

DISCIPLINING THE DOCTORS.

THREE CASES BEFORE THE MEDICAL COUNCIL.

A Man Who Made $15,000 in Three Months by Getting the Public-Advertisement Which Dr. Parsons Says Are More Demoralizing Than Obedience Publications—Cure-Alls Brought to Book.

The Disciplinary Committee of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario held court in this city yesterday to investigate the charges of unprofessional conduct preferred against Dr. W. F. McBrien, Toronto; Dr. H. MacGregor Wilson of Windsor and Dr. J. R. McCullough of Enniskillen. The members present were Dr. Day, Belleville, chairman; Dr. Logan, Ottawa; Dr. Pyne, Toronto; Dr. Bray, Chatham. Mr. Alex. Downey was the official stenographer.

THE "SMILE" COST HIM HIS TEETH.

Absent-Minded John Horne Has Been Living on Bread for a Fortnight, and Owing to It His Teeth Are Falling Out.

Mr. John W. Horne, 155 Yorkville-street, has for two weeks past been living on bread and lamenting the loss of his teeth, and all on account of a fit of over-carefulness.

Three times has Mr. Horne invested in false teeth. On the first two occasions the teeth were not as good as a fit as they should have been, and they fell from his mouth on the street.

The third time Mr. Horne resolved to be sure and give strict orders to have the teeth made to his own satisfaction, and he thought that he had at last secured a set which he would be able to retain.

But "there's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip." Mr. Horne, who is a compositor, is partial to an occasional glass of beer. The other day he felt inclined that way, and to make sure that his teeth did not accompany the beer, down his throat, he removed them and laid them aside.

When he went to dinner he missed his molars, and having forgotten all about the "smile" that he had indulged in, could not for the life of him tell what had become of the teeth. He concluded that he had again lost them, and he went to the dentist to have them inserted.

On the 10th inst. he returned home, and he was surprised to find that his teeth were still in his mouth. He had been eating bread, and he had not been able to get any other food.

When he returned home he found the teeth on a shelf, where he had laid them when he parted with the glass of beer. He immediately went across to a neighboring butcher shop and ordered two pounds of sirloin steak, and when the World Young Man called last evening was enjoying the first substantial meal he has had for a fortnight.

FOR A MONARCHY IN BRAZIL.

THE GOALS OF MELLO AND THE INSURGENTS.

Many States Said to Favor It and Also a Large and Important Section of Rio Janeiro. Grievances Against Pezote for Alleged Oppression of Faithful-Republicans Decried.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The Times to-day publishes a letter dated Nov. 14, from its special correspondent at Rio de Janeiro.

In reviewing the causes leading up to the revolt, the Times correspondent says that with the fall of Don Pedro the aristocracy withdrew all connection with the Government, and that the wealthy men who were in office were then replaced by needy adventurers, whose sole object has been personal aggrandizement.

Continuing, the Times correspondent says: "President Pezote opened his administration by cancelling the decree permitting the Bank of the Republic to coin money, and to issue notes, which had been done in the interest of a ring of speculators. But the hopes of reform were soon disappointed when he began removing the governors of states in an underhand manner. Thenceforward he took the bit in his mouth and made a series of blunders, and set aside the spirit and letter of the Constitution in every way."

The correspondent then proceeds to show President Pezote's alleged breach of faith regarding Rio Grande do Sul in prosecuting the war against the rebels, and the rupture which ensued between the president and Admiral Mello, who resigned the office of Minister of Marine in consequence.

Much sympathy, the correspondent adds, was shown in Rio Janeiro for the people of Rio Grande do Sul who had been engaged in the revolt, and popular subscriptions were opened between May and August, 1893, for the relief of the insurgent sold. These subscriptions were crowned with success, and it is said the constantly swelling fund was very largely to President Pezote, and led to his promotion, Dr. Gouvea, being impressed.

Coming to the history of the present time, the Times correspondent states that on Nov. 7 the insurgent leaders held a conference on board the warship Aquidauana and discussed the question of re-establishing a monarchy in Brazil.

It was then shown that the States of Pernambuco, Bahia, Santa Catarina, Rio Grande do Sul, and the majority of the population of Minas Geraes, Sao Paulo and an important section of the city of Rio de Janeiro favored a return to the monarchy. It was thereupon decided that the efforts of the insurgents should be directed to that end.

The fact that Gen. Goy, a well-known monarchist, is in command of a division under President Pezote, and that a Republican, commands the National Guard, is a positive proof that there is no intention of re-establishing the monarchy.

It was an afterthought, endeavored by the wishes of the people in various parts of Brazil, and it is yet to be seen whether the insurgents will make it the aim of their present struggle.

A Brazilian in high office has just reported to the Times correspondent that he believed the end of the war would see the finish of the pretorian system of government in Brazil, no matter which side won.

AN EX-MAYOR'S WIFE'S SHARP EYES.

THE OBSERVER'S PICKPOCKET OPERATING IN THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE EXIT AND GIVES THE ALARM.

James Spencer, No. 1184 Bognor-galley, who lives in the Grand Opera House, is a well-known barometer in the city.

Last night at the audience of the Grand Opera House was making its exit Mrs. C. Bognor, wife of Ex-Mayor Bognor of Belleville, saw a man shove his hand into a lady's pocket.

She informed her husband, who is a well-known barometer in the city, of the circumstance. Mr. Bognor, on his way through the lobby of the theatre, told the facts to P. C. Crow. At the request of the officer Mr. Bognor pointed out Spencer, P. C. Crow called on him, and attempted to hand him over to another policeman, Spencer made a dash for liberty, ran down Adelaide and up Yonge into the Arcade, P. C. Forrest, who was in plain clothes, saw the fugitive followed by the policeman. Forrest joined in the chase and ran Spencer down in the Arcade and arrested him.

The prisoner was taken to headquarters, and on being searched two silk handkerchiefs and a pair of spectacles were found in his possession.

He is a tall, dark, middle-aged man, with a neatly dressed young fellow, thin and smooth faced. In the summer and during the fall he works the fair and large gatherings, with the three stoles and the milk pea.

His "pockets" is in Sergeant Reburn's gallery of notables. He was arrested last summer by Detective Watson for picking pockets at the ferry dock and convicted.

When brought to the Police Station Spencer refused to give any name, but in the Police Court this morning, when Mr. Bognor was giving evidence.

Of their five children only one survives them, Mr. Randolph Macdonald, who was present at his mother's death.

F. Macdonald.

THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

A VISIT TO THE WORLD-FAMED MONEY INSTITUTION.

The Recent Rumors as to the Bank's Soundness—Handling of Five Million Dollar Packages—A Barracks for Soldiers in the Basement.

The expression "sound as the Bank of England" has always been considered the very highest compliment that could be paid to a financial institution when speaking of its solvency or management.

Still in this era of startling developments the unexpected, as usual, has happened. The Bank of England finds itself confronted by a public clamor for a statement that will at once settle the sinister rumors that have been circulating about it with tenacious persistency.

At first scarcely anybody paid attention to the hints about gross mismanagement and severe financial losses which the bank was credited with having sustained. They did not appear to be any apparent justification of the rumors which were attributed to some stock brokers who wanted to make what they could out of a cheap sensation.

But just as things were settling down to the usual routine there came the startling news that the bank had been closed.

The last serious run on the bank took place in 1825, and was caused by the unsettled state of politics. In one day during this run the specie paid out amounted to nearly $1,000,000.

LATHURRY COURT. In this run the specie paid out amounted to nearly $1,000,000. Stockholders were panic stricken and converted their securities into cash.

It is to be hoped that the present cloud is but a transient one and that the great Bank of England will continue its usefulness as a financial stronghold both of the government and of the private citizen.

LIFE ON A LOCOMOTIVE. The Great Physical Strain on Railroad Engineers.

The exertion that modern railroad speed makes on the physical stamina of railroad men is demonstrated in the fact that seven engineers are required to take the Chicago flyer out of Chicago.

On the run of the Empire State Express three tons of coal are shovelled from the tender into the furnace between New York and Albany. It is not wonderful that the engineers of this train are given alternately rest and recuperation.

There are about eighty days in the year when the dreaded English channel is nearly as smooth as a mill pond, though there will generally occur a slight ground swell.

GUINANE BROS.

COMBINED BUILDING SALE AND ANNUAL SALE OF OVERSHOES AND RUBBERS.

It has long been a well-established fact that we do the rubber trade of the city. Each year our annual sale of rubbers and overshoes has been anxiously expected, and each year it has been an ever-increasing surprise to the people.

Unfortunately for us, when we placed our order for rubbers and overshoes, we were confident that we would by this time have at our disposal at least five times our present space.

But Oak Hall overshoes also continue good looking through several seasons of wear.

A Terrible Indictment Against Rev. J. E. Starr. In addition to the city of New York, as referred to by The World on Monday last, the city of Philadelphia is discussing the question of consumption.

The Board of Health of this city is debating as to the best means of fighting this world-wide scourge. It is recognized that consumption is a contagious disease and that it cannot be cured if it is not prevented.

Consumption is responsible for more deaths than any other disease known to man. The American Cyclopaedia, Vol. V., page 282, says that the annual number of deaths among 200,000,000 people in four European countries is 870,000, or about four and a half for every thousand of the population.

On page 284 of the same work, it is stated that statistics prove that the disease prevails especially among persons whose occupations involve a sedentary life and confinement within doors, such as clerks and printers.

Again on page 285 it is stated that the disease is especially prevalent in the winter months, and that it is more common in the cities than in the country.

On page 286 it is stated that the disease is especially prevalent among persons who are in the habit of wearing heavy clothing, and that it is more common in the cities than in the country.

On page 287 it is stated that the disease is especially prevalent among persons who are in the habit of wearing heavy clothing, and that it is more common in the cities than in the country.

the public and all kinds of possible accidents. Again, the people have a right to expect that the company will adopt such modern appliances as have been devised for the public comfort.

It is for these reasons that we think the cars in use here ought to be vestibuled as soon as possible. The Empire is wide of the mark when it argues the question entirely from a consideration of the motorist's personal comfort.

But even from this point of view the vestibuled cars should be introduced. If one kind of workman does not require shelter in winter, why should another? There is the stonemason, for instance, who uses his arms continually, why not put him out in a shed to do his work?

He would feel the weather less than the motorist, who for most of the time is standing idle, and facing tugging blasts. If it were a difficult or expensive matter to provide vestibules there would be some reason in the contention of the railway company. But the proposed improvement is neither difficult nor expensive.

With horse traction it is impossible to provide shelters on account of the driver's having to attend to his horses. That reason no longer exists. As well might shipbuilders provide no wheel-houses for the helmsmen as that the railway company should afford no protection to their motormen.

Can't the Engineer order double doors for the protection of the public, if not for that of the motorist?

The Ways of the Humbug. His Worship's obsequious apologist says "the gang put three mills on the tax rate to injure Mayor Fleming." This is, at least, a confession that Mayor Fleming is powerless to control the gang, whoever they may be.

What we was in Toronto is a man who can control the gang. As Mayor Fleming is an admitted failure in this respect he should not be sent to the council again to be made sport of by the gang.

the Conservative Opposition is a general platform of opposition to the present government. It is a platform of opposition to the present government. It is a platform of opposition to the present government.

The average Reformer usually makes a demand for this economy by saying: "Oh, but why don't you begin at the top?" Well, Ottawa is not an issue in provincial politics. All we can do in the provincial arena is to apply the knife to the provincial treasury, and anyone who takes the trouble to look into the matter will see that there is room for a great deal of vigorous cutting.

I do not intend to plague the reader with figures, but the little table appended will show him at a glance the provincial expenditure has been piling up in excess of growth since 1871. Consolidated expenditures, $1,765,000 1871. Consolidated expenditures, $3,005,000 1892. Increase, 70 per cent.

1871—Population of Ontario... 1,620,000 1892... 2,114,000 Increase of 30 per cent. These figures do not show the whole increase in expenditure by any means. An enormous sum is expended for the maintenance of the host of the Provincial Government. The sheriff, registrar, clerks of the Crown, etc., but the outside host of the Provincial Government. The sheriff, registrar, clerks of the Crown, etc., but the outside host of the Provincial Government.

We all know, however, that there has been a tremendous addition to the public burdens on account of these fee-collecting officials. The Government has deprived the municipalities of most of their own money, and they are now being forced to pay for the services of these officials.

Enough has been said, however, to show why the Patrons have carried things with too high a hand. With the Roman Catholicism in the majority, it is not surprising that the Government has been so careless in its expenditure.

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

A sneer is the stiletto of conversation. Kind words are the music of the world. Great minds have wills; feeble ones have wishes.

The manner of giving shows the character of the giver more than the gift itself. Sincerity, deep, great, genuine sincerity, is the first characteristic of all men in any way heroic.

Let fortune do her worst, whatever she makes us lose, so long as she never makes us lose our honesty and our independence. He that does not know those things that are of use and necessity to know, is but an ignorant man, whatever he may know besides.

A secret is like silence; you cannot talk about it and keep it. It is like money; when you conceal it, you know it is all concealed it is still discovered.

If you hate your enemies you will contract such a vicious habit of mind as will break out upon those who are your friends, or those who are indifferent to you.

A wise and good man will turn examples of all sorts to his advantage. The good he will make his pattern, the bad he will be all means avoid.

When you have found your talent, do not despise it; be it as insignificant as it is, or other; but honor it, respect it, make the best of it even if it is not much of a gift.

Prefer what is good of a lower or inferior work or material to what is bad of a higher work or material for this is the way to improve every kind of work, and to put every kind of material to better use.

From a worldly point of view, young people could do well to remember that whatever keeps the family together in faithful allegiance adds to the position and influence and consideration of each member individually.

Holy in the German language—hellig—also means leading; English word whole—all of one piece without any hole in it—is the same word. You could not get any better definition of holiness than is found in reality. Mens sana in corpore sano.

The aspect of this life is stern, very stern. It is a very stern and unrelenting world. It is a stern world over its grand mystery and refuses to hear his loud, deep undertone of anguish.

Shoddy Shoes. All the shoes you see are not reliable shoes, although they may look all right on the outside. The wearing qualities of a shoe depend very largely upon the character of the inside, how the welt is made and how the shoe is put together.
