Jan. 21st.
Mr. Walter White, Commission Agent, City.
Dear Sir,—In answer to your enquiry re your Victor Safe, would say that at the time of our recent fire we had in our office, which was situated at the top of the theatre, a small Victor Safe. The theatre was completely burned to the ground. Two days after the fire we discovered this safe in the ruins. We there opened it and found the contents, consisting of papers and coins, as we placed them previous to the conflagration. Yours truly,

You will remember the night the Star of the Sea Hall was destroyed, and the above testimonial shows how well the Victor Safe stood the test. Let us provide you with protection that is accessible and efficient.

Sweet Eva!

CHAPTER XXIII.

No doubt he would be horribly embarrassed. No doubt he would ring for the maid or something . . . She laughed feverishly at the thought.

"We must have some more dinner parties when we are settled in town," she said. "I hope you have lots of friends, Philip. I mean to be very gay."

She felt herself to be just an on-looker, watching with wide eyes of amazement, listening with astonished ears to this other girl who was Mrs. Philip Winterdick, this other girl who was striving desperately to make some sort of a thing of life out of the ruins of her dreams.

Philip did not answer, but his eyes turned involuntarily to his father's empty chair, and Eva, flushed crimson. She knew what his thought must be, and she hated her new, other self who had spoken so flippantly.

"I'm getting horrid—horrid!" she thought, in despair. "What will become of me?"

She broke into the silence desperately. "There's the carpet for your smoking-room, Philip. Hadn't you better choose it yourself instead of leaving it to me? A man's taste is so different to a woman's."

He roused himself with an effort. "Oh, choose anything—can't the man at the shop tell you the right sort of thing?"

"Oh, yes, I dare say he can," she said indifferently. "I only wondered if you wouldn't prefer to choose it yourself."

"I shan't notice if there's a carpet or not," Philip said hardily.

She remembered his words the next afternoon when she was in the empty smoking-room at the flat.

Most of the "other rooms" were decorated and furnished—she had so hoped; that Philip would take a little interest in this one at least.

She looked round her with heavy eyes; the empty place depressed her—the rumble of the distant traffic seemed to be miles and miles away.

Eva clasped her hands together feverishly.

"And all my life will be like this—always," she thought in sudden panic.

With every day she and Philip only grew farther apart; she knew that Philip was changing even as she herself was; he was more cynical, less contented, and she was powerless to prevent it.

She wondered why he had alluded to the night of that dinner-party before their marriage.

Her cheeks burned as she remembered how on that homeward drive she had put her arms round his neck and kissed him—she covered her face with her trembling hands, and suddenly she felt the tears on her fingers.

She had been so happy then—life had been like a beautiful flower slowly unfolding its petals before her; and now she looked round the empty rooms—empty, as her whole future must be!

Looking back to the first night of their marriage, she wondered that Philip had ever troubled to pretend that he cared for her. She remembered how nearly she had been tempted to believe in him; how for a moment at least she had trembled on the brink—she felt that she could never be thankful enough that she had finally turned a deaf ear to his entreaties.

She left the empty room and went across to the one which she had chosen for her own. The dainty silk curtains were drawn, but a ray of September sunlight filtered through and lay like a bar of gold on the carpet. It was complete now, down to the smallest detail, and only waiting for its mistress.

"If only things had been just a little, little different," she thought, wildly. She turned away, her heart bursting with bitterness and sorrow, and as she crossed the hall to the front door, which she had left half open behind her, a man pushed it wide and stepped into the hall.

"Jove, what luck! I thought I should find you here," he said, delightedly, and Eva looked up through her tears into Tom Calligan's face.

"There was a moment of tense silence, then Calligan took a quick step towards her.

"Philip," he said insistently, "is he— isn't he here?"

She shook her head. She could not trust herself to speak. She was brushing the tears away childishly with her knuckles. She turned away, fighting hard for her composure.

Calligan hesitated; then he followed her. He put out his hand as if to touch her, but drew it away again.

"Oh, my dear," he said agitatedly. "What is it? What is it?"

"No—nothing—really n—nothing— please!"

"He drew in his breath hard. He walked away to the open door and for a moment stood looking into the street outside.

Presently he spoke, rather mechanically.

"I heard you'd taken this flat—a man Philip knows at the club told me—so I came along. I suppose you're not settled in yet?"

"No." She had mastered herself, though her voice was a little shaky still. "It's nearly finished, though."

She choked back a lump in her throat. "I'm afraid I'm very rude—I didn't say how glad I was to see you."

He looked at her and quickly away again.

"I've thought of you—often," he said in an odd jerky voice.

"I've thought about you, too," Eva said, trying to smile. "It was horrid after you left."

"Was it?" He found it impossible to be natural. "I'm glad you're coming to town," he added, with an effort. "The Highway House won't be too cheerful this winter."

"No—and Mrs. Winterdick has gone away now, you know."

"Has she—and—Philip?"

"Oh, Philip's very busy; he has had his father's affairs to see to."

"Yes."

There was an awkward silence. There was a puzzled pucker on the girl's forehead. She was vaguely conscious of the constraint between herself and this man, but could not understand or account for it.

She had spoken the truth when she said she was glad to see him. She was only ashamed that he should have seen her tears and distress.

"I'm a bad hostess," she said with an effort. "I ought to ask you in—but I was just going, and so . . ."

"I'll come with you," he interposed hurriedly. He did not want to see the flat, and he was afraid to trust himself alone with her. He had known when he left the Highway House that Eva had been the great attraction for him there, he had not guessed till today how strong his love for her had grown.

"We'll go and get some tea, shall we?" he said again. "I've nothing to do. Are you going back to Apsley tonight?"

"Oh, yes—I've had to come up a great deal lately to see to furniture and things."

They were outside now, and Calligan had shut the door of the flat behind them with a little slam.

They set off together down the road. There was nothing much in Calligan. He had no especial good looks to recommend him; he was just an ordinary cheerful, kind-hearted young man. But before he and Eva had reached the tesselop he had made her feel happier than she had done since he said good-bye to her down at Apsley.

When they were facing one another across the round table, Eva said frankly:

"I don't know what it is about you, but you always make me feel very pleased with myself, Mr. Calligan . . ."

"Do!" He coloured to the roots of his hair. "It's kind of you to say so . . ."

Jove! what rum looking cakes."

The cakes were quite ordinary, but Calligan felt that he must change the subject at any cost. He did not want to talk about himself or about Eva.

Deep down in his heart, he knew that he was beginning to hate Philip Winterdick, but for the moment he wanted to put the knowledge aside.

"What have you been doing since I saw you?" Eva asked him. "It seems so long ago . . ."

He laughed, not very naturally. "I haven't done anything worth talking about. I've been to the club most evenings—once or twice to a theatre, I'm a lazy beggar, you know."

"Are you? Then I suppose I must be, too, because I don't seem to have done anything either. I can't even interfere with the household arrangements as I used to at home. I just wander about—go for walks—"

"And play tennis," he interrupted, smiling.

She shook her head. "I've never played since I was married." There was a note of wonderment in her voice.

"You'll find the time pass more quickly when you're up in town," he told her. "We shall have to do some theatres. Do you like theatres?"

"Oh, yes . . ."

"Good. Well, I'll take you. I—"

He broke off. He had not intended to say this.

"Philip will have to take you to all the shows," he added, lamely.

Philip! Her husband's name gave Eva a faint shock. She had almost forgotten him during the last few minutes.

"I hope you'll come and see us often," she said, with a touch of anxiety in her voice. "I mean to keep open house. I tell Philip that I mean to be so gay—so gay . . ."

"I shall be delighted," he said formally.

"You won't find Philip has altered in the least," she rushed on. "He isn't a bit the stay-at-home, settle-down sort of married man. We're quite a sensible couple—he goes his way and I go mine. It's such an excellent way to arrange things, don't you think?" she asked defiantly.

"Excellent," said Calligan with an effort.

He had kept his eyes downcast, but now he raised them, and for a moment they met Eva's.

It was only a moment, but long enough for him to read the whole tragedy in her bravely smiling face. She would die rather than tell him, he knew, that her marriage with Philip Winterdick had been a mistake—a terrible mistake, without remedy.

He looked away from her with a sick feeling of helplessness.

"I'm quite ready, if you are," she was saying composedly.

"How many cakes have we had? Three each! Oh, how greedy!"

The Herring Fishery.

The Annual Report of the Newfoundland Board of Trade for the year 1921 says that the Herring Fishery for that period gave better returns to both fishermen and exporters than the catch of 1920. The cost of curing was considerably reduced by the cheaper price of salt, and the spring catch of split was readily taken off the hands of fishermen, many thousand barrels being sold at remunerative prices in Halifax, a market always open for the purchase of No. 1, and one which pays well for quality and careful pack. From July 1st 1920 to June 30th, 1921, according to B. T. figures 21,856 barrels of salt bulk and frozen and 78,232 barrels pickled herring were exported, the total shortage being some 43,000 barrels. The Board of Trade Report makes it clear that Green Bay split herring in tied hoops barrels are much preferred to the West Coast spring pack, the fish being fuller and the packages being a great improvement on those made in that section. Halifax prefers the Green Bay pack and is willing to pay an extra dollar per barrel to secure it. This competition has had the effect of considerably improving the West Coast pack, more time and care being taken in the putting-up process. The Department of Marine and Fisheries comes in for a meed of praise for the successful efforts of the officials in getting the Herring industry brought up to as good a standard as obtains in other herring producing countries. The quality of both package and contents is the best recommendation for speedy sale. Once these can be guaranteed by the Inspectors, there will be no more difficulty in disposing of our whole catch, whether one hundred or two hundred or more thousand barrels. Newfoundland should so develop the Herring fishery, that our exports should at least reach the half million barrels mark. As the report under review states, we have the best herring in the world, and one of the largest markets in the world within a few hundred miles of our shipping ports, and it is up to every Newfoundlander, whether he be fisherman or merchant, to see that he gives the best that is in him toward making the herring one of the greatest assets of this Colony. A recommendation with which everyone will heartily agree and warmly support and encourage. This great wealth that would accrue from the further and larger development of the Herring Fishery should be the incentive, no less than inducement, to all who engage in this valuable industry to double or treble their production. The markets as we have said are waiting. Millions of people want herring. Newfoundland can supply that demand, and under a continuance of the very proper regulations as carried out by the Inspectors of the Marine and Fisheries Department, there is no reason why Newfoundland herring, put up by Scotch or ordinary process, should not outdistance in quality and quantity, the pack of our competitors, Scotland, Norway, Holland and Alaska. Concluding its reference to this fishery the report goes on "We also record our opinion that the only way our Newfoundland Scotch Herring fishery can be brought to the state of perfection that the Scotch have theirs to-day is by the Government of the Colony passing an act authorising a Board, called the Newfoundland Scotch Herring Fishery Board, to control this industry, making it (the Board) non-political, and so as is now in power in Scotland. We feel sure that the Government will take this matter up, that the Scotch-Newfoundland cure has come to stay, and will be one of our best fishery assets."

Twenty Years Ago To-Day.

(Evening Telegram, Jan. 28th, 1902.) S.S. Dalton Hall arrived in port from Halifax after a stormy passage. At a meeting of the West End Club, President F. J. Morris (now Judge of the C.D. Court) announced that it would be the last annual meeting of the body as through unavoidable circumstances the Club had to be abandoned. The police and firemen's annual dance took place at the East End Fire Hall. The catering was by Mr. T. Gale. Santos Demont made two successful flights over the Mediterranean. It was regarded as the most important aerial feat ever accomplished. The Kaiser on his forty-third birthday to day was presented by the Empress with her hand in marble.

The Three Musketeers.

IN "UNDER THE GASLIGHT." One of the most amusing scenes in "Under the Gaslight" is the one depicting Pier 3 of the North River, New York. Here comfortably ensconced each night are a number of homeless waifs under the leadership of Bermudas (Mr. Percy Jardine). Every evening they hold their 'soiree', and here's where Masters Edward Kennedy, Basil Hutton, and Willie Hand exhibit their accomplishments to the souillied strains of Bermudas' accordion. If you have been fortunate in securing tickets, "Under the Gaslight" is a play you are sure to enjoy. It should be borne in mind that there will positively be three performances only, viz., Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

Street Improvement.

During the past week the Avalon Telephone Co.'s linemen have been engaged along Water Street removing the arms and cutting off several feet of the telephone poles. The removal of the old style wires and the cutting off of the arms have added considerably to the appearance of the street, and particularly is this so in the eastern section.

McMurdo's Store News.

SATURDAY, Jan. 28, '22. A really good hair curling fluid—one whose results are certain in all weathers—is something to be desired, and in Liquid Silmerine we have such a preparation, one that ladies can be quite sure of to do the work promptly and thoroughly. Liquid Silmerine is largely used on both sides of the Atlantic. Price $1.25 a bottle. For an inexpensive, and yet pleasant and thoroughly efficient dentifrice, try Sandalite. Price 30c. a tube.

A Scamp at Large.

A scamp of medium height, wearing dark clothes and overcoat, gave a young woman a good scare as she was returning home via Dwyer's Road last evening. On the appearance of a couple of gentlemen the scamp took to flight across the field. The matter has been reported to the police. Of late several females have been molested, but not wishing notoriety the authorities were not given the facts.

ROADS BLOCKED.—Many of the country roads are blocked with snow as a result of the recent storms. Farmers on the Portugal Cove Road are compelled to come across the fields and out via O'Brien's bridge on the Long Pond Road when they want to get to the city.

WARNING!

Patrons are advised that there will positively be three only performances of "Under the Gaslight" at the Casino, beginning Monday evening next, and that reservations should therefore be made at the Royal Stationery (phone 482) without delay. Jan 28, 21

Co-Operative Profit Sharing Marketing.

Editor Evening Telegram.—Dear Sir—I shall be obliged if you will publish for general information the following letter regarding co-operative profit-sharing marketing, which I have received from an old Newfoundlander now residing in California. I have also acquired abroad other valuable information in relation to the subject, and in my recent letters to you, and in due course shall ask you to make it public. Yours truly, ALFRED B. MORINE.

California, Nov. 23rd, 1921. Hon. A. B. Morine, K.C., St. John's, Nfld.

Dear Mr. Morine:—Your letter of the 29th ult. reached me a few days ago. Regarding the question of applying the methods of the California Fruit Growers Exchange in the conducting of its business to that of the exporting and developing of the markets of fish by the merchants of Newfoundland, I see no reason why some, at least, of them should not be adopted with good results. I have obtained from the head office in Los Angeles a quantity of literature which I am forwarding to you under two separate covers. The General Manager's annual report for the fiscal year of 1921 has not yet been distributed. As soon as I can get hold of a copy I shall forward it to you. I came across an old article on "Co-operation in Handling and Marketing Fruit," written in 1910, which will give you a good idea of the older conditions, and what led up to the forming of the Association; this I am sending. You ask me, if each grower becomes a shareholder? Each grower becomes a shareholder in the local association, which is a community association, whose functions is to collect, prepare and ship the fruit for its members, also to receive and distribute among its members the returns after the fruit has been sold. Each local exchange, or packing house (as it is more often called) makes its own arrangement as to how the fruit shipments shall be divided up for the season. For instance, the packing house in which I am a member, ships the fruit produced by its entire membership in eight pools for the season, or four pools of Noyals within the months from Dec. 1st to May, and four pools Valentias from May to Dec. As each pool is sold, and the returns come in, each shipper receives his share of the proceeds in proportion to the quantity and quality of fruit shipped by him in that pool. Members are not actually compelled to ship in every pool. If they think they strike a better market condition by holding over, they may do so, but I think few do so. There are other packing houses who ship their fruit in one pool. Meanwhile, the picking and marketing is going on all the year, and the members may receive irregular payments until the returns come in for the entire pool, when the balance is paid to its members. The changes in themselves are non-profit institutions; their running expenses, advertising, etc., are deducted from the returns of each grower. District exchanges, which consist of a number of local exchanges or packing houses, employ salesmen whose duty it is to get the best prices they can through various salesmen posted in the big market centres. Fruit is sold in car lots, F.O.B., and at auction, in the larger cities. No fruit is paid for at the time of delivery to the packing houses. I am inclined to think that you will get all the desired information from the literature I am sending, but should you want anything further, I think our General Manager would gladly supply you. In the meantime, if I get hold of anything which I think will be of service to you, I shall send it along. Yours truly, Conditions in Twillingate.

PEOPLE CUTTING PULWOOD. Conditions in the district of Twillingate are fairly satisfactory at present. There is a sufficient supply of provisions to last until the opening of pulwood cutting is being done but for the people to eke out more than a bare existence. This cutting of pulwood is going on in certain sections of the district from Burlington on the north to Boyd's Cove on the south. In Twillingate proper the needy are employed in getting material for the breaker. No pulwood is being cut there.

Herring on Prospero.

There are 1,000 barrels of Scotch pack herring on S. S. Prospero which is jammed at Green Cove, Exploits. These herring were shipped from Springdale, and if the Prospero is long delayed it will probably be a serious matter to the shippers. The ship is jammed on the south side of South Island and is a mile distant from the nearest settlement. Amongst the passengers is Capt. Jones, M.H.A. for Twillingate.

Mr. Max Channing.

IN "UNDER THE GASLIGHT." There are many who will remember Mr. Channing's very faithful portrayal of the most unpopular Captain Randy-sides in "The Black Flag" when produced here a few years ago, and it was a great pity that the genial Max should ever have been permitted to retire on his laurels. However, he has now been induced to appear again (positively) the last time, he says, as the Signorman in "Under the Gaslight" on Monday, which character dominates the famous railroad scene in the third act. This is the part in which Mr. T. H. O'Neill made the first of his subsequently numerous dramatic hits, and Mr. Channing promises to measure up well to the previous impersonation.

VIOLIN PUPILS.—Arthur Bowes, Violinist at the Majestic, will accept pupils; apply 13 Duckworth Street or at above Theatre.—Jan 28, 21

LOCAL CABBAGE.—Owing to the reasonable price of salt mesas there is a fair demand for local cabbage. Quite a number of farmers were out from the country yesterday and disposed of their stocks to shopkeepers. The price obtained was three cents per lb.

STAR OF THE SEA ASSOCIATION.—The Monthly Meeting of the Star of the Sea Association will be held in the Society's Hall on Sunday at 2.30 p.m. Quarterly reports of committees will be presented. As business of importance will be discussed at this meeting, all members are asked to make a special effort to be present. By order, W. M. F. GRAHAM, Secy.—Jan 27, 21

Colonial Lodge, I.O.O.F.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF LATE GRAND SIRE.

At the regular weekly meeting of Colonial Lodge, I.O.O.F., in the Oddfellows' Hall last night, the Noble Grand, Bro. W. T. Gaultier, referred, with deep regret to the passing of the Supreme Head of the Order, Grand Sire Joseph Oliver, which sad event occurred at his home in Toronto recently. In the passing of Brother Oliver the Order has suffered a distinct loss. He was a true Oddfellow; his love for the Order was sincere and came from the depth of his heart, and by his death the Oddfellows have lost one of their most outstanding and honored members. As a token of respect to his memory, it was ordered that the charter of Colonial Lodge should be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days. Bro. F. A. Keane, who met the late Grand Sire in Halifax in August last, paid a glowing tribute to his work at the convention, and to his sturdy character. The members of Colonial Lodge will soon be in their new quarters in Gear Building. Great preparations are being made for the future and the present term promises to be the most successful in the history of the Lodge. Mr. E. V. Spry has been appointed Degree Master and will have control of all degree work.

Thief Heavily Fined.

A young man was charged before Judge Morris this morning with the larceny of five dollars, with maliciously breaking two doors and the larceny of goods from a small shop. The money was stolen from two different people. The accused pleaded guilty to the charge, and a fine of $50 or three months imprisonment was imposed. Accused was unable to pay the fine.

An Amiable Drunk.

A man appeared in the Police Court to-day charged with being drunk and disorderly. He pleaded not guilty in no uncertain voice. Constable Samson said he was called to a beer shop last night where he found the defendant had collected a crowd. Witness had him conveyed to the Police Station. Accused fell in with all His Honour's comment and was quite prepared to pay the nominal sum of one dollar for his free ride.

Seals and Aeroplanes.

A deputation of sealing owners waited on the Prime Minister to enquire whether the Government was prepared to consider an arrangement with Major Cotton for another attempt at aerial reconnoissances in connection with the sealing industry. It is understood that the Prime Minister promised to put all points they advanced before the Executive Council for their consideration, but was not prepared to give any definite assurances that under present conditions he would be prepared to recommend it.

Took Three Coats.

ACCUSED HAD "HORRORS."

Charged before Judge Morris to-day with the larceny of three overcoats and a pair of gloves during the past few weeks a man pleaded not guilty. Mr. Ayre appeared for the accused and said that his client was in the "horrors" at the time that he committed the larcenies. In fact, accused had been on a glorious "drunk" for some time. After taking the first coat accused forgot where he found it and went around trying to find the owner. The other coats were taken under similar circumstances. Accused had been down at Piacenta and the "ir-wanted" over from St. Pierre might have affected him. Head Constable Byrne said the accused was located at Kelligrews where he was trying to sell one of the stolen coats. He was next located at Argenta and from there, accused went to Grand Falls, where he was arrested. One of the coats was then found in his possession. The Judge said that citizens are terrorized by these larcenies. As it was the accused's first offence, he was fined $100 or six months hard labour.

Harbor Grace Notes.

Mr. Charles C. Butt arrived from Roberts on Wednesday last, on a visit to her mother, Mrs. Noel. He is returning to the following day, but owing to the tie-up of the railway line, occasioned by a snow storm, she did not get away until Friday afternoon.

Mr. R. S. Munn spent a few days at Roberts last week, having gone in connection with the S.S. "Hibernia" which steamer's cargo was being completed at that time. She is expected to get away on Monday for Greece.

Edwin Whitway went out by Monday morning's train on a week's visit to friends in the city.

The schooner Gordon E. Moulton, on cargo for E. Simmonds from St. John's, N.S., having put in at Carbonville on Wednesday, left for this port on Friday, but owing to the stress of weather, anchored just outside the harbor, where she remained until the morning of Saturday, and entered port on Sunday. A good height of wind arose to a good height Friday night, but the vessel rode out the day and was nothing the worse for it, remaining in that position for the night.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Margaret Fitzgerald, widow of the late Mr. Nicholas Fitzgerald, who passed away at her home on Sunday, took place this afternoon, Tuesday, interment being in the R.C. Cemetery. The deceased lady had been in poor health some time past, and her death was unexpected. She had reached the old age of 80 years. To her son, Mr. J. Fitzgerald of this town; two daughters, Mrs. F. Bateman and Mrs. Taylor of Bay Roberts, and her sister, Miss Margaret Fitzgerald, to whom she resided; also all other relatives and friends, we offer condolence in their hour of bereavement.

Yesterday, Monday, 23rd inst., being observed as Thanksgiving Day, was a general holiday in town.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Marine Railway Dock Ltd., was held in the office of the company this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Miss C. A. Jerrett, of Brigus, and F. McManara, of St. John's, and Mr. R. Duff of Carbonville, were in town today to attend the meeting of the bank company.

Mr. S. Mary, Capt. A. Bourne, was out today, loading cask fish for E. Simmonds and will leave for St. John's probably to-morrow.

Yesterday's 18th inst., snow storm was considered the first for the season. Commencing on the evening of the 17th, it continued all night and through the next day, Thursday, for the greater part, making it almost impossible for anyone to get around and consequently very little business was done in town on that day. No train was out for the day, but one having left St. John's at the regular time this morning, headed by the snow, made good time and arrived here at about 2.30 p.m. She brought with her some passengers who had been up the extra day in the city and were along the line. Since there had been a heavy snow storm, it was very keen frost, and it looks as though this weather continue, we should have a bridge of ice across the harbor. —COR.

League Hockey.

SAINTS DEFEAT ST. BON'S.
Poor shooting contributed in a large measure to the St. Bon's defeat by the Saints in last night's hockey game. The final score was 7-4. The match was a fast one, and interesting throughout. Nearly 1800 people witnessed the game. The Saints had practically the same team as last year. Ern Churchill and Lionel Munn were the only members of last year's team who did not appear. The team showed very little combination, but their individual work was excellent and their shooting good. Dick Volsey played well in goal and stopped some stiff shots in good style. Errol Munn was in excellent form and his stick handling was as good as ever, while for an all-around man, Robertson is hard to beat. St. Bon's have a fairly well-balanced team. They combined fairly well and got in some good individual work, but their shooting was very poor. Halley did well in goal, and Jack Higgins played a fine defence game. Unfortunately, in the last period, he hurt his knee badly and it is possible that he may not be able to play again this season. Coke Cahill was in great form and Callahan also played well. The referee was Mr. Ern Churchill. In the

FIRST PERIOD
St. Bon's took the offensive from the start but all attempts to get past Volsey failed. Following a splendid run through by Munn which failed to eventuate, the game became fast and the puck was brought in from goal to goal in quick succession. A pretty combined effort by Phelan and Muir, resulted in the latter scoring first blood for St. Bon's. This urged the Saints to renewed efforts but although they bombarded their opponent's goal, they were unable to score, and were still one down when the gong went.

THE SECOND PERIOD
opened with a run through by Higgins. This was stopped by Munn, and play again became even and fast. Four minutes after play had begun, Field scored the equalizer from a fine pass by Coultas. A few minutes later, Coultas called upon Halley himself, and left a reminder of his visit in the net, in the form of a puck. No further scoring place during this period, although St. Bon's made several good efforts to get through and combined well. Scarcely had opened when Munn placed the disc behind Halley and before the St. Bon's could recover from the suddenness of the attack, Robertson had got through and added another tally. Higgins made some good attempts at retaliation but failed to score, and soon afterwards Field had brought the Saints score up to 5. Although 4 goals down, St. Bon's did not lose heart, and before long G. Halley placed a stiff shot behind Volsey and Cahill followed this up, in another minute, by nothing up now put on his mettle, attempting to defend his goal against a violent bombardment. The attack was finally repulsed, and counter attacks resulted in Field and Munn, each scoring a goal. The last goal for the game was scored by Phelan a few minutes before the final gong went.

THE THIRD PERIOD

The line-up was:—
SAINTS
Goal, R. Volsey
Left Defence, W. Callahan
Right Defence, J. G. Higgins
Centre, G. Muir
Right Wing, Coke Cahill
Left Wing, E. Phelan
SPARES:
St. Bon's—M. Power, J. Gibbs, G. Halley.
Saints—J. Butler, R. Chafe, A. Clouston.

Wedding Bells.

On Tuesday, January 10th, at 8 p.m. at Cochrane St. Parsonage a very pretty wedding took place by the Rev. Mr. Johnson, the contrasting parties being Mr. Walter Morgan and Miss Maud Gilbert. The bride looked pretty dressed in battleship grey silk, white hat and white furs. The bride was given away by Mr. William Morgan, father of the groom, and was attended by Miss Stella Bursay and little Ivy Gush as flower girl, dressed in pale blue nuns' veiling. Mr. Thomas Allan and Raymond Morgan performed the duties of bridesmaids. After signing the register the happy couple motored to the home of the groom's parents, Middle Battery, where supper was served and dancing kept up till early morn. The bride received many useful presents. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Morgan many years of happy wedded life.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.
ICE HARVESTING.—Owing to the very stormy weather the past week very few people have started ice harvesting. Only one gang of men are operating on Long Pond so far. The ice is something over a foot thick.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

IRISH CONGRESS ADJOURNS.
PARIS, Jan. 27.
The entire time of the closing session of World Congress of Irish race to-day was devoted to a discussion of details connected with the organization of an International Irish League. After choosing Eamonn De Valera as president of the new organization, naming of the officers, and deciding to establish a central executive council at Dublin, the Congress adjourned.

GERMANY'S FORCED LOAN.
BERLIN, Jan. 27.
Extremely divergent views are expressed in the Reichstag regarding a decision of the government to levy a forced loan of one billion marks, which it hopes will prove a panacea for all its financial ailments. Skeptics say the loan is bound to have unfavorable results on industrial developments, and leave the nation's finances in the same disturbed conditions a year hence. Supporters of the levy argue that the moral effect on the Allies will be favorable to Germany, while the proceeds will enable her to co-ordinate internal finances, and finally enable the inauguration of a rational budget system.

ROBB FOR RECIPROcity.
MONTREAL, Jan. 27.
Addressing a banquet of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association to-night, Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Trade and Commerce, quoted statistics to indicate the immense growth of the industry since 1911. The value of wood pulp produced in Canada in 1911 was $5,204,597, while in 1921 it was $71,522,000, newspaper, and other paper, produced in 1911 was valued at $3,158,000, while in 1921 it was $92,103,000. Saying this development had been made possible by the pact of 1911, opening American markets to Canadian pulp and paper, the Minister asked if it would not be a good idea if Western farmers had also free access to American market.

TO A GOOD PURPOSE.
PARIS, Jan. 27.
The Chamber of Deputies to-day authorized the government to negotiate with China with a view to using the boxer indemnity, which would be capitalized into 350 million francs, to refloat the recently suspended Industrial Bank of China.

NO HOSTILITIES.
MEXICO CITY, Jan. 27.
Reports emanating from Mexico and Guatemala are wholly without foundation, so far as newspaper circles are informed.

QUID NEMEN!
ROME, Jan. 28.
What name will the next Pope choose in the query which is much discussed in Rome. Irreconcilables led by Cardinal Merry Del Val are said to be in favor of Leo XIV as successor to Leo XIII, who was a strong opponent of the Quirinal. Cardinal Gasparri's peace party, it is believed, favor Benedict XVI on account of the late Pontiff's policy of closer relations with the Quirinal. If a compromise is reached it is expected that a neutral Pope will adopt the name of Pius XI, following the non-extremist policy of Pius X. A foreign Cardinal might prefer a name not chosen heretofore.

JESUIT CANDIDATE.
ROME, Jan. 27.
The Jesuits will not put forward a candidate for Pope in the coming elections, their leader, General Ledochowski, said in an interview to-day.

TOO RIDICULOUS.
MEXICO CITY, Jan. 28.
Rumours of war between Mexico and Guatemala were described by high Mexican officials last night as "too ridiculous to deny."

HANDY MEN TO HAVE AROUND.
PEKIN, Jan. 28.
British Marines are being held in readiness to land at Hankow to protect the Salt Administration Office against seizure by forces of General Wu Pei Fu, who are said to be under orders to occupy it. Hankow is a Treaty port in the Province of Hupeh. General Wu is Inspector General of that Province, and was reported in a Peking despatch on Jan. 22, to have seized the Salt revenues there.

WHERE IS THE PIED PIPER?
BUDAPEST, Jan. 28.
Rats and mice are migrating in swarms from the Russian famine area, and Budapest is now overrun with them. Their devastation goes on apace, and many people have been bitten by them, so fierce are they.

CONCLAVE POSTPONED.
PARIS, Jan. 28.
Rome despatches say the opening of a Conclave to elect a successor to Pope Benedict will be delayed twenty or thirty hours, in order to give time for the Cardinals to arrive. The Conclave originally was set for Feb. 2.

PULQUE NEXT.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.
Abolition of pulque, the national drink of the Mexican, is planned by President Obregon, according to a re#### port to the Commerce Department.

IN THE GRIP OF A BLIZZARD.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.
Washington was cut off from the outside world to-day, so far as transportation was concerned, by one of the heaviest snow storms in the history of the capital. No passenger trains have left the city since midnight.

Why Women Wear Black.

All women know that black is not only becoming for blonde and brunette, but it affords numberless chances of running the whole gamut of colour in contrast.
Take the case of the blonde woman with a good skin: she knows that in her black frock she becomes lovelier by far, that her hair takes on a new sheen; if she is a small woman she achieves the effect of daintiness and aloofness that render her half a creature of mystery. . . . and it is the height of woman's ambition to be a mystery to someone. If she is tall she becomes more slender, more stately, and, in consequence, more alluring, and to know that she is desirable and desire sets her pulse beating faster.
With the brunette, unless she is of the sallow type, where extreme caution is necessary with regard to the choice of color, black causes her eyes to appear larger, brighter, and more animated.

The usual advice to a woman in dress is to match the color of her eyes, but this is not always a wise plan to follow. Take the grey-eyes woman, for instance. Gown her in grey, and the chances are she will look drab and depressed; put her in a black frock and the effect is almost startling. Her eyes shine and she looks younger.

A great Parisian dressmaker explained this by referring to the pupil of the eye—invariably black. He declared that to dress successfully according to the color of the iris was a fallacy.

One might hit the lucky color by chance; otherwise . . .

A shrug of the shoulders was his comment.

Quite Likely.

The family was seated at dinner, and the conversation turned to school lessons, much to the consternation and disgust of Cynthia.
"What period in English history are you doing?" inquired her father.
"The Stuarts," replied Cynthia, timidly; after which an ominous pause suggested that father was thinking of a question upon a period of history about which his facts were dim and hazy.

"What was the first thing James I. did when he came to the throne?" he asked, at length.
"Sat on it, I suppose," replied Cynthia, with calm conviction.

"Bank Audit Most Thorough All Credits Must be Approved By President and Directors"

C. E. Neill, General Manager, Royal Bank, at Annual Meeting.

MONTREAL, January—(Special).
THE strongest and most important statement ever presented, relative to the thoroughness of bank inspections by auditors and the policy of supervision of credit, was made by C. E. Neill, General Manager of The Royal Bank of Canada, at the annual meeting held at the Hotel Office.

Dealing with the general business of the Bank and the procedure followed by the auditors, Mr. Neill said to the shareholders:—
"I wish particularly to draw your attention to the fact that full provision has been made for all bad debts, and in addition, adequate amounts have been set aside to provide for any accounts which may be considered in the doubtful class."

"In view of the discussions which have recently taken place regarding the obligation of auditors of banks appointed under the provisions of the Bank Act, it is proper that you should be informed that the auditors appointed by the shareholders of this bank not only certify the correctness of the Balance Sheet, but they also approve of the value of the bank's assets as stated therein. The representatives of the auditors, who conduct their investigations of the bank's business throughout the entire year, have access to the statements, correspondence and inspection reports relative to loans required, and their certification of our Balance Sheet is made only after a full examination of all credits granted to customers. In cases where there is any doubt as to the value of a debtor's account, the amount set aside by the bank to take care of any possible loss is approved by the auditors, being sufficient. Every facility is afforded them to examine each and every account in the bank, and they are encouraged to criticize and make the most detailed investigations of every debt due the bank, with the relative security."

"As an indication of how closely the President, Managing Director and Directors of this bank at Head Office control the affairs of the bank, I may tell you that every credit granted of $25,000 and over is approved by them, and there are no loans at any office of the bank to-day in excess of $25,000 which have not been approved by the Director, Head Office. Moreover, committees of resident Directors at the bank at Toronto, Winnipeg, Halifax, Quebec and St. John supervise and recommend all loans in their respective districts and, in addition, are informed of all credits authorized in other districts."

JOHN CLOUSTON,

Confidence in Situation Feature at Annual Meeting of Royal Bank of Canada.

Herbert Holt, President, Points Out That Canada, After Accepting Every Obligation Arising Out of the Conflict, is Stronger Materially Than Before the War.

Edson L. Pease, Vice-President and Managing Director, Draws Attention to Helpful Part Played by Banks During Period of Exceptional Stress—Business Demoralization Averted in Canada by Banks.

MONTREAL, January—(Special). A large gathering of shareholders was present at the annual general meeting of shareholders of the Royal Bank of Canada held at the head office here. Keen interest was displayed in the remarks of the president, Herbert S. Holt, and general manager, Edson L. Pease, especially so those of the latter, who explained the close management in which the affairs of the bank were conducted during the period of exceptional stress at various points throughout the country, and by the bank's efforts.

Herbert S. Holt, chairman, in his address, referred to the Bank's position, saying: "I first desire to emphasize the General Manager's statement that all bad and doubtful debts have been fully provided for. Usually profits of the year are ample to provide for all bad and doubtful debts, and they are not sufficient, we have accumulated during the past few years, to fall back upon, and further to say that the Managing Director, the General Manager, Executive Officers of the bank officials of long experience and ability, and that the affairs of the bank receive the unremitting attention of myself and your directors. I have no hesitation in stating that, in my opinion, the organization and management of supervision in this bank are excellent."

Economy Strongly Urged.
Herbert took a very hopeful view of the outlook in Canada, at the time emphasizing the importance of economy, both in public and private. Dealing with the general situation, Sir Herbert said:
"Canada after accepting every obligation arising out of the conflict, is stronger materially than before the war. We have our debt and our railroads and shipping problems, all of which will tax the wisdom of our men, but on the other side of the scale we must place the growth of our cities, industrial expansion, the increase in savings, and the fact that most of our bonds are in the Dominion. Compared with Europe, we are fortunate indeed."
In conclusion, I wish to say that the hope and character of the existing depression in world trade forbid hope for an early or easy return to prosperity. Yet I do not think we in Canada need feel any great apprehension as to the future. The recession in prices, which was the worst feature of the last year, can hardly be repeated, and that the period immediately following will be one of salutary recovery, both in public and private life, the best preparation for renewed prosperity."

Discussing the general Canadian situation, Mr. Pease said, in part:
"The year just ended has proved a very trying one for the commercial community and for the banks. Never before have we been confronted at home and abroad with so many difficult problems and such adverse conditions. The rapid and severe recession in the prices of all commodities and the lack of purchasing power involved heavy losses in inventories and a great shrinkage of domestic and international trade."

Our Local Pepys.

January 27.—At the office all the morning and little or no news do I find there. Meeting Mr. W. McKay, we talk of the Humber Project, which is much to his liking. Others, I find, disagree with the guarantee most heartily, and altogether, mighty difficult to know what will come of it. Comes Birch, and tells me how he heard that Sir R. Squires will leave Mr. Coaker, and will join himself with the opposition. A most ridiculous rumour, and one on which I place little reliance. I to walk on Water Street with Mistress Kippis, that I have not met with this long time. But going home, I find that my wife did hear of it, and was as mad as a devil, and nothing but ill words between us all the evening, which I was troubled for. This, I think, a most scandalous town for gossip, and it were indeed, time this was stopped. To the club, and meeting Mr. Blandford, we home together, and to talk of divers things.

Curliana.

Since Monday last the Curling Association have been playing with their full strength. Each Division is playing for a trophy. It finished last evening in the grand finale with the following winners for the Captain's prizes, viz: Dr. Burden, lead (Red Division), 15. Stanley Rodger, sk. (Red Division) 29.

Harvey Jardine, third (Blue Division) 23.

R. H. Simms, second (Green Division) 27.

It will be noticed that the Red Division wins two prizes out of the four, and that the immortal Whites were left without a prize. However the White Division, under Capt. Bears are not one bit discouraged, and are looking forward to capturing some of the trophies before the season is finished. The game just closed lasted since Monday night, and although strenuous, has proven one of the most interesting matches that has ever taken place in the Curling Rink. Spectators were many and all are loud in praise of the play in general. The ice was all that could be desired, in fact, better than the best, and the Ice Committee are to be congratulated on their great effort in this respect.

The next game takes place on January 31st and each Division is awarded a Medal as follows:—
Red Division—Wright Medal.
White Division—H. D. Reid Medal.
Blue Division—Cowan Medal.
Green Division—Taylor Medal.

The first 8 in each Division in this game also play off for 8 magnificent Curling Caps presented by Mr. Bonnell, of the Eastern Hat and Cap Co. We understand that this will be some game and the Curlers are looking forward to it with pleasure. May Jack Frost still continue to deal kindly with the Curlers. They are not greedy, but a little frost will do.

The Kaiser's Birthday Party.

BOVRIL TRENCH.—From left to right, Capt. H. Rendell, M.C., killed in action; Lieut. J. F. Edens, killed in action; Capt. Leo C. Murphy.

HOCH DER KAISER—NEIN.

(Jan. 27th, 1917)
Just south of Lesboeuf and within sight of the main road from Bapaume to Peronne there lay a heap of brick dust which our trench map told us was the village of Morval. The battle of the Somme was dying of exhaustion but it still had a few kicks left which eventually forced the Hun to withdraw to his prepared Hindenburg line. The honour and pleasure of administering one of those kicks was given to the 29th, and the particular part of the Hun anatomy selected was Morval. We had spent Christmas out of the line in the area behind Amiens in the village of Camps en Amienois, where traces in the shape of Caribou badges and familiar Newfoundland names may still be found. The whole division was full of mischief, from its General down to its Canteen assistant, and what more opportune day could present itself than the Kaiser's birthday, January 27th.

PREPARATIONS.

My battle post was at "Bull Trench" on the "Hog's Back." During the afternoon I wended my weary way from Carnoy Camp along the road to Glinchy Corner. This was by no means a health resort, but knowing that an Irish doctor was in charge of an Aid Post about 30 yards from the corner I was assured of a "Cead Mile Failte." When I arrived preparations were in progress for the reception of the wounded. Blankets were stored, oil stoves burning to heat the shelter and bring life back to numbed limbs and bodies, hypodermic and anti-tetanus syringes were tested, sterilizing trays with their assortment of knives, scalpels, saws, etc., placed to hand, while arranged in piles were splints, bandages, and all the paraphernalia of an Advanced Dressing Station. About 10 p.m. four other doctors arrived, one of whom was in charge of 120 stretcher bearers. These were all given hot tea, food, and some "medical comfort" before turning in for a few hours rest.

A GUN FOR EVERY TEN YARDS.

About 4.30 I was shaken up and told to get ready, gulped down some hot filled my pockets with dog biscuits, and got out on the road to find the stretcher bearers and their officer ready to move off. During the night some half a dozen Dalmier and Ford ambulances had arrived and sought shelter under a protecting bank. Their engines were now humming in readiness to move off with a freight or shift in case of shelling. The signal was given and we moved off, cigarettes and pipes aglow. Almost at once we entered on the "Duckboard Walk" so well known to hundreds of thousands in all parts of the Empire. We heard the familiar cries passed from front to rear—"mind the wire," "step up," "step down," etc., and from rear to front the same old cry of "step short in front." It was a fine crisp morning. The ground was covered with snow and the stars were twinkling in the heavens. It had been freezing very hard for several weeks, and the frost had entered the ground about four feet. This had made it easy to move the guns into position for the attack, and they were so numerous, that we had a gun for every ten yards of trench to be attacked. All was quiet and serene, not a gun could be heard for miles on either side of the duckboards, when suddenly a "75," about two hundred yards on our right, barked like a crackle, but no sooner had the flash died and left us again in darkness, than there was another enormous flash, crash and howl of hundreds of guns of all calibres discharging their shells and bidding good day to the Kaiser. At first we were stunned, the bright flash of the guns on the white snow blinded us, and we could not follow the duckboards. We all stood and watched, trying to acustom our eyes to the alternate flash and darkness. But we were set in motion again by a big howitzer which was only a few yards from the duckboards, and which up to then had remained silent. With a bark and a roar that beggars description, this huge dog of war let us know his position and we needed no other invitation to move on.

INFERNO LET LOOSE.

As I topped the "Hog's Back" I shall never forget the sight. For miles on either side of us, guns were flashing as fast as their crews could ram home the shell cases and close the breeches. In front we could see the bursting of those shells and the streams of Verey lights breaking in a sky, intermingling here and there with the coloured S. O. S's of the Hun, the golden showers from our own men telling their "H.Q." that the first objective had been captured, while other coloured lights told our artillery to lengthen range. Then a momentary lull while gunners were recharging sights and lengthening range, and the music began all over again. One of the first thoughts that came to my mind was—"What would my old friend, Phil Hanley give to be here?"

BRINGING THEM IN.

By this time I had reached "Bull Trench" which was my post for a few hours. This was to be the Advanced Dressing Station where the walking wounded would be tended, and where the Regimental stretcher bearers would bring those who were more seriously wounded. It consisted of a hole in the ground of 5 ft. deep, 12 ft. wide, 18 ft. long, and was covered with a tarpaulin. After making things as ship shape as we could, and no wounded coming in, we started off to look things up. Nor had we far to go before we met a Tommy with a pickelhauben on the end of his bayonet, an iron cross on his chest and a wide smile on a very pleased, if somewhat grimy countenance. Behind him streamed in single file, with here and there an inquisitive Tommy, a line of about 250 assorted Huns. This was enough for us, we knew how things were going, so returned to our post.

had some more dog biscuits and a cup of tea out of the hot food containers, and were now ready for several hours hard work.

WALKERS, LIMPERS AND STRETCHERS.

We had not long to wait. First came the "cushy" wounded, fellows running as hard as they could with their arms, hands or scalps streaming with blood, but who would hardly wait to have the bleeding stopped, wishing to be off to catch the first train to take them back to "dear old Blihty." Then came the "limpers," those who were more badly hit, but were able to get along without the aid of stretcher bearers. The sticking power of some of those men was wonderful: I saw one of our boys, a lad from the West Coast, sitting on a pile of blankets. Not a murmur passed his lips, but his face wore a wan smile as he held a great coat over one shoulder. This lad had walked in and sat down without saying a word. The doctors were giving their attention to other cases. Suddenly I saw him away, and going to his aid I found his arm had been completely shattered, and was bleeding profusely. I gave him some brandy which revived him and he assured me that he was quite alright. Even after being dressed, we had to insist on his being brought down by stretcher bearers. After the "limpers" came the "stretchers" cases. Sometimes they were merry and bright, enjoying a fag, and only wincing when a broken leg got a knock or jar; other times they were in agony or unconscious. Sometimes, this ride to the A.D.S. was their last; and their bodies lay outside covered with a blanket awaiting the burial party.

NEWFOUNDLANDERS WENT OVER.

On this particular morning we were busy until about noon when a lull came. I knew "Ours" were not taking an active part, so I started out in search of them. I had not gone far, however, when I was informed that although the Regiment was only in support, it had "gone over" unconditionally, and taken part in the slaughter and captures, an outstanding feature of which was Cyril Gardner's single handed bag of four score; and the day ventures of Bert Holloway and Sam Smith who penetrated about a mile and a half behind the Hun line, and then reported their findings to Brigade Headquarters. This placed the Commanding Officer in a quandary; if he recommended any person or reported the work done by the Regiment they may be decorated, but they may also be court-martialled. However, the Inniskillings and the Borderers were sportsmen, and nothing was said, while several of the honours awarded for the scrap found their way into our records.

THE AFTERMATH.

The next afternoon, having spent three days and two nights on the rampage, I was found by three good Samaritans, two of whom, Capt. Herbert Rendell and Lieut. John Edens, have since gone to their reward, the other being our genial friend, Capt. Leo C. Murphy of Bell Island. They brought me to their shelter in "Bovril" trench, where I made my first acquaintance with Mr. John Barleycorn, having had a large issue of S.R.D. run down my throat. The Battalion were returning to rest that night, an adjunct to the amusement of Capt. Murphy and his brother officers. I am afraid I fazed along those duckboards as if they were a path of roses. From Glinchy Corner we trudged along over a newly rubble road which, to feet that had no rest for four days and four nights, was agony to walk upon. But, although using the privilege of all good soldiers, their spirits were high. Almost every quarter of an hour we asked passers-by how far to camp, and were always told about nine miles. One time this was greeted by a gruff response from the rear that "Thank God we are keeping up with the . . . Camp anyway." And so passed Guillemont, Trones and Bernafay Woods, Mountaban and Carnoy and its camp into which straggled laden men and tired officers, who threw themselves on the ground boards of their belated tents, where kind mother nature took them to her bosom and wrapped them in oblivion to their surroundings, and the pains and aches of their tired bodies and the memory of the loss of 7 killed and of 173 wounded comrades.

THE KAISER'S BIRTHDAY—FIVE YEARS LATER.

The Survivors.—The self same men, the self same grit and staying power, but many of them handicapped in the battle for dollars wherewith to support themselves and their dependents.

The Dead.—Their memory neglected, except by their relatives and some eight hundred citizens of this Dominion who in response to the efforts of a few worthy citizens who are endeavouring to perpetuate their memory, have replied by giving donations to our Memorial.

Feildians Attention.

Supporters of the various teams during the hockey matches, gravitate together in small groups to boost the team of their choice. In the inevitable roar of voices it is only occasionally the contestants hear the encouraging yells which usually but add to the motley outbursts. This advertisement is but to ask all supporters of the Feildian Team to gather at an early hour at the northern part of the ring-side opposite the organ gallery on any night the team contests, so that the college yells which are to be in evidence this year may be by combined effort much more effective in stimulating our players to their best efforts.

Electrical Engineering College for Nfld.

Electricians in this city have long felt the need for some college where they would be enabled to study the theoretical as well as the practical side of electricity. Heretofore there has been no opportunity of studying this in Newfoundland except by means of a correspondence course. Mr. Southgate, the Canadian Wireless Expert who was on the staff of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, in their experimental and research department previous to the war, has realized the need for such a college in this city, and proposes to start one in conjunction with the British Radio Institute on Feb. 1st.

Their night classes should prove of great value not only to the numerous young men employed by the electrical firm in this city, but also to the firms themselves, by making their employees more efficient, and capable of handling positions of greater responsibility requiring extra technical training. This college has already done a great amount of pioneer work in the development of Wireless Telegraphy and Telephony in this Island, and we hope that their new venture will prove just as successful.

Opera and Pictures at the Nickel.

NOTED SINGERS—WARMLY RECEIVED.

The large concourse of music lovers who attended the Nickel Theatre last night were treated to a marvelous program of Opera and Pictures. Mr. George Dale, a celebrated New York concert artist made his initial appearance and in a marvelous manner rendered "Smile Through Your Tears" and "Nora." Mr. Dale sings with an ease and charm which commands the strictest attention of his audience, and St. John's music enthusiasm by their hearty applause. Mr. Dale possesses a personality of unusual attractiveness which is almost as great an asset as his voice itself.

An enthusiastic welcome was accorded Miss Ruth Chase, the brilliant Soprano who also made her first appearance at the Nickel last night. Miss Chase's voice is a delight to hear, alike for its velvety tone, its purity, its richness, and its remarkable range. Moreover she is one of those who sing with their heads as well as with their voices. It is seldom that the public have the advantage of hearing such artists. The management of the Nickel, in engaging Miss Chase and Mr. Dale made an experiment which promises to justify its judgement in every respect.

New Stamps of the Empire.

CHANGES OF COLOUR.

World-wide changes in the colours and denominations of postage stamps are in prospect owing to the coming into force on January 1 of the new standard rates for international postage adopted by the Madrid Convention. In some countries the necessary alterations have already been carried out, but in others, including Great Britain and the overseas Dominions, they have not.

One change will be the almost total disappearance of the 2½d. value, which has been supplanted by the 3d. stamp for foreign letters. The latter will in future be printed blue, the colour formerly allotted to the equivalent of 25 centimes. Penny stamps throughout the Empire will be transformed from red to green, and those of 1½d. from brown or orange to red. Halfpenny stamps will be in little demand, but such as are retained will probably appear in brown, instead of green as at present. The colours of other stamp duties will likewise be affected, thus giving rise to some objection to terms of "millimes" instead of pence and plasters, and special stamps for parcels postage introduced.

The device of the Colonial Seal will be reproduced together with the head of the Sovereign on new stamps supplied to Dominion and Virgin Islands. A new issue for Newfoundland is pending, and it is rumoured that the familiar "Cobden postman" stamps of the Sudan are to be released in reduced form.

On the Continent the balance of the latest series of Belgian postage stamps is announced for issue at the New Year. The King's head, will, however, face to the right, instead of to the left. A view of the famous Casino is said to be among the designs of the latest series of stamps by Monaco also due to appear on January 1. Estonia is to have a complete new issue early in the year, and the permanent Latvian series will be completed by denominations reproducing picturesque local views.

To the growing list of air post stamps will be added at early dates new issues from Germany, Spain, Morocco, Mexico, and Honduras.—London Times.

Indigestion, Gas, or Bad Stomach Take "Diapepsin"

"Diapepsin" has proven itself the surest relief for indigestion, Gas, Flatulence, Heartburn, Sourness, Fermentation or Stomach Distress caused by acidity. A few tablets give almost immediate stomach relief and shortly the stomach is corrected so as you can eat favorite foods without fear. Large case costs only few cents at drug store. Millions helped annually.

To-Day in Toydom.

Every season sees some very simple toy spring into a widespread fad. Write a correspondent from London. Those of us not quite so young as we were can recall the rage for a marble called "Pigs in Clover." Then there was the "Ping-Pong" affair. Less distant was the immense vogue of the teddy bear, which, by the way, has far from passed from the toyland scene; numerous factories manufacture nothing else. The "Billiken," the first of the indestructible composition dolls, had its hour. To-day all the world is up and doing in athletic exercise, and at the moment the toy which is being featured as news in the principal newspapers of several countries is a jumping stick. "Pogo" is a riot in Paris and London. Keep your eye on it! It's a trick stick with a coil spring in it, made in various lengths to suit different heights and with different strength springs to best serve persons of various weights. You "mount" the "Pogo" by hopping upon the foot rests, and get very busy hopping up and down like a kangaroo—if you don't, off you go. Accomplished Pogoers can go up six-stair steps at a clip. As a reducer of weight the sport is declared to have horseback riding backed off the boards.

One attractive frock for Southern wear has its bodice and girder of red crepe de chine and its skirt of white serge trimmed with the crepe.

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES DISTRESS.

DANDERINE

Stops Hair Coming Out; Thickens, Beautifies.

35-cents buys a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug store. After one application you can not find a particle of dandruff or a falling hair. Besides, every hair shows new life, vigor, brightness, more color and abundance.

Just Folks

LIFE. This is life: a time of laughter. Now and then a tear. Glorious days to follow after. Trough another year; Something gained, and something given. Just to show the way we've striven.

THE BUSY BARD.

I punch my lyre to buy a tire or sparkplugs for my flivver; I sing a lay to purchase hay and beans and liver. The poet knows, these days of stress and straining; he works the muse for over-shoes to wear when it rains. He swats the harp to buy a car to feed his ambs and nieces; he turns out loads of hot stuff odes on ancient Rome and Greece. And grocers say, "That rhyming lay takes life so beastly easy, while we must hump or hit the dump, where go the bankrupts cheery." And plumbers sigh, as they go by, "That poet's graft's a daisy; he merely sits and throws his fits, and he is fat and lazy; and we poor ginks fix busted sinks and faucets that are leaking, and when we're done and ask our mon, the patron's always shrieking." As people walk I hear them talk about the snap I'm owing; I bask at ease and write my wheeze while working men are groaning. But on the times when decent rhymes won't come, for all my trying, when my old muse won't frame a poem that men might not undring; The barren days when cheer-up lays it seems, cannot be written! The ghastly nights when he who writes is by the brain-fag smitten! Oh, then the bard would deal in lard, or plumb with plumbers, gayly; if he could sock the harp whose smoke has risen yearly, daily.

As people walk I hear them talk about the snap I'm owing; I bask at ease and write my wheeze while working men are groaning. But on the times when decent rhymes won't come, for all my trying, when my old muse won't frame a poem that men might not undring; The barren days when cheer-up lays it seems, cannot be written! The ghastly nights when he who writes is by the brain-fag smitten! Oh, then the bard would deal in lard, or plumb with plumbers, gayly; if he could sock the harp whose smoke has risen yearly, daily.

THE BUSY BARD.

I punch my lyre to buy a tire or sparkplugs for my flivver; I sing a lay to purchase hay and beans and liver. The poet knows, these days of stress and straining; he works the muse for over-shoes to wear when it rains. He swats the harp to buy a car to feed his ambs and nieces; he turns out loads of hot stuff odes on ancient Rome and Greece. And grocers say, "That rhyming lay takes life so beastly easy, while we must hump or hit the dump, where go the bankrupts cheery." And plumbers sigh, as they go by, "That poet's graft's a daisy; he merely sits and throws his fits, and he is fat and lazy; and we poor ginks fix busted sinks and faucets that are leaking, and when we're done and ask our mon, the patron's always shrieking." As people walk I hear them talk about the snap I'm owing; I bask at ease and write my wheeze while working men are groaning. completed and read more like one of Rider Haggard's Central African romances than sober history. The laborious and painstaking method by which Prescott accomplished these gigantic tasks in the face of such a serious disability as almost to amount to blindness, must always remain one of the very greatest examples of the triumph of perseverance over almost insuperable difficulties.

Lecture by Rev. Dr. O'Reilly.

Rev. J. A. O'Reilly, Ph.D., D.D., formerly chaplain of the Mater Misericordiae Home, St. John's, and a native of Newfoundland, recently delivered a most interesting lecture in Montreal, his subject being "Old Catholic Placentia, the Rome of Newfoundland." Placentia, the speaker said, is the cradle of Catholicity in Newfoundland and occupied a larger space in North American history than most Canadians are aware of. He urged a study of the history of Placentia as necessary to a true appreciation of not only the history of Newfoundland, but of America. In the history of Placentia one finds the names of very great personages, both in Church and state. The Grand Monarch Louis XIV. gave the title to its military establishment. D'Arville, of Montreal, commanded its army; Bishop St. Valois, the only Bishop in the western world in 1859, during a six weeks' visit made the temporary ecclesiastical capital (in a certain sense though not in the absolute theological sense) of all North America from the Arctic regions to the Spanish possessions in Mexico. Governor Bouillon held sway there; William VI wintered there, and in modern times, it was represented in the House of Parliament by the "Lawyer of Newfoundland." Sir Ambrose Shea, and it is also the birthplace of His Grace Archbishop Roche—New Freeman.

Editor Evening Telegram,
Dear Sir:—I notice that a Trade Review correspondent signing himself "Fore Top", is very much concerned about the future of the seal fishery after all the steamers we have now are gone, and suggests that I be called upon to give my opinion, or as he puts it, in his nautical term, "Take a trick at the wheel." Before offering any opinion as to the future of the seal fishery, I want to draw the attention of my friend, Fore Top, to the statement made by Captain James Murphy in 1886, which was to this effect, "that steam has come to stay, and that steam is the beginning of the end of our great industry."
Apparently, my friend Fore Top is a great believer in the words of Captain Murphy, yet it is fifty six years since these words were spoken, and Fore Top, is very anxious to-day, not about the end of our great industry, but what will be done after all the steamers we have now are past and gone, and to show that in his opinion, we have some more seals left, he asks will the Norwegians and others who are casting hungry eyes of our shores, try their luck on our Coast?
My Uncle told me years before I took charge of a steamer that I would never see another loaded steamer. Since then it has been my proud lot to bring more loaded steamers to port than any man that preceded me, proving conclusively to me, that which Captain James Murphy, and Captain William Kean, and others who were very excellent men in their calling in life, they were never meant for prophets; hence their prophecies have not come true.
Now for the question at issue, what about the future after our steamers have gone? And, I want to say, that the future has a great advantage over the past. The future can profit by the mistakes of the past. First let me deal with the Norwegians and Scotch, you need not worry about them, they have learned their lessons of experience years ago, and you need no longer worry about a Scotchman or Norwegian putting money in an enterprise that they have proved in the past is not a paying proposition, that old adage "once bitten twice shy" will hold good in their case.
Now then, let us deal with our own people. I don't think ever we will get back to use skiffs, but instead, people may use their motor boats. In time as the seals would increase, the men may be tempted to sheath their fore and afters, as they did in days gone by. And here again the future may profit by the past. My friend Fore Top, speaks very disparagingly of the days when vessels were prosecuting the seal fishery from Conche and Tilting harbours, and other northern outports, and he says were very successful, but after the steamers got in their work they had to abandon the industry. I take issue with him on that point. Many of the men that he referred to who were successful in the early forties and fifties, lost their money long before the introduction of steam; some of them died and filled paupers graves before steamers was engaged at the seal fishery.
In 1855 there was 400 sail of vessels engaged with 13,000 men, while in 1866 just 11 years after there was only 177 vessels, which took about 2,700 men, and up to that date only 24,485 seals had been brought in by steamers, which meant the total for three years work.
He says the building of boats and the fitting out etc., save great amount of employment. Perfectly true, but who had to pay for it, the owner of the vessel and it must be remembered they did not always go out and bring in seals, which unfortunately I learned in my experience in the days of sealing vessels to my cost.
We have heard a great deal the last few years about the crews getting half their hands. Let me tell you, if you did away with steamers to-day and revived the old time stock of sailing vessels and gave the crew half their hands you would no more make such a venture pay than you could fly to the moon.
Another advantage the future will have over the past, will be that future Governments will, we trust profit by the mistakes of past Governments. Instead of hampering the industry by silly and useless laws which are almost as changing as the ebb and flow of the tide. Let us hope in future, if they have no men of experience in either branch of the Legislature they will seek for information from men of at least some practical knowledge in the business. But it may be that the future will be a repetition of the past, that after the steamers we have now are gone, we will commence all over again from motor boats to fore and afters to square riggers. And right here I want to sound a word of warning to those who will come after me, and to those who will be as willing to invest their money in the business as I was fifty years ago.
Do not be carried away by optimistic of the disposition of my friend H. F. Shorlin, and my friend Fore Top, who always tell you of the good old trips. There is another side to be told, and before you put your money in such an enterprise you ought first of all enquire about all the blank springs, and they were many. There is more than sentiment wrapped up in the thing. Take for instance, the year of 1863, known as the spring of the wrecks, when 1,400 men were shipwrecked on Greenspond Island at one time. At different times, while I lived at Flower's Island, we have sheltered from 50 to 60 shipwrecked men at one time in our houses. Take 1865, known as the spring of Green Bay when scores of vessels were rafted over and abandoned, leaving hundreds of their crews that had to walk home much poorer than when they left. And I could go on and give a list of bad springs that would counterbalance the good springs, which was the cause of the poverty that largely existed in the sixties in this country especially north.

If you want my opinion as to the best mode of prosecuting the seal fishery after the fleet we have now are gone, I will give it to you. (And I trust no one will do me an injustice, to say that I am actuated by any selfish motive, for long before this will happen I trust I shall be gone to a place where the wicked cease from troubling and where the weary are at rest). Build more ships of the Adventure type, that will be useful for summer trade, as well as for spring time; enough ships to engage about 2,000 men, with good engineers, good Newfoundland sealers, four extra trimmers to assist the firemen to trim coal and baited seals, so that the sealers after a hard day's work can have a good night's rest. You will then have an industry which will be an auxiliary to your other industries and the seal fishery will be as near perfection as you can get it.
In conclusion, Mr. Editor, permit me again to use the words of the Right Hon. G. W. E. Russell, "But the past is properly used only when it is employed in the service of the present and the future. We look backward and learn our lesson. We look forward and apply it. We look forward in the unconquerable hope that fifty years from now some one may be better or happier, or wiser, because we were true, to our time and to its demands."
Yours truly,
A. KEAN.

Increase in Weight!

MILLIONS of people all over the United States and Canada have not only been relieved of the most obstinate forms of dyspepsia and indigestion by the Tanlac Treatment after other remedies have failed, but many of them have reported a remarkable and rapid increase in weight and a return to normal health and strength by its use.

That is THE REASON WHY Tanlac has become the real sensation of the drug trade in the United States and Canada, and that is also THE REASON WHY it is having the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world to-day.

Tanlac is sold by leading druggist everywhere.

The Unemployment Problem.

SNOW SHOVELLING UNDERTAKEN.
Judging by the large number of men who daily congregates around the Employment Bureau, the unemployment problem is as yet far from being solved. The snowfall has hindered considerably the work of the Citizens' Committee in getting useful work for the men to do. The proposed quarrying and breaking of stones has been delayed on the same account, as shelter sheds have to be erected before the men can work. The past week has mostly been employed in snow shovelling, large gangs of men finding plenty of this to do in locating the Southside Road. Some of the unemployed are in pretty bad straits, and in several instances newly taken on men fainted through weakness from hunger after a couple of hours work. Nearly 800 men were sent to work clearing the city streets under the supervision of the Municipal Council Inspectors. Splendid work has been done and many of the principal streets which were impassable have already been put in order. Prescott, Duckworth, Water Street East, and the roads leading to the Hospital and Newtown have also been shovelled. The train with the men engaged on railroad work went out yesterday, taking a working party. The Employment Bureau has been kept busy in the distribution of tickets, and as far as possible married men with large families were given preference.

Mr. George Jackman

IN "UNDER THE GASLIGHT."
No B.I.S. Players' production would seem complete without the appearance of Mr. George Jackman in the cast. He is noted for his very faithful impersonation of any character allotted to him, and he gives every promise of eventually becoming one of our most prominent actors. As Martin (the highly efficient English butler in the Courland Mansion) he gives a splendid portrayal of a most difficult even if small role in "Under the Gaslight" on Monday at the Casino.

Club Rooms Open.

The members of the Star of the Sea Association are now enjoying the use of their rooms in the new building. At the regular monthly meeting which takes place to-morrow some very important business will be discussed. The date for the official opening of the hall will also be announced.

Obituary.

There passed away at his home, Scott Street, this morning, after a long illness, George P. Hutchings. Mr. Hutchings was a native of Harbor Grace, but was for many years with Messrs. Geo. Knowling, Ltd. of this city, and was very well known and well liked. Mr. Hutchings was one of the oldest members of Avalon Lodge, A.F.&A.M., and of Dudley Lodge, S.O. E. He leaves to mourn a widow, two sons and four daughters, to whom the Telegram offers respectful sympathy.

Master Jimmy Bradshaw

IN "UNDER THE GASLIGHT."
Master Jimmy Bradshaw, son of Frank Bradshaw, seemingly inherits all the brilliant dramatic talents of his family in his portrayal of "Peanuts" the newsy in "Under the Gaslight" at the Casino on Monday. He is full of life, and also never daunts him when endeavouring to put one of his big "deals" across. His scenes with Mr. Percy Jardine are ex-cruciatingly funny.

Magistrate and Mrs. Fitzgerald, who had been visiting the city returned to Grand Falls by the express yesterday.
