Death of a Favorite

Canadian Author

Mrs. Cecelia Viets Jamison, widow of Samuel Jamison, of New Orleans, died on Easter Sunday at midnight, of a long illness. Her death took place peacefully at Roxbury, where she had spent the last two winters, and she had suffered for some years from a chronic disease of the heart, which was the immediate cause of her death.

Mrs. Jamison was a Canadian by birth, the daughter of the late Viets Dakin and great granddaughter of Rev. Roger Viets, vicar general of Massachusetts. She was educated in private schools in Canada, Boston and abroad and was a distinguished artist and author. Her portrait of the poet Longfellow is hung in Tu-lane University at New Orleans and a portrait of the naturalist, Professor Agassiz, which she painted when she was still a very young woman, is in the Natural History rooms of this city.

The manuscript of Mrs. Jamison's first book, "Woven of Many Threads" was corrected by Longfellow and is now in the rooms of the Massachusetts Historical Society, to whom it was presented by the author, with several of Mr. Longfellow's letters. Mrs. Jamison is perhaps best known as the author of children's stories, published in the St. Nicholas as serials and later in book form. "Lady Jane," "Toinette's Philip," and "Thistle-down," all stories of New Orleans, are perhaps the best known of her children's books. "Lady Jane" has been translated into French, German and Norwegian and has been put into the Braille type for the blind. Her "Story of An Enthusiast" is perhaps the best known of her books for older readers. She was a contributor of short stories to popular magazines such as Harpers, Scribners, etc.

Mrs. Jamison's husband, the late Samuel Jamison, was a well-known New Orleans lawyer, whom she survived by about eight years. Since Mr. Jamison's death she has spent her summers in Nahant with her sister, Mrs. A. E. Robinson, who survives her. Mrs. Jamison also leaves a brother and several nieces and nephews.

Florence Kinrade Determined not to Undergo Ordeal Again

Toronto, April 25.—Application was made before Justice Teetzel for a writ of certiorari in the Kinrade case on Saturday by Mr. Robinetta to bring a warrant issued for Miss Florence Kinrade, by the Hamilton Coroner, into court. The judge will hear the argument on Monday, and if he refuses it, and Miss Florence Kinrade is arrested, her counsel will at once apply to a Supreme Court Judge for a writ of Habeas Corpus, the intention being to fight to the last ditch the proposal to have Miss Kinrade appear again in the witness box.

Car Rolls Over Embankment

A serious accident occurred on the Halifax and South-Western railway near Middleton on Saturday afternoon, 23rd instant, in which a number of passengers were injured. The train, which consisted of a passenger coach, baggage car and a box car, was rounding a curve about seven miles south of Middleton, when the passenger coach left the rails, and breaking from the baggage car, rolled over on its side down the bank, striking a heavy telegraph pole.

About a dozen passengers were in the coach, all of whom were shaken up and several were considerably injured. Clarence Yeaton, of Hantsport, received the worst injury, being hurt internally. Conductor Allen had the end of a finger cut off by being driven through a window pane; P. R. Bentley, of Kentville, had a bad shaking up and his head was cut; Mr. Seamone, of Paradise, had his lip cut and his hip bruised; Bennett Morton, of New Germany, and ex-Mayor Day, of Parrsboro, were slightly injured. The passengers were placed in the baggage car and conveyed to Middleton.

Damages for Widow of Automobile Victim

After a trial lasting three days in the Supreme Court the jury in the case of Hutchings vs. E. L. MacDonald returned a verdict early last evening in favor of the plaintiff, and awarded her $3,500 damages for the death of her husband.

The plaintiff, Mrs. Isaac Hutchings, brought action against Mr. MacDonald for $6,000 damages for the death of her husband, who was struck by an automobile on Quinpool Road last summer.

The case was tried before Judge Drysdale and a jury of which R. A. Spawton was the foreman. The evidence was finished on Wednesday and yesterday H. H. Mellish for the defendant and J. J. Ritchie for the plaintiff addressed the jury. After the judge's address the case was given to the jury at 4:50 o'clock, and at 6:45 o'clock the jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for the above amount. The case attracted great interest, and many spectators were present each day of the trial.—Halifax Chronicle.

In The Municipal Council

Semi-Annual Session 1909

Council met in the Court House at Bridgetown in the County of Annapolis on Tuesday, the 20th day of April, A. D. 1909, at ten o'clock in the forenoon.

Present: The Warden and Councillors Outhit, Charlton, Fitch, Foster, Bent, Armstrong, Porter, Rawding, Healy, Piggott, Bishop, Grimm, Thomas, Buckler, and Brown.

Minutes of annual session 1909 read and approved with the following amendment: Page 12, line 1, should be Councillor Healy instead of Councillor Hall.

Ordered: That the report of the Board of Revision and Appeal lie on the table for further consideration.

Upon reading the petition of J. C. W. Ditmars and upwards of twenty others, freeholders of the County of Annapolis, praying for certain changes to complete the work of opening up a new road at Deep Brook, the report of the Committee, J. B. Whitman, W. D. Lonz, and R. V. Ditmars, recommending said changes, the notice of the opening of said road, and it appearing that the law had in all respects been complied with, on motion it was ordered that the Warden be instructed to procure from Mr. J. C. W. Ditmars a deed of the lands necessary to build said road and upon receipt of this conveyance said Ditmars be entitled to receive damages awarded by Committee.

Ordered: That the consideration of the report of the arbitrators appointed to place a valuation on certain lands of Hon. O. T. Daniels taken by the Municipality for the purpose of making a change in the location of Trout Lake road so-called be indefinitely postponed.

Upon reading the petition of Norman Milberry and upwards of twenty others, freeholders of the County of Annapolis, praying for the opening of, or removal of, the fence from the road known as the Messenger Road, running from Arlington to Ste. Croix Cove.

On motion it was ordered that the prayer of said petition be granted and William C. Hall be appointed to enquire into the necessity for said road and report.

Upon reading a further report of the commissioners appointed to lay out a road from the Granville road to the Beaconsfield road at the line of Edmund Clarke and Mrs. Agnes Shaw, in Ward 5, also the report of J. B. Whitman, surveyor.

It was ordered that the reports be received and adopted and that the necessary notices be posted.

Following are the reports:
To the Warden and Councillors of the Municipality of Annapolis:
Gentlemen—We, your Committee, appointed to lay out a new road from the Granville road to the Beaconsfield road at the line of Edmund Clarke and Mrs. Agnes Shaw, beg to report as follows:
In order to do the work we found it necessary to have a surveyor and engaged Mr. J. B. Whitman.

We had the road laid out a width of thirty-six and one-half feet from the Granville road to the farm of Mr. Reese, taking twenty feet wide from Mrs. Shaw, and sixteen and one-half feet from Edmund Clarke, and from Mr. Reese's farm to the Beaconsfield road we had it laid out a width of thirty-three feet, taking the land from Edmund Clarke. Mr. Clarke received pay for this land, the money being made up by subscription, some years ago, giving a deed to one Buckler, but deeding it for road purposes only.

Mrs. Shaw will give her portion of the land for the road.
We recommend that the Municipality pay for the fencing of said road.
We have instructed the surveyor, Mr. Whitman, to furnish you with plans in duplicate of the said road for your further information.

Respectfully,
ANDREW WALKER,
J. HOWE RAY,
BYRON PHINNEY,
Committee.

Granville, April 15th, 1909.

To the Warden and Councillors of the Municipality of Annapolis:

Gentlemen—Being called upon by a Road Committee, consisting of Messrs. Andrew Walker, J. Howe Ray and Byron Phinney, to lay out and make plans for duplicate of a proposed road from the Granville road to the Beaconsfield road at the line of Edmund Clarke and Mrs. Agnes Shaw, I beg to report as follows:

I marked out the same from the Granville road to Mr. Reese's farm, a width of thirty-six and one-half feet, taking twenty feet from Mrs. Shaw and sixteen and one-half feet from Edmund Clarke, and from Mr. Reese's farm to the Beaconsfield road a width of thirty-three feet, taking it all from Mr. Clarke.

I have attached hereto plans in duplicate for your further information.
Respectfully yours,
J. B. WHITMAN,
Bridgetown, April 17th, 1909.

Upon reading the petition of H. S. Potter and upwards of twenty others, freeholders in the County of Annapolis, praying for a new road beginning at a willow tree on the so-called Church road and following a westerly direction through lands owned by Lindley V. Shaw and Mrs. Louisa Shaw to the Main Post Road leading from Clementsport to Annapolis, the report of Edward Bar-teaux, a commissioner appointed to enquire into the necessity of said road.

On motion it was ordered that the report of said commissioner be received and adopted and the Clerk be instructed to post the necessary notices.

Following is the report:
To the Warden and Councillors of the Municipality of Annapolis:

Your Commissioner appointed to examine whether the proposed new road, as per precept hereto annexed, will be a benefit to the public, etc., reports as follows:

I have examined the proposed site and am convinced that a new road over the same will be a great benefit to the public, and have laid out the same agreeably to the plans hereto attached.

This road will take a piece of land from Lindley V. Shaw who, I understand, has already given an agreement to the Municipal Council to the effect that he desires no compensation for the same.

I have made an agreement with Louisa Shaw by which she is to receive sixty dollars as compensation for land taken from her, and also an agreement with Alice Loretta Potter by which she is to receive twenty-five dollars as compensation for land taken from her.

All of which I trust will be satisfactory.

It was ordered that the prayer of said petition be granted and W. C. Woodworth, Richard McCaul and Edward Bar-teaux were the Committee appointed.

Mackenzie Crowe & Co. Win Suit Against C. P. R.

The Supreme Court of Nova Scotia Saturday delivered judgment in the case of Mackenzie, Crowe & Co. vs. the C. P. Railway.

This was an important case brought in 1905 by the managers of the Larrigan railway, the Larrigan Company, to recover the damages to loss of earnings which were suffered via D. A. R. at Bridgetown station to be delivered to H. G. Middleton & Co., Winnipeg, and which were lost in transit by the C. P. R.

The C. P. R. offered three defences to this action: 1st, they did not lose the goods; 2nd, the goods were only a partial loss and no notice was delivered to the nearest station agent within twenty-eight days after the balance of the goods were delivered in accordance with the 12th condition on the back of their Bill of Lading; 3rd, no privity of contract alleging that the initial contract being made with the D. A. R. they were the party liable and not the C. P. R.

An order for a commission was taken out and eighty-five pages of typewritten evidence was taken by commissioners in Winnipeg which was so conclusive in its nature that on the case coming on for trial at the last June term the Attorney for the Defendant Company admitted the loss of the goods by the Defendant Company and went to trial on the other two issues. Judge Measler who was the presiding Judge at the trial below decided in both these issues against the C. P. R. Company. They appealed to the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia. On Saturday the appeal was dismissed with costs by the full bench. Judge Russell dissenting. O. S. Miller was the attorney on the record for the Plaintiffs, and W. A. Henry the attorney for the Defendant. As we understand that the C. P. R. Company do not mean to again appeal, we congratulate the Larrigan Company upon so successful a termination of this action.

Bridgewater Lad Drowned in LaHave

Bridgewater, April 21.—Freddie Clarke, the four-year-old son of Fred Clarke, proprietor of a hotel here, was drowned this evening under most pathetic circumstances. The little fellow, with a boy friend, was playing on the banks of the LaHave river when he lost his balance, rolling down the bank into the water. There was a swift current and the lad was carried quickly down stream. The other boy did not realize his friend's danger, and after playing about for some time wandered home. On being questioned about the Clarke boy he said he had fallen into the river. Rescue parties were at once formed, but no trace of the little fellow could be found. Hundreds of men have been grappling all evening, but up to midnight had not located the body.

THE STORY MR. POPKISS TOLD

(By Algernon Blackwood, in the Westminster Gazette.)

"Talking of railway accidents—'But we weren't," interrupted the prig. "—and of narrow escapes," continued Mr. Popkiss, ignoring the contradiction, and looking like an offended parrot with its head on one side, "reminds me of one."

"Which?" inquired the prig smartly. "The railway accident or the narrow escape?" He was a small young man, with red eyes and a face like a weasel. He was also a 'psychical student.'

"Both," said Popkiss, looking at him over the top of his spectacles, and spreading out his coat-tails before the fire, so that he resembled more than ever a parrot, jauntily, yet slightly ruffled, swinging on its perch. "Let's have the story," said Brown, in a tone of authority.

And the story began at once: for Brown was 'the intellect' of the little party of newspaper men telling yarns round the club fire-place that deserted Christmas week, when their duties held them in London after everyone else had gone.

"I saved my life, so it was nearly an accident," continued Mr. Popkiss, ambiguously, "and this is how it happened. Most odd, it was."

He buttoned his coat tightly, as though conscious that he resembled a bird, and anxious to dissemble the fact. He was a man of fifty, bald, shabby, timid, and kind-hearted—an unsuccessful solicitor.

"It was last year, on the Boxing Day after Christmas," he began in his high-pitched voice, "and I was in a third-class carriage, going down into Surrey for the New Year's week. I was alone, sitting by the window. It was after ten o'clock, and I was drowsy, but not asleep. The window streamed with rain. Outside everything was black and raw and miserable—utterly cheerless. Just after leaving Wimbledon Station another train drew up alongside, and I watched it through the window of my corner-seat, trying to work up an interest, and wondering which would win. I imagined the two trains were racing—as one is apt to do at such times—and that all the passengers knew it. But for a long time we both ran an even race, neck and neck, and I remember thinking what a fool our engine driver was not to put on steam and pull ahead."

"Faster and faster we went. It annoyed me that all these stupid passengers in the other train were so close to me, going to other destinations than mine. It seemed so dull and boring for them. You know the kind of foolish thoughts that wander up and down the mind at such times."

"Quite," said the psychical student. "But we weren't," interrupted the prig. "And I was glad the windows were so blurred by rain that they couldn't see into my carriage—when, suddenly, I turned with a start and found that my own window was clear as crystal, and that I could see with the greatest ease into the carriage running close beside me. Something had sponged the windows clean. And in the corner-seat of that other carriage, so close to my elbow that I could have put my hand out and touched him, sat a man, huddled up in overcoats and rugs, just as I was."

Mr. Popkiss unbuttoned the top button of his coat to allow more freedom for possible gestures. The group of listeners started with keen attention. The mind of the weasel-faced student was already busily searching for flaws by means of which he might tear the story to pieces the moment it was finished.

"Quite inexplicably," continued Mr. Popkiss, pitching his voice higher in key but lower in tone, "the figure of this man arrested my attention vividly, almost unpleasantly. The face was hidden by his hand, but there was something about him that made me reflect. It seemed to me that I knew who he was. Like myself, he was alone in an empty compartment. The curious idea entered my head that he was watching me through his fingers over his face; and a mysterious uneasiness I could not account for came over me."

I made a movement forward to look at him through the middle window—and the man made precisely a similar movement. Through the middle windows of both carriages our eyes met, and in a flash I saw who it was—

"You recognized him?" asked several voices together.

"I recognized him beyond all question: he was myself!" continued Mr. Popkiss, unfastening the second button of his coat, "absolutely myself!"

"Another Popkiss!" exclaimed the psychical student. "You mean a reflection, of course?"

"At first I thought it was a reflection. For the man copied exactly every movement I made—every single movement. I won't bore you with details; but everything I did in my carriage that man did also in his carriage. And yet—Popkiss mopped his forehead and unfastened the last button—there was something about him—something about that peering face with spectacles—about the silent movements and shadowy appearance—that awoke a nameless terror in me. I began to perspire all over. And something in me, too, began to tremble. Each time I turned to look there he stood, his arms placed precisely as mine were placed, his body in the same attitude exactly, and his spectacled eyes staring straight into my own."

His voice sank to a whisper as he said this. Everyone listened breathlessly. "A projection of your own Double," murmured the student, "or a condition of hysteria inducing a vision," but no one paid any attention to him.

"Yes, and this is how it happened," resumed Popkiss, passing a hand over his bald head, as though the world was so strange a place that it would not have surprised him to find unexpected tufts upon that marble surface, "and I never can persuade you how dreadfully queer I felt."

"Then, suddenly, an idea came to me just as the two trains were slowing down, still running neck and neck. I opened the window. The other man did the same. We put our heads out. There was no question of reflection then. I had to cling to the window-sides to prevent myself falling, so great was the shock. For, instead of disappearing, as a reflection must have disappeared, the face of this other man suddenly flamed up through the night in most amazing fashion; and, thrusting his head forward so that we almost touched one another, I heard his whispers fly sharply across to me through the darkness. The words came with a sense of most appalling reality, and it seemed to me that a wind of ice and snow passed over my cheeks."

"Leave this train!" he said, above the rattle of the metals. "Leave this train!"

"And the very next second, before I could answer, or do anything at all, the lights in his carriage were extinguished and the train was running beside me in black darkness."

"But was it running beside me?" That was the queer part of it. Was it still keeping up a neck-and-neck race with my own? For when I put my head further out to look, and as soon as my eyes got accustomed to the gloom, lo and behold, there was no train there at all! Both in front and behind the lines were clear. There was no train, and no sign of one. . . . Five minutes later we ran into Woking Junction."

The psychical student longed to say something, but his mind was so confused with such phrases as "double personality," "veridical dreams," "subliminal consciousness," and the like that before he could squeeze out a word Mr. Popkiss was at it again finishing his story:

"It would be impossible to describe to you how, and why, the whole thing so impressed me," he explained softly, "that I actually did leave the train at Woking Junction, although my destination was several stations further on. . . . All I can tell you is that the train itself—my train—ran off the metals before it had gone another mile down the line, and two people were killed outright and a dozen injured terribly. . . . I had to sleep at Woking and go on next day when the debris was cleared away."

He buttoned up his coat again very quickly, and touched the bell for the waiter.

"Queer, wasn't it?" he observed.

looking round him with a sigh. Involved discussion followed in a torrent, during the course of which the psychical student gave the group the benefit of much labored explanation. A world in which he could not explain everything by the processes of his own acute little mind was intolerable to him. And when the others, led by Brown, made difficulties, he fell back upon the delightful generalization that to imagine such things at all was a sure sign of mental degeneration. . . .

"What do you think of it yourself?" he asked at length of the story-teller.

"I?" said Popkiss deprecatingly, "oh I don't think anything at all. It saved my life—and that's enough for me!"

DOCTOR SAID ONLY ZAM-BUK COULD CURE HER ECZEMA

In view of the numerous cures which Zam-Buk has worked when all else has failed, there is little wonder that in the end the doctor attending Mrs. J. P. St. Denis, of 305 Thompson Street, Winnipeg, should tell her there was nothing but Zam-Buk could cure her. The result showed the far-seeing wisdom of this practitioner, and having been completely cured by Zam-Buk, Mrs. St. Denis gives her experience for the benefit of other sufferers.

She says: "Eczema started on one side of my face and nose. At first my nose felt sore, similar to what one feels when having a bad cold. I paid no attention to this, thinking it would pass away in a day or so, but to my surprise it got worse. The nose then became swollen and hard, and turned a purplish red, as well as part of the cheek on that side of my face. As the disease developed, pimples and ulcers broke out, then the skin cracked in places and peeled off in flakes, leaving my face and nose raw and sore. This condition reacted on my general health, and I became very ill. I could get no sleep at night because of the irritation and the pain, and my face was in such a shocking condition that for two months I did not go out of the house. I applied remedies which were supposed to be good for skin diseases, but in vain. My doctor also treated me, but without effect, until one day he said that the only thing which would now be likely to cure me was Zam-Buk."

"Acting on his advice I procured a supply and found that even the first few applications had a soothing effect on the sores. I left off everything else in favour of this balm, and applied it liberally every day to the affected parts. In a remarkably short time, considering the obstinate nature of my disease, we saw traces of improvement which encouraged us to persevere with the Zam-Buk treatment. Zam-Buk reduced the discoloration, then the hard swelling began to show traces of leaving, the sores seemed to be less angry, and in about three weeks' time most of the sores were healing nicely. To cut a long story short, I continued with the Zam-Buk treatment until my face was cleared completely of all traces of the troublesome and painful eczema."

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for cuts, lacerations, burns, eczema, ringworm, poisoned wounds, festering sores, bad leg, and all skin injuries and diseases. It is also a cure for piles. Druggists and Stores everywhere sell at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on receipt of price. You are warned against cheap and harmful imitations sometimes represented as "just as good."

ON AUTOMOBILING.

(Colchester Sun.)

About a year ago the automobile owners in Truro agreed that on certain days of the week they would not travel outside of the town, so that the residents of the county could come freely into town without any fear. This was a very wise course. Now it appears that some are not satisfied with this arrangement and want the Board of Trade to express an opinion upon the matter. What opinion the Board of Trade will express upon it, it is of course difficult to say, but a great many persons with whom The Sun has discussed the question are of the opinion that the Board of Trade had better leave it alone. The automobile owners represent at most a dozen; those who object to meeting an automobile on a narrow road unexpectedly number many hundreds. Moreover, those who do not wish an uninvited encounter are patrons of the retail business of Truro, and it behooves the Board of Trade to consider this matter. A ready certain part of Colchester has ceased to trade in Truro for very well known reason. Let not this automobile question drive any other way.

The automobile has come to stay. It is a useful machine as well as an interesting toy, but its general acceptance should not be retarded by foolish opposition to the wishes of the judges if you will—of those who trade with the merchants of Truro.

Repeat it—"Shiloh's Cure will ways cure my coughs and colds."

Military Training

(New Glasgow Chronicle, Liberal.)

The country may soon become used to some such incident in the public schools as this:

Teacher: "John Smith, come up here, sir!"

Johnnie comes up forthwith; his knees what it is to disobey by glancing at the rifles on the rack over the teacher's head.

Teacher: "Explain, sir, how you happened to shoot William Jones on the range at recess?"

Johnnie's explanation can easily be imagined.

Teacher: "After hearing your explanation and as it is obligatory that all the scholars learn to shoot to kill, let this be a lesson to you; but as a penalty must be enforced for the taking of life, you will be confined in the guard room until the school is dismissed. Guard, take him away!"

Johnnie is taken away. Teacher: "The second infantry class will now turn out for drill—no ties to-day as a token of commemoration of the shooting of William Jones by private John Smith."

Parliament went into ecstasies of delight over Lord Strathcona's offer of $250,000 to establish military training in the public schools,—blood money, it really is.

Is it not awful to have Canada ranged up with conscienceless fighting nations of Europe? It was the hope of many that Canada would grow up to nationhood an example to the older and bloodthirsty nations of the world; but, alas! it was a pipe dream. In our opinion Lord Strathcona's gift should have been declined with thanks—if courteous reply was necessary. But, no, members of Parliament fell over one another in their loyal acceptance of the gift.

Probably the influence Canada's war-like action will have on the nation to the south of it is the worst feature of the army drum beating. If Canada under the influence of the infernally disposed Tories of Great Britain is arming itself to the teeth, the United States will, also, arm itself. There is nothing surer in the world than, as we sow so shall we reap. As Canada is sowing the seeds of war, she will reap the seeds of war. Ten times better would it be for the future of the Dominion to withdraw altogether from the union with fighting Europe and cultivate the arts of peace and good neighborhood.

THE CATTY SPIRIT.

That was a piece of excellent advice by the Bishop of London to the girls in a fashionable school in the west end, as reported recently. "Never be cats," he said. "There is the greatest difference in the world between an old maid and an old cat." There is, indeed. The old maid, at her best, is one of the best and finest of human creatures; but the "old cat," she be maid, wife or widow, is one of the most despicable. The Bishop of London told his schoolgirl audience that the curse of the fashionable was "the prevalence of a 'catty spirit.'" The cat—in some respects an estimable animal—will sit up for hours by a hole, waiting for a mouse. She might be otherwise employed, but she prefers to crouch and watch for some helpless victim. The "old cat" against whom the Bishop of London spoke sits likewise on the watch, intent on tearing her neighbors' reputations to pieces. She may do it crudely, or like the skilful tabby, with a graceful sweep of velvet talon. Yet she is an old cat, nevertheless, deserving always to be reprobated.

BROTHER TOLD BROTHER

One Suffered for Fifteen Years, the Other for Thirteen.

The convincing powers of a testimonial were never more clearly shown than in the case of Mr. Hugh Brown, a brother, Lemuel Brown, of Avondale, N.B., read in the paper about Hon. John Costigan being cured by "Fruit-a-tives." Knowing the Senator would only endorse a medicine which had cured him, Mr. Lemuel Brown tried "Fruit-a-tives." They cured him of Chronic Indigestion and Constipation, so he urged his brother to try them.

Hartland, N.B., Oct. 28th, 1907.

"Three doctors told me that I had Liver Disease and serious Stomach Trouble. My stomach was very weak. I took their medicines for thirteen years and grew worse. My brother (who was cured of terrible indigestion by "Fruit-a-tives" after suffering for 15 years), recommended me to try these wonderful tablets. I bought half a dozen boxes and have just finished the sixth. I eat all kinds of hearty foods without distress and am greatly improved in every way. "Fruit-a-tives" also cured the Chronic Constipation which was so distressing in my case."

RAILWAY ACCIDENT AT OHIO.

Mrs. Cousins, wife of Councillor Cousins, of Digby, met with a serious accident while attempting to leave the D. A. R. train at Ohio on Thursday afternoon last. The train had only made a short stop, and by the time Mrs. Cousins reached the car door the train had started. In attempting to step off the car to the station platform she lost her balance and fell between the train and station platform, where she lay on the ground and saw part of the train pass close to her head. She had presence of mind enough to draw close to the platform to prevent the car wheels from passing over her.

After the train had passed she was conveyed to the residence of Dr. Hawkins, where it was found that no bones were broken, but her body was badly bruised. She is now confined to her bed at Ohio. It is feared that her spine may be injured. It will be some time before she can be removed to her home.—Yarmouth Herald.

To Lengthen the Span of Life

Everyone in a healthy state of mind desires to prolong life, even if health and economic conditions are unpleasant. The common saying that "we shall be a long time dead" is not all of it, for there is implanted within us the love of life. And yet, thoroughly realizing that many things done by us daily must surely tend to shorten our lives, we still go on our unhygienic ways, doing the things we ought not to do and leaving undone those things which we ought to do. Digging our graves with our teeth, breathing in death through prejudice against fresh air and fear of taking cold if exposed to it, drinking in shortness of days in impure water, in drams and druses. We well know that exercise and rest must balance each other or our health suffers; that worry not only disfigures our faces but weakens our minds and bodies.

Yet still we worry. If there is no worthy cause for anxiety, we worry for fear the grocer will not send his goods in time, for fear the butcher may fail in his duty, for fear of dressmaker and milliner, and the ever-present torturing anxiety about the girl who threatens to leave if the meals are not more regular, if a new range is not bought at once, if the kitchen is not enlarged, and all the other thousand and one things which can enter into the mind of woman. Of course, we all know that optimism is the ideal state of mind; but isn't an optimist a most tormenting pessimist? The old definition of a pessimist that he is one who has lived with an optimist holds good as when the clever definer first said it. And so we excuse ourselves for doubt and worry, for looking on the worst side of everything, for declining to find the silver lining of the present or promised cloud and consider ourselves rather superior to the happy-go-lucky individuals who habitually and without effort look on the bright side of everything on this mundane sphere. Of course it is true as we really think, not as we imagine or fancy. Therefore an habitual comfortable state of mind can do much to lengthen our lives.

A well-known Yale professor maintains that fifteen years can be added to the span of life by taking thought in a scientific manner. This is as the Almighty pleases, but we can surely so live that our days are not shortened by our habits and not made miserable by them. "Her own worst enemy" does not always apply to the confirmed drunkard. In fact the drunkard may have an inherited tendency that lays a large portion of the blame for her sad case upon a parent or grandparent, and that progenitor in that case would be rightly considered the poor creature's worst enemy. But habits of personal cleanliness, of exercise and rest, of eating, sleeping, breathing, standing, sitting, thinking, are what should be corrected in most of us if we wish to have length of days and have those days of use to ourselves and to those around us.

This Yale man, and just now Yale men seem to be of the elect, says that of all the frightful number of deaths from one cause, that of tuberculosis, fully three-quarters of them, and half the illnesses, could be prevented. Isn't that a startling assertion, especially when it is backed up by scientific research with proofs? To think that we can prevent the illness of a dear son or daughter and that we have been so immersed in trivialities, in pedro clubs, in spring sewing, in house-cleaning, in changes of style, that we have neglected the plain duty, so plain and so close that it has never been ignored. Here is what this scientific man thinks about fresh air:

THE SAVAGE NEVER HAD TUBERCULOSIS.

"To put the whole story in a word or two, the fact is that we have not been civilized long enough to know how to live under civilization. The savage, if not opulent in material things, was a Rockefeller in health. Of late years the opinion has grown that the health of the savage has been over-estimated—that those who lived were strong only because they constituted the remnant who were too tough to be killed. Probably there is something in this theory. But we know the savage never had tuberculosis. Tuberculosis is the civilized man's disease, and came with the house. Nor did the savage, when he was living his own life, ever have pneumonia or typhoid fever. Pneumonia is largely a product of bad diet, and worn-out nerves, while typhoid comes with foul water and bad milk. In fact, 80,000,000 savages would probably have been considerably ashamed of themselves if 3,000,000 of them had been constantly ill."

Of the circulation of the blood and strengthening of the muscles, he says:

"The hygienic life should have a proper balance between rest and ex-

Print By Request.

Mix the following by shaking well in a bottle, and take in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Keroon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. A local druggist is the authority that these simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from our home druggist.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the clogged and inactive kidneys, overcoming Backache, Bladder Weakness and Urinary trouble of all kinds, if taken before the start of Bright's disease.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clears the urine of sediment and regulates urination, especially at night, curbing even the worst forms of bladder weakness.

Every man or woman here who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial, as it is said to do wonders for many persons.

Exercise of various kinds, physical and mental. Generally every muscle in the body should be exercised daily.

"Muscular exercise should hold the attention and call into play will power. Exercise should be enjoyed as play, not endured as work."

"The exercise of the heart and lungs and vital organs is more important than of the muscles."

"The exercise of the abdominal muscles is the most important in order to help the portal circulation. For the same reason erect posture not only in standing but in sitting is important. Breathing exercises, both by suction and otherwise, for pumping the portal circulation free of stagnated blood, are very helpful."

"Exercise should always be limited by fatigue, which brings with it fatigue poisons. This is nature's signal when to rest. If one's use of diet and air are proper, the fatigue point will be much further off than otherwise."

"One should learn to relax when not in activity. The habit produces rest, even between exertions very close together, and enables one to continue to repeat those exertions for a much longer time than otherwise."

FATIGUE A DANGER SIGNAL.

But fatigue is a danger signal, as is a headache, which should not be disregarded for a typical succession of events is fatigue, then colds, then tuberculosis, then death. The present working day, from a physiological standpoint, is too long and keeps a large majority of men and women in a constant stage of over-fatigue. When over-tired, a craving for drink or some other stimulant is experienced. Gratify this craving. The next day the over-fatigue is again followed by the desire for a stimulant. Gratify this desire. Keep right on overworking. Keep right on seeking relief from its effects by the tempting stimulant—which by the way gives only temporary rest or excitement and then is followed by depression and an intensified feeling of fatigue—and a habit of iron strength will be formed, a habit which the strongest find hard to break. Aside from the formation of the habit of drinking, overwork, over-fatigue causes inefficiency and poor work and it is estimated that the loss from this cause is greater than that caused by illness.

It is the fashion to talk about the great health of our forefathers. Once in a while a person lived to advanced age in those days when health was allowed to take care of itself, when exposure and hardship were the usual conditions and caused no comment. But the truth is that sixty-five years of age is a very ripe old age and that a man of fifty-five was considered old. Nowadays, notwithstanding the wisdom of the young reporter who classes everyone of forty as venerable, men and women of sixty-five are in active business and doing good work in the world. And with care in eating, drinking, breathing, bathing, exercising and resting, there is no reason why the usual span of life should not be perceptibly increased.—Caroline Harris Lee in Union & Times.

You are only at your best when your digestion is perfect. When it is faulty, weakness and pain are certain and disease is invited. Care of Milk.

As soon as the milk is drawn it should be taken from the stable and strained. A milk room in the barn may be partitioned off from the cattle with tight walls and, if the barn is poorly ventilated and at times foul, the door to this room should be open from the outside to avoid stable odors and dust. Milk that is strained and allowed to stand in the stable any length of time is often nearly unfit for use because of the bad odors it has taken up. If a room remote from the cows cannot be provided the straining may be done out of doors, care being taken lest rain and dirt enter the can. This trouble can be largely averted by covering the can between strainings with a clean, moist cloth.

Under the best of conditions, some dirt will get into the milk, and the strainer is always a very important utensil and will remove a great deal of this dirt if well cleaned and provided with a fine wire gauze and two or three thicknesses of cheese cloth. The strainer and cheese cloths should be well cleaned after every milking. This should be done by first rinsing with cold water, second by washing with warm water, to which some washing compound has been added, and scalding. All dairy utensils should be cleaned in this manner and when possible, should be thoroughly steamed.

As soon as the milking is finished, the cans should be placed in cold water, the milk stirred occasionally for a few minutes and the covers left off until the milk is thoroughly cooled. Precautions being taken that no dirt gets into the milk. In order to hasten the cooling process, it may be necessary to change the water surrounding the cans occasionally.

The stable should be cleaned regularly and as often as necessary, and lime put in the gutters every day after cleaning will have a beneficial effect. Cattle cannot be kept clean and will not do their best if compelled to stand and lie in filthy mud puddles. Lime should be freely used on all earth floors.

The mangers should be clear of the ground, tight enough to hold any feed that may be given, and they should be arranged so as to be easily cleaned. In the feeding of such fermentable stuffs as brewers' malt and beet pulp, the mangers and floors may be the sole cause of poor-keeping and bad-flavored milk. Musty or rotten food, fermented beet pulp, manure, etc., should not be stored where they will contaminate the milk, but should be well removed from the stable. Odors from such materials are readily taken up by milk.

BEST TREATMENT FOR COLDS.

"Most ordinary colds will yield to the simplest treatment," says the Chicago Tribune, "moderate laxatives, hot foot baths, a free perspiration and an avoidance of exposure to cold and wet after treatment." While this treatment is simple, it requires considerable trouble, and the one adopting it must remain in doors for a day or two, or a fresh cold is almost sure to be contracted, and in many instances pneumonia follows. Is it not better to pin your faith to an old reliable preparation like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, that is famous for its cures of colds and can always be depended upon? For sale by W. A. TEACHERS SHOULD BE MORE CAREFUL.

Montreal, April 10.—An inquest was held on Saturday afternoon on the remains of a young boy named Gabriel Picotte, the eight-year-old son of Dr. Picotte, of this city, who had died, apparently, as a result of a blow given him by his teacher at L'Ecole St. Pierre, a school conducted by the Marist brothers. The evidence showed that young Picotte had been attending school and about a month ago was corrected by a teacher, Emil Bernard, who struck him over the head with a wooden pointer. The boy went home still suffering from the blow which raised quite a lump on his head. The lad, however, recovered and returned to the school, only to again become ill for a time, and once more returned to school. About three weeks ago, however, he became seriously ill with tuberculosis, which finally set on meningitis, from which he died on Friday.

Medical evidence showed that the boy had been suffering from tuberculosis, which had been aggravated by the blow he received, and that as a result the meningitis had been set up. The medical evidence showed, however, that the boy had been suffering from tuberculosis for some time, and that there was no certainty that his death had been caused by the blow which it was stated had been given inadvertently. Brother Bernard was none the less the most deserving person to be brought in a verdict exonerating Brother Bernard from blame, but added that teachers should not chastise children in the way Brother Bernard had punished the dead boy.

Rev. Father Morriscy

A Combined Treatment That Really Cures Catarrh.

Canadian weather, with its extreme cold and sudden changes, gives almost every one Catarrh, and makes it hard to cure. Some recommend internal remedies—some external applications.

Father Morriscy used both—tablets to be taken three or four times a day to invigorate the system, purify the blood, and help it throw off the disease, and a soothing, healing, antiseptic salve to be applied inside the nostrils. This combined treatment known as attacking the disease from within and without, soon cures.

"Father Morriscy's No. 26"

Mr. F. L. Mills, Box 431, Springhill, N. S., wrote on August 31st last:

"I have had two prescriptions for catarrh from Father Morriscy, No. 1 Course and No. 2, but I think No. 1 has done me the most good, and that is the one I am getting filled from time to time.

I would recommend this prescription in full for Catarrh, as his tablets are the only remedy I can get to help me. The No. 26 Tablets are a great tablet."

Don't trifle with Catarrh—cure it with Father Morriscy's No. 26. 50c for the combined treatment at your dealer's.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 28, 1909.

A number of important measures for the amendment of the Criminal Code in the interests of morality were introduced last week in the Canadian parliament.

One measure substitutes imprisonment for the imposition of a fine as the punishment for carrying weapons of offense.

Persons having obscene pictures or printed matter in their possession are liable to the provisions of the law respecting manufacture or circulation of such matter.

Five years' imprisonment instead of two is the penalty for procuring women for immoral purposes.

There were other amendments bearing on the powers of civic courts.

The events of the past few days confirm the believers in Rev. Irl R. Hicks prophecies. In 1908 he wrote: "A period of five days, taking noon on the 19th of April, 1909, as the center, is a time of great seismic probability. A casual watch of the world's telegraphic reports will confirm the truth of this and other similar forecasts. Frosts, and much cooler will follow this period."

These prophecies have been verified in the despatches from Central Mexico and from Lisbon, Portugal, reporting violent earthquake shocks. The cool wave we are now experiencing carries out his other predictions in regard to this period.

The position of general manager on the I. C. R. has been abolished, and a managing board of four, including the former general manager, D. Pottinger, has been appointed. M. J. Butler, deputy minister and chief engineer of the departments of railways and canals, is chairman of the board.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE AUTOMOBILE QUESTION.

Editor Monitor-Sentinel:—

After reading your issue of last week in which "Fair Play" (like the Prayer Book) pathetically begs to be excused from "lightning and tempest," (of automobiles) from "plague, pestilence and famine;" (caused by people having to stay away from town and church for fear of automobiles, of which he knows several instances, probably, "moss-backs"—all of them) "from battle and murder, and from SUDDEN DEATH" (by the way, Caesar and De Quincy said the latter was the most desirable kind)—all this great train of evils arising from the "unrestricted" use of automobiles,—after reading "Fair Play's" contentions, I say, these questions naturally occur to my unprejudiced mind.—Does not the owner of a motor, resident or non-resident, pay taxes or duty, etc. for his privilege? Has he not a right of way the same as a dog-cart and pony, bicycle, buck-board, picknickers hay-wagon, baby carriage, wheelbarrow, etc., provided he uses a measure of care over his machine? Is an automobile more justly terrific to a nervous horse than a stationary threshing machine by the roadside, an obstreperous gas engine sawing wood, windmills, watermills, steam-mills, railway trains, trolleys, and so on? No, certainly not. "Fair Play" expresses the fear that horses "perhaps never will become used" to automobiles. The fact is, they do and have become used to them in other countries and they do and have become used to them in this province, too, but not so much as in the case of locomotives, bicycles, gasoline engines, threshing machines, trolleys and the like which are more general, yet which, also, were once as entirely new and unusual to the equine world as the former. As to the merchants thinking that "the restriction of automobiles" means "less custom" for them—they simply do not. They do think, however, that the owner of an auto is as good a customer generally as the average pedestrian or horse owner, and they think further that people who send mail orders to Toronto and other places do so merely by a sort of doctrine of "Natural Selection" and "moving along the lines of least resistance", and would continue to do so were there no automobiles whatever in the country. "Fair Play" complains of the "inconsiderate selfishness" of chauffeurs "not giving other people an equal right to use the roads—while driving a horse that is not used to them and perhaps never will become so." Now, the trouble is seldom with well-trained horses but with the young, partially-broken ones, and, this given to be the case, why should not the owner of such an animal be obliged to take the risk of having his horse shy at a jog in the fence or anything else? Why else is to blame but himself in the event of accident? Is it not his own risk? The instance "Fair Play" quotes of people not going to church for fear of autos is a particular instance, I venture to say, of indifference and "lack of faith." "Where there's a will there's a way" and surely those good folks could afford to run the risk of meeting an auto occasionally (with one chance in a thousand for hazardous result, if proper care were used) as well as running other and equally great dangers every week of their lives. No one has lost his life in this county through the agency of automobiles; then, why should it be accepted that they are so much more deadly than various other things. I have seen a few cases of splenic personages being more frightened than the horses, as evinced by their hasty dismounting from carriages and standing on both sides of the highway while the horses merely pricked up ears to know what the matter was. A horse is an intelligent beast if allowed a fair chance to exercise his instinct, but when wildly exhorted and jerked by the bits and run across ditches and into fields at once gets nerved up. Drivers sometimes go off the road before the auto gets to them, which is neither the fault of the horse nor autoist. The automobile will come to stay like the locomotive and bicycle (so let one and all get resigned to it). What we need legislation for is to restrict high rates of speed on narrow roads and to penalize the reckless chauffeur. Less trouble is due to the horses and autos than to the drivers of these conveyances, and justice should be dealt out accordingly.

Yours respectfully,
FAIRER PLAY.

Obituary.

MRS. JANE JORDAN.

The death of Mrs. Jane Jordan occurred at Centrelea on the 18th inst. at the age of seventy-seven years. The lady was highly esteemed by a large circle of relatives and friends. She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Andy Shaw at Paradise; Mrs. Asa Potter at Clements; Mrs. Alma Roney at Bridgetown, and Mrs. Nettie Colwell at Centrelea, Annapolis County, and two step-daughters, Mrs. Adelaide Morton, formerly of Centrelea, Digby County, (who now resides in the United States), and Mrs. Andrew Parker, of Aylesford. She also leaves a brother, Mr. Arthur Messenger.

HENRY BANKS.

The funeral took place Monday afternoon of Henry Banks, who died at his home in Union Square on Saturday. He was born in Annapolis County ninety-five years ago, moved to Kings County several years ago, and was at the time of his death one of the oldest residents in that part of the county. He married first a Miss Durling, of whom he had a large family. His second wife, who died some years ago, was Wilhelmina daughter of the late Samuel Condon, senior, by whom he had a son and daughter.

RHEUMATISM.

More than nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles, due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism. In such cases no internal treatment is required. The free application of Chamberlain's Liniment is all that is needed, and it is certain to give quick relief. Give it a trial and see for yourself how quickly it relieves the pain and soreness. The medicine usually given internally for rheumatism are poisonous or very strong medicines. They are worse than useless in cases of chronic and muscular rheumatism. For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN; A. E. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL; and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

Suicide of Prominent

Kentville Man.

Kentville, April 25.—A sad drowning occurrence under most distressing circumstances took place here this forenoon. Melville G. DeWolfe, one of our best known and most respected citizens, who has for some time been suffering ill health and a severe attack of despondency, drowned himself in the Cornwallis river near his own residence. A large number have been grappling the river during the afternoon, but up to the hour of wiring the body has not been recovered. This sad occurrence has cast a deep gloom over the whole town and community. Mr. DeWolfe was one of our most energetic, patriotic and progressive citizens and identified himself with every movement for the improvement, advancement and welfare of our town. Melville Gordon DeWolfe was in the sixty-third year of his age, the youngest son of the late James Edward DeWolfe, who during his lifetime conducted a general business in the establishment now known as the Red Store, started in 1828. The deceased continued the business left by his father, and the store still bears the sign DeWolfe and Lamont. He leaves surviving a widow and one brother, Alfred A. Mr. DeWolfe has from its inception been a member of the maritime board of trade, serving as president thereof, the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association, and the Nova Scotia Farmers' Association. He has rarely missed attendance at the annual gathering of these different organizations and has always taken an active part therein. He was a man prominently known throughout the maritime provinces.

Rev. G. W. H. Troop, son of Rev. G. Osborn Troop, rector of St. Martin's Church, Montreal, has renounced his allegiance to the Church of England and has been accepted by the committee of the Unitarian Conference.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL.

By a bill carried in the house of assembly last week, cow moose cannot be legally killed for three years.

Bridgetown will soon have a fire alarm, the apparatus for same having been ordered by the Town Council.

An amateur play will be given here about the first of June under the auspices of the Tennis and Quoit Club.

The body of little Fred Clark, who was drowned at Bridgewater, was found in the river near the bridge Thursday afternoon.

The auction of the farm property of Mr. George Shipton at Carleton's Corner will take place to-morrow, in front of Grand Central.

Messrs. A. W. Allen and Son have the contract for the big hotel at the mines at Torbrook, to accommodate one hundred and fifty to two hundred men.

Mr. J. H. Whitman, of Hampton, N. B., representing the Victoria Acetylene Manufacturing Company, has been spending some days in town.

The town council of Annapolis Royal is offering $500 for information that will lead to conviction of the person who set fire to Scott Act Inspector Carlin's house on the 19th inst.

Primary Graduating Exercises of the Sunday School at Clarence were held on Sunday evening with an interesting program, which we regret we have not space to publish in this issue.

One of the largest business houses of Annapolis Royal, recognizing the value of the Monitor-Sentinel in reaching the homes of the central and western part of Annapolis County, has contracted for advertising space to advertise their new carpet department.

Rev. A. S. Lewis, having resigned his pastorate of the Baptist Church here, left with his family for Yarmouth yesterday. No successor has yet been appointed for the church here but it is expected to have supplying preachers each Sunday until an appointment is made.

Our second April snow storm came on Sunday night, and left the roads covered with about four inches of snow on a level. The sidewalks being somewhat drifted and the snow-plough failing to put in appearance, walking was anything but a pleasure. Today the streets are almost dry again.

The Acadian Recorder quotes from its files of thirty years ago:—T. W. Chesley, Q. C., of Bridgetown, lectured this evening in Reform Club Hall. His subject was a "Tour through Italy." J. W. Longley pre-ferred Robert Motton, Q. C., W. F. sided and with him on the platform MacCoy, and others.

The Eastern Journal says:—Rev. Ritchie Elliott, pastor of the Margaree Baptist Church, has tendered his resignation, to take effect in June. During his stay here Mr. Elliott has won golden opinions as a faithful and conscientious pastor, and a man of sterling integrity. Mrs. Elliott also has a large place in the hearts of the people. Her gracious hospitality, her rare social gifts and her excellent musical talents have been constantly and unselfishly exercised for the benefit of the community. Her going from us will leave a blank not easily filled.

Mr. Peter Margeson, who has been spending the winter at the home of Charles Lewis, intends to resume operation of the farm in West Paradise this summer, and is advertising for a man and his wife to take charge with him. Mr. Margeson, who is in his eighty-fifth year, is a remarkable example of well-preserved humanity. His well-poised figure, quick movements, active gait, and alert expression might easily mislead one into judging him twenty years younger than he is. Mr. Margeson had an uncle who passed the century mark and there is a fair prospect that he may also become a centenarian.

Mr. G. H. Vroom, who has been sent out by the Dominion Government on a tour of inspection for the suppression of the Brown Tail Moth pest, arrived in Bridgetown yesterday afternoon. He had not been in Bridgetown an hour before he discovered, while walking through the town, about twenty Brown Tail Moth nests. He showed us one which he had picked from a plum tree, another from an apple tree. This shows the need of vigilance on the part of our citizens. For those who do not own fruit trees have an interest in the beautiful shade trees which line our streets, and which are in danger of destruction.

THE SIN OF PROFANITY.

A few days ago, in Montreal, Recorder Weir, in passing sentence on a man convicted of blasphemy and drunkenness, stated that the next man he heard using God's name in vain on the street corners when he was passing by he would arrest him, in his official capacity as justice of the peace. "It is a fearful abuse of the gift of speech," he said, "and the next prisoner that is arraigned before me I will be very severe on." This is an example that might be followed by every magistrate in the land and by every policeman and constable.

CANOE CAPSIZED AND THREE DROWNED.

Danvers, Mass., April 19.—Three persons, a man, woman, and infant child, were drowned in Middleton Pond to-day through the capsizing of a canoe. The husband of the woman, Ernest Morton, cashier of the Merchants National Bank of Boston, was saved. V. Dargin, editor of the Boston Traveller, is the man drowned, and the child was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norton.

NO LIQUOR AT THE MILITARY CAMPS.

Ottawa, April 23.—There will be no liquor at the military camps of instruction this summer. Instruction has been sent out by headquarters that the order against liquor being sold in the military camps be rigidly enforced. There has always been an order against the selling of liquor at camps, but it has very seldom been enforced. The movement against the canteen by temperance organizations resulting in verdicts in the courts against the canteen, has forced the department to issue stringent instructions.

A Bridgetown Vocalist in Comic Opera.

The Hartford (Conn.) Globe gives an account of a musical comedy, the "Princess Bonnie," recently performed there, which it describes as an event of much interest and artistic merit. An important member of the cast was Mrs. Arthur L. Seidler, (formerly Miss Lida Munro) of whose performance the Globe says:—

"Kitty Clover," the flirtatious object of "Shrimps's" attentions, was sung by Mrs. Arthur L. Seidler. It was a typical ingenue part, and Mrs. Seidler did it well, albeit the rapidity of the action at times called upon her for a professional perfection which no amateur could assume. In the second act, "Whisper Words of Love," sung with an octet of Spanish students, was one of the most fetching numbers of the entire opera and was loudly encored. She followed it with a "Creole Love Song" (interpolated) with banjo accompaniment. This, too, was well done, and Mrs. Seidler received a goodly bouquet of flowers."

Mr. Seidler was also a leading performer under the title of "Admiral Pomposo."

CATHEDRALS VS. DREADNOUGHTS.

Ten glorious and glorifying cathedrals could be erected in Canada for the cost of one Dreadnought. We believe the world needs cathedrals more than Dreadnoughts.—Beachcomber.

OUR EMBRYO FARMERS.

Is the knowledge imparted by the Agricultural College staff of practical use to the students? This question has been fully answered, says the Maritime Students' Agriculturalist. One of our Juniors, when at home during the Christmas holidays, put the knowledge he had gained into such violent practice that he actually forced the hens to lay so many eggs that they were obliged to lay soft-shelled ones, not having time to cover them with shells.

This Junior's father has asked the Principal to have C— held back a little, as he doesn't wish to be obliged to cut his hay with axes, or build a railroad into his turnip field next summer to remove the crop.

SANGUINARY SCHOOL DRILL.

Toronto, B. C., April 16.—Harold S. Stevens, of Fort Vancouver, aged eight, was accidentally shot through the heart by a companion while going through rifle evolutions according to the school drill.

Is the object of our schools to stimulate the arts of peace or the arts of war?

MORE LATITUDE FOR AUTOMOBILES IN AMHERST.

Amherst, April 19.—Ever since the advent of the automobile to this town, serious objections to their use have been made by people of the surrounding country whose horses objected to meeting them on the roads. Our merchants, to some extent, joined in the hue and cry against the machine when informed that many of their customers were deterred from coming to town and taking the chance of meeting one or more.

The county council has now dealt with the matter by passing, after much discussion, the following resolution:—

"Automobiles are allowed to be used on the public highways five days of the week, Thursday and Sunday they are prohibited from running except on the Tyndale road and on the LaBlanche road leading to the New Brunswick frontier." The rights of the auto owners are thus fairly well protected. A number of them have cottages at Amherst shore, to which Tyndale road leads, and those wishing to run there or to Sackville, may do so any day of the week. Nervous drivers of the horse will have to choose other days or risk being caught on these thoroughfares.

The motor-car has come to stay, and this season will witness the appearance on our streets of a number of additions to the already considerable list owned here.

Suppose you get at the rights of this roofing question—

Slate makes a handsome roof, and a very fair roof, w it's laid right,—and if you will pay the price. It's the only roofing that even compares with "Oshawa" Shingles for shedding wet. But—

A slate roof costs 4 times as much to buy; thrice as much to lay; and weighs 7 times as much—which demands heavy, rigid timbering to sustain it. Yet any slate roof will need repairs four times to an "Oshawa" shingled roof's once,—and then it won't be fire-proof, won't be wind-proof, won't be lightning proof. "Oshawa" Shingles are all that,—they're proof against everything that can affect a roof.

So-called "patent" roofings are mostly paper—that's the base and bulk of them, no matter what fancy names they bear. They can't stand much, at best; and they need painting and patching so very, very often that they're not so cheap as they seem,—not nearly so cheap.

Wood shingles are out of the question, practically. True, they're used a lot, but you wouldn't use them if you'd read "Roofing Right," the Pedlar People's free book. That would show you the facts about cost.

Well, that leaves the other makes of metal shingles. (Ever noticed how most of them dodge the use of the word steel?). They all cost about the same as "Oshawa" Shingles to start with. They are all hard to lay right. Mine are easy. And this is the BIG fact:—

Not one of those other makes is GUARANTEED. Mine are,—guaranteed to be a GOOD roof, in every respect, for twenty-five years, or—a NEW roof for nothing.

If that was all that could be said to praise "Oshawa" Shingles, isn't that one fact of the guarantee, plain and unequivocal, enough to warrant your preference? Better get samples and the book,—now. Write nearest warehouse.

MASSACRE IN SYRIA.

Beirut, Syria, April 18.—A terrible uprising has occurred in Adana. Street fighting has been going on for three days and at least one thousand persons have been killed. The city has been practically destroyed by fire. American missionaries named Rogers and Maurer, the latter from Hadjin, are dead. All the other Americans are safe. The British vice-consul, Major Daughtry-Wylie, is among the wounded. He was shot through the arm.

At Tarasus there was less loss of life. The American quarter, however, was destroyed. Four thousand refugees are housed in the American mission. The need of relief is urgent, for shortly the fugitives will be on the verge of starvation.

Conditions in the vicinity of Alexandria also are most serious.

AN AGREEABLE PROSPECT.

A New Englander, travelling on foot through the southern mountains studying the people, asked a man whom he met to direct him to a certain cabin at which he had been advised to stay overnight. "Going that?" said the man. "Well, Tom's a first rater, take him just right, but he's mighty queer."

"What do you mean?" asked the traveller. "Well, it's like this," and the man looked at the stranger in a calm, impersonal way. "He'll be setting outside, most probably and he'll see you coming; he'll take a good look at you, and if you don't suit him he may set the dog on you."

"If he don't, and you get to talking with him and say anything he don't just like, he may throw you down and tramp on you. But if you are too careful in your talk, on the other hand, he's liable to take you for a spy and use his gun just and listen to explanations afterward."

"But it's no use trying to get by without stopping," concluded the man, with evident relish of the prospect he was opening up to the stranger. "If you was to undertake that 'twould be all up with you, for he'd think you was proud and tizzetty."

"If you want to come out of the mountain whole, don't go past Tom's cabin without stopping, whatever you do!"—Youth's Companion.

BY ARITHMETICAL PROGRESSION.

(From Lippincott's Magazine.)

When discussing the growth of prohibition, Hoke Smith, ex-Governor of Georgia, told the following story: "You can't buy rum and rump with the same half dollar," he remarked, "but you can, with the same coin, buy beef and brawn. That's as true in the right sense as it was false in the case of the old slave once owned by a friend of mine. The planter had lost a pig, and accused old Sambo of appropriating the same. "Sam, you stole that shoat," he declared.

"No, I didn't, Marse Ridgely," answered Sam; "deed I didn't, sub." "Why, Sam, both Tom and Sylvester saw you do it. They tell me so themselves."

"Dey do, sub? Well, dey des didn't see nuffin' o' the kind. Case why? I didn't steal yo'-all's shoat; I des tuk 'im."

"I don't understand you, I Sam. There's no difference between stealing and 'just taking' something that doesn't belong to you."

"O, yes, dey is, Marse Ridgely. Sam contested. 'If I'd sold 'im dat'd been diffrnt, but I only et 'im. It's dis-away; dat's you-all's shoat, an' I'm you-'all's nigger. Well, sub, now it's true yo' rot less shoat, but yo' got more nigger.'"

George Ade says that when a certain college president in Indiana, a clergyman, was addressing the students in the chapel at the beginning of the college year, he observed that it was "a matter of congratulation to all the friends of the college that the year had opened with the largest freshman year in its history." Then, without any pause, the good man turned to the lesson for the day, the third Psalm, and began to read in a voice of thunder: "Lord how are they increased that trouble me!"—Lippincott's.

REGARDING LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

How many publishers of our country weeklies insist upon having changes of advertisements sent in by a certain hour on such a day? There are few who do, and in taking ads. any old time they happen to come along the publisher is not doing justice either to the advertiser or the compositor. In a great many offices ads. will be sent in at the last minute and this means a rush for the compositor. In nine cases out of ten he will not stop to read his copy over before commencing to set it up. He will get his display lines from the first case he lays his hands on, and the result is a poorly set ad. which attracts little attention. In this way, the advertiser does not obtain the results he would if his copy had been handed in early.

In having copy sent in early the compositor has a chance to lay out his work and knows exactly when he is at. It is much easier to set an ad. that will attract attention if he has a few minutes to study his copy. Especially at this time of the year, when the advertisers are enlarging their space does the compositor feel the necessity of having copy sent in at least half a day before publication. If publishers would insist upon this and refuse copy sent in late, the advertiser and both would directly benefit by such a change. The merchant would have more attractive advertisements and the printer would issue a much neater sheet.—Printers' Publisher.

Supervisor McKay.

(Educational Review.)

It is a familiar face that is presented in the Review supplement for this month—the portrait of Alexander McKay, the well-known supervisor of the Halifax schools. For fifty years Mr. McKay has been connected with educational work in Nova Scotia, a part of which he spent as a teacher in the public schools. For twenty-five years he has been supervisor of schools in Halifax, a post which he has filled with distinguished ability and to the satisfaction of all classes of citizens. His activities have not been confined to the schools whose interests have been his greatest care, and whose advancement and improvement he has labored for continually with a zeal and ambition worthy of the highest praise. His busy life has been a round of duties, in which not only educational but every kind of philanthropic work has found in him a helper and an advocate, ready at all times to give any worthy movement his active support, and to help it forward with unstinted and unselfish effort.

It would be difficult to mention any important institution which has not felt his stimulating influence. He has always taken a warm interest in Dalhousie College, where for many years he delivered lectures on education. He was one of the founders and the principal promoter of the Victoria Academy of Art and Design, which has been a great stimulus to art education in Halifax. He is one of the board of governors of the Halifax Ladies' College; and as secretary of the Provincial Educational Association of Nova Scotia for more than thirty years, his influence in that body has been effective and far-reaching.

A little more than a year ago the scholars, teachers, citizens and board of school commissioners of Halifax presented to Supervisor McKay a series of addresses and many valuable testimonials on the completion of fifty years of educational work in Nova Scotia, and in consideration of his eminent services as the supervisor of schools for that city. All classes vied with each other in expressions of affectionate esteem for the man who has devoted himself so unselfishly to duty. May his influence continue to be exerted for years to come in the wish of those who know the worth of the man and the enduring character of his work.

Supervisor McKay's addresses and writings on education impress one with the solidity of his views and his firm grasp of the subject. In the literature of educational reform he is an acknowledged authority.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE HOME

TRAIN THE GIRLS SO THEY MAY SAFELY TRAVEL ALONE.

I read recently of a woman who had chaperonage thrust upon her during her summer travels, which reminds me of an incident in my own, said a resident of the Heights. I have told the story as a warning to my friends to train their children—especially their daughters—so that if necessity arises for them to travel alone they may do so without incurring unnecessary danger.

The incident to which I refer is this, said she. We took the Hudson River boat for Kingston late in the spring. After I had made sure that our trunks were aboard I talked with the captain, an old friend of ours, who, of course, called me by name. I noticed a woman and young girl standing near, but supposed they were looking after their luggage. Just as the captain left, the woman said: "Miss Blank," and touched me on the arm. I raised my lorgnette remarking: "You have the advantage of me, madam," and she said: "Oh, I don't know you. I just heard the captain speak your name, and I noticed that your trunks are addressed to Kingston, so I thought I'd ask you to look after my little niece. She has been visiting me for some time and now she has to go home. But her landing is some below Kingston, so guess you can look out for her. Good-bye." And she disappeared up the gang plank, then about to be raised.

"I said to the girl, 'Your aunt should have put you in charge of the captain. She certainly had time enough to see him about it.' I almost added, 'I do not see why I should be burdened with the care,' but thought in time 'The poor girl is not to blame.' "She spoke of that," said the girl, "but she thought it would be pleasanter for me to have a lady look after me." I thought I would speak to the captain but he was busy, so I did not have a chance. I wondered if he had "seen her first," and so kept out of the way—had overheard the aunt's authoritative tone to me. Well, as my son says, I "had the time of my life." The girl was about sixteen, and seemed to have absolutely no ideas of the proprieties of traveling or how to conduct herself. When one of the boat men came past and asked for space to move some rope she began a conversation with him. He was fortunately too busy to talk. Presently I was joined by another Brooklyn woman who happened to be on the boat, and while we were talking I lost sight of the girl for a minute. Then I heard her say: "I don't care if I do," and turning saw her in conversation with a young man. "We're going around to look at the boat," said she. I put a detaining hand on her arm and said craftily: "Someone you've just met?" "Yes'm," said she, seeming to think his too evident admiration a tribute to her charm. "Then you will stay right where you are," I said pleasantly, but firmly, and to the young man: "This young woman is going about the boat with me, later. Good afternoon." He really grinned, but the girl was not pleased, as I explained correct form to her. However she sat still and seemed somewhat awed. When we did go around the boat I got the child some candy, for after all she was young and so untrained that I felt sorry for her. But many times I found her exchanging glances with the young man.

I found that her home was some distance from the landing place and that she reached by a short train on the boat approached the dock. I saw the young man go toward the gang plank. "He said maybe he'd see me home," said the girl. Just then I saw two Sisters of Charity joining the crowd leaving the boat, so I grasped the girl by the hand, asked the Sisters their destination, which I found was beyond the girl's station on the line, explained the situation to them and was thankful to see their instant appreciation of it, and turned my charge over to their care. I gave the girl my summer address and insisted that she write to me at once after reaching her home. She did so, and really thanked me very prettily for my care of her, also expressing her mother's thanks, but adding, "Ma says she don't see why you had any need to be so careful about me catching a beau!"

"Now, that girl was very pretty, quite well dressed, very 'country,' and had evidently been brought up to think that 'catching a beau' is the chief end and aim of a girl's existence, no matter who he may be or what the circumstances of the meeting. I could imagine how she and her friends talked over the whole affair of the boat and their comments.—Eagle.

WELL KEPT HANDS.

Over my sink are two bottles and a tall cleaner. One bottle contains five parts of lemon juice to one of alcohol which will keep indefinitely. The other contains the following lotion:

One-fourth of an ounce of gum tragacanth added to one pint of rain water which has stood three days, the one ounce each of alcohol, glycerine, and witch hazel, also a little good faint perfume.

After washing dishes or preparing vegetables, I apply a little of the lemon juice, then the lotion, and in a moment my hands are dry, soft, and very smooth. All stains disappear as if by magic, and the nails are cleaned easily. The time required is not over two minutes. This process repeated five or six times daily will certainly repay housekeepers for what is there more indicative of refinement than well kept hands? Then, too, the expense of these lotions is comparatively nothing. Be sure to have them in a handy place.—Woman's Home Companion.

HOT BED FOR RAISING SEEDLINGS.

A novice asks for the simplest description of a small hot-bed to raise a few seedlings without too much expense, being tired of trying to manage on a window sill in a soap box. In answering the question it may be stated that there is more surety in a hot-bed for seedlings than in a box unless the latter receives constant attention.

A simple construction is to make an oblong excavation two feet deep, with ten inches of manure packed closely into it before the soil is replaced. The frame starts at the surface of the ground and slopes from a height of eighteen inches at the back to four or five inches at the front, and is banked up on three sides for warmth. It must face the south and be sheltered from north and western winds.

For saving of expense in sashes there are many who use cloth in preference to glass. It is unbleached cotton tacked smoothly on a light frame of wood, and then given three coats of a mixture made of four ounces of linseed oil, two ounces of lime water mixed together with gentle heat; after which when lukewarm add the beaten whites of two eggs and the yolks after separate beating, and when the mixture is ready it will cover nine square feet of the cotton cloth with three coats. Needless to say one must be quite dry before the next is applied. The cloth should be impervious to water and translucent as oiled paper, but it is necessary to weight down the frame or the wind may disturb it. Sow seeds in rows, neatly labelled, leaving room for removal, and allowing for growth, placing the tiny pansy seed in front and the tomato at the rear.

Water regularly with tepid water, give air every day if possible, leaving the frame open on warm days, and covering closely at night. This method is simple and inexpensive.

MOTHERS.

Mothers are the queerest things! Member when John went away. All but mother cried and cried. When they said good-bye that day. She just talked, and seemed to be. Not the slightest bit upset—Was the only one who smiled! Others' eyes were streaming wet.

But when John came back again. In a furibund, safe and sound. With a medal for his deeds. And without a single wound. While the rest of us hurrabed. Laughed and joked and danced about.

Mother kissed him, then she cried—Cried and cried like all "it out!"

"SCUSE A LITTLE."

"Please say, 'I guess you didn't mean it!' sobbed a child pitifully when it was discovered in some childish misdemeanor; and the comforting words not only eased the sore heart's trouble, but plainly helped to a better life for the rest of the day, and perhaps for other days. A little boy in one of the kindergarten primaries in a country town a few years ago begged wistfully for a "gold star" when he saw the other boys and girls all getting them. "But," said the teacher, "you do spell so dreadfully, you know, and you don't half make your letters yet so I can read them!" "Don't you s'pose that maybe you could 'scuse a little'?" he pleaded: "cause I'm doing just the very bestest that I can!" It is the cry our human hearts are always making. Often the world seems hard and cold and does not heed it. But we might heed it. We might turn every cloudy action

In Five Minutes.

Take your sour stomach—or maybe you call it indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapensin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your stomach misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food turning; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness, and many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is feeble, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself, after your next meal, that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery. Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapensin.

round and find the silver lining. Wrongdoing is wrongdoing, in ourselves or in another, but we might at least see the worst deeds in the best light, and see what comes of it. That is the rule of fairness for a picture—why not for people's feelings? It was a sweet eulogy pronounced on a sweet woman by her grieving friends, "She was such an excusing sort of person—always so good at finding excuses for everybody."—Congregationalist.

LEFT UNDONE.

At vesper-tide, One virtuous and pure in heart did pray, "Since none I wronged in deed or word today, From whom should I crave pardon? Master, say."

A voice replied: "From the sad child whose joy thou hast not planned; The coded beast whose friend thou didst not stand; The rose that died for water from thy hand." —Emily Sargent Lewis, in New York Outlook.

When my heart is sad and lonely, And my treasured hopes decay, This my solace, and this only: I can dream all fears away. —Francis Owen.

The Toronto Congress

The Laymen's Congress in Toronto has been successful. There were over four thousand delegates present and the audiences were very large. Many of the ablest men in Canada and a choice representation of the right men from the United States were present. On Saturday night the following declaration of policy was carefully drafted and ably moved and adopted with enthusiastic unanimity:

"Your Committee recommends that the Council be continued, and its work extended, in the hope of enlisting the whole Church membership of Canada in active and sympathetic co-operation in carrying on a great missionary enterprise.

"That a permanent secretary be employed by the Council, and that this Congress provide for the expense of the movement for three years.

"That the methods of missionary education and finance, found so successful by the Council, be recommended for general adoption.

"That an inter-denominational co-operation committee of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, be organized in every city, town, and community, which shall keep in touch with the general movement, and co-operate with all individual congregations in reaching and maintaining the highest missionary efficiency.

"That the following statement be adopted, as expressing the conviction of the Congress with reference to the outstanding features of what may be called Canada's Missionary Policy:

"In view of the universality and finality of the Gospel of Christ, and of the spiritual needs of mankind, we believe the Church of our generation should undertake to obey literally the command of Christ to preach the Gospel to every creature.

"According to their several ability and opportunity, we believe that the Laymen and the Churches are equally responsible with the ordained ministers to pray and work for the coming of the Kingdom of God upon earth.

"We accept the estimates of our missionary leaders, that at least $1,300,000 annually should be contributed towards our home mission work, and $3,200,000 annually to foreign mission work by the churches represented in this Congress, aggregating a communicant membership of about nine hundred thousand.

"We confidently believe that the spirit of unity and co-operation so manifested in this movement will find expression in the practical methods of co-operation in both the home and foreign field, so that unnecessary duplication of the work may be avoided.

"Assembled in the first National Missionary Congress of modern times and deeply persuaded of the power combined in co-operative Christianity to solve all problems of human society, we desire to unite with the churches of our sister countries throughout Christendom as loyal servants of the King of Kings, in a comprehensive and adequate crusade for the winning of mankind to Jesus Christ, 'Who is the Way, the Truth, and the Life,' 'The desire of nations' and the 'Light of the world.'"

The denominational conventions adopted principles in accord with this declaration. We submit with much pleasure the following statement by Hon. D. E. Wilbur, American Consul in this city, a gentleman who has won the confidence and respect of all our citizens:

"I stand here, as a follower of the Lord Jesus Christ." He had been sent on the United States consular service to Singapore, and when he arrived there he was a man of the world. So impressed did he become with the native as a result of the work of the missionaries, that, "after two years in Singapore, I made up my mind that if God could make such a fine finished article out of the new material of the heathen, that God could also make something out of me, and so I gave myself to Him, and I stand here before you the finished product of the work under God of the missionary."

OBJECT TO STRONG MEDICINES.

Many people object to taking the strong medicines usually prescribed by physicians for rheumatism. There is no need of internal treatment in any case of muscular or chronic rheumatism, and more than nine out of every ten cases of the disease are of one or the other of these varieties. When there is no fever and little (if any) swelling, you may know that it is only necessary to apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely to get quick relief. Try it. For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN, N. S., E. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

Some people, in a new found morality, assert that the Scott Act makes perjurers. The Rev. Mr. Grant says: "It's the drink that makes the perjurer. A man commits perjury not because of the Scott Act, but because he is a liar."

Rheumatism Cured in 3 Weeks

By Father Morrissy's "No. 7" Tablets.

Mr. James LeB. Johnstone, a prominent member of the Citizen's Band, of Chatham, N.B., writes:—"I contracted Rheumatism by exposure five years ago, and was ailing for two months and in great pain all the time. I got Father Morrissy's No. 7 Tablets, and took them for about three weeks, when the Rheumatism all left me, and I have had no return of the pains since."

"Father Morrissy's No. 7" Tablets have a remarkable record of cures of Rheumatism and Kidney Troubles. They act directly on the Kidneys, which have become clogged with impurities and are therefore unable to free the blood of the poisons it is continually gathering from every part of the body. The tablets clear the kidneys and tone them up for their work so that they can properly purify the blood. Once the Uric Acid is taken out of the blood the agonizing pains stop, and the Rheumatism is cured. "No. 7" tablets cost 50c at your dealer's, or from Father Morrissy Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N.B. 19
