A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XV. "It's Heaven's own truth!" he said, strenuously, yet fighting for quiet and calm, for in the exquisite and sweet gravity of her attitude and expression all vehemence seemed absolutely sacrilegious. "But let it pass. I don't expect you to care for me. But I had hoped, hoped even while I fought against my love for you; there was always a thought within me that I might win you, that in time I might get you to care for me—even just a little, just enough to get you to marry me. I knew that if you did so, that if we were married, I could make you love me. And now—when I had won you a little I meant to speak, and not till then. But now I have spoken—too soon!—the sight of you alone amongst those falling trees, the dread that harm would come to you— Ah, you can understand, you would understand, if ever you had loved anyone. And now—what will you say? Are you going to send me away? Do—do you think you could ever come to care for me?—just a little, enough to be—my wife?"

Eczema Now Curable. A wonderful new discovery for the cure of skin diseases called the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema has finally convinced physicians throughout Newfoundland and Canada that eczema is curable. D. D. D. is a scientific preparation, compounded by a famous skin specialist. It is a simple antiseptic wash, a reliable home remedy that should always be kept on hand. Apply this D. D. D. Prescription to the skin and instantly the awful itch is gone. The very moment the liquid touches the skin, the agonizing, tantalizing itch disappears. This soothing wash penetrates the pores, kills and washes away disease germs and restores the skin to a thoroughly healthy condition. Don't delay your cure; get a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to-day. Sold Everywhere. Recommended by T. McMurdo & Co., A. W. Kennedy, M. Connors, Peter O'Mara.

gan to thrill with a strange, delicious thrill that quivered all through her. Her eyes met his—eloquent with the passionate, unspoken prayer of love—her own became suffused and faltered; her tremor increased, her lips parted slowly, as if she found it difficult to breathe; then, as if she could not help herself, she dropped forward, her head drew nearer and nearer to his, and at last rested on his breast. A low cry burst from his hot, parched lips and his arms went round her and crushed her to him; crushed her so tightly that he well-nigh hurt her. Then he took her head in his hands and held it so that he could look into her eyes; eyes that she could scarcely lift, so heavy were the lids that sought to cover them from his piercing gaze; and the gaze of wonder and throbbing joy and trembling doubt. "Maida!" he cried, hoarsely. "What is this? You are not playing with me? Ah, no, you wouldn't do that! But—oh, God! tell me quickly!—it isn't pity!—just pity!" The blush grew to crimson on her face, then left it pale as the driven snow. "No," she whispered, as if shame were weighing on her tongue. "It is not—pity. I—yes, I love you! I did not know—I was startled, uncertain, but—I know now!" He could not speak for a moment, then, as he pressed her to him again he spoke her name, and speaking it, calling upon her, as soul calls to soul, he bent his head and kissed her on the lips. She closed her eyes and hid her burning face against his breast, then she raised her head and shyly, tremulously put her lips to his. As if the storm winds had been dispersed and driven to the caves of the wind by the God of Love, the sky cleared, the winds dropped and the sun came out and shone down in a benison upon these two, who, unlike our first parents, had entered their Paradise and not been expelled from it—yet. They were seated on the bank again hand in hand; the shyness, the timidity that wait upon the first moment of the great discovery had fallen upon Maida, and Heroncourt was filled with the awe that follows upon such a conquest—the conquest of a pure woman's heart—as his. They had scarcely spoken since she had yielded herself by that kiss, that voluntary token of her heart's surrender, but eyes and hands can talk a sweeter love's language than even lips, and every moment of those wonderful moments Maida had been learning, realizing, how deeply, how unspokeably she loved him. His nearness wove a spell of happiness that coliced round her heart; the thought that he must go even a few paces from her, that they would have to part if even for a few hours was a positive pain. It was so strange a joy to sit there with him; and yet they must go! She turned her eyes to his.

Couldn't Keep Back Tears.

When the Nervous System Breaks Down—Queer Feelings in Back of Head Caused Much Alarm. Midland, Ont., June 20th. — Collapse or breakdown of the nervous system leaves one in a most pitiable condition. Strong, healthy-looking women, and men, too, will weep from helplessness and despair. The case reported here was a most severe one, as is indicated by the hysterical condition, the pains in the back of the head and the futility of the many treatments used. This is further evidence that the regular and persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for a reasonable length of time will positively restore the most exhausted nervous system. Mrs. S. Sharp, Midland, Ont., writes: "About eleven years ago I had a serious nervous breakdown, and was so bad at times that I could not keep back the tears. I also had a queer feeling in the back of my head. Sometimes I seemed to be going backwards. I could not do any sewing, and finally could do no work at all. I tried other remedies and doctors' medicines, but they only gave me temporary relief. Last Fall I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and had not taken very many until I found I was getting better. I kept on taking them, and am at present greatly improved. I am now able to do my work, and they have strengthened me splendidly. I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for nervous trouble of any kind." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c. a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Household Notes.

When the aluminum pan becomes dark, boil discarded tomatoes or the skins in the pan and it will become white. Lettuce eaten with oil and salt only is quite possible for people who cannot safely eat acid. A good housewife watches what is left over on the table and is guided by it in her planning and buying. When making fruit salad, the fruit can be prevented from turning dark by squeezing a lemon over it. A hood of gay cretonne for the back of the dining-room chairs is a comfortable thing in summer time. Rub a freshly cut lemon into a soiled sponge, then rinse in warm water. The sponge will be like new.

PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

BETTER ENGLISH?

The "dopist" of this column notices that in yesterday's column the Editor of this paper indirectly agitates for better English in reporting ball games. All wrong, kid. Only rotten English can describe a punk ball game, and Wednesday's exhibition was by no means brilliant.

Although, at that, when a bloke takes two, breezes a couple of more wrecks the next back of the receiver, and finally pickles a spitter to the centre-field barrier for a four-ply gallop with the sacks soused, we agree the writer of any baseball column should spill the facts so the average fan can swallow 'em with his eggs the next morning. Pure English? Well, we should swallow a camel. That's us, Rolli!

We notice that we were also asked to furnish a dictionary of "scientific baseball terms." Here are some terms, but owing to the shortage of paper by which the whole world is now confronted, we will be unable to publish the whole list in bookform till the war is over.

BASEBALL DICTIONARY.

(For the benefit of the Uninitiated.)

FAN:—A bug; squirrel chowder; a cranium cripple.

BLOOMER:—Winter leaguer; Homandle; second Ty Cobb.

A SKULL:—A bird in the league only from the ears south; Charley-horse of the head.

THE CAN:—Getting the gate; being requested to take the air; being streeted.

The following "scientific terms"

generally applying to Umpires:—

GLYPTODON:—An extinct animal, which was encased in armour and no brain.

AMOEBIA:—A microbe totally devoid of intelligence.

PARALLELOPIPEDON:—A figure

that is so square that it's lopsided.

JUDGE JEFFREYS:—An English

judge noted for the injustice of his decisions.

ORNITHORHYNCHUS:—A beast

with a bill.

YOGI:—A Hindu mystic who is always seeing impossible things.

SIBERIAN FLOPHOUND:—A canine with a fearfully loud bark.

OPAQUE:—Unable to see or be seen through.

PITHECANTHROPUS:—The real connecting link between man and ape.

SLANG VS. CORRECT ENGLISH.

"Editor Baseball Column:—Your

notes on the baseball games would be much appreciated if one could understand the verbiage of the diamond.

The fact must be appreciated however that we have not yet reached this stage here. Would not be possible to give us these reports in plain terse

English, when anyone "blinches" or

"dies at first" it is exceedingly difficult for us, the ordinary spectators, to understand it. Meaning no offence, I am, Yours truly, S. A. R."

In reply to the above letter we may say that from our point of view the excitement and exuberance of the game could not be conveyed in ordinary language to the satisfaction of its devotes. The game being picturesque and alive, he demands that whatever is written about it shall have similar qualities. He refuses to find pleasure in a style that is used in describing a convention, a banquet, or a meeting of the Blacksmiths' Union. He doesn't care about the English of it so long as there is life and vigour in the details that he is reading. To gain this effect the baseball writer has laid most of the hard-and-fast rules that he learned in school on the back shelf, and has evolved a set of his own that suits his purpose as nicely as a three-bagger fills the bill with two men on and two runs needed to win. English that the college professor would O.K.

was never intended for the sporting page, least of all the Baseball Column.

To prove our point we present the following report of the Lion-Wanderers game in language designed to pass the censorship of the purist:—

"The baseball game on Wednesday between the teams representing the Wanderer and Red Lion Clubs, respectively, was one of the most exciting affairs ever seen at St. George's

Field. The young men on both teams played marvellously well and proved themselves adepts in practically every department. As the Wanderers made 7 runs while their opponents were making 6, they, therefore, won the game by one run amid much applause from the large assemblage present. Thanks to the ability of Mr.

Frederick Brien, the Wanderer outfielder, in hitting the baseball, the men representing the Wanderers were able to get the 7 runs. Mr. Brien distinguished himself by hitting the ball hard in the fifth inning with two runners on the bases, sending it so far he was enabled to reach the second base before it was retrieved. Needless to say, the runners scored. In the seventh inning also, Mr. Brien made another hit of the baseball which brought in a run. His skill in this respect was the subject of considerable favourable comment from the spectators."

Now, for comparison, follows an account of the same game in the vernacular:—

"The Red Lions and Wanderers slam-banged each other in the initial game of the series yesterday, and the Wanderers ran away with the dandy,

7 to 6. Both teams uncorked the ginger bottle at the gateway and danced through the whole performance like trained "animals." Brien was the star with the stick. The little outfielder fished the plate with two in the fifth, bunted a bender on the fence mark, and zipped it to the fence for a high double. He engaged in the seventh for a smashing bingle, and the bleachers accompanied their emotions

as the additional ruck tickled the scoreboard."

In justice to Mr. S. A. R. we leave it to the fans to decide which description they prefer, and shall be glad to have their views on this subject.

It will be readily agreed, however, that "fan" is far more effective than its definition "A baseball spectator afected by enthusiasm." To call a player a "bonehead" will make him realize his deficiencies more completely than if one merely implies that he is "not as intelligent as he might be." And the term "bushleaguer" is more significant than the phrase "a young man just being broken into baseball."

NEXT GAME.

The clash between the Cubs and B. I. S. has always proved to be a spirited contest, and it is thought that Tuesday night's game, commencing at 7 o'clock, will prove to be no exception. We understand that Bob Simms, the erstwhile twiler of the Cubs, is willing to play if needed.

LAST WEDNESDAY.

(Overheard at St. George's Field.)

Wednesday

At the ball game

I sat in front

Of a young man

Who was explaining

To a young lady

What they were doing

On the diamond.

And she listened

For a long time

Intently,

And then said:

"I don't like their suits.

Do you?"

And the young man

Fell over on his face

On my shoulder,

And I fanned him

And put him back.

And after a while

She asked him:

Why they were doing

All the cheering.

And he said:

They were doing that

For Mister Benedict.

And she said:

"Do they do that

Everyday?"

"They have to do it

Or he won't let them

Play."

And she said:

"How funny,

"Are we going to

The Nickel?"

And he said:

"There's Punky now."

And she said:

There's Punky who?"

And he never answered.

And after a while

She said:

"Why are all the people clapping

Their hands?"

And he said:

They've just signalled

That Noddy Outerbridge

Has arrived in his fliver.

And she said "how funny?"

And he said "yes."

It's a scream.

Hit the ball

You big cheese."

And she said:

"Why Harry,

Such language."

And a little later

McCrinkle slid.

For third.

And she said:

"Why does he get down

On his stomach?"

And Harry said:

"There was a fly on it

And he wanted to crush it."

And she said:

"How funny."

And he didn't strike her.

And I knew

She wasn't his wife.

I thank you.

The Immortal First.

Memorable throughout the world for years to come, July 1st will be to Newfoundland the saddest and proudest day in all her history. The future may hold some other more momentous, more closely affecting her peculiar fortunes, but it will hold none more glorious, none when she will share in so large a fame. A year ago, from the moment at which we write, the great guns of both the Allies had nearly ended the terrific bombardment of the enemy lines on the Somme, unequalled and unimagined until then, but since transcended many times in power and in terror. The following day began the battle, if we can call it by that name, which has raged uninterrupted since, and which will rage with waxing fury until the avenging anger of an outraged world is satisfied. It was the end of preparation and the beginning of victory. The immediate victory was deferred, not averted, by winter, and followed close on its heels. The enemy fell back over the whole front of the attack, and more; he was grappled in his new positions almost before he had occupied them and the fight to oust him from them again already shows signs of fulfillment.

There is no need to tell again the story of heroism and tragedy which was Newfoundland's part in that immortal day. The first of Britain's children alone fought with her then. None from her own shores fought better or more valiantly, none had a harder task, none faced it with greater fortitude or paid a more costly price for a defeat more glorious than any victory. It is fitting that the first anniversary falls upon a Sunday, for in church and chapel the memory of it will best be celebrated. Our pride in it is a solemn pride, which nothing should rob of its solemnity. There are with us again some few of the brave men who went forward at Beaumont Hamel last year, and they will fill an honoured place to-morrow. With them will stand other brave men who go forward to the work which they began. So let us, looking at them both, celebrate the great day, with pride and sorrow for those who fell, thankfulness for those who were spared and honour to them all and to those who take their place. So will we, in common with the rest of the great empire and the greater alliance, look to the future with a courage and a resolution gathered from the past.

Greece Breaks With the Enemy.

It is evident that big events of some sort are toward. The action of the Greek Government in breaking off relations with the four enemy powers—not surprising, but coming with pleasant suddenness—and the peace debate in the Austrian parliament have sufficient connection to deserve to be read together. The fall of Constantine has been the greatest blow the Kaiser has suffered for long. It has resulted in the immediate call to power of Venizelos, whose hand is already seen in this diplomatic stroke. It is a good earnest of the temper of the Greek people, which, always well disposed to the creators and guarantors of its liberty, has more than ever sympathized with their cause since America gave her great verdict. It is not likely they will long permit their sympathy to remain a tacit one. The alliance, or understanding, with the hated Bulgarians was abhorrent to every true Greek and is severed to his great satisfaction. The attitude of the Greek army has yet to be disclosed: it is probably the one uncertainty which holds Greece from open participation in the war even now. But there is no reason to believe that it will be inimical to the Entente, particularly since the removal of its pro-German leaders. It looks very much as if Austria at least sees the prospect of another enemy in the field against her. She would have good reason to debate peace and regard the prospect with alarm. A Greek army of some three hundred thousand soldiers, added to General Sarrail's force, ought to redeem Serbia and cut the vital Berlin-Constantinople line with ease. It is premature to speak of that yet, but much can happen before the summer has run its course.

Obituary.

MRS. M. MAHONEY.

We note with regret the demise of Mrs. Michael Mahoney (nee Mary Kennedy) which sad event occurred at Burin yesterday, after a very brief illness. Deceased was a sister of Mr. E. J. Kennedy, contractor, and the late M. J. Kennedy, M.H.A., and was well known in St. John's, though for the past twenty years she resided at Burin where her husband carried on business. It was her intention to visit the city this summer on a holiday and only about a fortnight ago she wrote her brother intimating that she would be unable to come as her husband was very ill of pneumonia. Then she contracted the disease herself and death soon followed. A pathetic circumstance is that Mr. E. J. Kennedy, who was unaware of his sister's illness, was dumbfounded yesterday when the sad news was wired to him by Rev. Fr. Ryan, of Burin. Mr. Kennedy has had continual bereavement within the past five months, two brothers and a sister having passed away. During last winter his brother Michael died suddenly, followed shortly after by the death of his brother John, in Brockton, U.S.A. In his present hours of sorrow general and sincere sympathy will be extended to him.

Terrible Accident; Little Girl Killed.

Deputy Minister of Justice Hutchings was in receipt of a message this morning from Magistrate J. Roper, of Bonavista, conveying the sad intelligence that a little girl named Phoebe Little, aged 5 years, of that place, fell over a cliff into Frenchman's Gulch last evening and died at midnight from her serious injuries received. The sad happening has cast a gloom over the settlement of Bonavista.

Memorial Souvenir

Presented to the Archbishop.

To commemorate the second anniversary of his consecration, an artistically bound volume, a review of which was given in The Evening Telegram recently, was presented to His Grace Archbishop Roche, yesterday, the Feast of Saints Peter and Paul, by Mr. T. J. Barron, who was accompanied by Messrs. W. J. Ellis, P. J. Summers, J. C. Pippy and W. J. Carroll, the Executive of the Catholic Citizens' Committee. Vice-Chairman Barron tendered the souvenir in a suitable speech and His Grace thanked the committee, and citizens for their love and respect. Mr. W. J. Carroll was the editor and compiler of the volume. During the presentation the joy bells of the Cathedral were rung as his devoted flock offered prayers that their beloved Archbishop would be long spared to guide the destinies of the R. C. Church in Newfoundland.

Matthew Aupalok Dies at Ungava.

Eskimo Boy Victim of Consumption. Yesterday Canon Bolt received, via Montreal, a telegram from the Rev. S. M. Stewart, sent from Fort Chimo, Ungava, on March 13th. The telegram stated that Matthew Aupalok, the Eskimo boy, died on March 12th. Matthew, as he was familiarly known, spent three years at Bishop Feld College, but having contracted consumption, returned to Ungava last year in the hope that residence in his native country would restore him to health. It was Mr. Stewart's hope that the boy, after being educated, would eventually become a teacher to his own people. This hope has been frustrated by his early death. Mr. Stewart was leaving immediately for here and he hoped to reach the Labrador Coast so as to connect with the mail steamer and arrive here in August, falling this by the "Harmony" in September.

Newfoundland Lobster at the Front

A letter received from an officer of "Ours" contained a label and four stamps of some Newfoundland lobster purchased at the Expeditionary Force Canteen. The stamps bear the numbers 1679, 2263, 3068 and 3668, and the label Richard B. Green & Co., Ltd., Liverpool. The price paid was four and a half francs, or about 90 cents. The letter goes on to say that even at ninety cents a tin the canteen was cleared at once.

On inquiry at the Marine and Fisheries Department we learn that the tins bearing license No. 1679 were put up by John Marshall, Garnish, F.B.; No. 2269 by Harry House, James Ponds, St. Barbe; No. 3068 by the White Jersey Harbor, F.B. The price is just double the amount asked by our local grocers, who retail it at 45 cents a tin.

Want to Parade Guns

The Colonial Secretary has been handed a petition signed by sixty or more returned soldiers to have the machine guns captured by the Newfoundland Regiment, on Oct. 12th, drawn through the city in the parade to be held to-morrow afternoon.

The petition has been handed to the committee in charge of the program, who will consider it.

New Management.

As will be seen in our advertising columns, the old, reliable and well established business firm of A. D. Rankin and Company, of Water Street, will be known in future under the name of John J. Mulcahy, the late manager, who has a ripe experience at the provision and grocery business. We bespeak for Mr. Mulcahy the success his enterprise deserves.

The dem-tollette is liked by many women because its transparent long sleeves and slightly low-cut neck make it equally practical for afternoon or evening; the latter when full evening dress might be considered an extravagance.

MOBILISING WOMEN POWER

RUSSIA.

GREECE'S NEW COURSE

LONDON, To-day. Greece's new course with respect to the war began to be shaped yesterday with the abdication of King Constantine and the accession of his son, King George II. The abdication was in effect the renunciation of Constantine, whose pro-German attitude has given the Allies endless trouble and threatened only the success of the Sarajevo expedition, but its safety, through the danger of back fire from a hostile military force. Decisive action by the Allies was long in coming, but now, Greece's leading statesman and friend of the Entente, soon appears as the man to take the leadership in guiding her back to her rightful place by the side of England, France and Serbia, the last her choice whom she had abandoned under Constantine's coercion in Serbia's

MOBILISING WOMEN POWER IN RUSSIA.

PETROGRAD, To-day.
 The Minister of War to-day issued an order creating a special commission to examine a proposed law providing for the mobilizing of all women labor. In issuing the order the War Minister commented that the crisis through which Russia is passing demands the utilization of the entire national forces.

GREECE'S NEW COURSE.

LONDON, To-day.
 Greece's new course with regard to the war began to be shaped on June 12th with the abdication of King Constantine and the accession of Alexander, his second son, as King. The abdication was in effect the dethronement of Constantine, whose pro-German attitude has given the Entente endless trouble and threatened not only the success of the Saloniki Expedition, but its safety, through the danger of back fire from a hostile military force. Decisive action by the Entente was long in coming, but was drastic when it finally came. Venizelos, Greece's leading statesman, and a friend of the Entente, soon appeared as the man to take the leadership in guiding her back to her traditional place by the side of England, France and Serbia, the last her close ally, whom she had abandoned under Constantine's coercion in Serbia's hour of great need. Summoned back to the Premiership by King Alexander, Venizelos quickly formed a Cabinet, the reactionary elements having been ousted or having quitted, and the establishment of Greek Constitutional Government, virtually abolished by Constantine, began. The Parliament of May, 1915, which had been dissolved by Constantine, would again be summoned to meet, it was indicated, giving Legislative backing to the new Executive power. Signs that Greece would not much longer maintain even a nominal or benevolent neutrality towards the Entente in the war were in evidence several days ago. Recent despatches indicated that a formal breach between Greece and the Central Powers was imminent.

LLOYD GEORGE OF THE SITUATION.

GLASGOW To-day.
 The Prime Minister delivered a stirring speech before the Burgesses of the northern metropolis on the occasion of his being made a free man of the City in St. Andrew's Hall to-day. Expectations that the Premier would make some utterance on the question of peace were not disappointed. He declared that if peace came before the object for which Great Britain entered the war had been achieved it would be a calamity for Europe. Germany, the Premier said, wanted peace, but a peace which would make the countries she invaded subject nations. Lloyd George pointed out that the Entente Allies could enter into a conference with a democratized Germany in a different spirit than they would deal with the Russian autocracy. Great Britain, said Lloyd George, could hold out if Germany's submarine war was kept in bounds and the people practised frugality. Public enthusiasm was tempered by unfriendly demonstrations for Lloyd George, who had previously incurred the hostility of some sections of the Glasgow laborers by his dealings with them while Minister of Munitions. A crowd of malcontents gathered outside the hall where the ceremony of making the Premier a free man took place, and sang the "Red Flag," but the cheers of the friendly majority drowned their demonstration. Provost Sir Thomas Dunlop, before an assemblage of city officials and many prominent citizens, presented the Premier with a casket containing the Burgess roll. Lloyd George in replying said: "Never have good men stood more in need of sympathy, support and co-operation than the men who are guiding the fate of the nation in this hour. On all hands they were called to the helm in a raging tornado, the most destructive that ever swept over the world on land or sea. Britain so far has weathered the storm. She has successfully ridden the waves, but the hurricane is not over yet, and will maul all the efforts, all the skill, all the patience and all the courage and endurance of all on board to steer a course through without foundering in the angry deep, but with the co-operation of every one we should get through once again. It is a satisfaction that Britain has no share in the responsibility for these grim events. Our part was as honourable and as chivalrous a part as ever taken by any country in any war. The people must be sustained by the unswerving conviction that no part of the guilt for this terrible bloodshed rests on the conscience of their native land. The story of the early days of the war is not that of the wolf and the lamb, for Germany, expecting to find a lamb, found a lion." Lloyd George said he was steeped morning, noon and night in the perplexities, difficulties, and anxieties of war. "All the same," he continued, "I feel that the difficulties will be overcome if we persevere through. To the military situation, there is no doubt that the startling developments in Russia have modified the military situation this year temporarily to our disadvantage, but permanently for the better. What happened on the West front showed what could have been accomplished this year if all the Allied forces had been ready to bring an all round pressure to bear. In training, equipment and experience our army is infinitely better than it ever has been. The finest collection of trench pounding machines which any army has ever seen is now in possession of the British forces. The Russian revolution, beneficial as it undoubtedly is, and great as it will be in its results both this year and even more hereafter, undoubtedly has had the effect of postponing complete victory. Russia, the Premier proceeded, now was free and unfettered and when her distractions passed away she would be more powerful and more formidable than ever. Meanwhile France, Italy and Britain had to bear the greater burden. The strength of Britain, once more flung into the breach, has once more saved Europe and human liberty. But now Russia is gaining strength each day. It has a capable Government, it never had a better one. Her power in future would be inspired by freedom. America, always the mainstay of freedom, is beginning to send her valiant sons to the battlefields of Europe to rally around the standard of Liberty. That is why victory now is more assured and more complete than we could have hoped for. Victory is assured under two conditions. The first is that the German submarine attacks must be defeated or kept within reasonable bounds. The losses are heavy; they may and probably will drive us to further restrictions in some trades and perhaps to hardships; that all depends on the nation's careful reckoning. The Government have come to the conclusion, based upon the best advice, that the submarines can neither starve us nor drive our armies out of the field abroad. Our losses during May and June were heavy, but they were hundreds of thousands of tons beneath the Admiralty forecast. We are beginning to get them. Arrangements are also being made for frustrating them and for destroying them. I have no hesitation in saying that if we all do our part the German sub will be almost as great a failure as the German Zeppelin. If we don't waste we shall not starve. We have succeeded in increasing the food supply, and are engaged in a great shipbuilding program for fighting and carrying purposes. If every employer and every workman pull together between them they will pull us through. The army is invincible. It cannot be beaten, and the army now is the people. Meanwhile the morale of the nation must be kept up and I cannot see any slackening or indolence anywhere. The Prime Minister paid a tribute to the King, who, he said, was working as hard as any man in the country. This remark caused an interruption, while the whole assemblage arose and a few persons sang the National Anthem. In concluding, Lloyd George said: "Europe is again drenched with the blood of its bravest and its best, but do not forget the great succession of hallowed causes. They are stations of the cross on the road to the emancipation of mankind. I again appeal to the people of this country and beyond that they should continue to fight for the great goal of international rights and international justice, so that never again shall brute force sit on the throne of justice nor barbaric strength wield the sceptre over liberty."

ONLY DISTILLED SPIRITS PROHIBITED.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
 The intervention of Pres. Wilson to-day checked the home dry national prohibition movement in Congress. The confinement of prohibition legislation to distilled beverages, without interference with the manufacture of beer and wines, it is generally agreed, will result. The prohibition leaders were asked by the President, in order to prevent delay in passing the Food Control Bill, to drop their fight against the manufacture of beer, wines and other light intoxicants. With a formal response from the "dry" referred to the Senate leaders of all factions quickly reached an understanding to limit absolute prohibition to distilled spirits.

Methodist Conference.

FRIDAY.
 Conference convened at the usual hour. A hymn was sung, scripture read, prayer offered. The Conference then adjourned till 12 o'clock to allow committees to transact business. At 12 o'clock Conference came to order, and reports from various committees were brought forward. The Hospital Fund Committee reported an income for the year of $234. Expenditure amounted to $200, leaving a balance of $34.
 Rev. T. W. Atkinson was re-appointed Chaplain for the ensuing year, and Mr. N. M. Burt, Treasurer of the fund. It was recommended that all circuits and missions take up collections for the Hospital Fund. Mr. Atkinson then gave a very encouraging report of the work done during the year. Various other matters were considered and the morning session was brought to a close.

AFTERNOON.
 The afternoon session opened with singing and prayer, and the Conference proceeded with the order of the day. An interesting part of the afternoon session was a public memorial service held in honor of our heroes who had fallen at the front. Methodist soldiers and sailors now in the city were present.
 This service began at 4.30 p.m. President Saint in charge. Hymn 340, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past" was sung. Rev. A. A. Holmes offered prayer. Psalm 46 was then read by the Secretary, Rev. C. A. Whitmarsh. After singing hymn 843, "Why do we mourn departed friends?" Dr. Curtis read the following Resolution:

Resolved—That the Conference place on record its high admiration of the sublime heroism displayed by all our soldier boys at the field of battle and our seamen upon His Majesty's ships of war, and the magnificent devotion to duty and supreme self-sacrifice of those who have offered up their lives on the altar of Empire for the cause of righteousness and justice in the earth;
Further Resolved—That to the sorrowing relatives and friends the Conference tender sincerest sympathy; with earnest prayer that the God of all comfort may graciously sustain and solace them in their great sorrow and irreparable loss.
 This resolution was ably seconded by Rev. W. T. D. Dunn, of Grand Falls, who very feelingly stated that out of a congregation of young men which it was his privilege to serve in holy things, only two physically fit remained and eight had been called upon to pay the price supreme.
 Over 2,000 from Methodist homes had enlisted with His Majesty's forces and 250 of these were either killed or missing.
 Hymn 352 "Asleep in Jesus" was sung, after which an inspiring address was delivered by Rev. H. Hull, of Toronto. "No people," he said, "in our Empire outside of the British Isles met with greater proportionate loss than the people of Newfoundland in this war." The sacrifice of Newfoundland's sons has made her famous and our Canadian friends have read with pride of the magnificent records of the Newfoundland troops. Some have gone to stay yet not to stay, for indeed they are still with us and shall live forever in our memories.

Four hundred and fifty Methodist ministers in Canada and Newfoundland had enlisted and nearly four hundred sons of Methodist parsons. To the soldiers and sailors

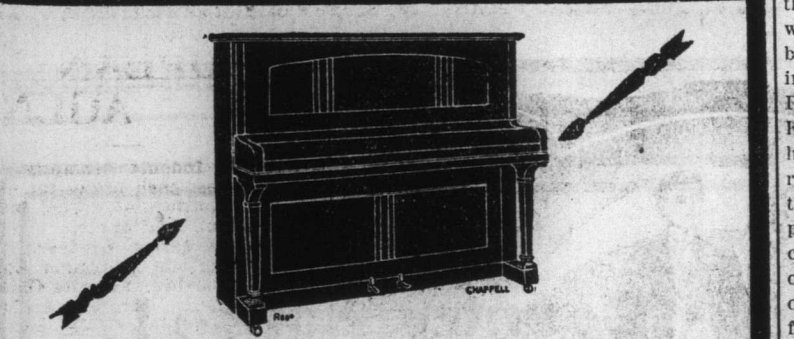

To-Morrow at Cochrane St. Church.

The services at the Conference Church, Cochrane Street, to-morrow promises to be of an unusually interesting character. The congregation will have the pleasure of hearing the two visitors now visiting the Conference in session from Toronto. The morning preacher is the Rev. J. H. Arnp, and that of the evening Rev. H. Hull. In the afternoon, at 2.30, a rally of the Gower and Cochrane St. Schools will be held to be presided over by the President of the Conference and to be addressed by the above named visitors. A hearty invitation is extended to all visitors for all the services of the day.

The Best People.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There is a woman in our town who from rather humble beginnings has climbed to quite an eminence of culture and intellectual superiority. We were wondering the other day how she made it so much of herself, and one of her relatives explained proudly, "Ever since she was a girl she has made it a point to associate only with people who were superior to her."

I've heard something like that said of people before, and while it sounds good at first, it seems to me there is a kick in it.

How Could Everyone Associate With Superiors.

Namely, if everybody tried to do that, what would happen?

If everyone is so intent on self-culture that he will not associate with anyone inferior to him, how on earth could anyone get a chance to associate with anyone who was superior?

It seems to me, too, that there would be something not wholly likeable about a person who cold bloodedly picked up all his friends not because he liked them but because he thought he could get something out of them.

A Form Of Tondylism.

When people try to ingratiate themselves with friends from whom they expect material advantages we have a short and ugly term for them. Now isn't this trying to associate always with one's superiors a sort of intellectual tondylism?

Another thing, how can people determine so clearly who are their superiors? One so often finds superior qualities in people who are theoretically one's inferiors.

One of the most stimulating philosophers I ever met was a ragged dirty little sweat shop tailor. I have often had my mind wonderfully stimulated and quickened by people with whom if I had been seeking for a superior to associate with, I should never have exchanged two words.

Not The Best People But The Best In People.

The way it seems to me is just this: It isn't half so important that you associate with the best people as that you associate with the best in people.

There is something helpful and stimulating in almost everyone. Bring it out. Don't be so anxious to shine that you get the shine that's in other people.

Associate with everyone on their highest level, take of them the best they have to offer and give them your best in return.

FEET.

Feet are long, eager attachments to the human body, which have about the same wheelbase as a cyclecar, but cost less to keep in repair. In fact, the maintenance charges on a pair of robust, flesh-colored feet are almost nothing, being confined largely to the resilient half sole and the non-blistering corn cure.

Feet were given to people in place of a rudder, and can be pointed in any direction but straight up without danger. By long practise some men secure wonderful control of their feet, and can walk along the wishbone of an eleven-story building without holding on to anything but their hat. The slack wire walker is equipped with feet of the prehensile variety, much on the order of the common house fly; which makes it easy for him to wrap one foot around a half-inch cable and dangle over the Niagara gorge in a stove-pipe hat. On the other hand, there are men with a sound, unblemished set of feet who aim them carefully at the middle of the sidewalk, and then have to apply the emergency brake in order to avoid running into a picket fence. The strange phenomenon is observed in every town where the blind pig is in good working order.

Calling forth a shriek of agony and a desire to murder the steppes. As soon as the feet become of sufficient size to create comment, they are taken to a shoe shop and jammed into a pair of shoes which were intended for somebody who could wear a double A last without fainting on the way home. This treatment causes the feet to rebel and sprout that accursed malformation known to science as the soft corn. If persisted in, the owner of the feet will soon be decorated with a large acreage of corns which cannot be stepped upon by some outside party without calling forth a shriek of agony and a desire to murder the steppes. Some feet run less to corns and more to the hump-backed bunion, which will not fit into anything but a crocheted heel slipper.

The most durable brand of feet now in use are those worn by saleswomen and floorwalkers, who would be glad to exchange them for a fresh pair. If the girls in the department stores could change feet with some of their customers, who never exercise them except by climbing in and out of a limousine, there would be less need for reclining chairs and smelling salts behind the counter.

Your Boys and Girls.

Why is it that, as a rule, families are "harsh and discourteous to those nearest and dearest to each other? I once knew two little brothers, fine, bright boys, but they had the repugnant habit of quarrelling often with each other. One day during a dispute, they became so angered that they fought and one scratched the other on the cheek leaving an ugly wound.

Before the place had time to heal, death claimed the child, and never have I seen so bitter a remorse or grief so keen as the living boy showed when he gazed on the marble-like face of his brother and saw the scratch that he himself had inflicted in anger.

Unkind words often leave a wound in the spirit deeper than blows or scratches to the flesh. Why cannot we practice more tolerance and kindness towards those we love best and be ready with praise for their virtues? This creates harmony in the home circle, and brings happiness to those we love.

Unselfish love is the fountain from which all good things spring, let us show it to those in the home circle at least.

Obituary.

The angel of death visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Taylor on June 11th and took from them their dear sister, Annie M., daughter of the late Phillip and Hannah Marshall. In her passing her vacant chair can never be filled; her genial disposition and sunny smile will be always missed in the home. You would go to her with a heavy heart but would come back from her with a light heart. By her kindly counsel she endeared herself to all who knew her. To know her was to love her. In childhood she took Christ as her dearest friend. When the angel of death came she was just waiting for Christ to call her home. Up to a few months ago she was in the best of health. To her sorrowing sisters and brothers, her death came as a terrible blow, and although everything possible was done to save her, God willed otherwise. May He in His mercy comfort them and help them to bear their loss with resignation to His Holy Will. She leaves three sisters and two brothers, one residing in Montreal, and a large circle of friends to mourn her.—Com.

Some time ago one of the aged married ladies of our town pressed herself as being lonesome, and she was wondering she might avoid such an experience. Of course it is easy for such a person to be lonesome, as she is one who have not been blessed with children; and the average reader is aware that a household without the presence of children is devoid of its best heaven.

But why should any household without children, and why should a married couple live in such a lonesome? Of all lives, the life of a childless couple is one of the smallest and most satisfying that men and women can lead. Much of the dissatisfaction of life is caused by the extreme selfishness is practiced, and the narrowness to which it leads. Selfishness seldom see beyond the horizon, and they easily are blinded to the great world of untold beauty which surrounds them; sometimes happens that childless people fall into this delusion content themselves by living of themselves. This is not mean that all people who have no children are selfish, nor that they are good. Such a statement would be unfair, and unjust. Thousands of married people, God has not blessed with children, vote their time to the help of the poor and are angels of mercy unto them. But it is meant for those who to the narrow groove of self and who, because they themselves are safely sheltered from the world in helping those who cannot help themselves.

Such people as these sometimes get a little lonesome, and have limited ideals of life, and they spend an extra dollar, they go in themselves for that, which only comes to those who outside themselves; and who exercise of their better nature the true end of life. In no case can life be interpreted, and end discovered, than by doing others; for there is always a body in need of help. Perhaps intended thus to be, so that they can help might have an opportunity to exercise their "bowels of mercy" to the Master: "The poor always with you."

Among the poor, and among those who really need help, none are deservingly than the childless. Is there the opportunity of childless households of the world be childless? Why not take consideration the child who, at home, and who daily suffers, nobody shields them, and who gush and pine and wonder world around them, because

WEEK END NOTES.

(I. C. M.)

Some time ago one of the middle-aged married ladies of our city expressed herself as being somewhat lonesome, and she was wondering how she might avoid such an experience. Of course it is easy for such a person to be lonesome, as she is one of those who have not been blessed with children; and the average reader is well aware that a household without the presence of children is deficient of its best heaven.

But why should any household be without children, and why should any married couple live in such utter selfishness? Of all lives, the selfish life is one of the smallest and most unsatisfying that men and women can live. Much of the dissatisfaction of society is caused by the extremes to which selfishness is practised, and the narrowness to which it leads. Selfish persons seldom see beyond their own horizon, and they easily become blinded to the great world of opportunity which surrounds them; and it sometimes happens that childless married people fall into this delusion and content themselves by living only for themselves. This is not meant to say that all people who have not families are selfish, nor that they do not do good. Such a statement would be absurd, and unfair, and unchristian. Thousands of married people whom God has not blessed with children devote their time to the help of others, and are angels of mercy unto many. But it is meant for those who get into the narrow groove of selfishness, and who, because they themselves are safely sheltered from the storm, fall in helping those who cannot help themselves.

Such people as these sometimes do get a little lonesome, and having but limited ideals of life, and fearing to spend an extra dollar, they grope within themselves for that happiness which only comes to those who live outside themselves; and who, by the exercise of their better nature, find the true end of life. In no better way can life be interpreted, and its true end discovered, than by doing good to others; for there is always somebody in need of help. Perhaps it was intended thus to be, so that those who can help might have an opportunity to exercise their "bowels of mercy" as saith the Master: "The poor ye have always with you."

Among the poor, and among those who really need help, none are more deserving than the children, and this is where the opportunity comes to the childless households of the age. Why be childless? Why not take into consideration the children who have no home, and who daily suffer because nobody shields them, and who languish and pine and wonder at the world around them, because nobody yourself to feel lonesome while there is so much to be done. The world is full of opportunity for doing good. Don't, then, bury yourself within the comforts of your own fireside, and enshroud yourself behind the folds of your tasseled curtains, while within the sound of your own voice some little one is in need of help. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto Me." Matt. Such are the words of the Divine Teacher, and such are the dictates of human nature.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas range is so much easier to operate, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. THE CLOW GAS STEAM RADIATOR WAY. may 23, 17.

Serious Situation In the Straits

Fishery season on and no Salt.

From Bonne Bay to Point Riche and all along St. John's Bay, there is a good sign of cod both with trap and trawl, stated Capt. Goobie, of the s.s. Ethie when his ship reached Curling at 6 o'clock last evening from a regular trip to the Straits of Belle Isle. From Ferrole to Flower's Cove traps are doing nothing, but trawls are doing well. On the Labrador side of the Straits from Bonne Esperance to Red Bay there is a good trawl and hook-and-line fishery, but nothing doing with traps when the ship went north, but on Monday when the ship was coming south there was a slight improvement in the trap fishery and some traps at Blanc Sablon had good catches. From Chateau to Battle Harbor there was no codfish either by trawl or trap up to Monday, though caplin had been on the shore for some time. It is apparent, however, that the cod are working eastward for on Monday some good catches were made at York Hr. ten miles east of Red Bay. Some two or three cargoes of salt and provisions have reached Flower's Cove, but at all the other places on both sides of the Straits there is a great scarcity of salt, which is creating a very serious situation for the fishermen. At several places, too, provisions, such as flour, etc., are scarce. The ship made a quick voyage, though she was delayed two nights with fog on the Labrador coast.—Western Star, June 27th.

DIMPLES AND SUGAR.

To understand the relationship of dimples and sugar we must know the anatomical construction of the dimple. The dimple is a small hollow or dent permanent or evanescent, formed on the surface of some plump part of the body. The more evanescent the dimple, the more beautiful it is.

A woman with a permanent dimple is not nearly as attractive as one who can fill her face with dimples by simply sending a happy thought through her brain. As long as the tissue of the skin is full of life it will continue to assume its sweet indentations, known as dimples. If it were possible to keep the tissue in a high state of health through life, we would still be dimpled when we became grandparents.

Whatever causes the tissue to die causes the dimple to disappear. Sugar is the greatest of all tissue builders. Through centuries of ignorance we have been educated to believe that sugar is not good for us. We have grown thin and lost our dimples as a result.

Sugar is found to be the greatest restorative in times of great fatigue. Sugar in coffee is a real food. A lump of sugar taken while on a long hike, works wonders. Sugar in milk quickly restores energy.

Boat sugar and retain your dimples, Madamoelle.

Celery can be used for seasoning salads or soups or sauces, and always with agreeable results.

Much Business Done at the House.

Monday Next Will be Budget Day and Two Loan Bills Introduced.

Yesterday's session of the House of Assembly was of a business-like character and the Estimates were practically gone through, a noticeable feature being that the House learned for the first time that there was within its precincts a modern Abraham Lincoln in the person of Mr. Abbott, member for Bonavista.

When the House went into Committee on Supply the Opposition members criticized the distinctions made and the unfairness shown in connection with the increases of salaries.

Mr. Coaker asked the Colonial Secretary what the Government intended to do with the report of the Postal Telegraph scandal and was informed that it was the intention of the Government to consider it at an early date, but that since his return from England the Premier was too busy to attend to the matter.

While discussing the vote for out-port Post Offices Mr. Abbott questioned a certain change of officials made at King's Cove, at the same time remarking that he knew the ulterior motives and the political means employed in making the change. He became somewhat over-heated and said, as he turned towards the Premier: "Remember, sir, as sure as you're there and I'm here, you can't fool all the people all the time in Bonavista." Continuing, he said that as regards telephone service and roads places in his district were cut off from civilization and that it is as difficult to travel by foot in that region as it is for a man to climb an icy mountain.

A Bill respecting Collie Dogs in the District of St. George's, where sheep raising is carried on extensively, was read a second time, as was also the Bill extending the operations of the Wreck and Salvage Act.

Before the adjournment of the House the Premier gave notice to introduce a Bill respecting the exportation of timber.

The Finance Minister gave notice that he would on Monday next move the House into Committee on Ways and Means; also that he would introduce Loan Bills for Pensions and Army and Navy purposes.

Note Of Thanks.

GREECE SEVERS RELATIONS WITH CENTRAL POWERS.

ATHENS, June 29. The Greek Government has broken diplomatic relations with Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey.

INSTRUCTED LEGATIONS.

PARIS, June 29. Telegraphing from Athens under today's date, the correspondent of the Le Temps says the Greek Government directed its Minister at Switzerland, G. Caradja, to communicate with Greek Legations at Berlin, Vienna, Sofia and Constantinople, instructing the ministers to break diplomatic relations between the Greek Kingdom and the Governments of Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey. Greek Ministers at these capitals were instructed to leave their posts with their staffs and place their archives with the Netherlands legations. The rupture is based on the incompatibility of maintaining diplomatic relations with Governments that are carrying on war on Greek territory.

BRITISH OFFENSIVE.

LONDON, June 29. British troops last night in an offensive gained their whole objective says a telegram from the British headquarters in France. The British captured German front positions on a 2,000 yard front south and west of Oppy in the Arras sector. The official statement says that the British captured prisoners and machine guns. They also continue to gain ground south of the Souchez River and have entered the town of Avion about two miles south of Lens.

GERMANS ATTACK FRENCH.

PARIS, June 29. Picked German troops made a heavy attack last night on the Verdun front, near Hill 304 and Avocourt Wood, after especially severe shelling. Today's official statement says the attack was disorganized by the sharp reply of the French artillery, and that the Germans obtained a footing only at a few points in the first line. This morning the Germans made a violent effort east of Hill 304, but it failed completely. The Germans were more active on the Aisne front also, but all their attacks were repulsed.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED.

PARIS, June 29. The following official statement was issued this evening: The enemy after his bloody defeat last night in the region of Cerny, directed some new attacks on our positions to the northeast of this village. After several vain attempts, which cost him severe losses, the Germans succeeded again in entering the first line elements, from whence they had been expelled. To the southeast of Cerny the Germans, in the course of the same night, started an attack, which was violent. The enemy brought up several battalions and special storming troops, which several times attempted to carry the salient in our line on both sides of the Laon-Rethims road. The assaulting waves were shattered by our fire and did not penetrate our trenches on any front, being forced to fall back with heavy losses. On the left bank of the Meuse in the Verdun sector, artillery activity continues intensely in the region of Hill 304 and in Avocourt Wood. During June 27th German long range guns shelled Dunkirk.

AUSTRIA AND PEACE.

VIENNA, June 29. The Lower House of the Austrian Reichsrath yesterday concluded the debate on the subject of peace without taking a vote. This was in conformity with the provisions of the orders of the day. Deputy Hauser, Christian Socialist, who had just been received in audience by Emperor Charles, declared the Chamber's peace aspirations had the powerful support of the Emperor, who had informed him that he desired peace as soon as possible. Our Emperor is a peace Kaiser, said Deputy Hauser. A German Socialist submitted a proposal that the decision as to war or peace should belong to the Reichsrath sphere of activity.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL.

PETROGRAD, June 29. The official war office communication says: On the western front in the direction of Kovel, west of Koukary, the enemy emitted gas waves which the wind dissipated before they reached our trenches. South of Brzezany the enemy attacked one of our advanced trenches and showered grenades on the defenders. In the region of Kuropatki and Chiblain the enemy directed intense artillery bombardment against our trenches. On the Roumanian front fusillades and aerial operations. Six enemy airplanes bombarded the town of Treuciu. No damage was done on the Caucasian front. In the direction of Rendiye, east of Bisban, our detachments after two attacks by superior Turkish forces retired to the northern bank of the River Abis Sirman, south of Banehud. Northwest of Senna our detachments occupied a height and trench near the summit of Garran.

President Bennett presided at last night's meeting of the Newfoundland Industrial Workers' Association, held in the L. S. P. U. Hall. Upwards of four hundred people, including many visitors, were present. Over seventy new members signed the roll, which makes a total membership of 475. The Registration Committee reported and were given power to continue their work in conjunction with the General Committee in revising the Constitution. The delegation that called on the Premier on Thursday night handed in their report, which was conveyed to the meeting. The Premier had expressed his sympathy with the request of the Association to the effect that a Board of Food Control be appointed, and the Government had the matter under consideration. The taking back of excess profits made on account of the war would also be considered. He had not received a communication from the flour dealers on the Food Control question. Should no answer be received by next night of meeting, the Association will adopt other measures to have their decision on Food Control carried into effect. The coal list was opened and members present gave orders for two-thirds of the cargo arranged for. They will hand in a deposit on next Friday night and pay the balance when the ship arrives. The Workmen's Compensation Act was also discussed and many cases where it was evaded were spoken of.

GERMAN SUBS EQUIPPED WITH WIRE CUTTERS.

Base of the American Flotilla in British Waters, June 29.—The captain of a torpedoed merchantman has turned over to the naval authorities here a sketch of a new type of German submarine, equipped with wire cutting device designed to release it from nets. The sketch shows several strands of stout steel hawsers stretched from the bow through the conning tower to the stern. Attached to these is a series of heavy circular knives a foot in diameter, and placed about a yard apart. The captain made the drawing while in a small boat after his ship had been torpedoed. He had been shelled and torpedoed in two other ships, but on neither of these occasions had he noticed anything new in the type of the German diving boats. While he was not close enough to the last submarine to examine minutely the addition to its upper works, he was able to sketch. The theory of the captain is that a boat so equipped would have hope of being able to cut her way through any steel nets in which it might become enmeshed.

FEARS MANY LOST.

LONDON, June 29. The Peninsular and Oriental Steamship Company announces that it fears that three passengers and six white and fourteen native members of the crew of the steamer Mongolia were killed in the mine explosion which sank the ship off Bombay, June 23. The Company announces that the remainder of the passengers and crew, numbering about 450, landed safely on the coast.

GERMAN NEWSPAPERS HAVE TO BE QUIET.

LONDON, June 29. A special despatch from Rotterdam says it is inferred there, in view of the gagging of the German press, that something drastic has happened or is about to happen in Germany. They quote the Frankfurter Zeitung as complaining that it was compelled to issue its political section until further notice without an independent expression of opinion, and saying the ensorship now far exceeds anything previous. The press is declared to be completely muzzled. It is said the real secret of the paper shortage is a Government move to compel the newspapers to print such bare news allowed, excluding commentary matters. The belief is ripe in Holland that next week's sitting of the Reichstag will produce startling developments.

IN MESOPOTAMIA.

LONDON, June 29. The military correspondent of the Times gives a long detailed account of the present conditions of the British forces in Mesopotamia, showing complete contrast with the revelations in the report on the Mesopotamian expedition on Tuesday in the Blue Book. The correspondent says the army now there is admirably provided and medical arrangements are thoroughly satisfactory. A great change has occurred in India, which still is the base of the expedition, although the control has been transferred to the War Office at London. Bombay is the base depot and is most efficiently administered. Shipping and cargoes are well and quickly handled and hospital arrangements are very good. Everything is efficiently organized. Indeed, the correspondent says, is now doing more than she is receiving credit for. Her Government, recognizing the slackness of the past, is determined to do all humanly possible, and altogether a new spirit has arisen. The writer says events in Russia considerably influenced the British position in Mesopotamia, and in consequence of the inaction of the Russian army in the Caucasus, the situation of General Maude, the Commander-in-Chief, has radically changed. If the Russian offensive under General Yudevitch, ex-Commander-in-Chief of the Caucasus, had been prosecuted, the Anglo-Indian Army would now form the left flank of the Russian line. General Yudevitch was removed, and no offensive occurred. The situation required and presumably received the earnest attention of the British Government, the writer concludes.

ROUMANIAN MISSION.

WASHINGTON, June 29. Roumania's mission to the United States reached Washington yesterday, it is announced, and sought quarters at an hotel.

THE EGYPTIAN SITUATION.

LONDON, June 29. The official on the situation with the Egyptian forces was issued this evening. The general situation is unchanged. There has been patrol activity in which we secured prisoners. In successful air raids six hundred and fifty rounds of bombs were drop-

I. W. A. Have Big Increase In Members.

President Bennett presided at last night's meeting of the Newfoundland Industrial Workers' Association, held in the L. S. P. U. Hall. Upwards of four hundred people, including many visitors, were present. Over seventy new members signed the roll, which makes a total membership of 475. The Registration Committee reported and were given power to continue their work in conjunction with the General Committee in revising the Constitution. The delegation that called on the Premier on Thursday night handed in their report, which was conveyed to the meeting. The Premier had expressed his sympathy with the request of the Association to the effect that a Board of Food Control be appointed, and the Government had the matter under consideration. The taking back of excess profits made on account of the war would also be considered. He had not received a communication from the flour dealers on the Food Control question. Should no answer be received by next night of meeting the Association will adopt other measures to have their decision on Food Control carried into effect. The coal list was opened and members present gave orders for two-thirds of the cargo arranged for. They will hand in a deposit on next Friday night and pay the balance when the ship arrives. The Workmen's Compensation Act was also discussed and many cases where it was evaded were spoken of.

Stirring Drama of an Attack.

I already referred to the fact that I was permitted to witness one of these engagements, beginning with the tuning up of the heavy guns until after the infantry had advanced—in this case up a steep hillside—and captured the positions. As a drama it was the most superb I ever witnessed. On the opposite hillside, probably two miles distant, I stood with the general commanding the army corps who was conducting the operations. It was about 3 o'clock on a cloudy afternoon. I took a position sprawling on a grass patch at the top, with my back against a bush blending in color tone with my clothing, and got my glasses carefully adjusted for the performance about to begin. Although it was cloudy there was no haze, and the absence of sunshine made everything stand out more clearly.

The hillside dropped straight before us, and then, stretching away, was a great panorama of wooded valleys, meadows, a winding river, and a steep rise of a bare shell-marked slope opposed. In the centre of the slope was the remnant of a town, but only a remnant. All we could make out was a few piles of stones against the red earth. Near the top of the hill ran a darkish line that marked the French trenches, and beyond, over the crest, were the Germans. In the valley at our feet, in the woods and meadows, were French cannon—but we could see none of them, all were so carefully concealed. Immediately overhead were a couple of large observation balloons, one attached by ropes to an automobile that guided it from a road on the side of our hill, the second guided from a boat in the river. All about circled airplanes, both observation machines and aviators de chasse. There were at least a dozen, some keeping near the balloons and others swooping high and low over the German lines on the hill opposite.

There was a constant boom of cannon that in connection with the cloudiness of the day seemed more like the rolling of thunder than artillery—especially as the wind was away from us. We could not hear the sound of the shells leaving the guns until the reports first detonated across the valley. But we could constantly see the bursts of smoke where the shells were exploding beyond the crest.

The German reply was comparatively feeble. Only a few times did we notice any explosions in the meadows below, and not once anywhere near our observatory.

After the Overture, Then Business.
But this thunder of guns was only a minor overture. The general explained that the real performance was scheduled to begin at exactly 3.30 p.m. I asked how long it would last, and his laconic reply was: "Until we take their positions."

It is estimated that in that comparatively small sector of the contemplated attack—it was not more than a couple of miles in breadth—there were seven to eight hundred guns, but for this preliminary attack probably not more than 300 were in action. The remainder, reserved for the signal of infantry advance, would then turn on a barrage fire, so hot that the Germans could not bring up reinforcements.

The artillery had been pouring explosives into those German positions for several days, it was explained to me. Already they were all pretty badly demolished. It was not considered that the infantry would have much trouble—except from concealed machine guns. That was what the Germans evidently knew what was coming, but I wondered, nevertheless, at the lightness of their artillery reply.

The day became darker, so dark, in fact, that down at our feet we could see bright flashes from the nearest guns. The general commanding the brigade leaned carelessly against a tree near me, holding a watch in his hand. I looked at my watch. It was 3.25. There were at least a dozen staff officers gathered about us, all with an air of tense expectancy, and every one kept looking at his watch, counting off the minutes, but still there seemed no perceptible increase in the artillery fire.

I was fascinated by my watch as it ticked round to that fatal 3.30. At the very tick of the second a blast of fire went up that shook the hill we were sitting on. Those 500 remaining guns must all have been fired simultaneously, and then on until the end of the performance there was one continual, awful roar of explosive. The hillside opposite, which we could see so clearly a whole minute before, was now completely blotted out in a vast roll of heavy smoke. Even with the glasses we could distinguish absolutely nothing.

I looked down into the valley and the sparks of guns were so bright and fast I could not count them. The meadows and woods seemed alive with guns, distinguished only by rapid, short flashes of flame. I fixed my glasses on just one little portion of the open field and tried to count the flashes, but gave it up as quite impossible. There were too many flashes from different portions of the field at the same second. It looked as though the field were suddenly alive with a swarm of fireflies—that fire was the winking of the guns as they sent out their shells.

All in Motion at the Signal.
I glanced overhead. Simultaneously with the signal of attack both balloons sailed majestically forward until they now hung out before us over the valley, guided by the ropes that attached them to the automobile and the river boat. The feet of airplanes, doubled in number, still circled about them and now swooped low over the German positions to report back how the infantry was getting on.

I looked across at the hillside. Just at the crest I could see three rockets going up. The officer explained that it was the infantry's signal to the artillery men, asking them to place shells just in advance of that spot. At another point on the crest three more rockets appeared, then three more still further on.

Through that impenetrable bank of heavy smoke I tried to visualize the companies of infantry going up to the crest, meeting the enemy, hurling hand grenades, and using bayonets, finding fierce resistance where the machine guns were hidden, and then sending up their rockets to show their gunners behind just where to send them aid. And I noticed that wherever the signal rockets went up almost immediately after there would come a great spurt of black smoke.

It seemed as though I had been on the hillside for hours, but it was only twenty minutes later when an officer remarked that the attack seemed about over, and at the same instant I noticed that the artillery fire had perceptibly lulled. He said it had been several hours before a complete report was in hand, showing exactly what had happened, and how many prisoners had been taken. I wanted to go forward, but that was not possible, on account of the probability of a German counter attack. In fact, there was an unsuccessful counter attack that same night.

The details of the affair were in the official communique next afternoon. It was characterized as a small engagement, but of great importance. There had been about 500 prisoners taken and many Germans were reported dead.

It was possible to go forward only late the following afternoon, not to lines which even then were too unsafe, but behind them through the forest from which the Germans had been driven.

It was a strange, unforgettable sight. The entire forest bed was of long, slender green leaves and tiny white flowers, lilies of the valley. Resting on a bed of green leaves, as far as one could see, were the bodies of German soldiers. A strange, compelling and arresting odor filled the air, an odor indescribably sweet and unacceptably horrible. It was a combination of the lilies of the valley and the dead.—N. Y. Times.

KEEP WORKING.

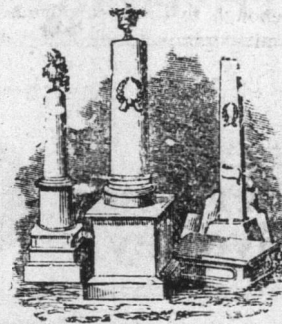

However grim the prospect is, when battle steels are being, let's buckle down and stick to biz, and do all kinds of haying. Whenever I go down the street a lot of jays come to me, and paw the ground with restless feet, and make predictions gloomy. They talk of panic and of want, of famine and starvation, and say our banner soon will flaunt above a ruined nation. I hate to hear them sigh and moan, I hate their dismal sally, I take each by his collarbone and push him down an alley. I hate the man who makes parade of all his doleful dreaming, I like to break his shoulderblade, regardless of his screaming. I do my work from day to day, I hustle like the dickens, I give the hogs their luscious whey, and feed the hornless chickens. The morning's milk I deftly skim, I work the chums and wringers, I teach my groving ducks to swim, and give the bees new stingers. I am so busy cutting hair from golden rolls of butter, I haven't time to paw the air or mope around and mutter. We'll whip the foe, without a doubt, our arms will be the victor, and I detest the grouchy scout—I do, doggone his picture.

Household Notes.

It is both wasteful and unsatisfactory to use butter for greasing pans. Use a funnel for filling hot-water bottles, and the bottles will last longer.
A lot of floor scrubbing may be saved by having the kitchen floor painted.
Keep talcum powder in the sewing room to use on the hands if they become sticky.
Add a little vinegar to the water in which you boil fish. It will hold together better.
By planning meals ahead, the housewife can save herself a lot of fuss and worry.
Stewed tomatoes are rendered much more savory by being cooked with a little onion.

If you plant honeysuckle, remember that it takes all the nourishment from everything else.
The most digestible forms of fat are olive oil, butter and cream.
Rice has much more energy-building material than potatoes.
Ice cream always improves by being allowed to stand and ripen.
Japanese toweling makes pretty cushions for window seats and chairs.
Every household should possess a linen closet with shelves and drawers.
Have good light always in the kitchen and keep the room well aired.
