front.

If you buy in haste you may repent at leisure, so take time and make a careful choice.

WASHINGTON SENATORS WIN 4TH GAME.

John McGraw Used Three Pitchers Yesterday.

POLO GROUNDS, N.Y., Oct. 7.—Washington Senators pounded three Giant pitchers hard to-day and won the fourth game of the world series and evened the count of games with New York, two all. George Modridge held the Giants to three scattered hits until the eighth inning when he retired in favor of Marbery after passing two batsmen. The score was 7 to 4.

McGRAW EXPECTS SHORT SERIES—HAS PLANS FOR TRIP.

NEW YORK.—Manager McGraw apparently does not expect the World's Series to extend over more than five or six days this year. He has already arranged to start the trip abroad with the Giants and White Sox before the middle of next month.

The clubs will play two or three games in Canada. McGraw is evidently confident that if he wins his fourth successive pennant and establishes a new precedent in the modern game, his club will breeze thru' the World's Series in record time.

Challenger Outclassed By Welterweight Champion In Philadelphia Bout.

PHILADELPHIA Oct. 1.—Mickey Walker, welterweight champion of the world, successfully defended his title here to-night, when he knocked out Bobby Barrett, of Clinton Heights, at the Philadelphia National League Park, in the sixth round of a scheduled ten round bout.

The knockout blow was a right to the jaw, one minute and thirty-three seconds, after the start of the sixth round.

Barrett had just arisen to his feet.

Societies to Hire Lawyer for Pirie

OTTAWA MURDERER BELIEVED TO HAVE DRUGGED HIS CHILDREN.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—John Buchanan Pirie, self-confessed murderer of his wife, Caroline, aged 35, and his two children, Kathleen, aged 7, and Joan, aged 5, is not lacking for friends. Members of the Great War Veterans' Association and the St. Andrew's Society, are, it is stated, engaging a prominent lawyer to defend the prisoner when he comes up for preliminary hearing next Wednesday.

Pirie, who was at one time a captain in the Royal Air Force, and who suffered severe injuries in an airplane crash during the war, will be closely watched day and night at the county jail, extra precautions having been taken to have him constantly guarded.

While it has been determined that Mrs. Pirie was slain by a heavy blow on the back of the right side of the skull, Dr. C. J. McPherson and Coroner Dr. J. C. Craig, after working for several hours, were forced to admit that the two little girls came to their deaths by inhaling some strange drug, which is so far unidentified.

after taking a count of nine.

The challenger did not have a chance at any stage of the fight. He was smothered from the start by the champion's two-fisted attacks.

Walker, clearly outclassed Barrett in speed and punching power and once was in danger.

Alex Hart, Philadelphia lightweight, was awarded the verdict over Clontie Tait, of Canada, in a ten round second preliminary which was a wild swinging one from the fifth round on. Hart weighed 134 and Tait five pounds more.

SUFFERING CATS.

It was in the Far West. An excited citizen rushed up to a friend one day and gasped:

"John Henry, there's a wild cat got into your house."

John Henry took no notice.

"Don't you understand?" cried the friend. "There's a wild cat got in the same room as your wife."

John Henry uttered a yawn.

"Well, that wild cat will have to get out the best way it can," he remarked at length. "I'm not going to rescue it." "In any case, I never did like wild cats."

MANY PLAYERS SOUGHT BY NEW HOCKEY CLUB.

Harry Watson Likely To Make Jump In Pro. Ranks.

TORONTO, Oct. 1.—"Babe" Donnelly and "Dutch" Cain of the Sault Ste. Marie seniors, Allan Cup holders, have been asked to sign contracts with the new Montreal team in the National Hockey League, according to word received here.

Donnelly says he will accept, and Cain is considering. Cain almost joined St. Patricks last winter, but the Toronto owners were not keen to sign him. Cain is a sturdy player and would make good in pro ranks.

The players sought for the front line are: "Pete" Bellefeuille, now of London and late of Iroquois Falls; Frank Nighbor, of Ottawa; Harry Broadbent of Ottawa; Harry Watson, of Toronto; and Eddie Rodden of Evesham. It is also said that the new club will get into the fight for "Hoolie" Smith's services. Smith can sign with Ottawa whenever he cares to, but to date the Ottawa club has not received his signed contract. Bellefeuille is the fastest forward in hockey. He is like a flash, and his great playing thrilled Northern Ontario fans last winter. St. Patrick's and Canadiens have tried in vain to sign him. Smith, Watson, and Rodden were members of the Granite team which won the Canadian championship two years ago. Broadbent has been released by Ottawa, but is still one of the best right wings in pro ranks.

Clint Benedict will be the goalkeeper, and despite the fact that he was released by Ottawa, many regard him as the peer of all net guardians.

BENEDICT DENIES THE BEER CHARGE.

OTTAWA.—Denying that the terms of his contract were as stated in the defence of the Ottawa Hockey Association and an unconditional denial of allegations that he had rendered himself physically unfit to carry out the terms of the agreement, are contained in the official reply to the defence and counter claim which has been filed by Clint Benedict, former goal mender of the Ottawa Senators in his action for $800 salary against the hockey association.

In its defence to Benedict's claim, the club charged him with many breaches of training rules which, they said, rendered him unable to play properly at times, and charged beer-drinking.

Where Racehorses Are Born

The Sledmere Stud, near Malton, in Yorkshire, is the most famous breeding place for racehorses in the world, and the sales of the Sledmere yearlings at Doncaster every autumn have become landmarks in the history of the Turf, for no other stud has ever realized such prices.

For a hundred years and more Sledmere has been a chosen quarter for the British thoroughbred. The accommodation is unsurpassed anywhere. There are fields and paddocks of every size, wonderful ranges of comfortable stables and sheds, and an abundance of shade and water for the mothers of future Derby winners and their young children.

The old Sir Tatton Sykes, great-grandfather of the present baronet, loved horses for their own sakes, and sales were a secondary consideration. He was too fond of them. He kept too many, and as he declined to part with the fillies, the paddocks soon became overcrowded. Only one classic winner, oddly enough called "Sir Tatton Sykes," rewarded the great Yorkshireman for what was really the devotion and work of a lifetime, and that honour did not come to him until he was 71.

His son determined from the first that Sledmere should not be overstocked again. He limited his stud mares to a certain number, and made up his mind to keep no stallions.

Two of the earliest purchases for the stud, were sensational, 12,000 guineas being paid at auction for La Fleche, and the comparatively small price of 3,000 guineas for Platanterie.

La Fleche must have produced nearly 240,000 by her children, while Platanterie, who was shot in 1906 at the ripe age of twenty-five, was the mother of offspring which brought

When Storing Jam

Pots of jam should never be placed one upon the other, but must be stored with as much space as possible between them. The storing place should be dry and cool, so that the preserves will not ferment.

When a number of jam pots, containing different preserves, must be stored on one or two shelves, it is a good plan to make partitions with thin pieces of wood, placing these between groups of pots, which will keep them upright. The front of the shelf or shelves can be labelled with the name of the jams stored in the different compartments. This would save time when a special jam is needed.

Last Chance to See "Great White Way"

GREAT FILM WILL HAVE FINAL SHOWING TO-NIGHT.

"The Great White Way," the Cosmopolitan Corporation's big motion picture, which graphically brings modern New York and Broadway to the screen in what is said to be one of the most interesting stories ever filmed, will have its final showing to-night at the Nickel Theatre.

Many celebrities play actual parts in the film itself which is woven around the turf, the prize ring, the theatre and Broadway. One of the big features is a realistic prize fight in which Pete Hartley, well known professional lightweight, battles Oscar Shaw, leading man of the picture.

This scene includes such leaders in fight circles as Tex Rickard, who appears as promoter; Joe Humphreys, announcer; Johnny Gallagher, referee, and Jimmy Quigley, time-keeper. Others who appear around stage mysteries of "Follies." The back stage scenes at Madison Square Garden are Irvin S. Cobb, Damon Runyon, "Bugs" Baer "Kid" Broad and Tammany Young.

Another thrilling feature of "The Great White Way" is a big race track scene, filmed at Belmont Park on Futurity Day. Earl Sande is one of the cast in this particular sequence.

In addition to these high lights, the new picture brings to the screen for the first time the entire chorus of the famous Ziegfeld "Follies." The back stage scenes of a big Broadway production are revealed to film fans from the time of the first rehearsal through to the finished performance in opening nights. For this particular episode Ned Wayburn, stage director of the "Follies," was engaged to produce a special and original miniature musical comedy for the new photoplay.

If you haven't seen the film yet, do not miss it to-night.

Fish That Can Climb Trees

NATURE HAS ENDOWED THE GOBY WITH MORE THAN HIS SHARE OF PHYSICAL REQUIREMENTS.

The goby is a fish that lives mainly in warm countries. It often crawls out of the water in large numbers, and skips and plays on shore like a lively kitten. In the countries where these wonderful fish are found the shores in many places are covered with low mangrove trees, and up these the goby climbs in search of food.

These fish have developed out of their fore fins what look like arms, with hands with webbed fingers, which help them to get over the ground, and out of their hind fins a kind of sucker or sucking disk, by means of which they can cling closely to the bark of a tree.

The goby is sometimes called a "mudskipper," because it goes "skip ping along over the wet sands and mud, even skipping with great speed over the surface of the water," says one writer. "It chases its insect prey among rocks, leaves and weeds, and out of the water is as agile as a lizard."

The eyes are raised on stalks so that the creature can look in all directions without turning the head. Gobies have been timed to stay from three to six hours out of water.

Always we have prided ourselves on the quality of our Labradorite and refused to place on sale stones that did not do credit to the peculiar beauty that is its chief charm. Looting of the 'Mulhouse'
STORY OF "RUM ROW" TOLD BY A VICTIM—HOLD-UP AT SEA.

The looting of the French steamer Mulhouse, which was held up for ten days, twenty miles off Long Island, New York, while armed men from an apparently friendly ship transferred the greater part of her cargo of tens of thousands of cases of liquor to other vessels.
The story is told by Mr. W. J. Kimpton, who acted as supercargo, in a letter to the firm which consigned part of the ship's cargo. Mr. Kimpton is a British subject living in Paris.
As has been stated, the Paris police have arrested a man named Jerome Max Phaff, stated to be an American, who is suspected of being concerned in the looting. Mr. Kimpton's account, which is reproduced in his own words, is as stirring as any of the pirate stories of fiction writers. He states that in April, 1924, he was instructed by his firm that he would be required to act as supercargo in connection with a shipment of 5,510 cases of wines and spirits, which was to be taken by the Mulhouse to a position in neutral waters off the coast of New York.
Therefore on April 29, 1924, he proceeded to Antwerp (Belgium) to supervise the loading of the part of the cargo he had to take charge of; thence the Mulhouse sailed to Cherbourg, France, where the shipment was completed.
He further narrates that on May 11, the Mulhouse left Cherbourg bound for Louisbourg, Nova Scotia, for the purpose of obtaining bunkers; on our arrival there on June 1, we were instructed to go to North Sydney, where coaling takes place during the summer months.
We arrived at North Sydney, Nova Scotia, on June 2, and obtained bunkers there, and Mr. Etchevarry, who was awaiting our arrival in that port, came on board to act as supercargo for the 30,000 odd cases belonging to his firm, the Morue Francaise and Secherles de Fecamp, which were carried in the hold of the Mulhouse.
We left North Sydney on June 7, and having cleared for Nassau (Bahamas) we proceeded on our voyage, and about seven days later we anchored in neutral waters off New York, lat. N. 40.24, long. 73.30 W.
Fires having been extinguished and steam shut off, we awaited the arrival of consignees, who had to be provided with delivery orders duly signed and drawn up in a code of which I had the key as far as the cargo of my firm was concerned.
The supercargo of the Morue Francaise had the necessary authority to sell over the rail a certain part of his cargo, and, as usual in such waters, boats from the shore (motor boats and similar craft) were passing the ship, some of these boats coming alongside and getting into communication with Mr. Etchevarry.
A schooner (which Mr. Kimpton says bore the name Patara) was anchored about one mile to the northward of our ship and apparently was also waiting the arrival of clients from the shore to deliver her cargo.
One or two days after the arrival of our ship, at the position indicated by me in the neutral waters of New York, the dory belonging to this schooner and having on board the supercargo and two sailors, put off and hailed us.
After having explained the reason of his visit, the supercargo was allowed on board, and he bought from Mr. Etchevarry (two cases of spirits).
After this friendly deal the supercargo of the schooner repeated his visit and bought other parcels from the Morue Francaise.
Amicable relations having thus been established, no mistrust or suspicion against the schooner occurred to the captain or the supercargo of the Mulhouse.
In this way, the captain and supercargo of the schooner presented to Mr. Etchevarry a client who was desirous of buying 4,000 or 5,000 cases of wines and spirits, cash on delivery. Prices and details of the goods not having been settled on the same day, the buyer said that he would come back later with the schooner to take delivery of these 5,000 cases.
In the meantime the United States revenue cutter Kickapoo, sailed round our ship, as is customary, but did not speak to us.
On June 24, about 7 a.m., I heard the officer on the bridge say, that the schooner was hoisting her sails, and

Lad Gives Own Life to Save Babe

BROTHER DYING AFTER RESCUING SISTER FROM QUEBEC FIRE.
BAIE ST. PAUL, Que.—An eleven-year-old boy is dead, another is dying and a baby is seriously injured as the result of the dead lad having poured coal oil into a stove, causing an explosion.
While Joseph Laperle, son of A. Laperle attempted to light the fire in the stove by using kerosene, fire caught in the can containing the oil and spread in a few seconds throughout the one-room camp. Sleeping in one corner with a six-month-old baby was the six-year-old brother of Joseph.
Attempting to save the baby the two boys failed to make their escape before the flames reached them and while they succeeded in protecting the baby, they were so badly burned that Joseph died after horrible sufferings and the other boy at noon to-day was reported in a very serious condition at the hospital.

LOS ANGELES CONGREGATION WITNESSES BRUTAL MURDER IN JEWISH SYNAGOGUE.
LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 30.—(Associated Press)—While nearly 100 horrified worshippers looked on, Solomon Ostrow, 35, walked into the Zion Synagogue during Jewish festival services and shot and killed his business enemy, Harry Denny, 55, and wounded a man and woman in the struggle that followed with the members of the congregation for possession of the gun.
Escaping the throng of angry worshippers who badly beat him and threatened to lynch him, Ostrow was later arrested by the police.
In jail, he said that the slaying was the result of business trouble between him and Denny, but refused to divulge its nature.

Three Things Come not Back

Remember three things come not back:
The arrow sent upon its track—It will not swerve, it will not stay its speed; it flies to wound or slay. The spoken word so soon forgot. By thee, but it has perished not; In other hearts 'tis living still. And doing work for good or ill. And the lost opportunity That cometh back no more to thee, In vain thou weepest, in vain dost yearn. Those three will never more return.—From the Arabic.

The Bible Beyond Fashion

The little pleasantries about the Gideon Bibles placed in hotels for the spiritual comfort and guidance of the guests always remaining in good condition because never used, evidently has an element of fiction in it, if the story of the experience of a fashionable hotel in Chicago is true, remarks the Houston Post-Dispatch. As The Post-Dispatch tells the story:
"The management of the establishment refused to accept the Bibles from the Gideons for its guest-rooms on the ground that the patronage would be of such a high type that they would not be needed. But soon the patrons of such high type made so many complaints about the absence of Bibles in the rooms, that the management found it necessary to supply them. The Bible has long had the reputation of being the 'best seller' among books, and even to-day when literature is poured from the presses by the ton, it retains its place as the leader. Perhaps one reason is that people do not get either too high or too low in the social scale to find comfort and inspiration within its pages."

The Bible Beyond Fashion

The little pleasantries about the Gideon Bibles placed in hotels for the spiritual comfort and guidance of the guests always remaining in good condition because never used, evidently has an element of fiction in it, if the story of the experience of a fashionable hotel in Chicago is true, remarks the Houston Post-Dispatch. As The Post-Dispatch tells the story:
"The management of the establishment refused to accept the Bibles from the Gideons for its guest-rooms on the ground that the patronage would be of such a high type that they would not be needed. But soon the patrons of such high type made so many complaints about the absence of Bibles in the rooms, that the management found it necessary to supply them. The Bible has long had the reputation of being the 'best seller' among books, and even to-day when literature is poured from the presses by the ton, it retains its place as the leader. Perhaps one reason is that people do not get either too high or too low in the social scale to find comfort and inspiration within its pages."

Canada's Interest in U.S. Elections

Presidential and congressional elections in the United States will be closely followed in Canada, especially by the political wing which has never ceased to favor reciprocity between the two countries although the movement has of late fallen rather into the discard. It was on the reciprocity issue that the former Laurier government went down to defeat; reciprocity is included in the official programme both of the Liberal and the Progressive parties.

Scarcely had the present King government assumed office when Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance and one of the negotiators of the abortive reciprocity agreement of 1911, went to Washington to sound out the land. He had conversations with members of the Harding administration but returned without any new proposals looking to reciprocity and convinced that, under conditions existing at the time, nothing further could be done in the way of negotiation.

But Mr. Fielding persisted. In the last budget he brought down, that of 1923—Mr. Fielding, although still Minister of Finance, has been on the sick list for some months—he made provision for reciprocal rates between Canada and the United States on cattle, wheat, flour, oats, barley, potatoes, onions, turnips, hay and fish. His measure provided that if the President of the United States, under the authority of the tariff act of 1922, reduced duties on the articles mentioned, when imported from Canada, the Canadian government would be authorized to make reciprocal compensation. And there, so far as Canadian legislation is concerned, the matter stands at present.

Tariff legislation which followed on the last presidential election dealt a severe blow to the flow of Canadian agricultural products to the United States. In the ten months ended July 1923, or before the Fordney emergency bill showed its effect, Canada exported farm products to the United States to the value of $168,101,000. In the corresponding period a year later, with the Fordney bill in effect, agricultural exports had dropped to $46,106,000. Under the present United States tariff this class of products has shown some recovery, but it is still far from what it was before the emergency tariff. In the ten months ending July last farm produce exported from Canada to the United States totalled $58,867,000.

Heavy falls in prices of farm products which followed the conclusion of the war have no doubt been partly responsible for the reduction in the value of Canada's exports of these products to the United States. At the same time there is no attempt to minimize the effect which United States tariff legislation has had on Canadian exports south of the boundary.

Results in the coming elections, particularly as they are likely to affect tariff legislation, will therefore be of more than usual interest in Canada.

Executive Meeting

PLAYGROUND AND ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Executive of the Playground and Athletic Association recently formed under the auspices of the St. John's Rotary Club, was held yesterday when the following officers were elected for the first year's operations:— Hon. President—Dr. Vincent Burke. Hon. 1st V.P.—Mr. Geo. Peters. Hon. 2nd V.P.—Mr. C. J. Cahill. Hon. Sec.—Treas.—P. B. O'Neil. A sub-committee, consisting of the above gentlemen and Mr. T. V. Hartnett, were appointed to prepare a budget of the proposed programme of the Association and submit same to the public as early a date as possible. It is estimated that about five thousand dollars will be required for next season's operations, about one thousand dollars of which has already been promised and it is proposed to raise this amount in subscriptions of from one dollar upwards. In view of the great success of the playgrounds conducted the past season at Bannerman and Victoria Parks, the committee do not anticipate much trouble in raising the required amount and it is hoped next season to establish three playgrounds; the additional one being in the centre of the town and there is a possibility of a suitable bathing place for children being made at Rennie's River. The committee have also under consideration the establishing of one or more open air sinks for city children this winter.

The meeting decided that a ladies' auxiliary should be formed and the heads of the various denominations as well as some prominent citizens will be invited to become patrons of the Association.

In addition to the officers named above, the following gentlemen comprise the first year's executive of the Playground Association:—Messrs. R. Ayre, Edgar B. Bowring, Jr., C. C. Doyle, Dr. John Grieve, T. V. Hartnett, R. F. Horwood, Chas. E. Hunt, J. P. Meehan, Harold Mitchell, John O'Toole and Dr. Wm. Roberts.

C.L.B. Promenade Concerts

TWO CONCERTS PER WEEK SCHEDULED.

The C.L.B. Promenade Concert, held in the Prince's Rink on Monday night, was a splendid success, and was most gratifying to the promoters who are striving their utmost to create a fund to obtain new uniforms. It is the intention of the Band to hold two concerts per week, Monday and Thursday nights, for the remainder of the autumn season. The programme on Monday night consisted of twelve items, all of which were the popular dance hits of the season. Future concerts will open with some of the world's best operatic selections and classical overtures as well as the usual dance numbers. The Band hopes the music loving people will take advantage of this rare opportunity of passing away some pleasant hours in the spacious arena during the cool autumn evenings.

Amongst those present who contributed numbers, and which helped to make the evening so enjoyable, were as follows:—Selection, Mr. Walker; Song, Mr. Wylie; Recitation, Miss Alma Ivan; Song, Miss Vera Driscoll; Exhibition, Mr. Morgan; Song, Miss Churehill; Recitation, Miss F. Cummings; Dance, Miss Hemmeon; Dust, Misses Churchill and Driscoll; Spoon Selection, Mr. Walter Driscoll; Dance, Miss Bugden, besides selections by the M. G. Band.

REHEARSING CONCERT AND OPERETTA.

The pupils of the Schools of St. Patrick's convent, we understand, are rehearsing for a concert and operetta, which is to be staged on the nights of the 15th, and 16th, inst. The rehearsals are being supervised by Mrs. Mary McCarthy Gomez, the talented musician, who has so often in the past delighted St. John's audiences; and it goes without saying that a treat is in store for all who will attend these performances to be presented under such excellent management.

Particulars of Tragedy at Battle Harbor

FISHING CREWS RETURNED SOUTH BY THE SHIP.

The Meigle which arrived in port last night, brought particulars of a tragedy which occurred at Battle Harbor during the latter part of August, when a 18 year old girl named Gerlie Turner, of St. Brendan's was burned to death. She had been engaged for the voyage as cook on the schr. Brigget, and on the day of the fatality went in the forecast to get some clothes pins that were on a shelf behind the stove. In reaching over the stove her clothes caught fire. She immediately rushed on deck and began running backward and forward and calling for help. None of the schooner's crew were on board at the time, some of them being on shore while the others were away squid jigging.

The girl's frantic cries attracted the attention of a man on shore who yelled out to her to jump overboard and he would rescue her. The girl did not heed the advice, and tried to put the fire out by upsetting the water barrel on board. Finally she attempted to get overboard but held on to the rail of the schooner and only her lower extremities went in the water. As she went over the side the flame shot upwards, around her with greater force than ever. Men from the shore came to her assistance in the meantime, but the shock of the burning had left her in a terrible condition. She was rushed to the (General Hospital) at Battle Har., where all possible was done for her, but she died within three days. The body was brought up by the Meigle the last trip and the father and sister came along with the corpse.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

Oct. 7th.—This day to lunch with the Motor Association and a goodly company present to hear Mr. Cocker discourse on the prevention of motor coach fires. Amongst others there are Sir P. McGrath and Mr. Russell, the Minister of Works. Talking awhile with Mr. Tooton, he makes known to me a Mr. White, that is here to take divers panoramic pictures which, I believe, he does well. Mr. Cocker makes a most excellent discourse, and indeed surprises me mightily by some of the things he says. And one of these, that the vapour from 1 gallon of gasoline has an explosive force equal to 75 pounds of dynamite. But, Lord, while I do not in the least doubt Mr. Cocker's statement nevertheless, did I doubt it, I would make no test of it. Anon, going to my office, see the Fire Brigade's parade, but while the parade is mighty impressive yet the noise of the pipes so horrible that I must put my hands to my ears till the engines have passed. This night, Mr. Hatchings, the Inspector General, discourses on fire prevention to the Brigades, and his address mighty interesting. But Lord, with all this talk of fire prevention and now the city grows more safe each day, it rattles me that we do have no reduction in our fire rates.

Trinity Enterprise Changes Hands

Since our last issue we have received letters from a gentleman asking us to sell out the Trinity Enterprise Printing Plant, and after carefully considering the matter over, we have decided to sell our Plant, and this will be the last issue under the present ownership. In a few weeks, or as soon as matters are finalized, our press will be packed and shipped away from Trinity. This, we regret to have to do. But we have tried to do our best since first we started the Enterprise but we have not always received the help, from our fellow-townsmen, we should have received. However we have got thus far, and to all those who contributed to our columns, all down through the years, we extend our grateful thanks. And to the merchants and others who favored us with their advertising patronage, we say, thank you, gentlemen.—Trinity Enterprise, Oct. 3rd.

Mt. Cashel Promenade Band Concert

The Mount Cashel Band will open their first Promenade Band Concert for the season in the Prince's Rink, to-night, October 8th. The admission will be 20c. and no doubt there will be the usual large attendance present, as their concerts in Bannerman Park this season smashed all records so far as attendance goes, which amply proves their popularity. Therefore don't miss the opening night, to-night, Oct. 8th, m.w.

The Prizes donated by H. D. Reid, Esq., to the City Championship Crew at St. Joseph's Regatta, will be presented in St. Joseph's Hall, Thursday evening at 8.30. All interested are cordially invited to be present.

Meigle From Labrador

FISHING CREWS RETURNED SOUTH BY THE SHIP.

The steamer Meigle, Capt. Burgess, arrived from the Labrador Mail Service at 9 o'clock last night, after a rather pleasant passage of 19 days. The ship made all ports of call as far north as Hopedale. At the latter port she was delayed four days to connect with the H. A. Walker, from Northern Labrador. Capt. Burgess reports the fishery has been very good on the whole. The floaters have done well, but the stationery did poorly. The fishery is now over on the Coast, and the Meigle brought back crews from no less than fifty-one harbours between Hopedale and Square Islands. The passenger list coming south was the largest since the ship's first west on the service. Most of the passengers were landed at Conception Bay points. The balance of the fishermen will be brought south by the Earl of Devon. While the ship was at Battle Har. the Bowlin arrived from the Arctic with Explorer Masgrew on board. The following passengers arrived at this port:—G. Hampton, G. Taylor, Capt. E. Bishop, Mrs. (Capt.) Hann, C. Moakler, J. Boone, A. Hodgkins, Dr. Gladney, H. Snelgrove and five in steerage.

The Meigle will sail North again on Friday and expects to make two more trips to the Labrador before navigation closes.

First Spruce Beer Case

The first prohibition case in the history of the C. D. Court in which the defendant was charged with selling spruce beer overproof, occupied the attention of Judge Morris this morning. The accused who is a widow, keeps a store on Water Street, East. The Government analyst gave evidence of samples of the beer being 1% over the standard allowed by law. The drying days of the Prohibition Law being near at hand and in view of the fact that the defendant had been selling beer for the past 25 years without a complaint, the Judge suspended sentence. It was stated in evidence that the accused took precautions to keep her home brew within the limit of the law and, in this connection had consulted with an analyst.

PEKY GOVERNMENT TROOPS HANDICAPPED BY LACK OF AMMUNITION.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 7. The Chekiang Province armies, today were threatened with the loss of the city of Shanghai for the second time within a month, and were rushing reinforcements southward to check the latest aggressions of their Kiangsu enemies. Although the Red Cross Units, who had been following up the fighting near Sung Kiang, 38 miles to the south west on the Shanghai Hangchow railway line were brought back to Shanghai to-day the Defense Headquarters at Lunshwa, south of the city denied there had been any checking report in the Sung Kiang Sector. It was admitted, however, that the situation around Sung Kiang, where the combined Kiangsu, Anhwei forces have almost surrounded the city was serious. It also was admitted that reserves were being rushed toward Sungkiang to check the encircling movement of the enemy. An official statement from Lung Wuh, declared the Kiangsu troops around Sungkiang were handicapped by lack of ammunition because Wu Pu Fu, Military Commander-in-Chief of the Central Government at Peking, to which the three provinces of Kiangsu, Anhwei, and Fukien, owe allegiance, and ordered the ammunitions from the Peiyang arsenal diverted to the north, where he is fighting General Chang Tso Lin of Manchuria.

LABEL PROCEEDINGS AGAINST BRITISH TRAWLER FRED B.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. Libel proceedings were instituted today against the 370 ton British steam trawler Fred B., captured as a wholesale rum runner last Saturday, after Federal officials had asked the State Department at Washington to take steps for the arrest and extradition of the vessel's owner, a Canadian. The United States District Attorney Hayward, instituted the libel proceedings, after R. Merrick, District Dry Chief had made his request for State Department Aid. In papers filed in the Federal District Court, Mr. Hayward charged, the Fred B. had come in contact with the United States boats in waters under this country's jurisdiction. "For purposes of defrauding the United States out of custom taxes," the Fred B. is valued at $100,000 and in the event of her sale, it was said, she would not be released until a $300,000 bond had been deposited with the Government.

COMPLEX POLITICAL SITUATION.

LONDON, Oct. 8. The nation is watching to-day's proceedings in the House of Commons with more than usual curiosity, for upon the result of the debate depends the fate of Great Britain's first Labor Government, and the question is whether the country is to be involved in an immediate election. The debate centers around the Conservative motion of censure, and a Liberal amendment dealing with the Government's withdrawal of the sedition charges against the Editor of a Communist paper. Each party has defined its position in a manner which would seem to make the defeat of the Ministry inevitable, but in reality the situation is extremely complicated and no experienced observer ventures a definite opinion as to the outcome. Political writers in this morning's newspapers give currency to a number of rumors, one of the most striking of which is that Attorney General Hastings, who was responsible for the withdrawal of the prosecution in the Communist case, has a surprise in store which will disconcert the Opposition and carry the Government through triumphantly. Another rumor concerns the attitude of the Liberals, who are said to be getting cold feet, fearing the election would obliterate them at the polls, and accordingly are manoeuvring to keep the Government office. Conservatives also are credited in some quarters with the intention of supporting the Liberal amendment which it had been supposed they would not do. There is an appearance of tactical manoeuvring in progress in all parties. The House meets at 2.45 o'clock this afternoon and a debate is not expected in before 11 p.m. The Laborites have shown themselves to be greatly angered against the Liberals for their attitude in the Communist case and if the debate endsurers much heat adjustment may be necessary.

UNITED STATES SMELTING.

Peer Coal Business Pulled Down Profits During First Eight Months—Nearly $2 a Share Earned on Common, However.

Boston—Had it not been for the depression in its coal department, the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Co. would have made a substantial showing of profits in the first eight months of this year. Cheap fuel all in the West, glutted bituminous markets and a recession in general business militated against anything but mediocre results from its Utah coal subsidiary.

Production in the first eight months of this year of 458,421 tons of coal was 15,159 tons less than in the same period last year. This was an average of 14,27 tons monthly against 61,572 in 1923. Measured against capacity of 1,100,000 tons a year, this reduction tells restricted earnings.

Notwithstanding these adverse factors, the Smelting Co. was helped out by rising silver prices of the past three months and a steady market for lead at 5 cents a pound. In the eight months of Sept. 1 consolidated earnings after interest charges of $3,252,983 showed an increase of $518,372, or more than 18%, over the same time last year. This is the largest eight months' profits for five years.

In line with its policy of liberal reserves, it set aside for depreciation, depletion and amortization $1,431,773, or 40% of consolidated profits; approximately the same percentage as in 1923.

After the period's dividends on the 456,350 shares of 70% preferred of $50 par, final earnings amounted to $686,294, equivalent to $1.95 per share on the 351,115 shares of common stock. This compares with net of $1.48 per share in the same time last year, and of these profits $1.43 per share was earned in the first five months of 1924, singular to note exactly the same amount as in the eight months to Sept. 1, 1923.

Thus United States Smelting—barely breaking even in its coal department—earned at the rate of almost $3 per share on its common after charges and reserves in the eight months just reported. With silver now selling above 70 cents an ounce, with output from its Mexican mines running 100,000 tons of ore a month against under 93,000 tons last year, and with a definite though tiny improvement in the coal markets, Smelting Co. is in fair way substantially to augment its eight months' profits in the balance of this year.

MIDDLE STATES OIL.

N.Y.—Julius M. Mayer, joint receiver with Joseph P. Tumulty of Middle States Oil Corporation, says N. T. Gilbert, ancillary receiver appointed with former Judge Mayer in Oklahoma, Arkansas and Kansas, will be in active charge of the field including Texas, operating from Tulsa.

"Financial and legal affairs, however, are so complicated that it will be considerable time before we can have any intelligent view of the status of Middle States and its many subsidiaries and sub-subsidiaries," Judge Mayer said. "As soon as receivers get better hold of the legal complications and get reports of their experts as to conditions of the properties so as to view the situation in a comprehensive way, they will gladly make this information public. This is the most complicated receivership situation that has ever come to my personal notice."

He added that a survey is now being made of properties.

R. C. Church at Northern Bay

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

A long distance message was received in the city last night from Northern Bay, conveying the information that the splendid Roman Catholic Church at that place had been totally destroyed by fire between 7 and 8 o'clock. How the fire occurred is not known, but it is supposed to have originated from about street wires. The Presbytery and school houses situated on either side of the church were saved. The loss to Rev. Fr. O'Brien and his flock is a very serious one. No further particulars have been received.

Fire Prevention Parade

DEMONSTRATION THIS AFTERNOON.

In connection with Fire Prevention Week, a parade was held yesterday afternoon in which all the city apparatus, except that held in reserve in case of an alarm took part. The following streets were included in the route:—Military Road, Cochrane, Water Street, Patrick Street, Hamilton, Duckworth, Gower Street, Theatres Hill, Monkstown Road, Williams Street, Merrymount Road, Spencer St., Pennywell Road, Prince of Wales Street, LeMarchant and Harvey Roads. Photographs of the apparatus and those taking part in the parade were taken by a special camera by Mr. Lee. The parade which was headed by Inspector General, Hightings, Superintendent of Police O'Neill and Supt. of firemen Kean attracted quite a lot of attention. The different apparatus was decked with mottoes suitable for the occasion. The rate of speed of the parade was five miles per hour.

At 4 o'clock this evening a demonstration will be given at the head of Market House Hill, when the motor pumper will be seen in action. Last night the Inspector General gave an interesting address to the C.L.B. and N.S.D. Highlanders at the C.L.B. Armory on the topic of the day.

Londoners Great Antipodes Sailors

DETACHMENT OF AUSTRALIAN NAVY VISIT EMPIRE CAPITAL BOUSING RECEPTION.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press)—Whitehall was taken possession of yesterday by 800 officers and men of the Australian Navy, who arrived here on the Australian warship Adelaide with the intention of spending two days in the city.

The navy visitors laid a wreath on the cenotaph and then marched to Whitehall, where they were given an official reception.

At the reception the informal costumes of J. H. Thomas, Colonial Secretary, and Sir Joseph Cook, Australian High Commissioner in London, were in striking contrast with the formal uniforms of the high-ranking officials of the Admiralty.

In the course of the official welcome to the Australians, Lord Chelmsford, who was Governor of Queensland from 1905 to 1909 and Governor of New South Wales from 1909 to 1913, reminded them, that although they represented the Australian Navy, their common task included defending the Empire. He mentioned the new arrangement whereby a British cruiser is to go to Australia annually in exchange for an Australian warship which is to be attached to the British Navy.

$30,000,000 Falling Off

IN CUSTOMS AND EXCISE REVENUE THE PAST SIX MONTHS.

OTTAWA, Oct. 1.—There has been a reduction of over thirty million dollars in the revenue collected by the Department of Customs and Excise during the first six months of the present fiscal year. For the month of September alone the falling off is a little less than four and a half millions as compared with the same period last year, while there is a rise of eight hundred thousand over August of the present year.

The total revenue collected for the six months, according to the monthly statement issued by the Department, was $121,213,000 as compared with $151,292,000 for the corresponding period last year.

On the same basis of comparison customs revenue fell off by $69,421,000 to $60,023,000; the sales and $41,763,000; and Inland Revenue other excise taxes from $62,099,000 to $59,427,000.

When comparison is limited to the month of September in the two years, customs duties are seen to have diminished from $11,947,000 to $9,405,000; excise taxes from $10,774,000 to $7,554,000; but on the other hand, the revenue from spirits and tobacco rose from $5,370,000 to $5,611,000.

Children of the Manse

That old and ill-found tradition that the minister's son is more frequently an inmate of prison than of the parsonage is again knoeked in the head by "Who's Who" for the current issue of that roster we learn that the manse is a good stepping-stone to fame. In order to secure information concerning the comparative success of clergymen's sons, the editors of "Who's Who" sent out a questionnaire to all those whose names appeared in the edition of 1922-1923, asking them the occupation of their fathers. On the basis of the returns received, we read, it appears that 2,695 persons, or 11.1 per cent. in the volume for 1922-1923 were the children of clergymen. In addition a considerable number of the replies contained the terms, "farmer and preacher," "teacher and preacher," etc. It is noted further in a brief study of the fatherhood of American notables prepared for the latest volume of "Who's Who" by Prof. Stephen S. Visser, of Indiana University, that "At the 1870 census (the one nearest the birth of most of these notables) there were about 40,100 Protestant clergymen in America (including part-time clergymen). This was about 0.4 per cent. of all the men. Thus it follows that in proportion to population, clergymen fathered fully twenty-eight times the average number of notables. About the year 1870 one Protestant clergyman in every fifteen had a child who later won a place in 'Who's Who' in America. Hence Protestant clergymen about 1870 contributed in proportion to their numbers about 2,400 times as many eminent persons as did unskilled laborers, thirty-five times as many as did farmers, four times as many as did business men, and over twice as many as the average of other professional men."

Two radically different interpretations, we are told by this investigator, have been offered concerning the comparative value of the several elements of the population in the production of notable men:

"Fulton, Davenport, and certain other biologists have believed that heredity is of prime importance and hence that the notable men come from the intellectually superior elements of the population, which are concentrated in certain types of occupations and places. On the other hand, Ward, Cattell, Davies and others have emphasized the importance of the environment. Ward believed that there were 200 times as many men inherently capable of becoming eminent as in fact become notable. Similarly, Cattell believes 'America can have as many high-class scientific workers as we will give suitable opportunities to.' On this basis of environment, the conditions revealed by the present study indicate not differences in ability, but, instead, differences in educational opportunities, encouragement and leisure for constructive work. The high rank of clergymen may thus be due to superior opportunities along these lines, supplemented by helpful home training in serious thinking, thrift and expression."

100 Guards Watch

Bordeaux Jail

FIVE CORDONS MOUNTED AND ON FOOT MOUNT GUARD OVER BANDITS.

A closely invested fortress defended by a garrison ready to fight to the last gasp might well look like a piking little piece of musical comedy if set in comparison with Bordeaux Jail as it is, since the dismissal of the bandits' appeals yesterday.

A dozen guards are posted on the walls of the prison, and are within earshot of each other day and night, each fully armed. Sixteen more are constantly patrolling the grounds within the walls of the prison yard, and fifty are on duty inside the jail, guarding the death cells.

Chief of Provincial Detectives Lorain declared this morning that he is collaborating with Governor Seguin in redoubling the precautions at the jail, and they have now a complete detail of 100 guards and detectives on duty. Within a space of three hundred yards encircling the entire farm that is part of the prison property close to the jail wall, fifteen guards and detectives patrol day and night. Four others are stationed at stated distances from each other on the farm and far away on the outskirts encircling the farm the walls and the prison, three mounted guards on horse-back patrol back and forth warding off visitors and looters in the vicinity of the jail.

Every man of the 100 inside and outside the jail carries a Winchester Rifle loaded and ready for instant use should anyone be bold enough to move forward once the order to halt has been given. The menace of a hundred rifles in the hands of the police and guards five cordons of them, is expected to call a halt to any attempt to escape from within and ward off and help from without.

The extraordinary precautions were in force this morning and will continue until the fate of the bandits is sealed by the hangman's rope October 24, or else mercy allowed by a final move to stay the execution.—Montreal Star.

"The business and professional men fathered sixteen times, respectively, the number of notables that would be expected on the basis of the small proportion they made of the population. Farmers, on the other hand, fathered about one-fourth less than their proportionate share, but the farmers did much better than other manual workers, contributing two and a third times as many as skilled and semi-skilled laborers and seventy times as many as the nearly one-half of all the men of the nation who were classed as unskilled laborers.

"Express in other words, the production of these notables by the higher type of laborers was about thirty times as great in proportion to population as by the unskilled laborers, whereas the farmers did seventy times as well as the unskilled laborers, business 600 times as well, and professional men 1,400 times as well. Thus, although only one unskilled laborer in about 37,500 (about the year 1870) fathered a son or daughter sufficiently noteworthy to win a place in 'Who's Who,' one skilled laborer in 1,250 had that distinction, one farmer in 550, one business man in sixty-two, and one professional man in twenty-seven."—Literary Digest.

"A study of the returns reveals that 4,288, or 25.9 per cent. of these were born on farms; 5,944, or 34.5 per cent., were born in villages and towns with a population of less than 8,000; 6,045, or 24.8 per cent., were born in small cities; 5,001, or 20.6 per cent., were born in large cities (over 50,000); and 996, or 4.1 per cent., were born in suburbs of large cities.

"At the 1870 census, the census nearest the birth of most of the notables, about 10 per cent. of the population of the United States lived in cities of over 50,000; 10.3 per cent. in small cities (8-50,000); 3.2 per cent. in villages up to 8,000, and about 69.9 per cent. on farms. The suburbs are estimated to have contained about 1 per cent. of the population.

"In proportion to population, the large cities yielded 21 times as many notables as the average for the nation, the small cities 2.3 times as many, villages three times as many, and suburbs four times as many, but the strictly rural sections (farms) yielded only one-third the nation's average. Express in another way, in proportion to population, the cities contributed nearly six times as many notables as did the farms, whereas villages contributed nearly nine times as many, and suburbs nearly eleven times as many as the farms.

"This does not prove that early life on a farm was not conducive to future eminence. Numerous bits of information indicate that a large share of the older American notables spent part of their youth on farms and considered that these experiences have been helpful in their development. Many, indeed, have spoken of themselves as having been reared on a farm when in fact they were born in a village or city and merely spent part of their formative period working on a farm, usually during their summer vacations."

"Of the fathers of the notables listed who replied to the questionnaire, 8,546, or 35.2 per cent., were business men; 3,327, or 13.3 per cent., were professional men; 5,851, or 23.4 per cent., were farmers; 1,530, or 6.5 per cent., were skilled or semi-skilled laborers; but only 121, or 0.4 per cent., were unskilled laborers. Seventy-three were reported as men of leisure. At the 1870 census, writes Professor Visser, about 5 per cent. of America's men were business men; about 25.5 per cent. were farmers (not including farm laborers, of which there were about an equal number); and 18 per cent. were skilled or semi-skilled laborers, while 45 per cent. were unskilled laborers. As the statistician proceeds with his summary:

"The extraordinary precautions were in force this morning and will continue until the fate of the bandits is sealed by the hangman's rope October 24, or else mercy allowed by a final move to stay the execution.—Montreal Star.

C. L. B. Cadets

The Church Lads welcomed the Mid. Highland Brigade last night, who paraded under Captain Spry, at the Armoury. All ranks were delighted to see them join and listen to Chas. H. Hutchings, Esq., O.B.E., Inspector General of Constabulary and Chief of the Fire Department, who addressed both Brigades on the subject of Fire Prevention.

The Inspector General was a welcome guest and the Brigades were pleased to have been given an address by the Chief of the Fire Brigade, generally. He spoke twenty minutes and began by paying a compliment to the City Brigades who are doing good citizenship generally in the direction of discipline, honesty and character.

The Inspector General said that the Brigades deserved credit for their work in the war and he took special pleasure in the fact that he had the honour to enroll the first man in the 10th N. S. Highland Regiment, Captain L. Stick, who was still doing a man's part and playing a man's game as a member of the C.L.B. The Inspector General asked the co-operation of the Newfoundland Highlanders and the C.L.B. to aid him in "fighting the good fight" against carelessness in the matter of dealing with fire. At the close of his address Lt.-Col. Walter F. Rendell, C.B.E., Officer Commanding on behalf of both Brigades tendered their thanks for the address of the Fire Chief, and assured him of their assistance generally towards his objective.

The following officers were on duty besides the O.C., Brigade Major Williams, Captain Stick, Adjutant, P. B. Rendell, Fred W. Burden, M.D. C.M. O.; Harold Hayward; Lieuts. A. B. Perlin, M. Job Taylor, W. R. Mott and Eric Jerrett, and 149 all ranks.

We also had a visit last night from Mr. A. Tooton and A. Reid. The latter is a professional photographer from Windsor, N.S., who photographed a large number of the Canadian Regiments at their military camps. They were shown over the Armoury by the Brigade Major. On Sunday next at 2.15 photographer Reid will take a panoramic view of the Brigade, Old Comrades and Battalion Bands, on the Parade Ground. The Brigade Staff asks every officer and lad to be on duty Sunday afternoon at 2.15 sharp. After the photograph the Brigade attends service in the Cathedral at 3 p.m. The Cathedral Men's Bible Class will also be present at the service. Captain Stick, Adjutant, is sending an invitation to Spencer College and the Girls' Friendly Guide Companies to participate in Sunday's parade.

Trinity East—Port Rexton Company is the first Company to report for September. They have 39 on the strength, and an average of 35 per cent attendance. A Church parade was held and as the Church was three miles away the Company did a six mile route march, and what the day was warm—the lads acquitted themselves like real soldiers. Lance Corporal G. Day has resigned in order to proceed to King's University, Windsor Nova Scotia, to pursue his studies, and we wish him good luck. Captain Fitzgerald, O.C., is holding an examination of lads for N.C.O.'s rank on October 9th. We hope all the lads will get their passes. Congratulations Trinity East—Port Rexton on your report.

Captain A. S. Lewis, Manager of the Savings Bank Department reports for September as having 170 depositors with $3457.92 to their credit. The Bank pays four per cent on all accounts.

The Old Comrades have had their constitution and bye laws recently printed. All members wanting a copy will please apply to the Secretary. The object of this Branch is to help the C. L. B. to encourage fellowship and recreation.

Headquarters, St. John's are in receipt of a copy of the annual report of the governing body for the year ending December 31, 1923.

Captain Stick lectures next Thursday night to the N. C. O.'s, on the great war and particularly about July first at Beaumont Hamel. The Adjutant is also arranging a stag card party on October 27th in the gymnasium. The Ladies' Auxiliary are

Jackie Coogan at the Nickel To-Morrow

IN HIS GREAT PHOTOPLAY "A BOY OF FLANDERS."

"A Boy of Flanders," the new Jackie Coogan photoplay which will be shown at the Nickel Theatre to-morrow, is sure to delight both young and old.

Its comedy touches will make them chuckle with joy, its pathos will tug at the heartstrings, and the general effect will be to send them away satisfied and gratified that they saw the film.

King or pauper, Jackie is never found wanting. As the poor little orphan burdened with the care of a household and the worry "of making both ends meet"; entrusted with the selling of the family wares and the difficult task of cheering up a failing grandfather, Jackie is provided with a role which gives him innumerable opportunities to demonstrate his pantomimic ability and never once does he fall short.

Surrounded by a picturesque Flemish background, the little fellow radiates added charm. The story, simple as it still well within the scope of the youngster and fits him admirably. The juvenile romantic theme is simply delicious. The subtle flirtation between little Nello and the landowner's daughter, Alois, will make everyone sigh and smile. It is a delicate touch delicately handled, and admirably portrayed.

Yes, there is no doubt about it, this newest Jackie Coogan film is a winner. Do not fail to see it at the Nickel. It will be shown three days only commencing to-morrow.

Is the World Growing Worse

Recent history and perusal of the daily page incline not a few observers to believe that the world is growing worse; that Christianity is falling; that our civilization is "predominating pagan." Such sweeping statements do not seem to the Nashville Christian Advocate (Methodist) to be true, and The Herald of Christian Liberty, taking a look at history, remembers:

"Seventy-five years ago many of the clergy were supporting slavery as a divine institution. Most of them were silent upon the liquor traffic or aiding it or even engaged in it. Children of six labored eleven hours a day in the mills of England, victims of cruel greed, turned out by the guardians of the poorhouses for the purpose. Mission was opposed by the 'clergy' or lukewarmly supported. The Church was not critical of war. There were few welfare organizations, and those that existed were weak. Prisons were hotbeds of cruelty and vice. There was no Red Cross Society then. Corruption was rife in politics. Business was tricky. Every one with a knowledge of history knows that the public conscience of to-day is much nearer the spirit of Christ than it was then."

Gratitude or Ingratitude Toward General Pershing

As the clock strikes noon, Saturday, I retire; that's all there is to it," said General Pershing, but the newspapers feel that there is vastly more to it, and scores of them denounce the military law that deposes a great chieftain solely because he is sixty-four years old. "Shilly" the Brooklyn Eagle calls it, while the Indianapolis News says General Pershing, "is younger to-day by nearly three years than Foch was when he took supreme command of the Allied Armies," and adds, "A careful observer who spent some time with him last week reported that he had the light step of an athlete, an iron grip, and the chest, weight and eyes of a man of forty." Meanwhile, the Tacoma Ledger remarks, "The age limit is defended upon the ground that men beyond sixty-four could not endure field service," and continues: "That may be true, but generals of the army would never be called upon to perform field service even in a great war." Several papers scent politics, and the Cleveland Plain Dealer observes:

"No business firm would discharge a tried and efficient employee merely because he had passed his sixty-fifth birthday. But Army rules are rules, unelastic as the laws of the Medes and Persians; when it comes to a matter of Congressional action there are enough votes swayed by the pacifist element and other special and petty vindictive elements to prevent the doing of the sensible and gracious thing."

Reminding us that "a bill was introduced in Congress to keep General Pershing on the active list," a Tennessee paper declares, "It is a shame the bill was not passed. Pershing should remain Commander-in-Chief until he dies. Only death can retire this man." As vigorously, the Washington Post asserts: "The prompt restoration of General Pershing to active service as General of the Armies, with duties corresponding to that rank is obviously called for. Justice to him and to the national defense demands that he shall be kept in command of the Armies." So thinks the Baltimore Sun, which believes that—

"His retirement is a loss to the country, and there is no doubt that when the public becomes acquainted with the circumstances of his retirement, especially the sharp reduction in his pay, it will demand tardy justice for him. Pershing has stooped to the more obvious devices to obtain popularity; and this fact has strengthened his hold on the country."

The "sharp reduction in pay" leaves him only $10,125 a year, whereas his active-duty income was $21,500. According to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington, "General Pershing will receive on the retired list three-fourths of his active-duty pay of $13,500 a year ($10,125), and he will not receive the allowances, which go only to officers on the active list. The allowances in his case amount to $1,500 a year for heat and light and $6,500 for quarters, making total active pay and allowances $21,500."

The contrast between our treatment of General Pershing and the rewards showered upon their great generals by certain European countries is pointed out by the Memphis Commercial Appeal, which reminds us: "France gave to Foch the baton of a Marshal. More than seventy years old, Foch still commands the Armies of the Republic. England, not unmindful of her own-made Haig, an Earl and gave him an allowance of a million dollars. England rewarded Kitchener for his services in South Africa with an Earldom and a money grant." Moreover,

"Moreover the American people made Washington a full General. They made Scott a full General, and he held command until the Civil War. Grant was made a full General, and would have received a full General's pay for life except for becoming President. When death hovered over him a sympathetic nation restored to him the pay of his high rank."

"Sherman and Sheridan were made full Generals and held the rank and pay until their death."

However, General Pershing receives countless verbal expressions of admiration and gratitude. In a public tribute, President Coolidge says: "General Pershing has already received from the Congress the thanks of that body and of the American people, and now I extend to him anew the thanks of the nation for his eminent services, and feel certain that I voice the sentiment of the entire citizenry of the Republic in wishing him long life, happiness and prosperity in the retirement he has so richly earned." The entire press acknowledges America's indebtedness to him. For example, the Denver Rocky Mountain News says,

The good wishes of the nation go with him. He has done his duty well and modestly. The years will add luster to his name; and he has worked to do still for his country. He will be at hand to remind his countrymen that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, now as heretofore."

The New York World finds "no flaw in his distinguished record, nothing to blot out or regret," and the Providence News says, "With the title of full General, the fifth to hold it since it was created for George Washington, Pershing steps out of harness leaving a record that measures well up with other illustrious Americans whose memory we shall cherish as long as time lasts." As the Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald remarks, "The American people extend to General Pershing their sentiments of heartfelt appreciation for the life he has led and for the credit he has brought upon the American Army and the American people." Joining the universal chorus of applause, Marquis James writes in The American Legion Weekly,

"Frederick Palmer, the noted war correspondent, told me once, 'There are two Pershings—John Pershing, the man and Gen. John J. Pershing, the soldier. I ever hope to meet Gen. John J. Pershing, the soldier, is the best soldier I ever hope to meet.'"—Literary Digest.

Largest Motor Ship The World's

Before the end of the year the Aorangi, the largest and fastest motor-ship yet built, will sail on her maiden voyage across the Atlantic, and thence to Vancouver to take up regular service between that port and Australasia. She will have a Diesel machinery installation nearly three times as powerful as that in any existing motor-ship. These facts are from a descriptive article by the London correspondent of Marine Engineering (New York), parts of which we quote as follows:

"The Aorangi was launched recently from the yard of the Fairfield Shipbuilding and Engineering Company on the Clyde. She is 600 feet in length, with a beam of 72 feet, the displacement being 23,000 tons.

"There are to be four sets of engines, each developing 3,250 horsepower at 125 revolutions per minute. They are of the Sulzer type, each with six cylinders. It is of interest to make a comparison with a similar steam vessel. Maintaining an average speed of seventeen knots, the total fuel consumption of the Aorangi, including that required for the operation of all the auxiliary plant, should not exceed sixty tons per day. It is estimated that an oil-fired geared turbine steamer for the same service would consume 2½ times as much oil, and that, in order to provide equal passenger and cargo accommodation, a vessel some 25 feet longer would have to be constructed.

"In spite of the fact, therefore, that the propelling machinery of the new liner is much more expensive than corresponding steam turbines and boilers, the overall cost of the complete vessel, based on similar carrying capacity and speed, is not very greatly in excess of a steam-driven liner. In this connection, it is an interesting fact that when a new 15,000-ton, 15-knot liner was required by the Rotterdam Lloyd Steamship Company, it was found that the motor-vessel would cost $200,000 more than the steamer, and the order was eventually placed for an oil-engined craft.

"On the Aorangi there will be accommodation for nearly 950 passengers in all, and there will be cabins for 350 first-class and 294 second-class passengers, in addition to a number of inter-changeable cabins which can be utilized for first or second-class as circumstances warrant. All the passenger accommodation will be arranged on the main, upper, lower, shelter and promenade decks, and in the holds there will be space for over 400,000 cubic feet of cargo, of which about one-quarter will be for refrigerated produce.

"The steam and electrical auxiliary machinery will be located in a special auxiliary engine-room forward of the propelling engine-room and separated from it by the fuel tanks, which will have a total capacity of nearly 3,000 tons. All the winches are steam-driven, as well as a considerable proportion of the engine-room pumps, while steam heating will be provided."

The New Speculation in German Bonds

A few days ago the New York newspapers were reporting, to quote one headline, "Fortunes Made by the Poor in Astonishing Skyrocketing of German Securities Here." The New York World told of one man who bought $60,000,000 marks' worth of German war bonds a few months ago for $375, and last month found them worth $87,500. A number of other cases are reported, and there has been a wave of speculative buying of German securities both in Germany and New York. Most responsible brokerage houses in Wall Street are, however, warning investors that while prices may go a little higher, these bonds can not be considered as having any real intrinsic value. As the New York World put it, "Germany must pay untold millions for reparations. Perhaps fifty or a hundred years from now the German Government will have money and inclination to redeem the bonds now being grabbed up here. Meanwhile there is nothing to prevent these bits of paper sinking again to virtual valuelessness."

The speculation is believed to have been fostered by the belief that the Dawes plan would help put Germany back on its feet and therefore strengthen German securities. Most of the issues which have been advancing are municipal, state, and government bonds. A typical advance is that of the Berlin 4 per cent, which in the last three or four months has advanced from $500 for a million marks' worth of bonds to $12,000.

Our newspapers and financial authorities unite in warning against taking these advances too seriously. German bonds at present, says the Brooklyn Eagle, "have no more claim to an investment status than her long since discredited marks." The Wall Street Journal explains that "German internal bonds are not foreign obligations. There is no legal compulsion to pay principal or interest except at the rate of 24 cents to a trillion marks." "Gamblers who buy them rely exclusively on an act of grace by the German Government," and The Wall Street Journal finds it "difficult to understand their mental processes."

In the New York American, Mr. J. P. Maher quotes a New York banker to the effect that "the most important and timely subject in the investment world now is the necessity of warning investors not to put their funds into the pockets of fakers." He explains that the forthcoming $200,000,000 Dawes plan German loan and other legitimate offerings to follow are being taken advantage of by crooked dealers to confuse the public mind and to "unload worthless securities upon the unwary." For instance, a circular has been sent out by one dealer saying, "In our opinion, German securities offer under present conditions remarkable possibilities, probably greater than those offered by American securities in 1920-21." In the same newspaper, another financial writer, Mr. George W. Hinman, tells of receiving numerous inquiries about German municipal, state, and national bonds. Most of these bonds, he declares, are nothing but "a wild-cat speculation." The money that has been made in recent gambling in paper-mark bonds means nothing, we are told. The value simply is "not there," and all the recent sales have "no more business significance than the fact that money is made out of keno or roulette or a Doctor Cook oil duster."

The main reason for the recent advances in German pre-war issues has, according to financial authorities, quoted in the New York Herald Tribune, been purchases by the German Government, municipalities, and business houses. "In the vague hope that in Germany's rehabilitation they will be accorded a small fraction of their pre-war value." In the last Reichstag election some of the political parties made promises of relief to investors in German pre-war bonds. There have been German court decisions insisting on the redemption of bonds and mortgages as a reasonable percentage of their original gold value, and the Reichstag recently passed emergency legislation restoring 15 per cent. of their gold mark value to certain classes of private mortgages and bonds. The chief market for German securities is the Berlin Bourse, according to a news article in the New York Times, which quotes "a New York banking house specializing in German securities in part as follows: The heaviest transactions here are in the German municipal, industrial, and bank securities. The municipal securities are favored because of the asset value behind them. In Germany many of the cities own their utilities, and many of them have large forest reserves, and in the case of the seaport cities the warehouses and piers are city-owned. The cities also have taxing power and large revenue sources from the city-owned projects, which are uncommon in the United States."

Moody's Investors Service has made a careful study of "The Rise and Fall of German Bonds." In this study we are reminded that last year Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines announced that they would redeem their entire funded debt in paper marks at their then value, so that "a debt which had originally yielded about $25,000,000, was to be paid off at some $4,500." This sort of thing naturally brought lawsuits and court decisions; several of the latter insisted that a lender was not bound to accept worthless currency in satisfaction of a debt. But, remarks Moody's, while such degrees (several of which are quoted in length) doubtless facilitated the rise in German bond values this year, and while they are "theoretically interesting," nevertheless they "do not appear to possess much practical value." We are reminded that "it takes more than law and willingness to pay to discharge obligations." And readers are also referred to the report of the Dawes Committee, wherein is stressed "the importance of the virtual extinction of debt in Germany," and where it is said of German industrial obligations that "such indebtedness has for the most part been discharged by nominal payments in depreciated currency, or practically extinguished." In February the German Government issued a decree restoring certain classes of mortgages to 15 per cent. of their gold mark value under certain conditions and restrictions. Government and municipal bonds were specifically mentioned as not being payable "until the settlement of all reparations obligations." The Government recently issued a denial that this 15 per cent. revaluation was to be applied to public bonds. And Moody's reminds us that court decision, not necessarily final, has declared the 15 per cent. decree unconstitutional. Moody's reaches the conclusion, after examining this collection of legal documents, that for all practical purposes there is no hope of recovering an appreciable part of the pre-war value of German bonds. They "are for all practical purposes worthless," and the London Financial Times is quoted by this authority as saying:

German bonds are likely to remain interesting souvenirs rather than serious securities. If people are foolish enough to acquire them, they must be prepared for the consequences, however unpleasant. It may suit the professional speculators to encourage gambling in bonds which no investor would dream of buying. But the public lie who indulge in this kind of wild and irresponsible speculation are bound sooner or later to lament their temerity. The gamble in German bonds, there can be hardly any doubt, is destined to share the fate of the gamble in German marks, with consequences equally distressing and disastrous to participants.

A number of our financial writers point out that as the German pre-war government bond issues can not be paid till after the reparations account is settled, there is little need for the present generation of investors to bother about them. The Bankers Economic Service is inclined to think that eventually there might be a formal repudiation of the state and national issues. The New York Journal of Commerce reminds us that the Dawes report plans for heavy loads of new bond issues which will take the place of these old issues. Under the Dawes receivership, points out the editor of the Financial World, the Commissioners in charge will see to it that none of these pre-war loans will be paid before the claims of the Allies are discharged. And if there are any excess revenues, the Reparations Commission "will be more interested in giving the added wealth to the Allies than in giving it to the holders of defunct German bonds." So the conclusion is that "any gambling orgy reared on the ashes of defunct securities is likely to terminate as disastrously as that of the mark."—Literary Digest.

British Overseas Trade

The distribution of the overseas trade of Great Britain for the year ended June 30, 1924, as between foreign countries and British possessions was almost incidentally the same as in the calendar year 1913, as is shown by statistics published by the British Board of Trade just received through the British Information Service of the Bankers Trust Company of New York. Imports from foreign countries into Great Britain for the year ended June 30, 1924 were 73.25% of the total imports, as against 75.09% in 1913; while the percentage of imports from other parts of the British Empire was 26.75, against 24.91 in 1913. Exports of British produce in the year ended June 30, 1924, were in the ratio of 65.09% to foreign countries, and 34.91% to other parts of the British Empire, as against 62.82% to foreign countries and 37.18% to other parts of the British Empire in 1913. Exports of foreign and colonial produce were in the ratio of 87.80% to foreign countries in 1924 and 12.20% to other parts of the British Empire, comparing with 87.58% to foreign countries in 1913 and 12.42% to other parts of the British Empire. The distribution of trade as between nations was quite different in the two periods. In the year ended June 30, 1924, 1.07% of the imports into Great Britain and Northern Ireland came from Russia, as against 5.24% in 1913. Germany contributed 2.92% to the imports in 1924 and 10.46% in 1913. France contributed 6.70% to the imports of 1924 and 6.03% to those of 1913. The United States contributed 19.83% to the imports of 1924 and 18.43% to those of 1913, while the Argentine contributed 6.15% to the imports of 1924 and 6.53% to those of 1913.

The distribution of the exports of British produce as compared with 1913 shows that in the year ended June 30, 1924, 0.25% went to Russia as against 3.45% in 1913; 6.99% went to Germany in 1924 as against 7.74% in 1913; 5.83% went to France in 1924 as against 5.51% in 1913; while 7.33% of such exports went to the United States in 1924 and 5.58% in 1913. The Argentine took 3.66% of these exports in 1924 and 4.31% in 1913. The distribution of exports of foreign and colonial produce compares as follows for the two periods for the most important countries: Russia 3.50% in 1924 and 8.75% in 1913; Germany 21.83% in 1924 as against 18.09% in 1913; France 15.45% in 1924 as against 10.91% in 1913; United States 17.02% in 1924 as against 27.52% in 1913. Belgium and the Netherlands were important users of colonial produce received through Great Britain, in each period taking for Belgium 9.25% in 1924 as against 6.77% in 1913, and for the Netherlands 6.10% in 1924 as against 4.65% in 1913.

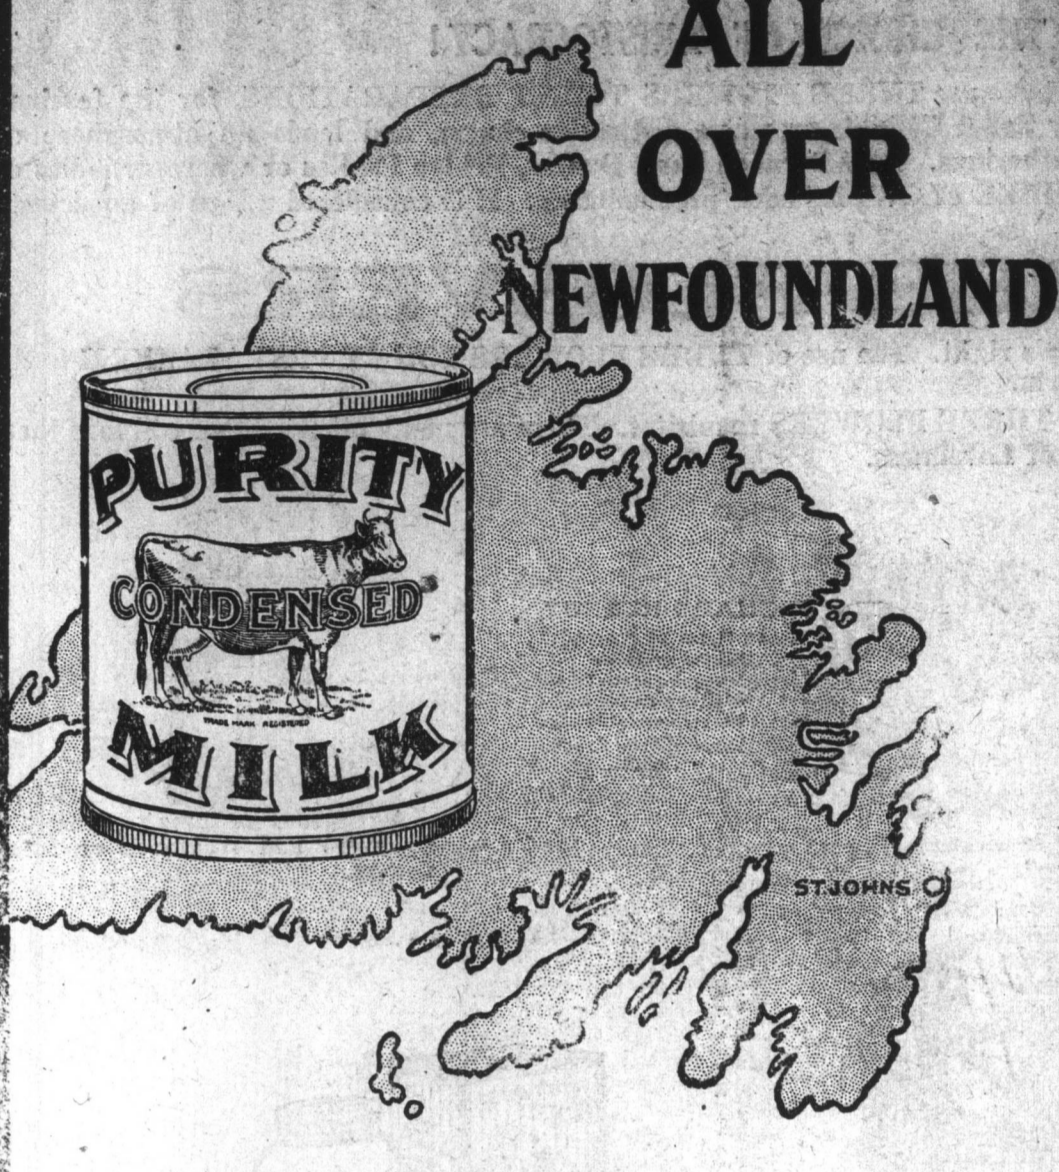

Where the Atmosphere Ends

According to a French astronomer, the atmosphere extends about five hundred and forty miles beyond the earth's surface. Up to about ten miles is found the air as we know it, composed mainly of oxygen, nitrogen, carbonic acid, and a few rare gases. Beyond the ten-mile limit, to a height of sixty miles, nitrogen is the predominant constituent. This region has its storms or winds. Above this layer, extending to one hundred miles or more, is another layer, mostly of hydrogen. At this point scientists had always believed the atmosphere ended, but according to the French astronomer still another dense layer of unknown composition stretches more than 400 miles.

Price as saying that the Hindenburg will be the biggest and finest pontoon they could want to raise the other big ships. In his opinion the Hindenburg is the crux of the problem. If it can be raised, he believes the problem of raising the other big ships at Scapa Flow will virtually be solved. To quote further:

"The twenty-four destroyers are expected to prove a much simpler undertaking. Some time ago Cox & Danks bought from the Admiralty the big floating submarine dock that the Germans surrendered at Harwich. This 400 foot dock was towed to Scapa Flow and cut into two pontoons, each of them 200 feet long and each equipped with its own machine shop. The plan was to range these two pontoons, one on each side of a scuttled destroyer, to fasten steel cables beneath the destroyer's hull and heavy lifting hooks in its portholes, and to haul it bodily to the surface with the winch gear. With an even break in the luck, it was hoped that a couple of days would suffice to bring up a destroyer in this fashion, but thus far luck has broken badly.

"The destroyer V-70 was chosen for a start. Its funnels and masts were taken out, its bow and stern were lifted alternately, and heavy tackle was passed round its hull. The winch-gear had begun to lift it bodily from the bottom when a cable snapped under the tremendous dead weight. Three more cables parted immediately and later the last two cables gave way, their broken links raking the decks of the pontoons like shrapnel and sending the workmen rushing for cover. Mr. Cox said afterwards he had succeeded in lifting the destroyed seven feet off the bottom and he hopes to make another attempt in a fortnight's time.

"Work is beginning also on another destroyer. Here the process will be different. Concrete barges have been placed on both sides of the sunken vessel, the two barges connected by heavy steel girders to which the lifting tackle is attached. It is planned to haul it taut at low water, allowing the tide to lift barges, tackle and submerged destroyer so that the whole works can be towed toward shallow water.

"About 70 workmen are now engaged at Scapa Flow. Before winter interrupts work it is planned to have 100 men on the job."—Literary Digest.

Massing of the Birds

PREPARING FOR WINTER QUARTERS—FLIGHTS OF 5,000 MILES.
The autumn migration of birds, both to and from the British Isles, will soon be in full flow. People already are noticing the gathering of swallows and martins on barn roofs and telegraph wires, which is evidence of the unrest that precedes the journey. The swift and the cuckoo have long gone south-to Africa. The warblers are going now, and many have departed. They come down overland from the northern counties and Scotland to the south coast, and, with a favouring wind, set out overseas.

There are certain jumping-off points on the Dorset and Devon coasts especially, where the journey from England is begun by immense numbers of birds. Start Bay, in South Devon, is one of them. While the birds which travel to Asia and Africa for the winter are leaving us, others, fleeing the rigours of winter in the north, are coming to us, and the coast of East Anglia, particularly Norfolk, is the chief arrival point. Fieldfares and redwings, larks, starlings, woodcock, plovers, rooks, crows, various northern duck and many others winter here. A north wind will bring them in hosts.

It was not known that starlings from Northern Europe migrated to England in the autumn until captured birds were ringed on the leg and liberated.

The swallows now gathering will go to South Africa. Ringing in their case has established the fact of great migrant flights, such as from Berkshire and Lancashire to Cape Province, Yorkshire to East Griqualand, Staffordshire to Natal.

Raising the German Fleet

Work has begun on the ambitious scheme to raise the German fleet, scuttled June 21, 1919, at Scapa Flow. If it proves successful, the raised vessels are to be broken up and sold as "scrap." Clair Price, writing from London to the New York Times, says that even the teak lining of their armour-plate will be salable, for it can be used in the making of parquet flooring. Operations, Mr. Price tells us, are still in an experimental stage. The British Admiralty has sold two of the scuttled battle cruisers, the Hindenburg and the Seydlitz, each of 27,000 tons, and twenty-four destroyers, presumably of 1,000 tons each, to the London Iron and steel firm of Cox & Danks. The vessels have been sold as they lie, on the bottom at Scapa, and the only proviso which the admiralty has imposed is that, if raised, they are to be broken up in the United Kingdom. We read on:

"The purchasers expect to know before the year ends whether or not it is possible to raise the vessels they have bought. That they believe it is possible is shown by the fact that they have already spent the equivalent of $150,000 on preparations to raise them. If it does prove possible, the rest of the scuttled ships are to be raised. How long this will take is problematical. It may easily run to eight or nine years.

"The Hindenburg and Seydlitz have been chosen because of the positions in which they lie. If it proves impossible to raise the Hindenburg, the project of raising any of the big ships will have to be abandoned. The Hindenburg lies on an even keel in sixty-six feet of water, its turrets, guns and funnels above water, its main deck awash at low tide. The Seydlitz presents a more difficult salvage job. It lies on its side, about a third of it is in sight above the water.

"Ever since they were scuttled, five years ago, these German ships have figured intermittently in the proceedings of the Reparation Commission and the Supreme Council. The Council agreed in principle that they should be raised and broken up, the proceeds to be divided among the Allies. The proportion which each Ally was to receive, however, has never been decided upon, and the Admiralty's present action has been taken upon its own initiative, the proceeds going to the Admiralty itself.

"The contract under which the purchasers have begun work involving the raising of more than 60,000 tons, one of the biggest salvage jobs ever undertaken, and one of the most difficult.

"Two divers began an examination of the Hindenburg in June. They found it still intact, even to the bunks in the officers' rooms and the champagne bottles in the ward-room. Five years of submersion, however, had made the big battle cruiser a jungle of seaweed, barnacles and mussels. Seaweed was found trailing to fifteen foot lengths throughout the ship. Sand and mud had drifted through the portholes in huge heaps. The ship was known to be in very bad shape when it was surrendered in 1918, and it was approaching the scrap stage before it was scuttled.

"The first operations in the process of its raising is to be the closing of all its sea-inlets with wooden plugs and concrete and metal patches. This will not be an easy task, for the purchasing firm has no plans of the ship, and the divers will have to burrow down into the shingle under its engine-room to locate its sea-cocks.

"When all inlets have been plugged up, a steel tube six feet in diameter is to be sunk to the main deck, and bolted down. A hole is then to be cut through the deck with electric torches, and similar holes are to be cut through the lower decks until the bottom of the big cruiser is reached. When each deck has been cut through electric pumps, capable of lifting 5,000 tons of water an hour are to be lowered into the vessel, and the work of pumping out will begin.

"Whether the divers have succeeded in finding every sea inlet will then be ascertainable. If the pumps are found to make no impression on the water in the ship the hull will have to be searched again for inlets. The task has considerable danger, for barnacles and mussels are sharp, and loose wreckage when disturbed sometimes rises violently.

"Once the cruiser begins to lift of its own buoyancy its weight will be thrown upon its watertight bulkheads. And it remains to be seen whether the Germans succeeded in damaging these before they scuttled the ship. If the bulkheads hold, the ship is to be carried toward shallow water on each tide until it is in a convenient position to be floated normally. The chief difficulty in this process is that the heavy top weight of the guns and turrets may make it impossible to keep the ship on an even keel. As soon as it can be settled in shallow water all the heavy top hamper is to be taken off."

ARE WE THINNESS MAD!

Sometimes it seems as if the world has gone thinness mad. You meet a young girl who appears to you to have a perfectly charming figure. If you were asked to go without stopping to go further as your casual impression whether she was under weight or over weight, you would say that you thought she was under weight. And then when the lady is passed around you are astonished to hear her say: "Oh no, I'm steady!"

"For goodness sake, why?"

"My dear, haven't you noticed it?"

"Noticed what?"

"I'm getting fat, I'm perfectly honest."

Washing Out Green Vegetables.

If you find your middle-aged friend who is of the weight that used to be considered comely and suitable for middle-aged women (when there were such things as middle-aged women) washing out a lot of green vegetables in little scales. "What are you going to do with those?" you say. And she answers: "This is my new diet. I simply cannot get anything to look neat on me and I'm going to reduce. This is my dinner."

One is reminded by her provender that well known personage who a time "ate grass as oxen" and one wonders if when he came to himself and he was rewarded by finding himself down to bantam weight.

I heard a refreshing incident the other day.

A friend of mine who in spite of a strong tendency toward embonpoint said that word because I think it is the fattest word I ever heard) has managed by most stringent methods to keep her figure slim and smart, she sitting on a park bench one day when a very large woman sat down beside her.

She Didn't Want To Reduce!

My friend looked at her pityingly a few minutes and then, moved by a desire to help, drew her into a conversation and in the course of it told her of her success in reducing and offered to tell her something about her method.

Said the other woman placidly: "That is very kind of you and I appreciate your motives, but really I don't want to reduce. I am a widow and I don't need to worry about my husband's not loving me because I am fat. I know I can't look young but

Tribute to Cardinal Wolsey

Splendid immunity from sickness characterizes the residents of Hampton Court. This condition of affairs is said to be due largely to the sagacity and foresight of Cardinal Wolsey. The most authentic history of the palace extant states that before choosing the site of his country house the Cardinal consulted all the most eminent physicians of the day, who were unanimously in favor of Hampton Court. Taking no chances Wolsey planned a drainage system so good that it lasted until 1871, and brought a water supply from Coombe Hill at a cost of $250,000. No wonder the Court and those in it passed unscathed through epidemics of the plague, the sweating sickness, smallpox and cholera during nearly 400 years.

Social Lions

A BIT OF HISTORY SHOWING HOW THE TERM CAME INTO USE.

When you refer to a popular man in society as a "social lion" did you know that you are drawing on a bit of very remote history for the expression? The lion is anything but a social beast, and the figurative use of his name to designate a popular person came down to us in a most curious and roundabout way.

When Henry III. came to the throne of England, in 1216, there was a curious dispute as to the significance of the figures entering into the armorial bearings of Great Britain. There were three animals, "passant gardant," and they were spoken of as leopards. As a matter of fact, they were supposed to be lions. It was argued that there had been three leopards in the Tower of London in the reign of William the Conqueror and that these had given the motto for the emblem. Or it might have been that the Norman oppressor kept three leopards as a concession to the Saxons he had subjugated.

Whatever the facts may be, Henry was satisfied that the conventionalized animals on seals, banners and coins were really lions, and in order to impress the fact he had three live and unmistakable "monarchs of the desert" brought to London and placed in the Tower. It at once became the fashion to visit the lions. When guests from out of the city were being entertained the great treat was that of a visit to the "lions of the Tower." After the sight had become commonplace and the meaning of the animals had been lost to sight the phrase remained. The "lion" was a statesman, actor or some other celebrity who held popular favor.

UNIVERSAL WOE.

There is no place on all the globe entirely free from care, where no one walls and tears his robe, and none is known to swear. Misfortune sometimes spills our beans and desolates our day, and then we sigh for distant scenes, for islands far away. And if we reached those isles remote, in another hemisphere, we'd find that man can lose his goat as quickly there as here. There is one kind of grief at home, another far away; there is one sort of woe in Rome, another in Cathay. So when we leave our native state to dodge one brand of woe, we find another just as great, wherever we may go. When I lived in a frigid clime I raised a loud lament; my whiskers, full of frost and rime, would break when they were bent. I longed to live where bitter storm would never chant its lull, where even winter would be warm. December seem like June. I longed my bungalow to build where blizzards never beat, where human whiskers are not filled for weeks with chimney sleet. At least my yearning dreams came true. I took the westward track, and by the ocean, dim and blue, I built my humble shack. And here no bitter arctic gale disturbs the smiling sea, and flowers and sunshine still prevail when other regions freeze. And still I fill the air with sighs as to and fro I trot; there are no frosts to kill the flies, which wearily I swat.

Vaudeville Artists at the Majestic

KEITH HEADLINERS WILL APPEAR TO-MORROW.

Last night at the Majestic Theatre the old Blaney stage success, "Only A Shop Girl," was presented in picture form.

All of the old bits of pathos, humor and action were retained and if anything improved upon. Strict adherence to the story as it was originally produced has been the order of the director in the screening of "Only A Shop Girl," but the scenic effects are far ahead of anything that could be accomplished on the speaking stage. The cast, composed of nine stellar lights of the picture firmament, is more than usually competent, and the work of the company tells little short of perfection. Estelle Taylor, Mae Busch, Wallace Berry, James Morrison, Tully Marshall, Claire Dubrey, Willard Louis and others have helped to make this production what it is—a first-class picture presented in first-class style.

To-morrow the well recommended vaudeville team, Strad and Legato who have just completed a successful engagement at Boston will arrive by S. S. Rosalind. Keith's is the byword in world vaudeville and the local connection is the Majestic Theatre, St. John's. With these artists a complete change of picture program is also booked. Note: Strad and Legato are bringing their own special scenery and effects.
