Facts about Meats. Every wife any mother owes it to herself her husband, and her children, as well as to society at large, to prevent waste in every department of the household, whether pro-visious are cheap or dear, whether the band is rich or poor; for waste is a crime against humanity, an insult to the bouncons Hand which "giveth us all things richly to enjoy." On the other hand, a true economy is one of the wisest, the best, and ennobling of domestic virtues. A hundred careful experiments were made in England in reference to reasting and boiling meats, in order to ascertain the respective losses :-Roasted chickens lost 15 per ct.; beef ribs and sirloins, 19 per et.; geese, 19 per et.; boiled mutton legs, 10 per et.; boiled beef 15 per et.; boiled shoulder mutton, 28 per ct.; turkeys, 20 per ct.; mutton legs and shoulders, 24 per et.; ducks, 27 per

But if there is too much bulk, there is not enough nutriment, although a great deal is taken into the stomach. Porter and beer. for example, fill up the stomach, and seem to make persons fleshy, but there is little nutriment and great bulk; but great beerdrinkers are never strong, they are puffy.—

The Upstairs Omnibus.

At the new Brighton Hotel, we are told, the principal of the five hydraulic lifts, works up and down in a vertical shaft eight feet square. It is neatly furnished, and constitutes a small saloon or "upstairs omnibus."
The shaft is enclosed on all sides, except an aperture or doorway on a level with each storey. The height of the shaft is, from the ground floor to the fifth storey, fifty six feet. The little moveable saloon within it will accommodate seven or eight persons at once, who can be raised to the uppermost of the five storeys in one minute, or to any of the intermediate storeys in a few seconds' less time. The pulling of a handle—ver little more trouble than the ringing of a be suffices to set in action the hydraulic power which raises the platform; while the adjustments of nicely balanced weights renders the movement smooth and easy. This is, par excellence, the visitors lift, not to used by mortals of less exalted dignity. A second lift ascends from the basement to the fifth storey, intersecting and communicating with all the intermediate storeys in its way; the ascent is seventy-six feet; and the purpose, we believe, is to facilitate the ascent of servants with their burdens. A third lift, about as lofty as the second, is for send

Caught in a Cyclone.

It has been already stated that the Candia, with the mails and passengers, which left Southampton on the 4th and Marseilles on the 13th of April, had put back to Aden on the 3rd inst., in consequence of having met with a fearful cyclone on the 29th of April. The directors have now received the captain's report of the storm he exper-ienced. Writing from Aden on the 5th inst., the captain says :- "Finding that I was running into the centre of a cyclone, I hove the ship to, with her head to the N.N. E., keeping the engines working slowly.— By one p.m. we had a most terrific gale; ship was completely buried to leeward and taking in tons of water, which washed the tarpaulies off the skid gratings, and an immense quantity of water found its way stock-hold, &c., the lee boats were washed away; the weather quarter boat blew out

At 4 p.m. the barometer commenc ed to rise; the ship was then in a fearful plight, the water increasing fast in the stock-hole and engine room, ship labouring heavily, all the sails blown out of the gaskets, the deck gear either washed away or smashed, awning booms carried away by the force of the wind alone, lee bulwarks gone in many places, lowerbooms, hencoops, and ladders washed overboard. Mr. Miller, the chief engineer, reported to me that he could not keep the steam up any longer owing to the quantity of water in the stockhole. ped the engines. About this time Mr. Tur. ner, the second officer, who was engaged in securing the tarpaulins, was washed to leeward, and had his leg broken in two places by a hencoop. Set all hands (passengers and stewards included) to pump and bail. At six p.m. the gale was moderating, and the barometer rapidly rising; the ship then appeared a complete wreck, the whole of the starboard cabins were full of water, the berths and washstands washed down, and the whole of the baggage destroyed. From this time it gradually moderated, and the wind veered round to the S. E., and became fine; the pumping and bailing was continudent, as both passengers and crew were nearly exhausted, to return to Aden; turn-ed the ship round and set all hands pumping and bailing again. On the morning of the 2nd I passed a large number of bales floating about and one dead body. Pumping was continued until the 3rd, when we arrived at this port about noon." The appearance of the diggings and the amount of work done in order to get at the gold frightens many from attempting it. Many thousands in Cariboo, California and Australia did the same, and often regretted it afterwards as they had stood upon the very ground that held millions of dollars that was afterwards found by more persevering and deserving men—many of those that come to this region have got homesick before they reachsaw mills are now in operation. The farming operations are conducted on an extennothing here to induce a man to remain yet with all the diversity of opinion and circumstances men are actually here and in numbers working from morning to night. and many of them getting gold in undeniable pieces, for I have seen them wash it and have had dollars' worth of it in my hands, and there was no doubt about the fact of the gold being found in claims. I have seen it taken from what miners term "a salted one"-that is, if you wanted to sell a claim or gook up a diggings, you would watch your chance of a new comer and say to him, do you want a claim? I have a capital one, at the same time putting his hand into his pocket showing the green one many pretty little nuggets, and probably affirming that they all came from the clame, but he had to leave the diggings having had a letter from home, or some other rascally excuse, and further to persuade the individual to invest in this bogas claim, he would have some two or three small nuggets stuck into the earth at some place in the hole that might look like good earth, and he would then say the lead runs from that point, try a panful of earth and if you do not get a good prospect you need not purchase, but I must sell to somebody at once. The verdant would naturally take his pan and of course received from him I may state that he was find the gold, consequently pay the money sober, industrious, and not extravagant. We thought that there was no danger of his voluntarily become a soldier. How and why he became so is a mystery to us. now here, also several other Cariboo miners Consul here, thinking that my brother's they all sny there is gold here for all have not being of age might assist in getting him found it but they do not speak confidently not being of age might assist in getting him off, but he informed me that, by the American law passed in 1862, all above 18 are considered of age, and by that law British subjects, and others, must abide. There are several other streams that parties are now working upon-the Famine the Danloup. the McDermot, the Traveller's Rest, the Granbarn, and many others but not being well acquainted with the geography of the country, I cannot now remember the names of the water courses, but they are all tributaries of the Dunloup, the Gilbert and Chaudiere. The system of disposing of their mining claims at present adopted by the owner of the soil is this:—Every miner ever, in the month of June last, Madame Pauw, to her great surprize, found him once more in her lodgings, and, by way of explamore in her lodgings, and, by way of explanation of his sudden return, he said he had hit upon a plan for providing for her children in the future. He told her she must not tell any one of the means, and having thus re-established relations with Madame Pauw, he proposed that she should insure her life for a sum of 550,000f., that he would pay the premiums, and that she would assign the policies to him. But it being obvious that in this way neither Madame Pauw nor her children would get any benefit to get for her an almost immediate income by this arrangement. He suggested that a little while after the policy was effected she should pretend to be seriously ill, and make the insurance office believe that she was on the point of death; then he would go to the company and propose to them to cancel the policy, on the terms of paying her a life annuity of 600f, to run from Jan. 1, 1864. the point of death; then he would go to the nuity of 600f, to run from Jan, 1, 1864. He would share this annuity with her, and in this way she would be better off than she had ever been before in her life. Madame Pauw had not the courage to reject this strange proposal. She shut her eyes to the dishonesty of the speculation. She was incepable of suspecting the real designs of La Pommerais, dominated as she was by her Pommerais, dominated as she was by her passion for him—a passion now revived, and stronger than ever. She blindly consented to let him arrange the matter as he desired. But La Pommerais took care not to come into direct contact with the insurance companies.
