4 CRIMINAL CASES GO TO GRAND JURY

True Bills Expected To Be Returned For Each.

RIDDELL PRESIDES

Grand Jury, After Address, Retires To Consider Evidence.

True bills are expected in all four criminal cases sent to the grand jury this afternoon by Mr. Justice Riddell, presiding at the fall assizes. Court convened at 1 o'clock, the grand jury retiring to consider the Evidence in the cases of Thomas Clare and William Hodges, both charged with manslaughter, is being brought before the grand jury by Crown Attorney Albert M. Judd and Crown Prosecutor V. A. Sinclair, K.C., of Tillsonburg. Later in the afternoon, evidence in the Fox and Sansone cases will also be brought before the jurors. Thomas Fox is charged with rape and Sylva-dore Sansone with indecent assault. His lordship decided to dispense with the jury in the case of Fitz-simmons vs. Vining, a damage action over farm land being flooded with water, and is taking up this case while the grand jurors are consider while the grand jurors are considering the four criminal cases.

E. T. Essery, K.C., is appearing for Mr. Fitzsimmons and T. G. Meredith, K.C., for Mr. Vining.

"While this place was selected 130 years ago as capital of the province, grand juries have not been sitting here for that length of time. However, for over 100 years grand jurors have sat in this city at least four times a year," said his lordship in addressing the grand jury. "The duties are not as extensive as they once were, but they are enough to demand your best attention. Four persons are to be tried by a jury at this court, but before this can be done you must receive evidence on Addresses Grand Jury. done you must receive evidence on the cases, although they are not tried before you in open court.

His lordship then instructed the grand jurors as to the nature of their duties in detail.

Stating that there were two manslaughter cases to come before them, slaughter cases to come before them, his lordship stated that the word manslaughter was sometimes not properly used. There were scores of cases in which manslaughter might not be much worse than an accident.

"Manslaughter is killing without intent," stated his lordship. "If a perintent," stated his lordship. intent, stated his lordship. If a person is killed without excuse it is murder," said Mr. Justice Riddell. "But if he kills without intention or by carelessness, that is manslaughter. The law is that a man driving motor car must proceed slowly enough to be safe. Some places it may be safe to drive 20 miles an hour, and then again a speed of one n hour may be dangerous "Was the man driving too fast?

If you believe he was, you must bring in a true bill.

"Was he using reasonable care? If he wasn't, that's manslaughter." No Difficulty.

"It is a strange fact of human nature that while everyone is trying to be happy, few people are genuinely happy all the time."

Thus did Dr. Charles E. Barker, internationally-known social lecturer, Grand Rapids, Mich., preface his address last night in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, entitled, "The Road Gin. Dublin gets a slice for Irish Happiness."

> "You can count on the fingers of one hand, I think' if you are absolutely honest with yourself, the num-ber of those people you know intimately who are genuinely happy all the time. Why the discrepancy be tween desire and fulfillment?

George H. Belton and George Brown Return From an Inspection of West.

GET BETTER PRICE

Conditions generally in the three western prairie provinces are better than at the same period in 1923, according to George H. Belt,on a director of the Huron & Erie Mortgage Corporation, who, together with George Brown, a fellow director, returned to the city on Saturday after six weeks' tour of the west. Mr. Belton told The Advertiser today that while there were places where hail and frost had completely destroyed the crops, conditions on the whole were satisfactory.

"The farmers are at least getting a chance now to get clear of debt out there," he said. "They should in hte majority of cases be able to start next year clear. In the case of Mani-toba especially, although there are a good many farmers who are not going to get number one hard wheat, as they had expected, still they are getting 90 cents net at the elevators for their feed wheat and that is more than they got in 1923 for their best

See Mixed Farming.

"In this province the farmers are seeing the absolute necessity of going into mixed farming and of making the poultry and butter pay part of the farm expenses. The old Ontario style of mixed farming is becoming more prominent now in Manitoba and that means a great deal in the way of permanent perity. The farmers are paying their way as they go, lifting mortgages and getting out of debt, and in Manitoba things are looking very much brighter than they did last year.

"I was particularly pleased with Alberta as a farming province. There are more trees and bush there and more shelter for cattle. The country was looking very well indeed."

The party of directors left London on Aug. 29 and spent six weeks in the west. They visited Vancouver and stayed in the Hotel Vancouver on the top of Granville street at the same time that the Prince of Wales was a guest there. Mr. Belton succumbed, as everyone does, to the natural beauties of Vancouver, and stated that business, though slow, is improving. He looks for the even tual growth of the Pacific city int one of the biggest of Canadian cities.

Hard to Calculate. Speaking of calculating the wester wheat crop, he says it is impossible to come to any definite conclusion owing to the fact that much wheat which looks fairly well in the shock does not thresh out as well as it Rain, hail and forst have all taken their share of the crop, and he points out that even the farmers themselves are not able to calculate their crops with any certainty until

OFFICIAL'S GRADING PLANS PROGRESS

School Inspector G. Wheable Hopes To Have System Working in Three Years.

SEEKS TEACHERS' AID

G. A. Wheable, public school inspector, is making progress with the statistical end of his new charting scheme looking to the establishment of a uniform standard for grading the pupils of the public schools at the examinations held throughout the year.

When he has completed this phase of the work the inspector counts on calling together all the teachers of a certain grade an ask them to give him a number of questions for grade under consideration. Th spector, after examining these ques-tions, will send a list of them to teachers with instructions to them to attend a meeting at which they should be prepared to discuss the questions fro mall angles. Discussion will then follow as to how the questions should be marked and why. In this manner the inspector hopes to get the teachers thinking along the same lines and marking the papers along the same grade.

nspector Wheable points out that it will require two or even three years' time to get his charting and standard grading system functioning and working satisfactorily in all grades throughout the schools of the Statistics prepared by Inspector

Wheable showing the average mark throughout the schools of the city in grade V and gradeVI during 1923 and 1924 are as follows: Grade V.

71.5 74 69 62 68 70 71.6 66 65 60 63 61 1923 1924 Spelling ... 72 Writing ... 67 Liter Composition 67 Geography ..65 History ... (not taken)

Commenting upon the fact that the average mark in grade V for 1924 equals or is higher in every instance as compared with the mark of the previous year, Inspector Wheable pointed out that the number of pupils in that particular grade in all the schools in 1924 was 777 or 325 more than the previous year. This difference is accounted for by the fact that many of the pupils skipped from grade III to grade V. In spite of this fact, however, the averages for the year were considerably better.

Few Dress for Games

Again the world's series proved a disappointment from the point of view of One of the newest and most charming of the imported creations consists of a slip of green satin, over which is posed an over-dress of blue satin heavily embroidered in Chinese designs in blue and gold. In other models the Persian designs predominate. Over slips of gold lace, swathings of velvet or broche are superimposed. Effects are gained by the marvelous colorings of these fabrics, by the daring decollettes, fashions. George Kelley of the Giants broche are superimposed. Effects are gained by the marvelous colorings of these fabrics, by the daring decollettes, and by enormous sleeves of mousseline in contrasting colors to the dress, which form floating wings, or are gathered at the wrists with embroidered galons or dance after the contests, and conseas rich as jewelry.

One especially charming model of this description is of Havana brown tulle over a gold lace background, with Watney embroideries in beige. Muffs of huge clusters of ostrich plumes fallquently many appeared in long-sleeved,

The Wisdom of the Heart

Love Character-Men

When Custom Permits Women to Pop the Question There Will Be Fewer Unhappy Marriages-For Woman Loves the Heart of Man. While Man Chooses Only a Pretty Face.

Why is it that women are so much better judges of men than men are women? Why is it that women are attracted to a man by what is hin his soul and brain, while men look only at a woman's hair and

Men will answer these conundrums by denying they exist, but every woman knows better. Every woman knows that the average man judges a woman solely by her external appearance, and that it is better for a woman who wants to marry to have a willowy figure and a gift for clothes than for her to be a model of all the virtues and a college president in the bargain.

Women never cease marveling at the qualities in women that attract men, and that cause men to pick out the women who possess these attributes for wives, because these same qualities in a man would bore a woman to tears, and she would not willingly bring down on her head the calamity of having a husband who was afflicted with them.

You can see this difference in the point of view of the sexes at any social function. Only the pretty girls receive any attention from the men The homely ones line the walls. You cannot imagine any good-looking young man devoting himself to a girl who is fat and red-faced and triple chinned and bald-headed, no matter how wise and witty she may be.

If women were like men, and they put the taboo on every man who wasn't young and slim and who didn't have varnished hair and look like the advertisement of Kollege Kut clothes, no hostess could scrape together enough couples to give a dinner party, and there would be nothing stirring

But women use more intelligence in measuring men than men do in measuring women, and they put good looks at their rightful place in the scale-desirable, but not necessary, and far outclassed by a dozen other attractions.

A woman doesn't care what color a man's hair is, or whether he's got any hair at all so long as he's got brains in his head. A woman doesn't even look at a man's waistline if he can hand out an entertaining line of conversation. A woman isn't half so interested in the size of a man's collar as she is in the size of his heart. and the thing that attracts her to a man is not his being easy on the eyes, but easy to trust.

Homeliness is no bar to any man winning any woman he wants for a wife provided he has the intelligence and charm of manner, and the strength and manliness that women set far above personal appearance in their judgment of a man, but an ugly woman has practically no chance at all of ever being noticed by any man, no matter what beauties of heart and soul and intellect she may

Among my acquaintances are several women who have every desirable quality that a woman can possess, except beauty. They are clever and cultured; they bubble over with humor and good nature; they see life gayly and are the most interesting and fascinating of companions; they are domestic; they are affectionate and sympathetic and understanding

They would make the most wonderful wives in the world. Their husbands would be petted and made much of; they would have wives who would make them perfect homes and who would help them in every way. Their husbands would never know a dull moment at home, never be bored, for they would find in their wives the most stimulating of chums.

But Nature gave these women plain faces and, in consequence, the men have passed them by. They have never had a beau, never a proposal of marriage. Men have ridden by their doors and married doll-faced little fools of whom they tired before the honeymoon was over.

Women would not have been that idiotic. If these friends of mine had been men, and ten times as homely as they are but had possessed the intelligence and charm they have, women would have loved them and been proud and glad to have married them.

The less sense a woman has, the more she seems to appeal to men. The less she knows, the better they like her. The girls who talk baby talk and look at men with big, round, calflike eyes, and ask silly questions, have men flocking around them like flies about c honey pot, and can marry whom they choose.

But male idiots make no appeal to women. Women loathe ignorant men. Masculine morons do not fascinate them; they of course, after a man gets married to a woman he would like to have all the good qualities of her sex thrown in, as a chromo goes with a package of tea. He wants a wife who has intelligence enough to run her end of the domestic partnership. He wants a wife who is an interesting companion and who is a thrifty manager, but the trouble is that he doesn't seek these attributes in the first place. They are not what attracted him to the woman, not what induced him to marry her.

That is why the women who are calculated to make the best wives seldom get the opportunity of being wives at all. That is why marriage is so often a failure and there are so many divorces And that is why, if convention ever permits women to select their mates, we shall have more suitable and happier marriages, for romen have more sense about men than men have about women. DOROTHY DIX.

Government Control Business Proposition Actor Presents a Proud, Digni-

ARTICLE NO. 5

Some time ago the Toronto Star sent a correspondent to the West to investigate the results of the adoption of Government Control in the four Western Provinces. The Star announced in the beginning that these articles would be fair and would give both sides of the story. These articles were, and are being, reproduced in The London Advertiser.

So far, no one has been able to find the "fairness" nor the "other side" of the argument. The articles so far have been almost entirely "dry," and they have contained considerable misrepresentation, a great deal of exaggeration and some very misleading inferences.

In Alberta, for instance, liquor sale is licensed by the glass. The articles plainly state this is the result of Government Control, and the inference is made that Ontario will have the same condition if Government Control is sustained at the polls.

In neither British Columbia nor in Manitoba does Government Control mean sale by the glass.

In Alberta and Quebec it does mean sale by the glass, of beer and wine in licensed premises.

Premier Ferguson has clearly and emphatically stated that Government Control in Ontario will not mean sale by the glass. What Manitoba and British Columbia have done, Ontario can do!

British Columbia took a vote on beer by the glass, but the result, owing to errors in counting the ballots, is not yet decided, though it would appear that the result is unfavorable to sale by the glass.

One glaring misstatement in the article on British Columbia is in regard to the distribution of profits from liquor sales in the Coast Province, and this misstatement has had editorial indorsement in both the Star

The statement shows that the Government, from June 1921 to September 1923, sold $21,393,000 worth of

In British Columbia a certain percentage of the profits are returned to the municipalities on a per capita basis, the Government retaining the lion's share for itself. Yet the Star and Advertiser mention only the sum returned to the municipalities, $1,537,000, and represent it as the total profit derived by British Columbia from liquor sales, whereas the total sum is really two or three times that distributed to the municipalities.

Then a long line of deductions is built up from this false statement to show how much liquor would be drunk in Ontario at the same rate of consumption.

No mention is made of the tremendous tourist trade which has accrued to British Columbia since Government Control went into effect. It is not stated that the tourist business in British Columbia is the second largest industry in the province, leaving many millions of dollars in circulation.

The same thing will happen in Ontario under Government Control.

Not only will the government derive the profits now being taken by the bootleg trade. but Ontario will have an added attraction to tourists.

Last year it was estimated that $40,000,000 was spent in Quebec by tourists. They did not come to Montreal and stay there drinking, as is sometimes insinuated, though undoubtedly thousands did come because a drink was available if they wanted it. But they travelled over the province wherever there were good roads and spent as they went.

The Quebec government, realizing the tremendous value of this tourist trade, is spending millions derived from liquor sales, upon the roads.

Some good people say Ontario does not need revenue derived from liquor sales.

Is it not much better for the government to disperse reliable goods and derive the profit than that bootleggers should sell poisonous liquors at extortionate prices and derive all the profit—the government having the privilege of spending millions on enforcement of The Ontario Temperance Act?

Ontario towns, villages and farms will share in this tourist trade just as they do in British Columbia and Quebec, but on a far greater scale.

Both British Columbia and Quebec face on sparselysettled States, largely wilderness, while Ontario can draw from the richest, most-densely populated States of the Union, all along her border line.

This side of the case is not touched upon in any of the articles appearing in the Star and Advertiser, but it is nevertheless a very important consideration for the people of Ontario on October 23rd next.

If Government Control were nothing more than a business proposition, bringing to the province a large measure of prosperity, it would merit the support of

But it is more than that. It means the abolition of one of the most abortive, un-British and unfair pieces of legislative enactment on the statute books of Ontario-The Ontario Temperance Act.

Are you in favor of the continuance of The Ontario Temperance Act?

Are you in favor of the sale as a beverage of beer and spirituous liquor in sealed packages under Government control?

Mantell Has New Version of Shakespeare's Shylock

fied Character Who Does Not Fawn.

SPLENDID RESTRAINT

In the "Merchant of Venice," the last of the Shakesperean plays produced by Robert Mantell in London during this visit, the actor showed a more modern version of Shylock, and incidentally a more human figure than we have been accustomed to in many of the older performances.

His Shylock is no fawning, cringing money lender whining and grovelling at the feet of the Gentile oppressors. Mr. Mantell's Jew comes of finer stock. He is the true Jew of history, intensely proud of race and heritage, tenacious of every right of his people even though he must pay for it with suffering. He is seared with the scars of innumerable insults, but withal sturdily independent and scornful of the surrounding foreign world.

Mr. Mantell gives us a most virile Jew. He presents us with a heroic deep-passioned figure, an outcast from his time and the people he lived among, but fiercely rebellious of the treatment meted out to him and his brethren.

Know Sentiment.

Below the whole character is a tremendous reserve and dignity. The aristocracy of his lineage transcends each more petty feeling. His ducats are his first consideration to be sure, in all ordinary days and under all usual conditions, but when his daughter steals the turquoise that came a present from his long dead Leah, memory recalls young man-hood, and he would give every ducat for the return of this single love gift. low. If he seems to the gay young committee "whose duty it shall be Gentiles of Venice bitter, it is not to carry out the policy of the general without just cause. He has all the assembly and the presbytery by fos-Jewish suspicion of his eternal enemy, and the story shows the logic and force of this plainly enough, if Shylock in this portraiture by Mr. Man-tell is human it is never overdone, and with it members of the congregation. never burlesqued as has been the case with lesser artists. The restrained poise of the central figure is never lost, and throughout the garish color of the play remains a deep toned background of misfortune.

The committee was also authorized to prepare a circular letter to be addressed to the members of the facts of Perfect Control. So many actors have relied on "make-up" and melodrama to conjure up a Shylock that it is a relief to see Mr. Mantell using his glorious and perfectly-controlled voice and the quick, nervous gesture of his slim hands to paint the character of the forlorn Jew. In the court scene, where by the logic of Portia he sees his scheme of revenge go astray, his life in danger and his riches stripped from him, he gives a very and carefully-thought-out per-nance. He fights for the full formance. measure of his bond and the pound of flesh with every advantage which the law allows. But when he is caught in his own legal trap he accepts de-feat with resignation, and his last words to the judge, asking that the agreement whereby he loses every ducat be sent to his house and giving his promise to sign it, and his exit from the circle of enemies, one of whom has stolen his daughter, he from the circle of enemies, one of whom has stolen his daughter, hims the story of Shylock boldly as in a silhouette. The suffering of the great race is summed up in the fierce-lipped, bitter-eyed, unbending old man, who painfully drags himself to the members of the congregation after having been submitted to the session for approval.

The meeting was a most enthusiastic one and from reports already received by the committee there is every indication that the congregation as a whole is by no means detailed to the members of the congregation after having been submitted to the members of the congregation after having been submitted to the members of the congregation after having been submitted to the session for approval.

One would imagine that Mr. Mantell takes more pleasure in this role than in others. He plays it so easily, so wholeheartedly and with such a convincing air, as if he were never in doubt as to the quality of the Jew of Shakespeare's coining. He lends it that touch of pathos without W. J. Patterson, W. A. Tanner, P. J. Webster. which there can be no historically true story of the Jew. Special to The Advertiser. Kitchener, Oct. 12.—A Detroit man, formerly of this city, recently called on Magistrate J. J. A. Weir and told him that he had a troubled conscience as a result of making a false statement in connection with a case here in police court in 1912. As a result an innocent man suffered in a liquor case. The penitent party came to Kitchener especially to see the magistrate and he left feeling much better. His conscience was awakened some years ago, when he joined a Detroit church. Magistrate Weir has looked up the case in question and found that his visitor clearly remembers all the facts in connection with it.

squirmed through a mass of tackles, but it was ruled inches short.

The London line dominated throughout. The vanguard plunged through for yards almost at will, and it was this style of attack that put the Londoners in scoring position on every Sarnia confined themselves to a kicking game almost entirely, booting on the second down as often as they did on the last, and it was the correct strategy as the play proved. In the last few minutes with Goodman off through a hard tackle, and Loveless also a casualty. Red Cowan showed some great generalship turning from a plunging attack to onside kicks and trick formations to rattle the Londoners who were holding merely, but no breaks came. The Londoners pulled their plays down to earth, and the halves caught accurately and kept possession of the ball.

Sarnia Haif Line Good.

Sarnia's great half line performed up to advance notices. Art Wilson did practically all the booting, and he had everything in his toe all afternoon correct distancing, spirals and dangerously placed bounders. Perry's bad leg kept him out of the limelight a good deal of the game, but Karn was the chief thorn when it came to nullifying the booting attacks, running the ball out to safe distances when apparently hemmed in.

The Lendon half line played more than attacks, running the ball out to safe distances when apparently hemmed in. The London half line played more than average football. Goodman did not gst quite the distance or the accuracy that Wilson secured with his booting, but he was called upon for more ball carrying plunges and made several of the nicest short runs of the day, and four pretty passing plays which gained London ground, pivoted around the center half. Both Wanless and Lawrence showed poise and sure hands. The former made some nice gains through the line, and the latter fleet-foot was on the end of the prettiest end run of the combat. Ernie Dennis took over Goodman's place when he was injured, and his first and only boot was as good as anything toed by the visiting stars.

Heighth point.

As Sarnia kicked off Red Wilson was penalized a second time for his stand, ing-up tackle of Leamy, who played a smart game at quarter throughout and used good generalship. London made yards on successive plunges, and on the first down Stirrett battered his way through, carrying four Sarnia tacklers, a pair on each bare leg a matter of the last ten yards of twenty. It was ruled offside and Sarnia kicked after an on-side and passing attempt which yielded no gains. Stirrett returned the kick to the Sarnia deadline for the ninth province of the interprovincial race. But it was on the line that the Londoners were predominant. Jo Jo Stirrett made big gains every trip through the made big gains every trip through the blue and white line, the big ex-Varsity and ex-Argo star glorying, bare-legged, in the smashes at the blue and white line which reverberated all afternoon. Strengthened as it was by Stan Manore. Strengthened as it was by Red Wilson, last year's star plunger of the intermediate O. R. F. the thrusts the Londoners aimed at resteadily.

Offensively, the London line broke through under their halves' punts, and this helped to offset much of the longer kicking done by Wilson and Co. The Huestis line, far from experienced as it is, showed the effects of splendid coaching and plenty of drilling. Stirrett, Huestis, Balkwell and the London halves all pulled off some splendid ball, carrying on plays that opened up the Sarnians all along the line. Reg. Beard, playing his first full game, starred. He hit the Sarnia line hard and was one sure-fire tackler the Londoners had. His speed carried him down right under the boots and he and Loveless kept the Barnia halves worried the whole after—the same hard tackles, but did not retire

SPRING FANS ELEVEN

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Oct. 11.—Oslers, Hampden Park and Toronto champions for 1924. packed the Ontario honors into their bat bag here this afternoon when they won the second game of the O. B. A. A. finals by 4 to 2 from the once famous Galt Terriers, after one of the best battles witnessed in a local park in a decade. "Joe" Spring, the local ace, went the entire route, and his exhibition today was probably the best of his career. He yielded only three hits, one a triple by Lynch, and sent eleven benchward via the strike-out route.

Spring also helped to bring victory to his club house by collecting two hits. Jimmie Fleming, Oslers' little second sacker, was the leading swatsmith of the day, with a double and two singles.

Dougherty, the youthful lefthander, who started for the Terriers, was no puzzle for Fred Hamilton's clan. He was nicked for three runs and four hits in one and a third innings. Friendly Graham, the Galt veteran, who was sent in following Dougherty's collabse, pitched a strong game, holding his opponents to five hits and one run. The fielding features were catches by Groves and Watts of Galt, and Burt and Fleming of Oslers. and Fleming of Oslers.

THE TURE W. FISHER HIGH

A. Becker and R. McArthur Champs in Two Lower Divisions.

Special to The Advertiser. Woodstock, Oct. 12.—W. Fisher of Johnstown, Pa., captured the senior championship of Woodstock College at the annual field day, defeating Waltho of Dunnville last year's title holder, by a good margin. The intermediate championship was won by A. Becker of Tonawanda, N.Y., who was given a close run by Tarr of Winnipeg. R. Mc-Arthur of Whitby was highest in the junior division.

The leading athletes at the Collegiate were given an opportunity of testing their prowess against those of the College in the afternoon events, and did so with considerable success. However, College won the balf-mile relay race. Fisher, Smith, Tarr and Waltho composed the winning crew, while G. Bailey, G. Murray, G. King and B. Wright ran for the Collegiate.

gigantic offering, the outpouring of advance subscriptions being unusually large.

Chief interest in the listed issues centered in the further recovery of the St. Pauls, the 4's of 1925, which have born the brunt of recent selling, moving up 1% points. Louisville and Nashville 4's closed a point higher. The "Katy" issues were heavy.

Changes in the industrial group were small and unimportant. Public utilities were heavy, but except in the case of Third Avenue adjustment 5's, which dropped a point, the net losses as a rule were held to fractions. Announcement was made that a 12,500,000 offering of Detroit Edison general and refunding mortgage 5's due 1949, would be offered next week.

The magistrate, Sir Hugh John Macdonald, the illustrious son of a still more illustrious father, declared at a recent court session that conditions were bad, and growing worse, and that there was an increasing disrespect for the law. That is not my opinion; it is the verdict of the man who sits there daily and watches the grist go through the mil. Touching the subject of liquor and labor, Mr. Bayley said:

THE FUR COAT MAY WELL DEFY THE WINTER

WHEN IT IS OF MUSKRAT OR SEAL, LUXURIOUSLY CUFFED AND COLLARED IN SABLE OR SQUIRREL'

Furs, through long centuries, have meant luxury, comfort and elegance. Their history, like that of jewels and gold, has been varied and colorful. In ages past, furs might have meant a king's ransom or a barbarian's trophy.

Primitive women of the north sought instinctively the close warmth of pelt against the piercing cold and driving snow. Woven wool alone, they knew could never so resist the cold. Even more is fur essential to the modern woman emerging into bitter winter winds from homes that are furnace heated and offices kept almost at summer heat.

And to the modern woman, furs are necessary not only for warmth. They create for her a sense of poise, a confidence in modish appearance. Like pearls, they enhance the beauty of any woman. And so fashion bows to their dictum, and creates each season anew an original line of beauty and distinction for the fur coat and wrap.

When furs are fashionable—they present a combination of modish line, well-matched skins, and skillful workmanship. These coats supply in full excellence each of the requirements.

To-day! saw

ket! I saw them when I visited the special instruction classes in crepe paper craft, on the Fifth Floor. Perhaps you were there yourself, to learn the newer points in this clever

But if your week's calendar wouldn't allow for a visit I'm ou'll be alad to learn that the classes have been extended for a second week

Shortly after the commencement of the classes last Monday, indeed, it was decided that a second week would be necessary. The visitors were so many, and their interest so keen!

And they have really been delightful sessions for the grownup pupils. Rolls of crepe paper rone about for making baskets. Tiny lamps burning for sealing wax ornaments! And a myriad strips and squares and curley kews of crepe paper for those who were making the paper flowers.

I admired the instructor and her young assistant. For they were deft, experienced people, who had an answer for every question, and a solution for every difficulty.

The classes were quick to learn, for there were many lovely things being made-baskets and flowers and waxen ornaments. dainty be-flowered medallions to hang about the neck on a silken ribbon. And not a penny of cost for all this, other than for the materials.

If you weren't able to come last week, there'll be a place for you in the new classes. And all sorts of new and interesting things for you to learn about the handling of crepe paper and sealing wax.

THE GILLETTE RAZOR, 98c, IN NEW COMPACT CASE AND CONVENIENT PRICE

The new Gillette Razor Case slips into the vest pocket. It's as flat as a watch case and only a trifle larger. And yet it holds conveniently the familiar three pieces of the Gillette Razor. You'll see the new shipment prominently displayed in the Men's Shop. An attractive leather case in blue and gray and gold. It holds as much as the lever case, but it slips into your pocket or down into a corner of your club bag, with no more bulkiness than a cigarette case. The razor is gold-finished and in the regulation Gillette size.-Men's Shop.
