THE LAST SHOT.

How Capt. Wetmore Won the Interprovincial Match.

The Last Shot of the Day Gave the New Brunswick Team First Place for the Trophy.

(Halifax Herald)

Forbes.

Never before, perhaps, has a shooting contest been watched with such interest; New Brunswick was gaining, but it still looked like a victory for our team as our men concluded their score, with Whyte with 28, and McEachern 24, the latter, however, being unfortunate towards the close.

The New Brunswick pair had not been as quickly as the Nova Scotlans, and when the latter were finished, the New Brunswickers still had three shots to fire, but had to make two bulls eyes and an inner, or 14 out of 15 tocomeout ahead. A ball and two inners would suffice, as New Brunswick had the lead at the longer range, but two bulls, with the inner, would add all the more glory.

Can't Weimore was the first to shoot.

(London Lady's Pictorial.)

The fact that two persons have just been fined $500 at the Exeter assizes for undertaking to cure, for a monetary consideration, such as were "bewitched," shows that, in spite of our vaunted scientific progress, supersition still lingers in the countryside. In the present case the defendants clients were enjoined to sprinkle a powder round a room, at the same time repeating the Lord's prayer. This ceremony, they were assured by the magicians, would cure the most obstinate succession of bad luck or ill-health. The methods here employed closely resemble those of the ancient race of charmers' who, less than half a century ago, were well known in every western shire. Then it was no unusual thing to meet on the open road the timerant "charmer," wandering from village to village, with his pack of simples on his back and a goodly stock of spells and incantations in his head, for curing the beasts of the field of their alliments, as well as the fills to which fiesh is heir.

Here is the formula which was used by a Herefordshire charmer as late as the *80s. "For a horse down in the shoulder: I beseech thee, O Lord, to make this horse whole, bone to bone, flesh to fash, sinew to sinew, in all things, the same as he was before."

Changes to be Made in the Plans of the Proposed Building.

Subscribers Requested to Consider the Advisability of Providing Dormitories.

Subscribers to the Y. M. C. A. building are asked to consider and express their opinion on a proposed change in the plan of the building. The original idea was to procure a corner lot in one of the best business localities, and to devote the street floor in front to shops for rental. In view of the prospective cost of the building lot, it was made a condition of the subscriptions that no action towards construction should be taken until $50,000 should be offered. It has, however, been found by recent experience of other associations that one of the most popular features of Y. M. C. A. buildings is the provision of dormitories. These rooms, usually furnished on one or two upper fats, are rented to young men, who find them exceedingly convenient from their accessibility to shower and swimming baths, reading room and places for physical exercise. They also bring and keep young men within the reach of moral and religious influences and furnish opportunities for the comrades this popular fat are reached to young men, and especially strangers, in the city require. From the economic point of view, this resides the reach of moral and religious influences and the economic point of view, this resides on the lower flat as a revenue feature. In Montreal, where the Y. M. C. A. has such rooms there are always applications months ahead for every vacancy.

But the New Brunswick respect to gain ground at 600. Major Flowers and Q. M. S. Corbin kept up good figures, but the others were dropping back, while New Brunswick was gradually gaining, and when the last pairs began to shoot Nova Scotia's lead had been reduced to eight. Gr. McEschren and Sergt. Whyte, two crack shots, were the Nova Scotia representatives, while New Brunswick had tried and true men in Capt. Wetmore and Lieutenant Forbes.

The meeting of the Skuptschina on Monday next is now looked forward to confirm the proclamation as king of Prince Karageore-vitch and to regulate the new situation.

The only new element in the situation is a feeling among the intelligent classes in favor of the abolition of a Servian monarchy altogether and the creation of a republic, and this sentiment is shared by at least one member of the provisional government. Differences of opinion on this point developed today at a meeting of the cabinet, when the foreign minister, Ljubonic Kallevicz, expressed his leanings in favor of the establishment of a required themselves in favor of a new king in Prince Peter Karageorgevitch. They strengthened their declaration by a the strong argument that it was certain that Austria and Russia would not on of enorit or another and those who do not enjoy a ball game may go to the matines and vice versa. In the application of electricity to everyday work, Germany has, perhaps, gone further than any other nation. Electrically heated and operated cooking and laundry apparatus is in common use there, but the most striking single development is the electrical farm. Take, for example, Professor Backhaus' estate near Quednau, in Eastern Prussia, which is only one of a large number of German estates run by electricity, says World's Work. The Quednau farm covers 450 acres and its dairy handles 1,000 gailons of milk daily. Every part of the farm is lighted by electricity and is in telephone communication with every other part. The dairy has an electrically operated feed and carrot-cutting machines, and even the grindstone is turned by a small belt from the shaft connected with the barn motor. The water pumping apparatus is run by electricity: all the barn motor. The water pumping apparatus is run by electricity: all the barn motor. The water pumping apparatus is run by electricity: all the barn motor. The water pumping apparatus is run by electricity: all the barn such and grist mil, the machinery of which is turned by a current from the miniature central station, and finally there is a small sawmill, which gets its power from the same station. On the farm are all kinds of electrical agricultural machines, including an automobile plow, all run by batteries charged from substations in the fields. The power of all these various operations—lighting, heating, telephones, churning, cutting, grinding, pumping, threshing and sawing, comes from a fifty horse-power stationary engine moving two dynamos. From this station the power is distributed to the parts of the farm, and the switch-board is so plainly marked that the commonest farm hand can regulate the supply to fit the need. At Crottor a number of small farms have and thave their work done by it. Such plants as these do more than merely lighten farm labor; fewer workmen

It is but natural that the owner of a rowboat should at times desire a motor launch, especially when on a long distance pull on a warm day; and yet the expense of a new boat, with engine and machinery, places it beyond the reach of the majority of rowboats owners. In our illustration we show an apparatus which may answer the purpose fully as well as a new boat, and at far less cost. It is nothing less than a gasoline motor, so arranged that it can be secured to the rear end of a small boat, with the fuel and electric batteries stored in a casing which ans-

A resident of Guelma, in Algeria, has faken out a patent for the manufacture of casks in corkwood. An interior coating isolates the contents from constant with the cork. A barrel of eleven gallons weighed thirty pounds instead of eighty pounds, which is the weight of a wooden cask of the same capacity. Tork being a bad conductor of heat and cold the necessity of adding alcohol for the preservation of wine would be unnecessary and the liquid would no longer be subject to the fluctuations of temperature. In warm climates these casks might be useful for conveying ice, meat, fish or fruits. A great saving on the freight expense would also be obtained, considering a cork barrel weighs two-thirds less than a wooden onc. The influence of heat cannot warp the staves, consequently the hoops remain in place.

The latest nosebag for horses, designed to enable the anmial to get at at tas food without tossing its head about in an effort to catch the grain on the freight expense would also be obtained, considering a cork barrel weighs two-thirds less than a wooden store, and a kind of floor close to the fly, has a portion separated as a food store, and a kind of floor close to the horse's law on which the food is always to be found. This constant supply within reach is obtained through the shortent of the mouth works a spring, and this in turn moves an arrangement that sweeps the food from the magazine and throws small quantities within reach. The animal eats contentedly, the grain always tumbling down the inclined floor to its mouth.

The government of the Punjab provided for the purpose.

Doukhobors Want No Schools.

The Doukhobors do not want schools. This is the information that was vouchsafed to Peter and Corneitus Jansen, who went up to the village of Trepennie with the intention of letting contracts for a thoroughly modern and ideal building intended for mental education and manual training, so far as household duties are concerned.

Just about a year ago Peter Jansen and Joseph Elkinton made an exhaustive tour of the Doukhobor settlements and suggested to some of the leading citizens of the various settlements the advisability of establishing schools where the foreign children could have all the advantages of an English education. The idea was popular. All with single voice not only expressed their willingness to accept the schools, but also expressed their graitude for the generosity of the friends in the United States who previously had given valuable assistance to them.

With this assurance Mr. Elkinton and Mr. Jansen returned to their homes, the former to Philadelphia and the latter to the town in Nebraska bearing his own name. They appealed to the Quakers in these parts of the republic and funds were quickly subscribed sufficient to build one school.
This was all that was asked for, for it was in the nature of an experiment,

With these funds and with plans carefully prepared of a model school, Peter and Cornelius Jansen about a week ago, went up to Trepennie for the purpose, as already stated, of letting contracts for the school.

The plans and specifications called for a two-story building, containing three class rooms, two dormitories and a kitchen.

When they arrived at the village in question they found the population divided into three classes—those who were indifferent. The first class was comparatively few in numbers and the emissaries decided that it would be inadvisable to establish the school until the sentiments of the people changed.

They decided, however, on another course, which, it is hoped will accomplish the object of Anglicising the Doukhobor, although the process may Respecting rumors which new and then circulate as to the title of Princess Reyal being assumed by the Duckess of Fife, and the young Lades Duff becoming Highnesses, the fact remains that King Edward has reigned more than two years without bestowing extra digatites on his eldest daughter and Fife grandchildren. It is well known that the royal duckess prefers a simple, quiet life and is indifferent to the advantages of her high birth.

As to her daughters, though they might well have been entitled princesses had their original place in the successional list been maintained, it is hardly worth while to disturb the existing order of things at this time of day, when their uncle George can count his four sons and one daughter, all standing nearer the throme than the Lady Alexandra Duff, who was once described as a possible Queen of England.

It is scarcely likely that the Duke of Fife's daughters will make royal matches, and in all probability they will become British peeresses, and have a far more pleasant life then if they turned into German princesses, and had to follow a foreign spouse to his own country.—Modern Society.

An amusing story is told of Lady Barker's first dinner party at Simlas, India. Desirous of having a pretty table, Lady Barker had herself expended much care in decorating it. She had just received from Europe certain dainty china figures and ornamental dishes, and had arranged a tempting show of sweetmeats, flowers, and fruit. When dressing time came Lady, Darker charged her servants to be on the watch and take care of everything; but something of interest occurred outside and every servant left the room, quite forgetting to close an open window.

Before this window was a big tree on which sat several monkeys, which had watched the preparations for dinner with much interest.

A half hour later the hostess appeared, ready to receive her guests. Just to be sure that everything was right, she gave a glance into the dining-room. There she beheld a busy company of monkeys hard at work, grinning and jabbering, their cheeks and arms crammed with expensive sweetmeats, while the table presented a scene of frightful dovastation—broken glass and china, fair linen soiled, everything tossed about in hopeless confusion. From this wreck she had to turn aside and welcome her guests with as much ease of manner as possible. Dinner, of course, had to be deferred until order could be restored.—London Chronicle.

Mr. Bax-Ironside, who was received with unusual cordiality by President Castro on assuming his new post as British Minister at Caracas, has had a wide experience for the twenty years he has been in the diplomatic service. He has held various positions in Copenhagen, Stockholm, Constantinople, Vienna, Teheran, Pekin and Washington, and for a time had charge of the Legation in Central America, in which he had to deal with the whole group of Spanish-American republics along the isthmus. This term in Guatemala brought him knowledge that should be of great value to him now in Caracas, The Chronicle thinks, and as he has been sent there under special conditions, President Castro may find it advisable to walk warily in his sight.

LAST TIME OF KATE CLAXTON.

Kate Claxton, the well known emotional actress, had another large audience at the Opera House last evening.

Today's matinee and tonight will witness the last performance of Miss Claxton and her elever company in The Two Orphans. It is doubtful if this grand old play has ever been better done. Miss Claxton and the greater portion of her company have been partially this piece in the states for the past 34 weeks. They played the West, and came direct to St. John, so that the theatre going public are witnessing a performance by a regular tray-celling company and not a specially gotten together company engaged for the summer season in the maritime provinces. In yesterday's notice of the performance John E. Hazzard was omitted. He gives a most clever portrayal of Picard, and became on intimate terms with his audience at once. He was with The Man from Mexico company last season. Upon Miss Claxton's return to St. John on Aug. 3 the English military comedy, Bootle's Baby, will be presented on a fine scale.

He would not dismiss without examination any proposition for the promotion of the closer unin of the empire, but it was with pain and grief that he found himself unable to support the scheme proposed by the colonial, secretary who, he between

TRADE OF CANADA.

NEW TORK, June 12.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

Trade conditions in Canada are still satisfactory in character. At Montreal warmer weather helps trade in seasonable goods, while excellent cropprospects, combined with steadily advancing markets for staples, tend to stimulate the demand for future trade requirements. Toronto reports steady demand in most departments of wholesale trade, retailers buying largely for the fall, shipments quite heavy, and further advances in cotton staples. Domestic weollens are firmly held, and the new wool clip, which is likely to be smaller than last year, has begun to move, but offerings thus far are light, growers holding off for higher prices. Ontario crop conditions have improved. On the Pacific coast general trade is fair, the outlook promising, and retailers are meeting obligations more promptly than in former years. Winnipeg tells of an excellent crop outlook in the west. Retailers are buying much in excess of preceding years. Bank clearings for the week aggregate 364,325,113, 5 per cent, from last week and 15 per cent, over this week a year ago.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 12.—A revolting murder, which at present is wrapped in the deepest mystery, courred in Middlefield, a suburb of Middlefown, some time today. The victim is Mrs. George Smith, the wife of a Rockfall factory employe. She came to her death by the blow of an axe, which nearly severed her head from the hoff.

The Trades and Labor Council held their regular monthly business meeting in Berryman's Hall last evening. After transacting regular routine business, delegates from the union of the stationary firemen and city emplayes were installed as members of the council.

On account of the regular Saturday half holiday becoming so general, a resolution was passed by the council, strongly recommending that employers be requested to pay on any other day but Saturday, and thus give the employes and their families a chance to make their weekly purchases before Saturday at noon. This would be a great factor in making the Saturday half holiday a general success.

The council decided to call a mass meeting of all the different labor unions for next Wednesday evening, to consider the wage question of the city laborers' union, which is now before the meeting is to be held has not yet been decided upon, but will be published in Monday's papers.

The reports from the different unions were as follows: Ship laborers, dull; teamsters, carpenters, freight handlers, printers, hod carriers and mormanager of the Canadian Pacific steamship service, lef today for England. He reported his mission is in the formation with the fast Atlantic service, but Sir Thomas Shaughnessy stated it was in regard to several matters in connection with the present Atlantic line.

The Montreal Star's London cable says: Further letters reaching England from Barr colonists, express cordial appreciation of hearty good will shown the new comers in Canada, in face of serious difficulties, the fact that so large a proportion of settlers are successfully located, although outside of the Barr area, has had a good effect. There is no appreciable diminution of interest in Canada among intending emigrants, although the Barr experiments are not to be repeated. MONCTON, N. B., June 12.— Andrew Henry of St. Marys, York Co., lost his life at Boundary Creek, near Salisbury, about 11 o'clock this morning. The deceased, who was a stone mason, was engaged on the culvert of the highway bridge undergoing repairs under the supervision of John R. Mooney. Henry and others were putting heavy stone in place when the derrick pole gave way and fell, striking Henry-just back of the ear, killing him instantly. His three companions had a narrow escape. The deceased is about sixty years of age and leaves a wife and family at St. Marys, where the body will be taken for interment. He was a Free Mason.

In these days of keen competition and advertiser can afferd to conceal true facts, either about his business methods or his merchandise. Everything must be open and above board.

The most successful policy which can be adopted in writing any advertisement is to so word it as to win the confidence and respect of the reader. If you can make such an impression on the reader's mind that she will believe you are sincere in what you say —that you really believe it yourself—that you are laying the case before her in a plain, business—like manner, without any exaggerations or attempts to mislead, you are pretty sure to get that person's trade.

If you believe what you are saying, you are more apt to express yourself in a convincing manner than if you are simply trying to praise up some value that does not exist. There is only one sure way in which you can gain the confidence of the public, and that is invariably stick to the truth. Advertising that flatters your goods is most undesirable advertising.

It is best to use a few plain simple words, easily understood, than to revol in many high-sounding adjectives, which in themselves would imply that you are trying to exaggerate. Be modest and gentle in your expressions, Don't try to claim the earth, either for yourself or for your goods.

Considerable lime is used at the Dominion Iron and Steel Co's. works, and up to a short time ago it all, or nearly all, came from St. John kilns. It was a large and valuable business and one that the St. John concerns carefully looked after. The powers that be in Cape Breton thought they could burn their own lime so kilns were started and the lime produced. This meant quite a loss to the St. John manufacturers and Stetson, Cutler and Co. found it advisable to shut down two kilns.

This state of affairs, however, did not last long, and now the men who were thrown out of work are happy and all the kins are going full blast. But, on the other hand, while we should be careful to write nothing which will do harm, there is much encouragement for us in the fact that what is written has a lasting effect. For good as well as evil is often accomplished in this manner, and thus untold opportunities are opened up to us, for many a person who is diffident of speech can express himself much more fluently when writing and can so accomplish far more than otherwise. There is a good lesson in the old motto, whichever way we look at it, and one which it will be well for us to learn as it will help us in many a way, and not only ourselves, but others.

As McCarthy came in from the field Doyle met him and in something of a huff asked why on earth McCarthy had thrown to first instead of putting the ball home, which would have been the proper thing to do.

"Just because I knew that everybody would think that was the proper thing to do," answered McCarthy. "Tom Brown, I knew, was well aware that I am a good thrower and he would stop after turning third to see if I was socking it home. And you, I figured out, would run past first with the idea of getting to second while the ball was on its way to the plate. I won by doing just exactly what nobody expected me to do."

But Doyle declared that McCarthy had taken an unfair advantage of him, and the relations between the two never got back to the old friendly footing.

A True Story.

When the teetotum went spinning down the long maliogany table and stopped in front of him with a figh the New Member blushed furiously and then turned pale. He promptly picked up the top, however, and plunged into his tale with scarcely a stammer. He told all about an amazing accident by which he had lost his right eye and drain his foaming mug, says the Kansas City Journal.

"But, gentlemen," he continued, "the loss of that eye did not inconvenience me half so much as the various substitutes for if that I tried. The first one shat I had was a live rabbit's eye, transferred to my head by a rémarkably skillful operation. It was a spiendid match and I could see out of it perfectly, but you have no idea what an amount of trouble it gave me. The fact that I developed an inordinate fondness for cabbage did not worry meany. It was just the timm appearance of the thing that got me into so many scrapes. I'd accidentally step on a man's foot for instance.

"Beg pardon!" I'd say.

"Don't mention it,' he'd have on the foot of his tongue, but he wouldn't say it. Meantime he'd get a glimpse of that time eye and suddenly turn and punch my head half off. He simply couldn't help it. Every time I turned around I got a poke in the ear from some natural born buily.

"There was no handling my creditore at all. A collector would come in wondering wether he would get his money or not, and ready to sidestep an inkstand or a paper weight. I'd tell him to come in about two weeks from the next Wednesday.

"'All right, sir,' he'd start to say, politely enough, then he catch sight of that eye.

Some Facts About The Egg.

ment of the egg, with all the whys and wherefores, is one of the first leasons taught it is explained that the albumen of the egg belongs to the proteid or nitrogenous division of food principles; the yolk to the fats or fuels. In cooking an egg the albumen coagulates at 188 degrees, while water boils at 21. If an egg is plunged into boiling water and kept at a high temperature the albumen becomes tough and consequently indigestible. The best way to boil eggs hard is the paradoxical one of not boiling them at all instead, drop the eggs to be cooked in a vessel of boiling water, cover closely and take at once from the fire. In six minutes the egg will be soft-boiled. In eight minutes the egg will be medium cooked. Twenty minutes, with the water just below the boiling point, gives the hard-boiled egg. Another method that insures a creamy and delicious soft-boiled egg is to put the egg in cold water and allow it to just come to a boil. Eggs that are perfectly fresh shays the highest flavor. After 2s hours an egg steadily deteriorates. Should you wish to examine into the freshness of your eggs before breaking hold each one before a strong light and look directly through it. If fresh the white will be clear and the yolk round. In the Paris egg market the eggtester sits with a lighted cande before him and passes upon every eggs berought firth the market. Another test effects is dropping them into water. The fresh ones being heavy will sink and the-bad ones will float.

A Scottish tourist wandering about the streets of Paris some distance from his hotel found himself in a maze from which he could not escape and, to make things worse, he failed through ignorance of the language to get any light to guide him homeward. Then a happy thought struck him. By ding of signs he concluded a bargain with a fruit hawker for a basketful of gooseberries, and then, to the amazement of every-grandfather had been circulated in various forms. The fact was that the news came through the medium of a small Dutch newspaper. The news was published in a single line-"Great victory of the English at Amsterdam." His grandfather, who was the owner of some ships, told his captains that whenever they went anywhere they were always to bring him the latest newspapers. One of these trusted captains arrived with a paper announcing the great victory. His grandfather, who believed as they all did now in the accuracy of all newspapers—(laughter)—immediately took the news to the Treasury, and gave the information to Lord Liverpool. He did not tell him how he knew it, and his news was scouted because the intelligence had arrived of the defeat of the English troops on the previous day. Mr. de Rothschild also stated that during the siege of Paris' the famous house in New Court used to receive news by pigeon-post, and they knew a fortnight beforehand when Paris was about to capitulate, and were able, to send the first provisions into the town.

British Drink Bfil.

British Driak Bfil.

In preparing the British national drink bill of 1902 Dr. Dawson Burns has subjected to an independent examination the divergent data adopted by the late Mr. Hoyle and by the Inland Revenue Department. To assist this investigation returns of the retail price of various kinds of spirits were obtained from nineteen of the largest towns in the United Kingdom. The general result has been to raise by about one-seventh the expenditure reported in former annual drink bills. According to these revised data, the national expenditure on intoxicating liquors in 1002 amounted to £179,499,817, a decrease of about two millions and a quarter, compared with 1901, when the expenditure on the same data was £181,738,245. The expenditure in 1902 gives an average of £4 5s. 6\frac{1}{4}0, per head, equal to £21 7s, 0\frac{1}{4}6 for every family of five persons. Dr. Burns points out that this annual expenditure on strong drink is much in excess of the expenditure either for all Government purposes, or for all religious, educational, and philanthropic objects combined, or for the purchase of more than one kind of food and clothing considered to be articles of prime necessity.—S, B. The moon had not risen and the pale radiance of the stars showed the long, slow swell of an olly sea. Against the wall of the quay lay a tiny sailing yacht. Further out, midway between the horns of the harbor, a fishing boat with wide spread sails, that seemed hardly to catch the faint evening air drifted like a shadow through the night.

In the cafe, half a dozen men, fishers of this little port lounged idly over their glasses. Old Antoine, the innkeeper, drowsed as usual in his corner thair. Jean Modeste, his grandson, sat with a torn net across his knees and his black head bent. The rest sipped their coarse wine, and talked to each other spasmodically of the weather or the prospects of a good catch.

Suddenly, Jean Modeste looking up from the tear in the net made with his free hand the sign of the cross. The others looked at him with curlous, half-rightened eyes. He was staring through the open doorway at the sea. The glasses ceased to clink, and only old Antoine snored softly in the corner.

I'm a stranger—I—thank the good God there's no Fisher in this port of Nice—no! Now, will any of you tell me, my friends, who this Fisher of yours is, and what he seeks?"

The question was addressed generally to the whole company present, but nobody answered. Instead, they all looked at Jean Modeste as he bent over his net.

"Who he is—" he spoke meditatively, "Ah, for that—no one can tell you. What he seeks—that's another matter. They do say—"

He broke off and glanced again through the open door. The black sail wits drifting very slowly towards the land.

THE BRIDGES CASE

THE BRIDGES CASE,

In the county court chambers this morning, before Judge Wedderburn, an application was made by L. P. D. Tilley under section 361 of the Criminal Code of Canada, for a change of venue in the case of King against George Bridges on the complaint of Lulu M. Taylor and R. Chester Peck, which is set down for trial at the next sitting of the Albert County court. The change of venue is sought on the ground that it will be impossible to secure an unprejudiced jury to try the cause in Albert county. Several affidavits in support of the application were read. Solicitor General McKeown appeared to oppose the application.

This is a quasi-criminal prosecution arising out of a promissory note which the defendant, George Bridges, is alleged to have fradulently obtained from the complainants for the price of a plano,

WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES.

WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES,

William Kennedy was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with using abusive and insulting language towards Walter Jones, of Union Alley. It appears that some ill feeling exists between the men and a few days ago Kennedy went to draw water from the source of supply used by the Jones family. A discussion followed in which Jones was insuited. Kennedy left a deposit of eight dollars, which was this morning forfeited.

Maud Lester was fined eight dollars or two months; Oliver Emery eight or thirty days, and Henry Snider two dollars for drunkenness.

In the case of Andrew Westwood, said by Officer Marshall to have been drunk, the question arose as to whether a man is intoxicated if he goes to sleep on King Square. Marshall said that Westwood had not only been sleeping on one of the benches, but had walked over two flower beds and finally brought up against a tree. Westwood claimed that he could not possibly have been drunk on the small amount of ale which he had disposed of. He was still sitting on the bench in court at eleven o'clock.

this afternoon. He called at the White House at 3 o'clock by appointment and was received by the president in the latter's private office, adjoining the cabinet room. Ostensibly the purpose of the ambassador's call was to take his formal farewell to the president, as he is leaving for Russia on the 23rd in accordance with his annual custom of spending his vacation at home. The ambassador's call, however, lasted over forty minutes and it is known that practically the whole time was consumed in a review of the situation in Russia growing out of the recent Jewish atrocities at Kischineff, though no statement concerning the conference was given out.

STRAWBERRIES COMING.

STRAWBERRIES COMING.

The dull time on the river of which steamboat men have complained will soon come to a close. Already the river captains are wearing a more cheerful countenance, and all are chorusing, 'the good old berry time will soon be here.'

The 'berry time' is a stirring period in river traffic. Farmers at different points along the river for weeks are busily forwarding barks of berries and the cargoes of the different steamers are at times composed of nothing else. On the arrival of the steamers at Indiantown the berries are quickly swooped up by the crowds of grocers who daily throng the wharves.

The few crates of berries which arrived on the May Queen and Crystal Stream yesterday are but a delicious foretaste of the ample treat which is to follow. The timely rains have saved the berry crops and the city people will not be deprived of the native fruit which in flavor and juiciness is unequalled by any that can be imported.

FIREMEN'S HOLIDAYS.

FIREMEN'S HOLIDAYS.

The permanent men of the fire department settled yesterday the order in which they will go on their holdiays. This is a question the settling of which is left entirely to themselves, and the Jolly fire laddles, ever quick in expedients, adpoted the handlest method of putting it at rest. Every year a number of them assemble in one of the fire stations and there draw lots from a hat filled with slips of paper having written upon them the names of the men. Yesterday the drawing took place in No. 3 engine house with the result that drivers Finnegan and Drake are the first to have their holidays, the others to follow in the order indicated by the drawing.

HARD DIGGING.

The work of excavating for the foundation of the new building which Messrs. Hamm Bros. are erecting on the site adjoining their biscuit factory on Main street, is progressing rapidly. Fart of the foundation nearer the street has already been laid. In the rear, however, some difficulty has been met in the shape of heavy rock, in removing which a powerful steam drill has had to be brought into use..

The construction work on the building will be commenced in a few days.
