THE EASTERN TRUST COMPANY.

The business of the The Eastern Trust Company is to administer Trusts. In this work it specializes, and it does no other. But no kind of trust is foreign to its scope or beyond its power to administer efficiently.

The Eastern Trust Company never speculates. It invests. It depends for its prosperity upon the efficiency of its management of its clients' business and upon the security of its investments.

The Eastern Trust Company executes the office of executor or administrator with unexampled efficiency, and its usefulness in this field is becoming rapidly more availed of.

For instance:—In St. John, New Brunswick, where it has quite lately established a branch, the estate of James Ready, of Fairville, which has been sworn to under $651,300.00, is being administered by The Eastern Trust Company as one of the joint executors of Mr. Ready's will.

In Halifax, Nova Scotia, again, The Eastern Trust Company has just been chosen to administer the estate of Captain William Fleming, which is valued at more than half a million dollars.

The Company now administers many estates which in value amount to several millions of dollars. Particulars will appear in later advertisements.

The Eastern Trust Company can execute this function of executor or administrator as efficiently in Newfoundland as it can in Nova Scotia, Quebec, or New Brunswick.

The Eastern Trust Company requires commodious offices on Water Street. Apply to CHAPTER II. Over this part of the business he had of late demurred more than once, the last time with serious vocation, but with no better success than to bring down upon himself a prolonged dose of sullen indignation and a heavy purchase of costly "Satsuma" for the drawing room shelves. And possibly this state of things troubled the lawyer more than he cared to confess, or in fact had any one to confess to. But it seems to Sydney that, just at this time when recollection of her father begins, he grew older and graver very fast indeed.

Other people were of the same opinion. "You're not looking yourself, Alwyn," the Rector of St. Clement's said, advancing from his garden gate one morning as the lawyer drove by to his office, Sydney perched by his side according to frequent custom. "I don't believe, after all, Guyswick suits you half as well as 'Stuarts' did."

"Half no, not a hundredth part," answered John Alwyn, hastily; "though," pulling himself up short, too proud to parade his troubles, "the place is well enough in its way. Why don't you come and see us often?"

"Oh, you know," evasively returned the clergyman, "I'm busy. My boy is back from Oxford. I'm coaching him through the 'long.' But I do want a chat with you about"—dropping his voice and leaning forward—"that investment of mine. I'll come round to your office soon—this week, if it will suit you."

"Next will do better," said the lawyer, gathering up the slackened reins his forehead contracting, though he was not given to signs of impatience. "Then next be it. And well, little maid," smiling at Sydney's grave, attentive face, "what did you mean by not being a boy, eh? A lad could have been helping his father by now couldn't he?"

"So can a girl! So can I, so I will!" returned Sydney, her great dark eyes, sometimes hazel, sometimes deepest blue, dilating with a most unchild-like anxiety. ("Why did everyone keep telling her father he looked ill?") "Papa, may I stay with you to-day, and sit by you and stamp your letters? You like that sometimes, don't you?"

"Little goose," he answered, fondly, "don't I like it always? We'll indulge in that treat soon, when we're not so full of work."

"Nor so full of cares," thought the rector, as he stepped back and let them drive on. "It strikes me, John Alwyn, that marriage of yours was about the worst venture you ever made in your life!" which was very nearly, but unfortunately not quite, the truth.

Two scenes of that the first summer registered in Sydney's memory abide with her, never to be effaced. One is of a June evening, herself led to a much-decorated dressing room to say formal good-night to her mother, who, very dazzling and superb, is arrayed for some evening visit. Her father stands by the window.

"It is the third time," Mrs. Alwyn says, in tones of annoyance that she does not soften as the child enters,

"the third time I have accepted for you to the Wynnes, and you have always called off going. It is most ungracious and provoking of you. They may take offense. Lady Wynne always look incredulous when I say you are unwell, or something of the sort."

"She need not be incredulous tonight," returns Mr. Alwyn, wearily; "there will be no pretense about your apology for once."

Mrs. Alwyn flashes at him a doubtful glance.

"If you are not well, why did you stay at your office so late?"

"Expecting letters."

"And never gave a thought, of course, to my convenience! You knew I should wait till you came back, to see whether you were going with me or no."

"I assured you I should not before I left this morning. They are people out of our range. The effort of an evening there, now when I'm harassed in all directions, would have crazed me."

His tone is so broken, so dejected, that Sydney's eyes fill suddenly with tears as, with a furtive side-look at her mother, she steals behind the dressing table to her father's elbow.

But Mrs. Alwyn's pity is reserved for her own grievance. The Wynnes were particular as to the proprieties, and she was bent on dragging her husband to their dinner.

"It is not at all agreeable for me to go again alone. There may be husbodies who will make impertinent remarks. You really must exert yourself, Mr. Alwyn, and accompany me sometimes, or—"

"Or," he interrupted, looking with a faint gleam of his old admiration at his wife, handsome still—"a splendid woman" some people yet called her—"for else you must give up some of your engagements and stay at home with the old man you've tied yourself of well, is that such a hard fate?"

"Helen"—he used the name so seldom she started to hear it, and drew a little back as he advanced—"I'm worried now, and—"

"You not forego this dinner? Could you not stay with me this evening?"

She gathers up the long train of her beautiful gleaming dress with a gesture of irritation at such an inconsiderate suggestion.

"You know the St. Heliers are to be there?" she says, with an emphasis which seems to express that such society would draw her from any duty on earth: "I am alive to the compliment of being asked to meet them, Mr. Alwyn, if you are not! Don't come down with me if you are not well! Let me will put my cloak on, thank you. Good-night. And, Sydney, just stopping to let the child touch her cheek, "you may well be pale. You ought to be in bed!"

The carriage wheels sound down the sweep and past the chestnut drive, by the courtesying woman at the lodge; and quite sure now the house-mistress is gone, Sydney carcases her father's listless hand as he sighs heavily, and asks—

"Shall we go down, papa, to your dinner? And need I go to bed?"

He wants no dinner, he says, and she may stay with him a little while; so they descend together to a small west-fronting room, opening on a delicious piece of lawn spangled with beds of blue forget-me-nots, sheltered from the setting sun by wide boughs of a glorious emerald-tinted beech.

The red light flickers through the leaves, and sets the shadows dancing on the walls. Chaffinches by dozens keep cheep-cheep-chee-ping outside. Sydney tells her father the doings of the day; how her white rose is out at last; he is to have the first bud for his button-hole to-morrow; and how she can ride round the Croft without a guiding-rein, and Havens, her coachman-tutor, says she will be a credit to him. Mr. Alwyn listens very silently, ready with a smile when Sydney looks at him, not smiling when released from her gaze. She sees his thoughts are far away, and presently ceases talking.

The shadows from the beech are gone now. Twilight fills the room as they still sit on, and Leonora's evening practice jingles on upstairs unceasingly. The child is half asleep when a strange step on the gravel sets the dogs barking, then the butler brings in a lamp and something in a pink envelope.

Sydney thinks she has tired her father leaning so long upon his arm, for his hand trembles as he opens his missive. She would read it too, but he puts her aside, kisses her slowly once—twice—and bids her go to bed.

Then he comes up for another good-night, with a leather bag in his hand, another coat upon his arm, and Sydney, in a spasm of wakefulness, stifles her lamentations over his going a journey because he looks so troubled, bids him be quick back, and follows, a little barefooted, white-night-gowned figure, to watch over the balusters for the last glimpse of him as he leaves thus, in unexplained haste, his splendid home at Guyswick.

CHAPTER III.

And this is the other scene, which, misty of detail, will haunt Sydney to the end of time.

A pretty hamlet at a little distance from Guyswick. A gray old church looming up across a rustic road, near by the fruit-trees of a cottage garden.

A warm sunny afternoon, with the great humming of bees and scent of stocks and wall-flowers in the air. The constant sound of a busy hoe at work not far off, and the crooning of some minor-keyed ditty by an old figure dressed quaintly in dark-colored stuff, with snow-white cap and kerchief pinned in front, knitting dilligently under the shade of a yellow laburnum.

This is "Taffy," or "Mrs. Taverner" affectionately abbreviated, the nurse whose last piece of official work was presiding over Sydney's very earliest days, and who now, with well-earned savings, takes the rest of three-score years and ten. Her home is with a daughter, once a servant at "Stuarts," whose husband married from his post of second gardener there to the dignity of a cottage and "market-ing" for Stillcote-Upton on his own account. He is clerk of the church close by; a thrifty, hard-working soul plodding contentedly from morn till night, putting his few pounds by each year against a rainy day, or may be for a legacy to his good "missus," or a fortune for the lassies who are now doing for themselves in honest service.

They are steady, sterling people all, in their way, and the elder dame is a prodigious favorite with all her children, as she calls a goodly list, beginning with men long since out of their teens, ending with Sydney Alwyn. Her duties with the brood whose first cries she hushed have not finished with the nursery, as many of her grown-up babies testify, for hopes and fears, troubles and joys, loves and hates, find their way to Taffy's sympathetic confidence often before the household they belong to half suspect them, and rarely a week goes by without bringing a visitor out of her old working circle to nurse's cottage.

There Sydney, to her unfeeling delight, is sometimes allowed a sojourn.

When her mother takes Leonora to the sea, when any epidemic is reported at Guyswick, or if any far domestic lessens the establishment for a time, the child is sent for a few days to nurse. There her father comes round morning or evening to see her. There she revels in the freedom of her oldest frocks, and learns the letters and syllables, so difficult to attain in the school-room at home, quite easily off the tombstones in the churchyard under Taffy's spectated instructions.

Naturally, they make much of the little lady at the cottage, for, over and above their genuine fondness for her, the visits of the rich man's child are pleasant little windfalls to these frugal folk. So they keep a tiny cupboard-like apartment, with a diamond paneled casement that tiger-lilies peep in at, and monthly roses are always blooming round, for her very own. They mostly find some infant chicks or downy rabbits for her playmates. They fix a swing for her in the big russet apple-tree, and pluck for her any flowers her fancy fixes on.

She is in the swing by Taffy's side now, as with arms upward clinging to the ropes she sits slowly swaying backward and forward in the checked light under the apple-boughs, and her old guardian, stopping the clicking of her bright pins to watch her, thinks this last of her foster-flock is the fairest of them all, and wonders what makes her chattering look so grave.

Presently Sydney calls to her—"Taffy, when did I come here?"

"On Tuesday, my pretty."

"And what's to-day?"

"Friday."

"And papa hasn't been to see me!"

"May be he's not back yet, missy."

"No, perhaps not," says the child, slowly, "for," brightening, "he will be sure to come when he gets home."

"Sure," repeats the old woman, confidently, and then adds, "Was your mother gone out too, Miss Sydney? Heavens didn't say."

Granulation of the Eyelids. Is Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment—Scores of Uses for the Great Soothing, Healing Ointment. Most people know Dr. Chase's Ointment best as a cure for eczema and itching piles. Nor is this to be wondered at when you think of the remarkable record made in this class of cures. But there are scores of other uses for this ointment, which are only discovered when it is kept constantly at hand. Mrs. Martin, 13 Carroll Street, Toronto, formerly of Bowmanville, Ont., writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for years, and found it invaluable in treating skin irritations and all sorts of burns and wounds. In fact, we would not be without it in the house. It is a most excellent treatment for granulated eyelids, from which I suffered without finding anything to help me." Whenever there is itching of the skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can use Dr. Chase's Ointment with full assurance that it will prove entirely satisfactory. 50 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanston Hates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

MARITIME TELEGRAPH & TELEPHONE COMPANY.
We draw the attention of the investing public to the merits of this stock. The annual statement of the Company shows a large increase in business for the year ended December 31st, 1913, an increase of 275 subscribers, and the Directors state that it would appear from present indications that this growth will continue for some time to come. The stock pays an annual dividend of 2 per cent.
Public utility securities are always very popular. The statements of well managed companies show constant increases in receipts in prosperous times, and only a minimum of disturbance in periods of business reaction.
We are in a position to offer a block of Maritime Telegraph & Telephone Common at an attractive price, and would advise investors to write at once for full particulars.

Big or Little.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Those who add to the sum of world's happiness are the good people of the world. Those who add to the world's unhappiness, whether by murder or drunkenness, selfishness or theft, are the evil. Sins are to be judged big or little, not as we have been in the habit of judging them, but according to the amount of unhappiness they cause.

Such is the creed of Dora Melegari, a Russian writer.

Three or four years ago when I first read her book I often talked to you about this creed, as some of my older reader friends will remember. Since then I have not said so much, but it is not because I haven't been thinking about it.

And to-day I want you to judge two little (?) acts by this standard. Yesterday I wanted a woman to do some work about the house. While on my way to hunt one up, I stopped to make a purchase in a small shop. It is one of those tiny neighborhood shops whose mistresses are acquainted with everyone in the vicinity. Consequently I thought the woman might know of someone who would be glad of the work.

"Why yes," she said when I put my question to her, "there was a woman in here just the other day who wants work badly. She is a widow with three young children, and she is having a terribly hard time to support them. She asked me if I ever heard of anyone who wanted some work to be sure and send them to her. Now what was her name? She told me that and her address and I promised to write it down, but I didn't and I'm afraid I've forgotten it. Sally (to her assistant) do you remember the name of that woman who was in here looking for work? You know, the one who looked half-starved? You don't remember? Well then (to me) I'm afraid I can't help you after all."

Just think of it! She could hear the woman tell of her struggle to support her rathless brood, could notice that she looked half starved, and yet not bother to write her name down in case the opportunity came to help her out.

I suppose the world would call that a very little sin, wouldn't it? But if you measured it by Dora Melegari's standard how would it look?

Again, a friend of mine who was helping herself through college by doing mending in the summer, was trying to establish a trade in a summer colony. She went to all houses where boarders were kept and asked the mistresses if their guests would like to avail themselves of her services. Most of them supplied her with the names of the guests and referred her to them. But one, not willing to trouble, simply said she was sure none of her roomers would want to patronize her. Later, in a roundabout fashion the maicure lady got two of her best customers in that house.

Indifference to the opportunity and obligation of helping others along does not rank with murder or theft in the world's eyes, but if we look at it with Dora Melegari's I think it will not be far from that class.

Gunpowder.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Swash." Gunpowder is a large noise waiting for a job.

The Chinese discovered gunpowder before trousers were invented in Europe. But they made no use of it, which may explain why China is so densely populated to-day.

Gunpowder is made by mixing up charcoal, sulphur and saltpetre and grinding them together. This mixture has an impetuous disposition like a grand opera prima donna and frequently blows up informally and without announcement. Working in a powder mill is as dangerous as cleaning streets in Los Angeles during the automobile season.

After gunpowder has been made it is stuffed into a gun barrel, a bullet in front of it and a cap behind it. When the cap is fired the heat causes the stoms of the sulphur, saltpetre and charcoal to rush violently apart like two factions in the republican party and combine into new molecules. A molecule is so small that a billion of them could hold a convention on the head of a pin and even a coward would not be afraid to walk up to a molecule and kick it on the shin. But when a large number of molecules get together they can be as disastrous to the enemy as a large number of voters in a reform campaign. When the gunpowder molecules have rearranged themselves they swell up so rapidly that the bullet has to get out of the way, which it does at a speed varying from 1,000 to 3,000 feet a second, wandering impatiently through anything which may happen to be in the way. After a man has been shot in the neck by a bullet propelled by molecules he doesn't feel the same contempt for small things which he did before. The molecule is not to be trifled with. It is as dangerous as the consumer will be when he learns how to combine.

Before gunpowder was invented,

An Operation For Appendicitis

Was Ordered by His Doctor, But Complete Cure Was Effected by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Almost anyone who has suffered from appendicitis will assure you that his trouble developed only after months or years of derangements of the liver and bowels.

Appendicitis can almost invariably be prevented, and very frequently cured, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In the case described in this letter the doctors had ordered an operation, but a thorough cure was brought about by this great medicine.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis, and the doctors advised an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since going so he has had no need of an operation, or even of a doctor, as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak of my gratitude."

men were obliged to kill each other with swords, spears, arrows, axes, war clubs and hammers and war was very tedious and slow. Now, however, two nations can wipe each other out without ever getting close enough together to shake hands before beginning to fight. There is a growing feeling that gunpowder used in guns is more of a nuisance than a convenience and that it ought to be kept exclusively to its job of blasting rocks, coal and other substances.

Indigestion, Gas Or Sick, Sour Stomach

Time It!—Pape's Diapepsin makes your upset, bloated stomach feel fine in five minutes.

"Really does" put bad stomachs in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in five minutes—that's just that—makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into stubborn lumps, you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food and acid; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated; your insides filled with bile and indigestible waste, remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness. A large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin will give you a hundred dollars' worth of satisfaction or your druggist hands you your money back.

It's worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of a sick, sour, upset stomach during the day or at night. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach doctor in the world.

Fads and Fashions.

Lingerie silk dresses are combined with taffeta and striped silk pipings. Circular cap-collars of the military order are considered very chic in Paris.

A new suit collar is an absolutely simple deep point of embroidered organdy.

A pretty blouse is called the "cholorators" because of its round laced-edged neck.

Garlands of flowers and small silk fruits are used as trimmings on girls' dresses.

Carriek caps are seen on some of the coats, and even the new skirts suggest them. The newest hat trimming is an odd "laquered" satin that resembles patent leather. In evening skirts with ruffles of lace, the ruffles show similar as they reach the bottom. Some of the new belts are made of cloth, pleated, edged, and shaped to fit in at the waist.

SOPER & MOORE

New hats are very, very small, and some of them have long single streamers of ribbon.

Black puffs and raised, draped skirts have brought the pretty petticoat again into favor.

Ruchings of raveled taffeta finish the new skirts around the foot, and even edge the mantles.

The bell shape is creeping into favor with the new waists. Even chinchilla coats are of this cut.

Ostrich feather half-collars are soft and pretty when worn with summer silk and lingerie frocks.

One of the new costumes has a belt above the natural waist line and another broad-figured girde below it.

The elaborate, draped sash worn with the dressy costume is apt to have a giant flower tucked in at the girde.

Among evening dresses there is a fancy for the tight foundation skirt, cut in tooth-like scallops at the bottom and covered with a transparent tulle.

A striking evening gown has its skirt entirely of jet beads and sequins on chiffon, the whole draped, and apparently held to the transparent corsage by a jet chain.

Sing a Song of Microbes.

"Sing a song of microbes. Dainty little things. Ears and eyes and horns and tails. Claws and fangs and stings. Microbes in the carpet. Microbes in the wall. Microbes in the vestibule. Microbes in the hall. Microbes on my money. Microbes in my hair. Microbes on my meat and bread. Microbes everywhere. Microbes in the butter. Microbes in the cheese. Microbes on the knives and forks. Microbes in the breeze. Microbes in the lichen. Microbes in the bed. Microbes on the brush and comb. Microbes in my head. Microbes in the faucet. Microbes in the drains. Microbes in my shoes and boots. Microbes in my brains. Friends are little microbes. Enemies are big. Life among the microbes is— Nothing 'infra dig.' Fussy little microbes. Billions at a birth. Make us flesh and blood and bones. Keep us on the earth." —Toronto Guardian.

The Good Appetite.

If man enjoys his daily vittles, he is a happy nib; he need not care if Fortune whistles a stick to prod his ribs. In times of stress and grim-disaster if 'appetites survive, then men just throw in steaks the factor, and pies in blocks of five. No woes or troubles can kerkummix the men who like to eat, who are equipped with modern stomachs that simply can't be beat. Should Fate, that grim and grisly spinner of grief, camp on my trail, if I can have a good square dinner, her buffets won't avail. The men who bow before disaster, who tremble and repeat, to whom 'woe sticketh like a plaster, are those who do not eat. Napoleon, to good fighters partial, once combed his scanty wool, and said, 'Men can't be brave and martial unless their tanks are full.' Let me set out a roasted turkey, well stuffed, in farmhouse style, and, though the outlook's dark and murky, I still shall sing and smile. I may be victim of abuses, and woes may come in troops, but let me eat a pair of goblets, and I don't care three whoops.

Don't care three whoops.

Some of the new belts are made of cloth, pleated, edged, and shaped to fit in at the waist.

JOHN B. AYRE.

Fuesle's attention-compelling and vital serial novel, entitled "Divorced Life." It is a story which every reader will enjoy and profit from. "Divorced Life" will appear daily for an indefinite period, exclusively, in this paper. This serial novel cannot be purchased in book form, nor will it be dramatized until after the complete story has appeared in The Evening Telegram.

In "Divorced Life" our readers will follow step by step the experiences, the trials, the temptations, the defeats and victories which come to Marion Winthrop. It is a thrilling narrative, a vital human document. Nothing but good will come to those who read it—and they will be delightfully entertained as they unveil the life of this interesting woman, Marion Winthrop. We commend this story, "Divorced Life," to our readers. Watch for it daily, beginning to-day, exclusively in The Evening Telegram.

New Moon—26th.
Days Past—31 To Come—283
QUEEN ELIZABETH died 1603, aged 70. She was the daughter of Henry VIII and Anne Boleyn. Her early years were spent in study; she ascended the throne in 1558 and reigned till her death. Her great strength lay in her choice of advisers and her reign was one of the most famous in English history. Her greatest fault was her vanity.
NEW ZEALAND discovered 1642.
They pass best over the world who trip over it quickly; for it is but a bog—if we stop we sink.
—Queen Elizabeth.

Man Died on S.S. Bonaventure

Messrs. A. Harvey & Co. received a message from Capt. Parsons, of the Bonaventure, last midnight, conveying the intelligence that one of the crew, Henry Pridham, of Petty Harbor, had died yesterday morning. No particulars of the sad event are at hand, but upon receipt of the message, Messrs. Harvey & Co. wired Captain Parsons asking for same and stating that they presumed the body will be brought here. Rev. Fr. Tierney, P.P. of Petty Harbor, has been informed of the sad occurrence, and will notify the friends of the deceased. The deceased was 39 years old, married, and leaves a wife, four children, mother, two sisters and three brothers to mourn their sad loss. The Telegram unites in the general sympathy extended.

A Baby's Face.

How nice baby's skin is now; not a red mark or abrasion anywhere to be seen.
"Yes, I was noticing. His face used to be so splotchy that I often wondered if it were possible to do anything for him. How did you manage to cure the trouble?"
"Simply enough after all. A few applications of that wonderful new ointment Zylex, and the steady use since of Zylex Soap was all that was needed, that made the little chap right."
Zylex (50c.) and Zylex Soap (25c.) can be had from your druggist.

One Kind of Express Wagon.

Last winter, one night the Music-maker quartet was to appear in a Southern town. They were to arrive there late, and wanted to wait no time in getting ready for the evening's performance. So they wired ahead to "have an express wagon" at the station for them.
They arrived in a bad squall, and looked about for the vehicle for their trunks and instruments. None was seen.
Finally an old, bearded man came up, and said:
"Are you the fellows that's to give 'n' lecture?"
"We're the Music-maker's quartet, yes. Where's the wagon?"
"I bring it," he said, and trundled out from behind the station a child's toy express wagon.
"What does this mean?" said Mr. Hough. "What are we to haul our baggage in?"
"Well," said the old man, querulously, "you just said 't' bring an express wagon, and nothin' about what kind." It always strikes a lyceum worker as bitterly amusing, after he has risked his life and health and forgot all about his comfort for travelling for twenty-four hours or so in the face of all sorts of bad weather to reach a town, to find that a large number of the regular audience, living a few blocks at most from the place of assembly, stayed away because it threatened rain.—Strickland Gillilan, in Woman's World for April.

From the Manger to the Cross.

This evening citizens will have an opportunity of witnessing the wonderful motion picture of the life of the Saviour, entitled: "From the Manger to the Cross." It is a marvellous undertaking and required the greatest care. The cost was enormous. The scenes are authentic locations in Palestine and Egypt. It has been shown in several of the large cities of America and the Old Country as well and everywhere it has attracted thousands who have been greatly impressed. It contains thousands of photographs. No one should miss this great film. Clergymen of all denominations, Catholic and Protestant, have written to the Press and the Company in praise of the picture. It will be shown at the Casino all this week. Mr. Kieley was very fortunate in getting it for St. John's, especially during the Lenten season when it is in great demand everywhere.

Entertainment at Carbonear.

Some weeks ago the C. C. C. Band of Carbonear gave a very successful entertainment in St. Patrick's Hall, of that town. On Easter Thursday the Corps will come before the footlights and endeavour to please an appreciative audience. Should they receive the same patronage as the Band it will surely repay them for their efforts. The entertainment will consist of chorus, character songs, song for the little fellows, recitations, etc., and the glorious finale: "Phelon O'Toole's Courtship," a humorous Irish sketch. Those who attend will laugh till next Easter.

Mr. Water McCarthy

Sings at the Nickel.
Mr. Walter McCarthy arrived in the city on Saturday, and his hosts of friends will be pleased to learn that he will sing at the Nickel Theatre, commencing Easter Monday night. Mr. McCarthy has had wonderful success in America, having sung in high class opera, while he was greatly in demand in the music halls of Boston. Newfoundlanders were delighted to hear of his success abroad and will, no doubt, turn out in large numbers to hear him.
Miss Gardner, the ragtime singer, who was here last year, and Joe Ross, the drummer, will also appear at the Nickel on Easter Monday night.

Fine Cornet Solo.

During the service last night at the Methodist College Hall, a very fine cornet solo was given by Mr. R. J. Vincent, choir cornet soloist of St. James' Methodist Church, Montreal. Mr. Vincent played The Lost Chord. His piping and clean legato playing was all that could be desired, while his phrasing and interpretation of this famous song was the admiration of everybody present. Mr. Vincent is a pupil of the well known Cornet Soloist of the Coldstream Guards, Sergeant Hawkins.

Sealing Outlook.

The outlook for the sealing voyage is by no means cheering, so far as the reports go there is only about half a voyage in sight to-day. On the front, the seals on board and panned appear to be about 90,000; and there appears to be about 25,000 to 30,000 in the Gulf. So far, this is not half of the average annual catch for the past ten years. These catches were, according to Mr. J. L. Noonan—

1904	284,473
1905	177,100
1906	341,835
1907	245,051
1908	313,863
1909	269,302
1910	333,349
1911	304,591
1912	175,130
1913	272,592

The reports for the next week will be watched with anxiety in the hope that it will be possible for the sealing steamers to make an average catch.

In view of the extra taxation which has been imposed, it will be a bad look-out, if the sealing fishery is not an average one. The country will need every cent which can be earned to enable people to live and to respond to the extraordinary demands being made on them under the new tariff.

On The Watch Tower.

In its latest issue, the Plaindealer insinuates that the Evening Telegram looks on the Government with no kindly eye because we are publishing the Unclaimed Letter List, and because "it will be our privilege to tender congratulations to Sheriff Lloyd before the next General Election, if not a little sooner." In regard to the former, the Government took away the letter list from us on our refusal to publish an Apology of the Fishermen's Advocate. We published that list and criticized the Government and maintained our independence. The fact of publishing it or not had and has no influence on our political views or conduct. We published it then and we publish it now just in the way we publish any advertising matter, but that does not influence either our views or our conduct. That we have shown in the past, and we are ready to prove it again either at the present or in the future. As to the suggestion that the editor is looking to the Government for the Sheriffship, or for any other office, we can tell the Plaindealer that Mr. W. F. Lloyd is not looking to the Government or the Opposition for any permanent office. Mr. W. F. Lloyd is a member of the Opposition in the House of Assembly and has no intention whatever of resigning his seat there. His views on the action of the Government in regard to the delay in filling the portfolios and their resort to the Legislative Council for seats for the appointees, his views on the waste and extravagance, on the deficits, overdrafts and the increased taxation have been expressed in no uncertain tone, both in the House of Assembly, in the columns of the Evening Telegram, and on the public platform, and he sees no reason whatever to change them, and has no intention of changing them. The future is full of peril, as was foreshadowed in the Manifesto of Sir Robert Bond, and we are on the watch-tower, watching events more closely than ever we did.

DIVORCE.

On another page of this issue, our readers will find the announcement of a new daily serial novel story upon a subject which is of such importance to the public that it would be difficult to over-estimate it. That question is Divorce. Few of us realize the alarming prevalence of this expression of an hysteria which has spotted our civilization. Few of us know that the United States ranks FIRST among all civilized nations in percentage of divorce—save only Japan. When one out of every twelve marriages in America ends in the Divorce Courts, as happens now, a condition has been reached which deserves the careful consideration not only of the scholar, the statesman, the clergy, but more important still—the consideration of every man and woman who has his or her, and the nation's interest, at heart.
We believe that the best means of presenting and portraying in a vivid, impressive manner the facts and the many varied factors which enter into Divorce is through the serial novel form. To this end we have contracted for the rights to Helen Hessong

Obituary.

EDWARD J. RAWLINS.

With profound regret we chronicle the death of a well known and highly respected citizen, in the person of Mr. Edward J. Rawlins, which occurred at his late residence, Queen's Road, at 8.15 last evening. The deceased had been ill of blood-poisoning for about two months past, which set in after having received treatment for a growth on the neck. Up to a few days ago he showed some slight signs of improvement, though his ultimate recovery was doubtful. Yesterday evening, half an hour before the end came, his condition became grave, and Rt. Rev. Mons. Roche was summoned, arriving in time to administer the last rites of the Catholic Church, to one who was an exemplary member thereof. Mr. Rawlins was in his fifty-seventh year, and was highly esteemed. He was a life-long member of the B.I.S., and was for many years Chairman of Schools in that body, and was also Chairman of the Belvedere Cemetery Committee since its inception about 18 years ago. He leaves a widow, two daughters and four sons. Rev. Father John Rawlins, Charles in Roxbury, U.S.A., Edward in Rome, studying for the priesthood, and Joseph of the Royal Bank of Canada, this city; to all of whom the Telegram unites with the community in extending sincerest sympathy.

MR. JAMES NASH.

The many friends of Mr. James Nash, farmer, will learn with regret of his sudden death which occurred at his home on Saturday afternoon last. Mr. Nash was in town Saturday shopping, and on his return home early in the afternoon, complained of a severe pain in the region of the heart. His friends became alarmed and immediately summoned Rev. Fr. Pippy and Dr. Campbell, but before they arrived he had passed away. The deceased was in his 57th year, and was well known in the city. An aged uncle, two sisters and two brothers are left to mourn, to whom the Telegram extends sympathy. The funeral takes place this afternoon.

Rounders Transfigured.

"Baseball is hard to describe, but its points are easy to pick up as it is being played," says the Star. "To an English crowd it does not look like a foreign game, for it is clearly the old English game of rounders transfigured, transformed, specialised, and polished to the highest possible pitch of peril and perfection. It is the extreme perfection of the game as played by such cranks as the New York 'Giants' and the Chicago 'White Sox' which makes it difficult to transplant from American to British soil. Another obstacle is our moist climate. Baseball appears to be a game that demands fast dry turf and plenty of sun. In an English summer these conditions are often absent. It is probable, therefore, that baseball of its best could seldom be seen here. The work of training the players is evidently long and arduous, and here there is no demand for professionals which would stimulate the supply. "There can be no doubt about the amazing skill of our visitors. Their throwing beats anything ever seen in cricket. It often deceives the eye, and bewildering are the passes from base to base when two men are run out of one ball. It is in throwing that our cricketers ought to sit at the feet of the 'Giants' and the 'White Sox.' The pitcher also is an education for our bowlers. It is true that he throws the ball, but he delivers it with one foot on a plate and without a preliminary run. We should like to see a pitcher pitching a cricket ball at one of our crack batsmen. "There is one lesson which these splendid athletes have taught us. If this, they waste no time in getting to work. Though an innings may be over in two minutes, the outs are off and the ins are on the field in a flash. The slowness of cricket would be sensibly abated if our cricketers were to imitate the American briskness between over and between the outgoing and incoming batsmen. The defect of baseball is the fewness of the runs, due apparently to the master of the pitcher and the fielders over the batsman. In cricket the balance is more evenly held. A run in baseball is as rare as a goal in football. But baseball is American and cricket is English. Baseball suits the nervous, highly strung, enthusiastic American temperament, just as cricket suits the phlegmatic, stolid, and rather reticent English temperament."

HEALTHY AND UNHEALTHY LIGHTING

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not viliate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:—
"Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this amongst other reasons that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson B. Hurry.
He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old conditions could deny the improvement that had taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reginald Duffield, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.
I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which, in the old days was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which, with the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity, the latter being applied with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of asphyxiation.—Vivian B. Lewis, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—nov8.11

The annual meeting of the Shamrock Baseball Club was held on Saturday night in their club rooms, Water Street West, when the reports of the past year were submitted and approved, after which the election of officers for the coming year was conducted. The President, who announced his retirement, occupied the chair, and the following were chosen:—
President Mr. J. Murphy.
Vice-Pres. Mr. E. J. Goodland.
Sec.-Treas. Mr. C. J. Cantwell.
Manager Mr. W. J. O'Neill.
The Vice-President and Manager were appointed delegates to the League for 1914.

The Shamrocks during the past year made an excellent showing, their team having won several honours. Much enthusiasm prevailed during the meeting and several new applicants for membership were admitted. The first practice will take place shortly when the season's work commences.

Fatal Accident at Bell Isld.

Mr. A. Proudfoot, of Bell Island, who is a guest at the Crosbie, received a message on Saturday night informing him of a tragedy that occurred on the Island during the day. The message stated that Ambrose Clarke, of Harbour Grace, an underground worker, was killed by a falling roof in the submarine mine, and that Wm. Tye, another labourer, was badly injured. One of Tye's legs had to be amputated immediately after the accident, but there is every hope of his recovery.

A word to those who wear "Twenty-five cent Glasses." Do you realize that by so doing, you virtually admit that twenty-five cents is the value you place upon God's greatest gift to you? There is no law to prevent you from injuring your eyes by using such glasses excepting, perhaps, the law of common sense. Of course you don't know why cheap glasses play such havoc with your eyes, and health generally, nor does the man who sells them to you know. An eyesight specialist can tell you, and if you would interest yourself to the extent of asking him to explain, you would never look through a pair of them. Anything more perfect or beautiful than the human eye would be impossible for man to conceive. Then, why, when physical aid is needed to enable it to perform its functions with greater ease, do you use cheap glasses or submit yourself to persons of questionable ability to suit you? When your eyes cry out for assistance, go to R. H. Trapnell, the Eyesight Specialist who will faithfully examine them and give you none but the best quality glasses if glasses are needed at all. Thousands are ready to testify to the great benefit received at his hands.—mar18, eod.11

Ulster Situation Much Easier.

The King Intervenes—No Further Resignation of Officers—Situation Will be Discussed in Commons.

LONDON, To-day.—The dreaded Sunday passed without the slightest disturbance of order in Belfast or Ulster. The King has shown his influence earnestly on the side of conciliation, and seems to have made a personal appeal to the officers who had resolved to resign, rather than face the possibility of being called upon to fight in Ulster, and may be taken for granted that the King is equally exerting his influence with his Ministers in the same direction. Reports are not wanting of desire on both sides that everything possible should be done to avoid any chance of conflict. Nationalists have abandoned their proposed parade at Londonderry and Carson continues to voice his desire to do his utmost to avoid provocative acts. The Government announces that all the intended movements of troops in Ireland have now been completed, but this may be a decision necessitated by the threatened resignation of officers. Apparently no further actual resignations have been offered. As a result of the meeting of party leaders, Bonar Law will move the adjournment of the

THE GIRL OF THE FARM.

The girl of the farm—God bless her, God bless her cheerful face, And the song that trips from her rosy lips.

As she toils with a willing grace, God bless her bright eyes, smiling, Aglow with a wondrous charm, And her voice, so sweet and cheery— God bless the girl of the farm.

The girl of the farm—God bless her, God bless her willing hands, That never shirk the hourly work, Which the good of the farm demands.

In spite of the many duties, That tax her brain and arm, She still has time to be happy— This precious girl of the farm.

The girl of the farm—God bless her, God keep her loving heart Free from the faintest shade or taint, Of pride and guile and art, Make her to triumph always, O'er sorrow and toil and harm, And all the world will love her, As we love the girl of the farm.

The Excelsior Shaving Stick is in the opinion of many, self-shavers, the best shaving soap. It is a pure white English made soap, firm in texture, yet yielding a thick creamy lather, and will not interfere with the most delicate skin. It is also very economical and will probably give you ten per cent. more shaves than ordinary sticks of shaving soap. It is in only a shade more costly than a stick at 25 cents, and it is a whole lot better. Price 35 cents a tin.
Have a bottle of Soda Mint or Soda Mint and Pepsin Tablets at hand to ward off an attack of indigestion or heart burn. They are perfectly harmless in any case, and will often prevent much suffering later. Price 15 cents a bottle.

Bridges Burned.

A bewildering swirl of emotions swept through Marian's mind as she left the court house. At last she had left the court house. Now, what was she to do with it? Trembling with excitement, she had told the grave-eyed clerk, she had told the judge her story in the seclusion of his chambers. Her dry-eye recital had closely followed the instructions of her lawyer. The private hearing was a comfort. Kept up for the ordeal of a public hearing, her voice broke once or twice when the suspense was over, and the request for privacy was granted. In a few minutes the decree was signed. She had convinced the court of her husband's extreme cruelty.

The early twilight of a gray November day closed over her as she descended the gloomy stairs to the street. The city's lights were beginning to blossom. Trolley cars clanged by; motor cars droned contentedly past like homing bees. The boarding house where she lived was a mile away, but she resolved to walk. She wanted to think, to resolve her conflicting emotions into something concrete, into some definite plan.

Marian was twenty-three and good looking. Her black tailored suit was suggestive only in a vague, refined way of the prevailing styles. She caught glimpses of her tall, slender figure in the mirrors of shop windows. Her brisk walk was sending wholesome color into her cheeks. The trim of her black velvet hat brooded like a sombre, artistic shadow over the billows of her blonde hair. Now and then a pair of eyes among the stream of pedestrians dwelt upon her for a moment, for she made a handsome picture.

"I'm free—I'm free," kept hovering on her lips and weaving through her brain. Hanging like a confused dream in the background of her memory were the two years of her married life. To-day's event had tossed those two years out of her life, like a garment one throws away—a drab garment, but with here and there a fleck of gleaming, taunting gold in its dark fabric.

What had become of Frank, she wondered. But she tossed her head defiantly. Why speculate? Her bridges were burned. It had been the only way. At twenty-three a high-spirited woman thinks in terms of positives and negatives. She scores the middle way. Ideals though smashed, resent the dust of compromise. They shrink from the tasks of painful adjustment to what is real.

She was wearing the brilliant entrance of the city's finest hotel. Potted plants on its window sills laughed under the streaming shafts of light from within. Bars of orchestral music came dancing to her ears. A hysterical footman crossed her path to help its occupants out of a touring car that had paused at the curb. Some women descended.

"I'm free—I'm free," kept hovering on her lips and weaving through her brain.

"Why, Marian!" cried one of them, seizing the passer-by in an impulsive embrace. "My, how glad I am to see you again!"

"Mildred!" exclaimed Marian, recognizing a classmate at boarding school.

"I'll be stopping here for a week," was the breathless answer. "Be sure to come and see me. Come and have tea with me to-morrow at half past three, can't you? I'm in an awful rush right now. Must dress for dinner. I'm most frightfully late. I hear you're married, dear. Of course you're happy. Come and tell me all about it," she ended, and vanished into the hotel.

Marian walked on with heavier step. The chance encounter brought crowding upon her the glorious, nearly-forgotten mists of a happy past. The thought of the error of her marriage stabbed her poignantly. How could she tell Mildred everything? Yet she knew she would have to. She would also have to tell others—hosts of others. She had hardly thought of this phase of her burned bridges. She knew women's hunger for marital gossip. They would devour avidly every detail of her story. Many lips would soon be passing it on. She wondered desperately what to tell and what to withhold. She shrank from the task that loomed before her.

(To be continued to-morrow.)

Yes, we still hear ringing in our ears the shouts of O'Toole on the hustings, that a panacea for all our public wrongs would be provided by the return of his friends to power. For eight years this individual worried the electorate of St. John's over the wrongs of the Bond Government and extolled the good management that would follow the rule of him and his friends, but when he got a hand in he did infinitely worse than ever was done before. In fact we can say that the only and most prominent actions of the Morris Government in our settlement have all been directed to the welfare of O'Toole. They burdened us with an extra $1,000 a year to make him magistrate. They took the postal and telegraph office from Patrick-Buck and left his daughter who conducted it to provide for herself on a foreign shore, and gave it to O'Toole, and then the worthless agricultural society of Morris's inception gave him a splendid Shetland pony. In fact this is the only conspicuous souvenir we have of that society. O'Toole has feasted the district with an extra $5,000. They spent about $10,000 to provide a jail, court house, and policeman's quarters in Harpor Main. They took the good Mr. Murphy from us and made him an Honourable (?) in the Legislative Council, after his best and only efforts for Harpor Main were joined to Morris's in putting Mr. Edward Murray into retirement to vacate the post of Magistrate for O'Toole. These are the only deeds, Mr. Editor, that we have whereby to know those men in the future, and they are some of those obligations of Morris that have assisted us along to the necessity of bigger taxation. There is another deed we forgot to mention. It is that of the two officials who drove from Harpor Main to Conception Harpor took and agricultural ram from one man's stable and put him into another, but, like the fly in the spider's parlor, "he never came out again," for all the people know. But, Mr. Editor, amidst these tribulations, "Let us be patient; these severe afflictions

Not from the ground arise; But oftentimes celestial benedictions Assume this dark disguise."

Sincerely yours,
MOUNTED GUARD,

"I'll Come To!"

GALLANT CONDUCT OF HERBERT EVANS, A YOUNG NEWFOUNDLANDER.

Halifax, March 19.—Death was temporarily cheated of its prey when the City of Sydney stranded on Shearwater, on Tuesday, but it took long to reach the wreck yesterday, to the extent of two lives, in an stirring drama as recent years have seen staged on these coasts. High courage and utter cowardice; supreme self sacrifice and craven fear; all mingled in the tragedy that took place among the deadly Sambre led yesterday afternoon, a tragedy that had seven outstanding heroes, several score other participants and over one hundred spectators. I was just about five o'clock that the tragedy occurred. All told, the scene lasted about twenty minutes, and to the spectators on the wreck and the rescuing steamers, those twenty minutes will ever be remembered. Burns and Snow were receiving cargo from No. 2 hatch. Burns was holding the lanyard from the side while Snow took the bales lowered down, when a huge comb swept in from the sea. The dory's bow rose to it, but when just on the top of the wave, there came an angry roar, the wave curled crested and broke with a crash all around the little craft, swamping it on the instant. Both men were thrown out but managed to cling to the dory's sides, and a succession of waves carried them rapidly in to the ledges. William Snow was alone in a dory some distance away and started at once to aid his shipmates. Keeping bow on to the running seas he backed down to the struggling men and so manoeuvred his craft that both the upset men were able to climb on board. They started back to safety with the surf foaming all around them and were nearly out of the broken water when a cross swell struck the little craft and the three were thrown into the yesty waves. Burns and Robert Snow were tangled in some way under the dory. William Snow climbed on the dory's bottom and after great exertions managed to release his cousin and Burns who clung to the sides, by this time well exhausted.

THE NEGLECT OF SCORES OF ONLOOKERS.

Then came the shameful part of the day. All around were men in dories, but none could be induced to venture to their aid. Frantically the struggling trio implored assistance. Men on the City of Sydney and the wrecking steamers nearby, added their voices to the drowning men's entreaties, but not a doryman would venture in. They said nothing, but calmly kept their craft in safety and watched the three struggling. The first move came from the Black Diamond Liner Cabot, about a quarter of a mile away. One of this ship's life boats was lying alongside laden with salvage, and on deck the whole crew had gathered breathlessly watching the tragedy. "By God, I can't see those men drown," said Chief Officer Mooney. "Who'll come with me?" and he jumped into the boat alongside Chief Engineer Freeman, Second Engineer Bonner, and a seaman followed on the instant, and the lifeboat quickly cleared of its cargo, was soon headed for the dory tossing in the surf. Captain Murdoch, of the Dufferin, was on the City of Sydney, and had been vainly endeavoring to get some of the dorymen to go in. He jumped into the nearest craft and offered to go in with its occupants himself. "You can take her," grudgingly said one owner, "we won't go." Nothing daunted, Capt. Murdoch prepared to undertake the rescue single handed, when from the crowd along the wrecked steamer's rail, a young lad, who up to late last night was unknown to Capt. Murdoch, but who was Herbert Evans, a young Newfoundland deckhand on the Cabot shouted "I'll come, too," and climbed down the side and jumped into the dory's stern. Then the years spent in coasting craft and fishing boats came to Capt. Murdoch's assistance, and his cool courage and splendid boatmanship won the highest praise from the onlooking seamen. Evans stood in the stern while Capt. Murdoch backed down to the overturned dory, now almost against the rock. Keeping his dory's bow to the swift running seas, Capt. Murdoch manoeuvred right on top of Snow's dory. In the meantime men on the "Sydney" were smashing in the heads of oil casks and pouring the contents overboard as fast as they could. This soon had some effect on the waves but the little rescuing dory was soon surrounded by boiling surf. Reaching the overturned boat, William Snow was quickly hauled on board Robert Snow, exhausted by his immersion, had sunk but Burns was clinging to the bow. Young Evans rasped his collar and started to lift the longshoreman in, when a sea tore the dories apart. Burns was wrenched from the young Newfoundlanders' grasp and sunk for the last time. The dories were within a few feet of the rock now, and seizing a pair of oars, Evans added his efforts to the fight for safety. Twice the dory was almost submerged by great seas, and each time the harrowed watchers saw the frail craft standing almost on its stern. The Cabot's lifeboat was now on the scene and gallantly stood by to aid Captain Murdoch, but after a hard fight the dory venturally reached safely, and the dufferin soon after started back to Halifax.

Alarming Reports.

Whalers Leaving.

The crew of the whaler Cabot will arrive by the R. M. S. Sardinian which is expected to leave Liverpool about the 4th of April. Capt. Bull will be succeeded by Mate Nelsen who was on the ship last year. Some of the other crews are also expected by the Sardinian.

WILL BE REPRODUCED.—We understand that the Irish melodrama: "A Daughter of Erin," played so successfully by the B. I. S. Dramatic Troupe, on St. Patrick's night, will be re-produced during Easter Week and will be run for two nights and one afternoon.

The One to Own if You Can Own But One.

That is what a critical user of a "Globe-Wernicke" cabinet says of his equipment. Another says "It leaves nothing to be desired." Another says "So complete yet so concise." Another "Perfection as a filing arrangement." Another "It is really indispensable." Another "A surprising advance in handling records." Another "A welcome improvement in office conditions"—and so on. The extensive sale of "Globe" filing cabinets in St. John's is by no means as remarkable as the abundant evidence that it is on merit alone that these devices have earned such generous appreciation. For certain when you become a user you will be well contented with your adaptable and reliable outfit. Mr. Percie Johnson has your catalogue ready for the asking as well as other necessary details.

THE RIGHT HOUSE

Sunday Concerts

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—If we may judge from the "smoke in the room" emanating from the Methodist Ministers' meeting against Sunday Concerts, it was like the inspired Word—"quick and powerful and sharper than a two-edged sword." This comparison was suggested by reading the letter in your issue of Saturday signed "Common Sense Christian," since on the one hand it made him indignant, even wrathful, and, on the other, he claims that it aided Mr. Allen's audience on Sunday evening, in which he is so much interested. Now one would have thought that if the protest had filled Mr. Allen's house, it would have been welcomed by the clamorers of Sunday Concerts; whereas, in reality, it has so disturbed their peace of mind that they seem in danger of losing self-control.

"Common Sense Christian" is so unchristian like in charity that he would deprive those Ministers of their ordinary rights as citizens. Here are men, college trained, most of them bearing the hall-marks of the university, and charged with the responsibility of the spiritual oversight of 7,000 people of St. John's, many of whom are among our most intelligent citizens. Some of their people were preparing to take part in the concert as performers, and others to patronize it as hearers. There was no way open to the ministers of reaching those people before Sunday, when all arrangements would have been made, except by the public press; and yet generous "Common Sense Christian" claims that the protest was an "impertinence" and that "with some degree of propriety perhaps they might have suggested to their own flock to abstain from attending, but nothing further." Now, in view of that, what an ordinary mortal think of "Common Sense Christian's" brotherly sentiments?

"Common Sense Christian" thinks it "incongruous and inconsistent" in a body who believe so strongly in the value of song in the worship of God to take that attitude. But is it? The fact is they have such lofty conceptions of Sacred Song, especially of these great compositions and of the glorious words to which they are set, that to have the whole prostituted to a commercial basis on the Lord's Day, was more than they could stand for. And upon Mr. Allen's own confession (and he cannot truthfully deny it), the desire to augment his income was his great object in selecting Sunday for his concerts.

As to the comparison between such Sunday concerts and the performance of ordinary Ministerial duties on Sundays, it only applies if these duties are performed on that day merely for the sake of the money that may be derived therefrom. In that case they are on a par. He that serves at the sacred altar is entitled to partake of the gifts upon the altar, but he that serves merely for the sake of gifts, is guilty of sacrilege.

And now a single word respecting the "impertinence" of the protest in view of the fact that the concert was under the patronage of the Bishop. To begin with, I have no hesitation in affirming that Methodist Ministers of this city share, to the fullest extent, in the respect and admiration so universally cherished for the Bishop of Newfoundland. They esteem it a privilege to follow his leadership in any good work and work. Let the Bishop sound the note of reform at any time, and he will have no more devoted helpers than those Ministers. But should that respect and admiration preclude them from sounding a warning note to their own people when in their judgment a warning note is necessary? Does the Bishop himself think that in these matters he should have control of the conscience and judgment of Methodist Ministers? They recognize that he must be free to use his judgment in all such matters, irrespective of the opinion of others. May they not reasonably expect the same recognition extended to them? Is any kind of co-operation possible apart from such mutual recognition? In the last analysis, every man must stand or fall to his own Master.

Nor should the Ministers be affected by the results of their protest. Suppose it resulted, as "Common Sense Christian" claims, in a larger house for the concert; that does not prove their action a mistake. The messenger of Christ must deliver his soul whether men hear or whether they forbear.

Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor,
Yours, etc.,
METHODIST.

Fishermen should use these Jiggers and rig them with swivels same style as in Norway, then the Jigger acts like a minnow and when spinning attracts the fish, so that instead of jigging they really snare the Jigger and in this manner you never fail to catch them. Ordinary leads can be used, but the Norwegian style seems more simple and easily made. Our fishermen should try this great Norwegian fish killer.

Marry a Girl if Her Teeth Are Right

"Girls with pink-tinted teeth have a loving disposition and will make good wives," declared Dr. Jacob S. Wells, of Fargo, N.D., a delegate to the National Dentists' convention at Washington, D.C. Young men would do well if they would have their sweethearts' teeth examined before marrying them. Girls who have dull, chalky teeth are not prone to love and will not as a general thing make good wives.

"Girls of widely inclinations have the pink tint just below the gums. It can be readily seen if one will look closely. The color is in the enamel and not, as some dentists state, an overhanging of the gums.

"It would seem that the best course for a young man to pursue when he has doubts about the sincerity of his sweetheart is to have a dentist examine her teeth. I know one who did this. He found that his sweetheart had chalky teeth and that she loved him for his money. These are scientific facts. The disposition of a person can also be determined by the formation of his teeth. If you see a person with square, white, clear teeth the chances are he or she will have a strong character and will and this is simply to stir you to come to distinction in the world."

London Times at a Penny

New York, March 17.—A cable to the New York World from London says: The publisher of the London Times said to-day: "We had orders for 750,000 copies of our first penny issue to-day, but we printed and sold just less than 300,000, because the printing has to be so carefully performed.

"Our orders for to-morrow are still larger, and we have sold over ten pages of small advertisements. The normal size of this paper will be, as to-day, twenty-four pages, but it will run up as high as thirty."

The paper is exactly the same in quality and print as the two-penny edition, and how it is to be made a paying proposition is a problem that is puzzling Fleet Street. According to its last balance sheet the Times made a profit of $100,000 last year; about two per cent on its capital.

Two Children Burned to Death

Cochran, Ontario, March 18.—Mrs. A. Belk, a Russian, was responsible for the death of two of her children, one aged two and a half years, and the other aged nine months. Yesterday Mrs. Belk went out to feed the chicken and she left the two children in the house. When she emerged from the hen house she saw smoke issuing from the dwelling and on rushing inside was able to grab the infant and bring it out and throw it in the snow, but not in time to save its life. She attempted to rescue the other child, but was driven back by the flames. In her efforts at rescue she was badly burned about the face and arms.

Reported Brigands Killed

FIFTEEN HUNDRED CHINESE.

Peking, March 17.—The Government troops at King Tze-Kwan, in the Province of Ho-Nan, were defeated to-day by a force of brigands commanded by "White Wolf," who recently looted and burned Lao Ho-Kow in the Province of Hu-Poh. On that occasion they murdered Dr. T. Froyland, a Norwegian missionary, and wounded the Rev. O. M. Sama, another Norwegian.

According to reports from missionaries "White Wolf's" desperadoes killed 1,500 of the Chinese inhabitants of Lao Ho-Kow and tortured another 400 to force them to disclose hidden treasures. They looted property worth millions of dollars.

The brigands are now threatening Sian-Fu, capital of the State of Shensi.

A ham should be soaked overnight, then washed and scraped before it is boiled. Place it in a large kettle, in cold water, and heat gradually. It is best to let it remain an hour before it comes to a boil, then let it simmer gently, allowing twenty-five or more minutes to each pound.

When steaming velvet try the following method: Take an ordinary colander, place this upside down over a basin partly filled with boiling water. Then cover the whole with a thick cloth, place over the gas burner and turn the gas just high enough to keep the water boiling steadily.

THE DIFFERENCE.

In consequence of the great success of Molassine Meal, other foods containing molasses have been put on the market. Sellers are frequently asked—

What is the difference between MOLASSINE MEAL and

The answer is, that many other sugar foods are simple imitations of MOLASSINE MEAL and do not contain any antiseptic, digestive, health-giving, worm-destroying properties.

Further, to give some of these molassed foods in quantities to cattle is dangerous, as they contain unneutralised potash salts, which have an injurious effect on the animal organism, frequently causing purgation and death.

LONDON, March 22. In order to prevent outbreaks, the police in Ireland have been told not to take any steps to enforce the gun license act, in cases where the members of the Ulster volunteers are seen carrying rifles in camp or elsewhere. The Act empowers the authorities to seize all unlicensed fire arms. The greatest danger is believed to lie in the possibility of anti-Home Rule and Nationalist workmen coming to blows, as this might start a general conflict. King George is keeping in closest touch with the situation. He summoned the Secretary of State for War to Buckingham Palace at an early hour, and also sent his private secretary to the Premier's residence in Downing Street, to secure the latest information. In the meantime the movement of troops continued in Ireland, the centre of attraction shifting to Curragh, twenty-five miles from Dublin, where the third cavalry brigade, under General Gough, and the fourth infantry brigade, under Colonel Bull, were stationed. General Sir Arthur Paget, commanding the forces, spent all day in camp where he held conference with fifty officers of Curragh, Dublin, Kildare and Newbridge garrisons. It was said that orders had arrived for the despatch of the third brigade to Ulster, but that this could not be carried into execution, because practically all the officers had resigned. Orders for the despatch of the Sixteenth Lancers Also Failed Execution.

The reason being the wholesale retirement of officers. According to some reports, military men have unanimously refused information that a Dublin despatch says the resignation from the Curragh force numbered forty, while others place the number at fifty. The Government is embarrassed by the dissatisfaction which even exists among the officers who continue on duty, for the army is officered from aristocratic families and the great majority of the aristocratic classes sympathize with the covenanters. Many rumors were floated throughout the day. Among those published and denied were reports that the Government issued a ultimatum to officers giving them 14 days to decide whether to obey orders, and that two companies of the Dorsetshire regiment in Belfast had thrown down their arms. A Dublin message to the London Press Association, says that the officers who refused to obey orders will be arrested and that many of those who had undertaken to go to Ulster have done so on condition that they are not to carry arms against the Unionists. Throughout the two days' crisis there has not been witnessed a breach of the peace anywhere, and if Sunday passes without rioting, officials will draw a sigh of relief. Nationalist acting on John Redmond's advice have abandoned their parade in Londonderry, which would have been all most certain to result in fighting with Orangemen.

LONDON, This Morning. The Government's military precautions to preserve order in Ulster have precipitated a crisis without parallel in the history of the British Army; and rather than be placed in a position where they might be called upon to act against Ulster Covenanters, numbers of officers have resigned their commissions. While the War Office refuses to say how many have resigned, popular belief based on reports from different regiments is that the number of withdrawals have crippled the whole military organization in Ireland, and prevented carrying out orders for moving several large bodies of troops. Marquis Londonderry, one of Ulster's leaders, said to-night nothing of such a character had occurred in the British Army since the days of the American revolution. Dublin curiosity is at fever heat over the question, how the Government is to deal with the resignations; but Liberal sentiment is that the succeeding officers should be court-martialed. Many Conservatives argue the situation amounts to civil war, and that the officers should be at liberty to choose which faction they should ally themselves with. The entrance of King George on the scene as peacemaker, was the dramatic event of the day. He had long conferences with the Prime Minister, Secretary of State for War, Colonel Seeley, and several high officers. He afterwards summoned Field Marshal Lord Roberts, who has been criticized by the Liberals for utterances which they construed as encouragement to officers to refuse to obey orders. From the Palace the veteran Field Marshal Drove Directly to the War Office, where, he had a long talk with the Secretary for War. The Army Council held a long sitting at the War Office, the Generals and lesser officers of staff coming and going through the day. An official report issued to-night, says: "All proposed movements of troops in Ulster are now being carried out. These movements," the report continues, "were purely of a precautionary kind with the object of giving adequate protection to depots of arms, ammunition, stores and other Government property against risks. There has not been and is not now any intention to move troops into Ulster, except for these purposes." Conferences between King George, Premier Asquith and other ministers with reference to Ulster, continued all day. Churchill twice visited the Prime Minister in the morning, as did Birell, Secretary of State for War, who had a long conference with the King, while Asquith and Field Marshal French, Chief of the General Staff, later in the day spent an hour at the Palace. The Prime Minister also had an interview with the Archbishop of Canterbury in a general way the situation to-day seems to be somewhat easier, the public being inclined to await with patience the expected statements in the Commons to-morrow. Regarding the movement of troops in Ulster and the resignation of officers, Beresford said: "I know for a fact that many officers including those of high rank and some of the best men we possess will resign their positions if ordered to take part in the coercion of Ulster even if the order alone is issued speaking to a Nationalist demonstration to-day, at Glasgow. Joseph Devlin said: "The Irish Party had never asked for the army in Ulster. If the Government felt it their duty to see to it that law and order were preserved in the face of threats, the responsibility was the Government's. I here should be riot and disorder, the responsibility was not with the Nationalists."

The Heart Of a Jewess
 The Heart of a Jewess, the long acted two reel drama of the famous actor Co., will be the feature at the recent Picture Palace to-day and to-morrow. This subject is well worthy of special mention and will win the praise of the Crescent patrons. Added to the headlines are three other pictures, viz., "Captain Brand's Wife," an Indian drama; "Cotton Time in Arkansas"; and "The Doctor's Orders," all first class subjects. Miss Louise Arkandy, the popular violinist and soloist will be heard to advantage. "The Flying Circus," a spectacular three reel film 5,000 feet long will be a feature during the coming week, particulars will be announced upon arrival. "The Flying Circus" has won much fame and will be the sensation of the week. The usual fairy matinees are fast becoming popular with additional pictures on Saturday afternoons.

Fire at Botwood.
 Deputy Minister of Justice Hutchings received a message on Saturday night from Botwood saying in effect that the Salvation Army school house here had been totally destroyed by fire. No particulars of the fire or as to its origin were received.

TESTIMONIALS.
 To Dr. F. Stafford & Son,
 Dear Sirs,—
 I strongly recommend your Prescription "A" to all sufferers with Indigestion and Dyspepsia. I used all kinds of medicine and consulted various specialists without cure. I saw your Prescription "A" advertised in the papers and tried a few bottles and it made a perfect cure of me.
 MRS. HALL,
 Hayward Ave., St. John's.
 To Dr. F. Stafford & Son,
 Dear Sirs,—
 I am sending you 50 cents in stamps. Please send me one 50 cent bottle of Prescription "A", the 10 cents balance will pay for postage. You sent me a trial bottle a short while ago and it almost cured my wife and I think another 50 cent bottle will make a cure. I have tried doctors and all kinds of medicines but I don't believe that there is any medicine that can cure a bad stomach like Stafford's Prescription "A". I am more than thankful that you advertised this medicine. Please forward as quick as possible.
 P. S.—Call at our Drug Store, Theatre Hill, and see these testimonials for yourself.

Cold Saves Millions.
 Populace Momes much Quicker in Zero Weather.

Cold weather costs millions of dollars for extra heating and clothing, but it pays for this many times over by saving us time. Nobody loiters in cold weather, we take short cuts and hustle so that each of us saves something by extra speed. All work done outdoors or even in chilly rooms is pecked up to the limit of efficiency. All this adds millions of dollars to the sum total of effective work done by the nation on a cold day. But rather than this is the indirect result of compelling the dawdler in a rowd to wake up and move briskly. Going in and out of trains and cars wherever there is a crowd the whole multitude sets it space to accommodate the slowest and most worthless person of them all. There may be ninety-nine people whose time is valuable, who have a purpose in life and hate to waste unnecessary moments in transportation. Yet in inclement weather every one has to wait till some fat or sleepy old "fuddy-duddy" waddles up or down the stairs. To push these sleepy individuals aside is considered rude and ill-mannered.

In cold weather the temper of the crowd changes, and even if the dawdler doesn't wake up of his or her own account, the others will push along with scant ceremony. Half a minute saved for 12 people in this way means one hour's time rescued from going to waste.

It is probably this occasional speeding up which accounts for the difference in character and efficiency of northern as compared with southern races.

Milk and Butter Made From Beans.
 London, March 17.—The Times describes the discovery in a London chemical laboratory of a process of manufacturing synthetically a pure and wholesome milk of high nutritive value from a basis of casein, obtained from the soya bean. Excellent cheese and butter, the Times says, have been made from this synthetic milk.

Important Nerve Grafting Discovery.
 London, arch 17.—The Times reports the result of important nerve grafting experiments recently carried out by Prof. Robert Kennedy, of Glasgow, proving conclusively that a brain cell may be taught to perform two separate functions. Each nerve communicates with a particular set of brain cells which controls its activities. It was supposed that these cells were able to perform only the functions allotted to them by nature.
