WEATHER TABLE

THE following Table, constructed upon a philosophical consideration of the attraction of the Sun and Moon, in their several positions respecting the Earth, and confirmed by experience of many years actual observation, furnishes the observer, without further trouble, with the knowledge of what kind of weather there is the greatest probability of succeeding, and that so near the truth, that in very few instances it will be found to fail.

New and Full Moon	Summer.	Winter.
If it be new or full Moon, or the Moon entering into the first or last quarter at 12 noon, or between 12 and 2, 2 and 4 afternoon, 4 and 6 evening, 6 and 8, 8 and 10, 10 and 12 night, 12 and 2 morning, 2 and 4, 4 and 6, 6 and 8, 8 and 10, 10 and 12	Very Rainy..... Changeable..... Fair..... Fair, if wind at n.w. Rainy, if wind at s. or s.w. Ditto..... Fair..... Ditto..... Cold with frequent Showers..... Rain..... Wind and Rain..... Changeable..... Frequent Showers....	Snow or rain Fair and mild. Fair Fair & frosty, if wind at n or n.w. Rain or snow, if s or s.w. Ditto Fair and frosty Hard frost unless wind s or s.w. Snow and stormy. Ditto Stormy weather Cold rain, if wind be w., snow if a Cold & high wind.

Hence, the nearer the time of the moon's entrance at full, change, and quarters, is to MIDNIGHT, (that is, within two hours before and after midnight) the more fair the weather is in summer; but the nearer to NOON, the less fair. Also, the moon's entrance at full, change, and quarters, during six of the afternoon hours, viz. from 4 to 10, may be followed by fair weather; but this is mostly dependent on the wind. The moon's entrance in all the hours after midnight, except the two first, is unfavourable to fair weather. The like nearly may be observed in the winter.

Moon's Rising and Setting.

N.B.—This Table is sufficiently accurate for the purpose for which it is inserted—that of ascertaining moonlight evenings.

Observations on the Weather.

1. Mists.—A white mist in the evening over a meadow with a river, will be drawn up by the sun next morning, and the day will be bright. Five or six fogs successively drawn up, portend rain. Where the mist which hangs over low lands, draws towards high hills in the morning, and rolls up to the top, it will be fair; but if the mist hangs upon the hills, and drags along the woods, there will be rain.

2. Clouds.—Against much rain the clouds increase very fast, especially before thunder. When they are forined like fleeces, but dense in the middle, and bright towards the edges, with the sky bright, they are signs of a frost, with hail, snow, or rain. If they form high in air, in thin white trains, like locks of wool, they portend wind, and probably rain. When a general cloudiness covers the sky and small black fragments of clouds fly underneath, they are a sure sign of rain, and probably will be lasting. Two currents of clouds always portend rain, and, in summer, thunder.

3. Dew.—If the dew lies plentifully on the grass after a fair day, it is a sign of another. If not, and there is no wind, rain must follow. A red evening portends fine weather; but if it spread too far upward from the horizon in the evening, and especially morning, it foretells wind or rain, or both. When the sky, in rainy weather, is tinged with sea green, the rain will increase; if with deep blue, it will be showery.

4. Heavenly Bodies.—If there be a haziness in the air which fades the sun's light, and makes the orb appear whitish, or ill-defined; or, at night, if the moon and stars grow dim, and a ring encircles the former, rain will follow. If the sun's rays appear like Moses' horns, if white at setting, or shorn of his rays, or goes down into a bank of cloud in the horizon, bad weather is to be expected. If the moon looks pale and dim, we expect rain; if red, wind; and if of a natural colour, with a clear sky, fair weather. If the moon is rainy throughout it will clear at the change, and perhaps the rain return a few days after. If fair throughout, and rain at the change, the fair weather will probably return on the fourth or fifth day. If at night the stars appear unusually numerous, and there be little or no wind, easterly wind and rain, or snow, generally soon follow.

5. Wind.—If the wind veers about, much rain is pretty sure. If in changing it follows the course of the sun, it brings fair weather; the contrary, foul. Whistling or howling of the wind, a sure sign of rain.

6. Meteors.—The Aurora Borealis, after warm days, are generally succeeded by cooler air.—Shooting stars are supposed to indicate wind.

The following observations are by the ingenious Dr. Kirwan :

1.—When there has been no particular storm about the time of the Spring equinox (March 21), if a storm arise from the east on or before that day, or if a storm from any point of the compass arise near a week after, the equinox, then, in either of these cases, the succeeding summer is generally dry, four times in five.*

2.—But if a storm arise from the S.W. or W.S.W. on or just before the Spring equinox, then the summer following is generally wet, five times in six.

*N.B.—The summers of 1841 and 1842 were instances.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Post-Office,—Established 1840.

Postmaster, W. L. SOLOMON.

Her Majesty's Mails for the North American Colonies and the United States, are conveyed in Steam Packets, which sail from Liverpool for Halifax and Boston twice in each month (except December, January, February, and March, in which they sail only once.) The Mails are made up in London on the 3rd and 18th of every month—(except as above,) unless these days fall on a Sunday, when they are made up the day after—and the Steamers start from Liverpool immediately on the receipt of the Mails. On the average the passage to Halifax occupies about 12 days. The Newfoundland Mails are at present brought from Halifax in Sailing Packets, which remain at St. John's 48 hours and then return to Halifax with the Newfoundland Mails for England.

N.B.—It is understood that the Steam Vessel North America will be employed (instead of the Sailing-Packets above mentioned) to convey the Mails between St. John's and Halifax, commencing in April next, after which the Post-office Regulations published in the last Almanac, will probably require some revision.

SITUATION OF THE VIRGIN ROCKS.

The bank on which the shoal is situated, extends E. by N. and W. by S. $4\frac{1}{2}$ miles ; its broadest part is about $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles. The soundings are regular, from 28 to 30 fathoms, until they deepen suddenly on the outer edge to 39 and 43.

The rocks themselves are in Lat. 46 deg. 26 min. 33 sec. N. Long. 50 deg. 56 min. 35 sec. W. They extend in an irregular chain S.W. by W. and N. E. by E. 800 yards, varying from 200 to 300 yards in breadth. The least depth of water is on a white rock in $4\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms, with 5 to 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms all round it—the bottom distinctly visible. Towards the extremities of the shoal are several detached rocks of from 7 to 9 fathoms, with deep water between, and with a current setting over them W.S.W. one mile an hour, and with, also, a very confused heavy swell.

TRANSATLANTIC STEAM-NAVIGATION.

The following calculations (copied from the Liverpool Standard, and believed to be accurately worked,) of the comparative distances between New York and Bristol, and New York and Liverpool; and also between Boston and Liverpool, via Halifax; may be valuable to such persons as may be desirous of comparing the length of the passages respectively, out and home, of the transatlantic Steam Ships running between those Ports.

Taking, therefore, the direct course in each case, as by the calculations given, we have the following results:—

The voyage from New York to Liverpool is 43 miles longer than from New York to Bristol. From New York to Liverpool is longer than from Halifax to the same port by 529 miles. From New York to King's-road, near Bristol, where the Great Western anchors, is 99 miles further than from Boston, via Halifax, to Liverpool. And that the voyage from Liverpool to Halifax, via St. John's, is only 104 miles longer than the direct passage.
