Mother Nanett's Sacrifice. "Is it still so, Mother Nanette?" "Mother Nanette span, as was her custom, before the door. With one movement of her nimble old fingers she seized her fast revolving spindle.

Antoine Honlin, whom everybody in the village called Toinechon, approached with melancholy face and admired the wonderful silver tresses showing under the hood which the old woman wore.

Mother Nanette, you do wrong to reject my offer. You have a small fortune there on your head, or light hair one can find more than one wants, but such abundant, soft, white hair as yours—that is a rarity indeed!

"One grand thing I should keep this rarity," replied Mother Nanette, languidly. "By no means," interrupted the tempter. "You are allowing a fine opportunity to escape you."

"See, I have offered you 150 francs. I will add 50 more—200 francs. That is a sum. So much no one else will give."

"No, the affair is settled. Give me your word on it." He extended his hand, but instead of offering hers, Mother Nanette proudly stroked the beautiful white ornament of her old age.

"Not for a thousand, young man. You don't know how I pride myself on my snowy hair, and what pleasure it gives me when people admire it. The Mayor said one day: 'Your white hairs, Mother Nanette, are the witness and crown of your honest life.'"

"And it is true." The hair dealer shrugged his shoulders. "More talk. The gold would serve you well in your circumstances. Without it you may suffer. Every one knows that you are not rich, Mother Tantie."

"On the lips of the old woman appeared a smile of silent pride. 'One is always rich enough when one can work; I earn my bread by spinning. Besides, my grandson Jean found a good place in Paris. When he has saved some money he will come back again. We will buy a piece of ground and then so one could need more. Leave me in peace, Toinechon.'"

"With stubborn tenacity he continued. 'But you might get sick. What would become of you then? It might be a long time before you could get on your feet again.'"

Had Not Strength To Do His Work. Was laid up for a month and suffered greatly but cure came with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

While Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is extraordinary as a system builder it is only slightly laxative and persons inclined to constipation and liver or kidney disorders obtain the best results by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills at the same time, taking one pill at a dose as often as required to keep the bowels active.

ME. FREDERICK WHITAKER, 606 Queen's Avenue, London, Ont., writes: "I used many boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and the three of his Kidney-Liver Pills for a run-down system and now feel like a new man in every way. Before beginning this treatment I had been laid up for a month, as I had not the strength to stand up at my work on machines and suffered much from headache, stomach troubles and pains in my legs."

"If I ever get run down in health again I shall not be long in trying these medicines, for I have proven their excellence to me as a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 25 cents a box. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, 25 cents a box, at all druggists. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. Apply to C. S. STEWART.

So simple to lay the two hundred francs aside, and who will know you have sold your hair when you wear a hood?"

Impatiently she looked at him. "So your way, I must despise myself if I listen to you. Nevertheless, I believe I should die of sorrow if my hair were cut off. No word more on the subject."

"As you will," he said at last; but remember, I place 200 francs at your disposal."

She withdrew, turned around after some steps, and said, holding one finger in the air: "Two hundred francs; think of it!"

The old woman made a gesture of reverence and the hair dealer disappeared at the corner of the street.

This conversation had taken place on a Sunday afternoon, and as she had been accustomed for twenty years to Mother Nanette went to deliver to the tenant's wife the flax carried away during the week, receiving for it the customary pay—a large loaf of bread and a modest silver coin.

Nimble and joyous, the old woman returned home by nightfall, the bread under her arm and the coin in the pocket of her black apron. In spite of her seventy years she still walked vigorously. Nearing the threshold of her door, she noticed her neighbor, Mariette Dostil, the shoemaker's wife who wanted to give her a letter which the postman had brought in her absence. A pleasant smile gleamed over the fresh and cheerful face of the old woman.

"The letter is from my grandson, Jean Tantie."

"The neighbor shook her head. 'I do not know,' she said. 'I do not recognize his hand writing—and then would Jean himself have made a mistake in the address? But see it is so illegible that the letter was sent different places before it reached here.'"

Thereupon she extended the envelope. The old woman became pale; her limbs trembled, and she said anxiously: "Still, Mariette, it is from Jean. Who else could write to me? I have nothing to expect from any one else in the world. But he can do no more than write his grandmother's name and his village, he must be very sick, my child, all that remains to me on earth. Read quickly, Mariette."

Both women stepped into the shoemaker's house and mother Nanette sank exhausted on a chair. Now the neighbor who served as secretary for the old woman, who could neither read nor write, deciphered with pains the trembling letters, the short, loosely strangled sentences of the letter, which was as follows: "My Dear Old Grandmother.—We were too happy; it could not last long. I have found a good place, would soon have come back to you again, and we would have been separated no more."

"But it was too hard. You don't know how hard it is to work in Paris always steps up and steps down. 'When the day ends one has scarcely any more limbs, and one's head swims. I would have done better to come home; there was some air.'"

"I am writing all this to you to say that I am sick. The doctor believes it is over exertion and homesickness. Ah, yes, that is it. 'I would have loved to see the old village and you, grandmother, again. And now it is perhaps impossible. 'My master could not keep me. He sent me to the hospital, and the head physician, an old man who appears right good hearted and wears a red tassel, shakes his head when he sees me—and he is never mistaken.'"

"Therefore, dear grandmother, I say farewell to you. It is had to have to lie without your embrace, yet we are too poor for you to come. In this letter you may see that your child thought of you up to the last moment. Your own loving grandson. 'JEAN TANTIA.'"

"Hospital of Charity, Paris. The grandmother sat in her chair, immovable as if petrified. She did not cry. One cannot cry when such deep pain paralyzes all the strength of body and soul."

"Was it possible? Her grandson Jean, all that remained of her family, all that she loved in the world, to die far from her in the great city? To die in a hospital, without one kiss, one last blessing? No, no that was a horrible dream."

She knew nothing more, and the thoughts whirled in her saddened brain. But, suddenly she rose and ran into her house like a wounded animal that flees to its hole. In feverish haste, without clearly knowing what she did, Mother Nanette had thrown the few pieces of paper on the table, her entire means, kept until now in a secret hiding place. Her eyes rested motionless on these petty savings. She said to herself, with despair, that it would not pay for her journey to Paris. Ah, yes, she was poor, too poor to embrace her dying child! And for the first time the diligent worker exhaled her poverty. Many years ago the journey by railroad from this village to Paris cost thirty francs. Thirty francs! An unheard-of sum for an old woman who earned by spinning, scarcely a franc a week. Where should she get thirty francs, the immediate possession of which was now her only object in life?

Who in the town was generous enough to loan her—the poor spinner? Thirty francs she must have and she would serve the giver to the end of her days.

The old woman pressed her worn fingers upon her white forehead for her Jean lay dying, and the dying have no time to wait. By this movement she pressed the thick, snowy tresses, and suddenly rose before her the joking face of the hair dealer.

"Keep 200 francs to your order—think of that."

Mother Nanette rushed out. Only stopping to close the door, she ran across the street. She felt no fatigue, she only knew that her child, her Jean, lay dying in a Paris hospital and she must hasten to him at any cost.

Antoine Honlin was reading at the table and looked astonished when the old woman entered. "Two hundred francs, you said, it is not true?" she cried breathlessly. "Yes, yes," he replied quickly without rightly understanding.

"With hasty movements the old woman tore off her hood. 'Be quick.' Honlin wished nothing better, for he feared the old woman might change her mind. Over her trembling shoulders fell the wonderful silver hair, the precious ornament of her old age and her former pride!

"The shears cut through the white mass and Mother, Nanette could not hold a shiver as the cold instrument touched her. Tears flowed slowly down her cheeks, which the sudden storm of sorrow had paled."

She then shrugged her shoulders. What did the hair matter? Anything to give pleasure to a loved child. "So, Mother Nanette," declared the dealer, laughing, "now we are one will notice anything."

She put the hood on her head. "And the money?" she cried quickly. "The man counted out the six gold pieces."

"Now, who was right?" he laughed. "See, Mother Nanette, one should foretell nothing." She said nothing and hurried away as she had come, with her trembling fingers eagerly grasping the money.

Without other baggage than the indispensable basket which the peasant carries, without changing her clothing, Mother Nanette hastened toward the station and travelled the whole night to Paris.

On Monday noon she stepped out of the train at the station, and confused by the stream of travellers, made her way into the street. Worn out by the exertion and her tears she stood by the baggage room and knew not which way to turn. She was like a poor lost dog hidden in a corner.

But suddenly she recollected herself and gathered courage. She did not waste a moment for Jean lay dying, and she must go to him in time. A baggage man went by and she asked him: "Ah, please, where is the Charity Hospital?"

"He threw a curious look on her picturesque costume. 'That is far, little mother; you would never find it; the best way is to take a cab.'"

"Very well; then wait." He signed to a driver. "Drive this poor woman to the Charity Hospital." "That will be thirty-five francs," said the driver.

Mother Nanette gave him two francs and begged, "Be quick." Some minutes later the cabman set her down at the hospital, that she saw with beating heart. Would she find her child still living. A man wearing a uniform stopped her when she tried to enter. "You must come later; this is not the visiting hour."

"Have pity, sir, I have come from my village—it is so far. I have travelled the whole night because my lad lies dying and I have only him."

The man looked at her and was touched by the old face on which was painted such very great anxiety. "Very well," he said in gentler tones. "Go to the right."

A young man wearing a doctor's apron passed near her and timidly she asked where was Jean Tantie. The intelligent face of the young man brightened. "Jean Tantie? Ah, yes; No. 22; that is my room. I take care of him. Are you indeed his grandmother?" Agitation choked the old woman. She nodded affirmatively.

"Ah, the poor young man," continued the physician joyfully, "that will do him more good than all the prescriptions of all the celebrated physicians. He had not hoped that you would be able to come. Follow me, but softly, he is sleeping. That will be a beautiful awakening when he sees his old grandmother. I believe he will soon get well now."

With hearty, comforting words he led the old woman to the bed of her grandchild, and Mother Nanette, who until now had scarcely wept, felt her drops moisten her eyes. Softly the physician drew the curtain aside and the old woman saw a thin face with closed eyes nearly as white as the bed cover.

"That was her Jean, her beautiful, strong young man, who when he left her was strong as an oak. Suddenly the sick one awoke, opened his eyes and believed it was a dream when he saw the dearly loved one."

"No, no; it is not a dream," declared the physician; "it is your grandmother. Now, good woman, embrace the young man, but do not talk. I shall sit by the door."

The grandmother no longer felt the tears which ran down her cheeks; she bent and pressed her trembling lips on the thin face while two thin arms clasped her neck and a trembling voice, which appeared to come from a distance, stammered, "Grandmother! ah! Grandmother!"

"How did you manage to come here grandmother?" asked the sick one, later. "The old woman opened the basket and showed the gold in her open hand, while Jean laughed delightedly. "That is all right," said the physician, "with that you can take him home. Keep quiet now; I am responsible for his recovery!" Then he withdrew on tiptoe, while Jean fell back in happy slumber.

But Mother Nanette remained sitting at the head of the bed, her basket on her knees, and blessed the offering to which she owed the life of her loved grandchild.—Evening Sun, New York.

Baby's Danger. The summer months are a bad time for babies, and an anxious time for mothers. Fermentation and decomposition in the stomach and bowels are the cause of the many summer complaints of babies and young children. This is the reason why the hot weather months are more fatal to little ones than any other season.

Baby's Own Tablets should always be found in every home, where there are young children and their prompt use during hot weather may save a precious little life. The tablets cure constipation, diarrhoea, and stomach troubles and are guaranteed to contain no opiate or harmful drug. Mrs. Walter Rollins, Sissons Ridge, N. S., says:—

"Before using Baby's Own Tablets my little one cried almost continuously with stomach troubles. I can truthfully say I never had any medicine act so promptly and give such satisfaction as the tablets do. I do not think you make any claim for them which their use will not substantiate." The tablets can be had from any medicine dealer or by mail from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Price 25 cents a box.

Government Aid to Horse Breeding. AN OUTLINE OF THE IRISH SYSTEM. In the year 1900 the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland devised a scheme for encouraging the improvement in the breed of live stock, particularly of horses and cattle, in that country.

An outline of the Irish system may be of interest to Canadian horsemen, who have for some time been discussing the problem of obtaining for service throughout the country a sufficient number of sound well-bred stallions of the most profitable types.

GENERAL OBJECTS. In formulating their live stock schemes, the Department's main object was to promote improvement in the breeds of the country by encouraging private enterprise in the breeding of pure-bred animals and in the introduction of new sires, and to do this in such a way that the accompanying advantages should be principally secured for the smaller farmers. Since interests of national importance were at stake—such, for example, as the maintenance of the high reputation of Irish horses, the improvement of the feeding qualities of the store cattle, and the milking properties of dairy cows—and as these interests require that the stock of the country should be considered as a whole, and should not, in public schemes for its improvement be attacked by the introduction of strains likely to have injurious general effects on the national breeds, it was necessary that these schemes should contain certain principles of uniform application to the whole country. It was, therefore, necessary that the live stock schemes should emanate from the central authority, while in particulars other than their national features, they might be modified in accordance with local opinions and circumstances. In order to have the assistance of the most representative expert opinion in Ireland in the formulation of these schemes, the Government appointed two special advisory committees—one for horses, and the other for cattle, sheep and swine.

HORSE BREEDING SCHEMES. The horse breeding scheme as outlined by the advisory committee and approved by the Agricultural Board, provides for the registration of suitable and sound thoroughbred and agricultural sires, and the selection of a number of the best brood mares in each county to be served by these sires. The owner of a registered stallion is entitled, under the scheme, to a fee of £3 for each selected mare put to his stallion. The mares selected were the property of persons deriving their means from farming, whose valuation did not exceed in the poorer counties £150, and in the more wealthy counties £200.

The first year 410 stallions were offered for registration, of which 298 were thoroughbred and 112 of the agricultural type. From the agricultural type, 1800 free nomination tickets of 3 pounds each were offered at 150 shows of mares held during March and April, and nearly 1700 of these tickets were issued.

In addition to subsidizing stallions by means of £3 nominations to mares, the Department offered in a few counties, where there was an insufficient number of stallions for the purposes of the scheme, premiums varying from £50 to £100.

LOANS FOR THE PURCHASE OF STALLIONS. In order to encourage farmers of small means to provide themselves with a registered stallion, a sum of money was allotted by the Department for the purpose of granting loans for the purchase of approved sires. The money was lent at 4 1/2 per cent interest, payable in five annual instalments. It was a condition precedent to these loans that the animal should be insured for its full market value.

PREMIUMS FOR FEMALE STOCK. As a further means of encouraging improvement in stock breeding, the Department adopted the principle of awarding premiums and prizes to female stock. The advisory committee on horse breeding pointed out that that industry in Ireland is, to a great extent, injured by young mares being sold out of the country, thus leaving only second class animals for breeding purposes, and the Department adopted their recommendation that the prizes and premiums should be mainly confined to young mares from two to six years old, served by a registered sire, in the hope that the animals would thereby be induced to retain these mares.

YOUNG VEHICLES. W. A. CLEMONS, Publication Clerk.

Rich Color and Soft Skin. May be imitated, but beauty is more than skin deep—it is hidden in the blood. Eliminate the poisonous products of indigestion by Ferronose and complexion rapidly improves. Increase the red coloring matter in the blood, give it more nutrition and more red cells, do this and cosmetics will be too quickly. Give up cosmetics, they will not be needed. Use Ferronose and have your complexion firmly established. There isn't a case of blotched skin, poor complexion or lack of color that can't be quickly remedied by Ferronose. Try it. Price 50c.

Disease takes no summer vacation. If you need flesh and strength use Scott's Emulsion summer as in winter.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 29, 1904

With the advent of the summer visitors becomes apparent again the nuisance at the railway station of the ubiquitous ransers of the various hotels and through the carriages, much to the annoyance of travellers and the disgust of onlookers. Some return should be made at once, so as to enable travellers an opportunity to get on and off trains without being pestered as at present. THE ACADIAN as before referred to the matter, and makes a further protest in the interest of visitors and citizens alike.

Town Council Meeting.

A special meeting of the Council was held on Friday evening, with the Mayor, Couns. Black, Lawrence, Tingley, Duncanson and Fitch and the Recorder present.

The matter of the police service of the town was referred to by the Mayor and discussed by the Councillors present. Complaint was made that the duties of the policeman in many directions were being neglected, while on the other hand some of the members of the Board claimed the real cause of the trouble to be that the policeman had not the moral support of the citizens in his work.

Stipendiary Crawley gave it as his opinion that too many duties were imposed upon the policeman, which prevented him from performing much of the work which rightfully belonged to the office.

One of the complaints made against the policeman was that he had refused to be sworn in as Health Inspector for this year. The stipendiary stated that as Mr Hampshire had filled, the office last year he was exempt from further service.

After some further discussion Coun. Fitch was appointed a committee to confer with the Health Officer and make a nomination for the office of Health Inspector at the next meeting.

Coun. Lawrence, chairman of the Water Committee, reported that the committee had been unable to make a satisfactory agreement for the boring of a well at the reservoir, and the matter was allowed to drop.

Coun. Duncanson, chairman of the Streets Committee, reported that he had visited the parties in possession of the land at Mad Bridge required for widening Main street at that point, and found that while Mr West was willing to enter into arrangements with the town, Mr Kelly was unwilling to acknowledge the right of the town in the property.

The committee appointed at the last meeting to propose names for the appointment of an arbitrator in the matter of the appropriation of land at the eastern outlet of the reservoir, submitted the names of R. E. Harris and J. F. Herbin. On motion R. E. Harris was elected.

A letter was read from the secretary of the Nova Scotia Board of Fire Underwriters dated July 15th, stating that information had been received by the Board that owing to a scarcity of water it had been found necessary to turn off the lower supply on the Sunday and Monday previous, and in case of fire starting there was no water to be had on those days; and asking what was being done to remedy the difficulty.

The Mayor stated that on receipt of this letter a reply had been forwarded to the effect that the water had not been turned off as stated and asking the source of the information given. No reply had so far been received. Considerable discussion took place concerning the water supply looking to the increase of the supply, the addition of another reservoir for storage purposes, &c. On motion it was decided that the water gauge be placed in the store of Mr J. F. Herbin, providing he is willing to have it there.

Resolved that the Water Committee be asked to take immediate steps to properly fence the reservoir grounds, such fence to be such as to exclude all animals.

The matter of the unsanitary condition of the D. A. R. premises here was again brought up and after discussion it was resolved that the Health Officer be requested to notify the management that unless some action is taken at once to have the premises put in a sanitary condition legal steps will be taken to abate the nuisance.

A Remarkable Offer.

A CLIPPING FROM THIS PAPER IS AS GOOD AS A FIVE DOLLAR BILL.

The Wolfville Clothing Company, in celebration of the completion of ten years of good work in this county, is making a remarkable offer to customers in this week's issue of THE ACADIAN.

In its advertisement on page 3 of this paper is a coupon. Any reader of THE ACADIAN who will clip the coupon, and present it to the Wolfville Clothing Company during the month of August will have it accepted as the equivalent of a five dollar bill in part payment of any suit of clothes or overcoat ordered from its stock between August 1st and August 31st, inclusive. This unique and attractive offer will positively only hold good for 31 days.

The sterling reputation established by the Wolfville Clothing Company during its ten years of existence, together with this fascinating offer, should make the month of August the busiest of its successful history. The addition of a new expert tailor to the company's staff insures customers of good work abundantly while the reputation of the Company guarantees thorough satisfaction in material, style and fit. Such an offer by such a reputable firm should not be missed.

Obituary.

Isabella, wife of John B. Best, and daughter of the late Oliver and Isabella Woodworth, of Canning, died suddenly at her residence, Brooklyn Street, on Wednesday morning, July 28th, aged 70 years. For more than a year Mrs Best had been in failing health, but death came as a great shock to her family, the immediate cause being cerebral hemorrhage. While taking a cup of tea at breakfast she fell back in her chair and went out without a moment of suffering. Her influence will never be forgotten, for her life had been devoted to her husband and children. In her girlhood she was always one of the brightest pupils in her Sunday School and memorized a great portion of the Bible, which always remained with her. Her family have said that she never expressed a selfish wish, but lived for others. She passed away just as she had always hoped to, without anxious hours of waiting and suffering for those around her. While watching her beautiful face, so peaceful and happy lying among the flowers placed around her by loving hands, not one of those so stricken with grief by their loss could wish her back to a world of which she did not seem a part. At the services held at her home and the church on Friday afternoon, her favorite hymns were sung, for she was one who delighted to praise God in song, and always was ready to fill her place when music was needed on any occasion. Her body was laid in the family lot at the Grafton Methodist cemetery just toward the setting of the sun. Mrs Best leaves a husband and large family who deeply mourn their loss for she was a loving and beloved companion in her home. Five of the sons were absent in the United States, but one son and her daughters were present; Dr H. H. Best, New York; Mrs J. A. Jenkins, Connecticut; Mrs R. S. Hood, Waltham, Mass; Mrs M. G. Foote, who lives on the homestead; and her youngest daughter, Lillian, until recently teacher of Languages in Kentville Academy.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil for Thou art with me. Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me.

The death occurred on Wednesday evening of last week, at his residence at Woodville, of Mr William J. Burgess, one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of Western Kings. Mr Burgess was for many years a prominent farmer, but of late has carried on a general store at Kinsman's Corner. At one time he resided in Wolfville for a few years. He was 75 years of age. His first wife was a daughter of James Hilsley, of Somerset. Their family consisted of Mrs Lewis Woodworth, of Boston; Mrs Herbert White, of Grafton, and Mrs Albert Elderkin, of Wolfville; also a son, William, who has charge of the store. His second wife, who with a son and a daughter, survive him, was May, daughter of the late Deacon H. Clute of Somerset. The funeral took place Friday at Lakeville and was conducted by Rev. John Hawley.

38 cents for everything in Men's Straw Hats, at Borden's.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Wolfville Board of Trade was held in Temperance Hall on Tuesday evening of last week.

The meeting was called to order at 8:30 o'clock by the president, Mr I. B. Oakes, and in the absence of the secretary, Mr F. J. Porter was appointed to that office.

A communication was read from the Superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Co., with reference to the establishment of an office in the town apart from the railroad station. The matter was discussed by a number of gentlemen present after which Messrs S. P. Benjamin, R. E. Harris and C. R. Bill were appointed a committee to draft and circulate a petition to the company, asking that better facilities be provided for the use of the telegraph.

A letter was read from Sir Frederick Borden concerning the condition of the dredging of the creek, which was discussed at some length and it was finally resolved that the Board strongly recommend to the Department of Public Works at Ottawa that a survey of the creek be made with a view of ascertaining the practicability of dredging the creek so as to make it safer for navigation.

The following subjects were submitted to the Maritime Board of Trade for consideration at the annual meeting at Moncton: 'Care of our forests.' The double-tracking and improving of the I. C. R.' 'Minas Basin Steam-boat service.' 'Purchase of Historic places in the Maritime Provinces, and the erection of suitable monuments thereon.'

The following were elected as delegates to the meeting of the Maritime Board: S. P. Benjamin, I. B. Oakes, Dr. DeWitt, R. E. Harris, F. J. Porter, W. M. Black, R. W. Starr and C. G. Bill.

Mr Herbin tendered his resignation of the office of secretary-treasurer, which on motion was laid over until the next meeting of the Board.

A queer new book has been launched on the public from a press in Germany, by one, August Niemann, an officer in the German army. Its instigation evidently is a hatred of all things English. In one great war, the story sweeps the British Empire out of existence by the combined forces of France, Russia and Germany. At the end of his work the author piously expresses the hope that this may be the last war waged for the welfare of Germany.

CLEANED BY THE WAY.
A Hard Name.
The second assistant secretary of state is A. A. Ade. Someone recently rang up the state department and asked an employee who answered the telephone:
"Will you kindly give me the name of the second assistant secretary of state?"
"A. A. Ade."
"A. A. what?"
"A. A. Ade."
"Spell it, please."
"A."
"Yes."
"A."
"A."
But here the receiver was indignantly hanging up.

His Last Hope Realized.
(From the Sentinel, Gelo, Mont.)
In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers in 1889, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April. During his traveling about a day afterwards his camping upon his claim, he encountered much bad water, which together with the severe heat, gave him a very severe diarrhea, which it seemed almost impossible to check, and along in June the case became so bad he expected to die. One day one of his neighbors brought him a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a last hope. A big dose was given him while he was rolling about on the ground in great agony, and in a few minutes the dose was repeated. The good effect of the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. That little bottle worked a complete cure so he cannot help but feel grateful. The season for bowel disorders being at hand suggests this item for sale by G. V. Reid.

One Cause of Anemia
Is well known to be constipation which can be avoided if Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Bitternut are used occasionally. Unequalled for the stomach, liver and bowels. Use only Dr. Hamilton's Pills: price 25c.

Wary Walker—"No, ma'am, I ain't dirty from choice. I'm bound by honor. I wrote a testimonial for a soapmaker once, an' promised to use no 'other.' Mrs. Housekeeper—Well, why do you not use that? Wary Walker—"Because, ma'am, that firm failed about five years ago."

No Jack is engaged, is he? And is Lucy the bride to be?
No, she's the bride to be.
No man or woman will hesitate to speak well of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets after once trying them. They always produce a pleasant movement of the bowels, improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion. For sale by G. V. Reid.

Mrs Fangle—Have you secured a lodger for your second floor yet, Mr Goslin?
Goslin (horrified)—I haven't been looking for a lodger, madam.
Mrs Fangle—Why, I am certain my husband told me you had rooms to let in your upper story.

Piles
A lady in passing up a church aisle caught her dress on a corner of a pew and tore it. As the process of tearing was very audible to the congregation the feelings of the lady may be imagined when at that moment the clergyman began the service by reading the sentence:
"Rend your hearts and not your garments."
Nothing Loosens Up Colds

On the chest and relieves that tight feeling and hard cough like Nerviline, writes E. P. Renshall of Sutton, "I never use any other remedy but Nerviline and find it serves as a general household liniment best of all. Children's colds and inflammatory pains are quickly cured by Nerviline, and its action of colds, coughs and sore throats is unequalled by anything I ever used. Nerviline is both powerful, pleasant and reliable." Every mother should use Nerviline. Price 25c.

When Your Child Suffers
For lack of knowledge of the value of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been written up in the effort to relieve their children's suffering. Parents should read other forms of treating this disease are common to children, especially during the teething period. Though rarely cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment, which is applied, becomes chronic and lasts for years.

A dollar saved is a dollar earned, and a dollar not loaned is a dollar saved.
G. V. Reid will refund your money if you are not satisfied after using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful remedy in use for bowel complaints and the only one that never fails. It is pleasant, safe and reliable.

Tests the Kidneys.
Allow urine to stand in a glass vessel for twenty-four hours and if at the end of that time it has become turbid or has a sediment in the bottom of the vessel you may be sure that your kidneys are diseased. As a means of investigating the action of the kidneys and making them strong and healthy, there is no preparation so prompt and sure as Chamberlain's Kidney and Bladder Remedy.

It is astonishing, said the amateur philosopher, what mean things people will do when they think they're in a dark place, and so one can see them. Yes, yawned the listener, even truth lies at the bottom of a well.

Real Estate For Sale.
Within the town of Wolville and neighborhood:
1. Shop and premises on Main street next west shop at corner of Main street and Highland avenue.
2. Parcel of land containing about 1/2 acre on Main street, directly opposite "Thornleigh," lake residence of John W. Bars, deceased. This property measures upwards of 300 feet on the street and is well adapted for building purposes.
3. About 17 acres of dyke land just below and adjoining on the north of the last mentioned land.
4. About 9 acres of land on west side of Highland avenue, containing about 150 apple trees just coming into bearing. This property would make fine building lots.
5. On the Wickwire dyke, five and a half acres of land near the division dyke.
6. In Grand Pie, buildings and premises lately occupied by John Robinson. This farm contains 20 acres of land, of which 10 acres are in orchard. There are 600 apple trees, the greater number just coming into bearing, besides pear, plum and peach trees. For further particulars apply to ANDREW DEW BARSB, or HOWARD BARSB, Executors of Estate of late John W. Bars, Wolville, N. S., April 25, 1904.

Temperance Teaching.
From the Dial of Progress we clip the following item full of encouragement and instruction for all temperance workers as well as for those who are giving special attention to the important department of temperance instruction in public schools.
A millionaire brewer, a state senator, said to Mrs Hunt, of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union: "I shall vote for your bill providing for instruction in public schools of the physiological effects of alcohol. I have sold out my brewery and I am clean from the whole business. Let me tell you what occurred at my table. A guest was taken dangerously ill at dinner and there was a call for brandy to restore him. My little boy at once exclaimed, 'No, that will paralyze the nerves and muscles of the blood vessels so they will not send back the liquor to the heart.' When the liquor was poured out to give the man the lad insisted on pushing it back. 'You will kill him; he has too much blood in his head already.' How do you know all that?" asked. "Why it is in my physiology at school. It seems the text-books, prepared by such men as Prof. Newell Martin, F. R. S., of Johns Hopkins University, have succeeded in giving the lad some definite information which has proved correct. 'Senator,' said Mrs Hunt, 'are you sorry your boy learned that at school?'"
"Madam," the man replied, raising his hand, "I would not take $5,000 for the assurance it gives me that my boy will never be a drunkard."
Not only should brewers and all other fathers support the laws for instruction in the public schools as to the effect of alcohol upon the human body because such instruction will prevent their boys becoming drunkards, but because it will have much to do with their boys' business success in life.
It is due our boys that they be taught while in school that employees are becoming constantly more and more careful in the selection of employees, and that a young man who drinks intoxicating liquors or has been in the habit of drinking only occasionally and moderately, has little chance of securing a desirable position in business.
Brewers are becoming as careful in this respect in the selection of employees as are other business men. The knowledge that their business future depends as much on their temperance habits as upon their intelligence is therefore of the most importance to all boys.

Miss Hannah E. Mershon, Collingswood, N. J., says:
"I thought I would write and tell you that, by following your kind advice, I feel like a new person. I was always thin and delicate, and so weak that I could hardly do anything. Menstruation was irregular.
"I tried a bottle of your Vegetable Compound and began to feel better right away. I continued its use, and am now well and strong and menstruate regularly. I cannot say enough for what your medicine did for me."

How Mrs. Pinkham Helped Fannie Kumpfe.
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it is my duty to write and tell you of the benefit I have derived from your advice and the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The pains in my back and womb have all left me, and my menstrual trouble is corrected. I am very thankful for the good advice you gave me, and I shall recommend your medicine to all who suffer from female weakness."
—MISS FANNIE KUMPF, 1923 Chester St., Little Rock, Ark. (Dec. 16, 1900).

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure any woman in the land who suffers from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability, nervous prostration, and all forms of woman's special ills.
$5000 BOUNTY if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of Lydia E. Pinkham, which will appear here shortly.

Brewers are becoming as careful in this respect in the selection of employees as are other business men. The knowledge that their business future depends as much on their temperance habits as upon their intelligence is therefore of the most importance to all boys.

The Swedish Government has commenced to weed out railway engineers and firemen who are too fond of liquor. The Government has stopped the sale of wine and porter where soldiers are stationed, and beer shall be sold only at meal times, and for immediate consumption. Just recently 2,000 Swedish soldiers sent in a petition to the authorities for the complete prohibition of the sale of liquor in their army canteens.

To-day Sweden may justly be said to be in the advance guard of the prohibition movement. Out of her 2,400 parishes only 40 have failed to fully abolish the spirit license.

Norway has likewise made a most laudable record along temperance lines.

SWITZERLAND.—Professor A. Forel, the noted scientist of Switzerland, in company with a number of brother scientists are to-day preaching the truths of scientific temperance in their native land.

Prussia.—Prussia, the most important of the German States, seems at last to be awake to its duty in regard to the out-lavary of the liquor traffic. Four of its public ministers have joined hands in seeing that a public ordinance directing officials to do all in their power to combat the evil of drunkenness. Prussia has also arranged for a systematic teaching of the evils of alcoholism in its public schools.

HOLLAND.—The queen of Holland, it is stated, is a total abstainer, and is ostentatiously refusing on all public occasions, to partake of wine. The queen is a patron of the Total Abstinence Society, and of the Women's Social Party League, and it is said she is among the most active of workers.

DENMARK.—Has a Total Abstinence Society with headquarters at Copenhagen. This Society evidently believes in the dissemination of prohibition information. In one year it arranged for 1,081 prohibition lectures, at a cost of $17,000.

Heretofore, it is stated, is a total abstainer, and is ostentatiously refusing on all public occasions, to partake of wine. The queen is a patron of the Total Abstinence Society, and of the Women's Social Party League, and it is said she is among the most active of workers.

Of course heretofore it is important. Among the descendants of Mark Twain, and 310 professional snappers, 400 wrecked youthful delinquents, sixty
