NEVER at this time of year has the cost of butter in Ontario been so high as it is at present. And why has the price steadily advanced in recent years? The pasture has not been poor every year.

THE old penalty of $1 and costs, or 10 days, will no longer grace the police court records under the new Ont. Temperance Act. The new act, which it is understood supersedes all previous legislation, establishes a minimum penalty of $10, which must be imposed on any one found drunk.

AN ANONYMOUS LETTER letter addressed to "Parliament Buildings" was received in Ottawa. In rambling, illiterate language the writer warns that he intends blowing up the new Parliament buildings this month. He states he is a German and fired the old buildings. The cranks are still with us.

THE AMOUNT of business that the mail order houses get from any community depends proportionately upon the aggressiveness of the local merchants. In these times it is a good investment for the home merchant to follow the example of the mail order houses and spend a little money in inviting patronage and advertising his goods.

THE Wingham people are certainly great boosters for their Fall Fair. Seventeen merchants and citizens gave $10.00 each; fourteen gave $5.00; one gave $4.00, and nine gave $2.00 each. This, with over 100 members at $1.00 each gives the directors a tidy sum to run the show. What the Watford Fair needs now, is members. Everybody join.

WE used to think the most original song title we ever heard was "Bring the Tweezers There's a Clove in Father's Breath," but Billy Sunday beats it. Billy says the favorite ragtime of the frizzly-headed society girl with pencilled eyebrows is, "O Does the Spearmit Lose Its Flavor on the Bedpost Over Night."

KNIVES and FORKS, spoons, coldmeat forks, berry spoons and all Rogers' flatware have advanced in price; we still have a quantity at old prices.—THE N. E. HOWDEN EST.

MR. D. W. BOLE, President of the National Drug and Chemical Company, Montreal, in remitting for the Guide-Advocate says: "The paper keeps me in touch with the old town." Evidently Mr. Bole has a warm spot in his heart for Watford. Although he has been away from here for about thirty-five years he has during that time continued to read the Guide-Advocate.

MR. JAMES LAMONT, of Cathcart, Ont., died very suddenly on Saturday, Sept. 10th in his 88th year. He went to bed in his usual good health and passed away during the night, no one being aware of the fact until the next morning. He is the father of Mr. J. A. Lamont, G. T. R. Agent, who attended the funeral.

MRS. LAWRENCE writes from Barrie that she has received a cable announcing that her son, Lieut. Ernest W. Lawrence, who is with the 4th Batt., B. E. F., in France, has been wounded, but not seriously. Lieut. Lawrence went overseas with the 70th Batt., but in order to get more quickly to the trenches got transferred to the 4th Batt.

A WINNIPEG despatch says: In casualty lists the name of Lieut. Basil J. Roche, killed in action, appears. Lieut. Roche came from Watford, Ont. to Winnipeg five years ago, and was in real estate business here. He went away with the first contingent of Fort Garry Horse, and was for a time with the Stratheconas. He got his commission last spring, and was attached to the 1st C. M. R.

AFTER service on Sunday evening the choir of the Methodist Church presented Pte. Austin Potter of the 142nd Battalion, who was spending the week end at home, with an address and a handsome gold signet ring as a memento of his connection with the choir. Teumseh Chapter I. O. D. E. also presented him with a parcel of trench comforts consisting of a level with other people as regards working hours.

THE LEAMINGTON POST says: "Leamington Town Council rightly holds that there should be no difference between the pensions paid to soldiers on account of their rank. This is an endorsement of the resolution passed by the Niagara Falls Council to the effect that as Canada is a democratic country no difference should be made between officer and private in civil life. While on active service the officer, on account of his higher responsibility, receives higher pay, but on his return to civil life he again becomes the same as the private."

THE Harvest Thanksgiving services in Trinity church, held on Sunday last, were fairly well attended. The sacred edifice was attractively decorated with choice fruit, flowers and foliage. The choir furnished special music at each service. At the morning service holy communion was administered and the rector preached to the children from Psalm 92: 1-2. At the evening service the special preacher was the Rev. D. Cornish of Forest, who gave an excellent discourse on "God's Unspeaking Gift." A substantial collection was taken up in aid of Huron College.

MR. DE GEX reports a very active demand for Shorthorn cattle and Lincoln sheep. He is offering a splendid young bull calves, two good enough to head pure bred herds, also a large number of Lincoln ram lambs at prices that will suit any man interested in good stock, and remember he will by these rams back at one or two years of age or exchange for good ram lamb. No need to sacrifice them cheaply to the butcher, at the prevalent high price of wool; no man can afford to use anything but a pure bred ram. Flock averaged 16 1/2 lbs. of wool this season.

Pte. J. H. E. Croucher who enlisted at Sarnia for the first overseas contingent, was killed in action. Pte. Croucher worked at Kingscourt some time ago.

The Rally Day program was given by the officers, teachers and members of the school in a very interesting and instructive manner. The Choir also contributed a couple of numbers.

On Saturday night, fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin completely destroyed the barns of Thomas Pressey, a well-known farmer, living one mile south of Arkona. The total loss is about

$6,000, with insurance of $2,800. Mr. Pressey lost his entire season's crops, together with a couple of hogs and a number of chickens. Eight hundred bushels of grain were consumed in the blaze. YOUNG WOMEN MAY AVOID PAIN

Need Only Trust to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, says Mrs. Kurtzweg.

Buffalo, N.Y.—“My daughter, whose picture is herewith, was much troubled with pains in her back and sides every month and they would sometimes be so bad that it would seem like acute inflammation of some organ. She read your advertisement in the newspapers and tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She praises it highly as she has been relieved of all these pains by its use. All mothers should know of this remedy, and all young girls who suffer should try it.”—Mrs. MATILDA KURTZWEG, 529 High St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Young women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by this root and herb remedy.

If you know of any young woman who is sick and needs help, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Only women will receive her letter, and it will be held in strictest confidence.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Forest Standard.—Whether you handle a pick or pen, a wheel-barrow or a set of books, dig ditches or edit a paper, ring an auction sale bell or write funny things, you must work. Don't be afraid of killing yourself with work. Work gives an appetite for meals, gives the appreciation of a holiday. There are young men who do not work, but the world is not proud of them. It does not even know their names; it simply speaks of them as old so and so's boy. The great busy world does not even know that they are here. So find out what you want to do and do it; take off your coat and make a dust in the world. The busier you are the less devilry you will get into, the sweeter will be your sleep and better satisfied will the world be with you.

Many men have had difficulty in keeping help on the farm, even after they have gone to the trouble of raising it. Home-grown labor is generally the best, if it is given the right encouragement. One Missouri farmer, who is co-operating with the agricultural college in keeping farm records, has decided that he can afford to pay his son 25 per cent. of the net profits from the farm for his work. The young man has worked under his plan for about four years and has never failed to clear as much, or more, than hired hand's wages, besides getting his living, the use of a team and buggy, and having the privilege of profitable employment near home. It takes a profitable business to make such a plan attractive to either proprietor or laborer, but it stimulates good management on the part of both.—Ex.

Both as a measure of national re-trenchment and as a means of relieving the labor scarcity in munitions industries and agricultural work the Government is seriously considering either stopping or at least slackening down very materially until after the war all work on the new Welland Canal and on the reconstruction of the Parliament Buildings. The saving in money would be six or seven millions per year. Three or four thousand men would be released for other work or for war service. It is understood to be the opinion of at least several members of the Cabinet that there is no necessity of completing either project. The Welland Canal deepening is considered as a work of national necessity for future lake traffic, but it is asserted that no interests will be seriously jeopardized if the work is postponed for two or three years until the strain of war financing and war demands for money is over.

The new plan which is now under consideration by the Dominion Government to stimulate recruiting through a national service committee will be announced shortly. The plan will call for close co-operation between those in charge of the actual recruiting and those directing the output of munitions and the employment of labor for the manufacture of munitions. The new body, which is to have charge of the work will be representative of all Canada, probably of each military district, and while there will be close local supervision of recruiting, there will also be a general supervision based upon a comprehensive plan. Compulsory service is not looked for, despite the fact that Ottawa is and has been receiving strong representations in favor of it. Registration is a modified form there may be, but it is early to outline the scheme until the Government is ready to announce it.

Get Rich Quick Scheme

One of the nerviest and most modern "Get rich quick" schemes on record was pulled off in a theater in Cleveland last week, when two smooth alleged real estate artists advertised that they would sell lots at Bob-Lo Gardens, Wayne County, Mich., at the price of the deeds. Naturally the theater was filled to the doors, and a thousand lots were picked up in a jiffy at $8.50 each, by persons who supposed that they were buying these lots on our Bob-Lo island. The first known of it in this vicinity was on Friday, when detectives came here to investigate. Of course they found it was a hoax. Saturday last a touring car drove down to the Bob-Lo dock, the driver, a business man of Cleveland, asked where Mr. Barr had his subdivision on Bob-Lo, and he and two nephews had invested in three lots, and were very anxious to see what they had bought. When he learned what the real state of affairs was, and that lots on Bob-Lo could not be bought if covered with gold dollars, he just said "Stung," and jumping into his auto frisked out of town.—Amherstburg Echo.

Dragged Down by Asthma. The man or woman who is continually subject to asthma is unfitted for his or her life's work. Strength departs and energy is taken away until life becomes a dreary existence. And yet this is needless. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has brought a great change to an army of sufferers. It relieves the restricted air tubes and guards against future trouble. Try it.

AFRICAN LAKE SEIZED.

Taking of Tanganyika Was a Romantic Struggle.

While the eyes of the world have been fixed on the absorbing events at Verdun, says the Kansas City Star, there has been enacted unnoticed and in a far theatre of the war scarcely laid down in maps; a drama of arms almost unrivalled in the romance of Jules Verne. A British expedition, consisting of only 27 officers and men, after a journey of a year, penetrated to the heart of Africa and brought to a successful conclusion operations that transferred from Germany to British control a region immeasurably greater than the entire territory for which vast armies are now battling on the Western European front.

The goal of the expedition was Lake Tanganyika, on the flank of the German East African colony. To reach it the expedition, which in numbers and in the almost fantastic nature of its design, resembles the band of adventurers which Clive led into India, undertook a railway journey from Cape Town to Fungurume, which lies north of Rhodesia, from which point it had to literally bow its way through the bush for 166 miles to the Lualaba River, which flows into Lake Tanganyika 350 miles further on. Over this entire distance the expedition transported two armed motor boats, the Mimi and the Tou-Tou, dragging them through the bush by ox team and traction engines, hewing roads, bridging gullies and streams and overcoming difficulties that would seem almost insuperable in a country of civilization where every aid of engineering was instantly at hand. The water supply failed, not enough being found even for the boilers of the tractors, and hundreds of natives had to be impressed to carry water in jars for miles through the jungle.

When the river was reached one set of troubles was merely exchanged for another. The boats were launched, but mud bars, treacherous currents, and numerous obstructions made the journey by water almost as slow as that through the bush. Even when the lake was reached it was found necessary to construct harbor works to protect the craft from the sudden and violent storms of the region.

At length the Mimi and the Tou-Tou were got in fighting trim and the hunt for the German flotilla began. The day after Christmas the German gunboat Kingani was sighted on Boxing Bay, and after a spirited fight was captured. A six-weeks' cruise of the lake followed before this victory was clinched by the sinking of the Von Weissman, the German flag ship in the East African waters. It was the Trafalgar of Africa, leaving the British in complete possession of the region.

The account of this extraordinary expedition, when it shall be written, will prove more interesting to lovers of the adventurous than many greater operations in better known fields. It is exploits like this that give the touch of romance to war which the gigantic struggles in the European theatres have failed to impart.

No Wonder. To the average Scottish church-goer the minister who reads his sermon is a weak sort of preacher. In a Highland village the minister was at last a deputation of his congregation waited on him to point out that they would prefer him to preach without reading every word from a manuscript. "Ah, my friends," he said sadly, "I must apologize; but I have a bad memory. If I had not it in writing I should forget what I have to say." "Weel, meenister," was the spokesman's scathing answer, "if ye canna remember yer ain discourses ye canna blame us gin we forget them."

Hard and soft corns both yield to Holloway's Corn Cure, which is entirely safe to use, and certain and satisfactory in its action. m

WAR DOGS IN THE VOSGES.

They Come From Alaska, Canada, and Labrador, and Do Good Service.

Last year, when the question of transport through the mountain snow had become a matter of urgent importance, the French authorities had the idea of using dog-drawn sleighs for carrying supplies. Several hundred trained dogs from Alaska, North Western Canada, and Labrador were brought over by a French lieutenant who had spent 14 years in Alaska.

From the beginning of the year to April 21, with a short interval, the snow in the neighborhood of the Schucht Pass was deep enough for the dogs to be able to render valuable service. They were able to draw heavy loads over almost impossible country and to supplement to a valuable extent the wheeled transport, which would otherwise have been the sole means of re-equipping the army of the Vosges. But their utility has not ceased with the disappearance of the snow. They are now being harnessed to small two-foot-gauge light railways, which run everywhere behind the front, and they are capable of drawing the heaviest load up the steepest gradient. Eleven dogs, with a couple of men, can carry a ton up some of the most precipitous slopes in the mountains, and I was assured that two teams of seven dogs each could do the work of five horses in this difficult country, with a very great economy of man.

The kennels, which I visited recently, lie before the crest of a certain mountain in the Vosges. It would be hard to describe more suitable or more comfortable quarters than the 250 dogs who welcomed my visit. Of them all, there was only one who passed by with the warning, "He bites!"

The dogs are in service—the Alaskan, Labrador, and the Canadian—the best of these is the Alaskan. It never fails, though it is perhaps the weakest of the breed. The small shaggy dogs, with their ears and tails, their color ranging from black to white, between grey and brown. Their chest development, so necessary for hauling, is remarkable. They are mainly fed on rice, horseflesh (of which there is abundance), and waste military biscuits, and this fare appears to suit them admirably, as they are always in splendid condition and disease is practically unknown.

A team of seven dogs was harnessed to a machine truck, formed of ammunition cases, to take us along one of the two-foot-gauge railways. The harness consists of a chest strap and a wooden bar behind which takes the place of a horse's kicking strap. It is extremely simple, and can be put on or taken off in a minute. No whip was used, and order was maintained simply by commands shouted in English. As soon as they were hitched to the truck the whole team gave tongue and began to pull with obvious delight. They soon got up speed, and in a few minutes we were jolting along over the rails with seven bushy tails waving vigorously in front of us.

The experiment of transporting these dogs to France has shown that they can be of real service in mountainous country, and represent a real economy.—London Times.

Colors Placed in Abbey.

With simple dignity, the colors of the 38th Canadian Battalion were deposited recently in Westminster Abbey for safe-keeping till the war is over. Officers present included Lt.-Col. C. M. Edwards, Commandant; Lt.-Col. Green, Belle, and Crerar, Chaplain; Capt. Mackenzie, Toronto, and a Sergeant. The four Company Sergeants of the Battalion were also in attendance. The procession was formed from the west end nave of the Abbey, their being present, and Surgeon-General Bridge at the organ. The high altar was reached by the Abbey canons receiving the colors and bore them to Bishop Dean of Westminster, who then formally signed the Abbey's charge of the colors. "Remember," he said, "in the days to come that the colors of the 38th Battalion are kept here in the House of God at St. Peter's, the Abbey of the Virgin's most holy and sacred memories." "Oh God, Our Help in Ages Past" was sung, the brief ceremony closing with the National Anthem. The Dean afterwards showed the party several places of interest in the Abbey, including Wolfe's tomb, where the colors will be placed, alongside those of the Kingston Artillery, which were put into the keeping of the Abbey twelve months ago.

Record for Broken Bones.

Six-year-old Edith Halton, of Toronto, probably holds the world's record for misfortunes. The child fell from a chair at her home yesterday and broke her leg. This, according to the police, is the fourteenth time that little Edith has experienced broken bones. She has spent most of her short life wearing splints.

The police understand that the child has abnormally brittle bones, and that this peculiarity is responsible for practically all her accidents. In practically all cases the breaks occurred from the ordinary tumbles and falls that are the lot of a youngster. The child was taken to the Hospital for Sick Children, where her latest injury is being treated.

Industry for Renfrew.

Work has been begun upon the construction of a molybdenum concentrator in Renfrew. The concentrator will have a capacity of 100 tons per day, and draw its supply of ore from mines at Mount St. Patrick, Enterprise, Wakefield, and Sudbury. The concentrated product will be sent to a refinery at Orillia, but a refinery will be established in Renfrew as soon as Renfrew can furnish the company with sufficient electrical energy.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Work for Soldiers.

An Edinburgh professor in a recent letter to a newspaper, suggests new work for wounded soldiers. Apropos of the suggested tax on cats, he says: In place of taxing cats, I would urge the Government to organize, not after the war, but now, a fully equipped and efficient department for the extermination of rats, and employ wounded soldiers to do the mechanical part of it. The systematic breeding, collecting, and distributing of types of cats known to be superior rat-killers, would comprise an important section of the work, but, to make a clean sweep of the most destructive animal pest from which the country groans, much light labor and personal supervision, and a good deal of simple laboratory work under scientific expert guidance would be necessary. By this means many men whom the country will be in duty bound to support, might find congenial employment not to mention the saving to the country of an enormous sum of taxable wealth.

Quiet Coins.

Among the strangest coins in the world are those used in certain out-of-the-way towns and villages in South-West Africa, on the West Coast of Africa, and called manilas. In shape they resemble a horseshoe, with the two extremities flattened out like a camel's foot. Being made of solid copper, 3/8 in. thick, they weigh over 8oz. each. In "face value" seven of these queer coins are equivalent to one shilling, so that a crown's worth would be an uncomfortably heavy load!

To Pave the Way.

Love will find a way, but it is more important to find something more substantial with which to pave the way.

The Heroical Vein.

"The heroic vein of mankind runs much in the soldiery, and courageous part of the world; and in that form we oftenest find men above men. History is full of the gallantry of that tribe; and when we read their notable acts, we easily find what a difference there is between a life in Plutarch and Laertius. Where true fortitude dwells, loyalty, bounty, friendship, and fidelity may be found. A man may confide in persons constituted for noble ends, who dare do and suffer, and who have a hand to burn for their country and their friend. Small and creeping things are the product of petty souls. He is like to be mistaken, who makes choice of a covetous man for a friend, or relieth upon the reed of narrow and poltron friendship. Pitiiful things are only to be found in the cottages of such breasts; but bright thoughts, clear deeds, constancy, fidelity, bounty, and generous honesty, are the gems of noble minds; wherein, to derogate from none, the true heroic English gentleman hath no peer."—Sir Thomas Brown, "Christian Morals."

Live Stock Notes

If you want to make pork cheaply make use of plenty of clover, alfalfa, rape, or some other form of green feed.

Beef raising has come back to its own and the dairyman is not the only man who can show profit from his farming operations.

This is an opportune time to keep all the good females for breeding purposes. The outlook for live-stock husbandry never was brighter.

The man, or group of men, not showing enough interest in good stock to purchase and look after a good pure-bred sire will not likely make the best of a sire given to them for nothing.

Where sufficient feed is assured for winter it might be better to keep the stock up in condition by pasturing the second crop of clover on one field rather than let them down to save the crop for later use.

Economical Heating
The large double feed doors fit tightly. The dampers are easily controlled. Fine ashes are drawn up the chimney and never escape through the rooms when grates are shaken.

McClary's Sunshine Furnace
is a heat-tight furnace. The ashes fall when the grates are shaken, for the walls of the fire-pot are straight. This saves heat as the radiation is not checked by a wall of ashes. Wouldn't you like to know more about the Sunshine? Call, and we will gladly give you the information.

"Wash-day Dinners"
never need be served by Pandora owners. Simply set the boiler down in the pot holes the long way of the range. Plenty of room is left for cooking and the boiler keeps on the boil. Should you have to add coal to the fire of you can do so without moving the boiler or disturbing the cooking. Let me show you the special features of the Pandora.

DON'T BAKE IN THE DARK!
Don't have fallen cakes and soggy biscuits. Watch the baking through the glass oven-door of

McClary's Pandora Range
You'll never be disappointed or have to worry about your baking or cooking if your range is a Pandora.

COME IN and I'll show you the Pandora's many sensible ideas for saving time and labor.

Every Shovelful of Coal Counts

The walls of the fire-pot are straight and ashes do not bank against them to stop the radiation of heat from the burning coal. The doors of fit closely. The dust flue directs the fine ashes up the chimney. They never float through the house.

Before you invest in a furnace come in and let us show you the Sunshine.

Beef is reported to be four dollars per pound in Vienna, Austria. That's comforting.

Galt Reporter.—The whole country is "doing its bit". There is no shirking, no shinning, no mourning, no cry for peace. Canada is resolute loyal and enthusiastic in the cause of the Mother Country and her Allies. Link Up Country for Good Roads

A plan to link up during the coming winter every county in the province to a province-wide good road movement, construction of roads to be undertaken jointly by the counties and Provincial Government at the conclusion of the war, was announced at the Department of Public Works, Toronto, Saturday.

Its purpose is to provide Ontario with good roads from one end of the province to the other and to supply employment for labor of every class after the war, including returned soldiers.

One hundred thousand pieces of literature have been printed, which will be distributed in every farmhouse in counties of the province not already committed to the good roads movement.

Gloomy Outlook in O. A. C. Report

Reports that are received at the Ontario Agricultural College of crop conditions throughout the province are not encouraging, especially in regard to roots and beans. Mangolds and turnips are not getting the fall growth that they should. Potatoes will do well to be half a crop is their estimate. The continued dry weather has interfered with the work on all the farm plots here. As a general thing the system of cultivation protects these plots against delays from this cause, but not so this year. One of the best fields that was being worked for fall wheat, was found so dry yesterday that the authorities there say they can do nothing at all with it until there is a heavy rain fall.

Major Fairbank has Made Acquaintance of Trench Warfare

Major C. O. Fairbank of Petrolia, who went overseas as junior major of the 70th Battalion, but who took the lower rank of lieutenant in order to get to the front, is attached to the 18th Battalion, and is now in the trenches. He has been under fire and knows how it feels to endure the inconveniences of the trenches. Major Fairbank, although wealthy, has been connected with military matters for many years. He is a graduate of the R. M. C., and has commanded batteries. However, he could not get a command, but was determined to do his bit. He is doing it well.

In a letter to a friend in London he gives some account of the work he has been engaged in.

"Just a word to let you know that I am all O.K.," he writes. "I am with the 18th Battalion. I have seen many things since being over, and some day I hope to be able to talk them over with you. For the present the information we give is meagre—for reasons."

"Since being over here, I have made the acquaintance of the trenches. I know the feeling of being under fire from trench mortars and artillery. I have slept in a dugout lulled to sleep by artillery and machine gun fire. I have marched in rain and mud and rested by the side of a wet stack of grain; I have billeted on straw in a barn and other various comfortable picnicking places. I am fit, eat and sleep well, and recuperate from fatigue quickly. Well, some day the war will be over and peace and happiness will reign again."

Lieut.-Col. Bradley Leaves the 149

Camp Borden, Ont. Sept. 26.—Lieut.-Col. T. B. Bradley, O. C. 149th Battalion, announced to-day his decision of giving up the command of his unit in order to enter again the medical branch of the service, in which he feels he can be of greater immediate service. Col. Bradley's decision has been reached owing to his expectation that the 149th Battalion will spend the winter in Canada and the practical certainty that, on reaching England, it will be broken up for reinforcements for drafts. Col. Bradley applied for his transfer some weeks ago and expects to leave for overseas in about three weeks' time. He will hold the brevet rank of lieutenant-colonel in the A. M. C. Capt. Trainor, adjutant of the battalion, to-day spoke of the regret which the officers of the battalion feel in losing Col. Bradley. Credit for the organization and recruiting of the battalion in a large measure was given to Col. Bradley.

WHEN PIGS WERE CHEAP

IN YOUR grandfather's day—ask him about it—you could buy a dressed hog for three dollars; a nice big pig. And a live pig would cost you no more.

Everything in those bygone days was cheap—that is, the things of common use.

Clothes, boots, milk, bread, beefsteak, eggs, butter, lumber, farm labor, domestic servants—they all cost a good deal less than they do today.

It cost less to live—and less to be born—and less to die fifty years ago than today.

And it cost much less to publish a country weekly fifty years ago than it does today—very much less.

Yet you paid—or your grandfather did—just a dollar a year—the same as you are paying today.

But the dollar rate must yield to the pressure of necessity. We must do now what we ought to have done years ago—raise the price of The Guide-Advocate to $1.50. The tremendously increased costs of paper, ink, supplies, and the more-than-doubled cost of living have made us "furiously to think." And so, on and after December 1st the price of The Guide-Advocate will be $1.50 a year.

Good Readers All

If you were in our place, and knew all we know about the higher costs of publishing, you would wonder why we didn't make the advance long ago. We trust you to meet the new rate with a smile. Not for 50 cents a year will you say "Stop my paper."

BUT IT IS OUR DUTY TO LET YOU KNOW NOW WHAT'S COMING

NOTED MUSICIAN OF MONTREAL

Advices The Use Of "FRUIT-A-TIVES", The Famous Fruit Medicine.

MR. ROSENBERG
589 Casgrain St., Montreal,
April 30th, 1915.

"In my opinion, no other medicine in the world is so curative for Constipation and Indigestion as 'Fruit-a-tives'. I was a sufferer from these complaints for five years, and my sedentary occupation, Music, brought about a kind of Intestinal Paralysis—with nasty Headaches, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and Pain in the Back. I tried pills and medicines of physicians, but nothing helped me. Then I was induced to try 'Fruit-a-tives', and now for six months I have been entirely well. I advise any one who suffers from that horrible trouble—Chronic Constipation with the resultant indigestion, to try 'Fruit-a-tives', and you will be agreeably surprised at the great benefit you will receive". A. ROSENBERG.

Two Races

They Occurred on the Corso at Rome.

By F. A. MITCHEL

One of the principal streets, if not the principal street, in Rome is the Corso, so called from the fact that formerly it was used for racing horses. Gradually it was built upon and finally abandoned as a track and paved. But the citizens of medieval Rome were wont to assemble there, occupying stands erected there for the purpose of seeing the thoroughbreds run.

One afternoon a party of ladies and gentlemen occupied seats on one of these stands, among whom was a young lady noted for her kindness of disposition, as well as beauty. Bianca Cellini had just come to a marriageable age—much younger in Italy than in colder climates, especially in those days. Among her admirers were two young men, Edgardo Brandini and Roberto Carancola.

Brandini was a scholarly person, though manly and fond of athletic sports. Carancola was a descendant of the Medici family, which at an earlier date had been very powerful and some of them steeped in crime. Both these young men were to ride their own horses in the race about to take place on the Corso, and the principal betting was on one or the other of their animals.

It being known that Bianca Cellini was receiving the attentions of these two principal participants in the race, a great deal of curiosity was aroused among her friends as to which one she would prefer to win. Yet so guileless was her face, and withal so devoid of any expression of approbation of either, that it did not seem probable she could have a preference. At races every one bets, and two of her friends made a bet that before she left the Corso she would show her feelings either for Edgardo Brandini or Roberto Carancola.

When the riders dashed by, Brandini in the lead, it was hoped by these two betting men that she would give some sign by which their bet might be decided. But if there was any pleasurable excitement in seeing Brandini in the lead or Carancola behind, there was not sufficient evidence of either to warrant a decision.

When the race was finished Brandini was the winner, Carancola coming in third. Carancola was riding sullenly back past the stand where Bianca Cellini was seated. She called to him to join her party that she might in the kindness of her heart soothe his wounded feelings at his defeat. Dismounting he went to her and the sympathy he saw in her face took away something of his disappointment. But in another moment Brandini rode by, receiving the acclamations of the people as the victor. Bianca, turning from Roberto, waved to Edgardo, showing every evidence that she gloried in his triumph.

Now, this was quite enough irritating to Carancola without what followed. The man who had bet that Bianca would show a preference for Brandini said in a voice loud enough to be heard, "I've won." The other said nothing, but it was evident that he assented. Carancola flashed a quick glance at them and understood what the bet was about without being told.

There was that in this sudden translation from sympathy for him to delight at the success of his rival to say nothing of the attendant incident, that embittered Carancola against the girl as well as the man she favored. It was the beginning of a smoldering fire that grew more malignant as Roberto saw that his rival was every day getting nearer to the possession of the prize he coveted. Then when the betrothal between Edgardo and Bianca was announced it burst forth with all the bitterness of an angry serpent.

Bianca, who from time to time met with Carancola, was perfectly aware of his feelings toward his rival, though she did not realize that an equal hate toward her was growing up within him. She did all she could to soothe him, always greeting him with a smile and passing his venomous words without notice. But Carancola had in him some of the blood of the De' Medici who in a fit of passion had killed two of his own children. He was not to be placated. While she was endeavoring by her sweetness of disposition to neutralize his madness, he was plotting to vent it upon her as well as her lover.

At one end of the Forum stone steps lead up to the capital. Edgardo Brandini was one night ascending these steps when Roberto followed him and, approaching him noiselessly, plunged a stiletto in his back, killing him instantly.

DECLINE SUBSTITUTES

When Bianca saw the dead body of her lover for a time her family despaired of her reason. When she came out from the influence of the crushing blow it was believed that she would take the veil. However, weeks passed, then months, while she remained within her home and was seen by no one. Then suddenly she appeared again in the world. But how changed! The difference was not physical. If stricken bodily she did not show it. Her face was not pale, her youthful beauty had not been impaired, but the Madonna-like expression in her face was gone, and in its place—so said those who knew her most intimately—had come a strange, faraway look that they could not fathom.

There was no evidence as to who had killed Brandini, though every effort was made to discover his murderer. Only one person knew with certainty who had stabbed him, and that was his betrothed. But she never breathed a suspicion. Had she done so it would have availed nothing, for in those days the science of obtaining evidence against criminals was not what it is today. Besides, at that time law was lax and persons were inclined to take their differences with their neighbors into their own hands.

Carancola supposed that even if Bianca did not denounce him she would treat him as her lover's murderer. What was his surprise then when on their first meeting after the murder she seemed to incline herself to him for sympathy. His heart leaped with a sudden hope. Could it be that in her innocence she did not lay the crime at his door? Would it be possible after all to win her? He spoke kindly to her, and his words and manner appeared to give her comfort. He did not see that strange look in her eye which her friends had noticed, or if he did he did not attempt to interpret it. What he looked for was a reliance on him for comfort that might develop into love. Her own manner was altered. He seemed to regret his former harsh words. Indeed, he told her that he had been caused solely by the fact that he had no hope of possessing her.

Bianca seemed, too, to crave to replace that love of which she had been deprived. At least this was the view Roberto took of her bearing toward him. At first he was chary of his visits to her, but increased their frequency. She, too, showed a warmer welcome every time he came. One thing, however, he noticed that puzzled him. She did not spend long hours with him. Sometimes she excused herself after a short time with him by saying that she was unavoidably called away to some duty. Sometimes she pleaded indisposition and did not receive him at all.

A time came when Bianca appeared again in the gay world. Her gentle bearing was replaced by an apparent recklessness. From a modest maiden she seemed to have passed to a woman of the world. That was a time when the higher classes were profligate, Bianca mingled with the gayeties, but was not herself dissipated. She accepted no marked attention from any man except Carancola. Some who knew of the rivalry that had existed between him and Brandini were surprised that she would be satisfied with the one in place of the other, and a few who suspected Carancola of having put his rival out of his way turned against her, but the general opinion was that she had been undecided between the two and, having lost the one, was ready to accept the other.

A year from the death of Edgardo Brandini came round and brought again the races on the Corso. Bianca had told him, out of respect to opinion, that she would not accept him till the twelve months after her bereavement had passed. He had intended to take no part in the races in deference to her feelings, her former lover having taken a conspicuous part in them the year before, but she urged him to do so. Anything she wished was a command to him, and he was glad to obey this one, for a colt that he had been raising had come of a proper age to run and was sure to win.

Carancola on the eve of the race was in high spirits. He was about to be betrothed to the girl he had so long loved, and since he alone knew of the merits of his horse was enabled to put out numerous bets with odds in his favor. If there was a gnawing of conscience within him he did not show it. He was busy making his preparations and saw but little of his betrothed.

The concourse was assembling on the Corso, and men were discussing the relative merits of the horses and making their bets. The stands were filling up, and among the parties occupying the seats was one including Bianca Cellini. As admirers looked up at her from below they saw a different person from the one who had been in her place a year before. Her beauty had bloomed, but instead of the soft cheek, the childlike brow, there was that look which no one could understand. In her corsage was a single rose, which would have been more in keeping with the girl of a year before than now.

Bianca had told Roberto to come to her immediately before he started in the race. He did so, and with a smile she handed him the rose from her belt and said:

"Before the signal to go, inhale its fragrance, and I promise you it will win you the race."

Promising to do so, he left her and within a few minutes after breathing in the odor of her gift was madly tearing down the Corso with the other runners.

Something occurred near the goal. An accident, some said. Whatever it was, it threw a chill over the concourse. Presently a horseman came back and, riding up to the stand where Bianca sat, told her that Roberto Carancola had fallen from his horse just before making the goal far in advance of all other competitors and had been killed.

There was a relaxation of that strange look on Bianca's face, and in its place came the marks of the great grief which had settled there after the death of Edgardo Brandini. From the Corso she retired to a convent, which she never left.

A friend of Bianca's, who was near Carancola when he fell, took a rose from his body which he had worn in the race and noticed a peculiar odor in the flower. Taking it home with him, he had it analyzed by a chemist. It had been sprinkled with a deadly poison.

WATFORD PEOPLE GET INSTANT ACTION

Those who have used it in Watford are astonished at the INSTANT action of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc. as mixed in Adler-ika. Because it acts on BOTH lower and upper bowel, ONE SPOONFUL Adler-ika relieves almost ANY CASE constipation, sour stomach or gas. It removes such surprising food matter that a few doses often relieve or prevent appendicitis. A short treatment helps chronic stomach trouble. Taylor & Son, druggists.

His Choice.

During breakfast in a large munition factory on Clydeside, where nearly every nationality is represented, a group of workmen were discussing Lord Derby's scheme and the different battalions which they would like to join. After various opinions had been given as to which was the best, Sandy said: "If Ah hev tae join, gie me the Scottish Rifles." "All join the Royal Scots," said George. "Ah think them the best." "What about Isaac here?" inquired another workman. "Oh," replied George, "Isaac's gaun to join the new battalion—the Jordan Highlanders."

She Cannot Be Dead.

In a council school in Newcastle the class were having a history lesson, and the subject under consideration was the life of Queen Elizabeth. The teacher, after outlining the career of this wonderful woman who found England poor, weak, and divided, left it strong, and conscious of greater possibilities, asked: "Now, can any boy tell me when Queen Elizabeth died? Perhaps Tommy will tell the class?" "She's not dead yet," replied Tommy, "because Ah hard me fether say she was fightin' in th' Dardanelles."

The Deal Was Off.

A Highlandman from Gorbarnock asked the price of a railway ticket from Oban to Killin of the clerk at the Oban railway station. "So much," replied the clerk. "Hoot awa!" replied Donald; "it's far over dear! I'd rather walk!" and off he started.

He had not proceeded far when the train came tearing along, whistling as it neared a station.

"Ye needna whistle for me!" said Donald. "I made ye an offer aince, and ye wadna tak' it; sae ye can gang on. I'm no comin'."

WOMAN SUFFERAGE.

Its War Time Aspect.

London, Eng. The women of England are doing their duty. They are taking care of the wounded, or if they cannot assist in work of that kind they are adding their savings to promote the good work. They are knitting and sewing for the soldiers at the front. The suffragists have given so little trouble to the government that it will undoubtedly soften the hearts of those in Parliament, since the "militants" have turned all their energies to aid the fighting men of England, and so sufferage may soon come after this terrible war is over.

Thousands of women in Canada have overcome their sufferings, and have been cured of woman's ills by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This temperance medicine, though started nearly half a century ago, sells most widely to-day, because it is made without alcohol or narcotics. It can now be had in tablet form as well as liquid, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, nervousness, should take this "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce. It is prepared from nature's roots and herbs and does not contain a particle of alcohol or any narcotic. It's not a secret prescription for its ingredients are printed on wrapper.

Many a woman is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down and worn out for no reason that she can think of. Ninety-nine per cent. of these cases it is the womanly organism that requires attention; the weak back, dizzy spells and black circles about the eyes, are only symptoms. Go to the source of trouble. When that is corrected the other symptoms disappear.

St. Thomas, Ont.—"I wish to say for the benefit of other women who suffer that I recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a great help. I have personally recommended the same to many who in turn have been helped a great deal by its use."—Mrs. F. J. BOWDEN, 19 Oliver St., St. Thomas, Ont.

DENMARK ONCE A POWER.

When the Tiny Kingdom Conquered and Ruled Great Britain.

Among the little nations of Europe there is one that is seldom mentioned, except when some vessel contrives to thread its dangerous way through the Skagerrack and Cattegat. Then Denmark comes into the daily news. Do you know that Great Britain was once ruled from the capital of this tiny remote kingdom?

It has been almost 900 years since the stalwart Canute completed the conquest of England, expelling both the Celtic and the Saxon rulers of the British Isles. When he had completed his conquest and soothed the feelings of his new subjects by marrying the widow of their former king he added Norway to his crown possessions. One of his successors ruled over the whole of the Scandinavian peninsula and a large section of what is now German and Russian territory, surrounding the Baltic sea.

Today Denmark has one hand in the icy waters of the north and the other in the blue gulf stream, for she rules not only Iceland and Greenland, but Santa Cruz, St. Thomas and St. John, known as the Danish West Indies. From the earliest times, when Charlemagne established the buffer state, known as the Danish Mark, on his northern frontier, the Danes have been a powerful seafaring people, emerging from piracy into legitimate commerce.

When the old princely line died out a prince of Schleswig-Holstein was invited to the Danish throne, and in 1658 the clergy combined with the common people against the nobility and in behalf of the king. A constitution was not granted until the year 1806.

THE KING'S COURIERS.

England's "Silver Greyhounds" Have Hard Work and Poor Pay.

The most exciting job that can be held in the United Kingdom is that of king's messenger. He is charged with the delicate and in war time dangerous duty of carrying important state papers in cases when it would be either unwise or impossible to use the telegraph or the postal service.

During war the king's messenger has nearly as difficult a task as has the dispatch rider, who is actually at the front. He must be continually on the lookout for spies, and it is quite within the probabilities that the steamer on which he is traveling may be stopped by an enemy vessel and his valuable papers taken from him.

Owing to the fact that they wear a badge consisting of a silver greyhound surmounted by a crown, king's messengers are nicknamed "silver greyhounds," and indeed they often have to imitate that breed of dog in swiftness and sureness of scent. To qualify for a messengership many things are needed. The candidate must be a man of first rate education, of excellent family and a good linguist.

Considering the qualifications required, the salaries of the "silver greyhounds" are by no means large. The foreign service messengers receive remuneration ranging from $1,250 to $2,000 a year, while those employed on home service get from $650 to $1,225 a year.

Sizing Fruit

An apparatus has recently been perfected which does away with the unreliable process of sorting apples by hand. Moreover it gives the farmer an excellent opportunity to be honest, for instead of putting large apples on the top and small apples in the rest of the barrel, he can sort them according to an honest standard, an eventually get better prices, for people will learn that his large apples are large all the way down, and that his small apples don't get any smaller as the bottom of the barrel is reached.

The machine which accomplishes so accurately and simple this task of sizing involves the use of two queer looking belts which are divided up into many small segments, the segments each having a wide mouth in their centre. As the belts move from one end of a flat table to the other the mouths open wider and wider, and the apples which have dropped upon the segments, finally fall through the widening mouths. They fall at different places according to their different sizes.—Popular Science Monthly.

Heliograms on Advertising

No establishing can lit down and wait for business. Life is too short and rents or taxes too high.

Every store must present an argument for business and must spread that argument to a wide field. That's advertising.

The advertisement can't do it all but the advertisement can create the interest and the store force does the rest.

If some housewives looked as diligently through the advertising columns of their local newspaper as they do through the mail-order catalogue they would find so many merchandising opportunities that buying out of town would be no longer practiced.

People who study over the mail-order catalogue are like moths hanging around the candle flame. They are bound to be singed.

You will find that the best war-time measure is to do your buying in Watford.

Worms however generated, are found in the digestive tract, where they set up disturbances detrimental to the health of the child. There can be no comfort for the little ones until the harmful intruders have been expelled. No better preparation for this purpose can be had than Miller's Worm Powders. They will immediately destroy the worms and correct the conditions that were favorable to their existence.

Miss Bettie Dutton has been teaching in the public schools of Cleveland, O., for the last 58 years.

All women who have shown bravery under fire are to be awarded a military medal by the British government.

The Russian douma has under consideration a bill which provides for the appointment of women as factory inspectors.

Miss Myrtle Page of Richmond, Mo., has walked over 6,000 miles in the last six years to obtain her education and in all that time she has neither missed a day nor been tardy.

To protect baggage as it is unloaded at railroad stations, movable platforms have been designed, made of pieces of old airbrake hose fastened across resilient wooden strips.

Machinery for ships in which a steam turbine and oil engine are coupled to each propeller, permitting either kind of fuel to be used, has been patented by a Swiss inventor.

According to the geological survey, Colorado alone has shale enough to yield 20,000,000,000 barrels of crude oil, from which 2,000,000,000 barrels of gasoline can be obtained.

A novel automobile alarm of English invention consists of a gong placed near the cooling fan and struck by its blades as it is drawn against them by a wire from the driver's seat.

To aid fruit packers there has been invented a cloth tube to be attached to the wrist of the picking hand, through which fruit can be dropped to a bag suspended from the shoulders.

Lumber Over the Counter

The recent reference to a department store in Portland, Ore., in which lumber is sold in "short lengths for odd jobs," has been followed by the establishment of similar departments in a dozen big American cities, where bits of board are sold for 2, 3 or 5 cents. The idea has spread so rapidly that a company has been formed at Portland, Ore., under the name of the Miniature Lumber Company, to supply department stores with cabinets for the display of such lumber.

Comfort for Dyspeptic.—There is no ailment so harassing and exhausting as dyspepsia, which arises from defective action of the stomach and liver, and the victim of it is to be pitied. Yet he can find ready relief in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, a preparation that has established itself by years of effective use. There are pills that are widely advertised as the greatest ever compounded, but not one of them can rank in value with Parmelee's.

Armstrong—O'Neil

Wyoming, Sept. 21.—The home of Robert O'Neil, of the 12th line, Enniskillen, was the scene of a pretty event Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 19, when his youngest daughter, Margaret, became the bride of John Armstrong, town line. Only the immediate families of the contracting parties were present. After the ceremony the wedding party sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner, after which the couple motored to Wyoming and took the 9.45 train for points west. The bride looked charming in a travelling suit of navy blue, with large felt hat to correspond. The many presents bestowed upon the young couple showed the high esteem in which they were held.

Guide-Advocate Ads. are Business Bringers

More evidence that it deserves its name. But the citizens I met did not have the "rustic woodland air" that should go with a place having such a name. They were up-to-date business men and they took hold of us and fed us and entertained us in a way that made us wish that we could live with them always and have them for neighbors.

Then they took us in automobiles through peach orchards where branches laden with fruit brushed against our faces. We could reach out and gather fruit without leaving the car. In this respect the town reminded me of the old Darky's description of Jamaica. He said that on that delectable island a man could "lie in bed, an' reach out the window, an' pick oranges an' pineapples and Jamaica rum right off the trees." Of course the similarity was not complete, for Forest was a dry town even before the sixteenth. Anyway, Forest impressed me as being in the centre of one of the finest fruit and agricultural districts in Ontario. And the flax factory, of which I got a hasty glimpse, shows that the people are right up-to-date with their business enterprises.

While whirling through the town I saw many fine homes and well kept lawns, as well as churches and schools, so I have an impression that Forest is a pleasant place to live in.

Death of Mr. John Kelly

(From the Imperial, Sask., Review, September 14th.)

There passed away at his home at Watertown Beach last Friday about 6 o'clock past Mr. John Kelly. For some time past Mr. Kelly suffered from stomach trouble, but it was not until a month ago that his condition became serious.

The funeral took place Sunday afternoon to Imperial cemetery, when a large number turned out to pay their last respects. Impressive services were conducted at the house and at the graveside by the Rev. C. T. Kelly. The pall bearers were F. D. Kelly and Wm. B. Kelly of Imperial, J. Coristine of Elbow, S. Kelly of Souris, Man., Harry M. Greer, of Imperial (nephews), and Roy Lucas of Stalwart.

The late Mr. Kelly was born in the township of Brooke, Lambton county, Ont., in 1848 and came west in June 1879 to Rapid City, Man., where he resided for twenty-five years. For the last five years he has spent the summer months at Watertown beach going to Winnipeg at the end of each season to reside during the winter. He was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and was a Past Grand of Rapid City Lodge.

He is survived by his wife; three sisters, Mrs. W. Greer of Brooke, Ont.; Mrs. James Williamson, of Dauphin, Man.; Mrs. W. King of Souris, Man.; two brothers, James and Tom Kelly of Elbow, Sask., besides several nephews.

Edith Cavell Day in the Schools

Ontario plans to erect a memorial statue to Edith Cavell, the heroic martyred nurse, and the school children are to have an opportunity to play a part in the undertaking. For the reception of contributions, Tuesday, Oct. 3, has been set aside, the day to be known as "Edith Cavell day." Pupils in the public, separate, and high schools will be asked to give what their parents feel they can afford. In a signed letter to teachers and pupils throughout the province, the acting minister of education states that "it is with much pleasure he recommends to school boards and teachers the desirability of permitting the merits and claims of this worthy undertaking to be placed before the pupils, in order that the young people of Ontario may take such part and lend such aid as the school authorities and the parents of the children consider appropriate."

"It is believed," the minister says further, "that the children will be glad to subscribe, and the teachers are requested to point out that no sum is too small for each child to give."

Theford Fair

The annual fair held last Friday was a success. The attendance was good and the exhibits as good as former years except roots. The gate receipts of the fair were $300; the number of entries, 1,500; the number of members' tickets sold, 275. There were five schools in parade, No. 12, Bosanquet, getting first prize.

RELIEF FROM INDIGESTION

The Most Common Cause of This Trouble is Poor Blood

All conditions of depressed vitality tend to disturb the process of digestion. There is not a disturbed condition of life that may not affect digestion. But few causes of the trouble are so common as thin, weak blood. It affects directly and at once the process of nutrition. Not only is the action of the gastric and intestinal glands diminished but the muscular action of the stomach is weakened. Nothing will more promptly restore digestive efficiency than good, red blood. Without it the normal activity of the stomach is impossible.

Thin, pale people who complain of indigestion must improve the condition of their blood to find relief. The most active blood builder in such cases is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make the rich, red blood which quickly restores the digestive organs to their proper activity, and the dyspeptic who has hated the sight and smell of food now looks forward to meal time with pleasure. As proving the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in curing indigestion Miss Edith M. Smith, R. R. No. 4, Perth, Ont., says: "I can honestly say I owe my present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My stomach was terribly weak and I suffered from indigestion and sick headache, and was always very nervous. I was troubled this way for nearly three years, and in that time took a great deal of doctors' medicine, which, however, did not help me. I could not eat anything without experiencing the most agonizing pain. My sick headaches were most violent and I could not rest night or day. I was asked one day by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and consented to do so. After taking them some time I found they were helping me, and I continued to take them steadily for several months, until I found that I was completely cured. While taking the pills I gained both in strength and weight, and I feel it impossible to praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly."

You can procure these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Loophole in Prohibition Law

Ontario has not reached unqualified prohibition yet. The Provincial License Board learned from Mr. Eudo Saunders, K. C., and other eminent counsel associated with him in a legal analysis of the new temperance act for the board, that liquor can still be delivered direct from the brewers and other places authorized to store it to the homes of householders in any quantity required. Such liquors, however, must be ordered via points outside of the Province.
