ROWELL CHALLENGES ATTEMPT TO EXCLUDE CANADA FROM LEAGUE Turkey to Remain in Constantinople—Powers to Control Dardanelles

CABINET MEETINGS PRETEXT FOR DISMISSAL OF LANSING IS THE VIEW IN WASHINGTON

Talk of Legislation to Define What is Disability of President—Wilson Must Have Known From Papers That Meetings Were Held—Matter Expected to Come Up in Congress Today.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Secretary Lansing's enforced resignation continues to hold the attention of official Washington. Gossip as to the probable successor to the former secretary of state is even subordinated to discussion of the sensational climax to the strained relations between President Wilson and the former secretary of state, which now are known to have been in existence more than a year.

SIXTEEN TOURISTS KILLED IN ITALY

San Remo, Italy, Feb. 15.—Sixteen tourists were killed and twenty-one others injured when a motor bus fell into a river while traveling along the road from Taggia to Trilora, near here. The newspapers say the bad condition of the road was responsible for the accident.

NATIONAL CAMPAIGN TO CONTINUE UNTIL TUESDAY MORNING

Partial Returns Show Dominion $4,000,000 Short of Objective.
FIGURES INCOMPLETE

At inter-church headquarters on Saturday night G. H. Wood, chairman of the executive committee of the national campaign, made the following statement: "The returns issued tonight are not final. The Anglican campaign will go on for another week, but all five of the co-operative communions are planning to continue intensive work throughout the Dominion until Monday night. The results will be received on Tuesday morning at the respective provincial headquarters and telegraphed to Toronto. Therefore the complete official summary of the past week's effort will not appear until Wednesday morning.

SULTAN TO STAY IN CONSTANTINOPLE BUT TURKEY WILL NOT BE ALLOWED ARMY

Supreme Council Agreed on Policy and Will Maintain Armed Control Over Dardanelles.
Paris, Feb. 15.—Agreement has been reached by the supreme allied council to permit the sultan to maintain his court in Constantinople, but Turkey must give guarantees, especially relative to the Dardanelles, and must not have an army, according to London advices quoting a statement by Premier Millerand.

CANADA MUST HAVE NATIONAL STANDING UNDER THE TREATY

Hon. N. W. Rowell Says United States Must Grant Her Same Voting Rights in League of Nations—War Sacrifices Demand It.
Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 15.—"If the United States senate should adopt the Lenroot reservation, either in its original form or amended as now suggested, and should also adopt the preamble as proposed, Canada, as one of the nations of the British Empire and a party to the treaty, would be called upon to decide what action she should take under these conditions. There can be no possible doubt what Canada's decision will be. She cannot and will not consent to any impairment of her status and voting rights under the treaty. Therefore, when final action on the treaty is taken by the government of the United States, if the ratification can only become effective on Canada's assent thereto, the ratification cannot go into effect so far as Canada is concerned, as Canada will not give that assent." In these words, Hon. N. W. Rowell, president of the privy council, and who, during the absence of the prime minister, is acting secretary of state for external affairs, outlined Canada's position toward the treaty fight in the United States, at a mass meeting of war veterans tonight.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Secretary Lansing's enforced resignation continues to hold the attention of official Washington. Gossip as to the probable successor to the former secretary of state is even subordinated to discussion of the sensational climax to the strained relations between President Wilson and the former secretary of state, which now are known to have been in existence more than a year.

Paris, Feb. 15.—Hugh C. Wallace, the American ambassador, according to The Times yesterday, delivered to the foreign office a memorandum from President Wilson in which the president says he could not approve of Premier Lloyd George's proposed settlement of the Adriatic question, which has been submitted to the Jugo-Slav. The newspaper says that an identical memorandum was delivered to the British foreign office in London.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The peace treaty fight will pass into another and perhaps more decisive stage tomorrow with the best opinion in official and political circles here divided as to whether the outcome will be ratification or rejection.

SENATORS PRESS LEADERS OF PARTIES FOR COMPROMISE

Treaty Fight Will Pass Into Probably Decisive Stage Today.
HOPE OF RATIFICATION

Washington, Feb. 15.—The peace treaty fight will pass into another and perhaps more decisive stage tomorrow with the best opinion in official and political circles here divided as to whether the outcome will be ratification or rejection.

POSTPONE STRIKE OF 300,000 MEN OF RAILWAY UNION

Acceptance by Brotherhoods of Wilson's Proposal Calls Off Walk-Out.
ORDERS ARE SENT OUT

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 15.—The strike of 300,000 members of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and Railway Shop Laborers set for next Tuesday, was indefinitely postponed last night by Allen E. Barker, international president of the union, in accordance with the request of President Wilson that action be deferred until after a general conference of railway union committees on February 23.

TRAIN ATTACKED OUTSIDE DUBLIN

Large Band of Men Threw Bombs, Wounding Corporal and Signalman.
Dublin, Feb. 15.—A train carrying a military guard and arms was held up outside of Dublin Friday night by a large band of armed men, who shot and seriously wounded a signalman, and three bombs into the train, wounding a corporal and doing much damage. The guard did not reply to the fire owing to the darkness.

Must Keep Faith

"In the light of these facts it is inconceivable that any government in Canada could be so false to both the living and the dead, and to Canada's future as to give the United States a proposal which would deprive Canada of the position and status won for her by her soldiers on the field of battle, and accord to her the peace conference by the enlightened judgment of nations; particularly in the case when full status and voting rights are granted to her, and think properly granted, to several nations on the American continent which, either by reason of treaties with or without the protection of the League of Nations, are dependent upon her; nations which took no part in the war and whose combined population probably does not exceed that of Canada."

Persons who are well informed of what has been going on in the inside of the administration hold to their belief that the cabinet meetings were only an incident and that President Wilson himself, one of his letters to Mr. Lansing referred to other and more important reasons when he wrote that the cabinet meeting included (Continued on Page 7, Column 3).

The Times says President Wilson allowed it to be understood that the United States would find it impossible to continue in conference if the allies settle the Adriatic question without consulting the United States.

At the same time the differences over article ten have drawn each side to commit itself in such positive terms that it would be exceedingly difficult for the leaders to either materially change its position. In this situation the best prediction that can be made by Senator Lodge, the Republican leader, is that the treaty would be ratified "if we can get 64 senators to agree on it."

The first speech in the reopened treaty debate will be made tomorrow by Senator McCormick, Republican, Illinois. Some other discussion also is expected during the day, although other senators have given notice for the treaty to be ratified "if we can get 64 senators to agree on it."

Allies Demand the Remainder Of Germany's Merchant Marine

BORDEN WILL REACH NEW YORK, FEB. 21

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—(Special)—It is understood in government circles that Sir Robert Borden will arrive in New York from England next Saturday. He will be joined there by Lady Borden, and some time will be spent at the southern health resort before coming to Ottawa. It is quite certain, however, that the prime minister will return to Ottawa before the close of the coming parliamentary session.

FINAL SUPREMACY OF C. P. R. TOO MUCH FOR HIGH FINANCIERS

Strategy of Allying New National Party With Idea of Spoiling Grand Trunk Deal, Too Much for Little Montreal Napoleons, Who Could Not Carry Toronto Capital With Them.

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—Unless discounting your opponents is a virtue, it would be folly to assume that the enemies of railway nationalization have abandoned all hope of a return to the days when public services were playthings of the stock exchanges. It is true that the Grand Trunk directors in London "hesitatingly" advise their shareholders to accept the agreement which eliminates themselves from the old system.

SHAH VISITS ROME.

Rome, Feb. 15.—The Shah of Persia arrived here yesterday and was greeted by the crown prince and ministers. He dined to the Quirinal, where he was welcomed by the king.

Winter Holds On!

Notwithstanding eleven weeks of stretch unbroken winter weather, Saturday night and Sunday evening are part of it up to date. Not so low in temperature, but for storm, snow, drift, ice and wind, and country roads more and more impassable. Motor cars and trucks are not able to get much beyond the city's borders over ordinary roads, and any further fall in the temperature will increase the icy condition of the streets in city and country.

The Need of Railway Co-operation.

Some idea of what co-operation and co-ordination will do in the railway service of the country can be got from the lack of it in connection with the Grand Trunk and National Railways in Toronto. There would have been a great improvement in the railway service if both systems had the consolidation authorized by parliament three months ago been in force in these days of illness and epidemic when so many men are at home ill and when there is such a shortage of stings, engines, operatives of all kinds.

DESTRUCTION ORDERED OF EX-KAISER FILM

"FLU" OUTBREAK IS STILL SERIOUS

Authorities, However, Think Peak of Epidemic is About Reached.

Once again have human predictions proved erroneous. Medical health officials have been unanimous up to the present time that the peak of the influenza and pneumonia epidemic would have been reached this week, and that from now on a general decrease in the number of cases reported daily would be noticeable.

Their assertions were based mostly on the clement weather conditions, and its general combative effect. But these last few days of sloppy, damp weather have completely upset their calculations, and the flu is said to be raging stronger than ever.

PLANS READY FOR NEW KING EDWARD

President of Company Formally Takes Over New Purchases.

BUYS ROCHESTER HOTEL

President Frank A. Dudley of the United Hotels Co., which owns the King Edward, was in the city on Saturday and formally took over the ownership of the land and buildings lying between the hotel and Leader lanes, which will comprise the site of the new addition to the hotel.

When completed the big hotel here would, he said, represent an investment of $2,000,000 and would be a creditable addition both architecturally and commercially to the business life of Toronto. The land acquired from the syndicate of Toronto and the buildings from the Manning estate would give the King Edward Hotel Company an entire city block on which would be erected one of the finest hotels in the continent, with 1000 rooms and 1000 baths.

The lease held by John Catto & Son expired yesterday, but their new premises at Yonge and Shuter will be ready for three weeks they will be given until about March 10 to vacate. After which construction of the new building will be started at once. Plans for the steel work will be ready on Monday and the building plans and specifications in a week or ten days.

Mr. Dudley reported that about half a million of the stock of a million and a half to finance construction has already been taken up through Aemilius Jarvis & Co.

The new owner of the Palmer House, George Wright, corner of King and York streets, has decided to convert it into an office building with stores and a restaurant on the street floor and offices on the upper floors. His architect is now employed and plans and the work of remodeling will be started at an early date.

Leases on nine stores in Canada have been acquired by the L. R. Steel Co. Ltd., and these, with others, will be opened before midsummer as far as the stores. The new concern has headquarters in Buffalo. ### STANDARD WAGES DECIDED UPON Inside Woodworkers' Convention Formulates Provincial Agreement.

International officers of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and the Brotherhood of Painters have promised their support to the campaign of the inside millmen and cabinetmakers for a general standardization of wages and conditions. This has been one of the results of the convention held Friday and Saturday at the Labor Temple. Another result of the convention has been the decision of the inside woodworkers to collaborate throughout the province upon an agreement covering the entire province. Ways and means were adopted to put this decision into execution. An agreement has already been formulated. Among those present were representatives from Cornwall, Hespeler, Ottawa, Hanover, Kitchener, Kincardine, Menford, Chelsea, Owen Sound, Preston, Stratford, Southampton, Walkerton, Woodstock, Dundas, Toronto, Waterloo, Toronto District Council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, John A. Platt, general organizer for the American Federation of Labor, Arthur Martel, vice-president of the Trades Congress of Canada; Joseph P. Hunter, general organizer for the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators; J. F. Marsh of Niagara Falls; Patrick Green, president recently of the Trades Council, Dundas; and president of the Hamilton district of the Brotherhood of Carpenters; G. T. Jackson, secretary of the provincial council and T. L. Clancy.

Need for Improvement. It was stated at the convention that even with organization to date, wages conditions, called for much improvement. While it was true that many firms had increased wages 50 per cent. during the past two years, the influence of organization, the same firms were today paying as low as 30 cents an hour. In some sections of the province improvement had followed organization to an appreciable extent, in one district wages having increased from $1.25 a day in 1914 to 40 cents an hour today. One case was noted in which a millman (logger) was today receiving only $12 a week in one district in the province.

W. T. R. PRESTON FAVORS PATRONAGE

Tells Open Forum Audience Non-Political Appointees Useless.

One day W. T. R. Preston will find some good in England, and have the surprise of his life, speaking yesterday afternoon at the Open Forum in Forster's Hall, before a small gathering on "A Defense of Patronage." Mr. Preston declared that British official posts were the most perfect non-political appointments in the world. As a result, while the great war came the civil service of England was not able, according to Mr. Preston, to find one man capable of being appointed at the highest office in the great department. Political heads had to be appointed to carry on the work which was his contention. Permanent officials who were non-political always stood in the way of reforms, and every blunder made in the late war was by non-political appointed officials in the British Empire. The British consul-generals, who, with but three exceptions, were non-political, met in all parts of the world, were not worth the salt in their body, according to the "experienced" judgment of the speaker. He contended his success as Dominion immigration agent in England was because he was a political appointee. All the men appointed previous to Mr. Preston had failed in their work because they were of the red tape non-political non-descript type.

What is Patronage?

What was party patronage? asked Mr. Preston in contending that its discontinuance was uncalculated. He answered his own question by ascribing the party patronage was simply carrying on private life the ordinary methods of everyday business by giving jobs to friends, if other matters were equal. "Those who are with us those are the ones we first remember," he quoted. Patronage was part of government and as the public service had to be kept going, appointments had to be made and there was not a man, he contended, to whom a minister down who would not give a job to a friend if he believed he could fill it. Party patronage, according to Mr. Preston, was an assurance to the people that the government work would be well done. He contended such appointments had not failed in the past and asked his audience to search the list of the speaker's friends, and see if they could find among them the thousands of such appointments in any position, from a judge to an administrative clerk, who had not well fulfilled their duties. He contended that if they could find among them the thousands of such appointments in any position, from a judge to an administrative clerk, who had not well fulfilled their duties. He contended that if they could find among them the thousands of such appointments in any position, from a judge to an administrative clerk, who had not well fulfilled their duties.

What Unionism Does

Trades unionism, said the professor, tended to keep the country at a level with the philosophy of the minimum wage, entirely eliminating the factor of genius which was one of the great things in the make-up of many individuals. Thus, the genius was allowed no scope for fulfillment or appreciation. "Continuing further," the speaker believed that money should be considered merely as a fair reward for labor performed. Naturally this ideal was not fully realized today, but the day when this ideal was the case was not far distant. Today the great amount of money was placed upon the hands of a few individuals. W. A. Douglass was interested to know what kind of minimum wage would suit the cases of the Duke of Westminster and John D. Rockefeller, and T. E. Dobb, one of the most prominent members of the I. L. P., coming down to the general situation in Toronto, stated it was a sad commentary upon the work of the city's social life that the drive of the Community Social Service for $500,000 managed to get only $300,000 of the $500,000 desired, while the Church Forward Movement in the city had received tremendous contributions. He expressed the opinion that the forward movement was duty bound to make up the difference to the community government since the latter movement was undoubtedly one of the most Christian of any movement in Canada.

Bitter, freezing cold, nor blistering heat, did not daunt the Canadian boys during their long fight for freedom...

With the mercury hovering around the zero mark and a dull penetrating wind blowing, two hundred or more of these hardy veterans gathered at the armories at 2.30.

The service was to be conducted in St. Paul's Anglican Church, and by the time the parade had reached Bloor street its numbers were greatly reinforced.

A Glorious Death. Capt. Rev. J. E. Gibson, chaplain of the 169th Battalion and with the 1st Division, C.F.A., in France, preached the memorial sermon...

The chaplain then gave a brief history of the 169th Battalion since its inception. "This unit was one of the first recruited in Toronto," he said.

When the 1st Division was sent forward in battle array some of you went with drafts from the 15th and 3rd Battalions. In the 2nd Division other drafts went with the 5th Battalion.

With First Division. The military band of the 10th Battalion dispensed sacred music. When the battle hymn, "Oh God, Our Help in Ages Past," was played, the great volume of song completely filled the big auditorium.

The Sick President.

Public interest in the retirement of Mr. Lansing as United States secretary of state hinges not upon the personality of the secretary but upon the condition of the president. Mr. Wilson's letters of complaint and dismissal show him to be a sick man. They breathe the irritable, peevishness and suspicion of the sick room. Mr. Lansing's going is not so important as the manner of his going. He is ostensibly dismissed for an imaginary usurpation of the president's authority in calling cabinet colleagues together during the serious illness of the chief executive.

Mr. Wilson is not laboring under a "disability" within the meaning of the constitution; he will probably serve out his term as president. Yet the sick, nervous man now in the White House is not the same man whom the people elected in 1912, and re-elected three years ago. His best friends and staunchest supporters are leaving him, and the irritability that characterizes the dismissal of Mr. Lansing may account for the fact that the president's son-in-law, Mr. McAdoo; his most trusted friend, Colonel House, and his most able minister, Mr. Lane, have one after the other been estranged.

It is probably Mr. Wilson's fault that the United States, after having helped the allies to defeat Germany, now finds herself charged with bad faith and subject to other reproaches from the very nations with which she was united in arms scarcely more than a year ago. The growing disposition to sneer at America's contribution to the war is coupled with the feeling that she has refused to play the game in the making of peace. The allies say they took it for granted that President Wilson represented the American people, entered the league of nations to please him, and now find that the president had no mandate and that the United States would not accept the league of nations covenant except with reservations which cut the heart out of it.

It seems unreasonable to complain of the U. S. senators using their own judgment instead of mechanically registering the decree of the president. The president has no power to conclude any treaty; all he could do was to negotiate a treaty and submit it for approval, amendment or rejection by the senate. But we think Mr. Wilson should have done one of two things. He should either have remained in Washington in conference with both parties in both houses of congress so he could have been certain that the treaty negotiated by his envoys could be ratified without question. Or if he went to Paris in person he should have frankly told the statesmen representing the allied countries that he was purely a delegate with power only to negotiate a treaty which in the end would have to be approved by the senate. He appears, as a matter of fact, to have impressed everyone in Paris with the idea that he spoke for and was able to bind the government and people of the United States. The depressing fiasco which followed the submission of the treaty to the senate has been so misunderstood and misinterpreted in Europe as to bring Mr. Wilson and even his high office into something like contempt.

For this very reason, perhaps, the senate and people of the United States are reluctant to make any further excursions into European affairs. Mr. Wilson's strange adventure has brought him only humiliation and reproaches from the world-wide circle of nations which he with quixotic enthusiasm sought to serve. The senate in the end may patch up some kind of ratification of the peace treaty, and the United States in a halting, tentative way may enter the league of nations, but the disposition to mind their own business and stay on their own continent will be apt to increase rather than diminish among the American politicians and the American people.

The outstanding thing in the history of the war to the credit of the United States is that they came into it when they did with all their money and resources and turned the scale in favor of the allies and freedom at the most critical moment. The Wilson episodes are another story.

Of Feminine Attire.

The World has an anonymous letter about ladies' clothes, which it cannot print because of the Meadean rule which demands unreserved confidence between contributor and editor. It is by a lady and is full of passionate protest against the masculine tyranny over feminine fashion—surely the most anomalous autocracy in the world, and particularly so when women are ministers of the crown.

The letter is apropos The World's cartoon, "slaughtered to make a woman's hat," which is described as "a very clever drawing." But who slaughtered birds and puts them on women's heads? asks the fair and furious correspondent. It is the profiteers, who will even make wars to make money. Women have to wear what they can get.

That's true; but women are not compelled to use ornithological plumage. If they wouldn't pay big prices for slaughtered birds, the birds wouldn't be sacrificed on the criminal altar. But, the tempter to ungodly display is man and his responsibility is involved in the sentences from the letter which journalistic fashion forbids us to print.

Where and when were women as a body ever asked to consult on any question of fashion? We are getting tired of this silly, lying talk of woman's vanity and cruelty in regard to fashions. She has absolutely nothing to do with customs in clothes. If she demanded such fashions, what weakness and folly to indulge her! It might not be a bad plan to condemn some sensible men to wear the foolish, unhealthful, man-phanned clothes we are forced to wear.

There is no escape from the sad truth that, in some mysterious sanctum, believed to be in Paris, men decree what women shall wear—fouled skirts, tight skirts; loose skirts, long skirts, short skirts and presently, maybe, no skirts at all. What is the remedy for this inversion of nature? If parliaments ought to be most concerned with what most concerns most of their constituents they should take cognizance of this calamitous autocracy over feminine attire. Hither-to parliaments have been impotent, because they have been drawn exclusively from the tyrannical sex. How could any man bring in a bill that touched pleats and gussets, yokes and frills? If he attacked fashion as an ingredient in the high cost of living he would have to withstand an inquisition upon his family affairs. He would soon discover afresh that it is not good for man to be alone.

The advent to parliament and legislature of women opens the door to the new emancipation. If the women would combine to elect say three members for clothes they could expose the czar-dom under which they groan. They would also need to secure the election of two or three man milliners and Paris buyers, so that the awful examples could be made to display their pitiful incompetence upon Hansard and before a righteous world.

The Asquith Come-Back?
Whatever may be the result of the polling, unknown till February twenty-fifth, Mr. Asquith has won the Paisley election in the country. That is the meaning of his triumphant return to London, which has recalled Mr. Gladstone's progress to and from Minto, from 1890 to 1892.

Mr. Asquith has coined two popular phrases, and the most persistent of them is "Wait and see." He used it in his first speech in Paisley, and the full reports of his speeches on the road to London will surely show that in presence of the rare acclaim he advised his hearers to wait and see the result of the voting before indulging in so much vociferation.

Mr. Asquith is a canny Yorkshireman, who is first cousin to the canniest Scotchman. But he will know that, even if Labor has beaten him in Paisley, the demand for his return to parliament will persist till he is once more leader of the opposition.

Nothing is clearer than that the country is tired of the coalition, which is its highest-paid member, the lord chancellor, has called invertebrate and indecisive. It may not be tired of Lloyd George. While he asserts and asserts his Liberalism he is surrounded by Unionists, who openly distrust his leanings towards Labor. Mr. Asquith is, parliamentarily, the heaviest-weighted critic of them all. It has been freely said that if he wins Paisley not only will the opposition at once emerge from the rather colorless inertia that has distinguished it, but many Liberal coalitionists will cross the floor.

The coalition leaders did not want a candidate to oppose the ex-premier. They preferred to escape an open defeat by a forestalling surrender, and influential friends of theirs in parliament, like Lord Robert Cecil, and in the press, like The Daily Telegraph and The Spectator, supported Mr. Asquith on the ground that parliament sorely needs him.

FROM STORM-BEAT KINGSTON ROAD

The wind bloweth where it listeth—especially on Sundays like yesterday. It raged along Kingston road like a wild bull in a fit. You went out for a walk and got it, almost all ends up.

A slippery Saturday was followed by a crunching Sunday, with a change from three above freezing to ten above zero. Clouds of snow annoyed by the storm jumped clear out of the earth like crystals from a stage Gehenna. The crystallized swirls and eddies quarreled angrily with each other before they conspired to smite you on the cheek.

Part of the time the lake couldn't be distinguished, so like the sullen sky it was. But when the atmosphere cleared a little, the waters disclosed themselves streaked with white. The ice field of ten days ago seemed to be beating half against the wind in remnants towards the shore, with long, rolling whitecaps in between.

When William Moore's chariots met or passed it was a relief to remember that the people in them were snug and warmed by the white coal that is Lady is femme.

THE GIRL WHO SMILED THRU

By MARION RUBINCAM

THE HAPPY LADY.

CHAPTER VII.

It seemed to Alice next day that the world was a place of unreality and that she herself was moving about in some sort of a delightful dream. She was honestly afraid that she would wake up and find that life was as prosaic as it had been last week, or the week before.

Mechanically she rolled the bacon and went down the cellar, where the eggs and milk kept sweet in a cool spot. Her mind was so busy with last night's dream when the appealing odor of crisp bacon rose from the stove she smiled only at the delicately heavy perfume of the roses, and when the coffee threatened to get cold she stirred her only slightly in remembering what it was that David had said the evening before.

"Did you sleep well?" Alice asked her mother. But even this question was asked absent-mindedly, and she scarcely listened for the answer.

"What are you doing today?" Mrs. Fairbanks asked after a time. Alice came back from dreamland; some of her old alertness returned, and her eyes, which had been closed a few seconds across the yards and seeing only roses—and moonlight—and David, smiled back at her mother.

"After the dinner that I think I'll sweep and dust upstairs," she began. "Then I must cut the lawn today, and bring in the vegetables for dinner. This afternoon Clara may run over, and tonight, if I don't have to sew for the bazaar over at the Sunday school rooms, I'll be able to read a little."

Mrs. Fairbanks smiled, a little sadly. "I know what that means," she prophesied. "Someone will ask you to do something for the bazaar, and you won't have a chance to do any studying at all."

"Well, perhaps," Alice agreed vaguely. "Then her face brightened up and she smiled again. "I'll tell you, mother, I'll be able to do it; we've loads more than we can eat, and while I'm shelling them you can read me that article on hen raising that I've wanted to study."

But, as it happened, Clara came over earlier than expected, so there was no reading done that day.

"Your new dress is sweet," Alice observed generously. "It's blue taffeta, isn't it? Are they wearing them that color?"

"Shorter," replied Clara. "I got this ready-made at Tucker's. Alice, they have another in the prettiest blue. It's just what you should have, and only $19.50!"

"$19.50!" Alice exclaimed. "Dear child, it takes me months to save that much money, and when I do it, I can't see spending the results of all my hard work on one dress."

"You won't get anything nice for less," Clara argued. "And you need a good dress, you know it. I don't believe you care about pretty clothes."

"Yes I do, just as much as any other girl," Alice answered with more spirit than usual. "But I haven't as good a lot of good clothes. These percale things are all right for around the house, and when I do go out, which is very often, it's a million times better to know I'm not a millionaire. Why should I dress like one then?"

Clara gave up apparently, for she shrugged her shoulders and taking a handful of the fresh peas, began to help.

Alice seemed to think she needed to dress herself still more.

"They all know me," she said. "They know I haven't much money. And either they like me as I am, or they don't. I'm not going to let any one else's opinion change the opinion my old friends have of me."

"How about your new friends?" Clara asked eagerly. "David Thorne, for instance."

"David Thorne!" Alice repeated. "What difference will it make to him whether I wear a blue dress or a pink one? He wouldn't know the difference; men never do. And anyway—"

But she did not finish her sentence. She remembered that when she was hanging her one pretty frock, and the color flooded her cheeks again. Unconsciously she put up her hand to smooth back her hair, and when she saw that she was looking at her reflection in the mirror, she was sure proof that Alice was in unusually happy mood.

Later in the afternoon she came to cut some roses for the supper table. She and David had sat here last night—and he had tried to hold her away from the roses, and she had turned back into the house, her hands full of blossoms, she was still clinging rapturously about the lady and her lover.

Tomorrow—What David said.

C. P. R. SUPREMACY BEAT FINANCIERS

vice of the magnates. The Ontario Hydro had set an example which the public understood and appreciated. The old order of the Intercolonial was changed, giving place to the new of the National.

An interesting sidelight on this aspect of the situation was recalled to me yesterday. Early in the winter the Canadian National employees in Toronto presented a petition to the address, avowing not only their confidence and appreciation, but also their affection. Nothing of the kind was ever known under the private regime, either in the Canadian Northern or the Grand Trunk. The old-time magnates would have been embarrassed out of countenance by a declaration of affection from thousands of employees.

Nationalization is already showing the way to an esprit de corps, which, in the end, will be an incalculable asset to the country's own enterprise. It is this feature of the public ownership administration, acting in the wider fields of publicity, that has, perhaps, done more than anything else to cause widespread appreciation of the National Railways; and has thus thrown a human factor into the scale, the weight of which its opponents are shrewd enough to appreciate. They don't want the railway to be appreciated that in giving business to the National they are giving it to themselves.

While the hosts which preceded by the old magnates were in the public eye for their own control, they have striven, and they will strive, via Montreal, to preserve their citadel. The intended raising of ground was the National party, described by The Ottawa Journal as a party of high protection and high finance. It is the antithesis of a National Railway party.

Two things for session. It was begun in Montreal and carried to the tent of The Gazette by Nurse McLennan, of Stoney, who was a principal organizer of the Grand Trunk deal. It has had a bad press, but that does not make the high finance branches of it any less desirable, as yet. On the whole, the press was against them last fall, but that did not prevent the fight by the opposition in the commons, and by the White-McLennan brigade in the senate.

The impending session surely promises two things, among others—demonstration that the union must break up, and request for many millions for National Railway purposes. There are plenty of old-line politicians to adhere to a party of high protection and high finance. High finance means abundance of shrews for organization and electioneering. The Liberal party, practically as a whole, committed itself in parliament against Grand Trunk nationalization. Its members came almost exclusively from the Montreal sphere of influence, which, from the public ownership point of view, takes in the maritime provinces.

Montreal's Sphere of Influence. Down by the sea there is not a single publicly owned utility of any importance except the National Railways. The Intercolonial was run for so many decades as a partisan political appendage that the sentiment about public ownership of George Jones, charged with murder, when he was come up on Monday, He has secured no co-aisel to act for him. There are 13 witnesses called to give evidence.

DEFENDS CANADA'S RIGHTS TO VOTES

Better Have Dominion's Esteem Than Join League, Says New York Paper.

New York, Feb. 14.—The report from Ottawa that Canada will enter a formal protest to Great Britain against the acceptance of treaty reservations regarding voting power in the league of nations has aroused a great deal of interest here and given a new twist to the treaty discussion, focusing attention upon the possible effect to Canada's status in the league of the reservations now before the senate at Washington.

The New York Tribune champions Canada's cause in an article which leads the editorial pages of this morning's issue. The Tribune says: "Among all the peoples of the world the friendship of no one is more needed by the United States than that of our neighbors to the north, the Canadians."

Their territories join ours along three thousand miles of border. The Canadians now number 10,000,000, and within the lives of those now living will number 50,000,000. They are now a great nation and destined to be a greater one. Closer to us in every respect than any other people, it would be a crime against the future to provide any basis for complaint. It is probably not going too far to say it is more important to us to have Canada's esteem than to join the league.

"It is thus not good statesmanship to put a sort of stigma on Canada by saying she is not good enough to sit with us on terms of full equality in the assembly of the league of nations. To have it appear that we vetoed Canada's just aspiration for honorable recognition would work a grave injury to our own country. What counts is not what the British think or the French think about Canadian representation but what the Canadians think. We cannot afford to have Canada out even though she were willing to stand aside."

"An American of sense and fairness would not find it easy to answer a Canadian friend who might say to him: 'You put Cuba, Panama, Haiti, Santo Domingo, your dependencies in the league, but you were unwilling to trust us. Why?'"

"Mr. Lansing has faithfully served Mr. Wilson during both of his terms as president and in due consideration for his rights, I think the president should have asked for his resignation on the ground that they did not agree on the policies to be pursued by the state department and not to have dismissed him in this haste."

Notification of Mr. Lansing's resignation was sent to all foreign governments today by Under-Secretary Polk. It was said at the state department that Mr. Polk would serve as acting secretary for a period of thirty days unless a successor to Mr. Lansing is chosen sooner.

LANE TAKES SHARE OF RESPONSIBILITY

Considers Himself Just as Much Involved as Secretary Lansing.

Washington, Feb. 14.—Secretary of the Interior Lane declared today that he considered himself "just as much responsible" as Secretary Lansing for the calling of cabinet meetings during the president's illness. He said Mr. Lansing called him on the telephone and obtained his approval of the idea before calling the first meeting, and "presumably secured the approval of other cabinet members also."

"As I thought the meetings were a good thing," said Mr. Lane, who retired from the post of secretary of the interior on March 1. "They were often attended by Mr. Grayson and messages were transmitted to the president on questions discussed. The critical situation precipitated by the coal strike came up for consideration on all matters pertaining to the first industrial conference, and other important questions. I attended the cabinet meetings on a full level of responsibility with Secretary Lansing, inasmuch as I had agreed to the advisability of their being held. Other members of the cabinet apparently took the same position."

Constitutionality Question. Asked whether the question of the constitutionality of the meetings ever had been raised among the cabinet members, Secretary Lane replied: "No; not at all. The question was never discussed in any way."

Chairman Porter, of the house foreign affairs committee, commenting today on Secretary Lansing's resignation, said:

"I am not inclined to accept this new and novel interpretation of organic law. There is nothing in the constitution which prohibits members of the president's cabinet from meeting and discussing any departmental matter. If we accept the president's violation of the constitution, it would be a violation thereof for two of the secretaries to hold a conference in the absence of the president."

Polk in Office for Time. "Mr. Lansing has faithfully served Mr. Wilson during both of his terms as president and in due consideration for his rights, I think the president should have asked for his resignation on the ground that they did not agree on the policies to be pursued by the state department and not to have dismissed him in this haste."

Notification of Mr. Lansing's resignation was sent to all foreign governments today by Under-Secretary Polk. It was said at the state department that Mr. Polk would serve as acting secretary for a period of thirty days unless a successor to Mr. Lansing is chosen sooner.

Pollyanna's Father's Shoes

Were Like the Victor Boot for Men, They Were Worn and Prized for Years

When Pollyanna (on the screen) rides jolting away from the old home, her valise falls out, tumbling an ancient pair of boots into the dust—her father's boots that he had worn and valued for years. That is the way with the Victor. A man gets so many years of service out of them, and likes them so much that he hates to discard them.

The Victor boot grows old along with the wearer. It conforms to the movements of his feet, makes travelling easy and stands up for years to the scuffing of traffic conditions on City pavements.

There is a quality that goes into the Victor which has rooted its popularity in masculine favor; a fineness of workmanship that turns the average man's mind to this Simpson boot whenever the question of footwear comes under attention. The price, you will note, is remarkably attractive when present values and prices are considered.
