His rectoral address, on the subject ring appeal to the race to realize its onsibilities and to prepare to fight for its existence. Never, said the former premier, had the Empire so urgently required the strenuous support of its subjects, because there was a disposition abroad to challenge both its account.

both its naval and commercial su-premacy. The twentieth century, he declared, would be a period of keen, intelligent, and almost fierce international competition, more probably in the arts of peace even than in the arts of war. Therefore, he added, it was necessary to undertake periodical stock-taking, to remodel the state machinery and educational methods and to become more business-like and thorough as warriors, merchants and statesmen, and to look thoroughly to the training of first-rate men for the struggle ahead, as on these depended the future of the Empire and the race. He thought that the now antiquated methods of training had almost resulted in commercial disaster, and the time had arrived to reconsider the educational apparatus.

SATAN REPROVING SIN.

Tammany Hall is about to begin a erusade against vice. It arose out of the chance meeting between Richard Croker and Isidor Strauss, the philanthropist, who sat next each other at dinner. Strauss described the vice on the east side, and said Tammany was charged with deriving its revenue from it. Croker invited Strauss to tell that to the executive committee of Tammany. As a result. Park Commissione: Clausen, Health Commissioner Murphy, Fire Commissioner Scannell and Charities Commissioner Keller representing the best elements in Tammany, were appointed a vice-crushing committee: Croker said: "Not one dollar comes into my possession from landlords of poolrooms and houses of ill-fame, and if any one of you gentlemen are collecting from any of these people you had better get out of the organization. It has no use for you.

THE GLOBE'S INFAMOUS COURSE.

"The devil seems to have broken loose in the Globe office," says the Montreal Star. "The Globe and its friends succeeded beyond their wildest expectations in dividing the people of Canada on race lines, and yet our esteemel contemporary is not happy. The Globe is no wengaged in the amiable work of trying to set Catholic against Protestant and Protestant against Catholic. Yesterday's editorial page is made up chiefly of one editorial two and a half columns in length on "The Race Question," another of three-quarters of a column on "The Race and Creel Cry," and several mine or paragraphs fouching upon "Ne Popery." Monday's issue has a bittel screed headed The Creed and Race Campaign, hased not upon anything Campaign, hased not upon anything said by Sir Charles Tupper, nor by any of the Conservative leaders, nor upon anything said by the Mail and Empire, nor by any of the leading Conserva-tive papers; but upon something alleg-ed to have been said by. One of the Conservative workers in London. If the Globe can save the Ross government by making trouble between the Catholics and Protestants of Ontario, prominent manner republished an article from Le Soliel, in which it was alleged that The Planet had called the French-Canadians pigs. The charge was false, absolutely false, but it shows to what depths the L'beral press have descended in trying for party purposes to raise race strife.

A CURIOUS STORY.

The Toronto World in a long article gives a story which accounts for vari ous things at which Canadians have been wondering for years. Beginning with the "commercial union" movement in which Mr. Wiman induced Laurier, Cartwright, and the other L'beral leaders in Canada to join him, the World charges that that commercial union conspiracy was hatched in the New York Sun office, with old Charles Dana as one of the conspirators, the object being the annexation of Canada to the United States, So soon as the people of Canada were made to see that object commercial union died.

But the Sun still advocates annexa tion, and on Friday last, contained remarkable article on the effect o the result of the Canadian elections in which the Sun said:

This is an event of consequence not This is an event of consequence not only to Canadians, but to the whole British empire, for it has killed the project for a customs union between the mother country and the great self-

The effect of this sweeping victory for the Liberal program in Canada up for the L beral program in Canada upon the British empire at large is unmistakable, Canada will continue to discriminate in favor of British imports to the extent of 331-3 per cent, but it will not admit them duty free and it will not even request a preference for Canadian products in the United Kingdom at the expense of competitive staples forwarded from the United States, Russia and Argentina. That it is to say, the Dominion of Canada will continue ta pursue an independent existence and will not even try to knit more firmly the bond connecting her with the United Kingdom. Nor is this all. The Liberal party, headed by Sr Wilfrid Laurier and conspicuously represented by Sr

da. It is the party which recognizes the tremendous power of the influences which tend to connect economically and politically British North America, with, the great American republic.

The viotory of Sir Wilfrid Laurier means that the joint high commission will shortly resume activity and will endeavoir to modely the relations of the English-speaking commonwealths

The World then points out that So Wilfrid Laurier went to England, where, in the jubilee year be had an opportunity to do something for pre-ferential trade; but failed, saying that nothing was to be got; and if it was Danada didn't want it. Then came the preferential duty law, passed by Laur-ier, and the friendship of Britain for the United States, and the friendship of the United States for Britain in the foer war, and the present mission of Choate to England, all of which the World connects with the story,

And now, to come back to the com-

the significance of the New York Sun's words, which we have quoted above. Sir Wilfrid Laurier to-day knows that he was guilty of—shall we say of treason? Or shall we say he was simply guilty of an indiscretion, in attaching himself to the commercial union movement. We were much sunseed he is in ment? We very much suspect ha is in the hands of those Americans who backed Erastus Wiman in his project; we very much suspect that in the New York Sun office, and in the private cor-respondence of old Charles Dana, there are letters of an incriminating character. At all events it is true that cer-tain Americans are in a position to hold the whip over Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sr Richard Cartwright, and that these Canadian members have really played the post of the United States in preventing a customs union between the motherland and this country.

The World then coming to Tarte says that he knows of Sir Wilfrid's trifling with byalty in the commercial union scheme, and that he (Tarte) was entitled to trifle with loyalty in France, and thus sums up:

Catholics and Protestants of Ontario, on the strength of something alleged to have been said by 'one of the Conservative workers in London,' the people of Ontario must be gullible indeed."—Toronto Mail.

The Star's charges against the Globe are well founded. The Planet can together the following the first tify to this from experience. The Globe on its front page in the most prominent manner republished an ar-The outcome of the whole matter is France and the tri-color than to the British Engare and to the Union Jack. The deeper the people of Can-ada study the great facts involved in the above statements and decide on bringing the responsibility home to where it belongs, the sooner they will understand the things which are transpiring in this country and out of this country to-day. We believe that as a result of Sr Wilfrid Laurier's alliance with Wiman and Dana, and his conduct in England, and his surrender on the trade preference, a British customs union is delayed for some time. The United States has too many friends or allies in the government of Canada, and France has at least one, who will all be ready to serve these powers through either fear or affection when their interests are concerned. | Canadians had better

"That vote looks mighty bad for us on't you think so ?"

"But how can we try that after Jim Sutherland's letter! The Catholics are no fools; they will see through

"Never mind that. You shout out that the Ross Government is the friend of the Catholic Church. Shout it every day. Raise the creed cry for all you are worth. If we can hoodwink the Catholic vote we may pull through "All right. We'll work the creed cry for you as hard as we worked the race cry for Laurier, and then blame the Conservatives for it. Say, didn't we do that well f But, heavens, how we did have to le."

"Never mind the lying. Oblige Mr. Ross now by doing your best." And the Globe is obliging him. For further particulars see its columns.

After all, the Laurier Government's price of $10,000 for a sent in the Senate was not exorbitant. A New Yorker the other day paid $46,500 for et on the stock exchange.

It is charged that the Liberals had an enormous "reptile" fund which was distributed through the various constituencies for corrupt purposes Wouldn't it be in the interests of political morality to make the raising of such funds comman.

The Christian Guardian says: "If one on two very talkative politicians in both Quebec and Ontario could be persuaded to keep quiet for a few years Canada would forget that she ever had a 'race question.' " If our contemporary would add the Globe to the list that happy consummation might be reached.

The Banner-News quotes the states ment from Le Soleil, via the Globe, that The Planet called the French Canadians pigs. We are not surprised at papers a distance away who do not know The Planet, slandering it, and we do not expect anything better from the Globe while it is engaged in trying to raise the creed cry to save the Ross government. But the Bannerfamily journal cannot regard a malicious repeater of falsehoods as any thing less contemptible than the original fabricator.

NIGHT COUGHS

Don't you dread to have night come? The children cough so hard. And how many things have you tried? A great many, certainly. They don't seem to reach just the place. But you can reach it exactly by using Vapo-Cresolene.

You put a little Cresolene in the vaporizer cup, light the lamp beneath, and let the children breathe-in the vapor. The throat is soothed, all inflammation is allayed, congestion is relieved, and sleep is not disturbed. Continue this each night until a cure is effected, which will be in a surprisingly short time. Remember it's harmless to the youngest child. There isn't any trouble of the throat or lungs that cannot be relieved with Vapo-Cresolene. It always does good, And for whooping-cough it is the one great specific. Doctors everywhere endorse it.

Vapo Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. A Vapo Cresolene outfit, including the Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a life-time, and a bottle of Cresolene, complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. ## SELFISH THOUGHTS.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Urges a Life of Helpfulness to Others.

TOO MUCH SELF CONCENTRATION

tal Lessons Drawn From the Captivity of Job, Who Prayed for His Friends-The Efficacy of Prayer-Uselessness of Anger.

Washington, Nov. 11 .- In this distourse Dr. Talmage wars on narrowness of views and urges a life helpful to others; text, Job xlii, 10, "And the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

Comparatively few people read this last chapter of the book of Job. The earlier chapters are so full of thrilling incident, of events so dramatically portrayed, of awful ailments and terrific disaster, of domestic infelicity, of staccato passage, of resounding address, of omnipotency proclaimed, of neterances showing Job to have been the greatest scientist of his day, an expert in mining and precious stones, astronomer and geographer and zoologist and electrician and poet, that most readers stop before they get to my text, which, strangely and mysteriously, announces that "the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."
Now, will you please explain to me how Job's prayer for his friends halted his catastrophes? Give me some good reason why Job, on his knees in behalf of the welfare of others, arrested the long procession of calamities. Mind you, it was not prayer for himself, for then the cessation of his troubles would have been only another instance of prayer answered. But the portfolio of his disaster was rolled up while he supplicated God in behalf of Eliphaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Naamathite. I must contact the state of the supplication of th fess to you that I had to read the text over and over again before I got its full meaning — "And the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he well, if you will not explain it me I will explain it to you. The healthiest, the most recuperative thing on earth to do is to stop thinking so much about ourselves and go to thinking about the welfare of others. Job had been studying his misfortunes, but the more he thought about his bankruptcy the poorer he seemed, the more he thought of his carbuncles the worse they hurt, the more he thought of his unfortunate marriage the more intolerable became the cc...jugal relation, the more he thought of his house blown down the more terrific seemed the cyclone. His misfortunes grew blacker and blacker. But there was to come a reversal of these sad conditions. One day he said to himself: "I have been dwelling too much upon my bodily ailments and my wife's temper and my bereavements. It is time I began to think about others and do something for others, and I will start now by praying for my three friends." Then Job dropped upon his knees, and as he did so the las shackle of his captivity of troubles snapped and fell off. Hear it, all ye ages of time and all ye ages of eter-'the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his

The fault with most of us is too much self concentration — our health, our fortunes, our advancement, our social position, our achievements, our losses, our defeats our sufferings, our persecution, our life, our death, our immortality, of course there is a lawful and righte-ous selfishness. In a world and in a time of such activities and rivalries and temptations we must look after our own interests and our own des-tiny or we will go under. Do not wait for others to take care of you. Take care of yourself. But it will not hinder our preservation and prosperity if we enlarge the sphere of wishes and prayers so as to take in others.

Our world, with its own interests, feels the pull of other worlds. No world, no nation, no community, no man, no woman, can afford to exist only for itself or himself or herself. The hour in which Job has that soliloquy about the enlargement of his prayers so as to take in his friends, and he put into execution. world, no nation, no community, no and he put into execution his good resolution, was the hour when he felt a tonic, a sedative, a nervine, a cataplasm that helped to cure his body and revived his fortunes till they were a hundred per cent. better than ever before, for the record, is "the Lord gave Job twice as much as he had before." and tended to make him a wonder of longevity, for he lived 140 years after his troubles were gone. Oh, what a mighty medicament is the contemplation of and the effort for the welfare of others.

"But," says some one, it is easy enough for Job to pray for his friends. Anybody can do that. There are those to whom we are obliged for years of kindness. They stand so close to us in sympathy and reminiscence and anticipation that it is easy for us to pray for their wel-fare." Well, I see you do not under-stand that these friends of Job were the most tantalizing and exasperat-ing friends a man ever had. Look at their behavior. When they heard of his bereavements and the accidents by whirlwind and lightning stroke, they came in and sat down by him a whole week, seven days and seven nights, and the record is "none spake a word to him." What a disreputable and wicked silence! Mind you they and wicked silence! Mind you they professed to be religious men and they ought to have been able to offer some religious consolation. Instead of that they were dumb as the sphinx which at that time stood in the African desert and stands there still. Why did they not say something about reunion in the heavenly realms with his children who had been slain? Why did they not talk to him about the satisfactory explanations in the future world of things are do not un-derstand in this world? Why did they not go to the apothecary and buy a poultice that would have soothed the carbuncles, or some quieting potion that would calm his nerves, or a few drops of febrifuge that would cool his heated frame? No! For seven days and seven nights they did nothing and said nothing for his relief. They must have almost bored him to death.

After these three friends had com pleted their infamous silence of a they began to lecture Job. First, Eliphaz the Temanite opens with a long story about a dream which he had in the night and irritates the sufferer with words that make things worse instead of better and sets him in an attitude of de-fense against the lecturer. Then comes Bildad the Shuhite, who gives the invalid a round scolding and him garrulous and practically tells him that he deserved all that he got and that if he had behaved himself aright he would not have lost his house or his children or his estate. He practically says: "Job, I will tell you what is the matter with you You are bad, you are a hypocrite, you are now getting paid for your wickedness." No wonder that there came from Job an outburst of indignation which calls out the other quondam friend, Zophar the Naamathite, who begins denouncing Job by calling him a liar and keeps on the discourse until Job responds to all three of them in the sarcastic words, 'No doubt but we are the people, and wisdom shall die with you Oh, what friends Job had! Heaven deliver us from having three of them. It was for such friends that Job prayed, and was it not a religious triumph for him to do so? Would you, the very best of you, be in very devout mood and capable of making intercession for people who had come to you in a day of trouble and said: "Good for you. You ought to be chastised. You are being taken in hand by eternal justice. If you had behaved yourself aright, you would not have been sick or persecuted or impoverished or made childless." Oh, my friend, you would not have felt like Job when be prayed for his friends, but more like Job when he cursed the day of his nativity!

three friends was premeditated. They did not merely happen in and come suddenly upon trouble for which they could not offer a compound. The Bible says, "They had made in apgointment together. The interview was prearranged. They had agreed as to what they would say to the sick man. You can see that their remarks were not extemporaneou What they said was sublimely poetic. They rose in style into what in later times we would call the Homeric or Dantesque. But Job was not in need of poetry so much as a salve for his eruptive disorder. He was not dying for lack of a paragraph in blank verse. He was not so much in need of a didactic lecture about the justice of God as an assurance of the divine matical sentences together could have said something more consolatory. meanness of the attack of The these religious critics was augmented by the fact that they had the sufferer in their power. When we are well and we do not like what one is ing, we can get up and go away. But Job was too ill to get up and go away. First he endured the seven days and seven nights of silence, and then he endured their arraignment of his motives and character, and after their cruel campaign was ended sublime effort of soul, which I this day uphold for imitation, he triumphed in prayer for his tantalizers In all history there is nothing equa to it except the memorable implora tion by Christ for his enemies. wonder that after that prayer of Job was duce uttered a turnil of recovershot through every nerve and vein his great soul, and God answered by adding nearly a century and a half to his lifetime and whitened the hils with foets of sheep, and filled the ar with the lowing of cattle, and wa' ened the silent nursery of and wa' ened the si'ent nursery of his home with the swi't feet and the laughing toices of childhood — seven sens and three daughters celebrated for their beauty, the daughters to re-fine the sons, the sons to defend their daughters. There is nothing that pays so well as prever, and the more difficult the praver to make the greater the reward for making it.

Let us all make similar attempt to pray for those who vex and misrepresent and tantalize us. You may be very popular in the city or neighborhood where you live, but I warrant if you are in active life there are if you are in active life there are those who wish you the opposite of wishing you well. Are you benevolent? They say it is on your part a matter of personal display. Are you eloquent or learned? They declare you are overrated and that what you say or write is of no importance. Do you try to make yourself effective in church or hespital or board of directors? They call you officious. Are you well drassed? They say you are proud. Does a false report start are proud. Does a falle report start in the community against your char-acter? They believe it all and add another story to the fabrication Some of them pretend to be friends, but they have the sudgels all ready for you - Eliphaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite, Zophar the Naamathite. Now, pray for them. "Oh," you say, "I cannot do that." I thought you could not. But you will grow in grace until you can do it as easily and as well as did Job pray for his exasperators.

Nothing is so unhealthy as to get mad. It is a shock to the whole physical organization as well as to your mental and moral condition. It is no unusual thing for people to drop down dead in a fit of anger. You people who weigh over 200 pounds avoirdupois had better never lose your temper, for at such times lose your temper, for at such times apoplexy is not far off. Get the equipoise of Job in the text, and it will help you in business directions. Fraying for all offenders you will have more nerve for large undertakings; you will have a better balanced judgment; you will waste no valuable time in trying to get even with your enemies. Try this height of prayer for your antagonist to-day, and if you fail try it to-morrow Keep on until you accomplish it, and I should not wonder if, in addition to the moral and religious strength it gives you, it should add a hundred per cent, to your worldly pres per.ty. Job xlii, 10, "The Lord gave Job twice as much as he had before,

Many of the prayers offered in Christian lands are as senseless as these artificial prayers of the pagans What is needed is not only heartfelt prayer, but direct prayer, such as David mentions, drawing his figure from archery, with its bow and ar-rows. As the notch of the arrow is put against the string of the and then the archer takes aim and in a flash the arrow strikes the mark, so Pavid resolves that his prayers shall not be aimless. He aims his prayer at the heavens, "To thee will I direct my prayer." "Have you said your prayers?" is a misleading question. You may say your prayers a ousand times without praying. The Bible speaks of Elias, "who prayed in his prayer," implying that one can pray when no prayer is offered. Prayer is the soul on the wing. It is the private door into the King's pal-It is the barometer showing what the spiritual weather will be It is stepping into the holy of holies. It is telegraphy with the heavens. It is the winding up of the clock of the immortal soul. It is intercommuni cation between the finite and the in finite. Prayer suggested by circumstances, as when the child went outdoors in the snow to play and said afterward to her mother, "Mosaid afterward to her mother, ther, I could not help making snow prayer," and when her mother asked her what the snow prayer was she replied, "Wash me and I shall be whiter than snow."

whiter than snow.

Prayer is what some one has called "the slender nerve that moveth the muscles of omnipotence." Prayer is the healthful repiration of the soul. It is the whisper of helplessness into the ear of help. It is laying hold of silmightiness, omniscience and omni-presence at one and the same time. Prayer enlists all divine and angelic of a pulley fastened to the heavenly throne. Prayer is the first breath of a newborn soul and it is heard in the last gasp of earthly Christian experiences. Prayer! In an instant it mounts the highest heavens. periences. Prayer! In an instant it mounts the highest heavens. Neither seraph nor archangel ever flew switter or higher than the infant's petition er or higher than the infant's pection at her mother's knee. What an opportunity is prayer! Why not oftener use it praying for ourselves and, like Job, praying for others? What better work would we do, what better lives would we live, what better hopes would we entertain, if multiplied and intensifed our prayers! plied and intensifed our prayers! Some one asked a soldier of Sto wall Jackson the secret of the great general's influence over his men.

"Does you general abuse you, swear at you, to make you march?"
"Swear!" replied the soldier. "No! Swear! replied the soldier. No! Ewell does the swearing; Stonewall does the praying. When Stonewall wants us to march he looks at us soberly, just as if he were sorry for us, and says, Men, we have got to make a long march. We always know when there is going to be a long march and right smart fighting, for Stonewall is powerful on prayer just march and right smart fighting, for Stonewall is powerful on prayer just before a b'g fight." When Stonewall Jackson was asked the meaning of the passage, "instant in prayer," he said: "If you will not mistake and think I am setting myself up as an example, which I am not, I will give an illustration from my own habit. I have so fixed the habit of prayer in my mind that I never raise a glass of water to my lips without a moment's asking of God's hlessing. I never seal a letter without putting a word of prayer under the seal. I never take a letter from the post without a brief sending of my thought heavenward. I never change my classes in the section root without a minute's petition for the cadets who go out and those who cadets who go out and those come in." "Don't you sometimes forget?" said a friend. He replied: "I think I can say that I scarcely do. The habit has become almost as fixed as breathing." "But," says some one from a different section of the one from a different section country from that in which General Jackson lived, "were his prayers answered?" Yes, as carnest prayers are always answered, in God's way, which is often quite different from man's way, and God's way is al-ways the best way, while our way may be the wrong way.

Now, if God has during these marks shown us the uses, the portance, the blessedness of prayer suppose we try to do what Job did when he prayed for his exasperators. Many of us at the beginning of this subject felt that, while we could pray for ourselves and pray for those who were kind to us, we never could reach the high point of religious exper ence in which we could pray for those who annoy us and make us feel worse instead of feeling better. That was a Matterhorn, that was an Alp, to the top of which we feared we could never climb, but we thank God that by his omnipotent grace w have reached that height at last. Let us pray! O Christ, who didst pray for thene assassins, we now pray for those who despitefully use us and say all manner of evil against us. For When time is no more, may they reign on thrones and wear coronets and sway scepters of heavenly dom'n on. Meanwhile take the bitterness from their soul and make them soon think as well of us as now they think evil. Spare their bodies from pain and their households from bereavement. After all the misunderstandings and controversies of this life are over, may we keep with them eternal jubilee in the mansions on the hill. And as thou didst turn the captivity of Job when he had prayed for those who badly used him and health came to his body and prosperity to his estate, now that we have by thy grace been able to make a supplication for our antagonists, cure our diseases we are ill, and restore our estate it has scattered, and awaken glad ness in our homesteads if they have been bereft, and turn the captivity of our financial misfortune or mental distress. And thine shall be the kingdom and the power and the glory forever and ever. Amen.

Monterey, Mexico, Nov. 17. - Th report that American officers have nearthed ancient records in Pekin showing that the Chinese discovered America 1,500 years ago, and erected temptes in Mexico, has aroused great interest among the scientific men of Monterey and throughout this country. The chinese temples alluded to are in the State of Sonora. The ruin of one of the temples was discovered near the town of Ures about two years ago.

One of the large stone tablets found One of the large stone tablets found in the ruins was covered with carved Chinese characters, which were partly deciphered by a learned Chinaman who visited the ruins at the request of the Mexican government. This Chinaman made the assertion at the time that the ruins were those of a temple, which had been creeted many centuries ago by Chinese, but his statement was not received with credence. It has been claimed long that the ment was not deceaved with credence. It has been claimed long that the Indians of the state of Sonora are descendants of these early Chinese settlers. They possess many traditions and characteristics of the Chinese. If the report of the finding of these records in Pekin shall be verified, an expedition will go from here-to explore further the aricient temple

Kent is still one of the principal ama fur producing counties in Ontario and musk rat, mink, skunk, fox, coon, etc., are located here with almost the same success as in "ye olden days."

In an interesting chat with The Planet yesterday afternoon Nelson Stringer, the well-known King street fur dealer, alluded to the continued development of the transper's arts.

"Thirty years ago," he sai!, "many men in Kent county made their living by trapping. In fact, I could tell you of well-to-do revidents at the Eau, Big Point and Mitchell's Bay who obtained their start in business life in this way. Prices for musk rats and mink are now lower but for other rats and mink are now lower but for other furs the quotations are much the same at those of 20 years ago. There is not the opportunity for securing rats now as the season does not open until January first and then as a rule the ground is all frozen up. Mink, skunk, fox and coon, are not as plentiful as of yore, largely owing to the plains, but the big ditches still afford excellent opportunities for the hunter. There are more skunk caught now than formerly. The best apots in Kent for the trapper are up and down the river, the Eau, Walpole Island and the marshes there are the St. Clair flats.

THOUSANDS BEAR WILNESS

To The Value of the Pyramid Pile Thousands of pile sufferers bear witne

o the inestimable value of the Pyramid Pile ure, and even those who have undergo surgical operations, without cure have been happily surprised by results from a few weeks treatment with the Pyramid.

The relief from pain and itching is almost instantaneous and the healing oils and most instantaneous and the heating oils and astringents contained in the remedy gradually and naturally bring, about a complete cure in any form of piles, itching, protruding, internal or bleeding.

Mr. Archie Birkett, of Ionia, Mich., writes: "I was troubled with piles so bad, I had to quit work for a while. I found no relief until I tried the Pyramid Pile Cure, I used only two applications and it cured me almost instantly. I can truthfully recommend the Pyramid Pile Cure to any sufferer from Piles."

Mr. Edward Dunellen, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., says: "For seven years I was scarce-ly ever free from the itching terment of piles. I had used ontments and salves without number and oftentimes got relief without number and oftentimes got refler from them, but it took the Pyramid Pile Cure to make a complete cure and it did it thoroughly and for eighteen months I have not had the slightest trace of piles. I feel all the more rejoiced because some of my friends told me I would never be cured unless I submitted to surgical operation and this I felt I never could do.

Mrs. Aaron Medron, of Savannah, Ga., writes: "Ever since the birth of my first child, six years ago, I have suffered greatly from piles and rectal troubles. I could not be the country of a my surgice was the country of a my surgice.

from piles and rectal troubles. I could not bring myself to bear the thoughts of a surgical operation and had always been prejud ced against patent medicines.

But it was simply a case of try something or give upentirely and so having often seen the Pyramid Pile Cure advertised I determined to try it and for two years have never ceased to congratulate myself that I did so for I have been entirely cured of rectal troubles and two makages of Pyramid rectal troubles and two packages of Pyramid removed every trace of the piles. This may sound far fetched and over-drawn but it is absolutely true."

"The Pyramid Pile Cure contains no cocains on unique only more any injurious drug

A ROMANCE.

Some misty idea that such was the case had been struggling through Sir Norman's slow mind, unformed and without shape, ever since he had seen the trio; therefore he was not astonished when he heard the fact an-nounced. Only in one thing he was a little disappointed.
"Then Hubert is really a boy?" he "Certainly he is. What did you take him to be?"

"Why, I thought-that is, do not the blushing at being guilty of so much romance, "but that he was a woman in disguise. You see he is so hand-some, and looks so much like Leo-line, that I could not help thinking

"He is Leoline's twin brotherthat accounts for it. When does she come your wife?" "This very morning, God willing," said Sir Norman, fervently.

"Amen! And may her life and yours be long and happy. What bemes of the rest?"

"Since Hubert is her brother, shall come with us, if he will for the other, ah, alas, is dead." "Dead!" cried La Masque. "How? When? She was living to-night!'
"True, she died of a wound."

"A wound! Surely not given by the dwarf's hand?" "No, no; it was quite accidental.

But since you know so much of these dwarf, perhaps you also know he is now the king's prisomeer?" "I did not know it; but I surmised as much when I discovered that you and Count L'Estrange, followed by such a body of men, visited the ruin. Well, his career has been long and enough, and even the plague seemed to spare him for the executioner. And so the poor mode queen is dead. Well, her sister will not long survive her."

"Good heavens, madame," cried Sir Norman aghast. "You do not mean to say that Leoline is going to die?" no! I hope Leoline has a long and happy life before her. But the wretched, guilty sister I mean is myself; for I, too, Sir Norman, am her sister."

At this new disclosure, Sir Norman stood perfectly petrified; and La Masque, looking down at the dread-ful place at her feet, went rapidly

"Alas and alas! that it should be so; but it is the direful truth. bear the same name, we had the bane and the curse of their lives

"And Leoline knows this?"
"She never knew it until this night, or anyone else alive; and no one should know it now, were not my chastly life ending. I prayed her to orgive me for the wrong I have done her; and she may, for she is gentle and good—but, when, when shall I be able to forgive myself?" The sharp pain in her voice jarred on Sir Norman's ear and heart; and, to get rid of its dreary echo, he hurriedly asked:

"You say you bear the same name. May I ask what that name is?"
"It is one Sir Norman Kingsley, before which your own ancient title pales. We are Montmorencis, and in our veins runs the proudest blood of

"Then Leoline is French, and of noble birth?" said Sir Norman, with a thrill of pleasure. "I loved her for herself alone, and would have wedded her had she been the child of a beggar, but I rejoice to hear this, nevertheless. Her father, then, bore a title?"

"Her father was the Marquis de Montmorenci, but Leoline's mother and mine were not the same-they been, the lives of all four might have been very different; but it is too late to lament that now. My mother had no gentle blood in her veins, as Leoline's had, for she was but a fisherman's daughter, torn from her home, and married by force. Neither did she love my father, not-withstanding his youth, rank and passionate love for her, for she was betrothed to another bourgeois, like herself. For his sake she refused herself. For his sake she refused even the title of marchioness, offered her in the moment of youthful and ardent passion, and clung, with deathless truth to her fisher-lover. The blood of the Montmorencis is fierce and hot, and brooks no opposition." (Sir Norman thought of Miranda, and inwardly owned that that was a fact); "and the Marquis in his jealous wrath, both hated and loved her at the same time, and vowed deadly vengeance against her bour geois lover. That vow he kept: The young fisherman was found one worning at his lady-love's door without a head, and the bleeding trunk told no

"Of course, for awhile, she was distracted and so on; but when the father carried her off, and forcibly made her his wife. Fierce hatred, I told you, was mingled with his fierce love, and before the honeymoon was over it began to break out. One night, in a fit of jealous passion, to which he was addicted, he led her into a room she had never before been permitted to enter; showed her a grinning human skull, and told her it was her lover's! In his cruel avultation, he concessed all; how to had caused him to be murdered his head severed from the too; and brought here to punish her, some day, for her obstinate relies to love day, for her obstinate refusal to love

The physician he bound by a terrible oath to silence; the nurse he forced back, and in spite of her disgust and abhorrence compelled her to nurse and care for The dead was buried out of sight: and we had rooms in a distant part of the house; which no one ever entered but my father and the nurse. Though set apart from my birth something accursed, I had the intel-lect and capacity of—yes, far greater intellect and capacity than . children; and, as years passed by my father, true to his vow, became himself my tutor and companion. He did not love me-that was an utter impossibility; but time so blunts the edge of all things, that even the nurse became reconciled to me, and my father could scarcely do less than a stranger. So I was cared for, and instructed; and, knowing not what a monstrosity I was, I loved them both ardently, and lived on, happily enough, in my splendid prison for my first ten years in this world.

"Then came a change; my nurse the sort of world I lived in. So my father, seeing all this, sat down in the twilight one night beside me, and told me the story of my own hideousness. I was but a child then, but this gray summer morning I fee what I fe.t then, as vividly as I did at the time. I had not learned the great lesson of life then—endurance. I have scarcely learned it yet, or I should bear life's burden longer; but that first night's despair has darkned my whole after-life. For weeks I would not listen to my father's proposal to hide what would send all the world from me in loathing behind a mask; but I came to my senses at last, and from that day to the present-more days than either you or I would care to count-it has not been one hour altogether off my

The Wreck of the Julie Plante

Stilk in Dispute

George C. Land of of Gordon
Lake, Algoma was of the Julie Plante weekly years ago, and he dechires he can show it in the newspaper files. Dr. Drummond, of Montreal, asserts that he wrote it fifteen years ago, Others also claim it, but Mr. Rankin is very definite in his assertions as to name of author, place and date. Dr. Drummond is now in Detroit, and the News interviewed him on the subject. Said the Doctor:

"Now, by gar late setrandge ting bout dat. Do you know that the editor of the Montreal Star had to start a query column to answer people who made the same claim! I'll tell you how that was. Therman three poems—that is, there are now. One starts if was one dark night on Lac Pierre. Another says "Lac Champlain" and still another one 'Lac St. Claire. My poem sayred, 'It was one dark night on Lac Pierre. I wrote the thing about 15 years ago, but never had it copyrighted until recently, when I collected all the scattered poems and put them together in one volumer. A funny thing about these other authors is the fact that I can't find that any one of them has ever written anything else but the 'Julie Plante,' but they nearly swamped the editor of the Star. At last he said. 'Drummond, you'd save me a whole lot of bother if you'd publish all those things.' So I gathered them together:

"A week after the book appeared, the editor had to start another column of 'queries' and I guess it didn't lighten his work much, after all. The way I thought of the thing—a French boy that I uight to work with on the trafts at Two Mountains, back of Mintreal, used to keep singing 'The winds she blow, blow, blow.' I couldn't get 'Two Mountains' to come out right in the meter, so I used 'Lae Pierre.' The words were set to music by Nichelis Davidson, of the Montreal Snow Shoe club. Yes, hit's serandge ting bout dat. Why! even Mr. White, here, has been charged with the creation of those verses."

"That's right," said Mr. White, here, has been charged with the creation of them there for t

"Yes. Say, it isn't hard when you get started. But it is a wonder I didn't get nervous prostration before I made the plunge! I was six months trying to get courage enough to ask the all important question. But every time that I opened my mouth to speak I simply broke out into a cold sweat and couldn't say a word for the life of me. I would have retreated a dozen of me. I would have retreated a dozen times bag and baggage if I could have done so gracefully. Not that I didn't want the girl, but simply for the reason that I despaired of ever being able to ask her to be mine. The girl acted, too, as if she had a right to bear something to the point. But I could only sit there like a shadele headed idless. sit there like a chuckle headed idiot and abuse the weather. I would have been right there in the same horrible situation if something hadn't happen-

"One night last week we were sitting side by side on a sofa and during one of those blissful moments when nothing was being said I chanced to notice the girl's eyes intently fixed upon a motto that hung on the wall opposite and which read, 'Love One Another.' I'll be hanged if I ever saw that motto before, but it gave me an inspiration, and I leaned over and murmured, 'Shall we?' and she murmured, 'I don't mind, and it was all over but the

The Magie Lantern.

How many of us while using magic anterns have wondered how they were first made? Indeed they are of very respectable antiquity. As early as the seventeenth century a Jesuit named Kircher constructed one. It was a very crude affair, and as he was not unwilling to excite the fears of the persons who witnessed his exhibitions he called it a "magic" lantern, and so it has always been called.

There are reasons to believe that the lantern was in use even earlier than the seventeenth century and that the mysterious figures which the old astrologers produced in the smoke of their mystic fires were produced in the same way as Kircher produced his, the smoke hiding the lantern.

Powley's Liquified Ozone Makes Astounding Cures. Germs of Disease.

THE STORY OF ROBT. E. FLEMING, ESO.

Powley's Liquified Ozone kills disease germs. This is the only natural way to treat sickness, because all sickness is caused by germs. Now this seems very simple, vet it is: absolutely to be relied upon: Powley's LIQUIFIED OZONE is liquified exygen, a standard preparation. It is not a patent medicine. The most responsible people in Canada have endorsed it and are recommending it. You can verify every testimonial published for Powley's Liquified Ozone.

Isn't that a satisfactory guarantee?

Mr. ROBERT E. FLEMING, 227 George. Street, Toronto, formerly connected with the S. H. Ewing & Sons Co., of Montreal, cork dealers, has this to say: "Some fifteen months ago a friend spoke to me about Ozone and I have truly thanked him for it ever since. I have suffered all my life from indigestion, weak stomach, bilious headaches and poor, thin, watery blood. Some years ago, in fact when a young boy, I had bilious headaches once and twice a week, and later on in life always had two severe attacks twice a month. I despaired of ever getting any relief or permanent cure. Fifteen months ago I had a severe attack of Kidney Trouble, suffering with pains in my back, my blood being in a miserable condition. I was weak, had a poor appetite and found it hard to get a good night's rest, had no pleasure in attending to my daily business, in fact, getting up in the morning was no pleasure; always wanted to lie in bed. So I began taking Ozone four times a day, and after using a few bottles I found a decided improvement, but always thought that I would suffer with bilious headaches and weak stomach for the rest of my natural life. After using four bottles I found I was entirely cured of kidney troubles, and after using a few more bottles I found that my stomach was strong and that my bilious headaches were leaving me, and my blood was pure. I can faithfully say that the present moment I am permanently cured and gaining solid flesh and muscle rapidly. I take the liberty of presenting to you this, my testimonial, that others may see and profit thereby, if suffering as I was. Believe me, very truly yours. (Signed)

"This affair is connected with the sudden departure for Gibraltar of an officer of the United States navy, who was employed in the foreign section of the exhibition, after having fulfilled his functions as naval attache at the embassy. The field gun incident was also the cause of a sudden handing over of the affairs of the embassy to the first secretary by Gen. Horace Porter and his departure for Spain.

The officer protested in the name of the law and asked the men to allow him to take his prisoner to the county jail at Hugo, but his protests were disregarded. One man carried a rope on which had been formed a hangman's noose. This was slipped over the negro's neck.

It was at first announced that the negro was to be executed by hanging. Many, including the father of the negro's victim, protested that such a death would be too easy, and it was finally decided to leave the method of death to the outrag of father. He decided upon huming at the stake. The train was then allowed to proceed and at DEATH OF MRS. DARLING.

HE WAS ONLY SIXTEEN AND HAD MURDENED A WHITE GIRL--VICTI Y'S PATHER APPLIED THE MATCH.

Limon, Colo., NoV. 17. - Chained to railroad rail set firmly in the ground on the exact spot where his fiendish crime was committed, Preston Porter, Jr., or as he was familiarly known, John Porter, who killed little Louise Frause, after assaulting her, a week ago, last evening paid a terrible penalty for his deed. It was 6.23 o'clock when the father of the murdered girl touched the match to the fuel which had been piled around the negro and had been piled around the negro and 20 minutes later a last convulsive shudder told that life was extinct. The executioners, who numbered about 300 citizens of Ligooln county, had not the least semblance of the ordinary mob. Their every act was deliberate and during all the preparations as well as throughout the suf-ferings of the negro hardly an un-necessary word was spoken, Grimly they stood in a circle about the fire and then quietly took their way back to Limon from whence they departed for their homes shortly afterward. Preston Porter did not seem to real-Preston Porter did not seam to realize the awful punishment that he was destined to undergo. As he had exhibited indifference to the enormity of his crime, so he seemed to ank all understanding of its terrible consequences. For more than an hour, while preparations for his execution were in progress, he stood mute and sullen among the avengers. When everything was ready he walked to the stake with a firm step, fausing the stake with a firm step, pausing as he reached the circle of broken boards, to kneel in prayer. He was llowed to take his time FATHER APPLIED MATCH. He arose and placed his back to the issan stake, and half a dozen men wound chains about his body and limbs. Kerosene oil was applied to the wood, and after a brief pause Richard W. Frost, the father of little bourse Frost, whose cruelly mutifiated body was found one week ago on body was found one week ago on that very spot, applied the match. § For a moment but a little flickering For a moment but a little flickering flame arose. Then the oil blazed up, sparks flew into the air and the wood began to crackle. Almost instantly the negro's trousers caught fire. Even though the flesh must have scorched, he did not utter a sound. The flames crept slowly upward on his clothing, the sparks flew up in a cloud of pale smoke. Porter turned his head and face. With a sudden convulsive tagging he stretched his head as far from ging he stretched his head as far from sible and uttered a cry of pain:

"Oh, my God, let me go, man. I've got something more to tell you. Please let me go. O my God, my God."

In terrible screeches these words, the first he had uttered aloud, came from the negro. A terrible tugging at the chains, a succession of awful grouns and screams, the negro's agony was at last breaking down his sullen composure. Not an oath escaped him, but he begged and pleaded to be shot. Suddenly, the rope noldinh his hands burned through. Then arms, head and shoulders slipped through the chains. For an instant the body stood erect, the arms were raised in suppli-cation while burning pieces of clothing dropped from them. The body them fell away from the fire, the head lower than the feet, still fastened to the rail. than the feet, still fastened to the rail. This was not expected, and for a few minutes those stolid men were disconcerted; they feared that the remaining chain would give way. If this had occurred the partly burned human being would have dashed among them in his blazing garments. And not many would have cared to capture him again. But the chain held fast. The body was then in such a position that only the legs were in the fire.

DEATH ENDED AGONY.

The cries of the wretch were re-doubled and he again begged to be shot, Some wanted to throw him over into the fire, others tried to dash oil upon him, Boards were carried and a upon him. Boards were carried and a large pile made over the prostrate body. They were soon ignited and the terrible heat and flame of air quickly rendered the victim unconscious-bringing death a few moments later. This terrible ceremony, out upon the rolling prairie, concluded the second tragedy upon the spot, the avenging of the first.

Through the entire affair but little was said. As they had calmly prepared for the avenging, so the people of the eastern part of the state carried out their plan coolly and deliberately. (There was not a hitch in the entire proceeding. Not a weapon was drawn. There was mangry discussion. After the fire had burned low they told each other good night and they went home. They did not stop to discuss the affair.

The train bearing the negro in custody of Sheriff Freeman and his deputies, arrived in Limon, at 3.45 p. m. The cars were crowded with newspaper representatives and people who were curjous to see the negro executed. R. W. Frost, the murdered girl's father, was one of the passengers. When the train stopped 16 men, who had been selected by the vigilance committae entered the train, and demanded the prisoner from the sheriff. Their every act was marked by calmness and determinations. The officer protested in the name of the law and asked the men to allow him to take his prisoner to the county jail at Hugo, but his protests were disregarded. One

Lake Station, about three miles from Limen, and near the scene of the negro's crime, the party left the train and began preparations for the deed of ven. cance. Suggestions of mutilation before burning were made, but Mr. Frost declared against it. Wagons were dispatched for wood and upon their return a score of men assisted in preparing it for the fire return a score of men assisted in preparing it for the fire.

When at last preparations were completed a further delay was made because it was known many were on their way from Hugo and other parts of the county to take part in the affair. It had been aunounced that 3.30 should be the hour of starting the fire, but it was nearly an hour later when the word was finally given.

BLOOD POISONING

CAUSED BY A PITCHFORK.

Five Doctors in Consultation Gave the Sufferer but Little Hope of Record ery-How his Life was Saved.

Brockville Recorder.

Among the old families in the township of Augusta, in the neigh boring county of Grenville, there is none better known or more influen-tial, than those that bear the name of Bissell. The Bissells were among the earliest settlers in the township and have ever since taken an active part in all-moves to promote its welfare. The subject of this narra-tive, Mr. Silas B.sell, is one of the younger members of the family, who some years ago left Canada to make his home in the state of Nebraska. He has passed through an experience almost unique, and considers that he is fortunate in being alive to tell the tale.

The story as told in Mr. Bssell's own words, is as follows. — "In the autumn of 1898 I sustained a serious injury through having the times of a pitchfork penetrate my left knee. The wound apparently healed, but I did not enjoy the same health I had previous to the accident, and it was but a short time before I was compelled to take to my bed on account of ex-cruciating pains in my limbs and stiffness in my joints. A doctor was called in, and he lanced the knee three times, and then told me the trouble was blood poisoning. He treated me for some time, but I steadily grew worse, and finally five physicians were called in for consultation. My entire system seemed to be affected, and the doctors said the trouble had reached one of my lungs, and that they could hold out but little hear of my recovery. After reand that they could hold out but little hope of my recovery. After remaining in bed for eleven weeks, I decided that I would return to my old home in Canada. I was so much run down, and so weak that it was a question whether I would live to reach there, but I was nevertheless determined to make an effort to do so. After a long journey under these most trying circumstances, I reached my old home. I was so used up, and presented such an emicated appearance that my friends had no thought that I would recover. I continued to that I would recover. I continued to drag along in this condition for several months, when one day a cousin asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was willwilliams' Pink Pills. I was willing to try any medicine that was likely to cure me, and I sent for a supply of the pills. After I had been using the pills for about three weeks I felt an improvement in my condition. From that time I gradually grew better; new blood seemed coursing through my veins, the stiffness in my joints disappeared, and the agonizing pains which had so long tortured me, vanished. I took in all ten or twelve boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have no hesitation in saying that I believe they saved my life, for when I returned to Canada, I had no hope of recovery.

Mr. Bissell has since returned to his old home at Lincoln, Neb., but the statement made above can be vouched for by any of his friends in this section, and by all of the neighbors in the vicinity of his old home.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such the statement of the property of the section. ppr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such apparently hopeless cases as Mr. Bissell's, because they make new, rich, red blood, and thus reach the root of the trouble. These pills are the only medicine offered the public that can show a record of such marvellous cures after doctors had failed. If you are at all unwell, this medicine will restoree you to health, but cine will restoree you to health, but be sure you get the genuine with the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around each box.

Didn't Know how to Initia the Ballots i North Grey and the Conservatives

The Wiarton Canadian says :- In North Grey there is every reason to believe that a recount will elect Mr .. Gordon, the Conservative candidate In one polling division there were forty ballets which the deputy returning officer did not initial, he having put his initials on the counterfoil and then tore it off. Out of the forty and then tore it off. Out of the forty there was only six or seven for Horsey. In Shallow Lake the same thing occurred, where Mr. Gordon was knocked out of ten or twelve votes. There is every reason to believe the judge will allow these hallows, as it is a most unreasonable thing to reject them on account of the profiles are considered.

account of the negligence or ignor-ance of the deputy returning officer. It may be that this was a portion of the "machine," but if it was it was most uncommonly rusty. The recount should give Mr. Gordon a majority of 20 or 25.
