MORE SMALLPOX

One Case in McGillivray Township, Middlesex—A Halton Militia Man Affected.

Toronto, Ont., July 9. — Three new cases of smallpox are reported today—one in McGillivray township, Middlesex county; one in Nelson township, Halton, and one on Albert street, in this city. The Halton man is a militia man who was out at camp and who did not comply with the vaccination orders.

ANOTHER SCARE.

A more alarming and disastrous outbreak of smallpox is a probability in Ontario next autumn, according to Dr. Hodgetts. Reviewing his inspection of the outbreak in Brant county, the report states that he visited the townships of Burford, Oakland and Windham. Dr. Hodgetts states that he inspected 24 houses where smallpox was supposed to exist. They were inhabited by 154 persons. Of these 98 had smallpox. Of the 154 no less than 81 were unvaccinated. Dr. Hodgetts traced the infection to a house in Brantford, where the person had brought it from London. An unvaccinated girl visited the house and returned to her home in a locality where two-thirds of the settlers were unprotected by vaccination. The report warns medical men and other municipalities that unless greater precautions prevail there will be "in the approaching autumn an outbreak of smallpox more alarming and more disastrous than any seen for some time. Vaccination of all the people, and successfully, should be the order of each municipality in this province," says Dr. Hodgetts. "If this warning is not heeded the future expense incurred in stamping out smallpox will be both great and burdensome in many municipalities. Many from the infected districts attended the circus in Brantford and the Baptist convention in Scotland. This warning is given both to laity and clergy and physicians: Be on the lookout for new cases."

REVISED STREET RAILWAY ASSESSMENT.

Toronto, July 10.—The street railway company paid taxes last year on $90,000, the "scrap iron" basis being used to determine this assessment. This year Commissioner Fleming has assessed it for $1,548,000, the cars being included under a recent judgment of the court of appeals.

HORSE MACKEREL!

A 600-Pound Fish of This Species Caught and Successfully Landed.

Westerly, R. I., July 10. — A horse mackerel, weighing probably 600 pounds, was caught in a pound on Monday off the east beach at Watch Hill. The fish was a lively one, 8 feet long and 5 in circumference, and is the biggest on record for the Rhode Island shore. Its captors had a merry time in getting it. Capt. W. H. Davis, of the Watch Hill life saving station, and Capt. J. B. Young, of the lighthouse, were nearly swamped. Finally Charles Chapman sent a gaff, with a line attached, into the fish, and it was hauled ashore.

BOER RAIDERS LOSING HEART!

The Resisting Burghers Now Are Simply Desperadoes, Says Kitchener.

Invaders Doubtless Were Assisted in Every Way by the Colonial Dutch---Boer Explanation of "Surrenders."

RESISTING BOERS ARE DESPERADOES.

London, July 10.—Last night's Gazette contains a long dispatch from Lord Kitchener dealing chiefly with the pursuit of Dewet from the time of the failure of his attempt on Cape Colony. Lord Kitchener states that the raiders during the last two months have lost heart, and their leaders are able to retain in the field only small bodies of desperate men, who are prepared to adapt themselves to the vicissitudes of

GUERILLA WARFARE AND BRIGANDAGE.

They have, however, undoubtedly received a certain number of recruits from the colonial Dutch, and the friendly feelings of a considerable portion of the rural population assure to them not only an ample supply of food, but also timely information of British movements.

They avoid fighting and cling to rugged, mountainous localities, and Lord Kitchener thinks local troops can frustrate any movements towards the interior of the colony.

A BOER YARN.

Amsterdam, July 9.—Mail advices received here from Boer headquarters in the Transvaal state that the Boers had been embarrassed in their fighting operations by the number of aged and sick unarmed men that accompanied them. As these were unable to fight they were sent unarmed and unmounted to the nearest British posts. These, it is claimed, constitute the surrenders which Lord Kitchener has represented as the fruits of British victories, whereas their capitulation was merely a measure for the better organization of the Boer forces.

LEADERS CONFER.

London, July 10.—A Cape Town dispatch of yesterday's date says: "Four Boer prisoners who were today brought in to Bloemfontein reports that Gens. Botha, Delarey and Dewet recently held a conference at a point on the Vaal River."

280 NATAL REBELS CONVICTED.

Durban, July 9.—Two hundred and eighty Natal rebels have been convicted, and 40 are awaiting trial. Fines to the amount of £2,018 have been paid by those convicted, who have also been disfranchised.

Zululand is quiet. There are evidences that the burghers are sick of fighting, and that their leaders only prevent them from surrendering.

An official of the Transvaal Government, who has just returned from Europe, has expressed himself as being sick of continental methods. He states that Foreign Secretary Grobler, now at The Hague, is drawing £50 a month, and that a staff of clerks and others are also drawing their salaries as usual. Mr. Kruger is besieged with letters and deputations, all of which amount to nothing, and the official contrasts the condition of the Boers in Europe with that of the burghers in the field and in prison.

ESCAPE OF A PRISONER.

New York, July 9.—One of the Boer prisoners recently taken to Derrill's Island, Bermuda, from South Africa, was a stowaway on the steamer Trinidad, which arrived here today. His name is William S. Dupley. Last Friday he escaped by throwing himself in the water of the island. He floated about for hours, finally being picked up by two Bermuda fishermen, who took him to Hamilton. While there the authorities made a search for him, but he eluded his pursuers and induced two stokers aboard the Trinidad to stow him away in the coal bunkers. When the Trinidad arrived here Capt. Fraser was notified. He instituted a search, and found Dupley covered with coal dust and nearly dead from hunger.

In the afternoon Dupley was arraigned before the special board of inquiry. He admitted that he was a Boer soldier, and that he had escaped from the British military prison recently established at Bermuda. His case was deferred until his friends can be heard from.

BOERS NO BETTER THAN SAVAGES.

Ottawa, July 9.—Frank Newney, of the department of the interior, has received a letter from Major Charlie Ross, the famous Canadian scout, who is now in command of the scouts in South Africa. The letter was written from Pretoria on June 4. He says: "I received the rank of major and also the D. S. O. I know you will be pleased to hear this. I can't give any idea when the war is going to end. In fact since the taking of Pretoria (12 months ago) there have been very few real engagements. It is nearly all sniping by the Boers from behind boulders and from kopjes. Any way I intend to see it through. Poor Gat Howard's death! The class of people we have to deal with are supposed to be Christians, but are in reality no better than savages, and as such should be treated."

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

The Endowment Rank Has Deficit of $225,267 Exposures Pending.

Chicago, July 10. — The endowment rank of the Knights of Pythias has a deficit of $225,267. This announcement was made by Supreme Commander Ogden H. Fethers yesterday to the supreme lodge of the order, which has been assembled in this city for the purpose of looking into the affairs of the rank.

Before the rank can legally continue doing business as an insurance institution, this deficit must be made good, and the question of how this is to be done, and the greater one of how the funds of the organization are to be safeguarded in the future, occupied the attention of the supreme lodge officers and representatives all day yesterday and far into the night.

That there has been misappropriation of the funds of the organization by past officers of the endowment was freely charged in the reports, as well as in the meetings yesterday, and there was said to be little doubt that after the supreme lodge had finished dealing with those who are thought to be responsible, the evidence will be laid before the States attorney with a request that it be submitted to the grand jury.

COL. GIBSON HONORED.

Ottawa, July 10.—Hon. Lieut.-Col. J. M. Gibson, of the 13th, Hamilton, and Lieut.-Col. J. Tilton, reserve of officers, have been granted honorary rank of colonel in recognition of services in connection with rifle shooting in D. B.

WILL MAKE ATTEMPT ON SUNDAY NEXT.

Carlisle D. Graham, Formerly of This City, Will Go Over Niagara in a Barrel.

A Niagara Falls dispatch to the New York Sun says concerning Carlisle D. Graham, formerly of London: Carlisle D. Graham, who has made four trips through the wild waters of the Niagara gorge in a barrel of his own construction and who is recognized as the "hero of Niagara," announces that on Sunday next he will once more battle with the waters that knocked the life out of Webb and Flack in their attempt to win notority in the rapids.

Graham has never yet disappointed a crowd that gathered to witness his feat, and he is expecteed to keep his word next Sunday. In making the trip he says he will use the small barrel in which he voyaged on Aug. 25, 1889.

TEACHER STEVENSON'S PROTEST.

Woodstock, July 10.—A. Stevenson, the Collegiate Institute teacher who has been dropped from the staff, writes that the Times has done him injustice in describing him as a pro-Boer. He is in general opposed to war as immoral and un-Christian, and does not except the present war, but says no one has ever heard him uphold the conduct of Kruger and his associates. This has been his stand for many years, as eighteen years ago he won the yearly prize at University College, Toronto, for an essay on war and peace, bearing the title, "Beating Swords into Plowshares."

SMALL COST OF SMALLPOX IN LONDON

Remarkably Economical Management of the Outbreak.

Total Expense Kept Within the Surprisingly Low Sum of Eighteen Hundred Dollars.

Ratepayers who expected a big bill of expense for the smallpox outbreak will be agreeably disappointed, as $1,800 will cover the whole thing, hospital, maintenance and all. This is a surprisingly small total. Assistant City Treasurer Bell made an estimate this morning and placed the cost at $1,749 09, with a couple of small bills yet to be added in. At the beginning of the year the board of health asked for $5,000, thinking that the disease would cost the city that sum, if not more. In Hamilton, where the hospital was established only a few weeks ago, and is now unused, the bills amounted to nearly $2,000. Here it has been in operation since the middle of February.

Dr. Cl. T. Campbell, chairman of the board of health, believes that London has made a record in the matter of economical maintenance of an isolation hospital. No other place in Canada has done anything like so well. In some localities even $1,000 expense has been incurred by a single case. The city is under a debt of gratitude to him and the other members of the board for the exercise of such unusual prudence in an occasion when large-sized bills are considered inevitable; but most credit really belongs to Dr. Hutchinson. He would have been strictly within his legitimate right to have sent a doctor out there, and that would have meant an expenditure of $10 a day at the very least—in Hamilton the salary bill for almost five weeks was $110 a week—but instead, he had a professional male nurse, and a fifth-year medico go out, and supervised the management of the hospital by telephone. When, in serious cases, it was absolutely necessary, he went to the hospital himself. The disinfecting arrangements were of the best, the apparatus being placed in a separate building, where the doctor kept a special suit of clothes, which he donned before entering the main building. This in itself shows an unusual and highly commendable devotion, both to duty and to the city's interests. By this means he saved more than $1,000.

"There is no smallpox here now, of course," Dr. Campbell said this morning, "but we have no intention of abandoning the hospital."

When mention was made of Dr. Hodgetts' (Ontario health officer), statement that the fall would see an alarming outbreak of smallpox in Ontario, Dr. Campbell said:

"Well, we can't say anything about that yet, but we're not going to be caught napping. The hospital stays until we have a new and permanent one, or, at least, until we are sure that the surrounding country is free of the disease, and we can safely dispense with it."

Meanwhile, get vaccinated.

OFFICIAL COUNT WAS ADJOURNED

Two D. R. O.'s Failed to Bring in Their Ballot Boxes.

The official count of the ballots cast in yesterday's bye-election was begun by Sheriff Cameron this morning. He was, however, obliged to adjourn it on account of the neglect of a couple of deputy returning officers, who failed to turn in their ballot boxes. It is doubtful if the figures of the count will materially change the result of the contest.

ALD. WINNETT WILL IGNORE AFFIDAVIT.

Thinks Ald. Cooper Was Too Tardy About Producing Alleged Evidence.

Ald. W. H. Winnett said today that he intended to ignore the Ings declaration read by Ald. Cooper at Monday night's council meeting.

"For weeks," said Ald. Winnett, "I was prepared to meet all of Ald. Cooper's charges; at meeting after meeting I was present with my witnesses, prepared to refute Ald. Cooper's statements. The latter, however, refused to produce the alleged witnesses about which he had talked so much, and, after the matter had been disposed of by the committee, this declaration was sprung on me at the council meeting. This is hardly what one could call fair fighting, and I intend to ignore the matter."

Ings was formerly employed by Ald. Winnett, but was discharged some time ago.

IN SEARCH OF HER ERRANT HUSBAND

London Woman Thinks Faithless Hubby is in Detroit.

A dispatch from Windsor says: "Superintendent of Police Martin, of Detroit, received a call today from Mrs. Bertha Weeks, of London, who is in search of her husband, John W. Weeks. She says he disappeared mysteriously from home some time ago. Mrs. Weeks does not believe she has been deserted, but rather has an idea her husband is under the influence of some other woman. She declined to mention names, but thinks that if the police will help she will be successful in her search in Detroit."

The local police say the man in question is William Weeks, formerly employed at Hueston's livery stable, and until recently living with his wife at a boarding-house near the corner of Dundas and Waterloo streets. Weeks left the city for Detroit over a fortnight ago.

A DAY OF DROWNINGS

Two Young People Meet Death at Detroit.

Baby Fell Into a Cistern—Two Brothers Drowned—Orillia Boy Shot by Companion.

Detroit, July 10.—Clasped in each other's arms, Charles Chene and Rosa Lupa met death in the Detroit River about 10 o'clock Monday evening. The accident occurred in the slip west of Pittman's & Dean's dock. Chene prevailed up' Rosa Lupa, a cook at the River Front Hotel, to accompany him on the river in a rowboat. Owing to the darkness on the dock it seems impossible to tell just how the accident happened. It is conjectured that Chene, who dropped from the dock, a distance of four feet, bid Miss Lupa do likewise, and he would steady her when she landed in the boat. "Help! Help!" was the frantic cry that soon rang out from the front of the dock, and the forms of Chene and Miss Lupa, were seen locked in each other's arms as they sank for the last time. Thomas La Bell, who was fishing nearby, hurried to the wharf, and with the first throw of his fish line, the hook caught in the waist of Rosa Lupa. The bodies came up together still clasped in the embrace of death.

DROWNED IDENTIFIED.

Watertown, N. Y., July 9.—The two bodies found on the shore of Lake Ontario, near Sackett's Harbor, yesterday, have been fully identified as those of Roland Gilds and Lewis Andelfinger, aged 20 and 17 respectively, who were drowned off Oswego, N. Y., June 2, while canoeing. The bodies have been washed 40 miles through the lake before being carried ashore.

BABY DROWNED IN A CREEK.

Brampton, Ont, July 9.—The 2-year-old daughter of Louis Ball, of this town, went down to the creek immediately behind the house today and was drowned.

TWO BROTHERS.

Halifax, July 9.—Two children of Thos. Doucet, Yarmouth county, went in swimming yesterday afternoon in the river. They were aged 8 and 11 years. The youngest child, with his brother, went to his assistance, and both perished.

FATAL DUEL.

Santa Fe., N. M., July 9.—Harry Daley, a health seeker from New York, fought a pistol duel today in a saloon with Julian Arias, of this city. Arias was killed, and Daley so badly wounded that he died within a few hours. A quarrel over a card game precipitated the shooting.

ORILLIA BOY KILLED.

Orillia, Ont., July 9.—Eddie Robinson, the 13-year-old son of Charles Robinson, was accidentally shot through the head and killed by a little companion here today. The latter was playing with a gun, and not knowing it was loaded, he pulled the trigger with a tragic result. Coroner Beaton decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

INJURED BY EXPLOSION.

New York, July 9.—Five men were injured, two of them probably fatally, by an explosion of a storage tank in the Pratt oil works, Brooklyn, today. Two of them—Clarence Murphy and William Fitzpatrick—were burned about the face, hands and head, and were removed to a hospital. The other three men were attended by physicians at the company's works. The extent of their injuries is not known. The damage by the explosion is estimated at from $5,000 to $10,000.

At Burford today (Tuesday) Rev. J. K. Unsworth, pastor of the First Congregational Church, was married to Mrs. McIntyre, of Burford, at the home of her father, Mr. J. M. Keachie.

EASY VICTORY FOR COL. LEYS

Popular Member Returned by a Majority of 1,655.

Yesterday it was not a struggle between Liberal and Conservative on a question of party policy; indeed, it was scarcely an election at all, in the ordinary meaning of the term, but, rather, a plebiscite of the people as to the right or wrong of the course pursued by the member for London. The result was never in doubt. Conservatives and Liberals alike rallied to the support of the man who was independent enough to say, regardless of party ties: "Justice shall be done my constituency;" and the handsome majority of 1,655 upon which Col. Leys returns to Toronto is ample enough vindication of his manly stand in the matter of the Thames fisheries.

When was there ever such an election in London? The "hot-bed of Canadian politics," indeed! Henceforth must we hang our municipal head in shame; for we have voluntary sacrificed our sacred privilege of turning things inside out and painting the landscape crimson on election day. Alas, these be degenerate times! The stranger in London yesterday would never have divined that an election was in progress. Down town there was no unusual stir, and the little groups about the polling places were the only indications that voting was in progress. Not a single meeting had been held by Col. Leys' supporters since the nomination a week previous; not an oratorical gun had been fired in his behalf; so confident were his friends that the great mass of the electors, irrespective of political leaning, would seize the opportunity to show their approval of the independent action of the member for London.

It was a curious election—for London. Even the small boy and his tin horn were absent, and the police had a quiet day and night. As if to be in keeping with the low degree registered by the political thermometer, there came along a welcome cool wave that drove people back to top-coats and heavy underwear. Great crowds gathered in front of The Advertiser office when the returns began to come in, but apart from the smiles with which each new victory of the colonel was greeted, there was no demonstration; and by 6:30 o'clock the street was empty save for the ordinary traffic.

RECEIVING THE RETURNS.

The Advertiser's system of receiving and bulletining the returns was admirable and enabled people down town to learn the result before starting home for supper. The polls closed at 5 o'clock, and a half hour later all the returns had been posted. It is doubtful whether the result of an election in London was ever before made known so speedily. Of course, the light vote polled made the count in most of the subdivisions an easy task. As soon as each deputy-returning officer had completed his recounting, a special Advertiser messenger rushed the result to the office, where it was bulletined a few minutes later.

COL. LEYS SPEAKS.

After the majority of the subdivisions had been heard from, Col. Leys briefly addressed the expectant crowds from a window of The Advertiser editorial rooms. He said:

Fellow Electors,—I thank you for the confidence you have reposed in me again. I regret exceedingly that I was obliged to resign my seat. I did it to get justice to the people of my constituency, and I would do so again if it were necessary. I wish to thank my Conservative as well as my Liberal friends who voted for me. Some cast a Liberal vote for the first time; and I sincerely hope that it will not be the last. (Cheers).

Mr. T. H. Purdom, K.C., spoke briefly. This was the end, he said, of an election that had undoubtedly resulted in a way that was satisfactory to all parties. It had been characterized by good feeling between Conservatives and Liberals. It was the first that had been free of party feeling, and he hoped it marked the end of bitter elections in London. The Conservatives had acted in a manly way indeed, and it was the duty of Liberals to thank them. They had held out peace towards the Reform candidate and the Reform Government, and in this election there were no party issues. The returns showed that Col. Leys was again the member for London, and he hoped that he would remain so for a long time to come. (Hear, hear.) We could be sure, Mr. Purdom concluded that the city's interests were in good hands. (Cheers).

THE VOTE.

Yesterday's vote was probably the lightest polled in London in many years. The reason for this is, of course, at once apparent. It was not due to lack of interest in the issue, but rather to the widespread feeling that Col. Leys' opponent had not the slightest chance to win. Hundreds, indeed, thousands of electors remained away from the polls, not through any lack of sympathy with Col. Leys, but because they considered his election a foregone conclusion. Thus the total vote polled was but 2,703, an astonishingly small figure, when compared to former elections.

OTHER ELECTIONS.

In the provincial election of March 1, 1898, in which Col. Leys defeated Mr. Adam Beck by a majority of 301, a total of 8,050 ballots were cast. Of this total Col. Leys received 3,944—nearly double the entire vote cast yesterday—Mr. Beck, 3,693, Mr. Ashplant, the Socialist candidate, 126, and Mr. Gould, the Canadian Co-operative Commonwealth candidate, 57.

In the Hobbs-Meredith election of 1894 the total vote amounted to 6,407, of which 3,271 were for Meredith and 3,136 for Hobbs.

The total vote by wards in the election of 1898 was as follows:

Critical Periods of Human Life.

[Scottish American.]

From the age of forty to that of sixty, a man who properly regulates himself may be considered in the prime of life. His matured strength of constitution renders him almost impervious to the attacks of disease, and all the functions are in the highest order. Having gone a year or two past sixty, however, he arrives at a critical period of existence. The river of death flows before him and he remains at a standstill. But athwart this river is a viaduct called "the turn of life," which, if crossed in safety, leads to the valley of "old age," round which the river winds, and then flows beyond without a doubt of causeway to affect its passage. The bridge is, however, constructed of fragile material, and it depends upon how it is trodden whither it will break or bend. Gout, apoplexy, and other bad characters, are also in the vicinity to waylay the traveler and thrust him from the pass; but let him gird up his loins, and provide himself with perfect composure. To quote a method, "the "turn of life" has a turn either into a prolonged walk or into the grave. The system and power having reached their utmost expansion, now begin either to close, like flowers at sunset, or break down at once. One injudicious stimulant, a single fatal excitement, may force it beyond its strength, while a careful supply of props and the withdrawal of all that tends to force a plant, will sustain it in its beauty and vigor until night has nearly set in.

STRATHCONA'S ENGLISH HOME

Formerly the Country Seat of the Late Novelist, Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton.

A Most Interesting and Historical Residence—Many Masterpieces of the Great Painters—An Extensive Library.

Recently the Hon. David Mills, Minister of Justice, and Mrs. Mills, were entertained by Lord Strathcona at Knebworth, the English country seat of the late novelist, Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton. Here Lord and Lady Strathcona, and their married daughter, and her husband and children, reside a good deal of the time. Lord Strathcona and Hon. David Mills are old parliamentary and personal friends. To the editor of The Advertiser Mr. Mills writes of the old historic place, as follows:

"Three years have gone by since he obtained the lease from the present Lord Lytton; and as Bulwer Lytton's novels were of a particular type, I felt a good deal of interest in seeing his country seat, for I was very confident that his own mental characteristics would be impressed upon all his surroundings, and in this respect I was not disappointed. The house was erected very early in the sixteenth century, and further additions were made to it shortly after. There is a stone fence or open work, having the appearance of being made of open work and scantling, extending around the house and forming a curtilage. On many of the large stone pillars are placed griffins, covered with scales, and having the most extraordinary appearance, some of them with horns on, and others with birdlike beaks, so that they are calculated to leave upon your mind the impression that you have got back to the days of the Dryads and Hamadryads.

"There is a very beautiful ground lying upon one side of the house or castle, that has been carefully laid out by an expert landscape gardener. There are a good many stone fountains, which are not in active operation, and which are of very handsome designs. There are a number of stone figures standing upon the grounds on high pedestals, but as the climate is damp, many of them have moss growing upon them. But the whole effect is to leave upon your mind the impression that you are really transferred into the kind of world in which the minds of the old cultured Greek characters dwelt. There is a section of the grounds in the forest called by the late proprietor, Edward Bulwer Lytton, 'Horace's Garden,' in which there is a pool known as 'the lake,' perhaps three or four rods in width and ten or fifteen in length. In this I noticed a gigantic swan swimming. I was told he had been there for very many years—fifty, at least. I observed a pretty summer-house on this lakelet, where I was told Lord Lytton used sometimes in the summer season to spend a portion of his time. There is a great deal about the grounds that is very characteristic, and there are still more marks of the individuality of the novelist in the house. In the gallery there is a fine collection of paintings. I noticed over 60 pictures in this gallery, some of them Italian, but most of them the product of Sir Peter Lely and other English painters. There were in this collection a good many of the sovereigns, from the time of Henry VI. downward. I noticed among them Edward VI., William III., Mary, James I., Charles I., Charles II. There were fine portraits of Lucy Waters, Nell Gwynne, Admiral Blake and many others.

"In the second story there is a large reception room containing many beautiful pictures and candelabra of Hindoo art supported by two Hindoo figures. In this room there are some magnificent paintings, and cabinets, or pieces of furniture, made from tortoiseshell, and inlaid with pearls. There are also in this room pictures of Elizabeth and other distinguished personages of the Tudor period. Over another room are hung a good many banners—among those a banner of Henry the Fifth at Agincourt and of Henry the Seventh at Bosworth Field, the banner carried by William the Third at the Boyne, and the very beautiful banner that was presented to the son of Sir Bulwer Lytton (Owen Meredith) when he had proclaimed the Queen Empress of India during the period that he was Viceroy.

"In several of the rooms the walls are covered with very beautiful tapestry of the time of Elizabeth, and we occupied a room known as the room of Elizabeth, in which it is said that she stayed over night during the period that the Spanish Armada threatened landing at Tewksbury. The mantelpiece reaches entirely to the ceiling. It consists of oak most elaborately carved, and is nearly as black as ink with age. The bedstead is also of oak similarly carved, with a carved canopy, supported by figures carved from the oak. There are a great number of beautiful paintings in almost every room of the house, and I noticed in the dressing-room adjoining the one which I have just described, at least forty very fine oil paintings of various persons, and one, set in the ceiling, of some one of the female members of the Lytton family. Everything bears traces of Sir Edward Lytton's taste, and the amount expended upon the pictures must have been very large indeed. The hall from which the stair leads to the next story is covered with ancient shields, spears and matchlock guns and old pistols. There are at least a dozen swords hanging upon the wall, and I noticed three suits of armor besides those in this part of the house.

"The library room is upwards of 30 feet by perhaps 26 or more, and all the shelves are full. Besides the books in the library, I noticed three tiers of shelves in the picture gallery, below the pictures, every one of which was filled with books. I do not know how many volumes there are, but I would say that there are six or eight thousand altogether. I noticed that he had a good many foreign books—French, Spanish, Italian and German—mostly relating to dramatic poetry. There is a very good collection of the English poets from Chaucer down. I suppose these books will remain on the shelves for a good many years to come. Lord Strathcona has a lease of the property for some fourteen years, in addition to the three years that he has already occupied it.

"When you look at these grounds, and this residence, the old armor, the pictures, and all about the place, the impression made upon your mind will be very much the same as that which will be made by reading 'What Will He Do With It?' The story of Guy Darrell was perhaps the story of his life, and in some respects it seems to have been purposeless. He has written a good many books of interest. The two which impressed me as among the best are 'What Will He Do With It?' and 'The Last of the Barons.' You see indications of refined taste, somewhat oriental in its magnificence, the expenditure of large sums of money in its gratification, and you muse over the disappearance of the man who was for a time its proprietor.

"This estate is beautifully situated. The country around is in a very high state of cultivation, and the landscape very fine. Lord Strathcona told me that when he came into possession the herd of deer upon the estate numbered upwards of seventy. Now I think there are about twice this number. I give you this sketch of the residence of one who was one of the great imaginative writers of our own times, and as colonial secretary was regarded as a successful administrator and a statesman of more than average ability. This estate is in the county of Hereford, and about thirty miles from London, a few miles beyond Hatfield House, and is reached by the same line of railway."

Sweet Songs of Stephen C. Foster Are Still Heard in Every Civilized Land.

The songs most sung throughout the United States today, and the only American songs known in other civilized lands, are those of Stephen C. Foster, who died almost 40 years ago, writes John Habberton in the Literary Era. Foster left more than 150 songs, of which the melodies as well as the words were his own. That not all of them are remembered should not surprise anyone, for what lover of music cannot count on the fingers of one hand all the really "popular" songs of some great composers.

But to count all of Foster's songs that have retained their place in the affections of two generations and bid fair to live forever, one must use all his fingers, and thumbs, and borrow some extra digits from his friends. Exclude, if you will, Foster's songs in lighter vein, such as "Oh, Susanna," which took the world by storm, and to the music of which scores of other songs have been "set," and his wartime songs, like "We Are Coming, Father Abraham," which hundreds of thousands of ex-soldiers still sing, roar or croak, there still remain many others of his compositions which the traveler may hear in every civilized part of the world.

Foster's "Old Folks at Home" is the most popular song in existence. It has been translated into all the languages of Europe, and also into some of Asia and the isles of the sea. The lines are poetic only in the sense of suggestion; they are so simple and artless that it would seem that any school child could pen them and improve upon them, but they express the sentiment of every homesick man or woman that ever lived.

There is an oft-told story of a regiment of troops, with pay overdue four months, that was overtaken by the paymaster just as it reached a camp near a great city, in which everything was "wide open." Many of the men, with their pockets full of money, "broke guard," and returned to camp in a condition prejudicial to good order and military discipline. The guard themselves became untrustworthy, good men though they had been on the march and in battle; the sober men of the regiment strove unsuccessfully to restrain the uncontrollable, the colonel gravitated between slaughter and suicide, when suddenly the leader of the band asked permission to try his hand on the disturbing element. Grouping his musicians in the center of the camp, he started "The Old Folks at Home," and played unceasing for half an hour, when the officer of the guard reported that the camp was entirely quiet, even the most uproarious drunkards having wept themselves to sleep.

Several songs that have long survived the author, as well as the "peculiar institution" that suggested them, were reflections of slave life. Among them is "Old Black Joe," Of this it may be said in passing that when Wilhelmj, the virtuoso violinist, first reached the United States, he went at once, with a great enthusiasm and a small English vocabulary, to a music store and demanded the score of something which he called "Black Jack." The man at the counter knew no musical piece with that name, and not even Wilhelmj's card stimulated his memory.

"Ach, himmel!" exclaimed the virtuoso. "Gif me a violin."

The instrument was brought. Wilhelmj looked at it suspiciously and sniffed sarcastically at each chord that responded to the tuning keys, but when the instrument had been brought to its best the violinist forgot it and himself as he drew the bow and brought forth some recollections of the music of which he was in search. They were not entirely according to score, but when he stopped and asked:

"Know you not that divine air?" the answer came chorally from twenty throats, "Old Black Joe."

"Ach, so! That will I play to the Americans. When they know it not, they are beasts."

Wilhelmj's "first night" went slowly, though he played morceaus of the masters with faultless technique. Not to capture a first night audience is equivalent to a defeat. Wilhelmj was mortified and angry, but he gave the American barbarians one more chance. He played "Old Black Joe," and his fortune was made.

The secret of Foster's popularity is in the wedding of words and sentiment to music, so that the "blend" pleases and satisfies, and the sentiment is recalled whenever the music is heard. Poetry is read but little in comparison with sentimental prose, as many publishers will testify sadly, but songs that have stood the test of almost half a century of use might be named. Among them are "My Old Kentucky Home," "There's a Good Time Coming," "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," "Nellie Bly," and "Gentle Annie." But enough has been said to show that the best known and best loved song writer in the world came not from any great musical center of Europe, but from a town that in Foster's day was "'way out west" in the United States, and that the author was a unique combination of manly sentiment and musical genius.

Once or twice a year the good housewife has a thorough house cleaning. The house has been swept and dusted every day in the year, but the housewife knows that in spite of vigilance dust accumulates in cracks and corners, and is only to be removed by special effort.

It's the same way with the body. You look after it every day. You take all the ordinary precautions of cleanliness and health. Yet the body needs its special cleaning to rid it of the accumulations of waste and poisonous matter which invite disease. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, taken regularly once or twice a year, would save many a sickness. It purifies the blood, strengthens the stomach, and cleanses the body of poisonous accumulations.

"Last spring I had a severe attack of pneumonia, which left me with a bad cough, and also left my lungs in a very bad condition," writes John M. Russell, Esq., of Brent, Cherokee Nat., Ind. Ter. "I had no appetite and was so weak I could scarcely walk. My breast was all sore with running sores. I got two bottles Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I believe saved my life. I cannot express my gratitude to you. I am able now to do very good work."

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

A statement which appeared in your columns to the effect that Christian Scientists are barred from membership in the Royal Arcanum, I find, upon due inquiry, to be untrue, and I beg that you will make this correction. A resolution bearing on the matter was framed by the Grand Council of the Royal Arcanum for New Jersey, who submitted the question for the consideration of the supreme council of the order at its recent convention in Asheville, N. C., but the latter body took no action upon it; whole, on the contrary, many insurance men have stated their opinion that Christion Scientists would be the very best class of risks.

AN IMPOSTER SENT TO JAIL

Alleged "Evangelist" Who Will Grace Toronto Prison.

A Hint to Mothers to Watch Girls Who Are Exposed to Wolves in Sheep's Clothing.

Toronto, July 10.—A pious fraud of a peculiarly dangerous sort was unmasked at police court yesterday morning. A few days ago George Pierce, who is connected as part evangelist part caretaker with the Twentieth Century Gospel Tent on Parliament street, was arrested on a charge of kicking out the front teeth of David When Pierce was searched letters were found on him of a very questionable sort, together with the addresses of youg girls who had been attending the meetings. One of these was read in court, as follows:

"I will take you to the States for a trip to my home and will pay all expenses. I will treat you well, and you will be my own if you only love me." only love me."

Pierce said he had drafted the letter but had not sent it to anyone. He was sent to jail for 60 days on the assault case, and his career as an evangelist in Toronto is at an end.

LED A DOUBLE LIFE.

Windsor, Ont., July 10.—A strange story of a double life, with a Philadelphia woman as one of the principles, has just come to light. About ten weeks ago a male passenger on the Niagara, St. Catharines and Thorold Railway fell from a moving train and was instantly killed near St. Catharines. Papers found on his person showed him to be A. B. Gould, a resident of Midland, Mich. In response to a telegram a woman, claiming to be Mrs. Gould, arrived at St. Catharines and took charge of the remains, shipping them to Midland for interment.

Nothing was heard of the case until Monday, when Postmaster Lawry, of St. Catharines, received a letter from Philadelphia, written by a woman, claiming to be the wife of A. B. Gould, and asking for information as to the cause of her husband's death and disposition of the body. The fact that the Philadelphia wife claims to hold a life insurance policy from Gould lends ground for belief that the dead man had lived a dual life. Meantime the body rests in the little cemetery at Midland, but whether it will be permitted to remain there depends upon the substantiation of the Philadelphia wife's claim.

A SLICK FRAUD!

Palms Himself Off at Niagara Falls as Sir Wilfrid's Private Secretary.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 8.—A slick-looking French-Canadian, speaking broken English, about 5 feet 10 inches high, and 33 years of age, with a smooth face, florid complexion and glossy dark brown hair, stepped off the New York Central train Saturday morning about 9 o'clock, claiming to have come from New York. He reported to Detective Magwood, of the New York Central, that he had been robbed of his purse containing $125 and his return ticket to New York city, just as the train was pulling into the Falls, N. Y., depot. He gave his name as A. C. McDonald, of New York, claiming he was in the employ of MacDonald Brothers, contractors, of New York.

The man next turned up at the International Hotel, Niagara Falls, N. Y., Saturday evening about 7 o'clock. He told the proprietor that he was Mr. Boudreau, private secretary for Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and that he was sent there by Sir Wilfrid to arrange for a suite of rooms for Sir Wilfrid and party, who were down at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York.

Then he went to the Hotel Lafayette, on the Canadian side, where he secured a whole flat for Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his party, consisting of Hon. David Mills, Hon. J. I. Tarte and Sir Louis Davies, and a nice cool room for himself (private secretary, M. Boudreau, overlooking the falls). After securing the rooms he informed Mr. Williams that he would wire Mr. Laurier, who was at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, and for that purpose would cross the bridge to Niagara Falls, N. Y., returning in about two hours. The adventurer, after being absent for a while, returned to the hotel, and retired for the night. This morning, Mr. Williams, who was not entirely satisfied with the man's representations, reported the matter to Chief of Police Mains. On being arrested the fellow acknowledged that his stories were fakes. Several forged telegrams were also found in his possession. He subsequently gave his name as Arthur M. Laudry, of Montreal, and his occupation as waiter in hotels and on boats. Papers found on his person give that name, and show that he has been at the Queen's Hotel, Toronto, and the Royal Hotel, Hamilton, recently.

FELL INTO BOILING MUD!

Mother and Daughter Met a Serious Accident in Yellowstone Park.

Helena, Mont., July 9.—A report from Mammoth Hot Springs is that two women whose names are unknown met with a shocking accident while inspecting the boiling mud "paint pots" at the Thumb on Yellowstone Lake, in the National Park, Saturday afternoon.

The women, a mother and her daughter, who entered the park by the Monida route, fell into the natural caldron where the boiling mud was waist deep, and could only be rescued with difficulty. They were taken by boat to the Lake Hotel, where a physician said their injuries might prove fatal.

A German tourist, who was parboiled by an eruption of "Old Faithful," while looking into the crater, is recovering. The accident occurred five weeks ago, and for a time it was thought he would die.

It is Not a Stimulant But a Tonic You Need

Hosts of people do themselves irreparable harm and shorten their lives by many years by the use of Stimulating drugs to whip up the exhausted nervous system and keep the machinery of the body working. Others get temporary relief from nervous headaches and body pains by the use of deadening and nerve-destroying narcotics. Both of these treatments mean death to the nervous system and hasten the approach of paralysis and insanity.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a protest against these old-fashioned and villainous methods of treatment. Unlike any other medicine you have ever used, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new red corpuscles in the blood and creates new nerve tissue to replace that destroyed by overwork and disease. It is impossible to obtain a more effective treatment for nervous disorders than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food because it gradually and naturally restores the wasted nerve cells and rebuilds the system. It is the up-to-date remedy for weakness and disease resulting from exhausted nerves.

London, Wednesday, July 9.

Tuesday's Election.

The Advertiser called on the citizens of London to elect Col. Leys, as an indorsement of his stand in favor of equal fishing rights in the Thames. It asked the electors, irrespective of party, to uphold his hands on this particular issue.

The vote cast was naturally not great, though large enough for a dog-day polling. Ballots to the number of 2,703 were marked—2,179 for Col. Leys; 524 for his opponent, Mr. Darch; a majority for the Colonel of 1,655.

The Conservatives of London showed good judgment and consideration in not putting a candidate in the field for the representation of the single remaining session of the Legislature. The same may be said of the Trades and Labor Council. The Socialists, we cannot but think, would have done better for themselves had they also refrained.

The best feature of the contest was its urbanity and good nature, which, we trust, may mark future contests of every kind.

The views of Col. Leys in favor of fair play in the matter of fishing privileges in the Thames, have been sustained by a large majority of those who yesterday voted. Had it been important, the majority could have been greater.

The dog-days and the River Thames can now flow on.

Colonial Administration.

An interesting study of colonial administration is to be found in connection with the five countries—Britain, France, Germany, Holland and Belgium—each of which has its colonial department with a thoroughly equipped force, largely made up of men who have had long experience in the colonies. Mr. Austin, the chief of the Bureau of Statistics of the United States, made some important observations that are worth noticing, during a recent trip to Europe. He states that in England the Colonial Office of the home government exchanges at intervals its employes, as far as practicable, with the colonies, thus obtaining practical and experienced men in the home office, and keeping a corps of men in training in the colonies. In the Netherlands, whose colonial work is a matter of pride on the part of every citizen of the country, the head of the Colonial Department has had long experience in Java, the principal colony of that country, and one which has been eminently successful. In France the Colonial Department is extremely active, obtaining large numbers of reports from its colonial officers, and distributing information by a specially organized bureau for that purpose. Similar interest in affairs colonial is manifested by the governments of Germany and Belgium.

The Governments of all the countries mentioned encourage the study of colonial conditions and growth. The French Government goes so far as to provide an educational institution devoted exclusively to studies concerning the colonies with the view to preparing men for colonial service. A training somewhat similar is afforded by Great Britain and the Netherlands. In many of the countries possessing dependencies there are museums in which colonial products are exhibited. A government statistical service is also maintained, whereby the commerce of the colonies is carefully studied. The amount of import and export trade between the mother country and any particular colony can be thus ascertained. Such and other important information concerning the status of the colonies is at the hands of merchants and prospective settlers.

Why Celebrate.

On the 4th of this month a newspaper man took a stroll through a number of streets in New York city, where "celebrating" was going on in full force. He asked the children their reasons for firing off fire-crackers and other explosives. The answers he received betrayed a woeful ignorance of the great national event which is yearly commemorated on the 4th of July. The instance also shows up a great defect in the teaching of the schools. The neglect to inculcate a sound, though not necessarily extensive knowledge of the great events connected with a nation's history, is inexcusable.

In Canada we also have our days of celebration. The 24th of May, 1st of July, Labor Day, and so on, are occasions when, for the largest part of our population, work is set aside and the pent-up spirits are permitted to explode in some sort of pyrotechnic or other outburst. It is only fit and proper that the rising generation, who are now in the public schools, should be drilled on the historical significance of these days. The day might be made a great aid to the teaching of history, and the proper understanding of the particular historical event would, for the more reflective minds at least, greatly add to the enjoyment and satisfaction of the day's outing

The British Liberal Party.

It was inevitable the South African war should temporarily disorganize the Liberal party of Great Britain. The war once over, disintegration will in turn attack the Government side. There is seldom as much enthusiasm for the burnt stick as for the flaring rocket. What is needed is for the British Liberals to hold together till the close of the war, when long-delayed domestic issues will come to the front; and we fancy Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman is the best temporary leader available. The resolution of confidence in him recently adopted was the right thing at the right time.

The End of Senate Obstruction.

It is known that several Senators usually counted Conservatives can be no longer depended on to oppose the Government. There may be additional changes before next February, when the House meets; but even as it stands the long reign of Opposition obstruction by means of the Senate majority has practically come to an end. The most important measure for next session, or the session following, will be the redistribution bill, following the census. It is matter for thankfulness that in this and other matters it will no longer be possible for the Opposition in the Senate to mutilate the measures of the Government and thwart the will of the people.

Important Convention at Detroit.

In business matters, "Move on" seems to be written everywhere. It is proposed to hold a convention in Detroit, probably in the fall, composed of delegates from various branches of industry and from commercial organizations, to discuss foreign trade relations of the United States.

It is believed by many that the people of the United States have received all the benefits derivable from the protective system introduced some years ago, and that the time has come for freer trade relations with foreign countries. This means that they have outgrown the protective system; and as they reach out for foreign trade they find these countries not willing to have all the restriction on one side, and all the freedom on the other. If they expect to trade with foreign countries, they must do so on terms fair to both countries.

It would look as if there was much reason for this course. Protection has accomplished all it can for home manufacture, and the manufacturers ought to be able to hold their home market against all comers. Why, then, should they not make with other countries such terms as will enable them to obtain a larger foreign trade?

The time England most needs to fear the United States is when they lower their tariffs and practically become a revenue tariff country. This is a belief held by many, and if true as regards England, it will be equally true of other countries.

Certainly the sky has changed in the United States in more respects than one during the past few years. Their interests, as a nation, are becoming world-wide; and they begin to see that in trade with foreign countries there must be give as well as take. To promote such ideas seems to be the purpose of the Detroit convention. It will produce a very interesting discussion, and will doubtless result in action in keeping with the large world-wide life on which the nation has entered. It will be full of interest to Canada.

Automobile Routes.

The use of the automobile in Chicago is about to be extended beyond the mere convenience of the wealthy private citizen, to the use of the general public. Different routes through the city are being located for automobile omnibuses, which will run at stated intervals on about the same system as the electric car. They have one advantage over the trolley in the fact that they do not need a special track. A good level pavement is all that is needed. The particular automobiles which are to be in use in Chicago are provided with upper decks, which will, of course, add greatly to their popularity in the warm season.

The Passing of an Historian.

The death of John Fiske removes from the commonwealth of letters one of America's most noted historians. His life was one of prolonged mental activity, his earlier work being chiefly in the broad realm of philosophy. In 1874 he published a volume entitled, "Our Lines of Cosmic Philosophy, Based on the Doctrine of Evolution." It might be also stated that he was an enthusiastic and consistent advocate of Darwin's and Spencer's ideas on organic evolution. As an historian he is by some given a prominent place alongside of Parkman. Though not Parkman's equal in artistic beauty of diction, in breadth of knowledge and sympathy he had no superior among American historians.

Speaking of him, the Chicago Tribune has the following:

"Professor Fiske was familiarizing Americans with the history of their country from the date of its discovery. He had the faculty of infusing human interest into the driest periods. His historical knowledge was encyclopedic, yet with his great powers of memory he also had a rare judgment that enabled him to tell the interesting things and leave out the rest. He wrote history as a good novelist writes stories. While his work was not always free from error, it was in the main remarkably reliable. He did not aim at the brilliancy of Macaulay or Froude, but he was more just and more accurate. His tolerant spirit, his kindly but judicial attitude, and his clear and natural English make his books delightful reading."

John Fiske is said to have been one of the most unassuming and genial of men. He was capable of protracted intellectual effort, as the amount and quality of work he did testifies.

And now the "ankle bug." Cleveland is its habitat. It makes for low shoes and open-work hosiery, and its bite is said to be so severe that the swelling sometimes extends to the knee.

A Maine storekeeper issued the following advertisement before the 4th of July:

"Every good boy and girl under 15 years of age who will call at the office of Homer's Express at 7 o'clock 4th of July morning will receive one bunch of elegant fire-crackers free."

We judge that the Maine village must have nothing but good boys and girls, as every boy and girl in the village called for the fire-crackers. The only Canadian parallel in the way of universal juvenile goodness is the assiduous attendance at Sunday schools for the week or two preceding the picnics.

The number of people who do not know that a tree is the last thing to take refuge under during a thunderstorm appears to be maintained at the usual average, says the Springfield Republican. A New Jersey boy, acting as caddy on a golf field, thus went to his death Friday. A day or two before that a Pennsylvania man and wife and two or three children were killed by lightning striking the tree under which they had gone to escape the rain. A newly-married couple in Connecticut some days ago were struck in like manner and the wife was killed. Several other fatal accidents of the kind have been reported within a week or two from various parts of the country. Somewhat like unto a tree are the piles upon which wharves are built, sinking as they do into wet soil and being well soaked; and to this fact doubtless is due the death of eleven men and boys in Chicago by a single lightning stroke, they having gone under the wharf to escape the storm.

Glasgow University and the Pope.

[British Weekly.]

The courteous address which the principal, professors and students of Glasgow University sent to the pope, recalling the fact that the institution of the university was due to Pope Nicholas V., has been briefly but cordially acknowledged by the Holy Father in a communication to the principal. The pope, who is delighted at receiving the address, which he describes as a noble act, prays God to direct in the way of truth all the works of others of the university. This remarkable message is probably the first communication that has passed between the Vatican and a Scottish University since the reformation.

The Commercial Metropolis.

[Montreal Witness.]

The figures quoted by Mr. R. S. White, collector of customs, yesterday, very clearly prove that Montreal continues to hold her commanding position in the commerce of the country. Out of a total custom collection last year of $29,000,000 for the whole Dominion, more than $9,000,000 was collected at this port, or upwards of 30 per cent. There is collected at this port 75 per cent more revenue than is collected at the next largest port in the country. Last year the number of duty-paid entries was 169,724, an increase over the preceding year of 2,499. The total cost of administration last year was about 1.61 per cent of the revenue, a proof of very praiseworthy economy.

The Favorite Book.

[Springfield Republican.]

Boswell's "Johnson" suffers under the sad disadvantage, as compared with many other classics, that it can never have a "revival," because it is always in demand. Moreover, it is not merely one of the books that no gentleman's library should be without, but a book that people read. There are few classics so seductive, so easy to dip into, regardless of where one may open. So while one never hears of a Johnson revival, new editions are always coming out, some of them very elegant, and J. M. Dent, of London, to whom we are indebted for so many choice specimens of book-making, is to bring out a sumptuous edition, in which the different houses occupied by Johnson are shown in colored photogravures. The introduction is to be by Austin Dobson.

The Trolley's Widening Field.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.]

The field of the electric railway is constantly broadening. At first confined to large cities, the trolley lines have been made the connecting links between towns and villages, and the building of interurban roads is one of the most thriving fields for promoters at present. A still further movement was made along the inevitable line of progress when the Metropolitan railway established an express service over all its roads in New York city. The use of this swiftest and most economical means of urban transportation known will be applied to freight as heretofore to passengers, and all the indications are that the new venture will be equally as successful as the old.

The electric railway is one of the devices that are made in response to the imperative demands of increasing population. The growth of the cities made it indispensable that a safe, swift, convenient and cheap system of transportation be devised. The old style vehicles were too costly, too slow and likewise cumbered the streets. The railway, with its steel roadbed and its right of way, satisfied the requirements of moving an immense number of people at the minimum cost in the minimum time, and with the greatest safety and comfort. The substitution of electricity as the motive power for animals and steam was another revolution that has solved many of the most vexing problems of the crowded municipality.

The interurban lines, particularly those around Cleveland, have already gone extensively into the carrying of freight, chiefly milk and butter and garden products. In the nature of things, business is bound to grow, for steam railroad facilities are inadequate to the increasing demands.

LONDON LETTER

Improved Social Conditions in the Last Fifteen Years.

Canadian Visitors—Delegates to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council—Mr. Chamberlain Entertains.

[Special Correspondence.]

London, June 26, 1901.

Fifteen years have elapsed since I was last in the center of the British Empire. It is a comparatively short time, yet a great deal has happened in the interval. Despite the comparative slowness with which great changes have been brought about, the changes have, nevertheless been effected. London is better governed today than it was then. The interests of the poor, of the workers, are more carefully attended to. The sanitary conditions of the great city have been vastly improved. There are fewer street beggars, flaunting one in the face, apparently less drinking to excess than there was fifteen years ago. I do not, of course, desire to minimise either the poverty or the degradation that still is known to exist, and that in the overcrowded slums is met with to an extent that ought to alarm the public and call for further ameliorating agencies. What I say is, that despite the large increase in the population in recent years, the British metropolis is, judging by appearances, freer from crime, from poverty, degradation and vice, including drunkenness than it was fifteen years ago. There is room for improvement. The saloons, gorgeous in their magnificence, and the bars operated almost entirely by attractive young women, are still open almost night and day, even on Sundays, and vicious women are still permitted to openly flaunt there brazenfacedness on all leading thoroughfares. In these respects, both in London, and in every other city and town of the United Kingdom, they still lag far behind Canada, and it is very difficult indeed to secure an advance on the present conditions. Measures with this object in view are brought before parliament every session; there are several "hung up" there now; but that is about all the result attainable, so strongly entrenched are vested interests.

FEWER CASES OF ABJECT POVERTY,

CANADIAN VISITORS

are plentiful this year. They include ministers of the crown, senators and ordinary mortals like your correspondent. The earliest to arrive was the energetic minister of agriculture (Hon. Sydney Fisher), who has divided his time between conferring with the imperial authorities and promoting the interests of Canada by way of the exhibition at Glasgow. The Dominion has made a most favorable impression through its exhibition in that city, and Mr. Fisher, in his public addresses, has turned it to good account in bringing before the British public the splendid field that presents itself in Canada for the farming classes, as well as for men with money who desire to promote the development of the undoubted great natural resources of our country. On all hands, I hear warmly commended. Canada's exhibit at Glasgow has been most favorably noticed by the Scottish press. For some reason or another, the English papers have had very little to say about this really fine exposition. They seem almost to have conspired to ignore it. Why, I cannot say. Surely they are not jealous of the progress of Scotland's commercial capital, which, by its latest enterprise, has once more emphasized the old saying that "Saint Mungo is hard to ding."

MR. FISHER'S ADDRESSES

Another minister who has been kept busy saying is Hon. David Mills, Dominion minister of justice, who is here as the delegate of his country at the imperial conference on the question of the proposed reconstitution of the judicial committee of the Privy Council. The assembling of this conference was delayed till today, owing to the late arrival of the delegate from New Zealand, but its important labors will, no doubt, now be duly proceeded with. It is hard to say what will be the result, and anyway, some time must elapse before a decision is reached, as the body now assembled is merely consultative, and its members will have to report to their various governments before final action is taken. Mr. Chamberlain has thrown out the suggestion that it might be in the interests of the empire as a whole if the British Privy Council were to be augmented by the appointment of four new members—one from Canada and one from each of the other great self-governing auxiliary kingdoms of the empire. His view is that these new members should be learned jurists, specially qualified to aid the judicial committee of the Privy Council to deal with colonial appeals, that they should be appointed lords of appeal, with seats in the House of Lords, and be eligible for re-appointment after serving a term of seven years on the committee. What view the committee will adopt it is, of course, impossible to say. There is certainly room for differences of opinion, though it might be a very good thing to have the scope of the judicial committee of the so as to enable the imperial authorities, as opportunity arises, to call in the services of such eminent jurists and authorities on international constitutional laws as, say, Hon. Edward Blake and Hon. David Mills, it may be questioned if it would be wise to lay down a hard and fast line as to appointments of this sort. It may be better not to in any way tie the hands of the authorities. The judicial committee of the Privy Council is an evolution from a very ancient system, as all of the British courts of law practically are, and it has worked so well so far as a supreme court of appeal in all disputes from the outlying portions of his majesty's empire, that it will be well if the present conference recognizes the fact, as from their eminent qualifications I believe they will do, in making any recommendations to the imperial authorities on this important subject. In any case, it is not likely that any final decision will be arrived at without the consideration of both the Imperial and Dominion Parliaments.

THE CONFERENCE,

began its sittings at noon today at the Colonial Office, the Lord Chancellor presiding, and all the delegates being in attendance. It may be interesting to note the personality of this imperial body. Of Hon. David Mills, the Canadian representative, I need say nothing to your readers. They are well aware, as all Canadians and many politicians are, of his high standing as a statesman and as a jurist. And here in the center of the empire his fame as the author of the most fair and complete work on "The British in Africa" had preceded him. The delegate from Newfoundland is Mr. Justice Emerson, a well known member of the supreme court. Australia sends Mr. Justice Hodges of the supreme court, while New Zealand finds a most suitable representative in Sir James Pendergast, late chief justice. Cape Colony has followed the example of Canada, and has sent its attorney-general, Hon. J. Rose-Innes, who is also an experienced statesman, having been in public life for nearly 20 years, a great portion of the time as a minister of the crown. The sister African colony of Natal is represented by Sir William Boase Morcom, K.C., a member of the Legislative Assembly. Another delegate is Sir William James Smith, chief justice of British Guiana, and formerly occupying the same post in the Island of Cyprus, who was selected by the secretary of state for the colonies to represent the other colonies. India has a special representative, appointed by the secretary of state for that great section of the empire, in the person of Sir John Edge, who is at present a member of the Council of India, but prior to 1898 was for years chief justice of the high court of judicature in the Northwest Provinces of India. Despite the fact that he is one of the busiest parliamentarians, Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain evinced the great interest that he takes in the deliberations of the conference by attending the first meeting and sitting through the entire deliberations.

This evening Mr. Chamberlain

ENTERTAINED THE DELEGATES TO DINNER,

and on the 10th of July they will dine with Lord Aberdeen, president of the Atlantic Union. Indeed, the social element is thoroughly prevalent in London these days. "The season" is at its height, and everywhere the anniversary dinners and other celebrations are being held, and the visiting delegates find it difficult to satisfy the many friends who desire to do them honor. Lords, dukes, barons and knights and their good wives and daughters are vieing with each other in their efforts to make the stay of the visitors pleasant, and all the time that can be spared from the real business of the day is devoted to social entertainment. Prominent among those who have given or are about to give receptions of this nature are the Earl and Countess of Derby, the Earl and Countess of Aberdeen, the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, Lord Strathcona, Mr. Gilbert Parker, M.P., Hon. Edward Blake, M.P., Lord Aberdare, Right Hon. Mr. Chamberlain, the Master of Wardens of the Worshipful Company of Ironmongers, the Prince Wardens and Wardens of the Worshipful Goldsmiths' Company, Lord Lansdowne, the Colonial Club and so on.

Parliament sets the

here, so long as Parliament sits—and it bids fair to sit till the shooting opens on July 12. Just so long will London society of all classes remain in the city and swelter, when the sun can force his rays through the cloud of dusty smoke. Then when Parliament rises, hundreds of thousands of society belles and their male friends hie them out of the hearing of Bow Bells, and Mayfair is deserted till the gloomy days of November approach. They pay more attention here to the summer law-makers than do Canadians.

LEMONS FOR THE TOILET.

Few women nowadays but know the value of lemons, and the fruit is so cheap that the toilet table should not be without this "little yellow doctor," as some call it. Lemon juice is whitening, either for the hands, neck or face. A piece of lemon rubbed on the teeth removes the discoloration, but the teeth must be brushed afterwards or the acid will injure them. A piece of lemon tossed in the wash water is refreshing and likewise softens the water.—Chicago Chronicle.

THE MARKETS.

Wheat, red, per bu	67c to 69c
Oats, per bu	32c to 33c
Peas, per bu	54c to 66c
Corn, per bu	44c to 45c
Barley, per bu	42c to 44c
Beans, per bu	$1 15 to $1 40

WEEKLY REVIEW.

The grain market has been very small this week. Receipts consisted of oats and wheat almost entirely. There is no alteration noticeable in the wheat situation. Locally the reports continue discouraging, but are more than balanced by the favorable news of the growing crops in our own Northwest, other parts of Ontario, and the majority of the wheat producing countries. This has prevented an advance in prices. We believe, if anything, the tone is easier. The latest sales were made at $1 13 to $1 15.

Oats—This cereal has advanced considerably the last few days, 95c to $1 being the prices, the majority of sales being made at 98c to $1. Receipts were very light and the demand strong, and almost entirely from private parties.

One small lot of corn sold at 85c.

No other kind of grain came in.

Hay—Receipts were uneven, some days unequal to the demand. Prices advanced $2 per ton on new. Very little old came in.

Dressed hogs brought $9 to $9 25, mostly the latter; the demand was good and the supply light.

Live hogs sold at $7. This week's receipts were smaller than usual.

Wool was steady, at 14c, and in good demand.

CURIOUS TANGLE

Margaret McCormick Married Son and Father—Children of Both Unions in Law Suit—Figuring Out Relationship.

Windsor, Ont., July 10.—Judge Horne has had a case before him for two days, listed as McVety vs. Dunn. It is an action for $200, which the plaintiff claims for goods alleged to belong to her.

Margaret McCormick, of Malden, many years ago married James Dunn, jun., by whom she had several children, one of whom is Mrs. William McVety, of Sandwich, the plaintiff in the suit now pending.

When James Dunn, jun., died, his widow, who resided on James Dunn, sen.'s farm, had to marry her father-in-law or be left penniless with a large family. She chose marriage as the preferable alternative. Her second husband, James Dunn, sen., lived only five years after his marriage, but left two children, John and George.

Mrs. Dunn, then having two families to take care of, married Pat Laracey.

"When we were small," said John Dunn in court, "Pat pounded us, and when we grew up we turned the scales on him and made things so unpleasant that he left home, and we have heard nothing of him for fourteen years. We took care of our mother during her last illness, and now one of her children, Mrs. McVety, by her first marriage, is sueing us for a few household goods she left."

According to one way of figuring out relations, Mrs. McVety is suing her half-brothers, John and George Dunn. They are also her uncles.

"I thought I understood this relationship last night," said his honor, "but I confess today that I am all tangled up with it. It's too intricate for me to give a decision just now."

PRINCE GALITZIN DIES A PAUPER!

Was Only 33 Years Old, But Had Wrecked Family and Fortune and Died Mad and Friendless.

New York, July 10.—Prince Alexandrovitch Galitzin, descendant of a long line of Russian nobles, and once well known in New York society, has died in Bloomingdale Asylum, White Plains, a pauper, and has been buried in the Catholic Cemetery in White Plains, the Russian consul making the arrangements.

Prince Galitzin was only 33 years old. Eleven years ago he arrived from Europe and went to Washington, where he became an attache of the Russian embassy. At the national capital he represented the Russian embassy at many social functions. He lived on a small allowance sent him by a sister in Moscow.

In December, 1894, a sale of the Galitzin family heirlooms and treasures was advertised. The young prince explained that he had decided to dispose of valuables left by his mother. The collection was shown at an auction room uptown, and the police were detailed to keep in line the people who gathered while the articles were in view.

On the day of the sale, every seat in the auction room was taken. Competition among society folk for the Galitzin heirlooms was keen.

The first day's sale was a success, and the bidders were departing when a detective served on Prince Alexandrovitch a supreme court summons and complaint. Henri de Gasne, a Parisian dealer, had brought suit for 125,000 francs, the value of diamonds bought by the young Russian nobleman and not paid for. Then the charge was made that the Galitzin collection then on sale was bogus. The sale on the second day fell flat.

Deaths of a Day.

Frank Renz, noted circus man, is dead near Hamburg Germany.

John Burk, aged 102 years 9 months, believed to be the oldest man in Indiana, died at Lake Cicott, near Logansport, July 3. He was born in Tipperary in 1799, and came to America in 1848.

Mrs. Sarah Belle Tanner Taylor, wife of William S. Taylor, ex-governor of Kentucky, but for more than a year a resident of Indianapolis, died early today, aged 40 years.

IT HAS MANY OFFICES.—Before the German soldier starts on a long march he rubs his feet with tallow, for his first care is to keep his feet in good condition. If he knew that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil would be of much better service he would throw away his tallow and pack a few bottles of the Oil in his knapsack. There is nothing like it.

Duke of Newcastle in a Bicycle Accident—Many Deaths and Prostrations From Heat in Europe.

UNDERBID THE AMERICANS.

GREAT HEAT IN EUROPE.

Great heat extends throughout Western Europe, from Spain to Scandinavia. Heat prostrations are reported from many points. MR. MULOCK IN LONDON.

There are now six Canadian ministers of the cabinet in London. Mr. Fisher intends to return at the end of the week.

READY TO COMPENSATE HIM.

The home secretary, C. T. Ritchie, in the House of Commons, promised to liberally consider any application for compensation in behalf of Charles Lillywhite, an American citizen, who was arrested in New Zealand, and brought to England on the charge of being Arthur Blatch, a fugitive from Colchester, England, accused of murder. Mr. Ritchie added that he had already voluntarily notified the United States ambassador that the government was prepared to compensate Lillywhite.

RIOTING AT SEVILLE.

There was a serious conflict in Seville on Tuesday between workmen and gendarmes. Owing to the refusal of groups of the former to disperse, the gendarmes arrested a workman. The latter's comrades thereupon dug up cobblestones, and threw them at the police, injuring five of them. The gendarmes then charged, shots were exchanged and several persons were hit. Women actively participated in the disturbance. The prefect, who intervened, was stoned. Finally a force of cavalry dispersed the rioters.

RUSSIA'S BIG OIL PROJECT.

The Russian Government has just sanctioned the laying of an oil pipe from Baku to Batoum, on the Black Sea, a distance of 561 miles. The project has been discussed by successive ministers for fifteen years. Now, acording to the Odessa correspondent of the Standard, the government insists that the piping and hydraulic machinery shall all be manufactured in Russia. This will delay the completion of what will doubtless be an important factor in the struggle between the Russian and American oil industries until 1903 or 1904.

BIG BANK FOR PARIS.

"It is reported here," says the Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail, "that John D. Rockefeller and J. Pierpont Morgan have decided to establish a banking house in Paris with a capital of £10,000,000."

ST. PAUL'S IN DANGER.

Underground railway plans awaken fresh anxiety in London for the safety of St. Paul's cathedral. Architect Somers Clarke says that even if no tunnels are dug under the old church, it is liable to collapse soon, unless radical measures are taken promptly. It is built on wet sand over clay. The sand has dried out considerably since 1675, when Chris Wrenn put up the building, consequently the peril referred to.

ALWAYS A GOOD FRIEND. — In health and happiness we need no friend, but when pain and prostration come we look for friendly aid from sympathetic hands. Those hands can serve us no better than in rubbing in Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, for when the Oil is in the pain is out. It has brought relief to thousands who without it would be indeed friendless.

CROP PROSPECTS IN CANADA GOOD

Hay Will Show a Very Large Yield—Fall Wheat Coming in Early—Demand for Laborers in the West.

Barrie—The crops in this section of the country are beyond expectation, they being better than they have at this season for some years.

Berlin—Hay abundant. Fall wheat, heavy yield. Spring wheat, oats and peas promise good crop. Oats look fine. The recent rain brought fruit up to good prospects.

Brampton—Fall wheat pretty well up to average. Spring wheat considerably above average. Barley, peas and oats very heavy. Hay abundant. Fruit looking promising.

Brantford—Little or no spring wheat sown here. Fall wheat about half a crop, and in some places the Hessian fly has destroyed it. Barley promises a good crop. A good average crop of oats; long straw. Rye good; long straw. Hay good. Heavy crops of potatoes and corn are promised. Good cherries. Scarcely half a crop of plums. Apples a fair average. Small fruits plentiful.

Chatham—Hay crop very heavy, and nearly all harvested. Fall wheat rapidly ripening and some farmers as early as last week harvested this product. Roots suffered for want of rain and corn and peas also somewhat backward. On the whole the outlook is a most promising one. The average of beans and corn is more extensive this year than formerly.

London—Fall wheat poor crop; damaged by Hessian fly; probably yield about ten bushels to the acre. Oats look well, but too soon to calculate on the crop. Barley, good prospects. Corn crop is late, but may turn out good. Root crops, prospect fine; looks well for an immense yield.

Niagara-on-the-Lake—Crops in the east end of the Niagara district do not promise very great returns for the labor of the farmer and fruitgrower. With the exception of a few fields, fall wheat is very light, and will not yield over ten bushels per acre. Notwithstanding the low price of wheat, farmers still depend on this crop to raise some ready money in the fall. Oats, though sown late, are doing well, but will soon be badly in need of rain. Cannot give more than an average yield. An abundant crop of hay is now being harvested, some fields of clover yielding two to three tons per acre. Taken altogether the average yield of hay ought to be one and a half tons to the acre. It would be difficult to say what will be the yield of corn and other hard crops, all of which were planted late, and depend on the state of the weather in the early fall months. The fruit crop is still less promising. Apples are nearly an entire failure. A few russets and spies are noticed. In most orchards no Baldwins or greenings can be found. Last winter was very severe on peach trees, especially the older ones; no old orchards are to be seen, and for the last three years only a few peach trees have been planted. The result is that comparatively few orchards of bearing age remain. Peaches ought to be, and no doubt will be, high in price. Plums will be a light crop. Pears are the only fruit of the larger varieties that promise a heavy crop. The smaller kinds of fruits, such as currants and berries, will give a good yield, and prices ought to be such as will enable housekeepers to put by a good quantity for winter use, which ought to be taken advantage of, as prices of the late fruits will be high.

St. Catharines—Late corn looking well. Oats average good. Fruits—Apples, not twenty-five per cent of average. Peaches average high. Grapes a full crop. Plums average seventy per cent. Cherries almost total failure.

St. Thomas—Fall wheat badly injured by fly; will not exceed half a crop. Oats good, will yield full average. Peas, not many sown, injured by bug. Corn looking well. Barley, some injured by fly; prospects, 75 per cent. Potatoes, early, injured by drought. Hay and clover, full crop harvested. Fruits, apples medium; plums and pears good; small fruits drying up. Unless rain comes soon will not yield over half a crop.

Stratford—Wheat looks well and prospects for a good crop are excellent. Peas are looking well; oats rather short, barley fair, but very little sown.

Walkerton—Farmers in this section are at present engaged in cutting the hay crop, which is a very large one. All crops in this section look remarkably well, and the prospects are for the biggest harvest for years in this part of the country.

Woodstock—The wheat outlook is only half a crop. Grain has been damaged to some extent by the Hessian fly. Barley and oats good and promise to yield well. Corn up to average. Hay an exceedingly large crop. Roots looking good. Farmers well pleased with the prospects.

Woodstock—This year's wheat outlook in Oxford county, and more especially in this locality, is only a half crop. The grain has been damaged to some considerable extent by the Hessian fly. Barley is a good crop, but the ravages of the Hessian fly can be seen this season in that grain also. Oats are good and promise to yield well. Corn is looking up to the average so far. Hay is an exceedingly large crop, and gives promise of being cheap this fall. It is larger than has been known for years. Few peas are sown in this locality, but what are in are looking fair. Roots everywhere throughout the country are looking good. On the whole the farmers are well pleased with the prospects. The wheat crop is not up to what it might have been, but the Hessian fly is blamed for this. Other grains and produce are very good, and little grumbling is heard.

IN QUEBEC.

The crop report received from most of the counties in the Province of Quebec show that the prospects are excellent for large crops of hay and oats, and the reports express general satisfaction at the outlook of other crops.

IN THE NORTHWEST.

The Manitoba local government and the railways are already conferring as to the ways and means of getting harvest hands from the east and south. At a low estimate about 15,000 will be required in Manitoba and the west this year, and efforts to secure this number will be begun immediately. In 1899 between 10,000 and 11,000 harvest hands were brought into the province.

TALK OF A RUSSIAN INVASION!

Of India Unless Britain Ceases Its Aggressiveness.

Extracts From a Russian General's Sensational Pamphlet—Rainfall Relieves the Central Provinces.

Moscow, July 10.—"Russia will surely invade India unless Great Britain ceases its aggressive policy in Europe. It is logically certain that Russia will soon annex Afghanistan. The time is near when the frontier of Russia's Central Asiatic possessions will be the Hindu Kusch Mountains, the natural border of India."

Such is the opinion of General Sobo-leff. The general lately issued a highly sensational pamphlet, entitled "The Possibility of a Russian Campaign in India."

Continuing, he said: "English and Russian rivalry dates back from the Crimean war. Since that period England has constantly been endeavoring to keep Russia embroiled with European political trouble.

"All this must be stopped, and England must now admit Russia's demands for a guaranty of the possessions she now occupies on the Black Sea. She must withdraw her opposition to Russian policy in the Baikans and Manchuria, otherwise she will be in constant danger of losing India. It will be impossible to avoid such a result.

"No Russian or British statesman will be able to prevent the inevitable clash in India, now that it has been ascertained that a Russian campaign in the Indian empire is not only possible, but presents no special difficulties.

"In less than ten years Russia may complete her great task of entering India and establishing a Russo-Indian empire, adding 450,000,000 new subjects to the czar's dominions."

RAINFALL RELIEVES INDIA.

London, July 9.—The viceroy of India, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, telegraphs that the rainfall in the Bombay, Deccan and central provinces, Eastern Bengal, Burmah and Assam has been generally sufficient for agricultural purposes. The total number of persons employed on the relief works is 585,000.

50,000 MORE TROOPS FOR MANCHURIA.

Pekin, July 9.—It is reported that the Russians are rapidly completing the Manchurian Railway, and that they will employ 50,000 troops for the defense of the line. Li Hung Chang proposes to withdraw all the Chinese troops from Manchuria with the object of avoiding all chances of a collision with the Russians. If this is done Russian troops will necessarily be needed to preserve order in the province, as only Chinese policemen will be employed there, according to the definition now given to the Russo-Chinese agreement regarding Manchuria.

It is stated that the Chinese soldiers have combined with the bandits to plunder the people and resist the Russians.

BOXERS HONORED.

London, July 10.—A dispatch from Pekin says: Posthumous honors have been bestowed on a large number of civilians and soldiers who were killed in the attacks on foreigners, their deeds being commended by the court. Honors are likewise bestowed on their families. In this and other ways the court still shows its belief that the war against foreigners was legitimate.

RETURN OF MISSIONARIES TO CHINA.

Perils by water instead of attacks by Boxers marked the return of the Canadian Methodist missionaries to their stations in the interior of China. The general secretary of the mission board at Toronto received news that in Guynip, the rapids of the Yang Tse, the boat containing Rev. W. E. Smith and family upset, and the baby, a little one, was drowned. The rest of the family are at Chung King.

IT IS A LIVER PILL.—Many of the ailments that man has to contend with have their origin in a disordered liver, which is a delicate organ, peculiarly susceptible to the disturbances that come from irregular habits or lack of care in eating and drinking. This accounts for the great many liver regulators now pressed on the attention of sufferers. Of these there is none superior to Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. Their operation, though gentle, is effective, and the most delicate can use them.

A Collingwood telegram says: The engineers in charge of the surveys of the Canada National Railway are now at work making preliminary examinations in various localities en route. The heaviest part of the work will lie between the villages of Beeton and Concord, through the townships of Tecumseh, King and Straughn.

NEW DIME NOVEL.

Scranton, Pa., July 10.—Hattie Sturgis has just become Mrs. George Holden, and a funny story is told to explain why. Last winter in a theater she accidentally dropped a cold dime down George's back as he sat in the seat in front of her. She apologized so beautifully that George lost his heart, metaphorically, on the spot. Then he gave her a dime to get home on, of course, necessarily returning the one dropped down his spinal column. Cupid did the rest.

THE DOUBLE LIVES OF CRIMINALS

Happy Home Surroundings of Men Famous for Their Bad Deeds.

[From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

Many instances go to prove the truth of Mr. Gilbert's assertion that "When the felon's not engaged in his employment

Or maturing his felonious little plans,
His capacity for innocent enjoyment
Is just as great as any other man's."

The picture of the happy home life of the man who stole the Gainsborough portrait, of the fair Georgiana, Duchess of Devonshire, has been given to the public lately through the newspapers. A dilettante in art and a judge of gems, it seems he is, and, of course, a respected citizen, fond of children.

Then came the account of the pious work of Skoog, the counterfeiter, who has been living for years under an assumed name in Brooklyn, where he was a much-respected citizen and prominent in the Sunday schools. It is by no means unusual for "crooks" of the first rank to live a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde existence.

Some years ago there lived in Bristol, England, a cheery and kind-hearted man, just past the middle age, known to all the children in the town as Uncle Billy Nash. Mr. Nash had a well-furnished house, and commanded the respect of the community as a retired West India merchant of means. He was always doing good in some way or another, his special hobby being kindness to children. Oh, he was such a benevolent, lovable old fellow! He was all the time organizing entertainments for the dear children, and treating the whole primary schools to taffy and toys. He used to gather children at his house to witness Punch and Judy shows, where he would stuff them with candy and cake and send each one away with a nice little present.

To the police dear old Uncle Billy was known as Isaac Morgan, daring hotel swindler and jewel thief. He found time in the interval of making glad the hearts of the children of Bristol to commit some of the cleverest jewelry robberies on record. One day he would be rifling a jewel casket in some "swell" hotel, and the next, clad in a long frock coat and cashmere trousers, distributing prizes to school children. It was he who stole the great Pirbeck ruby from the Duchess d'Uzes. His last exploit in the line of his profession was to steal the diamonds of the Princess Elidoff, from a hotel in Scarborough. For this crime he was run to earth by the detectives, and there were no more Punch and Judy shows for Uncle Billy for 18 years.

A clever forger named Hooper, who was known as the "king of the pen" to the police, had a large house at Bournemouth and another in Brighton, where he lived in luxury, and piety, as Mr. Hargreaves. Mr. Hargreaves was one of the best organizers of church fairs and homes for the poor ever known and gave liberally to all charities. He equipped and endowed a lifeboat which did some splendid rescue work on the coast. Two days after his biggest forgery, which netted him $8,000, he presented the rector of Bournemouth with $1,500 to be used in founding beds in a private hospital. He had a beautiful voice, and on the very day of his arrest was due to sing at a concert, the expenses of which he paid, in aid of the families of fishermen who had lost their nets and gear at sea.

In Norwich, England, there once lived a philanthropic gentleman, a retired merchant, who never turned a deaf ear to the cry of the needy. Any laborer or farmhand who fell upon evil days had only to go to kind and sympathetic Mr. Fennimore and help was forthcoming. He founded a private infirmary, which he superintended personally, and he paid for the maintenance of six infirm and old villagers. The philanthropist was constantly distributing hampers of provisions among the poor and making cash gifts to the needy. Nobody was better beloved in the neighborhood than Mr. Fennimore. All the time, as "Punch" Palmer, the kind gentleman was committing an average of at least five burglaries a month, in the course of which he found it necessary to commit several murders. One bank robbery netted him $10,000, and most of this money he devoted to his pet institution, the private infirmary.

THE POLAR BEAR

A Rank Coward When Brought Face to Face With Men.

[From the London Field.]

The character of the polar bear is a curious mixture of cowardice and daring, for it will fly at the sight of man, but will often come close up to the huts and sometimes even try to enter them.

When met with in the water bears are killed with harpoons. On receiving the first wounds the animal utters loud roars, seizes the weapon with its teeth, pulls it out of the injured part and hurls it far away. Sometimes, but by no means invariably, it will turn upon its assailant. Quickly it receives another spear or bird arrow from a second kayak man, against whom it turns after treating his weapon in the same manner and sometimes breaking it, and in this way the struggle is continued until the bear is overcome. The most important precautionary rule which the hunters have to observe is, when during the fight, the animal has dived, to keep a sharp lookout down into the water in order that it may not come up unawares right under a kayak. Its white gleam can always be seen when it approaches the surface, and there is time to get away if it be coming too near. When a bear is encountered in the water or amid somewhat scattered ice its capture is considered a certainty, for, although an excellent swimmer, it cannot get away from a kayak. In the northern colonies, where they are seldom seen, the Greenlanders appear to be afraid of them, but such is far from being the case in the Julianshaab district, where, in the water, at any rate, they are considered as much less dangerous than the walrus or the hooded seal.

The food of the bears consist mainly of seal, which, however, they cannot seize in the water, but only when lying on shore or on ice, but as the seal, when in such positions, is extremely watchful and wary, the stalk is often fruitless, and the bear is obliged more frequently than suits it to depart with an empty stomach. Carrion they take at any time. In summer they rob birds' nest of eggs and young ones, and appear to be partial also to berries. Probably, too, they live upon sea fowl, seizing them from below while resting on the water. According to Brehm, their ordinary food is fish, and they even capture salmon in the sea. This, however, I have never had confirmed by the Greenlanders, who all consider that the bear's powers of swimming would not be equal to it. According to the same authority, neither reindeer, foxes nor birds are safe from the polar bear, but this, I think, is a mistake. Nature has intended that it should seek its prey in the water and on the ice rather than on the land.

When really hungry there are few things which a bear will reject, down to old skin garments and tarred ropes' ends, which may sometimes be found in his stomach. It is under such circumstances that it ventures close to the huts and devours whatever it can find, sometimes attempting to enter. In the winter of 1896-97 a bear was shot at Goodhaven with the whole of the fore part of the body in an oil cask, which it was licking. In the Julianshaab district it is not unusual for these animals to visit the Greenlanders' provision stores, where they keep their dried seals' flesh, etc., tear the stones away from the entrance, and clear the place completely out.

A SHOT IN THE DARK.

Struggling for calmness the young girl raised her head from his shoulder.

"It was in the evening," she said, faltering; "he had not come in to dinner, and I was alone in the drawing-room when he returned. He complained of headache, and said he would go to his room. He had a letter to write, he said. When he said 'Good-night' it was not like a usual 'Good-night.' He took me in his arms and blessed me, as if he were going away."

Her voice faltered. Douglas felt his heart sink. Proof after proof was pouring upon him. He waited silently, almost breathlessly, in his anxiety for the next words.

The girl went on:

"I asked him if anything was the matter. He did not answer, but looked at me so sadly; but with so much love that I could hardly help crying. Then he smiled faintly, called me a foolish child, asked me if I had seen Andree lately, if I thought she loved you very much."

Again she hesitated. A spasm, as of mortal agony, crossed her brother's face. Andree! He had lost her, too!

"I told him that I was sure of it. He seemed pleased, kissed me again and went away. Only three hours after they came for he; he was dying." And the girl trembled and clung to her brother at the recollection of the scene she recalled. "He could hardly speak; but he smiled at me and murmured, 'Tell Douglas that I did not—tell him——' He had not strength to finish. Before the doctor could come he was——"

Her voice utterly failed her, and with a moan of pain she again hid her face.

"I am going to send you to bed, dear child," he said, after a long pause, "You must let me be both father and brother to you, Kathie. Nay; you will go when I ask it, little one," he went on, as she resisted. "I cannot have you ill."

"I will go, Douglas," she said, submissively; "but first I must give you this."

She took from her dress a little folded note, which she put into his hand. It was addressed in a handwriting very familiar and very dear to him, and written on very dainty cream-laid paper, embossed with a wonderful monogram in blue and silver, in which a very careful searching might have discovered the initials "A. M." Douglas crushed it in his hand with a movement which spoke of passionate pain. Then he led his sister to her room, and left her with a few tender words to the care of the old housekeeper. Slowly returning to the dining-room he opened the little note, read it over once, twice, and pressed it passionately to his lips.

"Poor child," he murmured, sadly, "she little knows to what her generosity exposes her. Such a sacrifice is impossible. I, ruined, beggared, dishonored, my name dragged in the mud, execrated, coupled with every form of reproach, of ignominy—I to marry her—I the son of a bankrupt—of a——"

He did not finish the sentence. The last word brought back all the terrible doubts which were so quickly becoming certainties; and, throwing himself into a chair, he flung his arms across the table and bowed his head upon them.

The candles died out; the fire burned away and glimmered more and more feebly; the gray dawn stole into the room and it found Douglas Lancaster still in the same attitude of utter despair, fighting manfully, however, with his anguish and wrestling with his sorrow.

Poverty, dishonor, shame!—were these the gifts the New Year had intended him to receive?

CHAPTER V.

Ten days had elapsed from that momentous day when the appalling whispers of Lancaster's ruin had begun to circulate, and already the nine days' wonder of the immense failure had faded from the minds of those who were not personally concerned in it. Those who were had found their losses complete and irretrievable, and numbers of men in every profession and trade had been ruined by Mr. Lancaster's fraud.

There was no excuse for him—the mad ventures; the insensate risks he had run; the reckless speculations could have been but the result of a gambling mania, by which others had suffered and would suffer.

Ah, me, how bitter was the repentance of those who had trusted him! How useless the mourning, how worse than useless the cry which went out against him! Douglas Lancaster had faced his trouble manfully, as a brave man should; everything he possessed, even the price of his commission, he had given up. What small amends he could make he had made; he retained nothing; but yet the storm against his name, against the father whom he loved, still raged fearfully. People, frantic with their distress, must abuse somebody, and the real culprit having escaped their vengeance by death, they poured their indignation, in no measured terms, on the dead man's son. That he suffered terribly was undoubted; but one cause of sorrow he was spared. Sir Frederic Palmer was able to state that his examination had proved Mr. Lancaster's death to have been from heart disease, accelerated by trouble, and whatever the unhappy man's intention had been, he had been mercifully spared carrying out the dreadful deed he had seemed to contemplate, and the weight this knowledge lifted from the son's heart was tremendous.

He was sitting this evening—the tenth, as I have already said, from the mournful events related—alone in the library, busy with an accumulation of papers spread upon the desk before him, and as he bent over the writing materials, the handsome face looked greatly altered. It was wan and worn. Deep lines were graven on the broad brow and round the mouth, now so set and stern, while in the dark-gray eyes lay a shadow of deep pain, and into the dark hair had crept one or two silver threads.

The papers before him were not only business ones; they were chiefly, indeed, old private letters of his father's, which Douglas was glancing over, and then with an almost tender respect committing to the flames. He had come at last upon a packet of faded epistles, tied together with a faded ribbon, whose color had once been blue, and as he had opened them a few withered flowers had fallen out. They were love letters, written by his mother before her marriage, and it touched Douglas to see how his father, among all his business cares, had found leisure and attention for these missives, written by the warm-hearted Irish girl who had been the mother of Kathleen and Douglas.

So absorbed was he in his perusal of the tender words penned by the gentle hand so long since crumbled into dust, that he did not hear a knock at the door, which was twice repeated. Then, still unheeded, the door was opened, a light footfall crossed the floor, there was a rustling of a silken dress, and he started as if from a dream when a little hand was laid on his clustering dark hair with a tender, lingering touch, and a voice, whose sweetness and tenderness of intonation made the word itself sound like a caress, spoke his name:

"Douglas!"

He looked up vacantly for a moment, and met a pair of tender, loving eyes, in whose pitying, sorrowing gaze he could see, he could guess, from its wistful tenderness, how altered he was; he saw a face, pale and troubled truly, but as loving, nay, doubly so, as when he had seen it last—the face of the woman he loved so passionately, so hopelessly now that a gulf, inseparable as the grave itself, had opened between them, and whom he could think of no more, save as a treasure far out of his reach. For a few moments, as she stood there in her trailing, soft black robes, she seemed to him more like a vision than a living woman, and it was only when a tear fell on his hand that he knew that a real presence. Andree Marchmont herself, stood beside him.

"Douglas," came the tender whisper again, and with a smothered groan he would have risen, but she put her hands on his shoulders to keep him seated, and, passing one arm round his neck, drew his head close to her, resting her cheek upon it in a mute tenderness so full of love, that Douglas turned and clasped his arms round her with a sudden passion he could not restrain.

"My darling—my darling!" he said, brokenly.

ROUNDERS AT THE BARRACKS.

This old English game will be played this afternoon at Wolseley Barracks between picked teams of the right and left-half companies, and each week practice games will be played every evening to introduce this old-time game.

INTERESTING GAME AT BARRACKS.

An interesting game of baseball was played on the military grounds at Wolseley Barracks last evening between teams representing the right and left half companies. The right half company had the advantage of having Lance-Corporal McFadden for their captain, and the left had Pte. Harry Donaghy. Both sides played good ball, and the fielding was in many instances exceptionally good. The home run of McFadden was as fine a hit as was ever seen on a baseball diamond, and if such a thing were possible he could easily have made a home run and a half so far did the ball travel. Messrs. Clarkson, Farnsworth and Scanlon also made home runs.

Pte. Donaghy, at third base, made an exceedingly fine catch of a foul ball, running fully 20 yards to make the catch.

The umpire was Sergt. J. Cockburn, and the official scorer was Pte. H. G. Millie, the secretary of the Wolseley Barracks Athletic Association.

The score follows:

ATHLETICS.

MORE RECORD BREAKING.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 10.—The National Amateur Athletic Union's swimming championship ended yesterday. The meet has been one of the most successful of the A. A. U. and one of the most interesting sporting events ever held within the exposition grounds. Many records were broken yesterday. They began to go in the mile event, when the men had the half-mile mark, with Otto Wahle, of the N. Y. A. C., in the lead. From the time that the 660-yard record was broken, the swimmers did not stop until they had broken every record up to the mile. Kollock, of Philadelphia, was the first man to lower a record. In the half-mile swim he led for nearly three-quarters of the distance. When he crossed the 660-yard mark it was announced that he made the distance in 10:43, clipping four seconds off the former record. Kollock's record was short-lived, however, for later in the day Otto Wahle, of New York, lowered this mark to 10:37½, and continued to lower every record up to the mile.

OLYMPIAN GAMES IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, July 10.—Articles of incorporation were granted yesterday to the Olympian Games Association, capitalized at $200,000. The object of the association is to hold a great international athletic meeting, during which the Grecian games will be revived in Chicago, in 1903. Plans for an immediate stadium for the games and other details of the enterprise soon will be in the hands of committees.

CRICKET.

THE WOLSELEY TOURNAMENT.

The cricket club at Wolseley Barracks deserves more than a word of mention. They have arranged a week's tournament commencing next Monday. Matches will be played every day beginning at 10:30 a.m. They have purchased a magnificent crease of cocoa nut matting of the length of 20 yards and 2 yards wide, specially made for the Wolseley Barracks Club, and which will be used during the cricket tournament week. As already announced the matches will be on the military grounds at Wolseley Barracks, and the barracks club will be very glad to see any lovers of the game as spectators.

Several leading citizens have been asked to kindly act as umpires.

PROGRAMME.

Monday, July 15—Aylmer vs. Barracks.

Tuesday, July 16.—Forest vs. Aylmer.

Wednesday, July 17—Barracks vs. Forest.

Thursday, July 18—Aylmer vs. Watford.

Friday, July 19—Watford vs. Barracks.

AYLMER VS. TILSONBURG.

Aylmer, Ont., July 10.—The Tilsonburg cricket club visited the Aylmer crease yesterday and were defeated in a two-inning game by 12 runs and 12 wickets. Dr. Dean's 11 and J. A. Spinall's 11 were the only double figures reached by the visiting club. For Aylmer, W. Kingston's 13, J. White's 14 and G. Odell's 16 were the best scores. Tilsonburg's first inning, 39; second inning, 23. Aylmer's first inning, 74.

CANADIANS WON.

New York, July 10.—The Canadian cricketers wound up their trip at Bayone, N. J., yesterday by defeating eleven representatives of the Metropolitan District Cricket League by an isning and 122 runs. When the first day's play was ended last evening, the visitors had made 147 runs for the loss of one wicket, while the Metropolitan players had only made 97 in their first inning, and Laing and Henry made a splendid stand against bowlers that were frequently changed until the score passed the 200 mark. Laing made 103 before he was clean bowled by Tyers. This was the only occasion during the trip of the Canadians that any of their number had made a "century." W. A. Henry, of Halifax, had put together a careful 41 before he was put out, leg before wicket, on Worm's bowling. The entire side was not disposed of until the total reached 266. After luncheon the home players went in to try and save a defeat by an inning, but they were unable to do so, owing to the splendid bowling of McGiverin and Rooke. Jack Adam, who, by the way, is the best all-round cricketer on the Metropolitan eleven, was the only one to reach double figures, as he made 21 runs. Fifteen of these were made off Rooke in one inning—a six, a four, two twos and a single. The other wickets fell very cheaply. Four of the players were stumped by Wright, three off McGiverin and one off Rooke. In all, McGiverin took six wickets for 18 runs and Rooke four wickets for 35 runs. The bowling and fielding of the visitors was very much superior to that of the local men, and the result was a foregone conclusion early in the game.

WRESTLING.

JENKINS VS. WITTMER FOR THE WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP.

Cleveland, July 10.—Articles of agreement have been signed here for a mixed wrestling match between Tom Jenkins, of this city, and Charley Wittmer, of Cincinnati, for the world's championship, the largest obtainable purse, and a side bet of $1,000. The date and place for the match will be decided later.

RUHLIN DEFEATS FITZSIMMONS.

New York, July 10.—Gus Ruhlin and Bob Fitzsimmons, in a Graeco-Roman wrestling bout, attracted 2,500 people to the Madison Square Garden last night. Ruhlin was both cleverer and heavier than the Cornishman, and won two falls in succession with a quarter of an hour's rest between them. Ruhlin showed that he knew a great deal more about the game than Fitzsimmons did, and it was the latter's agility which prevented his being thrown much more quickly. When they faced each other the spectators cheered as Fitz, in trying for a hold swung his right as if he were going to fight. He repeated these tactics a couple of times to the intense amusement of the onlookers. Ruhlin dropped and remained on the defensive three times, and twisted quickly, the third time getting Fitz underneath for a rolling fall. Fitz got a body hold and brought Ruhlin to the mat. Ruhlin got on top and secured a half-Nelson and body hold. Ruhlin then had Fitz, in a bad place and finally threw him. First fall for Ruhlin; time, 14 minutes and 34 seconds. A breathing spell of 15 minutes was then allowed. In the second bout, after considerable maneuvering, Fitz got a throttle hold on Ruhlin and tried to pull him over, but Ruhlin stood close, and fell on Fitz, and with a combination lock, pinned Fitz's shoulder to the mat, gaining the second fall and the match. Time, 12 minutes, 35 seconds.

CONCLUSION OF LONDON PRESBYTERY.

The Difficulty Between Wardsville Pastor and Members—R. C. McDermid Licensed.

The meeting of the Presbytery of London was brought to a close yesterday afternoon. At the afternoon session a paper was read from the congregation of Newbury, taking exception to the finding of a committee of presbytery which visited Wardsville last May to inquire into difficulties existing between the pastor and some of the members.

Mr. Fletcher supported the resolution of the congregation. It was moved by Rev. Mr. Henderson, seconded by Rev. Mr. Currie, and agreed, that the presbytery receive the resolution of the congregation of Newbury, express gratification with the state of feeling existing in the Newbury congregation towards their minister, instruct the clerk to inform the congregation that the pastoral tie cannot be dissolved without giving all parties—Newbury included—opportunity to be heard in their interests; and futher, that the presbytery resolve to visit the Wardsville and Newbury congregations at a date to be fixed at the September meeting.

Permission was given the congregation of Chalmers Church, Dunwich, to borrow $2,500 on the new church building, when they had complied with the requirements of the law.

Permission was given to Rev. Mr. Barnett and Rev. Mr. Little to moderate in calls in the respective vacancies of Aldboro and English Settlement.

Mr. R. C. McDermid, of this city, a graduate of Knox College, presented himself for examination on trial for license to preach the Gospel. He read a popular lecture from II. Tim., 3; 14-17; a popular sermon from Acts, 16: 13, and a Greek critical exercise on I. Cor., 15: 24-28. He was also examined in Hebrew by Rev. Mr. Reede; in philosophy by Rev. Mr. Henderson; in systematic theology by Rev. Mr. Currie, and in church history by Rev. Mr. McGillivray. Mr. McDermid made a very creditable appearance in his examination, which occupied the greater part of the afternoon. He was then licensed to preach the Gospel in the usual form of the Presbyterian Church, the moderator leading in prayer, and afterwards addressing words of counsel to the licentiate.

The presbytery then adjourned to meet in First Presbyterian Church, London, on the second Tuesday of September, at 10:30 o'clock a.m.

GRAND LODGE K. OF P.

The twentieth meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias opened at Hamilton yesterday morning with nearly 100 delegates in attendance. The morning's session was taken up with routine business. The convention will be a strictly business one, and it is proposed to have a new organizer to boom the association in Ontario. It is proposed to appoint an assistant to F. J. Fitzgerald, of this city, grand lecturer, who has been acting as special organizer.

A PLEASANT OUTING.

The Sabbath schools of Dundas Center and Colborne Street Methodist Churches picnicked at Port Stanley yesterday. The number attending the excursion was large, and a very enjoyable time was spent by all. The principal attraction was a free trip on the steamer Urania, which was greatly enjoyed by all who took advantage of it. The day was an ideal one, cool, yet pleasant, and there was scarcely a ripple on the placid bosom of Lake Erie. A programme of games was carried out, including an interesting baseball match between nines representing the two schools, which was won by the Colborne Street school.

PROTESTANT ORPHANS' HOME.

The trustees of the Protestant Orphans' Home held their monthy meeting on Monday afternoon in the parlor of the Y. W. C. A., the president, Mrs. Morphy, occupying the chair. The meeting opened in the usual way, with a short Bible reading and prayer, when followed the reading of the several reports, each one being most satisfactory. Other business transacted was of a routine nature, two or three applications having been received from country places for boys and girls old enough to work, but the replies were in the negative, as all the home children are too young for occupations of the kind. During June three children were admitted to the home, and for one of the little inmates an excellent home was secured. tI was decided to hold the next meeting on Aug. 5, in the Y. W. C. A. parlors. The trustees very gratefully acknowledge the following kind donations received at the home in June: Two baskets of cake, Boston Confectionery; clothing, Mrs. Carrie, sandwiches, Maple Leaf League; jar of fruit, Mrs. W. Hyman; cake and tea, garden party of Women of Local Council; 8 boxes strawberries, a friend; 20 boxes strawberries, Mrs. G. B. Harris; flowers, Mr. J. W. Chapman.

SUCCESSFUL GARDEN PARTY.

"Ye Olde English Eve Upon Ye Greene," given on Mr. McHarg's lawn, corner of Adelaide and Horton, by the Women's Auxiliary Missionary Association of All Saints' Church was one of the most successful events ever held in connection with the church, nearly 800 people being present. The choir of the church, under the direction of Mr. Ed Gardiner, were prettily dressed in characteristic costumes, and acquitted themselves very creditably. Mr. Wm. Spence introduced the programme, and short addresses were also made by Rev. C. C. Owen, of Memorial Church, and Rev. W. Leslie Armitage, of All Saints' Church, Peterboro. Following was the programme:

"Oh, Who Will O'er the Downs So Free" ..... By the Choir
"Melodye" .... T. C. Mandolin Quartet
Songe—"Vicar of Bray" .....
..... Mr. Gardiner and Choir
"Walke Upon Ye Greene" .. The Choir

HOT WEATHER MEALS AND PERSONAL COMFORT.

Fruit of some kind should be used at the breakfast during hot weather, follow this with a dish of four heaping teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts, cold, and treated with rich, cold cream. This dish gives the staying qualities necessary. Add a slice or two of entire wheat bread, with a very little butter. Use no meat for the hot weather breakfast. Let meat appear but once a day during this season of the year.

A little care in the selection of food will help one through the heat of the day in a way that will not easily be forgotten.

This Day in London Thirty-Three Years Ago.

[From The Advertiser Files of July 10, 1868.]

The game of baseball played yesterday between the Tecumsehs and the St. Thomas team resulted in a heavy defeat for the visitors. At the close the score stood: Tecumsehs, 115; St. Thomas, 57. We are told that play on both sides was rather lax.

The great moral show recently on exhibition in this city, comprising the bearded lady, fairy queen, the living skeleton, etc., has collapsed at Galt, Dissensions arose out of the marriage of the banjoist to the dwarf.

The dissatisfaction with the manner in which the streets are watered by the present contractor is on the increase, and a numerously signed petition, protesting against the way in which the work is done, is about to be laid before the city council.

THE HOUSEBOAT

An Eminently English Institution Utilized by Dwellers Along the Connecticut River.

[Springfield Republican.]

It used to be a standing wonder to visitors that so beautiful and expansive a river as the Connecticut was turned to so little use by the inhabitants. It is apparent, however, that this reproach is being rapidly removed so far, at least, as the superb reach between Holyoke and Windsor Locks is concerned. The most inveterate landlubber can hardly fail to have noticed that our mosquito fleet has grown to formidable proportions during the last few seasons. It is not so long since the Mascot and a few rowboats and canoes summed up the Springfield flotilla. Now sailboats and yachts dot the water, steam launches puff chipperly about, canoes, rowboats and single shells are multitudinous, and on almost every pleasant evening a very respectable exhibit of eight-oared boats is to be seen. The public, too, has discovered that something is going on at the river, and the shores and bridges are becoming popular warm-weather resorts. When the proposed riverside park is an accomplished fact, and the public has untammeled access to the more beautiful part of the banks, it will at last be appreciated that the Connecticut deserves better treatment than it has had in the past.

It is rather odd, however, that people of moderate means, who are in a state of chronic uncertainty as to their plans for a summer vacation, have never taken up that eminently English institution, the houseboat. Every one is familiar with it through the medium of British fiction, and in other parts of the country it has been acclimated with conspicuous success. The Florida coast and inland waters, for example, are lined with the houseboats of northern millionaires. As for England, society would hardly know what to do without its houseboats on the Thames, which are almost as indispensable as the London house or the box in the country. But in New England the idea has not yet taken root, though the wandering artists who drift about the coast and rivers in floating studios may help to set a fashion which is worthy of imitation. The beauty of a houseboat is that it offers the comforts of home together with the variety of travel. One may be cut off absolutely from the world and yet near enough to home to get to business by a morning train. The houseboat offers a delightful change for the vacation season, with the minimum of wear and tear, and the time may come when scores of Rudder Granges will dot the clear waters of the Connecticut.

Perhaps the chief charm in this sort of floating houses is perfect freedom, with none of the danger and discomfort of yachting, there is the gratification of the love for the water which exists in the normal human mind. There is a satisfaction even in the bare feeling of being afloat which takes the oldest back to the days of childhood. On the smooth waters of the river there is peace, quiet, coolness and variety. When one is tired of looking at one lovely prospect, up anchor, and the current soon brings fresh scenes in view. One gets for nothing a homestead of inexhaustible dimensions, with the chance of catching a breakfast of fresh fish in the front yard. One is spared the annoyance of the summer hotel, and the worry and weariness of travel. The houseboat is a bit of floating home, made the more cosy and homelike by its slight isolation.

There are those who have a prejudice against rivers as the seat of fogs and malarial fevers, but so large a proportion of the population of the earth has from time immemorial lived a riparian life without evil consequences that the objection cannot be so formidable as it seems. Certainly the English are not frightened away from the Thames by the mere fact that it is a river. And now that the scientists have laid the full responsibility for malaria upon the mosquito, and relieved the atmosphere from all blame, perhaps it will be possible to enjoy the fresh coolness of the water again without disturbing thoughts of chills and fever. A more practical objection is the difficulty of caring for such a boat during the winter, but now that the river is coming into such general use it will probably not be long before a satisfactory way is found for caring for the large craft, including the yachts and steam launches. The initial cost of a plain but substantial houseboat of two stories need not be great, and once built it can be counted on to last for many years.

COULD NOT STRAIGHTEN UP

David Rowe, of Consecon, Had Trouble With His Back—His Experience Should Be a Lesson to Others.

Consecon, Ont., July 8.—(Special.) Those who would profit by the experience of a man who has found a sure cure for backache in Dodd's Kidney Pills, should read the letter of David Rowe printed herewith. He writes:

"A pain in my back commenced in my shoulders and extended down my spine, finally concentrating its full force in what is commonly called the small of the back, and there it became almost unendurable.

"I could not straighten up to save my life. Urinating gave me great pain, and I was unable to do much work. A doctor failed to help me.

"I bought a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills at Mrs. German's store, and on taking them, felt a change for the better. I took in all, ten boxes, and I am a well man today."

WORK OF STAGE GIRLS.

Stage-struck girls who think life behind the footlights is all music and dancing should have watched the training of the chorus of "The Giddy Throng," that leaves for Boston today.

From 11 o'clock in the morning until late at night the girls have been kept monotonously stepping forward and backward, singing, side-stepping and pirouetting to the music of a piano and a whip-lash sound of a stage manager's voice.

When the time came for dress rehearsals the girls were ordered to be at the New York Theater at 11 o'clock at night. After the regular performance the chorus girls who had been occupying the stage shed their tights and other chorus belongings, and the Boston company donned them for the dress rehearsal. This lasted until early morning, and then the girls were dismissed into the night with orders to be on hand promptly at the regular hour.

As one victim remarked, there was no need to question whether or not the girls went straight home. They were too tired to think of anything but resting.

How much do they get for this work? Nothing until the company starts on the road. Rehearsals are not paid for. —New York Telegraph.
