

The HOME CIRCLE

THE SINNER'S FRIEND. By Henry Coyle. Thou art the sinner's friend; As changeless as the stars in heaven gleaming...

away his sins, who presents himself in deceit and who is still in the debt of sin...

CONFESSION NOT AN INNOVATION. Hugh J. Carroll writes in The Pawtucket Times: Since my letter in relation to the graduating address of the Yale Divinity student, Mr. Merriam, my attention has been called frequently...

To those who think that the present age is so much alive with new thoughts about religion, and who imagine that this is the only age in which the heroic known as 'The Higher Criticism' has existed...

Confession, auricular confession, was instituted by Christ Himself. The New Testament is authority for His word. He said: 'Whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them; and whose sins you shall retain they shall be retained.'

QUEEN'S LATIN. The inscription on Queen Victoria's coffin was in Latin, not in English. We wonder some of the Orange bigots did not object, on the ground of its being 'Popish.'

The Practice Came Down from the Apostles. In this dialogue, Cæcilius, who was not then a Christian, spoke of the foolishness of the Christians in worshipping the knees of their bishops and priests.

St. Ambrose comes next. He died A. D. 397. In his commentary on the 113th Psalm he says: 'We have received the Holy Ghost, who not only forgives sins, but also makes us His priests, to forgive the sins of others.'

This charge that the Christians worshipped the knees of the bishops and priests was one of the common accusations of the pagans, and it had been a common accusation for many years, and it goes to prove that auricular confession was a practice of the church at least between the years A. D. 120 and A. D. 211.

TO WASH HAIR BRUSHES. A greasy or dusty brush should never be seen on any woman's toilet-table. Brushes should be washed thoroughly every week, and if carefully done, it will not injure them at all.

HEALTH RULES FOR SUMMER. CHILDREN'S CORNER. HOLIDAYS.

First, don't entirely shut out the sunlight because it makes the room somewhat warmer or fades the carpet. Life is more than a little extra discount or the brightness of carpets; and when you shut out the sun, you shut out the great vitalizer and germ destroyer.

July the Fourth is Johnny's choice—The time when all the boys rejoice, But it that day were always here, We'd soon be all burned up, I fear.

Two Students. A little boy sat on the shore of a pond. While a bullfrog sat in the pool; And each one gazed on the other one Lake scholars in a school.

The Countersign. An old legend embodied in verse by Hooker Hammersley, and assigned to a date so modern as our own Civil War, was given in our Recitation Series a few years ago.

WHAT ONE WOMAN THINKS. To mislay a bodkin announces an engagement. The latest thing in expressions is the whist face.

St. Ambrose. About one hundred years after Cyprian we find that St. Iacintus died. To be accurate, in 325 A. D. in his 'Divina Institutio' he says: 'As every sect of heretics think their followers are above all others, Christians, and its own, the Catholic Church, let it be known that this is the true Church, wherein is confession and penance.'

HEALTH RULES FOR SUMMER.

Use as little gas as possible for lighting purposes. It is estimated that one gas jet consumes as much oxygen as six people and adds to the heat. A lamp makes far less heat, but uses more than an electric light, which uses none of the room's oxygen.

Don't neglect your sleeping-room. This is a most important don't. Be sure that, during the hour when the sunlight is being admitted, the bed-clothes have been removed and are spread out so that they, as well as the bed, will become thoroughly aired.

Let your heartiest meal be at night, or whenever your work for the day is over. Fruit, toast, soft-boiled eggs and oatmeal make a good breakfast. While the intermission between hours of labor is short, no heavy food should be taken into the stomach.

Some say the moon is made of green cheese, but the average girl prefers to think of a honeymoon. To find one's self with only a ten dollar bill in the street car is just about as bad as having no money at all.

There is no experimenting when you use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. You can take them knowing that they have actually cured tens of thousands of people of severe and dangerous diseases of the liver and kidneys.

HEALTH RULES FOR SUMMER.

Don't let the mind get into a ferment. Simply drop from it everything that depresses or worries. You will find that, with determination and practice, this can be done.

THE PAINS OF KIDNEY DISEASE. Strong Evidence from a Toronto Man Who Was Positively Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

It is nothing unusual to hear of people being cured of kidney disease, with all its pains and dangers, by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

There is no experimenting when you use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. You can take them knowing that they have actually cured tens of thousands of people of severe and dangerous diseases of the liver and kidneys.

There's nothing that's gained without grit— Remember that always, my lad— Ambition will solemnly sit.

EFFICACY OF CATHOLIC EDUCATION. A most pathetic occurrence took place here on Thursday evening last writes the Bathurst correspondent of The Sydney Freeman's Journal.

How He Became a Catholic. Cats have feelings like the rest of us, too,' says a lady in The New York Tribune, 'and show them in much the same way sometimes.'

A BOY'S ESSAY ON CATS. The house cat is a four-legged quadruped, the legs as usual being on the corners. It is what is sometimes called a feline animal, though it feeds on mice and other birds of prey.

A SOUND STOMACH MEANS A CLEAR HEAD. The high pressure of a nervous life which business men of the present day are constrained to live makes draughts upon their health.

O'CASSIDY'S DAUGHTER.

By Rev. Robert Leech. Her hair from the sunbeams their radiance has stolen. As with long, rippling glory it hides her from view.

Her mouth in its dimples and witchery flaming. Where 'mid beauty's sweet curves the young loves have their birth.

Oh, she's glorious in graces of form and of motion. And her heart, where young purity nestles secure.

ROMANCE OF A SIXPENCE.

He had come to London to accept the offer of an extensive manufacturing concern. They wanted a first-class chemist, as they were about to conduct extensive experiments.

Richard Kennedy was slow at making friends. He had never overcome a natural shyness. In all his school career he possessed but one strong friend.

Early in November he had occasion to visit the West End. One of the directors of the company was convalescing from a long illness, and he had expressed a desire to hear the bright young chemist describe to him the results of certain important experiments.

"Let me know when you finally settle down," the writer said. "You tell me you have an excellent offer from the West. Have you accepted it? And where is it? You don't write half enough about yourself, dear boy."

The bus drew up rather suddenly, and Richard was aware that a young lady had entered it. He looked up and found she was left standing close to him.

A moment later the conductor came round for the fares. Richard hastily felt in his pocket and passed out a sixpence. The young lady handed the conductor a shilling.

Then the bus suddenly halted at a cross street, and while his attention was momentarily distracted the young lady arose and giving him a bright look that was so unmistakably friendly that it almost took his breath away, alighted from the car—with the precious coin, of course.

Richard softly groaned. This would never do. The car was in motion. He hastily strode back to the platform and leaped lightly to the pavement.

"I wish to see the young lady of the house," he said. The maid looked at him sharply. Something about his appearance must have softened her heart.

"Come in," she said, "and I will call Miss Leslie. What name please?" "The name," replied Richard, "is of no consequence. Tell her a gentleman desires to see her for a moment or two."

"I would not infer from your appearance," she said, "that your circumstances could be so—so straitened."

Richard wiped his forehead. "You misunderstand me, madam," he said. "I am not asking charity. I simply want to exchange sixpence with your niece."

"How very extraordinary!" murmured the old lady. "It is, indeed," said Richard, and he wished himself at the other end of London.

"No," said Richard; "there are only some cabalistic signs on it." "Will you be seated, Mr. —?" She paused expectantly.

"Thank you." And he sat down. As he did so a lightning glance passed between the ladies, and then the younger lady disappeared.

"It is too bad," she said, "but just as I was entering my room my purse dropped to the floor and scattered the coins in every direction."

Richard stammered that it would be a pleasure, and a moment later was hurrying down the street to catch a bus.

that the precious sixpence was still undiscovered. Miss Leslie had been too busy to make the promised search. And yet Richard stayed on through the evening—and there had never been an evening in all his recollection that could compare with it.

On the way home from church on one never-to-be-forgotten evening the elderly lady had started Richard by inviting him to dine with Miss Leslie and herself.

And so Richard enjoyed the most delightful meal that ever was eaten—the sixpence did not turn up. "Pray soon he began to call without being specially invited—and after a little while he never alluded to the sixpence."

"I have found the sixpence," said the gentlest of voices. "Have you?" cried Richard. Then his voice changed. "Really," he went on, "I don't believe I'm half glad over its recovery. It brought me such wonderful luck, you know, the day it disappeared."

"Then you do not want it?" she softly questioned with a blush. "I am not so anxious about it as I was," replied Richard.

"This is madness!" he murmured. He caught Miss Leslie's hand. "Will you be my wife?" She dropped the veiling lashes over the bright gray eyes.

"No," said Richard, solemnly, "on the sixpence."—Catholic Fireside.

A SILVER JUBILEE.

The Silver Jubilee in honor of Rev. Father Brown's twenty-fifth anniversary in the priesthood was fittingly celebrated at Hagersburg on Tuesday of last week.
