The Ontario Elections.

The general Provincial elections held in Ontario on Monday, resulted in a sweeping victory for the Whitney Conservative Government. Sir James Whitney has given Ontario good government and the people have confidence in him. During many years of Liberal rule in the great Province of Ontario, prior to 1905, the people did not know what honest clean government meant. When the Whitney administration assumed office in the last mentioned year a new era dawned for the electorate of that Province. Their eyes were opened; they were taught that the public business could be conducted in honest clean fashion; a condition of affairs that had not prevailed for a generation before. Sir James Whitney inaugurated a vigorous, honest and clean administration of Provincial affairs. To this standard he has lived up ever since and every time he has appealed to the people they have voted confidence in him by overwhelming majorities. In this election Premier Whitney appealed to the electors on his record; he made no high sounding promises of new departures in governing; his ten years of administration were before them; on that record he was prepared to stand or fall. On the other hand, Mr. Powell, Leader of the Opposition, presented a platform of promises. He promised too much; he promised what he could not fulfill. The people were not to be deceived by these vague generalities; they were not going to condemn a record of good government for vague uncertainties; they were not going to strike down the veteran leader who had rendered such great services to their Province. The result of the voting is the return of the Government by an immense majority. In the last House the Opposition had 18 members. There has been a redistribution of seats and the membership of the House has been increased to 111. The Conservatives have 83; the Liberals 25; Labor 1; Temperance 1; Independent Liberal 1. It will thus be seen that Premier Whitney will have in the new House, a majority of 55 over all. That is certainly a splendid endorsement of his record. All the cabinet ministers were re-elected except Dr. Rheaume. Eventual who had been read out of the Liberal party, has been elected in Prescott as an Independent Liberal. Certainly Whitney is the man for Ontario.

From Montreal, under date of June 28th, Bradstreet's trade report says: "The conditions of the wholesale trade in general is without any new features, buyers and sellers exercising a good deal of caution. Quite a number of our houses are holding up some of their goods on account of payments not being up to their satisfaction. Wholesale dry goods houses state that orders this week show improvement. While there is no change in the flour market, prices have an easier tendency owing to the large offerings and the lower prices of the raw material. Large sales are reported as having been made of Manitoba wheat for export between three and four million bushels of grain being shipped out of this port during the week. A cargo of Argentina corn containing about 232,000 bushels was received here during the week consigned to a local house. A good deal of this corn will be used in the local market and the balance will be distributed throughout Canada. The crop outlook throughout the Dominion continues very favorable but the crop in this province requires more rain to stimulate growth. The retail trade has been fairly active as a large number of families leaving for the country and seaside resorts have been purchasing their requirements. There has been a pretty considerable quantity of bear news to chalk up of late and everyone in the street is taking of how well the market has taken it all. The market must be about bullet proof by this time, suggested one broker.

The Regina Standard says: "Regina people will be well advised to investigate very carefully any proposition in regard to stock in oil wells at Calgary before investing their savings in it. It is true that there has been one good strike of oil in the Okotoks district, but it is also true that almost every section of land from near Calgary to the international border has been staked out as an oil lease, and it is very, very certain that a great many of these have no indications of oil and never will have."

The Dominion accounts for the last fiscal year, ending March 31st last, were closed at Ottawa on June 25. The statement of revenue and expenditure will be issued in a couple of weeks, and is not expected to show much divergence from the estimate made by the minister of finance of $163,000,000 consolidated fund revenue; $126,000,000 of expenditure on consolidated account, and $37,000 surplus. The closing up of accounts has this year been retarded by the delay in passing the supplementary estimates last session.

As a result of a white clothes crusade for men in Chicago some daring individuals went forth into the streets to business immaculately clad in white linen or flannel. They presented a fine appearance for a while, but when evening came they found themselves more or less spotted with soot and other dirt. There is nothing to wonder at in this. A big and busy city with numerous factory chimneys is not an ideal place for a worker to wear white in. Some women succeed, it is true, but they have to make more changes than any man without a valet would care to. It is feared that the ugly and unprogressive sex will have to stick to dark colors as respects clothing.

Prince Edward Island's share of the $800,000 voted by the Federal Parliament this year to the Provincial Governments, under the agricultural instruction set passed last year, is $27,832. The grant for this Province is to be allotted as follows: Agricultural education in connection with Prince of Wales College, $4,000. Short courses in agriculture, $2,000. Live stock judging classes, $500. Demonstration work in horticulture, sheep and poultry husbandry, $2,000. Building for agricultural centre, Summerside, $4,000. District representatives' work, $4,500. Women's institutes $2,500. Office assistance, $1,000. Introducing nature study in public schools, $7,832. Total—$27,832.

Big Business Failure

New York, June 25.—The biggest mercantile failure in the history of the United States was precipitated today when receivers were appointed for the H. B. Clafin Company of this city. The company, it is estimated, owes more than $30,000,000, which, at the present time, is unable to pay. Its assets are said to be $44,000,000. John Clafin head of the concern, and its chief individual stockholder, is the owner of a chain of nearly thirty other dry goods enterprises throughout the country which are involved in the failure. Receivers for several of these were named today, and similar action, it was announced, would be taken in the case of the rest. Their business will be continued under receivers management until their financial affairs have been adjusted.

From three thousand to five thousand banks, in all parts of the United States, compose the bulk of the Clafin creditors. They hold notes aggregating the major part of the liabilities. These notes are said to have been by the various Clafin stores, endorsed by H. B. Clafin and Company, and the proceeds used, when discounted, in financing their needs.

According to Mr. Clafin the failure was due to unprecedented shifting of trade centres in New York City, which compelled the concern to rely mainly upon its retail stores in other cities for its profits. The crash came today after vain efforts had been made by Mr. Clafin to induce J. P. Morgan and Company and other Wall Street banking interests to loan him money to tide over his embarrassment. These bankers, it was learned, advanced the company several million dollars about two weeks ago, but the hundreds of note holding banks throughout the country continued to press their claims until it became evident that practically the whole $30,000,000 would have to be raised to save the company from failure.

Witch City Burned.

Salem, Mass., June 25.—Nearly half of the "Old Witch City" of Salem, rich in historic buildings and traditions, was devastated today and tonight by a fire that caused an estimated loss of $10,000,000; destroyed one thousand buildings, including a score of manufacturing establishments and made ten thousand of the forty-five thousand residents homeless. The fire originated in the Korn Leather factory on the west side of the city about two o'clock this afternoon, swept through the shoe and leather manufacturing district, ruining every building in a curving path two miles long and more than half a mile wide.

Burning embers, carried by a strong northwest wind, started fires in two other sections, the fashionable residential district, adjacent to Lafayette street, and a manufacturing and tenement district on the peninsula bounded by Palmer's Cove, South River and the waterfront.

"The House of Seven Gables" was also in the danger zone. The fire burned a semi-circular path. Originally driven in a southeasterly direction from the foot of Gallows Hill, the place where witches were hanged two and a half centuries ago, it spread to South Salem and then changed its course and crept steadily in a northerly direction toward Town House Square, the centre of the city's retail business life.

For a time the whole city seemed doomed. Then the firemen concentrated their energies in a single point of defense near the Boston and Main Railroad station. Several buildings in this vicinity were dynamited, every available line of hose was directed against the approaching flames and late tonight it looked as though the fire had been checked. Some fifty injured persons were received at the hospitals.

Thousands of the homeless were camped on Salem Commons to night with such household goods as they could save piled around them. Long lines of refugees, most of them on foot, and others in wagons, carriages and automobiles crowded the road leading to Beverly, where hundreds spent the night in the parks.

Early in the evening the electric light plant was burned out, throwing the city into darkness. The high school, police station, state armory, churches and other public buildings were thrown open to the homeless ones and the city was policed by militiamen. The great destruction was due to poor water pressure.

Salem, Mass. June 26.—Relief for the fire sufferers poured into the city in unstinted measure today. The great loss had fallen upon the factory employes, chiefly French-Canadians and Poles. They comprise a majority of the ten thousand who are homeless, and they have lost not only their homes and personal belongings, but their employment. The loss to the mill companies, commercial houses, city institutions and churches, is protected to a large extent by insurance.

The Unsinkable Ship.

The last two weeks have been more than usually productive of stories of collisions between steamships at sea where the meeting of the vessels has not been due to narrow channels. Even in the St. Lawrence river at the point where the Empress and Storstad crashed, the river is at least twenty miles in width, and in most places deep. Off New York there was another collision, in the open ocean; the English channel was the scene of another, and just a few days prior to the Empress tragedy the cables carried the word of a steamship crashing into an iceberg off the coast of Newfoundland. From these incidents it would appear that the factor of safety construction of ships is still of paramount importance despite all the tremendous advances in the realm of navigation, the use of signals, wireless telegraphy and government precautions taken to guard the sea lanes.

It is asserted in the Scientific American that the Great Eastern, the leviathan of half a century ago, was practically "unsinkable." She had a double hull, a longitudinal bulk-head (alias a partition running lengthwise down her middle from bow to stern) and numerous cross bulk-heads. Instead of improving on this, of even holding to it, modern builders have retrograded. Double hulls are rare; longitudinal bulk-heads are unknown. The article concludes:

"Where the lives of a whole town full of people is concerned the ships that carry them should be made fool-proof. This can be done; it is a mere matter of mechanics and construction. Certain it is that the human element and all the risks which come with it can never be eliminated." A ship-building expert who was asked after the Empress disaster the question, "Can an unsinkable ship be built?" replied, "Yes; but it wouldn't pay." So much space would be taken up by water-tight compartments, he said, that not enough room would be left for passengers and freight. Perhaps he knows. But we imagine that the first steamship company which advertises an unsinkable ship will get pretty much any price it may ask for accommodation, and will find that an unsinkable ship certainly can pay.

Archduke Assassinated

The Arch Duke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne, and the Princess of Hohenberg, his wife, were shot dead in the main street of the Bosnian capital by a student on Saturday, while they were making an apparently triumphal progress through the city on their annual visit to the annexed provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The Archduke was hit full in the face and the Princess was shot through the abdomen and throat. Their wounds proved mortal within a few minutes after reaching the palace to which they were hurried with all speed. Those responsible for the assassination took care that it should prove effective as there were two assailants the first armed with a bomb and the other with a revolver. The bomb was thrown at the royal automobile as it was proceeding to the town hall where a reception was to be held but the Archduke saw the deadly missile coming and warded it off with his arm. It fell out side the car and exploded, slightly wounding two aides-de-camp in a second car and half a dozen spectators. It was on the return of the procession that the tragedy was added to the long list of those which have darkened the pages of the recent history of the Hapsburgs. As the royal automobile reached a prominent point in the route to the palace, an eighth grade student Gavrilo Prinsip sprang out of the crowd and poured a fusillade of bullets from an automatic pistol at the Archduke and the Princess. Both fell mortally wounded. Prinsip and a fellow conspirator a compositor from Trebinje named Gabrinovic, barely escaped lynching by the infuriated spectators and were finally seized by the police who afforded them protection. Both men are natives of the annexed province of Herzegovina.

CANADA

THE WESTERN CITIES. THEIR BORROWINGS AND THEIR ASSETS BY HENRY HOWARD.

Published by the Investors Guardian, Ltd., Lime St. Chambers, 21, Lime St. London, E. C.

This book deals concisely and discriminately with the present conditions of the Western Cities of Canada, giving full details as to their loans and assets. It shows what remarkable progress has been made of recent years, and the general stability which has been attained in a short space of time. It is the result of two journeys made by the writer, one in 1910 and the other in 1913, in both of which he traversed the Dominion of Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific. As an interval of three years occurred between the two journeys and as, on both occasions, visits of considerable duration were made to the cities described, a trustworthy basis existed for the ascertainment of the progress actually achieved during the interval by these cities, as well as by the Dominion as a whole.

Separate chapters are devoted to Winnipeg, Prince Albert, Edmonton, Calgary, Victoria, Vancouver, Medicine Hat, Moose Jaw, Regina, Saskatoon, Brandon, Port Arthur and Fort William. In these chapters the results produced are compared with the outlay involved and the indebtedness which has been incurred.

In the concluding chapter the question as to the continuance of the progress, not only of the Western Cities, but of Canada itself, is discussed, and in the elucidation of this problem the writer has brought to bear the latest information as to the annual wealth production of the Dominion as compared with the interest accruing on the whole of its indebtedness.

Militia Force.

Ottawa, June 24.—It is stated that the action of the government in transferring the Fisheries Department to the control of the Deputy Minister of naval affairs is another step by the government toward the development of the proposed naval militia force.

It is planned to have this force recruited largely from among the fishing population of the two Canadian coasts and the Great Lakes.

Therefore it is proposed to give to Mr. Desbarats, the naval deputy, the control of all fishery matters. Hereafter it is from his office that regulations concerning the taking of fish shall go. He will send out instructors to improve methods of fish packing. The new arrangement which will take effect next week, is expected not only to promote the organization of the naval militia but to improve the efficiency of administration of the fisheries branch.

Seven Deaths During Storm

Chicago, June 24.—Seven deaths, scores of injured, crop damage amounting to thousands of dollars, and heavy damage to buildings, were caused in an electrical and wind storm that swept Minnesota and Wisconsin from the northwest today. Communication between many cities was cut off owing to the prostration of telegraph and telephone wires. It was feared tonight that a still larger loss of life would be revealed when the full extent of the storm is known. In Minneapolis, Miss L. Grams, Margaret Kelley, and Louis Grams were drowned when the wind overturned their canoe. Esther Munson was killed when her home collapsed. Two deaths were reported at Wausau, Wis., when a barn in which a country wedding was being celebrated was demolished. Another death was reported from Clear Lake, Wis. The storm struck Watertown, S. D., with its full force late last night and demolished three hundred buildings, composing city blocks. Scores of persons were reported seriously injured. The wind reached a maximum sixty-eight miles an hour at Sioux City, accompanied by a heavy rainfall.

Reports from Appleton, Watertown, Wis., Eau Claire, Oshkosh, Madison, Fond Du Lac, Wausau, Marinette, and Milwaukee indicate that the property damage will be extensive.

An accident happened to the mail express train on her way from Summerside Monday night. Near Traveller's Rest an axle of the tender broke. An engine came out from Summerside and took back the passenger cars. A wrecking train went out from Charlottetown to clear the track. The belated mail train reached here about 8 o'clock Tuesday morning. No one was hurt.

Advices from St. John's Nfld. say: More favorable reports regarding the codfishery are being received and the prospects look better. The Dominion Royal Commission is expected here July 26th, being transferred at Rimouski from the Alsatian to the Canadian Government steamer Earl Grey, which conveys them to St. John's.

On the 10th of July or thereabouts the Government steamer Minto will sail from Halifax for Hudson Bay for the purpose of buoying the passages to Port Nelson. The Minto will be the first boat to visit the Bay this year. Navigation to Hudson Bay generally opens about July 1st each year but has been somewhat behind hand this season. The Minto is now at Halifax.

The boiler of a gas well drilling outfit at the home of J. W. McCutcheon, at Oshawa Ont., exploded last Thursday morning about nine o'clock and landed on the lawn of T. H. Everson, fifty yards away, tearing down his hedge and several shade trees as it landed. Young Arthur McCutcheon was struck in the face by some of the flying debris and removed to the hospital in an unconscious condition.

There was a thrilling scene at the wreck of the steamer Gothland from Montreal to Rotterdam near Houghton Sibley Islands when a boat loaded mostly with women and children broke from the davits and fell thirty feet into the sea. The Gothland quartermaster jumped into the waves and saved three women and the life boat men sprang overboard and passed the drowning children to the life boats. All were saved.

While in mid-ocean the Australian steamer Krakura which arrived at Vancouver on June 24th, Bernard Kelly, a steward was successfully operated on for appendicitis. The steamer was stopped while the surgeon worked.

Hugh McDonald, aged 25, barge hand with the Foundation Co., fell off a barge at New Castle N. B. the other morning was carried under by the tide and never seen again. His brother was working on the barge at the time.

In this issue will be found an advertisement of the St. John Exhibition which will be held in that city from Sept. 5th to 12th 1914. The annual exhibition of the agricultural and manufactured products of New Brunswick held in the city of St. John is an event of much importance, and has attracted great numbers of people to that progressive city. These exhibitions have been eminently successful, and this year promises to outstrip them all. Preparations are making for a much larger exhibition than any of those held in former years, and the attractions arranged for are far greater than any proved hitherto. A holiday trip to the St. John Exhibition will be time well spent.

Emerson D. Dietrich Brooklyn manager of a theatrical production presenting a troupe of trained lions was killed and partly devoured in Chicago a few nights ago by six lions when he entered the car in which they were caged. While the keepers were trying to recover Dietrich's body from the beasts a lion escaped from an adjoining cage and terrorized residents of the thickly populated quarter in which the car stood. The escaped lion finally was driven back to its cage, having harmed no one. A pike pole from the fire department finally was used to withdraw Dietrich's body from the lions after it had been sprinkled with formaldehyde to drive the animals away.

The members of St. Dunstan's Branch, No 216 C. M. B. A. held their annual celebration on Sunday last. The members approached Holy Communion at the 7 o'clock Mass in the pro-Cathedral. In the afternoon the members assembled at the Branch Hall and theme, preceded by the League of the Cross Band, marched to the pro-Cathedral, arriving there at 8.30. An excellent sermon was preached by Rev. Nicholas Roche, Superior of the Basilian Fathers in Canada. His text was the 16th verse of the X chapter of the Gospel of St. John: "And other sheep I have that are not of this fold; them also must I bring, and they shall be one fold and one shepherd." The Rev. preacher in his sermon urged greater activity in the work of the lay apostolate. His discourse was earnest and admirable in every respect. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament following. Rev. Father McQuaid officiated. His Lordship the Bishop and Rev. Dr. McLellan occupied seats in the sanctuary. After the services in the church the procession reformed and marched through the principal streets, the clergy in a coach bringing up the rear. Reaching the Branch Hall, suitable remarks were made by the clergy and some of the members. Singing of the National Anthem brought the exercises to a close.

At this date (A. D. 66) the Lateran Palace is commonly supposed to have escheated to the Emperor. A century and a half later Septimius Severus gave a large sum for its restoration to the Emperors in the time of Maximian (A. D. 286-305), and he gave it to his daughter Fausta on her marriage with Constantine, so then for a time it was known as the Domus Faustae. The Empress was beheaded A. D. 326 for her cruelties and vices; but long before her death the Lateran Palace had been, as we have seen given to the Pope. The original church was dedicated under the name of the Saviour; but, as Constantine also built the great baptistry adjoining it, and baptistries were dedicated by custom to St. John the Baptist, the Basilica itself was gradually spoken of as the Church of St. John in Laterano. The baptistry was built by Constantine to commemorate the place of his own baptism; but the present interior dates from Pope St. Sixtus III. (482-440); and to his time belong the eight prophetic columns which form the lower support of the dome. The great font under the dome is an ancient urn of green basalt. In it "the Last of the Tribunes," Cola di Rienzi, is said to have bathed on the night of August 1, 1347, before he showed himself to the Romans as a knight. The frescoes on the walls, by Andrea Camisiri, Gemignano, and Carlo Maratta, illustrate the life of the imperial founder—John Ayscough, in The Ava Maria.

A severe electrical storm accompanied by a downpour of rain passed over this city Thursday. The storm seems to have been heavy over Prince and Queen's Counties. In Charlottetown several houses were struck and more or less damaged. Fortunately no one was seriously injured, although some were stunned. A house on Bayfield street occupied by Mrs. Wm. Rodd was struck. The current entered by the kitchen flue and went down into the kitchen, tearing up the oil-cloth and the sink. Miss Mable Rodd was in the kitchen at the time and received a severe shock but fortunately not serious. The residence of Mr. Samuel Craig on Elm Avenue was also struck, the kitchen flue being knocked down. The kitchen was covered with soot and a ball of fire was seen near the wall. In Mr. H. R. Large's residence, which is on the same street, the inmates had also a narrow escape. The lightning came out by the fire alarm with a loud report, there being a ball of fire of considerable size, but fortunately no damage was done to the building. Several other residents report having had startling experiences. At Newlands the home of Mr. A. E. Dewar, the lightning struck and shattered a tree and the telephone line but fortunately did not damage the house although a member distinctly felt the shock. At Summerside the current entered the residence of W. S. Steeves near the flue and followed the chimney down to the first floor going out through the side of the building. A fire was started on the roof by the lightning, but it was extinguished with a few buckets of water. The barn of John J. McNally, just east of the town, was also struck by the lightning, and a valuable Holstein calf in a box stall was killed. A boy entering the stable with a horse which he had been watering had his hair singed. Several posts in the barn were splintered.

Remember St. Mary's Tea Souris, is on the 15th July. 21.

Mr. Gutelius, General Manager and Mr. Brady, General Superintendent of Canadian Government Railways, accompanied by their Secretaries, arrived at Summerside from Moncton, Wednesday evening of last week. They were on the Island, a couple of days and, in company with Mr. McEwen, Superintendent and other officials of the P. E. Island Railroad, made a tour of inspection of all lines in the Province.

A cloudburst at Lunenburg, during Thursday night made the village, which has a population of 1,000 persons, a lake six feet deep. The Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway tracks were under three feet of water for three thousand feet according to announcement at the division office. At Lacrosse, Wis. Railway service is abandoned. Lunenburg cannot be reached by telephone, and rescuers are obliged to go in boats.

The deceased had been enjoying his usual good health, and was actively engaged at his farm work, and had almost finished his cropping when he was suddenly seized by a severe and fatal attack of pneumonia, and although the best medical skill was procured and he was attended by careful and tender nursing, he only stood the attack about three days and died at his home on the 9th of June, at the age of 62 years.

He was attended and consoled during his sufferings by his faithful and loving pastor Rev. Bernard Gillis, P. P. from whom he received the last holy rites of the Catholic Church of which he was a true and consistent member. Mr. Campbell was a good and generous neighbour, a kind husband and a loving father. He leaves a sorrowing widow, one daughter Mrs. James Jarvis, and one son Gerald, to mourn their sad bereavement. He also leaves, one brother, Colin J. at North Lake, two sisters Mrs. John J. Campbell Elmira and Mrs. J. D. Gillis, St. Peter's Bay.

About 50 carriages attended the funeral, when the remains were conveyed to the cemetery of St. Columba on the 11th inst.; The services in the church and at the grave were performed by Rev. K. C. McPherson, P. P. St. Margaret's Com.

Deceased was Secretary of the St. Peter's Bay Silver Black Fox Company, and left here for Boston about six weeks ago on business in connection with this company. Letters from him intimated that he was not very well; but nothing serious was anticipated until Friday when a telegram arrived stating that he was very sick. This was followed the same day by another saying he was dead. The remains were brought home. MAULAY—Mr. Angus C. McAulay of Tracadie Cross received a few days ago, from Silvertown, B. C., a telegram containing the sad intelligence of the death of his son Ronald, at that place. No particulars were given; but it appears, as far as known, that he was in some way jolted out of a vehicle which he was driving with such force as to cause his death. Deceased was about twenty-five years of age and had been in British Columbia about seven years. Besides his parents there are left to mourn the following brothers and sisters: Frank and Bruce at home, Angus in Silvertown, Annie and Mary at home and another—Sister Anastasia of St. Joseph's Convent in this city. Interment was made in Silvertown. R. I. P.

Obituary.

"In the midst of life we are in death." The above proverb was truly verified when the sudden and unexpected death of Aeneas B. Campbell, an intelligent and prosperous farmer of North Lake was announced and which cast a deep gloom over the whole community.

The deceased had been enjoying his usual good health, and was actively engaged at his farm work, and had almost finished his cropping when he was suddenly seized by a severe and fatal attack of pneumonia, and although the best medical skill was procured and he was attended by careful and tender nursing, he only stood the attack about three days and died at his home on the 9th of June, at the age of 62 years.

PSALM XXXIX.

EXPECTANS EXPECTAVI.

(Written for the Catholic Bulletin by Helen Hughes Hielscher.)

O Lord, I waited patiently Thy day, When Thou wouldst raise me from the noisome pit, And place me firmly on the rock to sit,

A canticle of praise let me begin, A song of fear and trust unto the Lord: Blessed is the man who His command has heard, And turned from vanity and those who sin.

Amid thy works, O Lord, Thou sittest alone, Not Thine own thought can image one like Thee; I speak the word that was declared to me, Thy wonders, Lord beyond all count are grown,

Ears hast Thou opened, Lord, unto my word, Not sacrificial victims dost Thou seek, And not for Thee the bloody altars reek; I said: "Behold I come to Thee, O Lord."

"Tis written, Lord, that I should do Thy will, Upon the title page it stands apart, I have desired it, Lord, with all my heart,

That I Thy laws and counsels might fulfill, Thy justice I declared unto the race, Nor hid Thy mercies which have been my stay, Now countless evils stand about my way,

And blinding tides of sin wash o'er my face, O Lord, deliver me, come down with speed, Sink in confusion those who seek my soul,

Let shame above their heads in torrents roll, Who jeer and mock me in my hour of need, But let me sing a song in glad accord, A hymn of joy to magnify Thy name,

Though poor and beggar, we Thy mercy claim, Thou are our helper and protector, Lord.

The Sacred Heart.

On our altars from the dawning To the setting of the sun, On our altars through the mid-night Till another day's begun, Jesus waits to cheer His children, Calm and comfort to bestow, Bring your crosses show your bruises, Here, where love and mercy flow.

On our altars through the week-day's, While the workers toil at home, Jesus waits and longs for Sunday, Hoarding blessings till the come, Fathers, mothers, bring your children, Speed the grown ones lead the small; Haste them onward, Jesus calls them,

He has blessings for them all, On our altars in the springtime, In the summer, in the snow, Jesus waits the same forever, Ever longing to bestow, Millions draw from that fountain, Still the living waters flow, Wandring, restless, thirsting sinner! Oh, if thou didst only know!

On our altars from our childhood Till the shoulders droop with years, Jesus, waits nor ever wearies, Lifting, helping, drying tears, When chill death at last broods o'er us, And the demons rage and foam, Jesus enters, calms the tempest, Leads the weary exile home.

—Rev. Michael McDonald.

The Boy Who Tries.

The boy who wins is sure to praise, And yet, I somehow prize the prize, Through stress of dark and chilly days, The gallant boy who tries.

All Stuffed Up

This is the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat. No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite. To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures catarrh—its soothing and strengthening the mucous membranes and builds up the whole system. Not once nor twice nor thrice he lifts His sturdy hand, ere life Shows, bright and clear, the blue that rifts With peace the sky of strife. The lad whose valor holds its own In presence of defeat, Who falls and rises, make no mean In dust, or cold, or heat. I find it in my very soul To bless the stubborn stuff That takes of poverty its toll, And makes that dole enough. A thousand praise the boy who wins, But twice ten thousand rise Beyond this world of clamorous, duns To praise the boy who tries.

SHORT STORY

The Golden Boat.

The doctor had come and gone. He was now but a speck on the vast universe of sand and cacti. The Courtney ranch of squat, tent-like buildings was, to all appearances, the same now as when he had arrived, but the shining windmill, that had turned so gaily to the steady sunlight, understood and was silent and motionless. In a shaded corner of the home an iron bed had been pushed close between the two outside walls, whose propped up canvas sides tempted every passing breeze. A little handbag head tossed impatiently on the rumpled pillow. The mother beautiful in the repose of her fine features, bent low over her child. Her dignity, her gentleness softened and charmed the rough surroundings. She was lost in thought. Jack was always talking of the golden boat. She well knew the legend that told of a dying person in the Arizona mirage. It was so beautiful as it rocked on its sea of sky that death was desired and it came to none but the good. It was a reward, but Jack—her boy—no, no he would be spared! In an agony of grief and helplessness her head dropped to her hands on the counterpane as she knelt. "Mother, dear, there's the boat again. Can't you see it? Oh, it's so beautiful, and it waves its golden banners! Won't you take me to it." "Dearest, there is no boat. 'Tis only the doctor you see."

"But, mother, dear mother, it's coming right toward me. Oh, do you think I am good enough to go? When's papa coming? He'd come if he knew Firefly threw me, wouldn't he? And he'd take me to it, wouldn't he?" "He's coming, sweetheart. Now see if you can't sleep, so you'll be ready when he comes." And the mother tenderly stroked her son's tanned arm. "Sing me the 'Boat Song,' mother, dearest, and kiss me again. You'll go with me won't you?" "Bending low she kissed convulsively the feverish brow and parched lips. He couldn't know how she finched under his words. Then she sang—where the tones came from she knew not, for her heart was breaking. The boy's heavy lids soon closed and he slept.

Suddenly there was a movement in the corral and the hoarse cry of directions. Irene Courtney sprang anxiously to her feet. The door opened and John Courtney came in. He fairly crushed his wife in his big arms in intensity of emotion, and tenderly kissed her.

"Where is he?" he murmured. Mute, she nodded toward the room. Emotion choked all words from her. The man passed in and knelt by his son's bedside. The sight held her spellbound. She forgot all the exacting sternness of late years, all the cruelty the bitterness in that one kiss. He was again the college man of nine years ago who had wooed and won. The deep blue mirage as it swayed on the golden horizon entered her longings. How easy to hear even Jack's low, parting cry with this supporting tenderness of strength! A heavy thud shook the very boards under her feet, and her dream sky fled. John Courtney was again the man of the plains, hard, dry as their sunbaked crust. Irene Courtney knew that frown, and heaven-defiant attitude. "So it's Father Delaney you want, is it?" And you told Jack to ask me to get him because you were afraid. Well—when he comes—I go—understand? You must choose between me and this foolish, namby-pamby tommyrot of a Priest." She covered for one moment, paralyzed by the sudden outburst. A low cry of protest escaped her. "John—quiet—the boy—he's going—" She started by him toward the sick room, but he quickly stepped between it and her.

"Choose" he commanded fiercely. In that moment she found herself. Her years of surrender, of gentleness of pleading crystallized in a new charm and power. The memory of Irene Hamilton in the bloom of her girlhood pleaded loudly with the man, but her answer set the fire of bigotry and passion racing faster through his veins. "I knew nothing of Jack's request. Even had I known, he should have asked you, for do you think I would tell him you hated and scoffed at that which he loved because I loved it? There is a Power which even you, John Courtney, successful and strong as you are! cannot defy much longer." She pressed past him and he let her pass. The next morning a winded broncho was jerked to his haunches before the missionary's little white-curtained cabin of San Marino. The first rays of the breaking sun played through the small sitting-room as the rider stumbled wearily in. It was neatly but scantily furnished, and the man remarked bitterly to himself there was a cross tacked in every corner. He hated them. They crested the gulf between him and his "happiness." Success had made him masterful in speech and manner, but had robbed him of the gentleness and refinement of his earlier environment. He had not meant to be unkind but ever as now, she had chosen "Papacy" to him. The door opened and a prematurely gray-haired priest stood before him. Each regarded the other for a full moment. The man's eyes did not waver, and his jaws, as square as his powerful shoulders, set hard. "Peace be to you my son."

"You misunderstand me sir," His words were as crisp as the snow under foot on a zero morning. "I didn't come for your peace. There are some though who seem to wish it. A priest is needed at Courtney ranch—the boy is dying—was thrown from his horse there is no time to lose."

Little Boy Was Not Expected to Live

They Were 30 Miles From a Doctor SO GOT DR. FOWLER'S Extract of WILD STRAWBERRY, Which Cured Him

Mrs. Fred Schopf, Pennant, Sask., writes:—I used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry when my little boy was not expected to live. We were thirty miles from a doctor, when the little fellow took sick with Diarrhoea. He at first would sleep nearly all day, and at night would be in pain, and would have a passage every five or ten minutes. This went on day and night until he began to pass blood. I gave him "Dr. Fowler's," but without any good effect at first, so I began to give him a larger dose, and soon he began to get relief. It was the only medicine I had in the house at the time, and I always keep it now for inside of three days my boy was out playing, and was as well as ever. This grand remedy has been on the Canadian market for nearly seventy years, and is without a doubt, the best known remedy for all Bowel Complaints. Refuse to take any other preparation when you ask for "Dr. Fowler's." There is nothing else that can be "JUST AS GOOD." Price, 35 cents.
