Liqueur Made by Monks

It is a strange frony of fate that St. Benedict, whose "day" is March 21st, should have given his name to one of the most potent and seductive of beverages-benedictine-seeing that he himself was one of the most abste-

His only drink was spring water, and he allowed himself no more than small fixed quantity of food each day. These rules he also enforced upon his followers, but after his death the Order of Benedictines, which he ounded, grew to be one of the wealthest and most luxurious in the world.

Their material prosperity, however was due to their own untiring industry. The Benedictines worked hard at all sorts of manual labor, for one of the main principles of their founder was that each member must earn a living by the work of his own hands. Mostly they tilled the soil, and they were renowned throughout Europe for their knowledge of healing herbs and roots. It was while experiment ing with these in this direction that one of the monks first discovered the

BANDIT ROBS BANK.

RENO, Nevada, March 31. A bandit walked into the bank of Sparks, a railway town three miles east of here to-day, covered the entire bank force with an automatic pistol, locked them in the vault and helped himself to $25,000. The robbery was not discovered until the time for the bank to open when customers tried to gain entrance to the bank and found it locked.

HOUSE DIVIDED EVENLY.

OTTAWA, March 31. For the first time in its history, so far as available recents indicate, the House of Commons to-day divided evenly and the Speaker was called upon to give a casting vote. There have been occasions before of even division in committee but not in the House itself with the Speaker presiding. D. E. Kellener, East Edmonton, moved that when private Bills have been disposed off on Tuesday and Friday evenings, the balance of the House shall be devoted to public Bills and orders. The House divided 93 to 93 on the motion. The Speaker voted in favor of the negative and the mot-

He pointed out that to a small extent our Board of Trade was doing its quota towards increasing the knowledge which ordinary fishermen should have with regard to their calling Referring to trap berths he asked if it ever occurred to anyone the reason why one berth was better than another, and then pointed out that we had no institution in this country which could explain the matter to fishermen. The speaker referred to Mr. Neilson who was brought here a few years ago from Norway, and Dr. Huntsman of the Canadian Biological Board, who was here but a short time ago. The latter had shown that the temperature of the water had a lot to do with the movements of fish. This fact would lead to the belief that a thermometer is a very necesment. He thought that the reports of Dr. Huntsman and Mr. Taylor are sufficient encouragement for us to do something however small. Speaking of one of the biggest fish killers in the country, Mr. Warren said he told him that banking skippers go to certain places on the banks according to the conditions of the weather but lacking scientific knowledge depend on intuition to guide them. Another matter referred to was the danger to the fisheries by the use of oil engines. In England vessels were not allowed to pump out fuel oil in navigable waters. Plans for Up-to-Date Hotel Submitted

We understand that a proposal made to the Government for the building of a hotel in St. John's, is under consideration. The proposal is that the hotel shall consist of 150 bedrooms, the greater number of which will have separate bath rooms. Up-to-date in every particular, there will be grills, dining rooms, assembly winter for resident families will be provided. The hotel fabric will be of reinforced concrete and the building will be made fireproof. The estimated cost of erecting and furnishing is $700,000. Fort William is the proposed site, with the front of the building facing Cavendish Square. The central portion of the hotel will be six storeys high with wings on each end five storeys high. The frontage will be 100 feet, with wings 80 feet from front to rear. The sketch plan of the building presents a most pleasing appearance. Under the duties of my office will be attendthe proposals the Government is ed to by Mr. H. The Newfoundland Exhibit at Wemley next summer will be very similar to that of last year, except that it will, of course, be renewed where ecessary and improved wherever imrovement is possible.

The Pavilion will be completely reovated at redecorated. The design of the Newfoundland Pavilion, which was prepared by Sir John W. Simpson F.R.I.B.A., was intended to give some idea to visitors at the Exhibition of the Island itself and the conditions and pursuits of its people; in that way, the building is plain and less ornate than many others, being intended to impress the mind with the actual features of the country.

The animal and bird life of Newoundland will be made known by the display of stuffed specimens, and many fine Caribou heads with noble antlers will be on view for the inspection of sportsmen and hunters. The salmon and trout fishing in Newfoundland provides the finest possible sport, and the exhibits will be designin new and practically virgin territory. For the angler and sportsman land, seeing that the Island is little

The walls of the Pavilion will be decorated as last year with mural paintings descriptive of the Colony's models will be on view, illustrating in realistic form the physical features of the country and the manner in which the people live and practice their daily avocation.—B. E. Review.

Tricks That Help Trade

SHOP-WALKERS' TIC-TAC METH-ODS.

Have you ever heard a shop-walker ask an assistant if she has shown the customer she is serving the new greens? If so, it is highly probable that this was a signal to the assistant that she need not bother any more over that particular customer, as she is obviously determined not to buy anything.

When the girl behind the counter hears a reference to the New Greens (N.G.) she knows that she has the shop-walker's sympathy and need go to no more trouble in trying to please the customer.

There are certain codes and signals between the shop-walkers and asistants in all the big stores in the West End. It is part of the job of a shop-walker to help the assistants as much as possible in their serving. For this reason he must have some means of communicating with them in a way that will not be understood by the customers, and alth the "code" varies somewhat a system is much the same in all large

MR. LANSBURY'S TRUE WORDS

Abuse Of The Dole.

(By JOHN BLUNT, in The Daily Mail) I do not always associate Mr. Lansbury with sound common sense, but when, speaking about the dole, he said in the House of Commons, recently, that any system, whether capitalism or any other, which trained people to believe that they should live without doing work, was committing a erime against the individual and also against society, I heartily agree with Young persons, whether rich or poor, are doing a great disservice to themselves and to the State if they develop habits of laziness.

It can only be said that the rich loafers are, at least, not an expense to other people, and that there are in the nature of things so relatively few of them that they do not constitute a serious national problem.

Corrupted. But neither of these things can be said about the classes that are being corrupted by the dole. Say what vou like. such people are actually being made "work shy" by law. It is quite useless blaming a man for preferring not to work, or, at any rate, work that is not their own choosing, and if the Government announce that there is money to be had for doing nothing, many people, of course, will do nothing.

Nobody denies that the dole is a very proper means of temporary support in certain cases. But people are fast losing sight of its original intention and are coming to regard it as their permanent right.
