Korniloff's Rebellious Troops Return to Duty

Status of Gen. Kaledines Today Chief Point at Issue; Cossacks Refused to Sanction Arrest of Their Leader

By Couier Leased Wire.

Petrograd, Sep. 16.—The troops which rebelled with General Korniloff have nearly all returned to the former positions, the "savage" division now under command of General Polovtseff, formerly commander of the Petrograd district is on its way back to the front.

General Kaledines went to Novo Tcherkask from Rostov with a guard of Cossacks and junkers while his adherents guarded the road over which he travelled.

Premier Kerensky replied that he did not prohibit the congress, but had a right to depose the hetman whose election had been confirmed by the government.

The commander of the Moscow military district has issued an appeal to the Cossacks, declaring that as they are the natural champions of freedom and order, they should arrest General Kaledines and disband and send home the new Cossacks forces which have been raised without the consent of the government.

Petrograd and the neighboring district is quiet, but there are indications of a continuance of Bolsheviki activity. The Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates of Visorg, a district of Petrograd, a centre of extreme anarchism, has forbidden the sale of Bourgeoisie newspapers and also comic journals as being counter-revolutionary.

The Kronstadt Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates has demanded the release of all the residents of that town arrested for participation in the Bolsheviki revolt in Petrograd on July 16.

For the present, despite the ferment, the government seems to have the situation well in hand. The best disciplined troops in Petrograd are reported fully reliable, whereas the Bolsheviki regiments are not in a condition to carry out any systematic operations against the government, if they have a mind to so do.

The inquiry being made in Petrograd shows that the Osuri cavalry division which advanced to the River Narya, believed that it was to defend the Baltic coast which was threatened by a German invasion.

The Mohiley inquiry discloses that the soldiers were told there was anarchy and panic in Petrograd, which was getting the food supplies. They were assured that General Korniloff did not intend to upset the existing order, but aimed to take measures against the disorganization which was helping the enemy.

Upon the other hand, evidence against the higher officers is accumulating. Twenty more officers, including General Kisliakoff, have been arrested at Mohiev. Government agents also have arrested Col. Lebedieff, in whose automobile were discovered plans of the operations against Petrograd.

Soukhomlinoff Trial. Petrograd, Sept. 17.—The trial of General Soukhomlinoff, the former war minister for treason, was interrupted Sunday by the breaking of windows in the court room followed by the appearance of delegations from three companies of a regiment which was waiting outside.

whereupon the delegates demanded that the defendants be placed in a strict prison and deprived of all comforts. The court decided to transfer Soukhomlinoff from the hotel where he has been confined to the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul.

QUEBEC BRIDGE COMPLETED; CENTRAL SPAN HOISTED TODAY

Second Attempt To Complete Cantilever Across St. Lawrence Proves Successful, Despite Anxiety and Rumors of Failure—First Endeavor Made a Year Ago

By Courier Leased Wire

Quebec, Sept. 17.—The central span of the Quebec bridge was towed from Sillery to the bridge.

Quebec, Sept. 17.—The central span of the Quebec bridge left the Sillery yards at 6.50 this morning and reached the bridge site between the two cantilever arms at 7.03 a.m.

Quebec, Sept. 17.—The second attempt to complete the great cantilever near Quebec was begun this morning when the central span was towed from Sillery Cove, where it had been constructed, on pontoons, to a position immediately underneath the spot in the main structure it was intended to occupy.

The span was manoeuvred into mid-stream from its shore position by six harbor tugs with the well-known wrecking steamer, the Lord Strathcona, in attendance in case extra help was needed.

From observation on shore it appeared that the span was put in place ready for hoisting with unerring good judgment by the tugs' commanders.

No time was lost by the bridge help, who had flocked down on the span in connecting up the supports with the huge hoisting chains attached to the eight six ton jacks on the floor of the bridge 150 feet above.

At 8.45 the span had not floated off the screws and a rumor was circulated on shore that trouble had been met with.

This rumor proved to be unfounded, for a short while after it was reported by the engineers superintending the transfer operations that all the chains had been made fast and that all was well.

The exciting moment when the span on chains was lifted by the bridge engineers and the crowd, a ripple of applause from the onlookers on the river bank, the first to see daylight between the decks of the scows and the floor of the span, served as an announcement that the critical time of waiting was over and as the barges floated down stream without their burdens a rustle of cheers were heard from the thousands on shore.

The engineers in charge then gave the workers a short rest to enable them to prepare for the task of lifting the span to the bridge floor.

Lifting was begun about 9.45, and the jacks were noticed to be working smoothly.

WORSE TO COME. Quebec, Sept. 17.—At 12.30 the span had been raised eight feet. To reporters who asked for a statement as to the prospect of the span being safely bolted up, one of the engineers said:

"The easiest work is over. The rest will grow increasingly difficult from now on till the finish."

NOVEMBER ELECTION. By Courier Leased Wire. Winnipeg, Sept. 17.—November will see a Dominion general election in the opinion of Hon. A. P. MacNab, minister of public works for Saskatchewan. He expressed the view that Hon. James A. Calder, Premier of Alberta, and T. A. Greer were still willing to join a union government under a new leader.

The wheat crops of Saskatchewan, he said, promised far better than at first expected, and certain parts between Weyburn and Regina would average 20 to 22 bushels to the acre, reaching 27 in some districts.

ENGLISH AND SCOT TROOPS RAID GERMANS. Successful Attacks Last Night on Foe Lines on Arras and Somme.

PRISONERS CAPTURED. British Naval Seaplanes Continue Bombing in Belgium.

By Courier Leased Wire. London, Sept. 17.—Troops of English and Scottish regiments made successful raids last night on the German trenches in the Arras and Somme regions of the battle front in France.

German and Austrian Socialists would protest energetically against projects and tactics tending to weaken the Russian revolution, and to make Germany an accomplice of the counter-revolution.

By Courier Leased Wire. Stockholm, Sept. 17.—Germany has sent a note to Sweden, according to the correspondent at Stockholm of the Central News Agency, highly regretting the disagreeable issues raised on account of Sweden transmitting telegrams to Germany.

Germany says she objects to the Swedish Government for transmitting the messages, but regrets that her representatives in Argentina should have sent the telegrams in the phraseology they did.

The Nya Dagligt Allehandan of Stockholm, which prints the announcement that Germany had sent the note to Sweden, says that the Swedish Government has instructed all its representatives in foreign countries to refuse to accede to any attempt which may be made to force them to reveal to the Swedish Government the contents of code messages which they may submit to it.

Stockholm, Sept. 17.—At a great Liberal meeting held here to-day, a resolution proposed by Prof. Edehn, leader of the Liberal party in the second chamber, was unanimously passed to the effect that the meeting expressed the deepest regret that the Swedish foreign office was not in a position to deny the assertion that it had forwarded cipher telegrams in ignorance of their contents, which contents when revealed, awoke the just abhorrence of all Swedes, and that such careless acts could happen.

The resolution urgently demanded that the government immediately undertake all necessary measures to demonstrate undubitably to the Swedish people its determination to maintain towards all belligerents absolute neutrality.

Hushing It Up. Stockholm, Sept. 17.—A diminution is noticeable in the amount of space devoted by the Swedish press to the Argentinian and Mexican affairs, indicating a desire to avoid stirring public opinion unnecessarily.

News of the message of the German Minister to Mexico, regarding Polke Cronholm, attracts unfavorable comment in several opposition papers.

The suspicion is entertained here that Count Luxburg may have carried his audacity to the point of using Swedish offices against Swedish interests.

Socialist Parade. Stockholm, Sept. 17.—The Socialist parade to-day was not a particularly imposing demonstration, heavy showers preventing a large turnout.

A banner borne at the head of the parade contained the motto "Down with secret diplomacy." Other banners indicated that the parade might be interpreted as a peace demonstration as well as an election procession.

Hjalmar Branting, the Socialist leader, was the chief speaker. A meeting which was attended by 15,000 Socialists. At the conclusion of the address the following resolution was passed: "Events of the last few days show how the leading circles of Germany ruthlessly have misused the confidence by the two Swedish conservative governments, which directed the policy of Sweden during the war period."

"This meeting, therefore, emphasizes the determination to maintain a correct neutral attitude which is felt by all the Swedish people. We realize with indignation and humiliation that our good name has been jeopardized by the conduct of a few men. Obviously the nation's fortunes cannot continue in the hands of these few men who favor such systems and methods."

Italy Has No Need to Fear Food Shortage; Situation Unusually Good

By Courier Leased Wire. Rome, Sept. 17.—The Popolo Romano explains that Italy is the last of all the war countries that should be affected by the food shortage, adding:

"Although poorer than England and France, and because the protracted war has brought suffering to the people, Italy should not let her troubles appear too much on the surface, nor attempt political demonstrations or violence."

The principal excuse for the present unrest being the bread shortage, the newspaper asserts that the government proposes to issue bread cards on October 11, limiting the individual consumption to a half pound daily since the wheat harvest was short ten million quintals.

The recent attacks on the Turin incidents, the government being charged with negligence in not having foreseen the shortage and forced Italian farmers to produce more wheat, but it appears, says the paper, that the shortage was due to the lack of workmen in the fields.

However, the socialist and Austro-German propagandists and peace parties seized on the situation in the hope of causing more disturbances among the civil population. Parliament, according to The Giornale d'Italia, is expected to pass energetic measures to repress international sabotage, an instance of which was the loss of a ship load of wheat off Civita Vecchia due to improper means of unloading.

Evidence of a new attitude of the military towards international disturbances is shown in General Cadorna's message to a political group at Milan, this being the first reference by the General to civil affairs since the war. The message follows: "Any weakness behind the lines at this moment will be considered treason. We are all armed now with the will to conquer, and victory is at hand. All classes and all parties must remember that Italy knows only one way."

POE REPULSED. Rome, Sept. 17.—Austro-Hungarian troops by four successive counter-attacks, attempted on Saturday night to reconquer the ground they lost on Friday to the Italians on the Bainsizza plateau. General Cadorna reports that all the assaults were repulsed. The text of the official statement reads as follows: "In the Trentino, in Giudicaria valley, enemy parties attempting to approach our advanced positions were dispersed with rifle fire."

"In Carnia greater activity of the enemy artillery provoked brisk reaction by our artillery in the upper But and Fella valleys. On the Bainsizza Saturday night the enemy attempted with four successive counter-attacks to reconquer the ground he had lost the day before. He was constantly repulsed by the defenders, who captured 73 prisoners, including two officers."

ONE YEAR OF TEMPERANCE CELEBRATED IN THE CITY

Praise Accorded to Premier Hearst and Government of Ontario by Speakers at Rally in the Y. M. C. A. Last Night

The enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act was fittingly commemorated on the occasion of its first anniversary last night when, under the auspices of the Brantford Council, Royal Templars of Temperance, over three hundred temperance advocates and workers gathered in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. and were addressed by Sam Carter, M.P.P., for South Wellington, and Dr. C. V. Emory of Hamilton. The speakers, while rejoicing in what had to us far been accomplished, sounded a note of warning for the future, and urged their hearers to remain true to their principles and continue the fight until the final victory is attained.

The Chairman's Address "I will remember before the enactment of the O. T. A., it was hardly safe for a decent woman to walk down our main streets without having her ears offended with foul language," declared Mr. Collyer, Select Councillor, R. T. of T., who presided over the gathering. Mr. Collyer proceeded, outlining the many benefits that had resulted from the act.

"Let us not think, however, that because we have wounded the enemy that he is dead. I firmly believe that the enemy is active. Let us not relax our energies but remain true to our principles and the victory will be ours when the final struggle comes."

Sam Carter, M.P.P. "One of the greatest acts was done by Sir William Hearst—great was Sir William when he enacted the Ontario Temperance Act. On the rack bed of Sir William the future of the act was decided upon, and I will take off my hat to the premier who was big enough to allow his conscience overcome his respect for the moneyed interests of the province."

Such was the glowing tribute laid at the feet of the Premier of the Province by Sam Carter, M. P. P., for South Wellington, who throughout his political career has been a warm advocate of temperance.

"I am proud to meet the citizens of Brantford, the women who have recently been given the vote, as well as the men. Ladies, I welcome you. We've not a chance now, I can say from my experience of twenty-five years that we have never yet had a clean, decent election. When you come I expect a better moral tone, thirty years ago and over, I thanked God for the first battle for temperance. Had we, then had the leaders who were fearless and adhered to their convictions on temperance, 25 years ago, we should have led the world. All that we accomplished when we had a hundred thousand majority was a local option law with a three-fifths clause."

"You did not then carry the battle into the political field, where you could have forced your servants to obey you. God likes a brave man in the church and on moral questions, and thank God I have had two or three good fights in my political experience, and all have been for temperance."

The speaker then outlined the early stages of the fight that resulted in the enactment of the province-wide measure. He described the origin of the "Committee of 100." Referring to the legislature, he declared: "Such a petition, with so much behind it there never was, and on the sick bed of Sir William Hearst its future was decided upon."

"Both leaders co-operated and acted creditably. Oh, what would have resulted had the two parties got together at Ottawa a year ago and brought into union the most powerful forces and the best brains of the country toward winning the war?"

"In the light of the horror of this war there is one shining light—eight provinces of the Dominion have enacted prohibition measures. But do not be fools. It is our duty to see that the law is enforced and that every policeman, inspector and police official faithfully fulfills his duty." Mr. Carter severely arraigned the party patronage system, and in this connection maintained that all liquor license inspectors should be fired from party influence.

"The Committee of 100 are determined to push this issue to its final conclusion, and will continue to work until Dominion wide prohibition is secured. I think they will have prohibition yet before this war is over. The only deterrent will be the opposition of the senate, who the speaker roundly criticised. "What kind of a senate have we? A senate that refuse to bid liquor advertisements?" he demanded. "I would like to cut their heads off and make them responsible to the people. Moral reformers should free themselves of these titles and all this foolishness."

"Let us press on. Don't forget that all moral questions, in spite of faddist theories, are political. A moralist who is a hide bound partisan is a disgrace to his cause and a curse to his country."

Dr. C. V. Emory "I think that Sir William Hearst is a gentleman, a Christian gentleman and one who has the moral goal of the province at heart. We are indebted to the government for the Act and let us give them the credit. Sir William and the government not only gave us the act, but gave us one of the best license boards that we could wish for, and I have yet to hear anyone point the finger of scorn at their work."

Dr. C. V. Emory, Provincial Secretary of the Royal Templars of Temperance, who was actively engaged in the temperance fight, thus expressed his opinion of the Premier of the Province at the outset of an interesting and forceful address. "The Act has been much better enforced than the most sanguine could have expected a year ago," he stated, and quoted statistics in support of his statement, showing the improvement in the law order and in business that had resulted from the enforcement of the measure.

"There has to be a change in the hotelkeeping business. Hotelkeepers must put their brains into their business and provide accommodation for the public.

THE SITUATION
 Russia still holds the centre of the stage, not unfortunately because of any successes, but for the reason that the internal state of that country still remains in a most chronic condition. There has now come the formal declaration of a Republic when in reality what is most needed for a considerable period is an absolute dictator. The rearrangement which has taken place with regard to the ministry might work out all right under ordinary conditions, but matters are most emphatically not that. As an illustration of how little any supreme authority is yet recognized, there is the circumstance that the Don Cossacks, although professing loyalty to the government, have refused the request to give up their betman (a Cossack head man or general). Gen. Kaledines, although he is suspected of having had an active part in the attempted Korniloff revolution. Allegiance without obedience is certainly not what Kerensky needs at this time or can get along with. The Korniloff revolution was short lived, and he is now under arrest, with the knotty problem presented that if he is left off then soldiers who have also indulged in revolutionary tactics, will expect a like immunity. Taken altogether, the aspect of affairs is steadily getting no better.

On the Western front, the British have been making some gains of a minor nature near Cherisy, and the Russians have shown some unexpected stability in fighting in the Riga region.

LUTHERAN CHURCH
 Very interesting and beautiful services were conducted in St. Matthews' Lutheran church on Sunday, attended by large congregations both morning and evening. In the morning the Rev. Prof. C. H. Little, D. D., of Waterloo Lutheran Seminary, visited the congregation and preached a powerful sermon based on 1st Corinthians 13, after which two adults were baptized and six persons admitted to membership in the congregation by rite of confirmation. Three others were received by card. The communion was also administered to by far the largest number of communicants in the history of the church. The following persons were confirmed: Sylvanus Bechtel, Leonard Bechtel, Wallace Givens, Mrs. George Leasa, Mrs. Carl Schultz, and Miss Sarah McEachern. At the evening service the pastor preached from Acts 4, 13. The altar and chancel arrangements were beautifully decorated with flowers, and some recent improvements added greatly to the appearance of the hall. Altogether, the day was one of great rejoicing and long to be remembered by members of this church.

Police Court

A crowd of interested spectators turned away in disappointment from the police court this morning when the cases of theft from some local stores and charges of receiving stolen goods in connection with the thefts were remanded, again until Friday.

The clerk's chair was well-filled this morning, when Sergt.-Detective Chapman undertook the duties of Police Court Clerk Howarth, who was absent.
 Magistrate Livingston will give judgement on Wednesday in the case in which Carmelo Borg, a Maltese charged Clarence Matthews with the theft of $43. Borg resides at 197 Market Street and Matthews is a boarder in the same house.
 The first liquor case to be heard in the second year of the Ontario Temperance Act, netted the city a substantial sum, amounting to $220 and costs from three convictions. D. Kalle paid $200 and costs for having booze in an unauthorized place and contributed $10 and costs additional for selling unretailably under the ban of Bacchus. Bess Cupak was relieved of $10 and costs for steering a wobbly course while under the influence of the wine that is red.
 George Barlow, a delinquent debtor to the tax collector, was apparently stirred from his lethargy by a summons, and paid $5 before the court was held this morning.
 A charge of conversion against Bert Clark, preferred by Hunt and Colter, was held over until tomorrow, when the defendant will be present.

GOES OVERSEAS

Another former member of the local Y. M. C. A. is leaving shortly for overseas for military Y. M. service in the person of Will Kinglerley, whose parents now reside in this city, and who for the past few years has been boys' secretary of the Broadway Y. M. C. A., Toronto. He is well known in local "Y" circles, and his many friends here will learn with interest of his decision to go overseas.

THEIR CLASS
 A correspondent who writes to the Toronto Globe that if any attempt is made to conscript him he will resist, goes on to say:
 "You have therefore a right to explain for the benefit of those prospective conscripts, on what grounds of reason, justice, or common sense free-born Canadians should be forcibly reduced to slavery and transported to Europe like 'dumb driven cattle' to fight and die in a world war with the origin of which neither they nor their country had anything to do whatever, and will have still less to do with its conclusion; a war in which they are forced to fight for nearly all other countries in the world but their own. My country was not, is not, and is not likely to be attacked. Then why in reason or justice should I be sent as a conscript slave to Europe to fight where if it is attacked, I could not defend it?"
 It is difficult for the average individual to "sense" the basis on which the author of the letter, and others like him base the claim that Canada is not attacked, and that under the selective draft free-born Canadians will be reduced to "slavery." The truth is, undoubted, that with the downfall of the British Empire as the outcome of this struggle, there would also come the down fall of Canada, and that fact conceded, it is almost beyond belief to find individuals arguing that Canada is not threatened.

As for the "slavery" buncombe, a call to arms in defence of the liberty and right can never be properly placed in any such category. The actual slavery of this country would come fast enough if the Hun should win and not only that, but the unspeakable horrors which have been visited upon Belgium and other areas where the damnable thing called kultur bus been inflicted.
 Those who whine under such circumstances as to a selective draft, show themselves thereby to be politicians as well as renegades.

NOTES AND COMMENTS
 A dispatch announces the discovery by customs officials, of New York, of gold secreted in pork barrels on a Spanish steamer, about to sail. What of it? The one was just about as valuable as the other.

"Trouble brewin'" applies with particular force these days to the Russian bear.

Korniloff has had the first part of his name stepped on with an emphasis which will serve to boost the wry output even in these prohibition days.

The U. S. Senate on Saturday passed a war credits' bill aggregating $11,528,000,000 and did it without so much as blinking.
 General Currie, Canadian Commander at the front, during the course of a letter to Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., says:
 "From here I cannot make head nor tail of the political situation in Canada. It seems to me that our country is about to be divided as never before. Such a thing is very deplorable, and those who are encouraging the breach are assuming very grave responsibility."
 Not only that, but they are abetting the Hun.

A dispatch from Ottawa says that Premier Borden will take a holiday immediately after the session and, on his return announce the personnel of a new cabinet, which will include some Liberals. An election is likely to place not later than the early part of December.

GEORGE NEWELL LAID TO REST IN PARIS SATURDAY
 Funeral of Young man Killed in Flint Was Largely Attended.
 FIRE IN UPPER TOWN
 Kitchen of John Carrol's Home Burned to the Ground.

OTHER NEWS OF PARIS
 Paris, Sept. 17.—(From our own correspondent.)—The funeral of George Newell, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Newell, East River street, who was killed at Flint, Mich., last Wednesday, was held from his parents' residence, on Saturday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Wells conducted the service at the home and grave, and members of the Canadian Order of Foresters attended in a body, deceased being a member of that order. The late Mr. Newell was born in Apr. 24 years ago, and came to Paris with his parents when three years of age and had resided here until last February. For some time he was employed at the Buckle Car shop shop at Flint, but lately had been on the Pere Marquette Railway, as the indoor work did not agree with him. At the time of the accident he was coupling cars in the railway yard when he found that one of the pins was not working properly, and while doing this, the engine started, and his body was crushed between the cars. He was rushed to the hospital, where he lingered for nearly an hour, being conscious right to the last. Besides his aged parents he leaves two sisters and two brothers to mourn his loss, Mrs. A. Stover and Miss Rose of Paris, William of British Columbia and John of town, to whom the sympathy of the community will be extended in their sad and sudden bereavement. The pallbearers were all boy friends of deceased, Messrs. Ernie Woodet, John Scott, Harry Price, John Stewart, W. Moore, Wm. Keen. Many beautiful floral tributes were received, among them being a broken wheel from the employees of the Pere Marquette Railway of Flint, Mich.
 On Friday afternoon the firemen had a run to Upper Town, when a house occupied by Mr. John Carroll was found to be on fire. It is thought that a spark from the chimney was the cause of the fire, as it had made considerable headway before being noticed. The firemen made a good run and saved the house and contents. The kitchen, however, was burned to the ground. This is the second fire that Mr. Carroll has had this year. In the previous one he lost everything. The property is owned by Mr. P. Hamilton of Brantford, and was covered by insurance.
 On Wednesday, a big bowling tournament will be held on the grounds here, when 150 bowlers are expected to take part in the proceedings. Should the day be fine, there will be a large number of spectators present, as the greens are open to all.

WEDDING BELLS

Watson-Bulling
 A wedding of much interest to many Brantford people was quietly solemnized in Detroit Tuesday, Sept. 11th, 1917, when Rev. Irwin Brafield, pastor of Forest Ave. Presbyterian Church, united in marriage Miss Marion Bulling, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bulling, of this city, and Mr. G. Lloyd Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Watson, St. George, Ontario. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the groom's uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Marks, 575 Warren Ave. west, in the presence of only the immediate families. The bride was becomingly attired in a navy travelling suit, with ermine furs and black tailored hat. Those present were the bride's mother, Mrs. Joseph Bulling, her sister, Mrs. W. J. Hartwell and Master Wallace of Brantford, Mrs. W. D. Layman, Kingsville; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Marks and Miss Virginia Marks, all of Detroit. The happy couple left Detroit on the

GERMAN REPLY
 London, Sept. 17.—Dr. Richard von Kuehlmann, the German foreign secretary, who is now visiting King Ludwig at Munich, calls on the Federal nuncio, and handed him a German reply to Pope Benedict's peace proposal Saturday evening, according to The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger, as quoted in an Amsterdam dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.
 Lucile Smith, Lethbridge, and Clarence Emery, Edmonton, were both badly injured in an automobile smash at Calgary. Miss Smith suffered a fractured skull and Emery a broken leg.

IT'S A BOY
 The happiest man in Brantford today is Police Court Clerk Jack Howarth. He can now only be addressed with propriety as "father." The future Premier of Canada, as his parents fondly believe to be his destiny, arrived last night and has as pleasing an aspect as his well known and genial father. Hall to the new assistant police court clerk.

QUIT POST
 Budapest, via Amsterdam, Sept. 17.—Dr. Graiz, minister of finance in the Hungarian cabinet formed by Premier Wekerle last month, has retired from the ministry. Dr. Wekerle has temporarily taken over the portfolio of finance.

SECRETARY RESIGNS

His resignation was tendered to the Great War Veterans' Association on Saturday night by C. S. Vansickle, the first permanent secretary of the society. During his incumbency, Secretary Vansickle has given general satisfaction, and was popular with all members of the organization, as well as with all with whom he came in contact. No permanent appointment was made for the vacancy, but E. A. Hollister, a veteran of the 4th battalion, has been elected to fill the position until such time as a permanent selection is made.

They will report at the barracks at Hamilton to-morrow for medical examination.

PTE. D. E. KELLY

Is Making Recovery After Being Gassed.

Mrs. Wm. Kelly, Marlborough St. is in receipt of a letter from her son, Pte. D. E. Kelly. It was written from Suffolk Hospital, Bury St. Edmunds, Suffolk, England, and says in part: "I suppose by this time you have had word about me. I am doing fine. I got shelled into one of the Huns' old dugouts at Lens, and when I got in there he put a gas shell right in door at us, but you do not need to worry. I cannot write much just now, it hurts my eyes. I could not see for about a week."
Mrs. Kelly has also received the following:

France, Aug. 19, 1917:

Dear Madam,—I am sending a brief word to say that I saw your son Daniel yesterday as he passed through the dressing station. He was slightly gassed in the recent attack, but with such good care as he is now receiving, he ought soon to be all right. I am just sending this note to reassure you, and prevent anxiety.

Yours sincerely,
F. S. Fowler,

RUSSIA A REPUBLICAN STATE UNDER NEWLY FORMED CABINET

Proclamation Issued by Provisional Government Which Kerensky Still Heads—Opinion Divided as To Korniloff's Punishment.

A Russian republic has been proclaimed. The Provisional Government under date of Sept. 14 issued a proclamation declaring that to strengthen the organization of the State a change to a republican form of Government was necessary. Danger still threatens Russia, the proclamation says, although the rebellion of General Korniloff has failed. The plan of a Russian republic has been one of the chief aims of the Radicals and the Councils of Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates, and was given approval by the recent Russian Congress at Moscow.

A Cabinet of five members, including Premier Kerensky, has been named to take care of all matters of State. The only party men are Premier Kerensky and Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, both of whom are Social Revolutionists. The others, including the Ministers of War and Marine, are members of no party.

Although the position of the Kerensky Government appears to be improving, the action of the Grand Cossacks in refusing to surrender General Kaledines, their hetman, is ominous. The leader of the Cossacks is accused of complicity in the Korniloff revolt. The Cossacks' protest bills ignoring the government's request for the giving up of General Kaledines.

Petrograd, Sept. 17.—Russia's political crisis has been solved, after an all-night conference. It was announced yesterday by the Russian official news agency. A new Cabinet has been formed. The Provisional Government has issued a manifesto proclaiming Russia to be a Republican State.

The proclamation follows: "General Korniloff's rebellion has been quelled. But great is the confusion caused thereby, and again great is the danger threatening the fate of the Fatherland and its freedom. Holding it necessary to put an end to the external indefiniteness of the State's organization, remembering the unanimous and rapturous approval of the republican idea expressed at the Moscow State conference, the Provisional Government declares that the constitutional organization, according to which the Russian State is ruled, is a republican organization and it hereby proclaims the Russian Republic. (Signed) "Minister and President Kerensky "Minister of Justice Yaroukhin."

The title "Minister and President" is affixed to Premier Kerensky's signature to the proclamation, probably refers to his position as president of the Ministry rather than of the republic. The provisional government, yesterday announced that all the affairs of the state had been entrusted to five members of the cabinet. The following official communication was issued: "Order to the Army Premier Kerensky in an order of the day to the army and the fleet, after stating that General Korniloff's revolt disorganized the operations at the front, orders the soldiers to cease all political disputes in the army, which must do everything in its power to restore its fighting force.

THE MOUND

At intervals all along the whole front the German constructs "strong points." These points are often villages, or commanding positions naturally strong in themselves, but strengthened by every device known to field engineering until they present formidable obstacles to any opposing force. One of these strong points was a mound. It stood on the crest of some rising ground, and dominated the British trenches for nearly a mile on either side. Round the base of the mound the Germans had constructed a strong line of trenches defended by ditches and wire entanglements and the parapet was strongly reinforced with concrete and steel plates, protecting many sniping and machine gun loopholes.

The place was ever a source of worry to the intelligence officer of the battalion holding the British trench opposite. The other loop-holes in the German parapet were known and could be smashed if necessary, but those in front of the mound, though their exact positions had been located for the most part, could not be dealt with satisfactorily. It was well nigh impossible to detect when the loop-holes were opening up to their small size and the background of the mound itself, and the result was that half the snipers of the morning watch had always to be engaged in keeping the loop-holes under observation, for their commanding situation made excellent positions for successful sniping if the Germans were granted a free hand.

At length the sniper officer determined on drastic measures. He took council with the trench-mortar officer of the sector, and the upshot of the conference was that an attempt to trench-mortar the position was decided on.

The news spread like wildfire along the trench. Men rushed in the parapet to see the fun, and even those off duty and supposed to be asleep, roused themselves and crowded into the firing line. Every available periscope and piece of mirror glass was pressed into use, and it was only the stern order of officers and N. C. Os. which prevented some men from getting up on the parapet and actually looking over the top of the parapet.

A dull "poop" is heard—the well known note of the sixty pound trench-mortar in action—and every face is turned upwards with a jerk. High overhead, twirling its central stem round and round, the projectile can be seen ascending. It reaches a point where it looks like no larger than a small rifle grenade, and then plunges down on the other side of the curve towards the German lines. Right behind the mound a spray of earth is seen to rise where the mortar falls, but there is no explosion. "Dud!" is uttered along the trenches, and the Germans raise a jeering shout. Another mortar whirrs into the air, and the men follow its course breathlessly. This time the shell falls right in front of the German parapet. A huge splash of earth shoots up; a wailing cry of agony follows the sound of the explosion; and when the debris has subsided a great gap in the parapet and wire in front of it can be seen. Another mortar falls right into the German trench. A cluster of timber baulks veiled in earth rises into the air, casting above it all the spread eagled figure of a man. Evidently a dugout or a mine shaft has been struck, and again that wailing cry comes over from the German lines. Five more projectiles burst at intervals along the German front, and the bombardment is over. From one end of the mound to the other the parapet has been blown in and the entanglements uprooted and destroyed, and the whole position looks as if it had been rent and stamped on by some huge beast.

FRIENDS WONDER AT GREAT CHANGE

Fred Baker Says He Was on Verge of a Nervous Breakdown

"Honestly, my friends all tell me I am looking like a different person since I started taking Tanlac, and I sure feel like one, for this medicine has fixed me up so that I can work as well as I ever did," said Fred Baker, a machinist employed by the Steel and Radiator Co., and living at 32 Mariposa Ave., Toronto, the other day.

"Eighteen months ago, when I went from day to night shift," he continued, "the change in hours and habit seemed to upset me and I began to go down hill pretty fast. My nervous system was strained and it made me so irritable that I was peevish all the time. After working all night long I felt so tired and worn-out I was all I could do to drag myself home, and when I got there I lost patience with everything and couldn't stand to have the children around. I tried to sleep during the day, but my rest was not refreshing and when the time came to go on again I could hardly put one foot before the other. I was fast losing all my strength and I felt better before I had used half my first bottle, and now my wife has to fill my lunch basket to the brim and then I don't get enough to eat. My nerves have become quiet and I am never cross or irritable any more. I have got over that tired, worn-out feeling, and my night work seems to be just as agreeable as my day work used to be, and I feel just fine and dandy all the time."

Tanlac is sold in Brantford by Milton H. Robertson and Co., Limited, in Orillia, by M. H. Cooke and Co.; in Elmvale, by W. J. McGuire; in Leffroy, by G. R. Ardill; in Stayner, by N. B. Interesting Letter Tells of Brantford Men's Doings

A characteristic letter has been received by Township Clerk J. A. Smith from Cliff Todd, another member of the Courier staff now overseas. Cliff is with the 125th battalion at Whitley Camp, and gives a good account of the life there.

Whitley Camp, Surrey, Eng. Sept. 1st, 1917.

Dear Jim—No doubt you will think I have forgotten you, but such is not the case. There are not many of the original 125th Battalion left now—only three officers, brass band and a few others, say about 125 in all. We are getting it pretty stiff now whipping the boys in line for France. We were all inoculated yesterday, and there are some pretty sore bumps in camp. A couple of weeks ago we carried off the silver cup, the emblem of the championship of the 14th Brigade for a field day of sports and events, which was held, securing 12 firsts, seconds and 2 thirds out of 24 events, including the mile forced march wearing full equipment, appropriate to the test, in far less time than any of our competitors. Not one of our men dropped out, so that was a great win for us. Good boy, Major James and his B company. In the boxing, we cleaned up, winning 5 fights—lost one and awarded two by defaults. You can give this to the reporters if you like when they come around. Say it was from me, of course.

We have been denied week-end leave for months, but are to have four days now, so I will take a jaunt up to jolly old London. Give my best wishes to Art McCann, Jennings, Cook, Westbrook, and all my old country cousin friends.

Say, Jim, you should see some of the paved country roads here. Now, Jim, drop a line as soon as you can, it is good to get a line from home, and tell me all the news.

Your old friend, Clifford B. Todd, Whitley Camp, Surrey, Eng. No. 72461, 125th Batt., C. E. F.

Toronto, Sept. 17.—Toronto earned the premier honors in the International League and the pennant on Saturday at Rochester, when they took both ends of a double header with the Hustlers and snatched the bunting from Providence. The final games for the Leafs marked the closing of a strenuous season, and one of the tightest and hardest races for the leadership that the league has ever seen. The championship was won by Toronto with their last game and was thereby a more creditable victory, as it left no loopholes for the Grays to come through or any alibi for them because they failed to overcome the local clan. The every five year schedule again came true, for the Leafs have captured the title every fifth time they have tried for the last twenty years, and the honor is all the more appreciated for it looks as if this will be the last time that an international league championship will be contested until after the war, and perhaps never again by the Toronto club.

In all probability the International League will suspend operations next year, for Toronto alone is reported to have made money during the season. There are two alternatives for the Queen City fans have shown that they want baseball—and good baseball at that. The first is to take over the Washington franchise and operate a major league ball here, which seems the logical place for it, and the other is to form a new league by including the strongest teams in the International League and the American Association. However, which ever way it goes, Manager Larry La-

EDDIE CICOTTE IS A RELIABLE TWIRLER

Veteran of White Sox Pitching Staff Has Had a Hard Fight Against Ill-Luck and Random Criticism.

Those jealous persons who have been attempting to cast suspicion on the pitching ability of Eddie Cicotte this year need to study baseball history.

The veteran of the White Sox staff has been accused of using various kinds of dope to make the ball do funny stunts, and his accusers include players and managers of most of the opposing teams, with the exception of the Athletics, whose manager tells his players to go out and take a wallop at Cicotte's stuff, just as at anybody's else. And the Athletics have given Cicotte more trouble than any other team in consequence of that mental attitude.

Several American league teams have hypnotized themselves into the belief they could not touch Cicotte with a barn door, and notable among them is Cleveland, whose field captain, Tris Speaker, is one of the leaders of a campaign to have Cicotte's delivery called to the attention of United States government inspectors on the ground that it is interfering with the batting average of loyal American citizens.

Accused of Being 45.
Cicotte has been accused of being 45 years old, and one frequently hears from rival players the charge that it is impossible for him to be doing as well as he is, after so many years of mediocre success, without the aid of some magic.

Those who talk that way simply do not know the facts. The official records of the game show that Cicotte, with the exception of one year, has been among the leading pitchers

DOMINION STEEL BEAT HAMILTON

City League Champions Won Out in Thirteen Inning Encounter.

Thirteen innings of tight and hard fought baseball were required on Saturday afternoon to decide the supremacy between the Dominion Steel Products team of this city and the 20th Century Club of Hamilton, in which the home brews came out on the long end of a 3 to 2 score.

The locals fought an uphill battle after the visitors had scored once in the third and again in the fourth on poor plays and errors. The locals came through with the failures required in the sixth inning. Johnson, the first man at bat, singled; Doyle was safe on an error and Johnson scored. Eddie Sears singled and Doyle crossed the pan, tying the score. Sears was caught between first and second. Neither team could force over the winning run and the game was evenly contested and progressed until the thirteenth inning, both teams struggling hard to gain an advantage. In the last of the thirteenth, Venning doubled, his first hit of the game, and Eddie Sears knocked out the needed hit.

The visitors, after winning the championship of the Hamilton city league for the past two years, were unexpectedly beaten by the C.M.R. in their game of a week ago. They shaped up as a lively bunch and gave the D. S. P. a lively battle to pull victory out of the fire. The Brantford aggregation did not present their regular line up. Orcutt did not turn out and was replaced at second by Sears. Jimmy Bradley strengthened up the outfield, but otherwise the team took the field as usual.

Allen was the star of the locals, having sixteen strikeouts to his credit as compared with eight scalps hung up by Harvey Muir, who was well known to the fans. From his work here on the Brantford team in the early stages of the Canadian League.

Only two hundred spectators witnessed easily the best game of the season. Two hundred throats however, worked overtime cheering the D. S. P. up the stretch, and what the stands lacked in crowds they made up for in enthusiasm.

FALLEN HEROES HONORED AT WELLINGTON STREET CHURCH

Solemn Memorial Service Last Night in Memory of Three Young Men Who Have Given Their Lives For The Cause—Stirring Address by Rev. Dr. Henderson

"We are involved to-day in a struggle such as the world has never before known, the issues of which are beyond all human wisdom to forecast. Yet for this awful holocaust we are not responsible; nothing less than Britain demanded of Germany in 1914 could she have demanded and saved her honor; Britain, the protector of small nations went to the last step consistent with national respect in her efforts to avert the war. The most crushing indictment which today awaits the central Powers is the fact that over and over again they rejected all proposals toward a settlement of the European crisis.

In these words and like exhorting terms, the Rev. G. W. Henderson, pastor of Wellington Street Church, last evening flayed the ideals and barbarities of Germany and her allies in the present war, the ideals and the dominating ambition of the Kaiser and his cult for years past, the obsession largely German and wholly Prussian, which had for decades made world power the dream of that state.

Three Heroes

The occasion of such a masterly address as that delivered before a large congregation, was an impressive memorial service conducted for three members of the church who have laid down their lives upon the altar of the Empire, Pte. Melvin Binston, who died in a German prison camp, and Sergt. N. Dunningham and Lieut. A. A. Beckett killed in action, the former on the Somme in September of 1916, and the latter in the fighting for Hill 70 at Lens only last month. The church was filled to the doors, the Great War Veterans being present in a body, accompanied by the band of the Dufferin Rifles which paraded through the streets prior to and at the close of the service. Special musical numbers were rendered, and the service throughout was imbued with a spirit of solemnity eminently appropriate to the occasion.

Answered Duty's Call

In his opening remarks, the pastor, the Rev. G. W. Henderson, dwelt feelingly upon the upright Christian character of each of the three fallen heroes, young men all, who early in life embraced the church, and with the obedience engendered of true religion, had harkened to the call of duty when it sounded, and given their all for the cause of the empire. Their futures had been bright before them when they answered the summons, "yet," the speaker predicted, "their lives may be fuller and more glorious in their fruitage as it is, than had they lived." To the parents and relatives of the fallen young men, the church members tendered their heartfelt, profound, prayerful and Christian sympathy.

The Awful Toll

These three young men were but three of millions of the flower of many nations, who had made the supreme sacrifice, while millions more were shattered for life by the cruel

THE KING'S VISIT TO WOUND ED CANADIANS AT TAPLOW. The picture shows Mrs. Waldorf Astor acting as Guide to His Majesty on a tour of the grounds of the Astor Home at Cliveden, which has been turned into a Hospital for wounded blast of war. Still the awful struggle went on, every hour, every battle, exacting its bloody toll. The burden fell alike upon all classes, with its pressure of pain and heart-breaking agony. The cost was indeed appalling. The questions were asked, was it expedient, justifiable; was the cost too great.

German Ambition

Any who asked such queries, considered the speaker, were of one of two classes, either willfully ignorant or deliberately deluding themselves. He proceeded to outline the German ambition for the past forty years, the lust and longing for world power for a Germany controlled by Prussia, a Europe ruled by Germany and a world dominated by Europe. The German ambition longed to make itself the ruling element in the life of mankind, with other nations subservient to Germany, dependent upon her if they existed at all—the theory voiced by Bernhardi, apostle of the cult of Kultur.

The very teachings of this Kultur constituted in themselves the answer to the query as to our motives in the struggle; by the doctrine of German militarism, war was declared a biological necessity, a regulative element in the life of mankind. Prussia has long condoned war, it remained for Bernhardi blasphemously to glorify it, in his theory "war will sanctify any cause," while Treitschke went a step farther in declaring "war divine, majestic, a medicine for a sick world." It was such a doctrine as this which justified the invasion of Belgium, the violation of a sacred pledge on the barren excuse of "military expediency."

Allied Ideals

Against such a regime as this it was that Britain and her allies were fighting to-day, the speaker continued; the Canadian troops at the front were waging the battle of the Dominion in no less measure than if the Huns were upon our soil.

"If the Hindenburg line to-day is not stretched across this fair land of ours," he continued, "it is because our allies are holding it in France and Flanders. As it is our solemn duty to defend our own here, so we need compulsory military service in Canada, and the fault I have to find with the present conscription measure is that it was not enforced two years ago.

Continuing, Dr. Henderson laid stress upon the coincidence between the aims of the allies in the war and the ideals of true Christianity, the rights which, purchased by the blood of our fathers upon the fields of Europe must not be sold without the shedding of the blood of their sons. The sanctity of womanhood, the safety of children, the liberty of national independence, the majesty of righteousness; these were things worth fighting for, and the things for which the greater portion of the civilized world to-day was fighting.

L'Envoi

Turning to the question of peace, the speaker held out the hope for a peace obtainable through prayer, prayer wrung from all hearts, save those of stone; a peace of righteousness, not a peace at any price nor a peace to be made only with honor, or the sentiment which to-day must burn within the breast of every true patriot. Such a peace, the speaker saw in the offering as inevitable as sunrise after night. It may delay in coming, for the mills of the gods grind slowly, but exceedingly sure; momentary victory might mean temporary defeat; but ultimately there must come a peace lasting and permanent, given of God unto His people.

The Soldiers' Aid Commission was represented at the service by the chairman and the secretary, Ald. J. S. Dowling and Mr. Geo. A. MacDonald, respectively.

The National Chamber of Commerce at first asked the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to aid in establishing a credit for this purpose but the American organization was unable to do so. The Commission Regulating the Sale and Price of Sugar of Yucatan, one of the richest organizations in Mexico, then was appealed to, but declined to act.

Music and Drama

Robert Vignola, director for Pauline Frederick, Paramount star celebrated his birthday during a recent trip to Lake George where the exterior scenes of Miss Frederick's new Paramount picture "The Hungry Heart," were taken. Vignola was given a dinner at the home of his Hopkins who is now Mrs. Frank Gienzie, and a toy boat by William Mack. The busy director is now known by "The Hungry Heart" players as "The submarine" because of his diving proclivities and ability to be a mouce under water to the peace of mind of others swimming.

For one who has been in the pictures as long as Marguerite Clark, she shows a charming unsophistication about the mechanics of art. Miss Clark went to the first showing of her first star series picture, "The Amateur," last night. The photograph on the program showed her diving off a spring board and, by reversing the film showed them springing from the water and alighting on the board twenty-feet over the water. "That's a remarkable feat," said the diminutive Paramount star, quite seriously. "I don't know how they do it without hurting themselves when they hit the spring board on the jump."

Pauline Frederick has purchased another new car, for a change. This time it is a yellow Peerless roadster from the Grand Opera House. Her new looms from the centre like an oasis on a saffron island. Miss Frederick calls it "Buttercup" because of its cupidity and its butter color.

"THE LOVE OF A KING."

The brilliant young actor, Albert Brown, will play several runs on the ladder of fame this season in Paul Kester's romantic love story "The Love of a King" which will be presented at the Grand Opera House Tuesday evening, Sept. 18. No playwright of the present day, save perhaps, Louis H. Parker, has written a love story so full of dramatic interest, as has Mr. Kester. The romance of Princess Mary Tudor and Charles Brandon formed the theme of "When Knighthood was in Flower," and that of George II and Nell Gwynne, the basis of "Sweet Love of Old Drury." Another Royal romance is outlined in "The Love of a King," and now forgotten, though it was commonly known in the eighteenth century. Readers of Thackeray's "Four Georges" will find a passing allusion to the supposed early marriage of George II and the lovely Quakeress Hannah Lightfoot. This Mr. Kester has made the framework of a beautiful drama of woman's sacrifice and enduring love.

Apart from his blunders of statesmanship, George was known, boys and men, as one of the cleanest and most chivalrous of Princes, and this drama will do nothing to diminish his fame. The story begins as an ideal shoot, in a garden, where the Prince who has met with an accident in the hunting field, meets Lightfoot. As is customary with most ideal shoots, the Prince is an incognito, so that when the pair fall in love Hannah has no knowledge that he is the Heir apparent.

The scene shifts to the shop of Hannah's uncle in London, where the Prince presses his suit under an assumed name, with the thought of renouncing his claim to the throne in mind. A secret marriage takes place under dramatic circumstances and almost at the same moment the death of George II. calls George to his duty.

In the third act, which is laid at the quiet suburban home of the young couple, Hannah is still happily unconscious of her husband's rank; while George, living as a quiet country gentleman, is biding his time until he can proclaim her queen of England. Here the dominating mother of the King and her satellites, Bute, seek out the bride, and in a powerful appeal, the mother induces Hannah to leave George for the sake of England and of his own future. Hannah's act of renunciation makes a superb climax to the play and George's grief gives Mr. Brown a fine opportunity.

In the last act Hannah is back in the old garden but youth has fled. It is fifty years since her heroic fight from George, but she is not to die without once more looking on him, for fate brings the monarch, a half-blind pathetic old man, back to the scene of his first love, and here for a half hour they are united.

The playgoer will see Mr. Brown both as a princely lover and as a pathetic old man, while the role of Hannah, played by the brilliant young artist Lenore Phelps, makes equally severe demands. The production with Mr. Brown assures his friends, be worthy of the exalted quality of the play.

Mexico, Sept. 17.—The committee of the National Chamber of Commerce which has been considering ways and means for raising money to purchase 1,000,000 bushels of corn in the United States and bring it to Mexico, where it will be sold at cost for the benefit of the poor has decided that the most feasible means to raise the money is by popular national subscription.

The National Chamber of Commerce at first asked the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to aid in establishing a credit for this purpose but the American organization was unable to do so. The Commission Regulating the Sale and Price of Sugar of Yucatan, one of the richest organizations in Mexico, then was appealed to, but declined to act.

It was so late," she explained didn't think it possible that anybody else about.

"Of course you didn't! The tone was saturated with humor. "On the other hand, soon discovered your mistake!"

Sally muttered a sullen "You're wise not to lie," her patroness remarked with suspicion of satisfaction. "You see, I've been sitting here, the better part of an evening to you two bickering the hedge. You little fool!"

Sally said nothing. Her mind all obsessed now with the thought that this was the end of her moths. An end to everything morning and she must be cast in disgrace, to go back to the shack on an impromptu morning, and dug nails into the of her hands.

"Who was the man?" Mrs. Standish pursued inexorably.

"Then she didn't know!"

"Does it matter?" Sally asked. "Certainly I insist upon it. Remember your position here. I have assumed responsibility for you; but I cannot permit you to make me answerable for the antics of a man crazy woman can't behave herself and from annoying my aunt's guests."

"I thought you were that!"

"You didn't think I expected else, did you?"

"Who was the man you met there?"

"The calculated offensiveness this was balanced by its revelation of Sally's mind of that Mrs. Standish didn't know had been two men. It ever true that the window command a view of the apartment side door."

"Are you going to tell me?"

"Please, Mrs. Standish, I don't."

"Think again, my girl, forget the circumstances which I was persuaded a better judgment, to introduce here."

"What do you mean?"

"Have you forgotten you caught in the act of burglary house?—that I first saw you in your clothes stolen from me?—a sorry, but how do I know?"

"You may well have accomplished the ruffian I killed my brother!"

"That's hardly likely, it's how am I to judge?"

"Have quarreled and turned revenge. Judged by you here? I'm sure you're capable of anything. Or you may have seen a way to win great by aiding my brother."

"That's all nonsense," Sally said hotly, "and you know it."

If dismissal from Goswami were inevitable, then there remained why she should not soul her own.

A pause was filled by the effect of Mrs. Standish's lying her temper in leash.

"When are you going my question?"

"Sally was dumb."

"Was it—that man you there to meet?"

"I didn't go to meet a was an accident."

"So you say. Was it no guests here?"

Silence was all the answer. "If you persist in your attitude, remembering your history, I have every right for granted you went to a complice in crime."

"Oh no!" Sally interjected patiently.

And then, encouraged, looseness of her audacity, temper run away with her stant.

"All that's no good," she forcibly, "and you know mean to speak to Mrs. Goswami in the morning, an went away merely because an unpleasant experience to discuss it with anyone of your affair—what stop you. But I'm not a scullion and browbeaten, certainly not going to humiliate myself about my private And that's flat. Now run on me, if you really must."

"Oh—indeed?" Mrs. Standish said with vast dignity. "And I, if you please?"

"Because you won't discuss insurance money, for on "So you think you can't?"

"Can't it anything you flushed defiantly. "Only mind, I'm not going to stily and be sent away in dish a kitchen-maid? I'll so, if you don't need to worry—but I'll go on my own you tell on me, I'll tell I'll tell everything I know."

"And what, please," do you know?"

"What about your signature just now?"

It was shot at a venture no real knowledge that window had been that of dish bedroom; but it was sible and she chanced it, though she was not yet that with any certainty.

"What are you talking Mrs. Standish hesitated on the door-knob.

An Outsider

(By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE)

It was so late," she explained, "I didn't think it possible there'd be anybody else about."
"Of course you didn't. The woman's tone was saturated with hateful languor. "On the other hand, you soon discovered your mistake, didn't you?"
Sally muttered a sullen "Yes."
"You're wise not to lie to me," her patroness remarked with just a suspicion of satisfaction. "I knew you see. I've been sitting here, waiting, the better part of an hour, listening to you two bickering behind the hedge. You little fool!"
Sally said nothing. Her mood was all obsessed now with the conviction that this was the end of her life of a moth. An end to everything; come morning and she must be cast forth in disgrace, to go back to—
She choked upon an importunate sob and dug nails into the palms of her hands.
"Who was the man?" Mrs. Standish pursued inexorably.
"Then she didn't know!"
"Does it matter?" Sally fenced.
"Certainly I insist upon knowing. Remember your position here and mine. I have assumed responsibility for you; but I cannot permit you to make me answerable for the antics of a mad crazy woman. If you can't behave yourself and refrain from annoying my aunt's guests, you must go. I thought you understood that!"
"You didn't think I expected anything else, did you?"
"Who was the man you followed out there?"
"The calculated offensiveness of this was balanced by its sudden revelation of Sally's mind of the fact that Mrs. Standish didn't know there had been two men. It was, however true that the window did not command a view of the approach to the side door.
"Are you going to tell me?"
"Please, Mrs. Standish, I'd rather not."
"Think again, my girl, and don't forget the circumstances under which I was persuaded against by better judgment, to introduce you here."
"What do you mean?"
"Have you forgotten you were caught in the act of burglarizing my house?—that I first saw you wearing clothes stolen from me? You told a story, but how do I know it was true? You may well have been an accomplice of the ruffian who nearly killed my brother!"
"That's hardly likely, it is?"
"How am I to judge? You may have quarreled and turned on him in revenge. Judged by your conduct here I'm sure you're capable of anything. Or you may have thought you saw a way to win greater profit by aiding my brother."
"That's all nonsense" Sally retorted hotly, "and you know it."
If dismissal from Gosnold House were inevitable, then there was no reason why she should not call her soul her own.
A pause was filled by the dramatic effect of Mrs. Standish nobly holding her temper in leash.
"When are you going to answer my question?"
Sally was dumb.
"Was it—that man you went out there to meet?"
"I didn't go to meet anybody. It was an accident."
"So you say. Was it some of the guests here?"
Silence was all the answer.
"If you persist in your present attitude, remembering your dramatic history, I have every right to take it for granted you went to meet an accomplice in crime."
"Oh rot!" Sally interjected impatiently.
And then, encouraged by consciousness of her audacity, she let her temper run away with her for an instant.
"All that's no good," she declared forcibly, "and you know it. If you mean to speak to Mrs. Gosnold about me in the morning, and have me sent away merely, because I've had an unpleasant experience and refuse to discuss it with you—when it's none of your affair—why, I can't stop you. But I'm not a child to be bullied and browbeaten, and I'm certainly not going to humiliate my curiosity about my private business. And that's flat. Now run and tell on me, if you really must—but you won't."
"Oh—indeed?" Mrs. Standish rose with vast dignity. "And why won't you please?"
"Because you won't dare risk that insurance money, for one thing."
"So you think you can blackmail—"
"Call it anything you like," Sally flashed defiantly. "Only bear in mind, I'm not going to submit tamely and be sent away in disgrace, like a kitchen-maid. I'll go, right enough, if you don't need to worry about that—but I'll go on my own excuse. If you tell on me, I'll tell on you, and I'll tell everything I know, too."
"And what, please," the woman purred dangerously, "do you think you know?"
"What about your signaling that yacht just now?"
It was shot at a venture; she had no real knowledge that the lighted window had been that of Mrs. Standish's bedroom, but it was just possible and she chanced it, and it told, though she was not yet to know that with any certainty.
"What are you talking about?" Mrs. Standish hesitated with a hand on the door-knob.
"You know well enough. I saw what I saw. People don't do things like that unless there's something

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH YOUNG CAMERON

Too Confound
The other day I wrote about the person who always regrets any choice as soon as it is made and feels certain that he should have liked the other road better.
At the other end of the temperamental scale is the person who always feels that what he has done was the right and wisest thing.
The Other Lot Became Sour Grapes
For instance, a friend of mine built a house in the West part of a certain suburb. He wanted to get a lot on the eastern side but the price was too high and so he took the other. He was showing me his place the other day and he said, "I am so glad you didn't get that other lot, the one we wanted. You know its much quieter here. There's a lot of traffic down that street. I don't believe we would have liked it at all."
That is the way he always feels about any choice he makes—the thing he didn't take probably wasn't worth having anyway.
There are lots of people like that. And there always have been. We have good reason to know that they existed at least as far back as Aesop's time.
At the same time, accidents do happen and it's true you have rights of privacy that even I must respect—to whom you owe a great deal, you must admit. And now I think I've gone as far toward making amends as even you could ask.
Astonishment and incredulity yielded to penitence. Sally sat up with a little gesture of contrition and appeal—an outflung hand instantly withdrawn. This was not a woman whose susceptibilities were to be touched by such means; even now, beneath her ostensible generosity one divined a nature cold and little placable.
Then with a remorseful cry, "Oh, I'm sorry!" the girl yielded to the tension of overwrought nerves and broke down completely, crushed, confounded, shaken by spasms of silent sobbing.
In the course of this she was con-

out of bed and brought me here this morning."
"I don't understand."
"Of course you don't. But it has been on my nerves all evening, until I felt as if I must talk to somebody and you are the only one I can trust."
Sally stared in a state of dumb bewilderment that eclipsed all she had experienced before. Truly the world was topsy-turvy this madcap night! What under the moon now?
"You know how worried I've been about that affair in town. Men are so inconsiderate; simply because he knew how things were going—and I presumed they must have been going well—Walter left me without a word till this evening. Then he telegraphed he'd be here to-morrow afternoon and that everything was all right; but that he is bringing with him one of the adjusters for the burglar-insurance people—a detective. I presume, the man is a really—and I'll have to answer some questions before we can collect the money to cover my loss."
"A detective!"
"Adjuster is a much more pleasant name. And I know it's merely a matter of formality, and I oughtn't to be silly about it, but I can't help it. I've been on edge ever since, fretting for fear something would come out about that case that Walter did bring me from the safe, you remember. If that were found—as it might be, if they ask me to produce what jewelry I have with me—well, I simply can't think what to do."
"Why not hide the case?"
"That's just it. But where? I can't imagine. Of course I can't very well smuggle it out of the house myself. So I thought perhaps you—"
At any rate, I've brought it to you."
"To me?"
"Don't be alarmed. Nobody will ever suspect you of any connection whatever with the affair. It'll be perfectly safe here, in your keeping, until you find a way to dispose of it. To-morrow night, for instance, as soon as it's dark, you might take it down to the shore, put a stone in it, and throw it out into the water. Or bury it in the sand. Anything. Nobody will pay any attention if you excuse yourself to go to your room or out to the terrace for half an hour. But I'll wait, you must see. I've hidden the case under your pillow. You may find some better place for it—but then, you haven't a mask to hoodwink. I declare it has nearly driven me mad; these last few

The lady with the duster wears that contented smile because she knows that she does not have to worry about such things as rolling her dress while doing housework, for her apron covers a multitude. No. 8419 is one of those easy-to-get-into aprons which every housewife loves. It slips on over the head and there is not much more to the back of it than a sailor collar. The neck is shaped at the front and the edges turned back and bound, forming tiny ruffles. The apron ties at the back with narrow tape. Convenient patch pockets featuring the never effect are attached to the front.
The apron pattern, No. 8419, is cut in sizes 36, 40 and 44 inches bust measure. The 36 inch size requires 2 1/2 yards of 30 inch material, with 1/2 yard of bias seam binding.

GUELPH RUGBY

(Guelph Mercury) intends to live up to its football tradition, so that the Hamilton cup will remain resting on its accustomed pedestal in the leisurely main hall of the institution for another year has been evidenced by the large "turn-out" of determined young fellows at the football practices on the campus the last few evenings.

Headed by Coach Hooper, who last year coached an almost impossible feat team to a fighting championship the "fellows" are throwing themselves into the game with a vim and a zest that promises to give another championship team to the "school."

Mr. Harry Smith of McGill University has been assisting Coach Hooper and is very enthusiastic over the boys' "game."

Of last year's colors Numan, Whiteside, Purcell, Cockburn and A. Carroll, who is this year's captain, are left. They are all "up to their eyes" and looking forward to "taking a crack" at the ex-students possibly in the early part of next week. From last year's second's, Sleeman, Smith, Greenman, Wilkinson, Pennequin, Charlesworth, Voss, McNally, Dryden, Newstead, Whitehead and F. Carroll are all out fighting hard for places.

And from appearances Coach Hooper and Captain Carroll are going to have quite a time in arranging positions. Five new and promising players now appear in Buckland, Brune, Graven, McInven and Hayes, the latter last year with St. Jerome's. There is some foundation, too, for the hope that Zieman and Martin, two of last year's colors, will return this year.

The rugby football teams of the Guelph Collegiate Institute have earned a place in the hearts of all lovers of the game. They are a credit to the school and Coach Hooper has the enthusiastic wishes of a host of supporters.

HOW JIMMY CHIPMUNK MADE FRIENDS WITH THE CHICKENS

Every time Jimmy Chipmunk went into the chicken yard the hens made such a loud noise with their cackling that Fido would run from the house and chase Jimmy back to his home under the stone wall.

This made Jimmy Chipmunk very sad, for he loved to visit the chicken yard, because he often picked up stray grains of corn, and then, too, when Jimmy couldn't find water to drink anywhere else he generally found their water can full. Sometimes he'd slip in when they were out and quench his thirst.

One day the sun had been very hot so Jimmy didn't venture out until sundown. He was hungry and wanted to drink very badly so he ran to the hazel bush and cracked some nuts.

"I'll just run over and see if I can get some water from the water can," he thought. Jimmy saw the water can and he ran to it. He was just about to take a drink when he saw the water can was empty. He was disappointed and he ran to the hazel bush and cracked some nuts.

He ran toward the barnyard, hoping that the chickens would all be in bed. He was disappointed however, for Red Rooster sat with his feet tucked under him near the gate. Yellow Hen stood looking into the water can.

"Please, may I have a drink?" he cried.

"No!" screamed Yellow Hen. "There's hardly enough for us."

"But I'm so very thirsty," Jimmy begged.

"So are we, but the water in the can is so low that we can't reach it," said Red Rooster.

Jimmy ran over and pecked into the can. There was only a little water in the bottom.

"I've had it!" exclaimed Jimmy, delighted with an idea.

He ran out of the chicken yard and over to the hazelnut bushes, soon returning with a nut in his mouth, which he dropped into the water can.

"He's spoiling it!" cried Yellow Hen, and all the hens began to cackle loudly.

"Here, don't do that or Fido will chase me and then none of us will get a drink!" exclaimed Jimmy.

So Red Rooster silenced his flock and Jimmy had his way. He ran back and forth from the hazelnut bushes to the water can, each time dropping in a nut until at last the water was raised to the top of the can. For you see, the nuts took up space—just as your hands do when they make the water in the wash bowl rise when you put them in.

The hens made a wild rush toward the can, but Red Rooster called them back.

"Jimmy Chipmunk is our guest, so he drinks first."

The hens ashamed of themselves for their selfish hate, fell back of their leader, until Jimmy drank all the water he wanted.

"Any time you want water after this, remember you may share ours. For if it hadn't been for you we would have gone to bed thirsty. Am I not right, comrades?" cried Red Rooster, and his flock cackled their assent.

Jimmy Chipmunk thanked them and quickly ran home. He was very happy to think that he had at last made friends with Red Rooster and his flock, and most any day, if you go to that particular barnyard, you may see Jimmy and his friends.

AT ALL STAGES OF LIFE

The Woman's Medicine, Good for All Ages. Mrs. Harold Smith's Experience.

Clarksburg, W. Va.—"I am writing to tell you the good your medicine has always done me and I hope my letter may be the means of helping some other suffering woman. When I was 16 years old I caught cold and had suppression for two months. I got so weak I could scarcely drag myself up the stairs. I went to two doctors, then my mother got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it. I never had any more trouble and got strong fast. Then I took it again before my little girl was born and it helped me a good deal and I give the Compound the credit for it. Then this spring I felt very weak again, but I took the Compound and have been well all summer. I cannot be grateful enough for your medicine."—Mrs. HAROLD M. SMITH, 470 Water Street, Clarksburg, W. Va.

For forty years it has been making women strong and well, and curing backache, nervousness, uterine and ovarian inflammation, weakness, displacements, irregularity and periodic pains.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN HOUSES

The sole head of a family, or any male over 25 years old who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $100 per acre. This residue six months in each of three years after entry. Settler must cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption price on such a section on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot secure a pre-empted section, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $500 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years. Settler must erect a house worth $500.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm labourers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day preference in applying for entry at local Agency Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agency.

W. W. COBY, District Minister of the Interior, N.W.—Discharge of the Interior. Advertisement will not be paid for.

joy and his mighty club, backed up by a composite baseball club of plucky players captured the 1917 pennant, and Larry, celebrating his 23rd year in baseball and his first year as a minor league manager, had the double fortune to be on a winning team. It seemed as if his gigantic efforts in former years were always frustrated, for at no time did the teams he was playing for land on top at the end of the playing season, but it was not until Larry came to Toronto that his hopes were realized. Many games has Lajoie won this year with his terrific and timely hitting, but there were none appreciated so much as when he came through with the double in the second game and sept. two runners across in front of him, winning the game. And the Toronto manager was
