

British Troops Win Victory in Mesopotamia Huns Preparing For Another Verdun Drive Sir Sam Hughes Has Landed in New York

STILL A LULL AT VERDUN

Heavy Firing West of the Meuse and French Beat Off Small Attack East of the River.

German Attacks Soon to be Made With Fort Vaux as Objective.

By Special Wire to the Courier. Paris, April 14.—11.45 a.m.—West of the Meuse a violent bombardment was delivered by the Germans against the French lines to the west of Hill 304, says the French official communication published this morning. Yesterday evening to the east of the Meuse a small attack was made on the French position south of Douaumont, but it was completely repulsed. There was a lively bombardment south of Haubertmont. In the West-south district artillery duels took place.

GATHERING TROOPS
New York, April 14.—A special cable to The World from its Paris correspondent says:

Another lull has set in on the Verdun front, but in the opinion of the French military authorities, it will not be of long duration. The titanic cannonade against the positions about Fort Vaux is deemed a certain prelude to a further advance by German infantry upon the point which the Crown Prince evidently considers the key-note of his offensive on the east bank of the Meuse.

I learn from a person close to the government that at least three reserve divisions have been brought westward from the Russian front by the German high command since April 8, and that one, possibly two, of these participated in the fighting at the Le Mort Homme (Dead Man Hill) line April 11.

BRITISH AND FRENCH PRESS REGARD NEW NOTE DERISIVELY; HUNS, OF COURSE, SATISFIED

"The Last Straw" Claims the Daily News But the Lokal Anzeiger Points Out as an Example the Correct and Humane Attitude of Submarine Commanders.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

London, April 14.—The London morning papers which comment on the German note also declare it not worth serious discussion because "it is obviously farcical, especially when it refers to the Sussex."

Calling it "the last straw," The Daily News says: "It is impossible to imagine that President Wilson's cabinet can regard the note as anything but open and undisguised defiance, and Washington is manifestly in no mood to carry further a discussion lowered to these levels."

After recounting the demands made upon Germany by President Wilson, The Post says: "Every case cited in the German note according to the available evidence is an infraction of the law laid down by the United States."

HOUR A DECISIVE ONE
Paris, April 14.—The German note regarding the torpedoing of the Sussex and other vessels is commented on by the morning newspapers for the most part in derisive terms. Under the heading: "Germany seeks to draw America into another tangle of chicanery," The Petit Parisien says: "The matter now lies between Germany and United States and in a few hours we shall know what decision President Wilson has reached. We believe it will be an energetic one. Germany wishes to begin another endless discussion like that which followed the sinking of the Lusitania, but it is probable that Mr. Wilson will speak out firmly and upset the German calculations. Congress has defined its attitude on the subject and American opinion, as well as Spanish, Danish, Dutch and Norwegian opinion, is aroused against the savage violence of Germany's submarine warfare. The American press calls for action. The hour is truly a decisive one."

"The German manoeuvre is so childish," says The Journal, "that it is impossible to admit that Washington can be deceived by it. President Wilson must by this time be fully enlightened. He cannot fail to realize that the German Government, either by set design or by its weakness in the presence of public opinion at home, is committed to the continuation and development of its implacable methods of warfare."

THE GERMAN VIEW.
Berlin, April 13, via London, April 14.—The view of the German newspapers is that the German answer to the American note regarding the Sussex and other steamers shows the bona fide and thorough character of the investigation conducted to clear up the cases, and also that there can be no talk of a violation by Germany of the assurances given the United States regarding Germany's manner of conducting her submarine warfare.

The newspapers say that three of the cases referred to by the United States have absolutely been cleared up, that the fourth is open to further investigation when more details are furnished and that a frank offer has been made to submit the fifth to arbitration.

The Lokal Anzeiger says: "One should everywhere take as an

WHAT BANKERS THINK

New York, April 14.—A cable to the Tribune from Paris says: A member of a big banking firm—one of the largest three international bankers in New York—who is in Paris, received yesterday from his firm a cable saying: "Return at once. Rupture with Germany imminent."

Another big New York banker also received an urgent cable calling him home for the same reason. Both men will sail on Saturday.

TURKS DRIVEN WELL BACK IN MESOPOTAMIA

British Forces Make an Advance of Nearly Three Miles.

GENERAL LAKE'S OFFICIAL REPORT

By Special Wire to the Courier. London, April 14.—Defeat of the Turkish forces in Mesopotamia by the British was reported officially to-day. In an engagement on the Tigris, Turks were driven back from one and one-half to three miles.

The text of the statement says: "General Lake reports that on the afternoon of April 13 our forces on the right (south) bank of the Tigris forced back the enemy's advanced lines over a distance varying from one and one-half to three miles."

"To do this they had to cross an inundated belt intersected by deep trenches from the Tigris to the Umm-el-Brahm marsh."

"On the left bank water from the marshes had been driven by a north-west gale into some of the enemy's trenches at Sannayat. The enemy was heavily punished, as he took refuge from the flood in the new position."

The announcement of the British victory came at a time when the publication was beginning to fear efforts to relieve the force of General Townshend at Kut-el-Amara were doomed to failure, owing to the check suffered by the relieving army a few days ago, and the difficult conditions brought about by floods.

Many military writers in England believed the floods had made the relief of General Townshend almost an impossibility, but to-day's official report shows that instead of hindering the British, the high water has helped the forces of Lieut.-General Goringe in a task which is one of the most difficult that has been undertaken by the British army. Each mile the Turks are forced back makes the British operations easier for as they approach Kut-el-Amara. Turks are compelled to defend a wider front. From the bend of the Tigris at Umm-el-Henna, which Gen. Goringe captured last week, to Sanna-

GEN. HUGHES LANDED TO-DAY; IS GLAD OF OPPORTUNITY OF HAVING CONTRACTS EXAMINED

Knows Only in a General Way What Charges are, He Says, But Whatever They are, is Glad of the Chance of Having Opposition Statements Investigated.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

New York, April 14.—General Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defense for Canada, arrived here to-day on the American Line Steamer St. Paul from Liverpool on his way to Canada to answer charges of alleged favoritism in the expenditure of money for the purchase of munitions of war for the Canadian government.

He will appear before a Royal Commission, appointed to investigate charges made by G. W. Kite, a member of the Canadian Parliament, that middlemen's profits aggregating $1,500,000 were made through the awarding of contracts by the Canadian shell committee to the International Fuse Company and the American Ammunition Company.

"I regret having to leave England at the present time," Sir Sam said, "but I am delighted with the opportunity to return and place each and every fact regarding contracts for munitions where they can be exposed to the closest scrutiny."

"I have been informed in a general way what these statements are, but let them be what they may, I am glad of the opportunity of having them all fully sifted and exposed to the full light of day."

"I have no comment to make on the conduct of those who, taking advantage of my absence and from the feeling of nervousness, almost bordering on panic in the minds of the general public on all questions since the war began, attempted to divert to side issues energy and time which should be devoted to the cause of the Canadian soldiers at the front and the empire in general. Such persons may be within their privileges."

"During my two weeks visit in England, I had the opportunity of reviewing all the Canadian troops at Bramshott and at Shorncliffe camps. The soldiers everywhere, from the front and in England, are filled with zeal and ardor for the cause. I am delighted to state, on the authority of Sir Archibald Hunter, under whose general command the Bramshott camp is placed, and of General Steele, in whose district the Shorncliffe troops are located—and the same good report is universally heard in England from soldiers and citizens alike—that the conduct and bearing of the Canadian troops while in London or in the camps or in the trenches is regarded as most exemplary and worthy of their commendation."

An automobile was waiting at the Pier to take Sir Sam to the Grand Central station, where a special car was attached to a train or Ottawa, leaving New York at 6.45 this evening.

By Special Wire to the Courier. Paris, April 14 (cable to the New York Sun).—The stock of shells for the French artillery at Verdun has been more than adequate so far, and it is declared that the output is so great that, in addition to supplying the daily needs of this terrific artillery fighting, supplies are already ample and are being increased daily when one should be ordered.

The output of shells for the 75 millimeter guns has been increased thirty-three and one-third times since the first month of the war, and the output of the larger French guns has been increased forty-four times. The manufacture of 75's, and the heavier artillery has increased twenty-three times since August, 1914.

This tremendous increase is ascribed in a large measure to the work of the women of France, who, whatever their occupation previous to the war, are devoting themselves wholeheartedly to the making of shells and other necessities of warfare. Housewives, coarsieres, shop girls, factory girls, seamstresses, milliners, children's nurses, weavers, hair dressers, cashiers, typists and women of many other occupations are engaged.

In many cases small munition factories have been established with a single family as the operatives of a factory, its members working night and day in shifts. In the Paris district alone there are 1,800 of these small shops.

PREMIER BORDEN ASKED TO GRANT REGISTRATION

Delegates Representing Recruiting Leagues Waited Upon Him To-day.

SIR ROBERT ASKS QUESTIONS

Spoke Up When Told Present System Was a Failure.

By Special Wire to the Courier. Ottawa, April 14.—A delegation representing the forty-two recruiting leagues of Canada, waited on Premier Borden at noon in behalf of registration of Canadians eligible for war service, with a view to some form of compulsion to complete the Canadian expeditionary forces. Col. Hatch of Hamilton presented the resolution passed by Hamilton citizens on March 24th.

The memorial, said Col. Hatch, had been signed by all the members of the delegation, and it was one they would be prepared to support in every way. The organization they represented was only in its inception and would eventually be Dominion-wide. S. F. Washington, K.C., of Hamilton, represented the Hamilton recruiting league. Representatives were present from over fifty recruiting leagues in Canada. Recruiting leagues had been formed because of tardy enlistment. The first 100,000 soldiers had come without need of appeal. Others, however, were more reluctant. The delegation represented every profession. They had come to the conclusion that the present system was a failure.

"In what respect?" asked Sir Robert Borden.

PLENTY OF SHELLS FOR ARTILLERY

French Guns at Verdun Suffer From No Lack of Munitions and Reserve Stock Large.

Women of France Save Their Country by Making Munitions.

By Special Wire to the Courier. ### UNITED STATES WILL ACT IN NEXT 48 HOURS

Demands on Germany to be Final, But Not to be an Ultimatum.

By Special Wire to the Courier. Washington, April 14.—It was indicated to-day that the next step in the submarine crisis, probably the sending to Germany of the culminating evidence which the United States contends shows violations of Berlin's assurances, will be taken within the next 48 hours. Developments are expected to follow rapidly.

The President and the cabinet are understood to have agreed that the presentation of the facts shall be accompanied by a definite and final demand for evidence of Germany's good faith and observance of her guarantees, but probably will be accompanied by no time limit which properly could be described as an ultimatum.

NO WORD HEARD FROM PERSHING

But General Funston Continues to Press For News.

WHAT ABOUT TOMPKINS' FORCE? Small American Band Near Parral May be in Great Danger.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Washington, April 14.—General Funston reported to the War Department to-day that he had received no word from General Pershing on the fight Wednesday at Parral, but that he is continuing to press for information.

Deep anxiety was felt in official circles to-day over the fate of Major Tompkins and his little force of United States cavalry attacked in Parral, Mexico, Wednesday. Known to be outnumbered, perhaps beleaguered, in a district notoriously anti-American, it was feared that the troops might be in great danger. Lack of information from the isolated detachment intensified the anxiety for their safety.

While awaiting official information regarding the outcome of the first battle, the American troops have had steps General Funston has taken to prevent further trouble, the discussion of what effect the attack will have on the administration's Mexican policy was under consideration to-day by President Wilson and his cabinet.

General Carranza's note and telegrams urging the withdrawal from Mexico of the American troops and all information at hand regarding the latest military developments were ready to be laid before the cabinet. It was said to be practically certain that no immediate order for withdrawing the troops would be given.

The Situation.

One despatch says that the Kaiser is at variance with his general staff regarding the Verdun operations. That he thinks the assault is costing too much in men, and that it would be better policy at this time to make a concentration of effort on the Russian front. Abandonment would, of course make a black eye for the Crown Prince, but if report speaks truly, William has for a long time entertained feelings towards his son which would not make him averse to having that young man receive a setback. However, the yarn may be simply a fill in story on the part of some correspondent. The fact is that bombardment still continues without intermission, and that present indications are that the latter may be shortly resumed. The French War Office officially denies the German claim of the taking of 35,000 prisoners in these operations. The number is given at 17,000 including wounded. It is believed that a big battle is quite likely on the British front. German troops and guns continue to arrive in that region, and these would seem to carry the one inference of a concentrated attack.

President Wilson and his colleagues are still considering the case of the Sussex, which had over a score of Americans on board. That she was torpedoed does not admit of any question. The commander of the undersea boat, charged with the crime, admits that he sunk a craft at precisely the same time as the Sussex met her death blow, but he says it was another vessel. If Uncle Sam allows such a yarn as that to be put over him, he had better make application for admission to a dotage institution.

Some U. S. Paper Comments

The German Chancellor, during his recent speech in the Reichstag, went out of his way to say that Germany did not meditate any aggressive action towards the United States. The word of a Hun is now so deservedly regarded as more than likely to mean something directly opposite, that the statement has aroused the suspicions of some of the papers across the line. Here are two samples:—

Brooklyn Eagle.—We do not know whether Germany will or will not move against our interests in this hemisphere, should she emerge triumphant from the war. But we do know that on her record she is not to be trusted that the assurances of her chancellor to the contrary are worth no more than the solemn pledges she has already broken.

New York Sun.—In view of the other utterances of his, the chancellor can hardly complain if his pronouncement vivifies suspicions which previously were not seriously entertained. Nor can he take umbrage if Canadians and Americans alike entertain the feeling that his declaration of pledge, or whatever it is, however specific, carries no reassurance with it against the fears to which it lends a first tinge of reality. Henceforward, it would seem, Canadians at least will be forced to think that their only hope of security lies in the defeat of Germany in the present war.

Why Canadians at least? The United States is just as much concerned, although a number of them over there do not seem to realize the fact. The Boston Advertiser, however, is under no dissimulation with reference to this matter. During the course of an article it says:—

"The one thing to prevent Germany taking her 'place in the sun' in the development of any colonization plans for South America is, of course, the Monroe Doctrine. While the United States has been sponsor for the Monroe Doctrine, no great show of force or power by this country has upheld that doctrine in recent generations. The one great power with a navy adequate to the enforcement of that doctrine, and the one power which has been standing behind it, really, has been Great Britain. While the British Government has given tacit assent to the declaration of the United States that Europe shall not colonize further on this hemisphere, no other power has dared to challenge it. But British interests are now more important elsewhere. Great Britain will practically control Africa and Asia now. She may share her spoils with her allies, to some degree, but she will still have the lion's share. She will have the development of Canada in mind for the rest of this generation. There would be nothing unreasonable then, in a decision of Great Britain to allow Germany, as a consolation for the loss of the British to Bagdad" dream, to look to South America to recompense for losses elsewhere. And Great Britain would no longer have much interest in upholding the Monroe doctrine. She has the United States nothing as the result of this great war, which has been marked by constant British irritation over the protests of the government at Washington against the British naval policy."

Thoughtful Americans are commencing to realize just what John Bull stands for, not only in world affairs generally, but also with regard to their own country.

The Fuse Charges.

"Industrial Canada" the official organ of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, this week tells the inside story of the origin of the fuse charges.

It states that the Association approached the Dominion Government eighteen months ago offered co-operation but did not receive a very cordial reception. In this regard it says:—

"Messrs. T. A. Russell and Lloyd Harris of the Russell Motor Car Co., Limited, will probably have some interesting evidence to offer when the proper time comes."

Apparently it was these gentlemen who furnished Kyte with his material.

The story goes on to say that the fuse orders had lain in the hands of the Shell Committee from November, 1914 to April, 1915. Russell and Harris first heard of the matter in New York from Sir Sam Hughes, who referred them to Colonel Allison, then staying at the Manhattan Hotel for details. Instead they went to Montreal to do business direct with the Shell Committee, but were told that Allison had prospective contracts in hands with firms in the United States. However after persistence they were told that 1,000,000 of the 5,000,000 fuses required would be held, pending a receipt of a tender from them. Accordingly they started to "learn some thing of the job of fuse making." The story continues.

"And now for the fact that requires explanation. On May 25, 1915, the Russell tender was turned in, offering to make 1,000,000 fuses at $4.20. On May 19, without waiting for this competitive tender, which was known to be on the way, regardless of the portion of the contracts open, the committee awarded contracts for the whole of the 5,000,000 fuses to the companies promoted by Allison and his associates, a small fraction of them at $4.00, but the majority of them at $4.50. The loss in money is a matter of easy calculation from the records of the committee. The loss in time of delivery is also determinable, because whereas the United States contractors have fallen far behind with their obligations, the Russell Motor Car Company are now delivering ahead of time under a contract they subsequently secured at $3.70. The indirect loss to Canada and to the Empire through the sacrifice of domestic to foreign enterprise is beyond computation."

As to how the subsequent contract was secured, or why work is being done now for $3.70 for which $4.20 was originally asked, there is no explanation.

These and other matters will, of course come out in the judicial investigation which is to be held, but there would seem to be some explanation of interest in order.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Sir Sam Hughes has come back to face his accusers, and he didn't lose a minute in doing so.

Concurrently with the opening of the U. S. baseball season Uncle Sam also finds himself in a box in Mexico with the threat that if he doesn't get out the Mexicans will also do some pitching.

The Courier extends hearty congratulations and best wishes to another Brantford paper, "The Brant War Whoop," issued under the auspices of the 12th Battalion. Their military training has already given the staff experience in the matter of working in columns.

example the correct and humane attitude of our submarine commanders, instead of breaking out into scolding as soon as an English, French or neutral vessel with American citizens aboard suffers damage.

The newspapers point out a number of cases in which ships that have been torpedoed are declared first to have sought to flee after they had been ordered to stop. Captain Persius, naval expert of The Tageblatt, says the case of the Sussex particularly shows the difficulties under which a submarine laborer in endeavoring to establish the character of a vessel before it. Even if it should occasionally happen that an innocent ship suffers, says Capt. Persius, it must be taken into consideration that it is an unfortunate accident which is unavoidable in war.

WITH THE SOLDIERS

NOTES OF THE 125th
Officers of the day, Capt. Bingle, next for duty, Capt. Jordan, Subaltern of the day, Lt. Preston; next for duty, Lt. Cognill.

All companies and units are warned that Victoria and Alexandra parks are not to be used for football and physical training.

The officers of the battalion took part in gallery range practice last evening.

An examination in map reading for the officers' class will be held from 2.30 to 4.30 p.m. on Saturday in the Congregate Institute.

A silver cigarette case was found during the battalion route march on Wednesday, and is now in the hands of the adjutant awaiting its owner.

A meeting of the battalion athletic association committee was held last evening in the orderly room. The committee comprises the following: Major Newman, Lieut. Grobb, Capt. Lavelle, Pte. Meant (acting for Serg. Howell), Lieut. R. Brown, B.S.M. Shaw, Lieut. Thorburn, Pte. Sims, Sgt. Unsworth, Lieut. Smith, Corp. O'rierson, Pte. W. Bowden, Serg. Gooch, Lieut. Slenn, Lieut. Seago.

A meeting of the company and unit correspondents of the Brant War-whoop was held yesterday in connection with the first issue of that paper.

EXTRACT FROM CAMP ORDERS
In future all units warned for Overseas will send in to the A.A.G. M.D. No. 2, a list of all men on their strength under medical treatment who will be unable to proceed with the following information in the case of each man, in order that such may be transferred to "Casualties, C.E.F.": 1. Regimental number; 2. rank; 3. name in full; 4. date from which it is desired transfer should take effect; 5. statement as to whether duplicate attestation paper has been forwarded to district headquarters.

The following information will be sent to the officer i.c. Casualties, C.E.F., under a separate letter in the case of each man: 1. diagnosis; 2. present condition; 3. extent to which his capacity is lessened for earning a full livelihood in the general labor market at present; 4. probable minimum duration of the disability; 5. whether treatment in a convalescent home would materially assist in his recovery; 6. statement must be completed and sent in to the officer i.c. Records at the same time.

To-day is a day of joy in the 125th, being battalion pay day. The battalion paraded on the market square this afternoon, each platoon being paid off in turn and the men proceeded immediately to the bank.

NOTES OF THE 215TH.
Big preparations are being made for to-morrow night's entertainment which promises to be one of the best of its kind ever put on in Brantford. A magnificent musical programme is being arranged.

The battalion is now 210 strong. The men of the battalion are spending their recess in playing indoor baseball, a ball and bat having been donated by Miss Margaret Cocksbutt, daughter of the commanding officer.

An invitation has been received by the Battalion to attend divine service at Marlboro street Methodist church next Sunday morning.

Labor is to have a battalion all its own. Authorization of a Labor Battalion came from Ottawa to Toronto yesterday, the unit to be raised by the whole of Ontario, Toronto contributing two companies. Lieut.-Col. Ripley is named as the Commanding Officer of the labor men. Labor Union officials do not look very hopeful upon the project, as they think it rather late in the day to get up a distinctive labor unit. Already the ranks of other battalions have been largely filled with labor men.

BRANTFORD HAD FIRST BOARD OF HEALTH IN ONT.

Mayor Bowlby Gives This Information to Acting M.H.O. at Toronto.

In reply to a request for information from the Acting Medical Health Officer of Toronto, Mayor Bowlby has sent the following communication F. Adams, Esq., Acting M. H. O., Health Dept. Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I have your letter of the 13th inst. inquiring if there is a Board of Health in Brantford. I was a great deal surprised at that inquiry, in as much as it was the first Board of Health organized in this broad Dominion, organized immediately after the Health Act was passed by the Province of Ontario and has been of incalculable advantage to the community. The medical school inspector work is done under the supervision of the Board of Health, by a regularly trained and qualified nurse, a Miss MacPherson, and she is attending continually through the schools, with the most beneficial results to the community, not only in reference to the physical well being of the children, but as a preventative measure. I think we might also claim to be a pioneer in this respect, and I would strongly recommend to your city, the following out of the trained nurse system under the direction of the Board of Health. Of course one person could by no possibility undertake to discharge the duties appertaining to such an office in so large a city, but it would require your city to be made into sections and a sufficient number of nurses to discharge the duties in each section.

I have the honor to be, yours truly,
J. W. Bowlby,
Mayor of Brantford.

BRAVE WORDS FROM HEROIC SOLDIER

"SO IF I GO UNDER DO NOT FEEL BAD ABOUT IT BUT BE PROUD BECAUSE YOU CAN SAY, 'HE HAS DONE HIS BEST'"

Sapper Wm. Betts, of Ontario St., the account of whose death at the front was published in the Courier a day or two ago, wrote a letter home which was received by his parents a few days before he was killed. It is a very brave letter, breathing of the spirit of devotion to duty which characterizes the soldiers of the Empire.

SAPPER WM. BETTS.

A portion of it is reproduced here. Frank Betts, a brother of William, was wounded at Langemarck a year ago, being shot through the lungs.

After a long siege of sickness, he returned to duty March 22nd of this year. His brother was killed March 25th. The man who is dead celebrated a birthday on the 19th of March. Frank Betts' birthday is on the 24th of April. It was on the 12th of April that news arrived in Brantford of Sapper William Betts' fate. Thus does fate at times mock at the bravest.

This is what Sapper William Betts says in his letter, the last letter probably he ever wrote, and what he says is quite worth the reading.

"I hope this war is soon over. But it don't do any good to say that, as the Huns are a long way from being beaten yet. I will be able to tell you some stories if ever I get back. But that is a small possibility. But a man shouldn't be afraid to die out here. That is the way I look at it as a person sees the fine fellows going under every day. Fine brave men! So I am always going to try and do my share.

"They asked for volunteers to go out the other night to cut barbed wire, wanting 20 men. My gun and I stepped out. It was some job alright crawling around on the ground and the Huns shooting all the time. We cut about 150 yards of it and then came in. It was cut so we could get through when we charged. It is an interesting job alright. So if I go under don't feel bad about it, but be proud because you can say, 'He has done his best.'"

STILL A

An ever-increasing percentage of youths of the 1916 class is battling with the crown prince's army. In the twentieth and sixty-fourth infantry regiments of the Third German army corps the proportion of men of that class runs as high as 40 per cent, and the same is true of certain units of the fifteenth corps, the eleventh Bavarian division and the one hundred and thirty-eighth division. In the twenty-eighth company pioneers, one hundred and twenty-first division, half the effectives are of the 1916 class, and in one company of the forty-ninth regiment, eighth corps, they number one-fourth of the total effectives.

It is not permissible to say much about the French formations at this stage of the mighty contest, but I am authorized to emphasize the two following points:

STILL HAS RESERVE

First, General Petain has not yet brought forward all his reserves of heavy artillery, of which the monster 400 millimetre (15 1/2 inch) shells standing in the entrance of the lobby of the ministry of munitions are a particularly striking example; secondly, every French counter-attack undertaken on either bank of the Meuse since April 1 has been begun at the moment chosen by and best suited to the purposes of the French commander-in-chief.

Furthermore, every such counter-attack has been entirely successful, notably that in the Caillette woods, a week ago, which drove the Germans into a trench line weaker than any since the Brandenburgers got into Fort Douaumont.

ALWAYS HAVE INITIATIVE

There have been few of these counter-attacks and little has been said about them in print, but in not one driving the French troops into a corner so tight they were obliged to strike back at a time better suited to the Germans than themselves.

When I was at Verdun two weeks ago I saw scores upon scores of big calibre batteries standing on the range of the German long distance guns. There was no reason why these cannon should not be moved to the front at a moment's notice, except that in General Petain's opinion they were not needed—because each was attached to a giant tractor and hence quite independent of the railroad transport.

I am told that many of these guns are still being kept in reserve, awaiting the day when the need for them will arise.

FOUR FRENCH PRIVATES HELD BACK AN ENTIRE REGIMENT OF GERMANS

Wonderful Feat of a Quartette of Infantry of the Line One Dark Night in a Hot Corner of the Caillette Woods.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

New York, April 14—A special Paris cable to the World says:

Even in stories of individual gallantry at Verdun Poilus' names are not permitted, so the four heroes of the latest anecdote being narrated in Paris cannot be identified except as infantrymen of the line.

They were with their battalion in a particularly hot corner of the Caillette woods a few days ago, when on a particularly dark night after the usual frightful bombardment, they dimly perceived compact masses of Germans rising toward them from trenches forty yards away. The command to fall back to the second line was unheard by the four soldiers who instead ensconced themselves in an observation post and first with two rifles apiece, then with a copious store of hand grenades held back successfully for several minutes an entire regiment of Germans.

Apparently amazed at such unexpected resistance, the German commander ordered his men to seek shelter while he despatched two patrols of six men each to reconnoitre on either wing.

One of the patrols approached within a few feet of the hidden Frenchmen before the latter let fly a fusillade of bombs. Five of the six were slain instantly and the sixth begged for mercy. The other patrol, coming from another direction saw the lone survivor standing with his hands above his head and promptly surrendered in their turn.

Unwounded and without difficulty the four infantrymen marched their seven prisoners rearward and rejoined the main body of their unit in time to participate in a counter-attack which flung the Germans far backward from the positions they occupied before that astonishing quartette stopped the advance of a whole regiment.

Evidence of Sinking of Sussex Arrives in United States on S.S. St. Paul

Edward H. Huxley, American Business Man, Said No Boat Was Seen From the Time Sussex Left England Till the Time Passengers Were Rescued by the Destroyer.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

New York, April 14—Guarded by Sir Charles Alcock, the British foreign office, the evidence in the Sussex case which has been gathered for the American state department arrived here to-day on the American Line Steamship St. Paul. It included affidavits of the survivors, and was part of an exceptionally large amount of embassy mail, filling 30 big sacks. The affidavits are those gathered by the attaches of the American embassies in Paris and London.

Among the St. Paul's 586 passengers was Edward H. Huxley, president of the United States rubber exporting company of this city, and who was a passenger on the Sussex, escaping uninjured.

Mr. Huxley, after examining previously cabled news despatches regarding the attack on the Sussex, stated positively that from the hour that the vessel left the British shore until the moment that she was attacked and for nine hours thereafter, not another vessel was sighted except the destroyer which came to the rescue.

Mr. Huxley made this assertion in connection with the text of Germany's note of April 10 to the state department, citing an attack by a German submarine on an unnamed vessel in the vicinity of the Sussex at the hour when the latter met with mishap.

Mr. Huxley said also that he was positive that the Sussex carried no ammunition. The German note declared that a "violent explosion" on the ship which was torpedoed warranted "the certain conclusion that great amounts of munitions were on board."

German he and other passengers were in the junior officers' room on board the rescuing destroyer, Mr. Huxley said a warrant officer who had talked with him that the captain had said he had seen the wake of a torpedo.

Mr. Huxley showed a letter which he said had been written by Captain Thomas Carrill, French embarkation officer at Boulogne, France, in which Captain Carrill said:

"I have just helped take from the poor Sussex, beached nearby, the body of a woman, with a piece of a German torpedo imbedded in her stomach."

The Sussex had on board only three military officers—two French and one Russian—Mr. Huxley declared.

KUT-EL-AMARA SIEGE HAS GONE TO 128 DAYS

General Townshend Has Waited All That Time For Aid to Come.
DREARY PLACE TO LIVE IN Floods and Weather Combine to Make Relief Difficult.

London, April 14—The morning papers express some apprehension regarding the situation of General Townshend at Kut-el-Amara, although it is unanimously affirmed that Wednesday's Turkish official communication is greatly exaggerated. As to the size of the beleaguered force there is no certain information. According to a statement made in parliament, the division originally under General Townshend's command was supplemented by other troops when it advanced on Ctesiphon. But his force has since been diminished by at least 6,000 casualties.

The Daily Mail says: "One hundred and twenty-eight days have passed since the Turks began the siege of Kut-el-Amara, and severed General Townshend and the remnant of his division from the outside world. For 128 days he has looked down the Tigris for the aid that is slow to come. Of his condition we have been permitted to know nothing. That is not cheerful. But Gordon, in the last hours of his epic defence at Khartoum ordered the bands to play merrily. And all great soldiers have shown this spirit in days of danger."

"Kut-el-Amara is one of the dreariest habitations in the world. The floods and weather are now worse than ever and this means immensely increased difficulties for the relief force. The delay is the more serious in every besieged camp there must come a time when the stores and supplies run low and General Townshend has waited long."

GUILTY OF MURDER, LEGATO WILL HANG

Italian Sentenced Yesterday After Trial at Guelph.

Guelph, April 14—For the murder of George Verna, a fellow countryman, on the night of Sunday, Oct. 24, 1915, Tony Legato, was yesterday afternoon found guilty and sentenced to hang on Wednesday, July 5. The trial lasted 24 hours, an evening session being held. The evidence was altogether of a circumstantial character, but the web was so closely woven about the prisoner that the jury were convinced Legato was the murderer.

yat, which the Turks are in danger of losing, if they have not already been compelled to abandon it, both flanks of the Turkish forces are protected by marshes on either side of the river.

Further up the river, an area of dry ground widens until the Easian position is reached. Although this position is very strongly fortified, it is believed that if the relieving forces reach it, General Townshend's army will be able to assist them. In view of to-day's news, therefore, the prospect of rescuing the army at Kut-el-Amara is regarded as better than it has been for some time.

Help to Make Her Dream Come True

SHE is one of some Three Million Belgians who, since they refused to sell their honor to Germany, have lived on the brink of starvation. A thriving industrial people, used to lie's comforts, they have been reduced to a state where they dream, not of luxuries or pleasures, but of having enough to eat!

True to their character as the war has unmasked it, the Germans callously refuse to help the starving. The task of feeding them has been undertaken by Belgium's Allies and Neutral Nations, through the provided by voluntary contributions and administered with wonderful economy and efficiency by a neutral Commission.

Absolutely none of the supplies go to Germans, and most of the food taken into the country is paid for by Belgians who have still a little money. But to feed those who cannot pay, nearly $2,500,000 a month is needed!

Surely no people ever deserved our sympathy and aid more than do these starving Belgians!

They face a winter of necessity, while we are living in plenty. The Fund needs regular weekly or monthly contributions rather than larger but spasmodic gifts. Let us plan to deny ourselves, if necessary—share with our needy Allies—and help to save their lives.

Send your contributions to Local or Provincial Committees or to the Central Executive Committee, 59 St. Peter Street, Montreal.

"We are getting the wrong men." "Are you aware that in March we enlisted 32,000 men and since the first day of the year have been getting 1,000 a day. It is rather a question of selection and locality, is it not?" "We are getting boys of 16 years of age," answered the speaker, "and we are taking them from the wrong industries." He gave an instance where a Hamilton textile factory had been demoralized because its manager had enlisted where less valuable men held back. The sight of a thousand volunteers was no doubt an impressive one, but Mr. Washington would rather see a million sickers do their duty. Why should Sir John Gibson for instance, have sacrificed his only son in his country's cause when thousands of others hung back and crowded the pool rooms. This latter type could never be induced to enlist except under some system of national selection. The people of Ontario were behind you to a man when you told Great Britain that the whole resources of Canada were at her back," said Mr. Washington. "We are not here to

EXPRESS CUT INTO BY PARCELS POST

Decline in Earnings Recorded as Result of Competitive Operation.

Ottawa, April 14.—The annual Bluebooks of express and telephone statistics were brought down by Hon. Dr. Reid in the House yesterday. No change is shown in the capitalization of express companies, but the statement of cost is increased by $24,405. Gross earnings declined from $72,646,452 in 1914, to $11,311,797 in 1915, presumably through the competitive operation of the parcel post system. Operating expenses were reduced. Deducting the operating expenses and express privileges (payment to railways, etc.) from the gross earnings, left a balance of $68,666 as compared with $83,456 in 1914, and $759,614 in 1913. The telephone statistics show expansions in nearly all provinces, though it is stated in the report that "in all the provinces there is a growing tendency toward consolidation, which has the effect of reducing the number of reports without lessening the availability of the telephone service."

The election resulted as follows: President: Mrs. S. W. Secord. First Vice-President: Mrs. S. G. Read. Second Vice-President: Mrs. Tilley. Third Vice-President: Mrs. Howard Jackson. Recording Secretary: Miss Grace Struthers. Corresponding Secretary: Miss Marian Mitchell. Treasurer: Mrs. Burrows. It was decided to write Premier Hearst a letter of protest against his statement that the women of the Province were enfranchised they would drop Red Cross and Patriotic work; also to request the Library Board to secure certain reference books, which would be of interest to the public and of use to our club. Arrangements were also made for a deputation from the club to wait on Mr. W. F. Cookshutt, M.P., in connection with the granting of the federal franchise to the women of the Dominion. Mr. Cookshutt has granted an interview with the club on Saturday afternoon, and the deputation will meet him at that time to discuss this vital question.

JOURNALIST IS ON TRIAL FOR BEING CURIOUS

Wanted to Know Too Much About the Naval Air Service.

WRITES FOR DAILY MAIL Declares He is "Spy" For Pemberton-Billing, M.P.

By Special Wire to the Gleaner. New York, April 14.—A London cable to the Sun under yesterday's date says: "The newspapers give much prominence to the preliminary trial at Dover of the London journalist, Edgar Middleton, who is charged with a breach of the defense of the realm act by trying to get information regarding the naval air service, such as might be valuable to the enemy. The admiral's counsel, Mr. Chitty, who acted as prosecutor, said that Middleton served a brief time as probationary sub-lieutenant in the naval air service, but is now apparently a civilian, writing a daily article for The Daily Mail under the pseudonym 'air pilot.' It was charged that Middleton visited Dover yesterday and interviewed certain officers in the air service with whom he is acquainted. He told one of them, it is said: 'I am doing spying for Billing (Pemberton Billing, who has been active of late in gaining evidence against the government) and The Daily Mail, which is running Billing.' Middleton, the prosecutor said, tried to get information from those officers regarding the readiness of naval airmen to meet a sudden attack. Counsel did not suggest that the action was treasonous, but that it was no less a breach of the law for an unauthorized person to try to get information which is potentially valuable to the enemy. He intimated that the case will be heard in camera. Middleton pleaded 'not guilty,' his counsel declared that he would be able to show that the defendant's activity was innocent. After the formal evidence, the accused was committed to custody for a

Nuptial Notes

A quiet but very pretty wedding took place at St. Luke's Rectory on Wednesday afternoon when the Rev. Mr. Stout united in marriage Miss Sadie Marsh, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Marsh to Mr. Victor Hill of the Signal Corps of the 125th Brigade Battalion. The bride wore a wedding gown of cream silk lace over heliotrope, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bride's travelling costume was navy blue with hat to match. After the ceremony the bride and groom repaired to the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Mary E. Craig, 11 Balfour street, where a number of invited guests were assembled, and a very dainty luncheon was served. The number of costly and beautiful presents received testified to the esteem in which the young couple are held by their numerous friends.

WOOD-BARRON

At the home of the groom's grandmother, Springfield, Rev. Mr. Wood on Wednesday, April 12, solemnized the marriage of Mr. Clayton Wood and Miss Emily Barron, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Barron, both of the Cocksbut Road. On their return the happy couple will reside in this city. They have the hearty congratulations of their friends for their future happiness.

An exhibition is taking place at Lyons, in France, and the pride of place in the Canadian section must be given to the Canadian Pacific Railway exhibit, comprising three stalls, and the painting covering the back wall of the stalls, showing in a pictorial form the principal agricultural, mineral and industrial products of every Canadian Province and of Newfoundland, has attracted much attention. The officials of the French Colonial Office have paid two special visits to study this picture, and the French Government will adopt a somewhat similar method to educate the public in France as to the resources of the French Colonies.

The Big Value of Many Orders $14 To Measure

Tip Top Tailors

ONLY a few years ago we made fewer clothes than any tailors in the business. Our business was small in every respect save one—we had an idea—a big one.

Like all big ideas, it was simple. It merely was to give to the men of Canada made-to-measure clothes—better clothes than they could possibly get elsewhere at a fixed price of $14. It had never been done before.

We knew that to make the idea practical and profitable we had to have a large volume of business. But we felt that by giving men more than they had ever received before we would get this volume. We relied upon the Canadian sense of value, plus our knowledge of what other tailors were doing, to win out. We experimented by opening our first store in Toronto—we advertised extensively in the newspapers to let men know what we had to offer. The initial execution of an idea cost us a pile of money.

Yet it was an excellent investment. For to-day we have the largest custom tailoring plant in the Dominion. From nothing, we have built up and passed all competition, until now we have our magnificent central tailoring plant with stores all over Canada to serve our customers.

As the business grew and grew, so did our idea—as the volume of orders continued to double and treble so did our original idea of service and superior value-giving. No wonder our business has expanded to its present overwhelming proportions. No wonder we have won the good will of thousands of the best dressed men of Canada.

No wonder the shrewd buyers of Canada, year in and year out, continue to order their clothes from Tip Top Tailors. No wonder the men who used to pay $25 and as high as $50 are now wearing our clothes at $14.

These men have simply found it does not pay to spend more money when they can get equal, if not greater value from us at $14.

The careful service, scientific tailoring, and buying power which enables us to buy our woolsens at the lowest figure, guarantees every man a better clothes value from us than is elsewhere obtainable. No other tailors have as great production facilities—no tailors can give you the range of fabrics to choose from.

Our enormous and ever-increasing volume of business is your best assurance of protection.

ONLY A QUESTION OF CLASSIFICATION

No Intention of Reflecting on the Contractors in Victoria Harbor Enquiry.

Ottawa, April 14.—At the conclusion of last night's sitting of the Public Accounts Committee, Mr. E. A. Pringle, K.C., representing the sub-contractors on the Victoria B.C., harbor work, made a statement in which he disclaimed having had any intention of reflecting on the firm of McPhee, Henry and Macdonald, of Seattle, which had been engaged on the work of rock excavation. The firm, he said, was composed of Canadians, and bore the very highest reputation. All the books dealing with the work under investigation were being sent forward from Seattle in order that there might be the fullest possible enquiry.

HIGH FISH PRICES DUE TO CANNERS

Opinion Contained in Evidence of Ottawa Comptroller of Statistics.

Ottawa, April 14.—That the Canadian express companies were not making large profits on the transportation of fish was argued before the Marine and Fisheries Committee last night by Mr. F. H. Chrysler, K.C., their counsel.

The committee is investigating the conditions which surround the carrying of fish, with the purpose of discovering the cause for the wide disparity of prices as between producers and consumers. According to evidence given by the comptroller of statistics, express rates have figured largely in this discrepancy, but the real profits made by the companies were not shown by reason of the fact that payments were made to the railways controlling these companies.

Mr. Chrysler last night advanced arguments which were in the nature of a reply to the contention of Mr. J. Lambert Payne, the witness in question. He urged that the real profits of the companies were not by any means so large as would appear. Mr. Payne had treated as gross profits the difference between gross revenue and operating expenses, which in Mr. Chrysler's opinion was not a fair method.

BLUE LAWS IN GERMANY

Women Must Not Dress in a Way to Offend the Authorities.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Berlin, April 13.—Via London, April 14.—What is characterized as a recrudescence of the spirit of the blue laws is observed in some German cities. In Munich the police have been authorized to act as censors of women's dress and have been ordered to arrest all women who are dressed too conspicuously. The first victim of these instructions was a young woman, who was on her way to meet an officer. She was taken to a police station and compelled, according to the newspaper reports, to wipe the powder and rouge from her face before being permitted to leave the station. In Leipzig prescriptions regarding boys and girls under eighteen years of age are being enforced. They are forbidden to enter restaurants and saloons except when accompanied by adults, and they may attend moving picture exhibitions only when special programmes for juveniles are given and they must keep off the streets after ten o'clock at night.

STEPS TAKEN TO IMPROVE MUSEUM

Historical Society to Rearrange Old Exhibits and Buy New Ones.

MISS COLTER MADE HISTORIAN

Papers Read to Society to be Collected and Published.

A very important meeting of the historical society was held yesterday afternoon in the library with a good attendance. For some time past ways and means of improving the museum at the library, which is conducted by the society, has been under the consideration of a committee. This committee reported yesterday the results being submitted by Mr. McFadden. The report outlined an extensive plan of arranging and tabulating the exhibits in the museum. Steps are to be taken to place the present exhibits in new cases and to obtain new exhibits.

Messrs. McFadden and Martin, of the Collegiate staff, have been asked to visit the provincial museum, in Toronto, and to obtain any information which may be useful.

His Honor Judge Hardy and Lt. Col. Harry Cockburn were made honorary presidents of the Society.

It was decided to have an historian who should make a record of all current events which might be of use in any future history of Brant County.

Miss Colter, principal of Victoria school, was appointed to this position.

A committee consisting of President J. W. Standing, Secretary, Rev. J. W. Gordon and Mr. Rowe, was named to see about publishing the papers which have been read to the society in the last two or three years.

ROUMANIA IS COQUETTING WITH CENTRAL POWERS

Uneasiness Felt in Italy
Over Latest Moves of Balkan State.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
Rome, April 13 (cable to the New York Times)—Uneasiness about the intentions of Roumania, which for a considerable time has been allying itself with the central powers, is being manifested, owing to Roumania's renewed commercial relations with the central powers. There is a general feeling that Roumania should not be trusted until she shows her intentions by acts. The closing of the Roumanian frontier is supposed to be a measure of reprisal for the Roumanian economic arrangements with Bulgaria and the central powers.

I am informed by a friend of the Entente just arrived from Roumania that all these indications mean nothing; that Roumania will wait until victory is sure for one side or the other, then definitely join the victor. Germany well understands this, it is declared, and hence her determination to capture Verdun at all costs. Even that success, however, would not be sufficient to decide Roumania, which is taking no chances.

Music and Drama

THE COLONIAL
An unusually large Thursday night audience welcomed the Popular Princess Players at the Colonial last night when they presented a play new to Brantford, entitled "A Kentucky Girl." It is a tale of the "moonshine" days in Kentucky, which fortunately exist no more, but proves a most interesting subject to weave a story of love and hate, the most predominating passions for which the Kentucky mountains are noted. The play is well mounted, showing Hank Weston's home, and the illicit still in the mountains. Kitty Kirk as "Evie," made a charming maiden, willing, to be loved, by the upright and big-hearted Harry Woodford, played by Mr. Ormsbee. Iona Jacobs as Mr. Neal furnished the comedy. In the double hands of those two excellent foils, it was great. A thankless but well-played villain, by Mr. Higgins. Songs by Mr. Miller and a fine selection of photo plays make up a great show.

"MISS MODISTE"
The long-awaited feature of the season will be at the Grand Opera House April 19th.

This is without doubt the stellar attraction of the year. Hal Johnson, who is in "Miss Modiste" is not only Hal Johnson without a peer in his line, but the cast in general is the best obtainable.

The scene is laid at a summer hotel. Wm. Frisker, an old man who has been playing the "wine and supper" little too heavily is guardian of Sally Grey, whose money he has appropriated for his own pleasure. Tommy Carter, a suitor for the hand of Sally, is not liked by Frisker because of the fact that he is rich in this world's goods, but being a determined young fellow, strives to win her hand without Frisker's consent, if necessary. Not only has Frisker been using Sally's money for his own amusements, but he has also been playing his sister, a maiden lady, for additional funds. Frisker has been running quite smoothly until Frisker receives a message stating that Gloria, a famous actress, with whom he has been frequenting, has been in an automobile accident, while on her way to pay him a visit. Of course, it would greatly complicate matters for him if she were to be seen as his guest at the hotel. She sends her maid ahead of her with her trunks and through the bell boy, who is really an old college chum of Tommy Carter's, (Tommy) learns of the situation. They immediately concoct a plot, whereby Tommy is to get some of Glittering Gloria's clothes from her trunks and impersonate the great actress. It is needless to describe the complications which arise when the actress later appears on the scene, much to the discomfort of Frisker and the anger of Sally and Martha Whittle, his sister. Of course Tommy makes the most of Frisker's chagrin and shows him up for what he is. Words cannot describe the climax of this wonderfully constructed farce, and we will leave it to your judgment. If you do not say it is one of the best entertainments of its kind you have ever witnessed. Hal Johnson makes the most of the part of Tommy Carter in his own inimitable way. Many performers have tried to portray the characterizations of this clever impersonating comedian, but of course, they are merely imitators. See the original and you will see the best.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN
The version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" which Wm. H. Kibbe's company will present at the Grand Opera House on Good Friday, matinee and night, is as superior when compared with others, as a rose to a weed. The production is in size a whale beside a minnow.

COMING TO THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE
Derwent Hall Caine, son of the eminent English novelist and playwright, will make his first appearance in Canada at the Grand Opera House in this city, on Saturday, April 22nd, matinee and night, in "Pete," Caine's most successful play.

The debut of the young London actor-manager on the Canadian stage and the initial presentation of "Pete" will be under the direction of Henry Miller, the American actor-manager.

"Pete" was written by Hall Caine in collaboration with Louis N. Parker, author of "Dorothy," "Pomander Walk," "Joseph and His Brethren," "Rosemary," "L'Aiglon," "Chanticleer" and no less than 80 other plays that have been produced on the English and American stages. The story of "Pete" was suggested to the distinguished author by certain incidents in "The Bondsman." The Decemter" and the "Manxman," three of Hall Caine's most successful novels. It was produced originally at the Lyceum Theatre, in London, six years ago; it has had six notably successful revivals in London; it has scored triumphs in the theatres of Australia, New Zealand, India and Africa; and translations of the powerful drama have won tremendous success in Russia, Holland and the Scandinavian countries. Nevertheless, it has never before been announced for presentation in Canada or the United States. Hall Caine deliberately held up the American rights until his famous son could make arrangements to play the title and stellar role in the first American production.

The story of the play is woven about the character of Pete Quillam, a young Manxman who goes to the Kimberly diamond mines to make his fortune and leaves behind a pretty Manx maiden who has promised to become his wife. The development of the drama deals with the faithfulness of Pete's trusted friend, the grim fight he makes to protect a woman's honor, and his heroism in a crisis from which he emerges a bigger and braver and better man than the father of his Manx sweetheart or the rival to whom she had given her love. The drama fairly bristles over with quaint humor, simple pathos, love, hate and revenge. It strikes a tender paternal note that gives the big moment of the story great dignity and an irresistible tug upon the heart strings of an audience. The engagement is for Saturday, April 22nd, matinee and night at the Grand Opera House.

HAMILTON WOMAN SAYS ITS "REMARKABLE"

The many friends of Mrs. Mary Doolittle, of North James street, Hamilton, will find the following of interest:
"The Plantan treatment has indeed been remarkable in my case, having relieved me of stomach trouble and renewed my strength. Something prompted me from the very first that this was the right medicine for me and it has proven just so."

Mrs. Doolittle is one of scores of both men and women who have found health through Plantan—Hamilton's very best people, your nearby neighbors.

Nervous headache, severe stomach, liver and kidney troubles are often caused by catarrhal conditions. Pains in the pit of the stomach, side and kidney region, loss of appetite, no ambition, depression of spirits and a constant contracting of colds are characteristic symptoms of catarrhal affection from which so many thousands are suffering.

Plantan has proven to be the most rational and successful weapon with which to combat these very conditions and to assist back to normal health the vital organs of the body.

Mr. Jackson, the noted Plantan expert, is at Boles Drug store each day courteously explaining Plantan.

ANTI-GERMAN AGITATION ON IN HOLLAND

Idea is to Prevent Food-stuffs From Getting to the Huns.

London, April 13.—(Cable to the New York Sun)—The Rotterdam correspondent of The Daily Mail telegraphs:
"A popular anti-German agitation has arisen in Amsterdam and northern Holland, led by a revolutionary named Nieuwenhuis, which aims at preventing food stuffs and other goods from entering Germany. Demonstrations are being held in the streets of Amsterdam, demanding that the frontiers be closed and that F. E. Posthuma, minister of agriculture, industry and commerce, who is accused of pro-Germanism, be removed."

"Nieuwenhuis was once a favored democratic leader, but lost his popularity some time ago owing to his extreme Socialism. He is now gaining ground by his anti-German campaign."

"Meanwhile the aristocratic residents of The Hague and the naturalized Germans of Rotterdam are strongly pro-German. Never was the political dividing line between the classes and the masses in Holland so sharp."

Childhood Constipation.
Mrs. Andrew G. Lund, Hughtenden, Alta., writes—"Two of my babies were very much troubled with constipation and I tried several remedies without success. A neighbor advised me to try Baby's Own Tablets and they were so satisfactory that now I would use nothing else." The Tablets never fail to cure constipation and they may be given to the youngest child with perfect safety. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TROOPS OF CANADA SUFFERED SEVERELY
London, April 14—Details received here of fighting for craters, in which the Canadians suffered severely, show that at one spot five mines in direct line and close together were sprung against the Germans, whose defence consequently was momentarily completely shattered. The Canadians then rushed forward to occupy the ground thus rendered untenable. The advance was supported by artillery. The observer declares that the fire from the guns so close together and working incessantly was like a terrace of houses on fire. The Canadians secured ground for the time being, after which the struggle continued with varying success on each side, as is always the case in such operations. If the Canadian losses were severe there is no doubt the enemy lost many more.

CHAPTER XXI.
The day of the representation broke clear and cloudless, and Wayland Manor was in a bustle of preparation.
Invitations had been issued far and near, and the young mistress of the place was busy giving orders, flitting from room to room to see that these were carried out, and devising new schemes involving still more lavish expenditures.

ELAINE THE FAIR
source of a brook on the moor.
She was afraid to venture near a human habitation, knowing her dress would betray her and she would again be delivered up to her torturers, but some good spirit had impelled her, in her extremity to appeal to Sir Guy.
To make the story short, he married her without waiting to verify any of her statements. They went to Italy and wandered from one earthly paradise to another. While they were in Rome an artist young and gifted asked leave to paint her. She insisted on wearing the novice's dress in which her husband first met her. From this moment he noticed that she changed towards him, and after examining every species of moral torture that it was possible for a depraved mind to invent, she fled one day with the young artist round whom she had cast the baleful spell of her fascinations.
She left a letter, shameless in its cynicism, telling him that the story of her having been a nun was a lie devised to engage his pity—that, hearing of his intended journey, she had assumed the disguise and thrown herself in his way. She bade him forget her, as she would never trouble him more; he was too proper too English, he was too much of a nature like herself; she was wearied to death of the life he expected his wife to live, and wanted to be free.
She loved France to distraction, and no marriage was a true marriage without love. She took with her all the splendid jewels he had lavished on her and a large sum of money, which she abstracted from his desk.
"Sir Guy followed them from place to place, and at length came upon them in a distant Hungarian village, that night he was poisoned in the wine he drank and the guilty pair fled. She tired of her husband, and he tired of her; one day she was driven out of an accident when they were climbing one of the Tyrolean mountains. The distracted lady saw the man, but she was soon heard of as the companion of a Russian prince. But here she met her match, for, rousing his passions, she soon had her watched and she was caught attempting flight with a large quantity of jewels, family heirlooms. She disappeared, and it was said she was in a sort of cage and allowed to see no one but a hideous old deaf and dumb woman, except that once a day he paid her a visit in her apartment and exalted over her sufferings. She tried every trick of cavalry to soften his heart, but in vain; then her passions broke loose, she shrieked and called down maldictions upon him, but these left him equally unmoved, and finally she went raving mad, and refusing all food died in the extremest misery.
On Sir Guy's death the picture was sent home with his other effects, but was put away in the attic and hung in the gallery, not knowing the history attached to it."
"It is a horrible story," said Lisabel.
"Is it almost impossible to believe there was such a woman. She was a common adventuress I suppose?"
"Yes, a good deal more than that,
and afterwards. Her antecedents were thoroughly bad, and if ever she intended to lead a virtuous life, her evil instincts were too strong, and she sickened of respectability, and the monotony of the common-place life.
The artist who painted her, through all his infatuation, must have understood her nature, for he has seen her to a great extent as she really was not as she appeared."
"Of what you two discussing?"
said Elaine, coming up at this juncture.
"Art and artists—the obvious topics of the moment," said Mr. Bolton.
"And what conclusions have you come to?"
"None. The subject is a wide one and admits many varying opinions."
Shortly after the party broke up and Mr. Bolton took his leave, saying that he seldom in his long life had spent so pleasant and profitable a day.
Lord Brixton volunteered to drive him to his inn. When they arrived he followed the lawyer into the private sitting room the latter had engaged and first glancing to see that the blinds were all down, he handed a photograph to Mr. Bolton. It was one of Miss Verinder had obtained from the one Luciel had looked at it long and steadily.
"Miss Berestord says Miss Verinder's face reminds me of some one but she cannot say of whom."
Mr. Bolton handed back the photograph saying:
"Tell her to think again, and ask her to find out from Miss Carden all the particulars of the taking of this picture. Tell her to ask her if at the time she noticed anything unusual—anything different in Miss Verinder's manner."
Lord Brixton turned a puzzled glance on his companion.
"Ask her," the lawyer reiterated.
"And now good-bye and good night.
It is late, and they will expect you back."
They shook hands and separated.
The next morning Mr. Bolton returned to town.

SPRING REMINDERS OF RHEUMATISM
Raw, Damp Weather Starts the Pains, But the Trouble Lies in the Blood.
Spring weather is bad for rheumatic sufferers. The changes from mild to cold, the raw, damp winds start the aches and twinges, or in the more extreme cases, the tortures of the trouble going. But it must be borne in mind that it is not the weather that causes rheumatism. The trouble is rooted in the blood—the changeable weather merely starts the pains. The only way to reach the trouble and cure it is through the blood. The poisonous rheumatic acids must be driven out. Liniments and rubbing may give temporary relief, but cannot possibly cure the trouble. The sufferer is only wasting time and money with this kind of treatment and all the time the trouble is becoming more deeply rooted—harder to combat and more difficult to cure. There is just one speedy cure for rheumatism—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They act directly on the impure acid-stained blood. They purify and strengthen it and thus root out the cause of the rheumatism. Here is strong proof of the above statements. Mr. Michael Personage writes: 'My mother suffered several years with rheumatism. We tried a number of remedies but they all failed to cure her. She got Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after using them for some time she was completely cured and has had no sign of the trouble since.' Sold at 20 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A ROYAL PRINCE GETS A DRENCHING AT THE WATER JUMP
Prince Henry, the King's third son, recently took part in the Junior Steeplechase at Eton College and finished the twelfth out of 110 contestants, which indicates royal blood does not always run cold and slow at any rate. The picture shows the prince getting out of the water, where he got thoroughly soaked.—(Exclusive Courier: Portrait Service, in conjunction with the London Daily Mirror.)

CAUCUS TO DISCUSS LIBERAL ATTITUDE
Railway Legislation and Bilingual Schools Subjects for Consideration.
Ottawa, April 14.—A Liberal caucus has been called for to-day when a number of questions are to be discussed, among them the attitude of the Opposition with respect to prospective railway legislation, and with respect to the question of precipitating a debate in the House of Commons on the question of bilingual schools. There will also be some sort of a family discussion as to how far it is possible to support the Kysle charges regarding fuse contracts under the Royal Commission. The members are anxious to know exactly upon what foundation these charges were made and what the position of the party is and what the position of the party is and what the position of the party is.

CENSORED LETTERS OF PARTY LEADERS
Mail for Premier Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier is Examined.
Ottawa, April 14.—A series of complaints that letters sent from one point in Canada to another had been opened and censored was made by members of Parliament in the House yesterday afternoon, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Robert Borden being among those who had suffered. Hon. Rodolph Lemieux vehemently protested against the opening of letters sent from Montreal to him at Ottawa. This had been done which letters to letters from a foreign country were being censored, he saw no need of a regulation covering mail moving between Canada and the United States.

TEMPERANCE ACT UNDER DISCUSSION
Provision to be made for Licensing of Hotels in Ontario.
Toronto, April 14.—Legislative provision for temperance hotels in Ontario municipalities was made in the House last night, when the Temperance Act came up for further consideration in committee. Hon. W. J. Hanna introduced additional clauses to the bill that place in the hands of the Ontario License Board full licensing power in respect to these hotels. The board is given power to license one or more hotels in any municipality, and to fix the terms and conditions upon which they shall extend accommodation to the travelling public. The bill does not attempt to call themselves "hotels," as suggested by the Hotelkeepers' Association, but by giving standard hotels, licensed by the board the right to sell soft drinks, cigars, tobacco, etc. at a nominal fee of $1.00 and prohibiting unlicensed places from selling these things whether they secure a local license or not. The legislation gives the regular temperance hotel the advantage in getting business.

Elaine the Fair

A Serial Story of Absorbing Interest.

"Ah!" A sudden exclamation was drawn from him as his eyes fell on "Dame Adrienne." It was terrible in its powerful delineation. The expression which lurked in the painted face was subtly intensified in the representation. Surely none but an actress of commanding genius could have so embodied the hidden meaning of the original. It was the triumph of evil—the love of evil for its own sake—the hatred of good. Yet all this was expressed without the distortion of a feature, with a smile on the curved red lips and in the brilliant blue eyes. For a moment he gazed, appalled, then looked again. Had it only been his own fancy? The face now before him was innocent and appealing as a little child's. The wide blue eyes were clear and limpid as the summer sky, a half smile parted the rosy lips, the dress, the pose, the figure were the same, but it was the real picture no longer. He roused himself and passed on. The rest he saw as in a dream. "Well, how did it go?" said half a dozen voices as the "pictures" descended from their positions and came round to where he stood. "Did we look real?"

"Marvelous! It was marvelous!" he said. "I could not have believed it was possible to produce such a perfect illusion."

"To which do you give the palm?" said Elaine.

"Where all was perfect it would be invidious to discriminate," he replied politely. "But I must confess I admired Miss Beresford's interpretation of 'The Lady Elgytha.' It had the charm of novelty."

"It was your fault, Mr. Bolton!" cried Lisabel, laughing. "The expression on your face overcame my resolution. I am thankful you will not be present to-morrow. Miss Verinder would never forgive me if I spoiled everything."

"No, indeed," said Elaine. She was still in her novice's dress, and the slight touch of rouge on her cheeks was visible. "I shall be very angry if you do not take it more seriously," Lisabel made a grimace.

"Then you should have put me somewhere else. I am like honest Digory. 'I must laugh!'"

"Let us get off our things, and then if Miss Verinder wants to be very good she will sing for us," said Colin Grantly. "It is wicked not to share such a gift with the world, and she has only sung once for me."

Everyone joined eagerly in the request, and Elaine graciously consented if they would allow her to stand in the improvised gallery while doing so, since the small drawing-room was occupied by the guests.

She gave her orders with reference to the piano, and then they all retired to remove their costumes, Elaine going to her own room.

Presently the curtains separating the two apartments were drawn back and Mademoiselle was seen seated with her back to the company at a small piano.

Elaine was advancing with her music in her hand. A cluster of electric lights above and a little behind her caused the butterflies in her hair and on her shoulders to send forth gorgeous scintillations. Her exquisitely graceful figure was thrown into relief by the sober background. She began, and every voice was hushed, every eye was fixed on the singer. Mr. Bolton had placed himself near the curtain and watched every movement of the fair vocalist. The song was a weird Italian love-song—sad, despairing, rebellious. It thrilled the hearers with a hopeless plaint. Each note fell, round, liquid, like the pearls from the lips of a languishing yet, while each heart was pained and chilled, no tear rose unbidden, no gentle melancholy softened the feelings of the hearers. They listened spell-bound, admiring, but touched with a vague uneasiness.

At length the music ceased and an audible sigh passed through the audience, and after an instant's pause Elaine began again, this time in a passage from an opera calculated to bring out the full powers of the singer's magnificent voice. Higher and higher it rose without flaw or break, ending in a prolonged note of silver clearness dying away into silence; then the singer bent her head, slipped behind the screen, and was gone. Her maid, gathering her music together, followed, while the applause of the listeners died away like a broken torch.

When Elaine re-entered the drawing room a few minutes later she was surrounded by a crowd of her guests, exclaiming, wondering, entreating, but she would sing no more.

"It is the occasion of a lifetime," he said. "I must soon say 'Good-bye,' and I may never have another opportunity of hearing your marvellous voice."

But Elaine said she made it an invariable rule never to sing more than twice in the same evening, and admitted that it was an effort to do even that much.

"Owing perhaps to the seclusion in which dear father brought me up, I would prefer never to sing in company, and it is only because you all seemed so anxious to hear me that I consented at all."

"It is a pleasure never to be forgotten by any of us," said Lord Brixton heartily.

Elaine moved away, and soon the interrupted conversation was in full swing. It turned chiefly on the subject of the pictures, and after a reference to Dame Adrienne, Lisabel said to Mr. Bolton, who sat near her—"I have often wondered who she was and what was her story. Do you know it, Mr. Bolton?"

"I can tell you," said Mr. Bolton, "but you need not mention to any one that I know it. It is a strange tale and one now almost forgotten."

"Somewhere in the early part of the sixteenth century a younger son of the family was travelling in the north of England, and it happened to be a great nunnery in the neighborhood, whose rule was of the strictest, and whose inmates were celebrated for the peculiar sanctity of their lives. He heard that a novice had either escaped or wandered away in delirium from this convent, and though a search had been instituted, she could not be found. It was reported that she was very beautiful, and many said that she had been forced by her relatives to enter the nunnery, and that as the end of her novitiate drew near she had run away rather than take the final step. As it afterwards turned out there was no truth in this statement.

"That evening it happened that Sir Guy Verinder was riding alone across a peculiarly wild and desolate piece of moorland, when his horse shied violently. A white figure had stepped out from behind a lichen covered rock directly in his horse's path and was holding up appealing hands.

"To say that Sir Guy was free from fear would not be true, but he was not superstitious, and the remembrance of the story of the escaped nun flashed back on his mind. He felt convinced that this was she; and, being a sturdy Protestant, he resolved to help the fugitive by every means in his power. He jumped from his horse and holding the bridle so that the animal could not escape, he advanced towards the apparition with reassuring words.

"The moon was full and it was almost as light as day. He was struck dumb with amazement and delight when the girl, for she appeared not more than seventeen or eighteen, turned towards him the loveliest face he had ever seen. Her novice's veil was over her white forehead. Her face had the soft, appealing loveliness and grace of a child, and to his fascinated gaze she seemed half saint, half sprite.

"She threw herself on his chivalry and generosity, and told a moving tale of merciless persecution at the hands of the Mother Superior and of the cruel fraud that had been practised to immure her in her prison, and she begged Sir Guy to hide her and help her to escape."

"She looked so lovely in her distress that Sir Guy's susceptible heart was captured, and he vowed he would be her true knight and devote his life to her service."

"He wrapped her in his great riding cloak and made her mount behind him, and in this manner rode through the night and the greater part of the following day, causing her to lie securely hid while he changed his horses at various stages.

"As soon as they had left all danger of recognition behind he placed her in comfortable lodgings and provided her lavishly with everything she required in the way of wearing apparel. He visited her every day and became more and more infatuated with her beauty and charm. She told him her name was Adrienne Levasseur, that she belonged to a noble French family, but that they, wanting to rid themselves of the care of her, had put her in the convent and had insisted that the following week she should complete her martyrdom by taking the veil. Overcome with horror at the thought of a life for which she had no vocation, she had escaped by a daring plan and had fled to the lonely moor, where she had concealed herself for several days, her principal food being berries to which the Brambles were covered at that time, and her drink the water from a spring which was the
