SPANISH INFLUENZA.

Instructions to Outport Magistrates.

Requests are constantly being sent to the Board of Health by Outport Magistrates for instructions in dealing with the influenza epidemic. The following points are to be noted:—

- The disease is highly contagious.
  - It is spread very largely by contact one with another.
  - It is advisable to prohibit any unnecessary gathering of people about stores, street corners, etc.
  - Close schools, churches, theatres, etc., if there is any indication of spread of disease.
  - Avoid a panic, but take this thing seriously and co-operate with the doctors, following strictly the advice given.
  - Good ventilation is very important—therefore admit sunlight and fresh air as much as possible.
  - Do not allow the patient to spit, and when coughing cover the mouth.
  - Never neglect the precaution of washing the hands before eating or after contact with a sick person. Quarantine is difficult to establish with any degree of success and the presence of the police in an attempt to enforce quarantine would create more panic.
- N. S. FRASER,
Acting Medical Officer of Health.

The Lost Will; OR, LOVE TRIUMPHS AT LAST!

CHAPTER XVI.

Jack was frowning slightly as he sought up to Miss Maud Delman; and when she said, a little breathlessly: "You haven't told her—Miss Norton, I mean?" he replied, rather short-

"Do you mean about your going on the stage? No, I haven't told anyone. I promised you I wouldn't." "I'm glad," she said, in an under-tone. "I don't want any one to know until I've made a success. Oh, by the way, I've chosen my stage-name; it's Grace Lawless. I hope you like it." "Sounds all right," said Jack absently.

He was thinking of Nora, of the coldness of her glance, the one glance only, she had bent on him; of the fact that she had been spending the morning with the Fernaldes; that Ferndale had been riding with her; been free to talk with her. Had she looked at Ferndale as coldly as she had looked at him, Jack? Oh, well, it didn't matter. He was a mere nobody, of no account, while Ferndale—

They found Mrs. Delman hard at work on her gloves, and Jack—to whom Maud seemed to leave the brunt of the business—began rather awkwardly and stammeringly to explain to Mrs. Delman the impending change in her daughter's life. The woman listened, at first with some signs of resentment, but presently with a kind of sullen resignation.

"I expected something of the kind," she said, raising her eyes from her work for a moment. "I knew, by Maudie's manner, that something was going on, and I'm not altogether surprised; but I am rather astonished that you should have helped her in her waywardness, Mr. Chalfonte; and you mustn't be disappointed if I say that you've taken a very great responsibility on yourself."

Jack was a trifle staggered at this; but he smiled cheerfully and said, reassuringly, apologetically: "Well, you see, Mrs. Delman, your daughter evidently has a taste for the stage, and this start is certainly encouraging. For myself, I don't know, if I were a young girl, that I should choose it as a profession; but Miss Maud seems to have set her heart upon it, and—there you are, you know."

"I understand," said the mother, her lips tightly compressed. "I know that Maud has been fretting over her work for some time past; she is very willful, like her father—and must have her way, I suppose."

"Well, she can give it a trial," said Jack; "and if it doesn't pan out all right she can come back, and no harm will be done."

And the Worst is Yet to Come—

"We shall see," said Mrs. Delman, with a shrug of her shoulders. Maud went with Jack to the gate. She was elated by the success of his embassy.

"Oh, I can't thank you enough," she murmured. "You are splendid—but you always are! My mother couldn't stand up against you. She would have argued and argued with me—not that it would have been of any use."

"No, I'm afraid it wouldn't," said Jack, smiling ruefully.

"No, not a bit. I'm determined. Mr. Chalfonte—Oh, here's another favour I'm going to ask you. Will you come to the theatre on my first night? Is it too much to ask?" she inquired, as Jack's too expressive countenance fell; for he had hoped that his association with Miss Maud Delman's affairs would now terminate.

"Don't say 'no,' if you can help it," pleaded Maud. "I know I shall do ever so much better if I know that you are in the stalls, watching me. I shall feel as if I had one friend at least in that big crowded theatre. Do come, Mr. Chalfonte! I promise you that it is the last favour I shall ask you."

"Oh, well, I'll come," said Jack. "I'll come and give you a cheery start; in fact, I'll applaud furiously." "I don't want you to do that. I only want you to be there, and for me to know that you are there, to feel—Oh, Mr. Chalfonte, how good, how very kind you have been to me! You must know that, but for you, I should not have had this start. I'm very, very grateful."

"That's all right," said Jack, in his usual phrase. "Don't you bother about that. Good-bye." He held out his hand, and she put her little one into it. His was cool enough, but her soft, well-shaped paw burnt hotly, and she pressed Jack's hand with a womanly fervour that meant more than gratitude, if only he could have known it.

Jack tramped off to a distant farm, where he ate his lunch; but not with his usual zest, for he was thinking of the luncheon-party at the Hall and picturing that modern, youthful Don Quixote, Ferndale, paying dignified attention to Nora. He intended going back to town; but, with a desire for self-torture which characterises your lover, he found himself at the Hall about tea-time, and the first thing that met his sight was Ferndale assisting Mrs. Delman with her tea, which had been brought out on to the lawn. The party appeared to be very happy, and Jack as he approached, heard Nora laugh lightly at something Ferndale was saying; and Jack set his teeth hard, ignorant of the fact that Nora had been rather silent and distrustful during the lunch, that this was almost her first laugh, and that it was given for his benefit.

With that contrariness which is also characteristic of your lover, Jack, who had been moody enough all the morning, became suddenly light-hearted, if not actually merry, and soon he had Lady Blanche, by whom he had taken a seat, laughing at his sallies; but they did not appear to amuse Nora, who presently rose and strolled off with Ferndale. Then Jack's brightness became clouded, and after a minute or two he also rose and, murmuring something about "business," went to the house, saying, over his shoulder, to Mrs. Feltham: "Mabel, you might tell Miss Norton that I've got those papers ready for her to sign, when she's disengaged."

He went into the library, sank into a chair, and, thrusting his hands in his pockets, stared frowningly at the carpet; he heard the Fernaldes depart, and a little while afterwards Nora entered. She was still in her habit; Johnson, the village tailor, put on his mottle, had not done so badly; and as Jack raised his eyes and looked up at her, her beauty and grace made his heart leap and fall back aching.

"Do you want me?" she asked; and though she tried to speak with her usual friendliness, he could not help remarking the note of coldness in her voice; for she had been thinking of Maud Delman, and of the fact that this was the second time she had seen Jack and her together; and she remembered his hesitation and something like embarrassment, when they had been speaking of Maud Delman the other day. Surely they must be great friends to be walking together so much. Nora had noticed that the girl had been talking to Jack, on the last occasion, with a marked air of familiarity, as if they were more than friends. Indeed, she had seen that Maud was excited, as if the conversation she was holding with Jack were an intensely interesting one.

The capacity for jealousy is not confined to the lower mind; ever since she had seen Jack and Maud together that morning, Nora had been as jealous as—well, Maud herself, this village girl, could have been. She told herself that she had no right to be jealous; that it was only natural Mr. Chalfonte should be attracted by so attractive a girl as Maud Delman; certainly he had every right to walk about with her, to hold confidential conversation with her; but, all the same—

"There are these papers to sign; but they'll do any time; there's no hurry about them. I hope I haven't disturbed you—I mean, taken you away from Lord Ferndale?" "Lord Ferndale and Lady Blanche have gone," she said, indifferently, and so engrossed in her own pain that she did not notice the jealousy betrayed in his voice and manner. "I will sign the papers."

Jack rose, arranged the documents on the table in front of the chair; and she seated herself and began to sign them. Jack stood at her elbow; but he was not watching her signature, as he should have been doing, to witness it properly, but the dark head bent over the paper. Involuntarily he sighed. The longing to kiss the soft hair, to take her in his arms, was so great that he drew a long breath.

"What a sigh!" said Nora, without raising her head or lifting her eyes. "It sounds as if you were very tired. I'm afraid you've been working too hard to-day, Mr. Chalfonte."

"Not I," responded Jack, rather brusquely. "Don't know that I've ever felt really tired in my life, and certainly a walk to the Holly Farm wouldn't knock me over."

"Never really tired! How strong you must be!" said Nora. "I've felt tired all the afternoon; but perhaps it was the riding. We went rather far, and I'm not used to it of late."

"I should have thought Lady Blanche couldn't have driven very far," said Jack, for the sake of saying something.

"Oh, we left her at a cottage and rode on up the moor for a gallop," explained Nora. "Oh!" said Jack, moodily. "Yes, it was delightful; it was the first gallop I'd had for—oh, ever so long."

A Baby's Skin

What is so beautiful as baby's soft, smooth, velvety skin? And how is it to be kept free from chafing, irritation and distressing eczema? This is every mother's question. Many have found the answer in the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Applied after the bath, this soothing, healing ointment overcomes irritation of the skin and prevents the development of eczema and other annoying skin diseases.

man, she would have been indignant; but she was reluctant to leave him, to let this impalpable barrier of coldness rise any higher between them, so, with a half smile from under her long dark lashes, she said: "You haven't told me how my habit looks?"

Jack had risen and was blotting the papers, and he turned and looked at her as she leant against the table in an attitude of easy calmness, but with her eyes downcast. The blood rose to his face, his heart thumped against his ribs. He could scarcely speak for a moment; then, because of his emotion, he replied, gruffly: "Oh, I think it looks very well. He has not made a bad job of it by any means—does him credit." Then for the life of him he could not help adding, "What does Lord Ferndale think of it?"

Nora turned away with a sense of disappointment and defeat. Her little overture had not been accepted. With a shrug of the shoulders, she replied, as she opened the door: "Oh, he thought it fitted very well. In fact, he admired it."

The door closed on her, and Jack, muttering something vicious, flung the pen on the table, jammed the papers in his pocket, and stalked out of the house and to the station. (To be Continued.)

There are new silk stockings woven in links much like coat of mail. The armholes of some of the new coats truly extend down to the hips.

Judicial Inquiry in Railway Accident.

The enquiry in connection with the recent railway accident, began at 3.30 yesterday afternoon before Judge Morris. Deputy Minister of Justice Summers and Mr. F. A. Mews, B.L., represented the Government, and Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., the Reid Mtd. Company. Mr. E. J. Hoskins, of the Reid Mtd. Company was also present.

The first witness was Conductor George Noseworthy, who was in charge of the train at the time and who after describing the make-up of the train, the personnel of the crew, etc., the run to Humbermouth which was without particular incident, was examined by Mr. Mews, and testified as follows:

We arrived at Humbermouth at 3.35 p.m. Tuesday, the 24th, 5 hours, 20 minutes late. We left there at 3.40 after changing engines; No. 124 engine came on. Engineer F. Power, from Bishop's Falls we had engine 111, Engineer Pear. We picked up 20 minutes between Millertown Junction and Humbermouth, stopped at Corner Brook about 3.43 and went on to Curling. Nothing happened on the way. The accident happened after we left Curling. We left there between 4 and 4.05 p.m. Tuesday. About 3 miles west of Curling the second class car left the track. It is up grade after leaving Curling going west. The grade is about 2 1/2 per cent. We were going 10 or 12 miles per hour. I was standing in the smoking room of the first class car, two cars behind the second class. The first intimation I had of the car leaving the track was the jar. I opened the door and went out. The car I was standing on was tipping to the right hand side and I jumped. Where the second class car went off was a dump. The track was curved to the right. The ground was practically level except just where the 2nd class car went off. Five cars left the rails and turned over, the 2nd class car uncoupling. The others fell close to the track. The engine, tender and baggage car held the track. Only one went down the embankment.

The west end of the dining car went partly over the dump. The second class car went down about forty or forty-five feet, sliding on her side. From the time of leaving the track the car ran about 50 or 60 feet before tipping over. The leading truck of the second class came off the track on the high or left hand side and the engine pulling up the hill very slowly pulled the car off its track causing the truck to get back under the centre of the car clear of its bearings. The car tipped on the leading end and uncoupled from the baggage car. The truck remained in the centre of the road bed. When the second class car was going down first she brought the dining car about 15 feet off the track and then uncoupled. The rear end of the dining car did not uncouple nor any of the other cars. The dining car tipped and brought the others flat on their side close to the track. The car is connected to the truck by a king pin. I saw the car after the accident but didn't examine it. I don't know what caused the accident but the car went off and fell on its right side on the lower side of the curve. There were about 25 passengers in the second class car. Three or four were injured, one man, Mr. Winsor, being rather seriously hurt. There were about 55 passengers all together on the train 23 were hurt and Miss O'Neill killed.

(List of passengers here put in) Miss O'Neill was on the rear sleeping car, upper 5 berth. At the time of the accident she was standing on the platform between the two sleepers, but under the Trinity car her body was found. I'm not aware of any other passengers being on the platform with her. Between the cars was a brass railing 3 1/2 feet high. The cars went over very easy. Miss O'Neill might have attempted to jump off and got caught under the car. The shock was hardly sufficient to throw her off. She may have lost her balance when the car tipped and fell off. After jumping off I ran and got over the roof of the first class car and in through the window. There were broken glass and the people sitting around. None of them were lying down. Some of the passengers helped in getting the others out through the windows. All were taken out that way. When I got to the 2nd class car the passengers were out. The engineer, fireman and others were rendering assistance. Some of them were taken through the end door which opened easily. While in the first class car I heard Miss O'Neill was dead. I immediately went to see and found that she was jammed under the car on her left side. Her right hand and legs were outside the car. We jacked up the car and removed the body to a caboose on the special train from Curling. Right after the accident I got the baggage man to tap the wires and report to headquarters saying "train over dump west of Mount Moriah; one passenger killed and several injured. Send special train, doctor and cars with relief." Got reply at once, "Doctor, cars and men leaving Humbermouth." These arrived shortly after. All the injured had been brought to a house close by and we did all possible till the doctor arrived. The special train with help arrived in about an hour. Only two passengers had to be carried to the house. The others walked. After the doctor attended the injured they were taken to Curling and Petrie's Crossing where the Company had provided everything for them. They were all down by 7 o'clock. I waited at Humbermouth till next morning and then went west as a passenger. The track was cleared during the night under direction of Mr. Jos. Keefe. At 9.30 the express left for Port aux Basques with the passengers except the injured. We got through all right.

At 6.30 p.m. the enquiry adjourned till a date to be decided later.

"How to Dodge Flu."

1. Walk to work if possible.
2. Make full use of all available sunshine.
3. Wash your hands before eating.
4. Do not use a common towel. It spreads disease.
5. Avoid the person who coughs or sneezes.
6. Should you cough or sneeze, cover nose and mouth with a handkerchief.
7. Keep away from houses where there are cases of influenza.
8. Keep out of crowded places. Walk in the open air rather than go to crowded places of amusement.
9. Sleep is necessary for well-being. Get enough to rest you thoroughly. Keep your bedroom window open.
10. Avoid draughts and chilling. Try not to become overheated.
11. Should you get wet change to dry clothing at earliest opportunity.
12. If sick, no matter how slightly, see a physician.
13. Should you have influenza, stay in bed until your doctor says you can safely get up.
14. Paste this in your hat.

Epidemic "Flu."

The Executive Council met the Committee appointed by the doctors yesterday morning, and made arrangements for the hospital accommodation of the influenza patients. The Seaman's Home was taken over and with the co-operation of Dr. Grievie and Jones things were speedily put in shape, so that by the afternoon Dr. Campbell had half a dozen seamen removed from the ships in the harbor and comfortably housed under the care of a trained nurse. The prompt action of the Executive is a matter of great satisfaction to the doctors. Half the anxiety regarding the epidemic is removed when comfortable accommodation has been provided, and the ships can be disinfected and allowed to continue their voyage after the sick ones have been landed. Reports are coming in from all parts of the Dominion, and it is evident that a wide-spread epidemic has come upon us very suddenly. One death is reported from New Melbourn, these deaths have occurred at Exploits, and one at Fortune Harbor.

Reckless Driving

We are informed that last night between the hours of seven and eight o'clock a motor car at top speed came down Church Hill and turned the corner partly on the sidewalk. Another car going Adelaide and Middle Street way went between the electric light pole and the curb. The numbers of both these cars were taken and a recurrence of such reckless and careless driving on the part of the drivers of these cars will end in their numbers being given to the police authorities.

Juvenile Inebriates.

Yesterday morning before the Bar of the Police Court stood two sisters, aged twelve and fourteen years, respectively, the charge against them being that of "drunk and disorderly." These children were arrested on Saturday night by the police and were kept in the police station from that time until they were brought before the Court. As a matter of fact there was no other place in which they could be detained. On reading such an item of news in the daily press, one is impelled to ask "Where are we and whither tending?" That infants in this virtuous city of St. John's can procure for consumption the vile concoctions which are being retailed over the counters of supposedly legitimate stores, and which have the effect of destroying both body and soul is a striking commentary on both morals and righteousness, and induces the natural question, Did they purchase the stuff themselves or did some scoundrel "stand treat," and having got his victims in a state of intoxication, debauched them and decamped? This is a question which will bear investigation, and we trust that interested parties will take the case of these young girls up and cause a strict probe into the whole circumstances surrounding this matter. Fortunately the scene at the Court on Monday was one never before witnessed in this town. But what is to prevent its becoming a frequent recurrence, unless drastic measures are taken by the authorities to put down at once the illegal and promiscuous sale of preparations containing alcohol. And again, if any man, is involved in connection with the case in question, he should be found and punishment commensurate with his crime meted out to him: punishment of such a nature that will deter others from repeating the offence. Under the law it is penal to sell cigarettes to a minor. Is there no law making it a similar offence to sell infants of the female sex, intoxicants? Which, in Heaven's name, is the greatest crime, the destruction of youthful virtue by doping girls with Florida Water and like preparations, or selling cigarettes to a boy under legal age? There is no comparison, and if there is, no law making the former a punishable act, steps should be taken to have one framed as speedily as possible. But we think that there would be no criticism of any judicial officer who imposed legal punishment on the persons who sold these little girls the stuff which brought about their downfall, if these persons were found and brought before him. Rather would that magistrate be commended for his action. It is high time for something to be done. The paths of Monday morning's scene in the Police Court was most appealing to sympathetic humanity, and more marked was it when one of the juvenile offenders broke down utterly and leaning on the bar fell sobbing as if her heart would break. Even the most hardened court room habitue was touched. We hope that this is the last time that over a like scene will be witnessed in St. John's, and we also hope that something will be done to apprehend the person or persons who dispensed, sold or gave the intoxicants to these children. If it was done for any vile purpose, swift punishment must be meted out to the perpetrator. If sold in the ordinary way, the seller should be haled before the bench and severely reprimanded, if not fined or imprisoned. There is an opportunity for some of the Girls' Societies, to enquire into the conditions of the errant children of St. John's, including the two whose case has been remanded. The fair fame and good name of the city must not be besmeared with such happenings, neither must the growing mothers of the race be subjected to the temptations which are daily on the increase. Social evils must be dealt with effectively and promptly, otherwise the cancer of immorality will grow beyond cure.

Draft Arrives.

The Minister of MILITIA has received word that the Draft which recently left here in charge of Captain Nanna, arrived at its destination.
MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GAIN-GET IN COWS.

Notes and Comments

The Prime Minister is on his way home. After his arrival the fun will begin.
Turkey is on her prayer mat. Germany is approaching the sinner's bench, with Austria a close second.
The verdict of the Allied world to Germany's decoy peace offer will be "unanimously rejected."
"What Prussia wants," says the Washington Star, "is not peace, but a vacation in order to recuperate." The Entente will see that the Kaiser doesn't get it.
Onions always affected our lachrymiferous ducts when we had to peel them. Now we also are inclined to weep when we hear the price we have to pay for them.

The splash of Lieut. Commander Schwieger, who was in command of the submarine which sank the Lusitania, in May, 1916, should his grateful countrymen erect a monument to his memory, would properly be "He was only a German."

To Asquith's "we shall not sheathe the sword until Prussian military domination is crushed," and Wilson's "Force without limit," Clemenceau adds, "we shall make war to the very end of the end." Therefore there will be no negotiated peace, but a dictated peace following decisive victory.

A late Amsterdam despatch says that General Von Liebert, writing in a Berlin newspaper, indicates the retirement of the German armies to the lines of Lille, Maubeuge, Sedan, Mont Medis, Metz and Diedenhofen, as here is laid the strategic chess board on which the German katherland is to be defended outside its own frontiers.
Inspired by the news of the capture of Nazareth by the British, a Chicago poet, unburdened himself of the following:
"Perhaps upon the self same spot,
Where He first lifted up his head,
In collar straw and mackerel cot,
Now Freedom's hosts are billeted."
And still money is being sent to educate the heathen!

Have you commenced to wear your camphor-bag yet?

Does Prohibition Prohibit?

Constables Sheppard and Sexton while doing duty on Gower Street this morning early, discovered a premises open, and upon making entry found the owner asleep in the shop. After some trouble they succeeded in arousing him, his sound sleep having been induced by copious draughts of home made dope, about 8 gallons of the detraction being found in the store. He appeared before the Court this morning.

Nfldr. Killed.

Mr. John Strong, fisherman, at the South Battery, received a cablegram from Moonis, Pa., the past week informing him that his brother Ambrose had been killed. No particulars of the sad accident are yet available, but it is presumed that he met his death in the mine, as the last twenty-five years of his life had been spent as a miner in the coal fields of Pennsylvania. Deceased was born in Old Perlican, T.E., in the year 1871, and on reaching manhood resolved to seek his fortune in the U. S. A. where he has since resided. He leaves to mourn a widow, formerly a Miss Mercer, of Bay Roberts, a large family, one brother and a large circle of friends both in Newfoundland and the U. S. A., who are greatly shocked at his untimely end.

N. I. W. A.—Owing to the Board of Health Regulations there will be no meeting of the Blacksmiths and Helpers' Local until further notice. T. BRALE, Secy.—Oct. 15th.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The schrs. Coronation, Constance, Eclipse, Pandora, Nelson and several others arrived from Labrador yesterday.
A fierce gale of S. W. wind is raging here to-day, and we were treated to a downpour of rain this morning.
Mr. Geo. E. Stevenson is rising the roof of his shop on Water Street. The addition will give Mr. Stevenson much more room for his fast increasing business.
Quite a number of people are now laid up with lagrippe. It is nothing more than the usual fall stock of colds, etc. There is no need at present for our people to worry. Time enough when we have occasion for it.
A man who had several men employed a few days ago, used the common phrase "Hurry up." One of the men quickly remarked, "oh, he is dead, sir." "Hurry up" was everywhere a few years ago, Harbor Grace seemed to be his headquarters, but he is not here now. He is dead. The days of slavery are over, thank goodness.
A number of men arrived from Bell Island in Stewart's motor on Saturday. They returned to the island by the same boat on Sunday evening.
Pte. John Peddle of the Nrd. Regiment was in town last week on a visit to friends.
The young lads of the Methodist school have lately formed a football club, known as the Star Club. Mr. Jeffers, the new principal of the school, is taking a keen interest in the lads. This healthy exercise will no doubt prove beneficial to the young chaps.
Capt. Thomas Dunn who returned to St. John's by schr. from Labrador on Saturday, arrived here yesterday by motor car.
Mr. Powell, agent for A. E. Hickman, St. John's, is in town on a business trip, mingled with pleasure as all visits to Harbor Grace are.

Germany's Armistice
and War Must Continue
Turkey's Note at War

WASHINGTON
President Wilson to-day answered a note from Germany with a note declaring anew that the German Government controlled the peace and no thought of an armistice could be granted is that a must cease. He also gave notice that before peace can come. When the armistice comes the President said that the United States and the Allies will have a military advantage of the armies of Germany will be lost. The text of the President's message to the United States on the 8th of January, 1918, and direct statement of his decision in the communications of the German Government and 12th of October, 1918. It must be understood that the process of evacuation of an armistice are matters which must be decided by the military advisers of the U. S. and the Allied Government. President Wilson feels it his duty to say that the armistice will not be accepted by the Government of the United States which does not provide absolutely satisfactory guarantees of the maintenance of the peace of the United States. He feels confident that he can do nothing but this will also be the judgment of the Allied Governments. The President's duty to add that neither the United States nor, he is quite sure, the British Government of the United States will consent to consider a belligerent will consent to consider as the armed forces of Germany engaged in inhuman practices which they still regret that the German Government of the United States with submarines are engaged in sinking Turkey's Note at Washington---Allies Begin New Attack in Flanders.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 14.

President Wilson to-day answered Germany's peace offer with a note declaring anew that there can be no peace with a German Government controlled by a military autocracy and no thought of an armistice while German atrocities continue on land and sea. President Wilson today informed Germany that the only condition upon which an armistice could be granted is that atrocities on land and sea must cease. He also gave notice that autocracy must be before peace can come. When the time to consider an armistice comes the President said the military advisers of the United States and the Allies will be consulted and no military advantage of the armies fighting the Central powers will be lost. The text of the President's answer follows: The unqualified acceptance by the present German Government and by a large majority of the Reichstag of the terms laid down by the President of the United States on the 8th of January, 1918, and in his subsequent addresses justified the President in making a frank and direct statement of his decision with regard to the communications of the German Government of the 11th and 12th of October, 1918. It must be clearly understood that the process of evacuation and the conditions of an armistice are matters which must be left to the judgment and advice of the military advisers of the Government of the U. S. and the Allied Governments, and the President feels it his duty to say that no arrangements can be accepted by the Government of the United States which does not provide absolutely satisfactory safeguards and guarantees of the maintenance of the present supremacy of the armies of the United States and the Allies in the field. He feels confident that he can safely assume that nothing but this will also be the judgment and decision of the Allied Governments. The President feels that it is also his duty to add that neither the Government of the United States nor, he is quite sure, the Governments with which the Government of the United States is associated as a belligerent will consent to consider an armistice so long as the armed forces of Germany continue the illegal and inhuman practices which they still persist in. At the very time that the German Government approaches the Government of the United States with proposals of peace its submarines are engaged in sinking passenger ships at sea, and not the ships alone but the very boats in which their passengers and crews seek to make their way to safety, and in their forced withdrawal from Flanders and from France the German armies are pursuing a course of wanton destruction, which has always been regarded as a direct violation of the rules and practices of civilized warfare. Cities and villages are being destroyed and stripped of all they contain, not only that but often their very inhabitants. The nations associated against Germany cannot be expected to agree to a cessation of arms while acts of inhumanity, spoliation and desolation are being continued which they justly look upon with horror and with burning hearts. It is necessary also in order that there may be no possibility of misunderstanding that the President should very solemnly call the attention of the Government of Germany to the language and plain intent of one of the terms of peace which the German Government has now accepted. It is contained in the address of the President, delivered at Mount Vernon on the fourth of July last. It is as follows: "The destruction of every arbitrary power anywhere that can separately, secretly and of its single choice, destroy the peace of the world, or if it cannot be presently destroyed, at least its reduction to virtual impotence. The power which has hitherto controlled the German nation is of the sort here described. It is within the choice of the German nation to alter it." The President's words just quoted naturally constitute a condition precedent to peace if peace is to come by the action of the German people themselves. The President feels bound to say that the whole process of peace will, in his judgment, depend upon the definiteness and the satisfactory character of the guarantees which can be given in this fundamental. After, it is indispensable that the governments associated against Germany should know beyond peradventure with whom they are dealing. The President will make a separate reply to the Royal and Imperial Government of Austria-Hungary.

Accept, Sir, the renewed assurances of my high consideration.

(Sgd.) ROBERT LANSING.

Charge D'Affaires, Ad Interim,
in charge of German interests in the United States.

WAR REVIEW.

Peace talk pervades the air, but is falling on deaf ears as far as the Allies in the field are concerned. Instead of a relaxation in the intensity of hostilities on what seemingly is a major scale are being carried out by the British, French and Belgians in Belgium, Flanders. Having cleared the old Laon salient, and made advances northward in Champagne, which are menacing the retirement of the Germans eastward toward the Meuse, Messines-Metz line, Marshal Foch has ordered a drive in the Lys River region of Flanders towards Ghent, which threatens to break entirely the grip of the Germans in Belgium all the way from the center to the coast, and likewise to eliminate the big bulge in the line at Lille as its apex.

NEW ATTACK OPENED IN FLANDERS.

WITH ALLIED ARMY IN FLANDERS, Oct. 14.—British, Belgian and French forces attacked at dawn this morning on a wide front in Flanders. The Allied troops are driving in the general direction of Ghent and Courtrai. The attack seems to be general, from Comines to the northward the troops of the nations went over the top after a crash bombardment only, there was no preliminary bombardment. It undoubtedly surprised the enemy. In the British formations some of Great Britain's best troops and the forces of the French army of famous fighting organizations. The Germans appear prepared to retire to the Ghent lines. By the fury with which the attack was launched it is evident that the fighting armies are not paying the slightest attention to the peace talk. They smashed forward with all their dash characteristics with Kaiserism. Autocracy must go. No armistice can even be thought of while Germany continues her atrocities on land and sea. One can not be considered unless it is fully decided by the Allied commanders in the field in such terms as absolutely provide safeguards and guarantees that Germany's part will not be a scrap of paper.—This in a few words is the President's answer. If it does not bring a capitulation which may be more than an unconditional surrender Allied diplomats and American officials believe it may cause a revolution in Germany. Beyond question it speaks for the Entente Allies as well as the United States. The despatch of the President's reply was followed by the issue of the formal statement at the White House by Secretary Tamm. The government will continue to send over 250,000 men with supplies every month, and there will be no relaxation of any kind outside of the formal phrases of a diplomat. That

COMMENTS ON WILSON'S ANSWER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—President Wilson has answered Germany's peace proposal with a decision which not only fulfills the expectations of supporters, but also dispels the fear of those who predicted he would substitute victories at arms with defeats at diplomacy. No peace was President Wilson's word to the world that he had no thought of stopping the fighting at this stage. The Senate chamber rang with the applause of Senators as the President's answer was read a few minutes after it had been announced at the State department. Senator Lodge, the President's chief critic in his course until to-day issued a statement expressing his gratification at the President's decision. Opinion at the capital and throughout official Washington was unanimously in approval. The official note which will convey the President's decision to the German government and more important to the German people was delivered to-day by Secretary Lansing to the Charge of the Swiss Legation who has been acting as the intermediary. It was given out publicly by Mr. Lansing at the State department at six o'clock this evening. Those who contend the President's decision arranges the situation for something more than unconditional base it on the argument that he has now passed the stage where he might have accepted a surrender of the German military and naval forces, and left the Hohenzollern on this throne. Mr. Wilson, according to this view has now finally informed the German people that if they want peace they can only attain it by getting rid of the Kaiser and his system. An armistice it is true might come first, and the details of the downfall of the German autocratic government might be arranged later. But this is what an armistice would entail. First, a stop to the atrocities on land and sea and systematic destruction and devastation in the wake of the retreating German armies then the disarmament of all the German forces and the deposit of their arms and munitions at points to be chosen by the Allied military commanders. Then the occupation by Allied forces of certain German cities or strongholds of strategic importance. Probably also the occupation of all the submarine bases. A turning over of the German fleet. In short it would entail a taking from Germany of everything with which she might break her word to an armistice. From that point the United States and the Allies might proceed to dispose of what remained of Kaiserism if the German people have not done it before. President Wilson in his note plainly invites them to do while nowhere in these notes does the President open a joint with the Entente statesmen the demand that the chief criminals must be delivered up for trial. The press confidants point out that he plainly subscribed to the document that the guilt of bringing on the world war is personal. It will be noted that the President completely rejects the German suggestion for a fixed commission to arrange an evacuation and reminds the militarists that they will accept the terms laid down by Marshal Foch and the associated commanders in that they will have no part in framing them. He makes it plain that he does not accept the new German Government headed by Chancellor Maximilian as anything less autocratic, anything less a creature of German militarism than its predecessors and warns the German people that unless they destroy it the Allied armies will do so.

Two months of the Foch initiative have netted results which could not possibly have been anticipated in the dark days before that date. ## TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

NOON.

WILSON HAS GIVEN IT.

LONDON, Oct. 14. (Via Ruter's Agency, Ottawa.) From an exchange of views among the Allied Powers on the peace situation, an unfavorable reply to Germany is indicated.

AMERICANS PUSHING ON.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY NORTH WEST OF VERDUN, Oct. 14.—The American troops west of the Meuse are now beyond Cunel and Romagne, and their patrols are in the Bois-de-Bantheville. Further west, the American line has reached St. Georges and Landres-et-St. Georges.

FRENCH GAINS.

In co-operation with the Italians, we have made progress on the north bank of the Aisne, and have carried our line beyond the villages of La-Mal-Maison, Lor Lethour and St. Germain Monk. In the region of Asfeld we have crossed the Aisne at several points north of Bladzy.

AUSTRIAN PREMIER RESIGNS.

BASEL, Oct. 14. Vienna afternoon newspapers announce that the Austrian Emperor has accepted the resignation of Baron Von Hussenreiter, the Austrian Premier, and requested Count Silva Tarouca, Minister of Agriculture, to form a new Ministry. This news has not been confirmed officially.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

LONDON, Oct. 14. The text of the official statement issued to the war office to-night relative to the offensive in Belgium follows: The Flanders group of armies, under the King of Belgium, attacked at 6.35 o'clock this morning. The second British army advanced about four and a half miles in the direction of Courtrai, capturing the important villages of Ledeghem and Moorselle, and reaching the northern outskirts of Menin. The Belgian army advanced also nearly five miles toward Thourout, and captured the villages of Imonghen, Zumbeko, Cortemarck and Handeaere. The French army attacked with the Belgian troops on both flanks and occupied Roelers, as well as the villages of Devren, Hoogedegetts and St. Joseph. They also captured the plateau of Ghizehooghe and Gibbette. The prisoners counted exceeded 8,000, thirty-three hundred were taken by the Belgians, 2,500 by the French and 2,000 by the British. The exact number of guns taken is unknown, but six complete batteries with their teams were captured, just as they were about to withdraw. The British, Belgian and French aviators played a great part in the battle. They bombed enemy concentrations and trains, and fired their machine guns on infantry. British monitors also assisted materially in the operations.

ROULERS CAPTURED.

PARIS, Oct. 14. Roulers has been taken by the Allies. This city before the war numbered 25,000 inhabitants, and is the first important Belgian town from which the Germans have been driven. This morning on the anniversary of the Battle of Jena, which was fought October 14, 1806, the battle flamed up along the Flanders front and the first day's progress gives reason for high hope. Under the command of King Albert of Belgium, the British, Belgian and French armies attacked at 5.35 o'clock. There was no artillery preparation but the troops advanced under cover of a creeping curtain of fire of extreme power. Following the gales which have been blowing for several days, the weather turned fine, and the troops progressed methodically, and in a most satisfactory manner. Machine gun nests were forced to surrender one after another, and at six o'clock to-night the advance amounted to four miles in the direction of Courtrai for the British, four miles towards Thieit for the French, and two and a half miles in the direction of Thourout for the Belgians. To the French in the centre of the line fell the honor of the capture of the City of Roulers, and the plateau covering it. Nearly 10,000 prisoners have already been counted. German reserves which attempted to hurry up to the front line, did not escape the keen eyes of the Allied aviators and gunners. One troop train was cut in two by shells. Two of the occupants jumped out and they were met by scattering machine gun fire from Allied aviators. The British Navy and coast artillery did excellent work in co-operation with the advancing infantry.

REACHING A CLIMAX.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 14. There is good reason to believe that the German submarine warfare will reach a climax during the winter, according to the Rheinsche Westphalen Gazette, which says that it will produce an economic crisis of unprecdated dimensions in Entente countries.

EXPLOSION IN TRENTON.

TRENTON, Oct. 14. With not a single fatality so far as at present known, all the manufacturing portion of the British chemical works, except the smokeless powder, was destroyed by fire and explosions, between 7.30 last night and 6.30 this morning. Practically all the glass in the portion of the town adjacent to the works has been blown out.

THE AMERICAN AXE.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY NORTH WEST OF VERDUN, Monday, Oct. 14.—From west of the Meuse, to the vicinity of Grandpre, American forces chopped a series of fresh notches in the German line to-day. They kept their swinging blows at the enemy from early this morning until late this afternoon. While the Germans resisted with grim determination, their decision to hold till the last portion of the line before the Americans, may open the way to swift disaster. Although the action extended to the eastward bank of the Meuse, the most savage fighting took place where the enemy is striving to maintain that section of the Kriemhild line running northwesterly from Romagne. The battle has been in and over the wire entanglements between this defensive position and hanging on the wire to-night are Germans whose equipment bears evidence that another fresh division has been brought up to meet the steady pressure of the Americans. Heavy clouds and rain prevented aid from giving material assistance during the attack but in spite of the drizzle, several flying craft did get over the line late in the day, and contributed somewhat to the success of the advance, notwithstanding the low visibility. The artillery of the Germans made a liberal use of gas shells in their defensive and both mustard and lethal shells were hurled out. But the Americans were not seriously hampered in their general operations.

A SHAKE UP.

LONDON, Oct. 15. Dispatches from Holland report there is a probability of a turnover in the German Chancellors. The Berlin National Zeitung prints a report of a meeting held on Saturday by an inter-party committee, at which discussion turned to the letter Prince Maximilian wrote to Prince Alexander of Hohenlohe, revealing a markedly different attitude to political affairs from that proposed in his recent address before the Reichstag. The committee, according to the newspaper, recognized the situation produced by the publication of the letter, rendered Prince Maximilian's resignation doubtful. Rotterdam reports to the Telegraph that Prince Max's resignation is probable and that his probable successor will be Dr. W. S. Solff, the new Foreign Minister, or Phillip Scheidemann, Secretary of State without portfolio. The correspondent attributes to this development the imminent abdication of the Kaiser.

The Postdam Criminal.

A correspondent of an Ontario paper tells of a Toronto man who stern punishment of Kaiser Wilhelm was proposed in a recent discussion interested the comment, "Oh, but we must remember that he is a king." His royal blood is everything that must not be remembered when the Hohenzollern's punishment is determined, remembered, must be counted as making his guilt deeper. Kaiser Wilhelm is justly to be dealt with not as a sovereign whose country made unprovoked war but as a high-placed criminal who plotted war and, successful in his plotting, directed his soldiers and sailors into ways of almost incredible fendish. His guilt is blacker than that of his servants who tortured the prisoner, bayoneted the wounded, slaughtered the nurse, or outraged the women of Belgium or France. It is for that guilt he must pay the penalty. By what law of Heaven or earth should his royal blood protect him?—Sydney Record.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GARTER IN COWS.

Two Services.

Rev. W. H. Small, writes The Methodist Times of two recent services which would have made fitting subjects for an artist: "They were Holy Communion services. In one there were a few men kneeling at the bottom of a trench. The white cloth was spread on a grass-grown parapet, and the table was properly set out. The Spirit of God made all complete. The other service was even more impressive and striking. A goodly party of us gathered in a cornfield, amidst sheaves and shocks of corn, for a week evening service. At its close we arranged our Communion table, on a raised, between two large sheaves of ripened grain, and the men, nearly 30 of them, knelt in several perfectly regular rows. We were aware of the presence of our Lord. It was awesome. The time was the end of a perfect day. Light clouds were fleeting across the heavens as if to be in time to say farewell to the sun, who like a mighty monarch, was passing on his way. Here and there, after the service, I heard some of the lads saying, 'We must write home about this.'—The Wesleyan.

End of the Story

(From the Westminster Gazette.) There was a boy who lay dying for six months in an English hospital, one of the nicest boys I ever knew, a fair-haired, blue-eyed lad, from the North Country. He had been brought back from France shot through the spine, and was a hopeless case from the beginning. For all the six months never a word of complaint escaped him, and he seemed always to be smiling. He had one great consolation; he had become acquainted for the first time with the Waverley Novels, and in his last days he was reading 'Ivanhoe'. When he became too weak to read for himself the nurse took it from him and read aloud to him. She was reading on the last day of all, when the padre came and his father and mother were at the bedside, and being a good lad, he kissed his parents affectionately and listened very attentively to the prayers, but the moment they were over he turned to the nurse and said, in a whisper, 'Please go on reading, and as fast as you can, for I do so want to know the end.' And so she read him out of the world with the great light of Bois-Guilbert and Ivanhoe. I am sure the spirit of Walter Scott was at that death-bed.

SENT TO HOSPITAL.—A seaman of the brigantine Stella, suffering from influenza, was taken to the Hospital yesterday per instructions of Dr. Campbell. A diphtheria case was also removed to Hospital for treatment from Barnes' Road.

Fighting Hun Drugs.

WHAT OUR CHEMISTS HAVE DISCOVERED.

Just before the war suffers from neuralsgia were able to purchase that invaluable remedy, phenacetin, at sixpence per vial. Seeing that its wholesale price was then only two and ninepence a pound, the drug stores were able to make a handsome profit. By January 1st, 1915, phenacetin had gone up to six and sixpence a pound, and on January 1st, 1917, its price was ninety-two shillings and sixpence!

Phenacetin, remember, came from Germany. Germany supplied the world with coal-tar drugs. She had all the "intermedicals" as they are called, from which phenacetin, salol, phenazon, and many similar drugs are extracted.

When the war-cloud fell upon the world German drugs were cut off, and we were forced to fall back upon supplies from America and Switzerland. As these grew scarcer—for the hospitals needed drugs in greater quantities than were ever required before—prices rose and rose.

Meantime, however, our chemists were busy. They had first to make the intermediates, then to extract from these the so-called synthetic drug, phenacetin, the rise in the price of which we have related, began to fall last year, and on January 1st, 1918, had come down from ninety-two shillings and sixpence to thirty-five shillings per pound.

Just as British dyes have taken the place of German, so British drugs have ousted Hun products. We are now making "Salvarsan," which, before the war, was a German monopoly. It is made in the Wellcome laboratories under the name of "Khararivan" and this was the first licence granted in this country, after the outbreak of war, for working a German patent. The Germans were furious.

It has often been said that, before the war, we depended upon Germany for all our drugs. This is quite a mistake. The alkaloids which are extracted from vegetable substances, such as foxglove, the calabar bean and ipecacuanha have always been made in England.—Pearsons' Weekly.

How Gough's Army Fought.

(By Major Cushman A. Rice, U.S.A., in Leslie's Magazine.)

"Then I was with the British Fifth Army, and I'll tell you why they didn't fight them the Huns—they simply couldn't. They were outnumbered and outbranded cruelly. Never in my life did I see such heroism and gallantry displayed against fearful odds as by these men, and if they didn't fight them there never if any fighting anywhere upon the face of the earth. Attacked by a tremendously superior German force, they lost almost all of their artillery of any weight the first day, but stuck on the Somme line until almost annihilated. For every inch of ground they gained the Huns paid the highest price in men, and I could tell five hundred instances in which the British battalions proved to be magnificent heroes. I saw a captain who was in charge of a battery of six-inch howitzers have a hand shot away. He stopped fighting only long enough to have temporary dressing, and then returned to his post and assisted his men in removing the guns. He was killed the next day. I was with a machine gun company until all but three of the men had been killed or incapacitated. I told them that I was going to fall back, and urged them to do likewise. The leader, a little Lancashire sergeant, answered:—"No, the Boches has chased us far enough. Here we stick! And they stuck and were killed to the last man. And these Canadian units, I simply can't tell you how they fought against odds for five days and six nights, going back only inch by inch. One British division of ten thousand men, sent to replenish the line, fought continuously for three days and nights. A roll call then showed 916 left. And still there are those who ask if the British ran away. No, a thousand times no. With comparatively few reserves they hung on. They were sacrificed, but it was their duty to stay, and they did it. Too much cannot be said in praise of the Fifth Army, for it saved the day and prevented the Huns from breaking through to Abbeville until the French came up."

the Hun Fleet Come Out.

Her Majesty's ship, the German Chancellor, seems to have good sense than Emperor, though that is paying him no compliment. In his speech before the Reichstag last Saturday, the Maximilian spoke glowingly of the German army but he had nothing of the stay-in-port navy. Emperor William, on the other hand, speaks to boast of his naval forces. "I," he said the other day, "is fighting his own against the united naval forces and is unwaveringly supporting the army in its difficult struggle." True, the navy holds the sense of avoiding danger but that has been the policy of the Emperor. But the course of the German fleet speaks eloquently of the character of the German navy, if not of their courage. The German Navy was the most powerful in the world when war broke in 1914. It was more powerful to-day. The Emperor sees it that the world does not see. He has ordered the construction of a new British naval strength but the increase is suggested by some figures which he has allowed to become known. In August, 1914, the total displacement of the navy was 2,500,000 tons. To-day it is 6,500,000 tons. The total tonnage is about 400,000 tons more than in 1914. It is 1,400,000 tons more than the British navy had in 1914. The German navy is a powerful one. The German navy is a powerful one. The German navy is a powerful one.

Held for Shooting.

Halifax, N. S., October 11.—A woman dressed in a soldier's uniform and suspected of being a German, is being held at the Police Station and will come up for trial to-day on a charge of attempting to murder Provost Sergeant Hunt, of the Canadian Militia Police, on Gottingen Street shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The woman refuses to talk, not even disclosing her name. When first taken to the station the police were under the impression that they were holding a man, and it was not until after noon that they learned otherwise.

Sergeant Hunt, who is stationed at the Wellington Barracks was coming down Gottingen street, and when between Gerrish and Cunard streets, he encountered a party wearing a khaki sweater, breeches and puttees. The sergeant stopped and inquired "Why part of a military uniform was being worn. He was told it was none of his business. Not satisfied with this answer, Sergeant Hunt says he was about to place the party under arrest, when he (she) started to run, pulled a revolver and began firing. One shot entered the sergeant's left hand.

Undaunted Hunt gave chase down Gottingen street, and although wounded in the hand, picked up a large rock and threw it after the fugitive. This rock hit her in the side and slackened her pace somewhat. Attracted by the shooting, Policeman James MacDonald, of the city police, and two military policemen patrolling Gottingen street, gave chase and succeeded in capturing the prisoner on Cunard Street.

She was taken to the Police Station and questioned by Detective Kennedy, but refused to talk, not even giving her name. Shortly after noon it was discovered that the prisoner was a woman and was masquerading in a military uniform. The prisoner again refused to tell her name or give any information about herself. She speaks with a German accent, and it is believed that she is a German spy.

LADY ALFRED PAGET.

Much sympathy will be extended to Sir William MacGregor and Lady MacGregor upon the death of their daughter, Lady Paget. Lady Paget died on Friday, aged 33 years. Her husband, Admiral Paget, died in June last, and they leave a daughter of 11 years of age. Lady Paget's health gave way to overwork in this country and in France. When the war began she interested herself in the production of comforts for Mine-sweepers. In 1915 she went to France, and for over two years she nursed in Anglo-American hospitals for French soldiers. Her health broke down, and a long illness terminated fatally in pneumonia.
