Stella Mordaunt: The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XLIV.
"But, Stella, dearest!" she stammered, as a sense of Stella's equivocal position flashed upon her, "you were with him alone on the island. It is quite evident that he is madly in love with you, and that you—Forgive me, dear, if I speak plainly, but—" she laughed softly, "everyone can see that you are just dying of love for each other, and that there is no question—And what is there to prevent it? I think you must be very rich—you are a Rattion. I'm not sure that we shall not have to call you Lady Stella—and there can be no doubt that he is the real Earl of Rattion, and master of the Hall. There couldn't be a more suitable match. Besides," she laughed softly again and put her arm round Stella, "it is almost as if you were married already; why, you neither of you could marry anyone else. It is most splendid!"

She meant well, her words were prompted by the truest friendship and affection; but in speaking thus plainly, she had not allowed for that maidenly pride which was one of Stella's chief characteristics; and the effect of her speech upon Stella simply appalled her; for Stella's face went pale, and, withdrawing herself from Cecilia's arms, she stood at a little distance, looking straight before her, as if she were realizing the full significance of her friend's words.

"You think that—that he is bound to marry me?" she said at last, very slowly. "That because we were together on the island, the world will think that it is his duty to do so? No, no; don't speak! I know what you said; I can see by your face what you think—that he is bound to me—that he is not free to choose—that the world will think—"

She flung up her hands before her, suddenly hot face and stood as if overwhelmed with shame.

Cecilia was silent and aghast at what she had done.

"Oh, forgive me—forgive me, Stella!" she exclaimed, "I never meant—"

Stella held out both hands to her with a smile full of tenderness.

"There is nothing to forgive," she said. "You have told me the truth; and it is not better that I should hear it from you, who love me, than from others? I must think over what you have said. Rath is a great man now; he must be free to take his own way in life, to choose—to choose—" She nearly broke down, but mastered her emotion with a great effort. "How selfish I am to think of anything but his escape from the peril in which he was placed, and the good fortune which has come to him! I think I will lie down, for I feel suddenly tired. I will come down presently. Thank Lord Lisle for me for all his goodness to me and his kindness to Rath. I won't attempt to thank you—why should I? You know how grateful I am, how my heart—yes, I will lie down—and rest."

Cecilia was almost in tears; but she kissed Stella and left her without a word.

Meanwhile, Rath had been taken home to Bryan Court, where, it is needless to say, he was at once surrounded by hero-worshippers of the most pronounced type. Lady Bryan regarded him as the man who had saved Edward's life and given him a fortune, and Sir Gilbert was full of admiration for the heroic qualities and patriotic bearing of this young man who had spent the whole of his life in an island solitude.

In scriptural language, they set food before him and tended on him as if he had come through some terrible danger, some fight against overwhelming odds—as indeed he had. Edward could scarcely keep his hand off Rath's shoulder, and hovered about him as if he were afraid that Rath might be snatched from his side again, and the younger members of the family gazed at him with awe and admiration, as they might have gazed at a particularly young and gallant Robinson Crusoe or modern Bayard. Before many minutes, Rath had got one of the little Bryan girls on his

The Hundred Ways Which Don't End Corns

Perhaps you say—"I've tried and tried, but found nothing that ends a corn."

You might keep trying for years, Madam. There are a hundred ways which don't. Most of them are very much alike.

But remember this: There is one way which has removed 70 million corns. It is now removing half the corns that grow.

It's a plaster which contains a bit of wondrous wax. It ends the corn pain in a jiffy. It ends the corn itself in two days. It gently loosens the corn until it comes out without any pain or soreness.

When you merely pare corns—When you use some folderol—Bear this in mind. There are folks all around you—users of Blue-jay—who never suffer corns. You are wronging yourself when you fail to do what they do.

knee; and she nestled against him, simply "blown out with pride," as one of her brothers candidly informed her afterwards.

"Of course you will stay here, Rath," said Sir Gilbert, who had caught the "Rath" from Edward, and, indeed, would have found it difficult to present to call him "Rattion." "You will make this, Edward's home, your home, until—until your affairs are settled. We won't speak of that wretched, unfortunate man."

Rath looked up and nodded. Then he looked round shyly, and with a boyish blush, asked in a low voice:

"Where is Stella?"

"The Lisles took her home," said Edward. "We thought it better that she should rest."

"Yes," assented Rath, quietly, and as if he understood. "I will go to her presently. She will want me," he added, with a simplicity which touched Lady Bryan.

While they were talking, Mr. Bulpit was announced. After greeting the Bryans he went up to Edward and held out a hand.

"I must beg your pardon for troubling you so soon, Lord Rattion—they all started at the 'Lord Rattion'—but I am sorry to say it is necessary. The suddenness with which the truth has been flashed upon us, the terrible discovery that the criminal is in possession of your title and estates, the fact that he is my client—and, though I would give ten years of my life to range myself on this gentleman's side, I cannot do so. I am a lawyer; the traditions of my profession—" He paused for a moment, then went on grimly: "I may or may not be convinced of the justness of your claims; but I have come to tell you that while my client, the present holder of the title, is capable of defending its possession, I shall fight against you. I shall defend him at the Criminal Court to the best of my poor ability as I should defend the poorest and humblest of my clients, and I shall, on his behalf, contest your claim." The old man's voice was broken with emotion, as he continued: "But—but, in spite of this attitude which, as a lawyer, I am compelled to adopt, I will be glad if you will permit me to shake hands with you and to express my sympathy with you. If my client, the present holder of the title, be acquitted of the crime of which he is charged, he may succeed in keeping you out of the estates and title for years; and I have to beg that when you think of me, you will regard me as a lawyer who is endeavoring to do his duty according to the lights which guide the profession to which he has the honor to belong."

It is needless to say that half of this was Greek to Rath, but he understood the purport of the whole, and holding his hand to the old man said:

"That's all right. I think I understand. You stand by a man when he is down—as you stood by me just now. Isn't that so?"

"That is it, exactly," assented Mr. Bulpit, huskily, as, with another shake of the hand, he left the room.

"Poor Bulpit, I am sorry for him," said Edward. "You can see that he believes, that he is convinced of the justness of your claim, of the guilt of that wretched man; but he is the best type of an honourable lawyer, and he'll stand by Rattion—I beg your pardon, Rath—he'll stand by his client to the last."

Of course there was a great deal of rapid and excited talk. The life on the island; the discovery of the gold; the murder; Rath's strange and exalted position were all discussed; but Rath listened rather than talked; and presently he grew restless and absent-minded, and suddenly he said:

"I will go to Stella now. She will be expecting me."

Edward nodded.

"I'll drive you over," he said.

It was only natural that he should be compelled to suppress a sigh when he spoke. For the happiness which awaited Rath contrasted strongly with his, Edward's unhappiness.

Rath was going to the girl he loved, the girl who loved him; but Edward could not go to Mary, though his heart was full of her. What must she be suffering at this moment! The man she had promised to marry was accused of a cruel and cowardly murder, was in danger of losing his title and estates, was, as Edward thought, lying in Rattion gaol.

Edward would have given all the wealth he possessed to have been able to go to her and comfort her; yes, though he could not have permitted himself to have spoken a word of love. To have taken her hand, to have whispered, "Mary, whatever happens, I am still your friend, trust to me, lean on me," would have been some consolation in his present condition; but he knew that he could not go to her. Like a true friend, he put self behind him as he drove Rath to the Abbey, and talked of nothing but Rath's affairs.

But Rath listened absently to the references to his new and enviable position. To him it did not seem of any consequence whether he remained simply "a Rath Rayne" of the island, or became "Earl of Rattion," and master of Rattion Hall. All his thoughts were of Stella, and as they approached the Abbey, he was possessed by a feverish impatience which rendered him deaf to every word Edward said.

When they reached the house, Lisle came forward to meet them, and grasped Rath's hand. Lisle had spent a quiet hour in his own room, and, with the inherent nobility of his class, had schooled himself to meet this lover of the girl he himself loved; and there was no reserve in the friendliness in which he greeted Rath.

"You want to see Miss Mordaunt—I beg her pardon, Miss Rattion, or is it Lady Rattion?" he said, with a smile.

"She has just gone into the garden with my sister. You will find them in the arbour." He laid his hand on Rath's shoulder. "You will want to go to them at once. Come into the house when you have seen them; my sister, all of us, want to tell you how glad we are, how we sympathize—"

Rath, with a nod, strode away towards the arbour.

At his approach, Cecilia, who had been sitting in the sheltered summer-house with Stella—and almost in silence—rose, and, with a murmured word, made her escape by a side path. Stella sat, her heart beating fast, the colour coming and going in her face. Every step of his echoed in her heart, and in the few seconds which intervened before he stood before her, all her life on the island passed across her brain.

He paused for a moment at the entrance, then came in, his arms extended, and with her name on his lips.

But Stella remained seated, her eyes downcast, her face pale.

"Stella!" he cried, not loudly, but with all his love in his voice. "I have come."

"How do you do, Lord Rattion?" she said.

He stared at her, his hands fell to his sides, and he looked at her with amazed, bewildered eyes.

"Stella," he said, reproachfully, "are you not glad to see me?"—for the change in her manner, the white face, and tightly set lips, daunted him. "What is the matter?"

"Nothing," she said, with unnatural calm, though her heart was beating wildly. "I am glad you have come. I wanted to tell you—to congratulate you. You are the Earl of Rattion—I am—all your friends are so glad."

He looked at her in amazement.

"The Earl of Rattion? Am I? They say so. I don't understand—yet. What does it matter? Nothing matters but that you and I are together again. Think of it, Stella! Together! never to part any more—never!"

She could scarcely breathe; the longing to cast herself upon his breast, to feel his arms round her, nearly thrust maidenly pride itself from its place.

"Yes," she faltered. "But—but I am going away. I have just been telling Lady Cecilia that—that I—I want to go away; that—"

"Very well," he said, cheerfully; "we'll go anywhere you like, Stella!"—as if smitten by a sudden idea—"let us go back to the island! Yes, that's what we'll do!"

She caught her breath and tried to smile; but it was a wavering, uncertain smile; for oh! how she longed to be there with him alone!

Alone!

"You—you can scarcely do that. You are a great man now, Rath—a very great man, here in England, and you will have to stay and—and—"

"Shall we?" he said, with a short laugh. "Who says so? I don't think I care much for England. I like the island best—that is, when you are there."

"But I shall not be there," she faltered. "I shall be here."

"Then I won't go," he said, simply. "I'll stay here with you, of course. How pale you look! Different to what you did on the island. Better let us go back there, Stella. We—were happy there!"

At this, poor Stella's breath failed her for a moment.

BRITISH THEATRE.

The management of the "British" announce another first class bill for the balance of the week. Carefully chosen photo plays suitable to all tastes will be shown and as usual the big extra entertainment will be given to the "little ones" to-morrow afternoon. The melo-drama: "The Mad Mountaineer" is a most powerful and exciting western story abounding with thrills. There is also a political story of interest and an entertaining Mexican adventure besides two splendid comedies.

Miss Tapper will continue to please at the piano and Arthur Priestman Cameron will sing a comedy song.

"BREAD UPON THE WATERS"

Is the two reel special feature the Crescent Picture Palace shows to-day produced by the Vitagraph Company, featuring Lillian Walker and Harry Northrup, imparting his high ideals to his life and work, brings him fame and fortune, the sacrifice made for others returns a thousand fold. "In the Actor" a classy comedy with Billy Quirk and Constance Talmadge.
G. M. Anderson features in "Broncho Billy Rewarded," a fine western drama. "The Smuggler's Daughter" is a divinely farce comedy with the La-bin comedy stars. Mrs. Hannaford sings a fine ballad and the talented pianist has prepared a special musical programme for the show. The Crescent is well ventilated and is always cool and comfortable.

ONE WONDERFUL NIGHT - AT THE NICKEL.

The Nickel's much-talked of picture: "One Wonderful Night" is the great attraction for this evening.
Everyone has heard of this great "movie" and everyone is anxious to see it. Francis X. Bushman winner of the World's contest is in the leading role. This picture is in four reels and to be appreciated should be seen from the start. Go early and enjoy it. The "Hazard of Helen" will be continued. To-morrow afternoon there will be a bumper matinee for children, when the "Million Dollar Mystery" will be repeated. Be sure and send the little ones.

ROSSLEY'S WEST END.

Great satisfaction is expressed by the patrons of the Little House in the West End as one gentleman very aptly put it, the little-house with the big show, and it is not only quantity but quality as well. The prettiest song ever heard is sung this last half of the week. "Somebody's Boy" has gone to the front. Somebody's Boy is bearing the Brunt, the latest in patriotic songs. The pictures are very good and carefully selected by Mr. Rossley. The Little West End there is always clean, cosy and comfortable, and the price within the reach of all.

Leaving Halifax
for Port Nelson.

The S. S. Bejauventure, which arrived at Halifax on Tuesday last from this port, sails to-morrow for Hudson Bay, going as far north as Port Nelson, taking along Canadian Government officials and workmen and a large quantity of supplies.

The S. S. Bejauventure is due here to-night from North Sydney and after discharging she will get ready for her trip to the Far North, leaving here one day next week.

Reservist Writes.

Reservist R. Albert Joy, son of Mr.
S. Joy, of New Cover Street, writing to a friend complains of the death of local papers received by the boys in blue, and says that bundles of papers from home would be gladly welcomed by the Reservists at any time.
At the time of writing Reservist Joy was stationed on the drifter Lily Bank, and is enjoying excellent health. He says that about 20 other Newfoundlanders are at similar work and are engaged on the different ships of the fleet of which the Lily Bank forms a unit.

lowing message from Capt. Parsons,

25,000-Ton Dreadnought and 26,200
Ton Battle Cruiser.

New York, July 1.—Definite information concerning the growth of the German navy has been difficult to obtain, owing to the nation's policy of secrecy. Probably the latest information is contained in a letter written by a German naval officer interned in Holland.

He says that since the beginning of the war a dreadnought of 25,000 tons and a battle-cruiser of 26,200 tons and a speed of 23 knots, have been completed and commissioned. A last moment change in both of these vessels was the substitution of 15-inch guns for the 12-inch, which were in the original plans. The destruction wrought by the 15-inch guns of the British Queen Elizabeth is said to have prompted the substitution.

Besides the above, according to this authority, two small very fast cruisers have been completed and by the end of the year Germany will have four more dreadnoughts and a number of battle-cruisers. These are rapidly nearing completion, and it is said will mount even heavier than the 15-inch.

Many New Submarines.

According to the German naval officer, the German shipyards have been busy turning out submarines, in many cases to the exclusion of other war vessels. At the Cockerill Works, near Liege, twelve small submarines have been built. These are from 300 to 350 tons each, and can be taken apart and shipped by rail to the port from which they will operate. They have a submerged speed of twelve knots, and on the surface can do sixteen, and are able to fire two torpedoes at a time. Half of these were ready for service on June 1.

The Germania (Krupp), Vulcan, Howaldt, Voss, Schichau and Blohm yards, since the beginning of the war,
according to the German naval officer, have turned out twenty-four submarines of 1,200 tons each, with a submerged speed of twenty-two knots. These have four torpedo tubes and carry two heavy-calibre quickfire guns. They have a steaming radius of about 3,000 miles and are fast enough on the surface to overhaul any steamship except the fastest trans-Atlantic liners. It is also said that it was one of this class that made the trip to the Dardanelles and is now operating there to the detriment of the British blockading squadron.

British "Sub" Antidote.

These yards, the naval officer says, have also turned out twelve 800-ton submarines. These are a submerged speed of fifteen and a surface speed of twenty knots, and have four torpedo tubes and two quick-fire guns.
Twelve smaller submarines, of 300 tons each, with two torpedo tubes and one quick-fire gun also have been completed. These have a submerged speed of fourteen and a surface speed of eighteen knots. More than half of these submarines are now in commission.

Britain, on the other hand, it is said, has designed and is now building an "antidote" for submarines.
These are high-speed vessels of very shallow draught, which have been built to ram submarines. They are broad in the beam and have high faring bows like the bow of a gasdola, and will be used to pursue the submarines into their very bases and to drive them from the sea.

Film Actresses Burned

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 1.—The premature explosion of powder in a scene for motion picture enacted in the yard of the Vitagraph Company on Elm avenue at 12.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon caused serious injury to three actresses and minor injuries to several others. One of the actresses, Miss May Kearney, is in the Coney Island Hospital with burns on her hands, arms and face. She is in a serious condition.

The other two women Catherine Fox and Mrs. Cockran Weldon were burned about the hands and faces.
They were taken to the Kings County Hospital.

The scene in which the explosion took place was in a street especially laid for the purpose in the yard of the film company. The play was "Defenceless America" by Hudson Maxim, and the explosion was to occur in a war scene in which 550 men and women take part. A bomb was to fall into the street and the explosion was to be made by the ignition of powder by wires which ran across the yard.

The wires, were stretched on the ground of the yard, between boards.
When a wagon crossed the wires a short circuit was effected. This resulted in the explosion of the powder before the time set for it. Miss Kearney was just leaving the scene after finishing her part when the explosion occurred. She and those following her were severely burned. Several of the actresses fainted and had to be revived by others in the yard.

Foreign Enlistment.

A despatch from Washington says that the British Ambassador has asked the State Department to inform him what distinction, if any, it draws between questions of neutrality involved in the return of reservists to those European countries, which have reserve systems and the departure of volunteers to those countries which have no such system. We doubt the story. We are convinced Sir Cecil Spring Rice never put a question in such a form. To raise such a general issue would be futile, as it would not fit the facts of the case, and would be of no practical use. Both sets of Belligerents have reserve systems. There are the Newfoundland Naval Reservists. The British Army has reservists. So have the armies of Russia, France, Italy and Serbia. The despatch says the Ambassador points out that reservists have been permitted to return to Germany, Austria and Turkey, whilst legal action has been taken against persons forwarding volunteers for the British army. This may be so, and we have read of Italian reservists leaving the States to join their colors. The question might arise whether there has been any distinction in treatment of reservists of the two sets of belligerents, and we are not to believe there has been any discrimination shown by the Washington authorities between them. The raising of volunteers in the States for service with a belligerent against a nation with whom the States is at peace is an old question, more than a century old, and the principle adopted by the United States was incorporated in a law of Congress passed in 1794, which was revised and re-enacted in 1818. This law declared it to be a misdemeanor for any person, within the jurisdiction of the United States to hire or enlist troops or seamen for service against a country with whom the United States was not at war. A year or so later the British Parliament enacted a similar measure, and it is a criminal act, for any person in the British dominions, without the King's license, to enlist or induce any other person to enlist in the service of a foreign state at war with a nation which is friendly with us, or to leave or induce any person to leave His Majesty's dominions for such a purpose.

As to Foreign Enlistment, the same principle has been adopted by the British and Americans, and the British Ambassador would not stuff himself by objecting to the carrying out of a law adopted by both countries.

If it is a fact that the British Ambassador has dealt with the subject at all, we believe it would be only to raise the question whether or not the sending of reservists by German Americans was not as much a breach of the American law, as the raising of volunteers for the British service by pro-Britishers.

The Turk in Jerusalem.

(Manchester Guardian.)
The most grievous shock which the impressionable visitor receives is the sight of Turkish soldiers with rifles in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, and again out at Bethlehem, in the sacred Grotto of the Nativity. Here the On Bashi, or corporal, comes on duty and carefully counts the silver lamps in the very grotto itself to see that none has been taken. He carries a short sword and a kourbaje, or rhinoceros-hide whip. Seldom has Palm Sunday passed, or even Easter Day itself, without disturbance. Let us be fair to the Turk. His manner as guardian is exemplary—far more reverent than that of some of the polyglot Christians who swarm in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. And his presence there has been necessary in the circumstances, for the fires of enmity smoulder angrily from generation to generation, and Greek and Latin, Armenian and Copt are apt to quarrel on Resurrection Day.

Youthful Burglar Brought to Task

To-day a twelve year old lad was before court charged with having entered the Plaindealer Office at night time and maliciously doing damage, both on the 3rd and 8th instant. It appears that the boy, who was acquainted with the surroundings of the place, operating during the midnight hours of Friday last, and managed somehow, though he did not use a false key, to get into the printing office. This time he escaped and without loot as the next morning when the Plaindealer employees resumed work they found some type that they had seen the previous evening in a topsy-turvy state. It was concluded that some unknown visitor had entered and a watch was kept. On Wednesday night last between 12 and 1 o'clock, Constables Day and Forsy noticed a light flickering in the Plaindealer building and went to investigate. Creeping inside they observed the lad referred to and he ransacking some papers. He was immediately placed under arrest. He pleaded guilty to-day and was remanded to the House of Correction to-morrow.

Salt Cargo Arrives.

Word was received to-day by the Deputy Minister of Customs that the schr. Lucy House had arrived at Hr. Peyton from Santa Pola with a cargo of salt. In view of the salt famine prevalent all round the coast the arrival of this vessel with a cargo will be hailed with delight by the fisher folk of Hr. Peyton and vicinity.

Tour of the Prelates.

(Manchester Guardian.)
Special to Evening Telegram.
PLACENTIA, This Afternoon.
His Excellency Mgr. Stagni and suite, who are guests of Monsignor Keardon, the past few days, enjoyed a trip by motor boat to Northeast and Southeast Arms yesterday. A pleasant feature of the trip was to witness the hundreds of salmon leaping and breaching around the boat. To-day His Excellency and suite visited the Court House where they were received by Magistrate O'Reilly and shown the curios under his charge. Bishop Power and Chairman Frs. Sears and St. Croix, who came by train last evening, are also guests at a run of 22 days from Barbadoes. They will leave on route westward by Glencoe at midnight. Bishop March returns to Hr. Grace to-morrow evening. His Excellency and suite expressed themselves delighted with their visit to Placentia, and with the princely hospitality of our beloved Monsignor.—Cor.

Dorothy Baird Arrives

The schr. Dorothy Baird, Capt. Keating, reached port this morning after a run of 22 days from Barbadoes. She brought a cargo of molasses to Jas. Baird, Ltd. The vessel would have made a quicker passage had she been beset on Wednesday morning last and was on the Southern Shore ever since. In the early part of the voyage heavy weather was encountered for a few days and two jibs were carried away, besides some water casks were washed overboard.

Meigle Back From Straits.

The s.s. Meigle, Capt. Goobie, arrived at Humbermouth at 5.30 a.m. to-day, having made all ports of call to Battle Harbor going and returning. The ship reports having met ice from Bonne Esperance to Battle Harbor and was jammed at Chateau for a whole day. All along the coast contrabats have been landed and fishing operations hindered for the past ten days.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

In our training of children we are constantly tempted to contradict ourselves. At one time we appeal to their bravery, we solicit courage for doing this or that, for enduring pain or discomfort. Shortly we have occasion to call upon fear of injury, or of disapproval. In one case we exalt courage and laud it as among the highest of virtues and remind the child of all the heroes we have not yet forgotten. But in a few hours we exalt prudence and remind him of the miserable fate of the foolhardy who did not look twice before they leaped. It is not necessary, however, to suppose that courage and caution exclude each other. Fear as a help in training is a double edged weapon. We have learned that obedience based on fear will turn into defiance at the critical point. Parents who rule through a sympathetic understanding and firm hold of the child's needs, are far more successful than those who arouse fear.

Items of Interest.

The gathering of further evidence to support the theory that there was once a land bridge stretching across the Atlantic from Newfoundland to Great Britain, and thence to a Scandinavia, is one of the purposes of a geological expedition from Princeton University which will visit Newfoundland this summer.

Speaking before the Conference of International Relations at Ithaca, N. Y., last week, Dr. Andrew D. White, expressed the belief that the European war will lead to the establishment of a great international tribunal, and the potentates who oppose it will have to step off their thrones. He suggested that such a tribunal might be established at the Hague.

Dr. Auguste Chailion, a young physician connected with the Pasteur Institute, was killed while carrying out the dangerous task of disinfecting bodies lying between the French and German lines. The glittering can containing the disinfectant he carried, caught the eye of a German sentry, and fire was opened with trench mortars. One of the shells struck Dr. Chailion, killing him instantly.

The overall factory of the Peabody Company, Limited, at Walkerville, Ont., a suburb of Windsor, was partially wrecked by the explosion of a bomb early on the morning of June 21st. It is believed by Detroit Germans or pro-Germans, angered by the fact that the company is making British military uniforms. Shortly after this explosion, dynamite was found under the rear of the Windsor armoury, all prepared for an explosion, which, fortunately, was frustrated by the force prematurely burning out.

A teaspoonful of ammonia mixed with a half cupful of cold tea is said to be excellent for cleaning black felt hats or men's black coats. Apply with a bit of cloth.

It is a good idea to provide plenty of clean paper for the kitchen. It can be used when preparing vegetables or fruit, and paper and trimmings can be put into the fire.

Lingerie ribbons should not be ironed whilst wet, or they will become stiff. They should be pulled into a smooth condition, and when dry pressed over with a cool iron.

Stars Again Beaten.

The St. Bon's defeated the Stars last evening by two goals to one. Conditions were ideal for football and there was a large attendance of on-lookers. The exhibition was good on the whole, though the St. Bon's out-classed their opponents in combination work. W. Callahan scored the two goals for St. Bon's and Kavanagh got the only one for the Stars. Towards the latter part of the game the Stars had play very much in their favour but were prevented from scoring by the excellent defence put up by the St. Bon's backs. Knight gave a fine exhibition of goal keeping. The players were:—

Star — Goal, Thompson; backs, Walsh, T. Duggan; halves, Kavanagh, Hart, Brien; forwards, Whelan, Bell, Gault, Morgan, Caul.

St. Bon's — Goal, Knight; backs, Fox, Higgins; halves, Rowlin, McGrath, Power; forwards, W. Callahan, Kelly, Smith, Furneaux, Walt Callahan.

PARADISE.

There is a better world they say, a shining place across the way, where people weep no more; and all my days I have been told of jasper gates and walls of gold, and streets of virgin ore. I'm sure there is a better land, where we'll rejoice to heat the hand, and lay our burdens down; but no one there thinks gold a prize, and none will pause to analyze the metal in his crown. The pictures of that joyous place with which they bring me face to face, are sordid, gross and mean; for one, I don't believe in such a heaven for the idle rich, with gold and gasoline. The truth about that land is sealed; its glories have not been revealed, men would not understand; and all the stories that we hold of pearly gates and streets of gold, were writ by mortal hand. They do not measure values there as we do a fourth rate millionaire; there's such thing as Cost; if gold is valued more than zinc, up where the angels nectar drink, then heaven is a frost. Ah, no, my friends, that sunny shore, where we shall meet when life is o'er, has ne'er a use for coin; it has no gold along its pike; it does not measure values like Chicago or Des Moines.

If You are Hat Particular!

We are showing some noteworthy Straws, mostly fitted with that easy Ban Tan Ivy Band, as worn by King George V.

339th Day of the War

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day. The Italian navy suffered its first serious loss, an Austrian submarine having successfully torpedoed the cruiser Amalfi in the narrow waters of the Adriatic. Most of the crew were saved. This is the second Allied warship to fall a victim of an Austrian underwater craft. The French cruiser Leon Gambetta having earlier in the war been caught in the Ionian Sea. It is realized the loss of the Italian warship is only one of the incidents which must be expected where the fleets keep to sea, blockading enemy ports and protecting commerce. As an offset it is claimed a French warship sunk a German submarine in the Channel, while the British Admiralty announced to-night it was a British submarine which torpedoed the German warship in the Baltic recently, although no details were added to the brief statement made by the Russian official communication, the day after the attack took place. All the belligerent powers are rapidly building submarines. It is reported that Austria has nine at Pola alone. Thus the Italian ships run serious risks moving about the waters of the Adriatic, which is well suited to these craft. So far as land battles are concerned, interest still centres in Southern Poland, where the Russians strongly reinforced both men and guns with their railway fortresses Ivangorod and Brest Litovsk to draw upon have held up the Austro-German attempt to outflank Warsaw from the southwest. The Austrians to-night made the admission that before superior Russian forces they have withdrawn to the hills to North Krasnik. Further heavy fighting must occur in this region, but the Russian military writers express confidence that now any effort of the German Allies to deliver a lightning blow has been discounted. The Grand Duke's army will be able to hold its positions and perhaps drive the invaders back. While this is going on, it is believed, there is little probability of the Germans detaching any part of their Eastern armies for a renewed offensive in the West. If such a move is made, it must be undertaken by fresh troops. There is already heavy fighting at several points in the West, notably in the Woivre district, where the French have regained some ground which they had lost south east of St. Mihiel and at Souchez where the French have made further advance toward the village, but there is no evidence as yet of the arrival of any new armies which Dutch reports persistently repeat are being moved through Belgium. The Austrians and Montenegrins have resumed fighting. Both sides claim successes.

TRAWLER BLOWN UP.

LONDON, To-day. The Grimby trawler Cheshire was blown up by a mine in the North Sea on Wednesday. All the crew with the exception of the Chief Engineer were killed.

POWERS WILL DECIDE.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from its Cetinje correspondent states the Government officially announced it will submit Albania's future decision to the Powers.

PLATURIA RELEASED.

BERLIN, To-day. The American steamer Platuria, which while proceeding from New York with a cargo of petroleum, consigned to a Swedish port, was stopped by a German warship and taken to Swinemunde, has been released. This action was taken after the United States Embassy had taken up the case. The Platuria proceeded to its destination.

EXPELLED FROM ALBANIA.

LONDON, To-day. The Scutari correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Company, states the Austrian Consul and Staff have been expelled from Albania, being escorted to the Austrian frontier. All Austrian subjects and agents, he says, are being arrested and sent into Montenegro for internment.

10.30 A.M.

THE HALDANE-GEORGE DISPUTE.

LONDON, To-day. The contradiction, given by Lord George to Lord Haldane's version of what took place at a Cabinet meeting on munitions, under the late Government, caused a sensation in political circles, although a feeling is entertained that this dispute is largely a personal one, the continuation of which can do no good at the present juncture. Let the dead bury their dead is the attitude taken by prominent politicians on both sides. The episode has, however, roused the Northcliffe organs to start a further campaign against Lord Haldane. The Daily Mail suspects a plot to bring him back into public life and stigmatizes such papers as the Daily Telegraph and Pall Mall Gazette as pro-Haldane, because these Conservative journals have not joined in the unparalyzing vituperation of the former Lord Chancellor. It is interesting to note that Bonar Law agrees with his predecessor in the Colonial Office that an Imperial Conference is not possible this year. Answering a question in the Commons, Law stated if the Premier of Canada or any other Dominion were visiting London, the Imperial Government would take advantage of the opportunity to confer with him, but anything in the nature of a formal conference was impossible.

FIRE UNDER CONTROL.

NEW YORK, To-day. While the steamship Minnehaha is at sea, with 15,000 tons munitions aboard and is speeding to Halifax, N.S., last night the Line officials authorities were bending every effort to learn if the blaze caused by the explosion, could possibly have been the handiwork of Frank Holt, J. P. Morgan's assassin, who had given warning that the steamship would sink in mid-ocean on July 7. The Minnehaha is due to reach Halifax this morning. Capt. Clark's last message said the fire was under control. It started late on Wednesday from an explosion in the forward hold far away from the ammunition, which was stored aft. Although the captain did not say so, the Line officials here believed he had picked up the wireless warning sent to all ships and had caused a search to be made to ascertain if there were any bombs aboard. The fact that no further word was received last night by the officers of the Atlantic Transport Line, to which the Minnehaha belongs, was taken to indicate the ship was making good progress. The Minnehaha left here on July 4 for London. She carried no passengers. The crew numbered nearly 100.

WILL DOCK THIS MORNING.

HALIFAX, To-day. A wireless from the captain of the Minnehaha last night, says the fire is under control, and that it was in the general cargo and not near the war munitions on board. The ship will dock in Halifax this morning.

RESERVISTS AND FOREIGN ENLISTMENT.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Sir Cecil Spring Rice, British Ambassador, to-day asked the State Department to inform him what distinction, if any, it draws between questions of neutrality, involved in the return of reservists to those European countries, which have reserve systems and the departure of volunteers to those countries, which have no such system. In effect, the Ambassador's request points out that reservists have been permitted to return to Germany, Austria and Turkey while legal action has been taken against persons forwarding volunteers for the British army. It is understood he contends there is no difference in the effect on the situation.

1 P.M.

CLOSING ADRIATIC SEA.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The closing of the Adriatic Sea, to merchant vessels of all nations, except when bound for Montenegro or Italian ports under convoy, furnished by the Italian Minister of War, was announced in a telegram received from Ambassador Page.

GENERAL BLOCKADE.

ROME, To-day. The blockade of the Austrian and Albanian coasts in the Adriatic, proclaimed by Italy some time ago, now the navigation zones in the Adriatic, north of the line of Orentonagari, E. M. Carso, J. J. Galloway, Mrs. Galloway and child, J. E. Chetwynd and J. Perry.

BRITISH PRISONERS RELEASED.

LONDON, To-day. Under the heading "The end of German Southwest Africa," the Cape town correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Company sends a resume of General Botha's recent campaign. He concludes as follows: As a result of Botha's tireless and swift advance, and his masterly enveloping movement in face of the energetic and natural difficulties, he completely out-generalled, out-maneuvred and out-witted the Germans, and the capture or surrender of the remainder of the enemy in the field is only a matter of a short time. As a result of operations, all British prisoners in the hands of the Germans, have been released. Seven hundred prisoners have already been taken, and any attempt at scattered general warfare has been frustrated.

STEAMER DETAINED.

LONDON, To-day. The steamer Muskogee, from New Orleans to Gotenburg, has been detained and sent to Kirkwall for examination. The tank steamers tonner and Polarine have been released.

POSITION OF GERMAN SUITS THE RUSSIANS.

LONDON, To-day. The German position on the eastern front now exactly suits the Russian strategists, according to the Post's Petrograd correspondent. Grand Duke Nicholas has got the enemy into the same position strategically as he occupied last August, says the correspondent, but with this difference. The enemy then held all the advantages of the smiling land, rich villages and great estates throughout this line of march, while to-day the enemy is in a desert ravaged by twelve months of warfare with roads cut up beyond all semblance of highways, while the towns and villages are more piles of ashes. The task of feeding and munitioning three millions of men two hundred miles from their base, must appeal even the German organization, yet the enemy must continue to advance, for a pause or a backward step spells ruin. Altogether matters look most promising for the Russians.

OFFICIAL.
LONDON, July 8.
The Governor, Newfoundland: In Gallipoli the Turks made a general attack on the 5th. The attack failed completely. The enemy's losses were very heavy, and ours negligible. The French Government report further severe fighting on the heights of the Meuse, in the Forest of Apremont, on a front of about 760 yards. The Germans penetrated the French first lines, but elsewhere were repulsed with very heavy losses. Subsequently a portion of the lost trenches were recovered.
The Russian Government reports a successful offensive at many points. Near Krasnik 2,000 prisoners and several machine guns were captured.

SAYVILLE PLANT TAKEN OVER.
WASHINGTON, July 8.
The United States Government today took over the Sayville, L.I. wireless station, the only direct means of communication between the States and Germany. Secretary of the Navy, Daniels, announced that Capt. Bullard, in charge of the naval radio had gone to take over the station, and would continue its operations with naval forces.

CARRANZA FORCES WINNING.
WASHINGTON, July 8.
Carranza forces have pushed their attack on the Convention forces, defending Mexico City up to within ten miles of the capital. Their military trains are operating this close to the city. State department despatches from Vera Cruz to-day gave this report.

NO ANSWER TO GERARD'S INQUIRY.
WASHINGTON, July 8.
President Wilson has decided that there will be no answer to Ambassador Gerard's inquiry regarding instructions concerning the draft submitted to him by the German Government as to its note on submarine warfare, and that no comment will be made by the States until Germany's formal reply is delivered.

GERMANY'S REPLY EXPECTED.
BERLIN, July 8.
The German reply to the American note regarding the Lusitania and submarine warfare, according to information obtained here, will probably be delivered on Saturday, July 10, or possibly even to-morrow. The general tenor and motive of the Government behind this proposal may be communicated confidentially to leading representatives of the press to-morrow.

LORD MERSEY'S DECISION.
LONDON, July 8.
Lord Mersey, presiding at the enquiry into the sinking of the steamer Falaba to-day, declared that the blame for the catastrophe must rest conclusively with the officers and crew of the German submarine. He added that the submarine made no effort to save life, and probably could not do so without endangering itself. Lord Mersey said he was satisfied that the witness who had described the lifeboats as rotten, was mistaken, and that the damage sustained by some of them in launching was not due to neglect on the part of the company crew. The men in the rescue boats were praised for their courage and kindness. The allegations brought to the attention of Lord Mersey after the conclusion of the hearing, that the Falaba sent signals calling for help, were without foundation.

BRITISH SUBMARINE SINKS GERMAN WARSHIP.
LONDON, July 8.
The British Admiralty to-night, states that it is officially announced that Petrograd to-day that the submarine which made a successful attack on the German warship on July 2nd in the Baltic was a British boat. This statement by the British Admiralty contained the first public announcement intimating that British submarines were operating in the Baltic Sea. It is presumed that the under sea boat passed through the Cattagat from the North Sea to the Baltic Sea, then went eastward 200 miles, as the Bay of Danzig, where the warship was attacked, lies in the southeastern part of that body of water. The distance from an English port to Danzig, is about 900 miles. The Russian official statement, announcing that a German warship had been sunk by a submarine, said that the battleship which was steaming ahead of the German squadron, was at the entrance to Danzig Bay, on July 2nd, when she was blown up by two torpedoes fired by a submarine.

SELF-DEFENSE JUSTIFIED.
LONDON, July 8.
Merchant vessels of belligerent Powers are entitled by the established and uninterrupted usage of the sea to carry and use armament in self-defense, said Lord Robert Cecil, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in reply to a question in the Commons to-day. Several neutral Governments, he said, were communicated with in this matter, at the outbreak of the war, and several more have been approached since. The principle of merchant ships carrying arms for self-defense has been generally recognized. British ships, so armed, have been trading regularly with various countries since an early stage of the war. Commander Belair's question was whether, in view of the unusual character of the German attacks on unarmed merchant vessels, the Government would ask all neutral Governments to allow merchant vessels armed for the purposes of self-defense only with a gun in the stern, to trade with their ports, in spite of the fact that they carried a gun.

FIRE CAUSED BY EXPLOSION.
NEW YORK, July 8.
The fire aboard the Minnehaha was caused by explosion, according to a wireless received from Capt. Clark. At the time the fire was said to have been mastered. Capt. Clark's message read as follows: "Fire caused by explosion, now under control by suffocation and steam. Much smoke in hold. Deemed it expedient to make for Halifax. One of Chebucto Head 9 a.m. Friday. Advice agents." The message came by way of Cape Race.

Ever Ready Hot Water, Night and Day.

FOR THE NURSERY.
"The bath ready for baby, when baby is ready for the bath" should be an advantage of every housewife—who should also keep in mind that any trouble saved to the nurse makes for a well-ordered, contented household.
Gas Water-Heaters, whether of the Instantaneous or Circular type, offer the convenience of available hot water "upstairs, downstairs, and in my lady's chamber,"—without any labour at all—Independently of the state of the kitchen fire.
The cost is reasonable.
FOR THE BATHROOM.
An uncertain supply of hot water in the bathroom is a frequent cause of annoyance.
Hot water can only be secured, usually, by getting the cook to act as stoker, but at what a cost!
Think of the coal that is wasted—the fatigue of coal carrying—the after labour of grate cleaning—and the discomfort of a hot kitchen in warm weather!
A Gas Water-Heater is economical, because it only heats the water actually required; and labour-saving, because there are no coals to carry, no fires to clean, no ashes or dirt to remove.
The master of the house has hot shaving water and a hot bath whenever he wishes without delay or trouble.
HOT WATER FOR THE HOUSE.
When "Spring cleaning days" engross the busy housewife then the convenience of an unlimited supply of hot water on the upper floors is brought home to her with special force.
But at all times—apart from convenience—a gas water-heater makes an irresistible appeal to the housewife from the point of view of dealing with the domestic problem.
Later-day domestics are difficult to keep unless due consideration is shown by saving them unnecessary drudgery—and in the category of unnecessary drudgery may be included the toll of carrying hot water or coal upstairs, the cleaning of grates and the removal of dirt and ashes.
The gas water-heater renders such labour superfluous.—may12,14

Cold Storage for Florizel.

We understand that while at New York this trip, the Red Cross Liner Florizel had a cold storage plant installed on board for the purpose of bringing fruit and vegetables here in good condition. It is also to be used for the exporting of our fresh fishes. It is not unlikely that her consort, the Stephano, will also carry cold storage. The Florizel sails from New York at noon to-morrow for this port coming via Charlottetown.

ORNAMENTAL LIGHTS.
By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old St. John's."
Ornamental lights form a good way of feeling the pulse of an American town. If a town has large quantities of cluster lights on its business streets, its pulse is strong and healthy and it has a Commercial Club which would soon grab a factory away from some other town, as eat a piece of pie.

If, however, a town is filled with dark canyons at night, with overworked electric lights trying to excavate holes in the blackness at the street corners, it is usually in a comatose condition, and the Secretary of the Commercial Club is working overtime to collect enough dues to pay his salary.

This is not because ornamental lights can bring a diseased town to life, but because they are the latest style in municipal brag. They give the city something to brag about. There are now something over 1,000 Great White Ways in this country, thanks to the committee boosters which have backed the reluctant merchants of hundreds of towns down into the cellar and have refused to let them come up until they have subscribed for two large iron posts apiece.

Pretty soon there will be so many ornamental lights in this country that they will not be worth bragging about. However, the town that has them will still be able to laugh at the morgue, divided into wards and precincts, which hasn't any. And one by one the sleepy cities will rub their eyes in a startled way and exclaim: "Goodness, let's get lighted up and shut off these corner jobs." Shortly after this the new style of lighting will be as universal as the Commercial Club itself. Then some genius will discover some new test of hustle like the down-town window-box, or the city manager, or the art censor for sign boards, and the contest will begin all over again.

The reason why American cities improve so greatly is because some city is always trying to get the jump on the bunch by adopting something to brag about, thus forcing other places to adopt the same thing, or better, in order to keep from blushing about it. Because of this relentless competition, some city in this fair land is going to adopt a leak-proof, politicianless Government some day and about three years later America will stop apologizing about its city halls.

Cardinal Mercier Thanks England.
Letter to Cardinal Bourne, Dated March 17, Reached London July 1.
London, July 2.—The Tablet publishes a letter from Cardinal Mercier to Cardinal Bourne. The letter, which is dated March 17, was received at the Cardinal Archbishop's house in Westminster only yesterday.

Cardinal Mercier expressed his thanks for British charity toward the Belgians and concluded as follows:—"Let me end by telling you that, though laboring under some constraint, our hearts cherish undaunted hope that, to apply England's proud motto, strengthened by God's help and confidence in the justice of our cause, the day will dawn when our united armies will restore peace and liberty to our land; and then, without restraint, we will be able to proclaim our heartfelt gratitude and show the world that even as Belgium preferred mutilation and endless suffering to the loss of honor so also she will ever remember her debt to England."

DESERTER ARRESTED.—Yesterday evening the police arrested under warrant a young man had been seen to go to the fishery at Outer Cove and deserted. Every year about this time the same old trouble is experienced over fishery deserters, though the records show that the number of defaulters this season were the smallest on record.

Won't Let Officers of the Navy Retire.
Washington, July 2.—Acting on the recommendation of Secretary Daniels President Wilson has declined to authorize the retirement from active service of about twenty Commanders and Lieutenant Commanders who had applied to be retired under the terms of the Naval Personnel Act of March 3, 1899. The main ground for this action was that the services of naval officers were urgently needed at this time. The President's action has a significant bearing on the question whether some officers of the army, who have tendered their resignations, have a right to leave the military service in time of peace. Some of these officers have had offers from manufacturers of firearms and supplies.

Primary Exam. Papers.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—So much of what appears in the daily press concerning the Council of Higher Education and its work is founded upon gross ignorance of the facts or unmitigated prejudice, that as a rule one can take no stock in it whatever. Respecting the matter raised in your issue of yesterday under the heading "Primary Exam. Papers," however, the case is different. The Primary Arithmetic paper was certainly objectionable; and I desire to assure all teachers and pupils interested that steps were immediately taken by the Council of Higher Education to confer the interests of Primary candidates. Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor.
Yours faithfully,
L. GURTIUS.

Germany Hope to Win

Their Battles Through the Use of Their Laboratories.—One Expert Says, Rather than see Empire Debased, Cholera Germs would be Used to Destroy the Rest of the Empire.

London, June 28.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Rotterdam sends an interesting story of German plans and German surprises:

"Talking to a young German chemist the other day I asked him why he was not at the front. 'There are no chemists in the firing line,' he replied. 'One chemist is worth more than a battalion of soldiers to the fatherland. At that time I thought he was referring to the preparation of drugs for the hospitals, but when I heard of the German use of poisonous gas I realized what he meant. The same man declared, 'sooner than Germany should be wiped out as a nation, we would destroy Europe. We would not hesitate to let loose cholera bacilli on the armies of our enemies.'"

"The German army will continue to use poisonous gas, when conditions permit, is fully established, but it is not generally known that German chemists are experimenting with hopes of swift success on a new explosive more deadly than Tyddite. This explosive, when perfected, will be used in their big howitzers, and it is confidently predicted that neither trench nor fort will stand against it. Germans are hoping to win their battles in their laboratories, and they are putting their trust more in the genius of their scientists than in the skill of their generals and the valor of their troops. New machine guns, not much heavier than rifles, and as easily fired, improved 'catapults' for throwing bombs into trenches, more brilliant star shells for use in night attack, are among other German surprises to be developed during the summer campaign."

Germany continues to build submarines. Within the last three or four months twelve have been constructed at the Hoboken works at Antwerp. These, however, are not the large 5,000 mile radius boats which threaten our great liners, but they are very dangerous to our merchantmen in the North Sea. The new giant submarines which are Germany's particular pride and boast, are able to discharge torpedoes fore and aft, even when awash. Their system of air storage is remarkably ingenious, and their speed is something like eighteen knots. If, and when the German grand fleet comes out to fight, it will be guarded by a cline of submarines.

Bride's Bathub Murderer Guilty.

SENTENCED TO DIE.

London, July 2.—A verdict of guilty was brought in by the jury yesterday in the case of George Joseph Smith, who was charged with the murder of three of his wives. It had been alleged by the Crown that Smith had killed his wives while they were in their baths, and had collected insurance money on their lives. Smith was sentenced to death.

"You will hang me before you're done, my Lord," was Smith's excited outburst while Justice Scrutton was summing up the case.

The prisoner quickly followed this with: "You cannot hang me for murder! I've done no murder! This is a disgrace to a Christian country!" Smith's first explosive utterance voiced the general impression in the crowded Court room as Justice Scrutton presented the Court's estimate of facts for and against the prisoner. The Judge told the jury that while no direct evidence connecting Smith with the murder of Beatrice Mundy, one of the three wives, with the murder of whom he was specifically charged, there was seldom anything but circumstantial evidence in cases of cold-blooded, calculated murder.

The jury continued the Court, must consider if Smith had opportunity and motive. There was no doubt that he had opportunity, and if he gained by the woman's death the jury could see the motive. Even then, continued the Judge, the jury might not be sure whether the deaths were accidental or designed, but if it were found that an accident which benefited the prisoner happened a number of times they could draw a strong inference that so many accidents benefiting him could not happen unless by design.

PERMANENT FUND.—The Hon. Treasurer acknowledges, with thanks, the receipt of $90.85 for the Permanent Marine Disasters Fund, from the Montreal Branch of the Labrador Medical Mission, per A. Sheard, Esq., Secretary International Grenfell Association.

LECTURE.—On Monday evening, Mr. Weir, travelling secretary of the School for the Blind, Halifax, N.S., will give a lecture in the Grenfell Hall. The lecture will be illustrated by lantern slides and should prove most interesting. There is no admission but a collection will be taken up in aid of the fund for home teaching of the blind.

The Federal Grand Jury at New York has indicted Gustav Stahl, the German reservist, for having committed perjury by swearing before them that he saw four guns on board the Lusitania. On a preliminary complaint, Stahl was committed to the Tombs in default of $10,000. It is believed by some that Stahl's chief object in perjuring himself was more mercenary than patriotic—that he in fact wanted to raise money in order to have a good time without working.

FIGURES DO LIE.

REGAL ENGINES are the highest priced engines, yet they are the cheapest.

They are the highest priced engines because they cost more to build. They are the cheapest engines because they will last twice as long as any other engine. They are also the cheapest engines because they save your time, and "Time is money."

If you shut your eyes to this real bargain in engines, you will be the sorriest fisherman who ever signed an order. You will lose more money than you can afford to lose, and your oil bills will be twice as large. REGAL ENGINES use less oil, have more power, run with less trouble and give more genuine satisfaction than any other engine on the market. We are, in the near future, going to ask all cash for REGAL ENGINES, so buy one before we make this change, as we intend to make them the "Hall Mark" engines of Newfoundland.

We ship REGAL ENGINES complete with full book of instructions, and when once installed in your boat, any child can run one. REGAL ENGINES are higher priced than other engines, but are the cheapest in the long run, because they run the longest.
