REMORSE and REPENTANCE.

For Daisie's Sake

CHAPTER XVII. FAITHFUL.

"Never, never, with my consent! I have heard all about him from Mr. Sherwood, and he is no match for you. No one knows aught about him. He is poor, of course, and some dreadful disgrace may possibly be attached to him. You must give him up now, and my advice to you is to make up your quarrel with Royall, and be thankful to get him."

"Ah, how cruel it is to have not a friend on earth! To get such advice from you, who ought to fill the place of my poor, dead mother!" sobbed Daisie, heartbrokenly; but the old woman, who could be very hard and coarse when she chose, retorted sharply:

"Your poor mother would be alive now if she hadn't married a poor man, and broken her heart because her parents disinherited her and refused ever to see her again. She was as pretty as you, and had her pick of lovers; but she fell in love with that poor artist, Vivian Bell, my husband's brother. And what came of it? You know their struggles, for they died one after another only two years ago in New York, and left you, their only child, to fight the battle of life alone. So how can you throw away this splendid chance fairly beats my time."

"But I am used to poverty, Aunt Alice, so it does not daunt me. And I am sorry you have arrayed yourself in the ranks of my persecutors, for it makes me feel so friendless. True, you are not really my aunt; but as Uncle John's wife, I have loved you just the same, and now—suddenly—you have turned against me, and I must go away alone and unhelped, unless by my true little friend Annette."

She dragged herself wearily upstairs, and, throwing off, with a shudder of disgust, her white gown, donned a loose robe, and sat down beside the window to keep a vigil that was sad and strange for a new-made bride.

How long she sat there she never knew, so confused were her thoughts; but it could not have been more than an hour, when she heard carriage wheels grating on the stillness of the street, then pausing before the house.

Applied After Shaving

Keeps the Skin Soft and Smooth

MANY men suffer from irritation of the skin as a result of shaving. With some it assumes a form of eczema and becomes most annoying and unsightly. By applying a little of Dr. Chase's Ointment after shaving the irritation is overcome and such ailments as Barber's Itch and Eczema are cured.

all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

and a man sprang out and came into the porch, ringing a furious peal on the doorbell.

Daisie put her head out of the window, exclaiming nervously:

"What is wanted?"

At the same moment she recognized the young minister, and heard him say:

"Your husband is dying—they have sent for you to come!"

CHAPTER XVII. HIS CRUEL RIVAL.

A cry of angry incredulity came from Daisie's lips.

"It is not true. This is some new plot against me. I will not go!"

But just then Mrs. Bell jerked open the front door, and held an anxious colloquy with the young man.

As a result of it, she came upstairs presently, exclaiming:

"It is all true, Daisie. That young man is a preacher, so, of course, he wouldn't tell you a lie! Royall Sherwood was shot to-night—shot in the back as he was walking along with his cousin—and they think he is dying. He begs for you, and my dear, you can't refuse to go."

No, she could not refuse. The wishes of the dying are sacred.

But her lips trembled so with the shock that she could hardly stand upright. Aunt Alice helped her to put on a warm, dark gown suited to the chilly midnight hour, and supported her feeble steps down the stairs.

"You will come with me?" she said, in a dazed way, and the old woman assented readily.

The young minister helped them into the carriage, entered himself, and the door was closed. The driver whipped up his horses, and then Mrs. Bell asked, in a tone of awe:

"Who was the wretch that did it?"

"I do not suppose any one knows. It was all very sudden. Mrs. Fleming and her cousin were walking in the grounds, discussing his marriage, when the shot was fired from behind by some one who must have been concealed in the shrubberies. Instantly all was confusion, as there were other parties also out in the moonlight. A crowd gathered instantly. It was found that Mr. Sherwood was shot through the body. A physician was by, fortunately, and, on a hasty examination, he pronounced the wound mortal. He was removed to his room, and, on recovering consciousness, asked for his wife to be summoned. Mrs. Fleming begged me to come with the carriage and urge her to return with me."

Daisie sobbed aloud in grief and pity for the man suddenly stricken down in youth's early dawn, and the young minister thought:

"Mrs. Fleming was right: She loved him, after all, and they would have been reconciled to-morrow. What a calamity it is that sunders their wedded lives so soon!"

But he did not attempt to offer any condolences to the sobbing girl. It seemed to him that she had been rude to him all through in her pettish anger.

A silent, miserable cortege, they filed into the hall, where so lately mirth and joy reigned, now still and lonely, with scared servants gliding to and fro, turning down the brilliant lights, and removing the traces of festivity.

Letty Greer was waiting with Cullen at the door to conduct them to the dying man, and as they went along the corridor Mrs. Fleming herself came to meet them, her eyes dim with tears, that made her festal robes look strangely out of place.

She took Daisie's hand, and whispered:

"You will soon be free now. Poor Royall cannot live long. It is his love for you that has caused his death. That wretch killed him!"

"That wretch?" Daisie sobbed uncomprehendingly; and Mrs. Fleming hissed in her ear:

"Who but his cruel rival?"

Daisie would have sunk to the floor but for the widow's supporting arm, and she moaned, in distress:

"Ah, no, no, no!"

They were almost at the door, the minister and Mrs. Bell in advance, when, pausing a moment, Mrs. Fleming muttered:

"Compose yourself. I have told you one the truth, and perhaps I never shall. That will depend on you, Daisie Bell. But listen: When the fatal shot was fired, I looked around quickly, and saw the cruel murderer rushing from the scene. He was tall, and dark, and handsome, and I knew him at once; and I shrieked out his name, but I think no one heard it. So presently, even while they were all crying out to know who did it, I feigned swooning, and answered nothing, for a thought came to me, that— But come, let us go in to Royall now, poor boy!" dragging her over the threshold.

CHAPTER XVIII. "BE KIND TO ME."

Half dazed with horror, Daisie followed Mrs. Fleming over the threshold into the darkened room, where a grave-faced physician watched by the bedside of the dying man.

She saw Royall Sherwood lying among the pillows, his delicate blond complexion changed to a purplish pallor, his eyes closed, lying as still as if already dead.

The physician came to them softly, and whispered:

"He has fallen asleep, and it might be better not to disturb him until he awakes naturally."

"But will he ever awake?" whispered Mrs. Fleming, with a stifled sob.

"Oh, yes, I think so. You may withdraw into another room, and I will call you as soon as he opens his eyes."

They obeyed him, going softly to another room, where Mrs. Fleming left Daisie alone a few moments, saying:

"I must go and see to your aunt's comfort; then I will return, for I have something very serious to say to you."

Daisie was left alone in the luxurious boudoir, where the electric lights, filtered through rosy globes, shed a warm, pink glow on her pallid face. But she did not think of envying the rich widow her wealth and splendor. Her heart sped on the wings of love to Dallas, from whom she had been so cruelly parted, and, with a sudden feeling that she was powerless in the grasp of the untoward fate that beset her, she fell on her knees, praying humbly:

"Oh, God, deliver me from the snare of my enemies!"

That was all, for she was too wretched to add another word; but in her despair she remained upon her knees, her golden head bent low in the attitude of prayer, and thus Mrs. Fleming found her when she presently returned.

The sight might have moved a tender-hearted woman to pity, but Lutie Fleming was as hard as the nether millstone.

She would rather have seen her successful rival crushed with grief and woe than happy in the love of Dallas Bain, as she had seen her such a little while ago.

"Their triumph was short-lived," she smiled to herself, as Daisie dragged herself up to a sitting posture, showing her wild, white, woeful face, from which all the light of joy had been stricken out by sorrow.

"Well, your aunt has retired, as there was really nothing to be gained by her sitting up, so you and I will keep our vigil together," the widow said, and Daisie bowed coldly, without answering. What, indeed, could she say? She felt herself caught in the toils of a terrible fate from which she could see no escape. "As I was saying to you a little while ago, Daisie, the outcome of this matter depends on you," continued Mrs. Fleming. "My position is a very delicate one. My cousin, whom I dearly love, has been murdered in cold-blooded malice by the man you love—by your lover!"

"Ah, no, no—never; he did not do it! Dallas would not be so cruel. You have made a mistake," sobbed Daisie piteously.

"There is no mistake. I saw the murderer done—saw Dallas Bain flying from the scene of the crime. And the motive is plain. It was murderous wrath because Royall had married you. He did it to set you free for himself, forgetting that even you could hardly dare to brave public opinion by marrying your husband's murderer."

Daisie shuddered, without answering, and watched the light-blue eyes of Mrs. Fleming as if they were a basilisk's eyes, feeling the while as if a serpent's folds were tightening around her, slowly crushing her to death.

THERE IS ONLY ONE GENUINE ASPIRIN

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Aspirin—No others!

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.

Your druggist gladly will give you the genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" because genuine Aspirin now is made by Americans and owned by an American Company.

There is not a cent's worth of German interest in Aspirin, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. But now you can get genuine Aspirin, plainly stamped with the safety "Bayer Cross"—Aspirin proved safe by millions for Headache, Toothache, Earache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Colds, Neuritis, and Pain generally.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages.

Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 761), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacid-ester of Salicylicacid.

Anti-French Agitations In Germany.

Wall Posters Call for Sedan Day Manifestations-- Russo-Polish Negotiations Transferred to Riga -- Britain Has Trouble on Hand in India-- Naval and Military Protection For Belfast Shipyards -- Balfour's Reply to Bolshevik Minister.

THE LETTIS AGREE.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 3. The Lettish government has agreed in principle to the transfer of the Russo-Polish peace negotiations to Riga. This announcement is made in a Riga dispatch to the Lettish Press Bureau here.

LITHUANIANS ATTACK POLES.

BERLIN, Sept. 3. A Kovno despatch issued by the Lithuanian Telegraph Agency says Lithuanian detachments have attacked Polish troops and driven them back for forty versts over the entire Grodno-Suwalki front. They also took prisoners and captured war materials.

POLES CONTINUE ADVANCES.

PARIS, Sept. 3. Advice to the Foreign Office to-day stated that the Poles, continuing their advance in Lithuania have reached a point twenty miles north of Suwalki. The Lithuanian government has been deeply moved by the occupation of Serny, to the east of Suwalki, advices said.

FRONTIER TROOPS ANTAGONISTIC.

LONDON, Sept. 3. An official communication from Simla, British India, announces a virulent anti-British propaganda among frontier tribes in Manshara region, where an attempt has been made to organize a provisional government to supersede the British administration.

ANTI-FRENCH AGITATION IN GERMANY.

PARIS, Sept. 3. Considerable anxiety is expressed in French official circles as to the outcome of Sedan day manifestations in Germany. Reports received by the Foreign Office indicate that anti-French agitation has become extremely violent in Hamburg, where the walls are covered with posters calling on the people to inflame their feelings. Unrest is felt regarding the safety of the French members of the Allied Commission there.

FAMINE CONDITIONS IN CHINA.

PEKING, Sept. 3. Parents are selling girls in famine ridden districts south of Peking, according to advices received to-day. Girls of ten years of age have been sold for ten dollars, it is reported in the petition for relief sent to the Ministry of the Interior. The famine is due to the drought, locusts and recent devastation by fighting troops.

STOLE A TRAIN.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3. A freight train, seized here last night by a band of men believed to be members of the striking outlaws, was found early to-day near Bensonville, Ill., with the throttle wide open and twenty-one freight cars apparently untouched. Several battles between freight crews and bands of striking switchmen, who never regained their jobs, preceded the theft of the train, which occurred shortly before midnight last night in the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul yards at Cicero.

JAPAN WILL HOLD ON.

HONOLULU, Sept. 3. Japan has declared her intention of keeping troops at Vladivostok until the security of life and property is guaranteed, according to Vladivostok reports to Tokio cabled to the Japanese newspaper here.

NATIONALIST LEADER DISPIRITED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3. Mustapha Emmal Pasha, leader of the Turkish Nationalist forces, is reported to be feeling that his efforts to hold out until November rains block the roads and give him a respite during the winter are becoming impossible. He is said to have lost hope of receiving immediate Bolshevik aid and lacks artillery with which to fight the Kresko, his troops being dispirited. It is anticipated here he will flee rather than surrender.

A FLYING RECORD.

OTTAWA, Sept. 3. Flying from Ottawa to Camp Borden, a distance of approximately three hundred miles, with two passengers in two and a half hours, Captain G. Johnston, of the Canadian Air Force, set what is probably a record for rapid transportation in Canada.

A DENIAL AND ADMISSION.

LONDON, Sept. 3. A formal denial of the reports that the forces of General Wrangel, anti-Bolshevik leader in South Russia, had captured Ekaterinodar and Soverosiek, was made by Leon Trotsky, Soviet Minister of War, on his return from the Caucasus, says a Moscow wireless despatch to-day. The war minister admits, however, adds the message, that Don and Kuban Cossacks have joined General Wrangel's troops, and that Soviet forces have evacuated Baku on the Caspian Sea.

FURTHER PROTECTION.

BELFAST, Sept. 3. A light cruiser and the torpedo boat destroyer Tyven have arrived in Belfast Harbor to protect the shipyards from possible damage in the event of a recurrence of rioting. Another battalion of troops reached Belfast to-day from England.

TO DISCUSS GERMAN FINANCES.

PARIS, Sept. 3. British, French, Italian and German delegates have arrived at Stress, Italy, for conference at which will be discussed the conditions of payments and advances to be made Germany for delivery of coal to Allies.

DR. CHOWN TO VISIT CHINA.

TORONTO, Sept. 3. Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, general superintendent of the Methodist Church of Canada, will sail for China at the end of the month on an official visit of inspection in West China.

MINERS DISSATISFIED.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 3. Representatives of the United Mine Workers, who last night signed a new two year contract with the coal operators, based on the award of the Arbitration Commission giving the workers from seventeen to twenty five per cent. increases, met to-day to formulate a plan for re-opening the question and asking for still higher increases. The Union leaders declare the contract just signed is unsatisfactory in that it gives the workers little more than the offer of operators last spring.

BALFOUR'S REPLY.

LONDON, Sept. 3. Arthur J. Balfour, Lord President of the Council, replying to a despatch of Tchitcherine, Russian Bolshevik Minister, of August 26, regarding the Polish peace terms, says that the latter was mistaken in supposing that the British government recognized that the reduction of the Polish army to fifty thousand would be just. What the government said was Britain would not consider it sufficient ground for active intervention. Tchitcherine's representations concerning civic militia as being a concession to Poland he characterized "evidently meant as a jest and neither requires or deserves a reply." He considers, however, it is a jest requiring explanation from the Soviet government and points out that the British were deceived by the Soviet withholding the fact that the militia was to be taken from a particular class chosen by the victorious enemy. The British governments' objection was not based on the choice of workmen. It would be equally strong if the militia was composed of millstones. Balfour concludes by saying that he never questioned the efficacy of Soviet methods for making a rich man poor, but that it is in the more important task of making poor men richer, that failure is feared.

Address of Minister of Marine And Fisheries to The Exporters Meeting on Thursday.

Gentlemen.—This meeting has been called because in the Act Respecting the Exportation of Salt Codfish it is provided that such a conference shall be held. The Act says:—
 "A Meeting of all exporters of Codfish shall be convened by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries during the first week in September in each year to consider and discuss with the Codfish Exportation Board all matters relating to the exportation of codfish for the ensuing season. Such meeting shall be held at St. John's and two weeks' notice thereof shall be given."
 This is our authority for convening this meeting, and it has been called in order that we may discuss with the Fish Exporters what it is best to do in connection with the rules and regulations controlling the exportation of codfish for this season. You will remember that when the Government came into power in November last they passed Rules and Regulations dealing with the export of codfish. Those who are interested in the export of codfish have various opinions regarding these rules and regulations. Many claim that they are most beneficial; others contend that they are injurious. Since those regulations became effective in November last, two bye-elections have taken place in Newfoundland, and on each occasion the fishery rules have been made the issue of the election. Even here in St. John's where we would not expect the body of the people to be very much interested in the exportation of codfish, so far as rules and regulations are concerned, the bye-election fought in January was contested solely on this issue, and the result was that the Government won. In Bay de Verde the election issue was simply and solely the Fishery Regulations as inaugurated by the Government. The result of that election was a sweeping majority in favour of the Government—a majority such as the District never before piled up in favour of any party. The Government therefore take it that on those two occasions those opposed to the Fishery Regulations placed them on trial and on each occasion the Government's position was sustained. We therefore consider them as part of our policy, and we are agreed that there must be no looking back. The position is that we have placed our hand to the plough and we will not waver until this struggle as to whether these regulations which we have introduced are good or bad shall have had time to be fully tested. The Government consider that this year at least we should enforce the regulations according to the policy inaugurated last November, in so far as possible and this season will prove whether they are valuable or valueless. If, after giving them a fair trial, it can be shown that they are injurious or not beneficial, then we shall only be able to say that we have tried and have failed, and therefore we will forego any further attempt to control the fixing of prices of fish for the foreign markets. That is the position. Our policy has been laid down and from it there will be no departure, but I do hope that in our discussions and criticisms here you will speak fully and freely and impartially, and will be able to guide us in the right direction. If there is any weakness in any of the regulations we shall be very glad to consider any alterations proposed. Our aim is to make them as reasonable and as fair as possible. We do not want to make them too drastic. On the contrary we hope to be able to frame regulations that we hope will be satisfactory, and this time next year after having had a fair trial, will have proved whether we have succeeded or failed in our efforts to place our Export business on a sound business basis. One thing I hope will result from the Conference and that is that the Commission will be able to set to work immediately to frame regulations which can be placed on the Statute Book, so that the uncertainty and unrest in the foreign market may be ended. I do not know if you realize that every discussion you raise and every meeting you hold at which adverse criticisms are made of the regulations weakens our position abroad, because eight or ten messages are sent over the water, some truthfully and others the reverse, and the result is that the markets are so disturbed that people do not know whether to buy or hold off. Every buyer abroad is afraid to purchase or make any arrangement for purchase, because they do not know where they are, or where prices will be, and what loss may be caused thereby. There has been no indecision on the part of the Fisheries Department or the Government, because we have not at any time done otherwise than taken the position that the regulations must be enforced, and the whole trouble has been caused mainly by people who do not sit down to think seriously of the consequences which their actions may involve. The matter is too serious a one to make a political football of, and I am afraid that in some respects that is what has unfortunately been done with the regulations. We should realize the responsibility of the weal or woe of Newfoundland for the next twelve months. If we are forced to accept consequences which will result to the people of the country, if we are unable to give $10 per quintal to the fishermen, you do not have to guess as to what will happen. It remains for you and I and all those interested in the welfare of the country to see that the very best possible price is paid for our catch. The people in the foreign markets consider that these regulations depend entirely on one man—Coaker; they think that he is the only insensate man in the country, and that all the rest of the population are the same. They contend that this insensate man has set up artificial regulations, and that if they can remove them, all control will cease and they will go on doing business as they have done hitherto. They are justified in that belief because from all appearances all they can learn is that the regulations were the work of Coaker, backed by the Government. If you were on the other side receiving continual messages to the effect that the regulations were all the work of one man, that they were unpopular, and would not last long, you would not take any steps to do business until you heard the outcome of this conference. Now, what are the conditions? I saw it stated very recently that we have lost three months' consumption in the Portuguese market. How can any one construe what has happened this spring as meaning that we have lost three months' consumption in the foreign markets? There has been absolutely no restraint whatsoever on the export of fish abroad. I do not care who says to the contrary. Fish was late in being made on the West Coast. There were only one or two cargoes during the whole season that have been kept back—one belonging to Penneys and the other to Moultons. Other exporters, as soon as they had their arrangements made, and obtained permission, loaded their vessels. No one was refused. They were of course told that they would not be allowed to clear their fish unless they had made an outright sale at so much per quintal. Apparently all except Moultons and Penneys had sales made. To-day there are three or four vessel loads of new fish due at Oporto today and ten cargoes of new fish are now en route to that port. This old fish has been disposed of and the market has been cleared out. Last year when we sent new fish over we got for it on an average about $8— and had to take 40¢ for the old. The new fish destroyed the chances of the sale of the old, and as a result we had old fish on the Portuguese market up until October and November. We will have very little old fish now to contend with. No consumption has been lost; it is just as great now per week as it was at this season last year. Compare the consumption last year with the consumption this year. In 1919 we had 378,000 qtls. of fish sold just as much the past three months last year. There is no fish ready for Spain, nor was there any in the same quantity as there was for Italy now; nor was there any last year at this time. We have not lost any consumption.

Let me take you back to some facts in connection with the Portuguese market. Some exporters on the West Coast forget there is a past in connection with Oporto. They only look at Portugal from the time of the beginning of the War when everything was in their hands. We exported 620,000 quintals to Portugal last year against 560,000 the year before, an increase of 60,000 qtls. for the year over last. When I was in Portugal I was surprised to find that Portugal had consumed large amounts of other fish besides ours in days gone by, and if we come to look up the records of even recent ones—we find a time when we had a very small footing in that market. In 1915 we exported only 150,000 quintals, in 1916 the amount went up, because the War was on, and controlled the market to the extent of 311,000. In 1914 we sent 153,000, about the same as in 1915; only exported 258,000, in 1912 208,000, in 1913 208,000, 1914 153,000, 1915 151,000. What happened during the War period? Let us see: In 1916 we sent 385,000, in 1917 378,000, 1918 451,000 and in 1919 559,000. Last year it went up to 620,000. Is there any man who expects that Portugal is going to continue to consume our fish in the same quantity as the consumption of Norwegian and Icelandic fish, especially that of Norway? But we must not be alarmed because we find that Norway sells a little fish there. We should not get cold feet and think the bottom has dropped out of the market because Norway may send 100,000 or 150,000 qtls. into Portugal this year. In 1917 265,000 qtls. were shipped to Portugal. In Spain last year we shipped 378,000 against 278,000 qtls. the year before, or 100,000 qtls. last year more than the previous season; and yet we are alarmed because there are old stocks in Spain and we say that the consumption is not as great, but who stops to think that there was 108,000 qtls. more gone to Spain this year from Newfoundland than last.

Take Italy. We shipped 133,000 qtls. against 236,000 the year before. We could only ship 133,000 to send there although we had made a sale to the Consorzio in January of 150,000 qtls. that was not available; and of what was sent there one-third should not have been sent to Italy at all. But we came down to 133,000 qtls.—against what? In 1911 we only shipped 132,000 there, in 1912 212,000, in 1913 297,000, in 1914 we came down to 170,000, in 1915 142,000 and in 1916 173,000. In 1917 we had a good year and every one was making lots of money, because we sent 261,000 qtls.; in 1918 399,000, in 1919 212,000. Our export now drops to 133,000, simply because we had trouble with Italy, and when they did buy in January we did not have sufficient stocks available because the Italian fish had gone into Spain. Referring again to Spain. Last year we shipped there 378,000 qtls. the year before 270,000. In 1918 we sent 385,000, 1917 319,000, 1916 288,000, 1915 211,000, 1914 200,000 and in 1913 174,000. There have been ups and downs in all these years. Now we come to Brazil. We exported last year 290,000 drums against 310,000 the year before. In 1910 we sent 395,000, 1911 368,000, 1912 423,000, 1913 417,000, 1914 462,000, 1915 382,000, 1916 379,000 and 1917 272,000. Where can we find 290,000 drums this year for Brazil. There is not 100,000 qtls. of Brazil fish in the whole country to-day. Here are the figures for Greece: We exported last year 107,000 qtls., which is about the same figure as for the year before, if we deduct from the records for the year previous the amount sent to Roumania. Our total exports last year were 1,785,000 qtls., against 1,851,000 for the year previous, an increase of 106,000. What have we for this season's voyage that will in any way compare with the previous year's exportations of 1,785,000? Here is an estimate I have made of our fishery for the present year:—

 ESTIMATE SHORE CATCH, 1920.

Labrador floaters	190,000
Total	1,015,000
Old shipped and to be shipped	150,000
Total	1,165,000

How much more fish will be taken between this and November? I estimate 300,000, and that quantity will equal last year's catch for September and October. Thus 700,000 will be the total catch for the present season—that is so far as the shore catch goes. As regards the Labrador catch last year, I do not know if you made an estimate, but mine is 556,000 for Straits, shoremen and floaters. Last year we had 729 schooners cleared for the Labrador from Newfoundland. This year we have 548, a reduction of 181 vessels. Last year the average was about 350 qtls. per vessel, and if our floaters get as much this year as last there will be 66,000 qtls. less because of the shortage in schooners. My estimate of the Labrador catch this year is as follows:—
 Straits 25,000 qtls.
 Shoremen 100,000
 Schooners 190,000

a total of 315,000 qtls. against 255,000 last year. That will bring our total catch for this year up to 1,015,000 qtls. We have, in addition, old fish exported in July and August, and some more to go which will swell the total to 1,165,000 qtls. for 1920. Now why should we worry? Some one next March, April and May will be making $5 a drum on Brazilian fish for there will be a very short supply. If Portugal takes 200,000 qtls. less this year than last, that is only half. If Italy takes only 33,000 and Brazil 100,000 less than last year we will not have a quintal of fish to sell over in June next. What I am stating are absolute facts, so far as my knowledge goes, in relation to the catch of fish this season. If any of you gentlemen wanted to purchase 50,000 qtls. fish and you asked me to go North and lay my hands on it at $10 or $12 a qtl. I would not know where to put my hands on places that could load a dozen schooners. If, in the discussions we are about to have, anyone can quote figures contradictory to mine, I shall be glad to have them.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

AREN'T THEY JUST AS BAD?

Almost everyone hates a snob. I am sure even the persons who are toadied to by the snobs must secretly despise them.

But aren't the people who are always suspecting other folks of being snobs, always resenting real or fancied slights, always saying things that are better than other people. I'd like to know what reason he has, etc." almost as worthy in their uneasy self-assertion, their self-conscious bluster, as the snobs themselves.

And Perhaps He Is.

Perhaps So-and-So does think he's better educated or better bred or more of a gentleman than many of the people with whom he comes into contact. And perhaps he is. Perhaps he does not care to associate with people who do not interest him. Can you blame him? Not if his manner is courteous and he pays due respect to the rights and feelings of others.

In our town there lived a woman who was criticized in this way. She was a middle-aged woman with a small income. She came to our town after the death of her husband, a distinguished statesman, and lived on a quiet little street occupied mostly by middle class families who had lived in the town all their lives—eminently respectable, thoroughly kindly and friendly people.

Now this woman was a thorn in the side of many of these people because she did not mix with them. She had a small garden in which she spent much time; she read a great deal, she kept up her music, and now and then she entertained friends of her youth from other cities. When she met the people who lived about her, she was always gracious and courteous to them. She did more than one neighborly act in time of trouble or illness. But she simply showed that she did not care to mingle with them in her daily life.

Then I Understood.

This woman died the other day and in the notice of her death, to which even the big city papers gave considerable space, was a reminder of her past glories. Something was said about the brilliant life she had led in her husband's prime, the names of some of her distinguished relatives were given, and I, who had so often heard her criticized and heard so little said about what she really was, realized for the first time what the background of her life had been and why it would have been difficult for her to find any real companionship with the people who blamed her for being "different" and "stuck up."

She was better bred and better educated than the rest of us. She was used to a more complex and finished society. Why should we blame her for being so any more than we blame ourselves for not being able to enjoy people just as far below us in the scale of education and experience?

Did You?

I never yet knew a person who talked about people being snobs who did not look down on the people he considered below him, just as much as he blamed people above him for looking down on him.

True pride, it seems to me, does not consist in claiming that all people (except those who are, not as good as you) are equal, and that anyone who does not seem to enjoy you is stuck up—but in having fine standards of true worth, in being quick to recognize, look up to, and if possible make your own, whatever is worthy of admiration and imitation in others.

GOVERNMENT.

Wise government can do a lot to brighten up our days; wise government will hit the spot in fifty-seven ways. And still we'll have to buckle down and saw our share of oak, if we'd have credit in the town and not be always broke.

Good government will help us all, if we should help ourselves, and we'll have pictures on the wall, and pies upon the shelves; and we're secure in what we own of land or hay or gold, and when we earn a shining bone, it's ours to have and hold. And we're protected in our car, and in our bed, at rest; good government will go that far, when it is at its best. But it won't take the place of toil, by which the prudent thrive; it will not hoe the weedy soil, or keep the corn alive. I don't depend on man made laws to help me dodge life's ills; the smoothest law that ever was won't pay my monthly bills. The noblest statute in the book won't keep the wolf away, or buy a sack of spuds to cook, if I loaf round all day. I leave my shack at morning, bent on hours of useful toil; I don't depend on government to make the kettle boil.

LITTLE RASCAL.
Into mischief all the time,
Little Rascal;
Every tree you want to climb,
Little Rascal;
Eyes just dancin' with delight
Like the stars, an' just as bright,
An' you're Oh, so tired at night,
Little Rascal.

All you're thinking of is fun,
Little Rascal;
You're forever on the run,
Little Rascal;
Mother says she doesn't know
What to do, you plague her so,
Keeping always on the go,
Little Rascal.

Lost the buttons off your shirt,
Little Rascal;
An' your knees are thick with dirt,
Little Rascal;
Now your cheeks which once were white
Are almost as black as night,
But your smiles shows through all right,
Little Rascal.

Keeps me busy squarin' you,
Little Rascal;
Makin' up for all you do,
Little Rascal;
Tellin' Mother, day by day,
Not to mind your heedless way,
But to let you romp in play,
Little Rascal.

Go the limit while you can,
Little Rascal;
Soon, too soon, you'll be a man,
Little Rascal;
Time will call you from your fun
To the tasks which must be done,
Then, I reckon, you won't run,
Little Rascal.

Just as dirty as can be,
Little Rascal;
But you mean a lot to me,
Little Rascal;
An' I'm prayin' through the night
That when life bids you to fight,
You'll come through the mill all right,
Little Rascal.

Important Announcement.

I have much pleasure in announcing that on and after Monday next, September the 6th, Mr. P. J. McCarthy, the well known vocalist, pianist and musician, will be at my shop every morning from 11 to 1.30, and every afternoon from 3 to 6, to try over new and standard music for intending purchasers.

As I import practically all the music that is published in the musical centres of the United States, the stock will contain all the most up-to-date publications in fox-trots, one-steps, waltzes, jazz music and popular songs. Added to this I will keep a full line of standard vocal and instrumental music, also the celebrated Century and McKinley editions, with teaching pieces a specialty.

Teachers and pupils will no longer have any trouble in selecting, as Mr. McCarthy will be there to recommend, illustrate and help them. Our outport customers will appreciate this service, as orders will be carefully selected and promptly attended to.

Volcano as Lighthouse.

A volcano on the island of San Salvador serves the purpose of a lighthouse.

This volcanic lighthouse is about eight miles inland from the port of Acapulco. It is a veritable pillar of cloud by day, and the flash of its light by night has been valuable to mariners for years.

It can be seen far out at sea, and a burst of flame has gone up every seven minutes without the variation of a second for many years. A lighthouse fee is collected from all vessels that put in at the harbor nearest the volcano, and no skipper objects. He knows that the volcano is more reliable than the lighthouses kept by human beings on other coasts, and the novelty of the light is worth the price charged by the Government.

The President's Losing Fight.

The official organ of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries uses up a great deal of space in a supreme effort to squelch the Telegram, and contradict its arguments that the Fish Regulations are of no benefit whatever to the fishermen. But so far the Advocate has failed to produce proof of the great things conferred, and therefore, notwithstanding the profuse verbiage of its recent articles, it tacitly admits that those wonderful regulations have failed in the performance of their promise of great things in the way of fish prices for the "under-dogs." Who have received the rates for fish which the Advocate so proudly boasts? How many fishermen, North, South or West, can there be found to attest that they have been paid the prices upon which Mr. Coaker said he would insist? Who could pay them at the rate of $10 and $11 per quintal for new fish, when no cargoes were permitted export, and vessels were held up for weeks in Newfoundland ports on a falling foreign market? Again the application of the Standardization regulations for this year precluded purchasers at the figures quoted. None of last fall's fish or any of last spring's catch on the West Coast was made in accordance with the instructions issued by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries,—though made none the less carefully and well—and hence to follow the price enactments strictly, it would have been necessary to have classed the bulk of the voyage as No. 2, and consequently pay the No. 2 quality price. Extra merchantable No. 1 white nape is worth, according to the rules, $11 per quintal, but we venture to assert that there was not one white nape fish made on the South Coast the past spring, nor will there be any great quantity of this grade made by the northern fishermen. It is quite easy to advertise a high price for an article which the advertiser knows is positively unprocurable.

It was mentioned a few days ago in this column that the Advocate had gratuitously insulted both the merchants and fishermen of the South and West Coasts, an impeachment which that paper hastened to deny and repudiate. On Thursday the editor deliberately repeats that insult including all the outport fish buyers and taking in Water Street firms as well. In incorporating the latter into the class of overlords, the Advocate necessarily takes in those of its own friends who are engaged in the export of fish, who are members—if not of the clique to which it refers—are at least belonging to another clique who look upon the fishermen as merely the means whereby they derive wealth, and who never in all their dealings with the toilers treated them any better or on any higher scale than purely servants of their commercial ambitions. And it is to this latter class that Mr. Coaker looks for the redemption of the past and the prosperity of the future. Futile thought. We are inclined to query the statement of the Advocate that all fish shipped from the West Coast this season have been sold outright at 75 shillings per quintal in Oporto or elsewhere. The history of the official inspection of cargoes would make illuminating reading, for it is well known that exporters refused to unload their vessels, and the certificates were, subsequently, reluctantly given by instruction. Recent cargoes have gone from the West Coast at 70- and 75-; others have been permitted to sail under a guarantee; others again have been allowed to go on controlled prices, which means that such cargoes will be placed in the hands of the authorized agents, and sold at whatever they will bring. There are more ways of choking a dog than by doing it with butter.

Coaker's fight for the fishermen does not yet appear to be clearly understood by them, except in so far as it has put a period to their operations, and they want to know more about the regulations than the official circulars sent Councils contain. The Advocate may possess sources of information from both North and West, of which no person but the editor is aware, but we are rather inclined to the belief that a deal of this said information is manufactured in St. John's, with but one purpose—to carry on the bluff. Mr. Coaker knows that he holds a poor hand, hence he raises the bets. But he must lay his cards on the table at some time and then their face value will be exposed. It pays him to delay putting them down face upwards, for backed with his present authority he can carry on in the hope of forcing all the others interested to drop out. The political twist given to his arguments is but for effect. It is his idea of getting away from the subject. Another red herring is the absurd and childish proclamation that his life is being threatened. That is an old trick but it won't work to-day, but it shows the monomania of the man. Perhaps he believes that masked assassins are lying in wait for him at every corner, armed to the teeth with pistols and daggers, ravening for his blood. Other megalomaniacs have been similarly obsessed. Fishing for popular sympathy with this quality of bait does not result in any large catch. There are no bravos thirsting for the gore of the President of the Fishermen's Protective Union, and as Minister of Marine and Fisheries no person desires to harm a hair of his classic head. If any person is interested in knowing just what Mr. Coaker's opinion of the present situation is, and what he thinks of his chances of winning out, they have only to read his simple letter to Captain Edwin Kean, which is as frank an admission of failure as even Mr. Coaker's worst enemy would wish him to make.

No Run.
It is noticeable that the shouting of the Advocate for a State Bank has decreased in violence very rapidly. A run for GOLD has NOT been made upon the Canadian Banks here and in the outports, and depositors do not show any consuming desire to invest in Mr. Coaker's "Safe" Bank. The frigid attitude of the public toward such a wild cat proposal has sent a cold chill through the Advocate Office.

Knowling's and the Sugar Situation.
The firm of George Knowling, Ltd., in reducing the retail price of granulated sugar to 28 cents per lb. has brought the sugar situation to an issue. The immense turnover of this firm permits selling their goods at a very low margin of profit. In keeping with this policy the capable managers of the business have been for some time retailing sugar at 30 cents per lb., although the Control Board regulations permit a profit of 2 cents more. It may be easily veiled that to-day they would be selling sugar at 23 cents per lb or less but for the interference of the north. Conditions regarding the market have been the same as reported during the past week. From Quirpon to Canada Bay hooch and liners are doing well and the former place some of the best take from 8 to 10 qts. per day; traps there that are out are also doing well. Some floaters from the Labrador are coming up, well fished. At Herring Neck some fish is being taken with hook and line; squid are plentiful there. A Fogo some fish is being caught. From Twillingate to Tilt Cove the fishermen are doing nothing, the weather being stormy.

All the party was well and were the guests of Grand Falls at a big dance in the Town Hall last night.
Are we downhearted? No! No! No! !—CORRESPONDENT.

Fishermen Disgusted.
A load of new codfish brought in from Petty Harbour to-day was bought at $9.00 per quintal, being graded No. 2; $4.00 was paid for West India. To say that the fisherman was disgusted is to put it mildly. His remark was that it was not worth catching. The fish bought as No. 2 is what would under ordinary conditions pass for No. 1.

Prospero's Report.
S. S. Prospero reports stormy weather on her trip from the north. Conditions regarding the fishery are much the same as reported during the past week. From Quirpon to Canada Bay hooch and liners are doing well and the former place some of the best take from 8 to 10 qts. per day; traps there that are out are also doing well. Some floaters from the Labrador are coming up, well fished. At Herring Neck some fish is being taken with hook and line; squid are plentiful there. A Fogo some fish is being caught. From Twillingate to Tilt Cove the fishermen are doing nothing, the weather being stormy.

Woodford Affidavit Commission.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE'S EVIDENCE.
September 2.

Present: Hon. J. D. Ryan, (Chairman), R. G. Rendell, Esq., Hon. R. K. Bishop.

Sir John Crosbie, sworn.

Hon. Mr. Ryan—What is your name?

Sir John Crosbie—John C. Crosbie.

Mr. Rendell—Sir John, I suppose you are familiar with this so-called Woodford Affidavit?

Sir John Crosbie—Yes, from certain conversations and acting in Sir Michael Cashin's capacity when he was away.

Mr. Rendell—Mr. Woodford in his affidavit stated that he had two or more interviews with you to discuss about the alleged negotiations which he said was going on between himself and members of the present Government?

Sir John Crosbie—Yes, that is correct.

Mr. Rendell—Will you, as far as you can recollect, give us particulars of these interviews, and what was said?

Sir John Crosbie—Yes, as far as my memory can go, I remember the first time Mr. Woodford talked with the case taken in Court by Mr. Hickman against Mr. Cave. He came to see me and informed me that Mr. Gibbs had been talking to him and was prepared to withdraw the case against him and Dr. Jones if Mr. Hickman would withdraw his case against Mr. Cave. Well, I said, I didn't know what Mr. Hickman's attitude was, but I felt that Mr. Hickman wouldn't withdraw; but he impressed upon me that he would like me to go and see Mr. Hickman. I had an interview with Mr. Hickman and he promised to give me his answer in a day or two. I heard nothing further from Mr. Hickman until two or three days after when I met him coming from the Curling Club and I said, "What about withdrawing this case against Mr. Cave so that there would be no petition against Woodford and Jones?" He said he had not made up his mind, but would let me know in the morning. I tried to get him on the telephone, but did not see him until one day about dinner-time—1 o'clock—I do remember the exact time, somewhere between twelve and two o'clock on Water Street, and I said, "Well, Mr. Hickman, what is your decision?" He said, "I do not intend to withdraw the case. I do not think this is a case for bribery and corruption. It is one for a recount." And I am spending my own money and I won't withdraw." I said, "If you own business shot me until I don't care what you do." I rang Mr. Woodford up, and could not get him. He came to my office.

Mr. Rendell—What date was that?

Sir John Crosbie—I do not know the exact date. It was some time in February. I told Mr. Woodford that Mr. Hickman would not withdraw. Mr. Woodford said, "It is too bad." I said, "I have done my best about it; I will do no more. I do not remember seeing Mr. Woodford again until sometime in March. He came into my office and said, "These fellows are chasing me about and wanting me to resign, and come out and take a job." I said, "You can please yourself about that. William, I do not care what you do; it is purely a matter for your own judgment. It doesn't make any difference to me what you do," and at the time I didn't care. So he left me, and I didn't trouble any more about him until I think it was somewhere about the 15th or 17th of March—I know it was not St. Patrick's Day, as I have it in my mind very well, all that happened on that day. That is all I heard of it until, one day, when coming up town Mr. Higgins asked me to come into his office; when I was passing up I dropped in there. Mr. Higgins, Mr. Woodford and his Solicitor were there. If I remember rightly it was before St. Patrick's Day. Sir Michael Cashin came in. Mr. Woodford left, and I understood he was to meet Mr. Gibbs. What the conditions were I do not know. Sir Michael and I stayed after Mr. Woodford went out to go up town to meet Mr. Gibbs.

When coming along here in front of Court House Mr. Cashin and I met Mr. Gibbs going down.

The next time I heard from Mr. Woodford was on St. Patrick's night. I was home, reading when the telephone rang. It was about ten o'clock, or maybe later. He said he had been trying to get Sir Michael Cashin. I said I thought he was at a play somewhere, and he said, "I have a very important document and would like to see you." I said, "What is this document?" and he said, "I cannot tell you over the telephone." And I said, "Better see your solicitors. Try to get Mr. Howley or Mr. Higgins and meet them here." I telephoned Mr. Howley's house and happened to find him in; he came up shortly after. Mr. Woodford also came and he said he had signed his resignation, and was going right up to the Governor with it. Mr. Howley said, "What is this resignation?" and Mr. Woodford produced a paper and showed it to him. Mr. Howley said, "This won't do, it is entirely wrong. Did you write it yourself?" He said, "No, Mr. Gibbs brought it up and I copied it off." Mr. Howley said, "Where is the copy?" and he said, "Sir Gibbs tore it up and threw it in the grate." Mr. Howley said, "You cannot go to the Governor with that resignation, it is not right." And I said, "You cannot go up and disturb the Governor at this hour with such nonsense." A few more words passed, and after a short consultation, with Mr. Howley, Mr. Woodford said he was going back to see Mr. Gibbs. He left his house and went from there. I did not know anything more about it until the next morning—the 18th—I strayed into Mr. Higgins' office without being invited at all, and while there Sir Michael Cashin came in, and there was some discussion about the case. Mr. Woodford had gone out and I said to Sir Michael Cashin, "Let's go up and see what happens." We walked up here together and came into Court and sat down, and the hearing was so bad that I could not understand what was going on, and I said, "I am tired of this. I am going out." He said, "Hold on a moment." I said, "I have not got much time to waste." Before we knew what was happening the Court closed, and we went on out.

There is just one thing that happened in March month that may have a bearing on the matter. I met Mr. Squires at the horse races and he said, "Hello Crosbie, how are you today?" and I said, "Hello, Squires, what's the news?" and he said, "I have no news. I said, 'Haven't you, what nonsense are you going on with in this Harbor Main petition.' He said, 'We got you alright. Why didn't Hickman withdraw his case against Cave? This whole business is the fault of Hickman.'"

Mr. Rendell—That was before St. Patrick's Day?

Sir John Crosbie—Yes, that was before St. Patrick's Day. That is about all I know of it. If there is any other question you would like to ask to refresh my memory I shall be only too glad to answer it. That is about what happened as far as I am concerned.

Hon. Mr. Ryan—You had more than one interview with Mr. Woodford?

Sir John Crosbie—Yes, the time he came in about the Hickman case, and the time he was at my house St. Patrick's Night are the only times I remember. We might have had general discussions, but no particular interviews.

Mr. Ryan—During the absence of Sir Michael Cashin had you an interview about the Hickman case?

Sir John Crosbie—No, not that I remember. Mr. Woodford came in and asked me if I thought he ought to take the job, they were chasing him up about, and I said, "Take the job if it suits you." In fact I was rather pleased that Woodford should have a job. He had been 30 years in public life and he was getting tired and wanted a job.

Mr. Rendell—Did he say who was after him?

Sir John Crosbie—Yes, he emphatically stated that Mr. Gibbs said he did not want to be hard on him, but that he wanted to fix the matter up, and every time he met him he wanted to discuss the matter with him. He said that he did not want to proceed against him for the sake of old time friendship.

Mr. Rendell—Did he at any time signify the nature of the position he was likely to get, or hoped to get?

Sir John Crosbie—Well, I can't remember anything about that. I seem to have a hazy recollection about the Poor House, but what the particulars were I do not know.

Mr. Rendell—But you, as Acting Leader of the Opposition, you rather hoped and favored Mr. Woodford getting the position if he could?

Sir John Crosbie—To be honest with you, I would have been glad if he had gotten it. I had no objections to his taking the job. He had been thirty or forty years in politics, and I thought he was about tired of it.

Mr. Rendell—He did not indicate to you that Mr. Squires had offered him anything definite in the way of a position?

Sir John Crosbie—No, any more than that St. Patrick's night, he said that Mr. Gibbs had seen Mr. Squires, and this was the outcome of it. He told me that Mr. Gibbs had made an appointment for him to meet Mr. Squires. I rather think that after I spoke to Sir Michael Cashin when he came back—he came back on the Digby—I was at his house; I think from the conversation we had that both of us were rather glad for Mr. Woodford to get the job, and have the thing over.

Hon. Mr. Bishop—When Mr. Woodford had that interview with you, Sir John, and you discussed it with Sir Michael Cashin, did either of you regard it as anything serious or unprecedented?

Sir John Crosbie—Personally, as a layman, I didn't know a thing about it, whether it was wrong or right.

Hon. Mr. Bishop—You have heard of similar transactions in your experience?

Sir John Crosbie—Well, I happened to hear tell of people trying to do similar work and didn't get caught, but in this instance it appears the people who tried it were found out.

Hon. Mr. Ryan—So that is where the crime comes in, Sir John?

Hon. Mr. Ryan—The others who came before us were given an opportunity if they wished to move and supplement their evidence, and we give you the same. If you think that in this case you would like to give further evidence, we will be glad to treat you the same as we have done the others.

Sir John Crosbie—As far as I know I do not know anything further at the present moment. Since my trip I have not bothered about it. I have read nobody's evidence in the case. I only read Sir Michael's evidence in England; I have read nobody's evidence here. In fact, it did not interest me much.

Hon. Mr. Ryan—It didn't take you long to read Sir Michael's evidence.

Sir John Crosbie—No, I read it in a Broker's Office in London. But I know a little more about the Hickman case than he, apparently, did. If there is anything that should turn up, that, in my mind, should have any bearing on it, I thank you for the opportunity to come in and tell you, but at the present moment I know of nothing. I may have skipped something, but I don't know of anything.

Hon. Mr. Ryan—Those days were landmarks, the 16th, 17th, and 18th, of March.

Sir John Crosbie—Yes, those are days to be remembered in connection with this case, and if you were contesting bye-elections since you would know all about what the 17th, of March stood for.

Mr. Rendell—Going back to the 17th, when you had an interview with Mr. Howley and Mr. Woodford in your house, did Mr. Woodford on that occasion state that he had made arrangements about any position with the Government?

Sir John Crosbie—I rather think that he did that night say something about the Poor House. I am not quite clear. The document he gave to Mr. Howley was passed to me, and I read it. I said it was an outrage. I said, "You can do as you like, but you have no business to go to the Governor to-night." He may have discussed the arrangements with Mr. Squires. I was interested in reading the resignation he had signed.

Hon. Mr. Ryan—That was the resignation written by Mr. Howley?

Sir John Crosbie—No, Mr. Gibbs, he claimed.

Hon. Mr. Ryan—That is the one Mr. Howley said he could go in Jail for?

Sir John Crosbie—That is the one Mr. Howley took exception to in my house.

Mr. Rendell—But after the interview, had not you and Mr. Howley objected to the form of the resignation, do you think Mr. Woodford would have gone to the Governor?

Sir John Crosbie—I don't think my objections had anything to do with it. I think it was his Solicitor's advice he was taking. But I told him he was a fool to sign it. I was very emphatic about it, and said he had no right to go up to the Governor at that time of the night.

Mr. Rendell—Well, you got the information, that night that, apart from the form of the resignation, he had made arrangements with Mr. Gibbs to send in his resignation?

Sir John Crosbie—Yes, he had made arrangements through Mr. Gibbs with Mr. Squires, as Prime Minister, who quite agreed to it. That was how I took the thing.

Hon. Mr. Ryan—That was the conclusion you arrived at after hearing Mr. Woodford?

Sir John Crosbie—Yes, after hearing Mr. Woodford, that was the conclusion.

Hon. Mr. Ryan—I think, Sir John, that is all we have to ask you, and, in the meantime, if you wish to supplement your evidence, we shall be only too glad to hear you.

Sir John Crosbie—Thank you.

SPECULATION?

When you trade in the New York markets you do not necessarily speculate. Only those investors speculate who blindly buy any old stocks that enjoy a passing popularity, or as a result of a "friendly" tip or purely as a gamble of the hit-or-miss variety.

The investor who uses his own thinking power and judgment as well as his brokers, and selects only meritorious issues with good histories and intrinsic values, does not speculate, but invests, and by taking advantage of low markets that pertain periodically, he invests wisely indeed.

On request, we can name you a dozen or more such stocks that at present prices are surely good investments.

Cadet Band Dance.

The members of the C.C.C. Band are holding a dance in their hall on Tuesday night next (eve of whole holiday). This is the first dance given by the band on their own account for a considerable period, and no doubt as in the past, every effort will be made to give those who attend an enjoyable time, and as the proceeds go towards reducing the debt on the late improvement in the hall, we feel that dancers will show their appreciation by a large attendance. The Grand Falls baseball team will be guests of the evening as last year.

How Animals

Sham Death.

A master of hounds gives this example of the clever way of a fox in feigning death. A fox had run to earth, and a terrier was put in "to fetch him howt of it," as the huntsman said. The master made a noise of his whip and dangled it at the earth's entrance. Out bolted the fox into the noise.

The noise fox had apparently strangled himself. The noise was removed, and he was held up by the scruff of the neck. Limp, with eyes closed, and gaping jaws, he was the image of a dead fox.

He was set on the ground, and instantly bolted, as full of life as ever. The writer was walking with a gamekeeper through a wood when a squirrel was found lying as if dead in one of those humane box-traps for vermin which catch them alive. When taken in the hand, its heart was found to be beating, and it was soon blithely scampering up a tree.

We have one bird with a great reputation as a shammer of death, the wryneck, so called from the singular way it twists its neck about. It is called also snake-bird from its peculiar habit of hissing like a snake. But its greatest feat is swooning when taken captive in the hand. Like the fox, it recovers quickly at the first chance of escape.

A curious example of over-acting is often given by the fine game-bird of North Britain, the capercaillie.

When uttering love-calls and challenges he behaves very like an excited turkey-cock, puffing his feathers and expanding his tail, gradually working up his passionate acting until he becomes frenzied.

Through the swelling of his palate in these paroxysms of anger or love he turns deaf.

The bird's hens may warn him of danger, but while the fit lasts he is blind and deaf to friends and foes alike.

DIAMOND DUST

Nothing But the Truth—Without Fear or Favour.

(Special to Diamond Dust, Evening Telegram.)

Grand Falls, Sept. 3.—The baseballers' special train arrived here this afternoon 2.40, all well, though much regret felt that Robertson and Brett are not with us. The journey took rather longer than was expected, owing to the thunder and rain storm of last night, but the R.N. Co. officials did everything possible to make it pleasant and comfortable for us. The strictest military discipline prevailed on the trip, and in the players' car the lights were lowered by "Colonel" Orr at 10.30. The result is to-day that the All-Stars stepped off the train in absolutely the pink of condition, and all on their toes for the forthcoming series. A workout will be held immediately. The fans enjoyed the trip immensely in the "baggage coach ahead" and having a late pass they indulged in the national game until the wee sma' hours. The Fem-Fans stood the journey well and were given a great ovation on their arrival. The whole party is being looked after by the Entertainment Committee here in their usual, free, frank, and hospitable manner; and with every promise of fine weather the series should be most exciting. The first game will be played at 5 o'clock this afternoon and full reports will be wired you.

—CORRESPONDENT.

According to the poet this is what would constitute "a restful night" on board the Grand Falls' Baseball train:

Wearily and worn, and seeking rest, you tumble into your berth, hoping that sleep will quickly bring forgetfulness of the earth—
But as your eyes are closing fast, a series of raps and strife come from the smoker where the Fans are playing Auction 45.

Far up the aisle from Ponzal Hall come words that are thick and hard—"I aint got the luck of a hard-boiled goat! Aw—deal me another card!"

After awhile, they quiet down—you stretch out, yawn, and rejoice, when Prof. Coke Cahill in a "Harmony" bunch, burst out with a hideous voice. You lie there helpless grinding your teeth, weighed down by a devilish plight, while the latest songs are massaged as the train hurries on through the night.

But finally they give it up—a silence both heavy and deep, settles at last on the baseball car and you make ready for sleep.

Oh! yes! You sleep? In a moment you know as the echoes resound through the car, that in all this world there's no being can snore half as loud as a city All-Star.

(Special last Night to Diamond Dust.)
Grand Falls, Sept. 3.—Have visited ballpark and find that on account of two days' continuous rain it is impossible to play. Owing to its being a sunken diamond it contains large pools of water which will take overnight to dry. Weather is now fine and clear but very cold. The three games will therefore be played to-morrow—one in the morning and a doubleheader in the afternoon. This proves the wisdom at the management in taking a whole flock of pitchers, as Grand Falls will be somewhat handicapped in this respect. Great excitement prevails here, and both teams are in fine fettle. All fans and players are spending the afternoon in going through the wonderfully interesting plant of the A.N.D. Co., whose officials are welcoming us most cordially. Will try and give you full account of this morning's game in time for publication.

LALLEY LIGHT and POWER

Lallely-Light is a complete unit—engine and generator—with 16-cell storage battery. It supplies ample electricity for lights, water pump, washing machine, sweeper, cream separator, laundry mill, iron, etc.

Less Danger of Fire

Lallely-Light brings to the farm all the safety of electric light.

It eliminates the danger of fire that even the greatest care with lamps and lanterns cannot avoid.

Moreover, it is a better light—bright and steady—at low cost.

The plant has ample capacity for all the lights you will want in the house, barn and outbuildings. And it furnishes power to run your water pump, your churn, separator, and so on.

Let us show, by actual free demonstration, how Lallely-Light will improve conditions on your farm.

MIDWEST UTILITOR

The Multitude of Practical Ways the Midwest Utilitor Can be Used is Astounding Farmers and Food Raisers the World Over

AND every day is discovering new uses for the Utilitor. It is literally making over the whole popular conception of profitable soil cultivation.

The Utilitor is both a small tractor and a 4 horse-power portable gas engine. It does the field work of one horse or mule, goes from chore to chore on its own power, never tires and operates for five cents an hour.

In all workable soil conditions it is dependable and unfailing. After months of research in all parts of the United States and after grueling tests, special hitches for each implement, and suitable rims for every possible soil condition have been perfected.

Keep abreast of power farming and power food raising development. The Utilitor is the latest word in this direction.

If you are an agricultural student, own a farm, truck garden, fruit orchard or country place, you need the Utilitor. Complete information as to the design, construction, and any uses of the Utilitor that you may be interested in will be gladly sent on application.

Sydney Ball Players Well Treated in Nfld.

(Sydney Record.)

A feature of the Newfoundland tour of the Sydney baseball team was the great treatment that the players and those who accompanied the team received at the hands of the people of St. John's and Grand Falls. From the moment that the team landed at Port aux Basques everything that could be done for the comfort of the team was provided. A special sleeping car, which was arranged for by the managers of the St. John's team to carry the players to St. John's, was attached to the Newfoundland express and in it they made the journey to the capital city of the ancient colony. On their arrival in St. John's Monday night the players were met by the managers of the St. John's team and given a hearty welcome to the city. In the evening a dance was held at the C.C.C. Hall at which the Sydney players were the guests of honor and a pleasant time was spent by all who attended.

The next special function at which the Sydney players were the honored guests was the banquet held at Wood's Cafe, Water Street, on Thursday night after the first game. The affair was attended by about 60 persons including the Sydney players and party and among those present were some of the most prominent men of St. John's. W. J. Higgins, K.C., M.H.A., president and in a splendid address welcomed the Sydney team to St. John's. Other speakers at the banquet were J. B. Orr, one of the foremost sporting men of St. John's and who is especially interested in the game of baseball. Mr. Orr is an American and is a shareholder in the Cincinnati Reds baseball team of the National League. Another speaker at the banquet who is a well known sportsman was Jim Vinnicombe. Mr. Vinnicombe is interested in all kinds of sport and attends all of the big fights. He was a spectator at the bout between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey when the champion won the world's heavyweight title. Mr. Vinnicombe paid a compliment to the playing qualities of the Sydney team.

The next social event at which the Sydney players were invited was the outing at Donovan's about ten miles from the city of St. John's. In spite of the rainy weather the affair was a complete success and the Sydney boys who attended were loud in their praise of the good time accorded them there. The outing was held by the Benevolent Irish Society, and the dancing was the feature of the evening's programme. A supper was also served.

A special train conveyed the Sydney team on the trip from St. John's to Grand Falls and the sportsmen of that town did everything possible to make the team's stay there a pleasant one. While in Grand Falls the players were shown through the pulp and paper mill of the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company, where the newspaper that supplies Lord Northcliffe's big London dailies "The Daily Mail" and "The Daily Mirror" is made. The mill turns out the paper from the crude logs to the finished product ready for shipment. The mill is run by a hydro-electric plant. The players of the Sydney team carried away a lasting impression of the people of Newfoundland that is all in their favor.

NOTES ON THE TRIP.

Among those whom the Sydney ball players met while in St. John's on the Newfoundland tour was James Lynch, former resident of the city and a brother of W. T. Lynch. Mr. Lynch entertained some of the players and took two of the party, Alex. McDonald and Gregg McNeill, to Quidi Vidi, a famous fishing spot about nine miles from St. John's. The interest shown by Mr. Lynch in the welfare of the team was appreciated by the players.

Another former Sydney man whom the players met in St. John's was Robert Smith, "Bobbie" as he is known to the players formerly played with the Open Hearth team of the Steelworkers' League. He is now a steward on the s.s. Rosalind, which runs between St. John's and New York.

Jack McEachern was another Sydney boy whom the players met in St. John's. Jack is now assistant manager of the Bank of Commerce there. Sydney fans may also remember Col. Cahill who played with the 185th battalion hockey team prior to their departure overseas. Cahill caught behind the bat for the St. John's team.

The players of the Sydney team are indebted to the Knights of Columbus at St. John's for the use of the club rooms. The players were extended an invitation on their arrival to visit the rooms and were allowed the use of them during their stay in the city. Several of the boys took advantage of this kind offer and the billiard room came in for their special attention.

During their stay in the city the players visited many interesting places, among which was the Newfoundland Museum. The fine building contains many curios gathered from all parts of the world. Among the more noteworthy exhibits in the Museum is the spare propeller of the Vimy bomber airplane which was the first to make the trans-Atlantic flight. There are many other interesting exhibits among which are remains of the original inhabitants on Newfoundland.

Another place of interest visited by the players was Cabot Tower. The tower stands on Signal Hill at the entrance of St. John's harbour and a splendid view of the city and the surrounding country can be obtained from this magnificent vantage point. A grand view of St. John's harbour is also obtained from the tower. The harbor is landlocked, lying between two high hills, and the entrance is very narrow. The tower is used to signal ships entering the harbor, and also contains the Marconi wireless station. The station is equipped with the wireless telephonic apparatus which is however only used for experimental purposes. The station has a sending and receiving radius of 1,900 miles.

Safety Razor

KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

The Shaving Service for Everyman—Everywhere.

The Psychology of a Clean Shave
(Part of an Editorial in Collier's)

Shaving as it is practiced today marks a step forward in civilization.

This statement may sound ridiculous, but it isn't. Here's proof: Each of our soldiers who went abroad took as part of his regular equipment, and by order of his government, a safety razor.

There were two reasons, the military authorities say, why a soldier had to be clean shaven. First, it enabled the gas mask, which was worn almost constantly at the front, to fit more tightly over the face. Second, a clean shave kept up the morale of a soldier and of an army.

You know how it is yourself. You know the direct bearing a clean shave has on your personal morale. Compare the way you feel in making an important call or attending a special meeting when you are freshly shaved with the way you feel with a day's growth of stubble on your chin. There's all the difference in the world. It seems a trivial thing to have such an effect upon you, but for some psychological reason, it does have that effect—and you know it.

What has brought about this change in men's habits? It's not so long ago but that we can remember the beard in all its varying degrees of opulence. Every family album shows how prevalent it was.

There are two reasons—just two—

The safety razor made shaving easy. It transformed shaving from a fairly long, decidedly unpleasant and slightly dangerous operation to one that was finished before the bath water had ceased running.

It saved time. Compared with the old style razor it saved several minutes. While individually these minutes may seem unimportant, taken in the aggregate, multiplied by the number of days in the year, and again by the millions of men won over to the use of the safety razor, the amount of time saved is enormous. † one of the finest churches east of Montreal, was another place visited by the players. The building is of stone and the interior is magnificent. St. Bonaventure's College was also visited. The institution is a boarding college and the usual college courses are taught there.

Bowling Park, about three miles outside of St. John's city was also visited by the players. The park is a natural one and for scenic beauty there are few places that can compare with it. The park is about a mile long and contains driveways and walks, which run through woods. A stream also runs through the park. A feature of this park is the swimming pool.

An outstanding feature of the games in St. John's was the exceptionally good attendance of fans who turned out to see the boys play. St. John's citizens take a real interest in sport and the crowds which attended the games brought home to the Sydney players the marked difference in the attitude of Sydney people and St. John's people toward sport. A feature of the attendance was the unusually large number of women that attended the games. This was another difference noticed by the boys as very few women turn out to see baseball games in Sydney. The interest taken in sport in St. John's is not confined to one particular class at least this was the impression gained by the Sydney players from the attendance at the games in which they took part. Among the crowds that saw the games were lawyers, doctors, business men, fishermen and workmen. There is quite a difference here as only a few ardent fans turn out to see the city league ball games. The city ball league should have received better support during the past season than was given by the Sydney sporting public.

Happy Newfoundland.

ONE BLEMISH — ROTTEN TELEPHONE SERVICE.
(Daily Mail, Aug. 16.)

Pleasant descriptions of what must be an almost Utopian island were given to a Daily Mail reporter on Saturday by the Prime Minister of Newfoundland, Mr. R. A. Squires.

Everything is flourishing in Newfoundland, he said. There is no unemployment; industry is so good that the Government accounts for last year showed a surplus of $250,000; and for the past two months the island has basked in glorious sunshine. Mr. Squires is making his first visit to London, and his primary object is to settle the vexed question of the boundary of the Labrador Peninsula, part of which both Canada and Newfoundland are claiming. The matter has been referred to the Privy Council.

Newfoundland's next season fishing prospects are good, and attempts are to be made next spring to make use of aeroplanes for locating the seals.

But the island has one blemish. "The telephones are rotten," said Mr. Squires, but added hastily that they were having a modern service introduced soon.

"But your telephone service does not seem to be much better," he said. "My friend has been struggling with one for most of the morning."

The weekly meeting of the Municipal Commission was held on Thursday last, Chairman Gosling, Commissioners Ayre, Peet, Morris, Mullaly, Devine and Vinnicombe being present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read, after which the following matters received the attention of the Board:

The Colonial Secretary acknowledged Commission's communication in reference to remuneration.

Solicitors Higgins and Hunt claimed compensation for damages caused by city employees on the property of their clients, Phelan and McGuire near Winsor Lake. This was referred to the Solicitor.

E. Andrews asked the Commission not to permit fence to be erected rear of residence 122 St. Gower Street. The Solicitor is to be asked the Commission's position in this matter.

The managers of the Royal Bank of Canada and the Canadian Bank of Commerce applied for water supply to their new buildings, now in course of erection. The request was granted; the Engineer to arrange same.

Application of Mr. Fred Fitzpatrick to have road built through his property east of Franklin Avenue, was referred to the Engineer for report.

R. Hibbs, Secretary of Road Commission, made application for proportion of motor car fees collected. He also asked for a list of delinquents who have not conformed to the Motor Car Act, as passed at the last session of the Legislature. The information is to be prepared and forwarded.

James Murdoch, on behalf of the Sudbury Estate, asked if the Commission intended opening the new street through this property. If the owner gives an undertaking to pay the cost of opening the road, laying water and sewer mains, etc., the work will be proceeded with in the spring.

Supt. Dwyer is to attend to the drains on Mundy Pond Road, as complained of by W. P. Pope. Regarding water and sewerage Mundy Pond Road, this will be attended to as soon as possible.

Solicitor Carter reported he was proceeding against residents of Water Street, who have not made repairs to side pavement front of their premises; also that in the matter of the retaining wall at Shea & Co.'s premises, further data was being looked up.

W. E. Rows, Livingstone Street, complained that after every rain-storm his property is damaged by water flowing from Tessler Place. The Engineer is to visit the place and report.

Frederick Croker's application to build on South Side was refused; no water and sewerage connections being available.

An application was received from James Martin for the position of Impounder; no vacancy.

Mrs. J. Perry, 26 Codner's Street, will be permitted to make ordinary repairs to her house, subject to the direction of the Engineer.

The following plans were passed: Workshop for James Monk, Pleasant St.; houses for J. R. Whiteway, Leslie St., Jas. Long, and Robert White, Franklin Ave.

Lord Burnham Rides on Engine.

Press Delegates Enjoying Relaxation in Rockies.

Golden, B.C., Aug. 24.—"I've had a splendid ride," said Viscount Burnham as he stepped from the cab of a locomotive yesterday morning, clad in business-like overalls. The Chairman of the Imperial Press Conference travelled from Lake Louise to Field yesterday morning beside the engineer of the C.P.R. train carrying the visiting newspapermen of the British Empire across Canada.

In the last few days the visitors have been doing just such unaccustomed things and enjoying relaxation from formal functions and continuous travelling. The beauties of the Rockies have occupied them to their great satisfaction. The week-end at Banff and Lake Louise was followed yesterday with a visit to Lake Windermere camp for boating and fishing, and to-day the fruit country of British Columbia will be inspected, and the Vernon Board of Trade will entertain the party to luncheon at the Long Lake Country Club.

Vancouver will be reached Wednesday morning. There have been pony rides and long tramps uphill and through the valleys of the Rockies, motor rides through the valley of the Ten Peaks to Moran Lake, swimming and golf and tennis during the few days the party has made free of Canada's famous beauty spot in the hills.

First Real Holiday.

Southern Alberta afforded the newspapermen their first real holiday since their arrival in Sydney nearly a month ago, since when they have been entertained in 23 cities and towns and have listened to several scores of speeches of welcome and have responded in congratulations. Their enthusiasm about Canada is not less keen in their private conviction than it is in their formal speeches.

"The future capital of the British Empire," one delegate from Australia remarked, "will be in Canada. Within half a century you may be directing the affairs of the Empire from these shores. It is only a matter of time. And in the meantime, please develop the pulpwood possibilities of British Columbia and send us lots of newsprint paper to Australia."

Sir John Crosbie Resigns

FROM EXPORTERS COMMITTEE.

Dear Sir.—Enclosed is a letter to the President of the Board of Trade containing my resignation from the Committee of the Fish Exporters of that body. I deem it wise to have this letter published, as numbers of my friends are at a loss to understand why I did not attend the meeting of exporters yesterday afternoon and evening.

Yours truly,
J. C. CROSBIE.

Sept. 3, 1920.

H. R. Brooks, Esq., Chairman, Fish Exporters' Committee.

Dear Sir.—Last evening I attended, as you know, a meeting of the Fish Exporters for the purpose of considering the attitude that should be taken with reference to the present situation as regards the export of fish, and particularly as regards the conference called by the Honourable the Minister of Marine and Fisheries for to-morrow. I attended this meeting in good faith, having no other purpose in mind than to give my support to whatever appeared to me as being in the interests of the country, and especially insofar as the present Regulations respecting the purchase and sale of fish affected the fishermen, many of whom, it is my privilege to represent in the House of Assembly. I was attacked by no ulterior motives and had in mind only the same idea for the general good, as I attribute to other gentlemen who were present.

Very much to my surprise, however, Mr. Bowring saw fit to insinuate that I had based upon political considerations, and that my opinions were, on that account, biased.

I regret exceedingly that Mr. Bowring should have seen fit to take this attitude. I look at yesterday's foundation of his remarks, as there should be no shadow of doubt in the mind of any person where I have stood and where I now stand with reference to the Regulations. On the public platform in the bye-election in St. John's West last winter, in the House of Assembly during the past session, and in my published interviews with the Press since my return from the Old Country, I have consistently, and in unmistakable language, announced my strongest possible opposition to the Regulations.

I have ever objected to them, and have always predicted that they would result in the creation of a condition of chaos in our local trade. So much was my attitude one of foreboding trouble and severe loss to the fishermen of the country that I was accused in the House of Assembly of being a "Lone Pessimist"; I was dubbed a Modern Herodotus, and particularly the fishermen, to say how far I have proven a false prophet. The day of reckoning has arrived, and, for the sake of my native country, I am sorry to say that I fear my prophecies will only turn out too true.

Still, as there are gentlemen on your Board who appear to feel that they have a legitimate right to deal with the present situation, than I have, and as apparently my utterances are viewed as being tinged with politics, I have, after much consideration, decided that in order that you may not be in any way handicapped in doing your best for this Old Newfoundland of ours, it would be better that I should not further hamper your deliberations by my presence.

I have, therefore, to ask you to kindly accept my resignation as a member of the Committee of Fish Exporters, and that you be good enough to read this letter at the next meeting.

With my sincere wishes for the best possible solution of our present unfortunate conditions.

Yours sincerely,
J. C. CROSBIE.

T. A. Society Grand Dance.

The Guardians of the Total Abstinence and Juvenile Society are holding a grand dance in the assembly hall Tuesday night. The T.A.S. and Juvenile Societies have been doing a world of good in the community for more than half a century, and very seldom do they look forward to a gathering as they hope for Tuesday night. The Juvenile Guardians give a deal of their time to encourage the boys under their care to stand for the principles for which T.A. means, and they look forward to a great rally of supporters and friends at their grand dance. One of the best orchestras in the city has been secured, and an enjoyable time is assured all who will attend. Refreshments will be served during the night.

Harbor Grace Notes.

Owing to the downpour of rain on Wednesday the Church of England Sunday School treat had to be postponed until yesterday. The day was very fine, and the children did not mind very much the disappointment of a few hours. Many of the berry-pickers who went out on Wednesday morning to have a day's sport, were forced to retreat, very reluctantly. Our weekly holidays are almost gone, and we have only two left; and oh, what weather clerk of ours would only deal a little more kindly with us for the next two Wednesday's, at least, we would be very much obliged. But we must not forget that he has treated us real well this summer.

Mr. E. Simmons went out by Wednesday afternoon's train on a business visit to the city.

Mr. Nath Noel left by the S.S. Sagona on Wednesday night past for St. Anthony, where he purposes teaching school during the winter and spring months. His old schoolmates and friends in town wish him much success in his new undertaking.

From Labrador reports we learn that at a great number of places there has been a shortage of salt. Plenty of fish, but no salt. This is certainly too bad.

Miss V. Hawkins, of St. John's, is in town spending a holiday, the guest of Mrs. Thos. Courage and family.

Owing to so many foreign-going vessels being in port, we are enjoying the company of one or two "Velvet Heads," who have strayed to this cold region. Judging from the actions of some of the children here, they seem to regard them as curios, or rather play-toys.

Yes, we hear it on all sides "sugar is on the slump," and we still have to pay our thirty-two cents, and will continue doing so until the end of 1920, we are led to believe.

Schooners Belle Franklin and Little Jane came off dock this morning.

Wedding Bells.

On Wednesday Sept. 1st, St. Thomas's Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding when Miss Mollie Hoddinot, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hoddinot, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Louis Parsons, son of Mr. William Parsons. The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her father and wore a dress of cream taffeta silk and picture hat trimmed with pearls. The bridesmaid was Miss Bertha Pennal, who wore a dress of sage georgette with hat to match, while Mr. Cecil Hoddinot, brother of the bride, supplied the groom. After the ceremony the bridal party motored around Bowring Park thence returning to Wood's Restaurant where the wedding supper was served. The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful presents, including several pieces of silver. The many friends of the bride and groom wish them many years of happy sailing over the matrimonial sea.

They Want to Know.

A correspondent writing from the West Coast, says that Burgeo and Ramea want to know how it was that Mr. G. M. Barr succeeded in getting permission to load a vessel at Rencontre for Portugal without the regulation inspection of cargo and why this vessel was granted customs clearance ten days ahead of other vessels. Perhaps Mr. Barr, the correspondent adds, can explain this in a manner that will be satisfactory to Ramea and Burgeo exporters who claim that they have been discriminated against. When the Inspector arrived at Rencontre, this vessel was already loaded, and the only quantity of fish examined was that in the hatchways and on this, apparently, a certificate of quality was issued.

Shipping Notes.

A cable received by Capt. A. Kean, Capt. Quibus, states that the Cecl Jr. has left Lynceide with a coal cargo for Oporto.

Schr. Little Stephano has sailed from port for Cape Charles, to load fish for across.

LABOR AND MAYOR'S RELEASE.
 NEW YORK, Sept. 3. A resolution, asking Secretary of the City to demand the release of James MacSweeney, was adopted tonight by the Central Federation of Labor Unions. An announcement was made that Union Warehouse workers will refuse to handle British goods until the Lord Mayor of London is given his liberty.

POLES WANT ARMISTICE.
 LONDON, Sept. 4. The Poles desire an immediate armistice with the Poles, according to information that has reached the news from well informed sources in Warsaw. "It is unlikely," says the news informant, "that there will be any difficulty over the frontier question, and it is probable that a preliminary agreement will be reached between Poles and Russians a few days after the first meeting. The Poles are willing to confer either at Koval or Riga, and Poland is described as being conciliatory."

Re-opens Monday.

The school on the Southside re-opens on Monday next at 9 a.m. During the holidays the building has been thoroughly renovated, cleaned and painted, and made more suitable in every possible way to meet the needs of the children. Lavatories and wash-basins have been installed, a partition has been run through the main school room, separating the two classrooms, the heating apparatus has been rearranged, and additional furnishings necessary to the work of the school have been supplied. The Board has been fortunate in securing Mr. H. T. Bishop, a first grade teacher of long experience, as principal of the school. Miss Reeves, a teacher of considerable experience, has also been engaged as assistant to Mr. Bishop. It is hoped that the children of the Southside who last year attended Springdale Street, will now enter their own school and thus relieve the congestion in Springdale Street.

Circuit Court Matters.

Mr. J. A. Barron, who was acting as Crown prosecutor on the western circuit, returned to town on yesterday's express. Mr. Barron reports trade as at present very dull on the coast, the fishery being poor. Several civil matters were disposed of. A criminal matter against a resident of Lark Harbor, was tried at Bay of Islands. The accused, a prominent planter of the place, was prosecuted for a criminal assault. Mr. Barron appeared for the Crown and Mr. Hunt for the accused, who was fined $120.00 and costs or 3 months imprisonment. The Court is still continuing along the coast and will be back about the middle of the month.

Fish Exporters' Meeting.

The Licensed Exporters and Mr. Cooker met again at 3 p.m. yesterday in the Grenfell Hall. W. A. Munn spoke on the requirements of Italy and raised objection to the shipping of fish to that market through a combine and to Mr. Hawes, who is a member of Messrs. Barr and Job favored the views of Mr. Hawes as one of the channels of shipping, but others opposed it. It was decided, after a general discussion that matters be left in the hands of the Advisory Board, who will meet to-day, and that their findings be sent to every exporter after this and subsequent meetings. Mr. J. B. Patten, representative of the South West Coast exporters wished to be placed on record as opposed to the Regulations regarding sales and shipments, though he favoured the idea of standardization of cull and cure. It was announced that Hon. R. K. Bishop has been selected to complete the membership of the Advisory Board.
 It is felt that the regulations as they stand will pass.

Lipton Designed "Victory" Medals.

CONCORD, N.H.—John F. Dane of 10 Fayette Street, this city, possesses a unique souvenir of the international yacht races. It is a medal on one side of which is reproduced a sailing yacht and on the other the inscription "R.U.Y.C. Shamrock III, 19—". There are only three like it in existence. They are samples of the medal which Sir Thomas Lipton planned to have struck and to give to the members of the crew of Shamrock III, if it won the American cup that year. The challenger failed to lift the cup and the medal was never struck, with the exception of the three samples. Mr. Dane bought his from a member of the Shamrock's crew, who managed to get it somehow. He refuses to sell it.

Ice Cream Makers and Bakers.

Oil of Vanilla

Just received a small shipment of Oil of Vanilla. This is the actual oil obtained from the Vanilla Bean and has not got alcohol or other preservative added to it. Two teaspoonfuls will flavor a ten-gallon batch of Ice Cream. It will be found much more economical for manufacturing purposes than any brand of Vanilla Extract.

Orders should be placed promptly as this will be the last shipment received this season.
