A Great Granary Burned.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Vogan & Co.'s immense granary at Rotherhithe, has been burned.

Reason for Rejoicing.

ROME, Nov. 10.—The Riforma, Prime Minister Crispi's organ, says the visit of the German Chancellor to Italy is an event over which the two nations should rejoice, as it affords a fresh confirmation of the existence of friendly relations between the two countries.

Russian Methods.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Advices from the south of Russia state that the peasant insurrection has been nearly suppressed and the leaders severely punished, fifteen of the chief insurgents being put to death and 50 more banished to the mines of Northeastern Siberia. About 200 peasants were killed in the various encounters with the military.

Movements of Brigham Young.

MANCHESTER, Nov. 10.—The movements of Brigham Young, jun., are somewhat mysterious. He is now working the Lancashire ground, and the other day pitched his tent in ungodly Liverpool. There is very little publicity given to the crusade, the Mormon missionary work being, for some reason or other, conducted quietly.

Alleged Loyalists Alarmed.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The announcement that the Government proposes to follow the Land Purchase Bill with a measure for Irish local government has aroused much alarm among the so-called Irish loyalists, and protests are pouring in on Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour against any extension of local or diminution of Imperial authority.

The Coming Session.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—It is expected that the Queen's speech at the opening of Parliament will be unusually short, and no new measure of importance will be announced except, perhaps, a bill providing for free or assisted elementary education. The Ministerial programme consists mainly of legislative remnants of last session, including the Tithe, the Irish Land Purchase, the Irish Local Government, the Employers' Liability, the Savings Banks, and Scotch private legislation bills.

The Worst.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The British steamer Ludgate Hill, from New York, which has arrived here, bears every appearance of having passed through a very heavy storm. Capt. Brown says that the weather during the entire passage was the worst he has ever experienced. The first day out the steamer made only seventeen miles, and her bows were constantly under water. Sea after sea came aboard and 51 of the cattle in the pens on deck were washed overboard and lost. After the first day the steamer ran before the gale for the rest of the voyage. The weather was bitterly cold. The remaining cattle, numbering 552 head, suffered greatly.

Emin's Ivory.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 10.—The Emin Relief Committee declare that they desired to acquire Emin's ivory rather than to rescue Emin's life. They only stipulated that if the ivory was found it should be used to defray their expenses, but that none was received. The expedition cost them £14,350. Stanley has given his services gratuitously, besides allowing up engagements of the value of over £10,000, and further generously placing at the disposal of the committee all sums which the press might pay for his letters on the expedition, which sums have amounted to £2,000. Stanley was personally responsible for the selection of the members of his staff and the agreements made with them.

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—The medical journals are cautiously to Prof. Koch's cure for consumption. The Professor begs his medical friends to refrain from discussion until further investigation has given more reliable results. He says the results are still too limited for scientific certainty.

Prof. Bergman inoculated fifteen consumptive patients on Thursday by Prof. Koch's process, and on the following day exhibited one of the patient before a number of physicians in order to show the change that had resulted within 24 hours. The Borsen Courier says it has authority for the statement that Prof. Koch's remedy has proved to be a success. A famous German surgeon cured within five days a case of lupus or necrotic tubercular destruction of the tissues of the face.

The Stanley-Barttelot Controversy.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Times publishes a three-column statement from Mr. Bonny. Bonny says Stanley only learned of the poisoning suspicions from him on Oct. 26 last in the course of a conversation on Barttelot's book. Bonny testified that when Barttelot and Jamieson, after questioning Arabs belonging to Stanley's previous expedition as to the fate of Pocock and others, expressed the opinion that Stanley would poison anybody. He admitted that rumors to that effect were current in Europe, but nothing was ever proved against Stanley. Barttelot and Jamieson agreed not to partake of his hospitality. Bonny confirms one report that Barttelot asked him for a tasteless poison with which to remove Tippo Tib's nephew Selim, with whom he had had a quarrel. Bonny confirms the statement that Barttelot deliberately bit a woman, fastening his teeth into her cheek. For this Barttelot would have been lynched if Bonny had not rescued him. Bonny still bears the marks of the wounds received by him in the fight with the natives that followed the incident. He has not the slightest doubt that the boy Soudi died from the effects of a kick given him by Barttelot. Barttelot kicked the boy the day before he was killed.

Retaliation.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 10.—Great indignation is expressed among traveling men now in this city at the retaliation of authorities at Victoria. Since the passage of the McKinley law every American drummer doing business in Victoria has been required to pay a license of $50. This only allows him to sell goods by sample until Jan. 1, when every foreign salesman must pay a fee of $100 for the privilege. Drummers who have returned from Victoria report business dull, and advise all members of the Traveling Men's Protective Association to keep away from Victoria.

The Farmers' Alliance Rejoices.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 10.—L. S. Polk, president of the National Farmers' Alliance, is jubilant over the result of the elections. He said yesterday: "We are here to stay. This great reform movement will not cease until it has impressed itself indelibly in the nation's history. Financial reform is the necessity of the hour and it must come. The press and the view of the stump speaker were our only assistants. The alliance had no campaign fund—no boodle. If we had money we would not have used it. The fight was no small affair. The extremists of both parties attacked us bitterly and gave no inch of ground. In the south it was the Democrats who opposed us. In the north our most vigorous antagonists were Republicans.

A Babe Killed by a Dog.

ROCKFORD, Da., Nov. 10.—The family of Gus. Cartright, a miner, had recently gotten a Newfoundland dog, of which they thought a great deal. While the husband was away the wife had occasion to punish the dog for something, and immediately after went down to the spring, about 100 feet in the rear of the house. She left the baby and dog in front of the house. On her return she discovered that the dog had attacked the child in her absence and literally eaten its head off. The dog was still fiercely growling. The mother gave one piercing shriek and fell senseless to the ground. The cry was heard by the husband, who hastened to the cabin, and seizing an axe, killed the dog on the spot. The mother is reported to be a raving maniac.

SCORCHED!

Two Fires at Port Stanley—A Blaze Near Seaforth—The Pictou Conflagration.

PORT STANLEY, Nov. 10.—Fire broke out in the roof of Capt. Joseph Hough's house in this village on Saturday afternoon, which destroyed the roof and upper part of the house. Loss partly covered by insurance.

Sunday morning at 1 o'clock the tug Jas. Buckley was discovered to be on fire, and before she could be scuttled the whole of the upper works and part of the hull was burned. She was owned by Brown Bros. of this place, who used her as a fishing tug, and had arrived in harbor about 6 o'clock in the evening. The fires were put out and everything thought to be secure, and how the fire originated is a mystery. It is feared the boat will be a total loss. Partly covered by insurance.

SEAFORTH, Nov. 10.—The dwelling-house and contents of David Carter, McKillop township, near Winthrop, was destroyed by fire Friday night. Loss $300; no insurance. Carter was absent visiting relations in Brussels, and the house was unquestionably set on fire.

PICTOU, N. S., Nov. 10.—The destructive fire which visited this place Saturday originated in the warehouse on South Market wharf, part of which was fitted up for a lockup. A single prisoner was in the cell, a Dutch sailor belonging to the Norwegian bark Prima Donna, now in port. He was put in the lockup several days ago to prevent his running away from his ship. The fire probably originated in his cell, as people in the vicinity heard his cries, but before any one could reach him that part of the building was enveloped in flames, and no help could reach him. Nothing was found but his hip bones.

The warehouse of Peter Brown containing a large quantity of flour and meal, one belonging to Thomas Meagher, butcher, and another to C. Dwyer, commission merchant, burned. The lumber yard and steam mill of J. & A. Carson were destroyed, as were the Standard newspaper office at the foot of South Market street, a double tenement belonging to A. D. McDonald, a paint shop occupied by John Brown, a warehouse belonging to A. J. Patterson and a building belonging to Messrs. Carson and occupied by J. Pringel & Son, tailors. Total loss, $45,000.

NEARING THE END.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 10.—Active preparations are now going forward for the execution of Birchall on Friday next. The scaffold is in course of construction, and will be put up in the western yard of the jail. An enterprising Toronto manufacturer has made the doomed man a present of a fine black silk shroud for the occasion. The iron weight that will be attached to the other end of the rope to be used for the hanging of Birchall arrived Saturday morning from the Don, consigned to Sheriff Perry. It weighs 350 pounds.

Birchall received a card Friday from the "Colonel," dated, as before, from Jackson, Mich. He protests that he did the shooting, and not Birchall. The card was submitted to an expert, a competent gentleman, and one familiar with Birchall's writing. He at once pronounced it to have been written by the prisoner. He had no doubt about it, and no hesitation in saying so.

THE FEELING AMONG BIRCHALL'S FRIENDS.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—As Birchall's day of execution approaches the interest in his case increases. The movement for a commutation of sentence has received strong support from this country, partly owing to the fact that the criminal's family is so respectably connected, and partly through the prevalent sentiment of hesitation to inflict the death penalty on circumstantial evidence. The farm premium business has received a final blow in the conviction of Birchall. The advertisements for young men to pay premiums for the privilege of doing hard work on an American or Australian farm have disappeared from the London press, and a profitable and no doubt largely fraudulent traffic has been brought to an end.

It is reported that Mr. Oswald Birchall, half brother of Birchall, is so stricken with grief that fears are entertained for his recovery. He addressed a vain request to Col. Benwell, father of the murdered man, to join in an application for mercy on the ground that Birchall might not be the murderer.

Mr. Stevenson, the father of Mrs. Birchall, has sent word to his daughter to return to England without delay.

THE OFFICIAL NOTIFICATION.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, OTTAWA, Nov. 7, 1890.

Sir,—I have the honor to state that his Excellency the Governor-General has had under his consideration in council the reports and notes of evidence in the case of John Reginald Birchall, who was tried before the Hon. Mr. Justice MacMahon at the recent Oxford Fall Assizes for the crime of murder, and having been convicted thereof was sentenced to death, such sentence to be carried into execution on Friday, the 14th day of November, 1890, and I am now to inform you that his Excellency has thought fit to order that the law be allowed to take its course. You will please acknowledge the receipt of this communication by telegraph immediately, and by mail in due time. I am, etc.,

L. A. CATELLIER,
Under Secretary of State.

BIRCHALL'S DEMEANOR.

The Globe's Woodstock special says: Birchall awaits his doom with varied exhibitions of despondency and carelessness. He talks freely of the execution and occasionally indulges in a bit of ghastly humor with reference to it. Nevertheless at times he appears genuinely troubled and his sleep is becoming less sound and restful. He protests that there is no danger that he will attempt suicide, but his guards are continually reminded to be watchful. His wife visits him frequently and their meetings are always affecting.

THE MABEL MORTON LETTER.

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—A dispatch from North Adams, Mass., says that the Mabel Morton, who has gained some notoriety by sending to B. B. Osler, the Crown prosecutor of Birchall, a letter in which she claims to have killed Benwell, is alleged to be Mrs. Maria LeBaron, of Hancock, Mass. Mrs. LeBaron was visiting friends in North Adams at the time of Birchall's trial and was accustomed to talk much concerning it. She is the wife of a respectable farmer of Hancock and is perfectly sane.

M'KINLEY HEARD FROM.

He Thinks His Bill Was Misunderstood and Shamefully Abused, and Says Protection Will Grow in Favor—He Is Not a Presidential Candidate.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 10.—In an interview yesterday Major McKinley said: "Protection is stronger to-day than it ever was, and it will continue to grow in favor. The tariff was made the issue during the campaign, but it was only three and a half weeks old when the election occurred, and many of its provisions have not yet gone into effect. The bill was misunderstood and shamefully misrepresented. All great measures have met with temporary defeat. The same issue will come to the front in 1892 and it will then be better understood. We have little to fear in the future if we have a free ballot and a fair count.

When asked if there would be any important legislation enacted during the coming session, he said he did not know of any. "We did not leave much undone during the past session," he remarked with a smile. Major McKinley feels confident that the Senate will pass the Lodge Federal Elections Bill before the close of the session.

When asked who was foremost for President in 1892 among the Republicans he replied that he knew of no candidate except Harrison. He emphatically denied that he was in the field either for President in 1892 or Governor of Ohio in 1891. "I am not a candidate for anything," said he.

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—Mr. Chief Justice Armour gave judgment at Osgoode Hall on Saturday in the Halton Dominion election case (Lush vs. Waldie) tried before him at Milton. The trial was begun in January, 1889, and concluded in October, 1890. All the charges are dismissed with costs.

THE WORKING WORLD.

A Railway Men's Strike at Greenock—3,000 Shoemakers Locked Out.

At a mass meeting of railway men at Greenock, Scotland, yesterday it was decided to strike. This action was taken in consequence of the companies having refused to lessen the hours of labor or submit the men's demands to arbitration. The date for the strike has not yet been fixed.

The question has again been presented to the United States Treasury Department as to whether the practice of employing aliens from Canada at Norfolk, Va., in handling cotton for export is not in violation of the alien contract labor law. There are at present over twenty foreigners engaged at Norfolk in handling cotton for English houses who are said to be so employed in violation of the law.

The shoe manufacturers at Erfurt, Saxony, have declared a lockout in consequence of a dispute arising from dismissal of a workman. Three thousand men are thrown out of employment.

A special from Sedalia, Mo., says: "Representatives from all the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen on the Missouri Pacific and Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway held a meeting here to-day for the purpose of discussing the practicability of system and national federations. Among the many prominent men who addressed the meeting were George W. Howard, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors. No definite result was arrived at, but the majority of those present were in favor of federation.

Seasonable Clothing.

If there is one thing more than another which interests the average man, youth or boy it is how he shall properly clothe himself at this season of the year when the comparatively moderate weather of fall is liable to be changed at any minute to the cold and blustering winter season. With a view to meeting this demand for warm clothing at a moment's notice the various clothing esthalishments are announcing their bargains to the public, and in the front rank stands the well known Oak Hall, under the management of Mr. Alfred Taylor, with ready-made clothing of all sorts. In overcoats they show some very fine meltons in fashionable shades, while their satin-lined black cheviots are also beauties. Youths' overcoats are made a specialty, while in children's overcoats is shown a fine line made specially at $5 to $10. Newly-made men's suits run from $5 to $20, those with Prince Albert coats and vests being especially good. Young men's suits are made a specialty of, while the large store appears to be filled from cellar to garret with boys' and children's suits. Seasonable winter goods are shown in great variety. Downstairs are suits and fine overcoats while upstairs the heaver goods, including ulsters and driving coats, are shown. Call at Oak Hall, the great one-price, cheap and reliable clothing house, if you desire to get your money's worth.

Among the pains and aches cured with marvelous rapidity with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, is ear-ache. The young are especially subject to it, and the desirability of this Oil as a family remedy is enhanced by the fact that it is admirably adapted not only to the above ailment, but also to the hurts, disorders of the bowels, and affections of the throat, to which the young are especially subject.

We have no hesitation in saying that Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is without doubt the best medicine ever introduced for dysentery, diarrhœa, cholera and all summer complaints, sea sickness, etc. It promptly gives relief and never fails to effect a positive cure. Mothers should never be without a bottle when their children are teething.

PETTICOATS IN CAMP.

[Washington Dispatch.]

Senator Stewart, of Nevada, occasionally relapses into reminiscences. One of his best stories he tells is of the arrival of the first woman in the mining camp. The men had toiled with pan and rocker at Wood for three years without so much as a glimpse of a sun-bonnet. Late of an afternoon a shout was heard. The cry was taken up and repeated until it rang from end to end of the gulches: "Petticoats!" "Petticoats!"

Down went the picks and shovels, and red-shirted miners swarmed the hills. An emigrant wagon, "all the way from Pike," was slowly moving along the camping place. A lone "Pike" sat on the seat in front. The lucky miner who first raised the shout told how he had seen a real woman sitting beside a man when the wagon first hove in sight. But as soon as he gave notice by the warning cry she dodged back out of sight beneath the canvas cover. Plied with questions by the less fortunate the miner described in glowing detail how the woman was dressed and what she looked like.

That evening, while the slices of pork were sizzling and the coffee pots were bubbling, the miners discussed the great event. The more they talked the more they felt that they must see a woman. Somebody proposed a purse and a visit to the emigrant's camp. One after another chipped in. There was $3,000 in gold dust when the last contribution was turned in. Then forming in line, and looking very solemn, just as they did when they marched in to see "The Luck of Roaring Camp," these miners started for the wagon of the Missourian. By a unanimous vote "Bill" Stewart had been selected for spokesman. He walked at the head of the procession and carried the bag of gold dust. As the column approached within sight of the little camp the leaders saw a little flutter of drapery at the front of an improvised tent. Then the flap was hastily drawn, and as the miners approached they saw only the man of the outfit, and he gazed rather apprehensively at the array.

A big ring was formed; Stewart advanced to the center. He explained to the traveler that the boys meant no harm to him or his. But it had been three years since some of them had seen a woman. In fact until the arrival that afternoon the gulches of Washoe had never been honored with the presence of petticoats. The boys had deemed the occasion worthy of recognition. They had made up, not exactly a jack pot, but a purse, which he was commissioned to present to the lady.

The Missourian listened. As the little speech neared the climax he grinned. When Stewart held up the buckskin bag the emigrant's eyes grew big. He turned and started with alacrity for the tent.

"Sally," he said, "come and show yourself. The boys don't mean to hurt ye. They have got somethin' fur ye."

Leading the frightened woman by the hand, the Missourian returned to where Stewart was standing. Stewart handed over the buckskin bag with his most elaborate bow. The woman took it, made an awkward acknowledgment, and scooted for the tent. As she disappeared there went up a shout which made the Coyotes hunt their holes for miles around.

HO! FOR BETHEL.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 10.—Yesterday Dr. Talmage preached the seventh of his course of sermons on his recent tour in Palestine, from the text "So I lifted up mine eyes the way toward the north," Ezekiel viii., 5. At 1 o'clock on a December afternoon, through Damascus gate we were passing out of Jerusalem for our journey northward. Ho! for Bethel with its stairs, the bottom step of which was a stone pillow, and Jacob's well with its immortal colloquy, and Nazareth with its Divine boy in his father's carpenter shop, and the most glorious lake that ever rippled or flashed; and Damascus with its crooked street called Straight, and a hundred places charged and surcharged with apostolic, evangelistic, prophetic, patriarchal, kingly and Christly reminiscences. In traveling along the roads of Palestine, I am impressed as I could not otherwise have been, with the fact that Christ for the most part went afoot. How much that means only those know who have gone over the distance traversed by Christ. We are accustomed to read that Bethany is two miles from Jerusalem. Well, any man in ordinary health can walk two miles without fatigue. But not more than one man out of a thousand can walk from Bethany to Jerusalem without exhaustion. It is over the Mount of Olives, and you must climb up among the rolling stones and descend where exertion is necessary to keep you from falling prostrate. I, who am accustomed to walk fifteen or twenty miles without lassitude, tried part of this road over the Mount of Olives, and confess I would not want to try it often, such demand does it make upon one's physical energies. Yet Christ walked it twice a day—in the morning from Bethany to Jerusalem, and in the evening from Jerusalem to Bethany. Likewise it seemed a small thing that Christ walked from Jerusalem to Nazareth. But it will take us four days of hard horseback riding, sometimes on a trot and sometimes on a gallop to do it this week. The way is mountainous in the extreme. Across and recrossing Palestine Jesus walked. Ahab rode. David rode. Solomon rode. Herod rode. Antony rode. But Jesus walked. We rode down through the valley and then up on Mount Scopus and, as our dragoman tells us that this is the last opportunity we shall have of looking at Jerusalem, we turn our horse's head toward the city and take a long, sad and thrilling look at the religious capital of our planet. This is the most impressive view of the most tremendous city of all time. Our last look! Farewell, Mount Zion, Mount Moriah, Mount of Olives, Mount Calvary! Farewell yonder thrones of gray rock, and the 3,000,000 years of architecture and battle-fields. Farewell sacred, sanguinary, triumphant, humiliated Jerusalem! Across this valley of the Kedron with my right hand I throw thee a kiss of valedictory. Our last look, like our first look, an agitation of body, mind and soul indescribable.

Blue Galilee, sweet Galilee,

And now, like Ezekiel in my text, I lift up mine eyes the way toward the north. We pass on where seven youths were put to death and their bodies gibbeted or hung in chains, not for anything they had themselves done, but as a reparation what their father and grandfather, Saul, had done. Burial was denied these youths from May until November. Rizpah, the mother of two of these dead boys, appoints herself as sentinel to guard the seven corpses from beak of raven and tooth of wolf and paw of lion. She pitches a black tent on the rock close by the gibbets. Rizpah by day sits on the ground in front of her tent, and when a vulture begins to lower out of the noonday sky seeking its prey among the gibbets, Rizpah rises her long hair flying in the wind, and, swinging her arms wildly about, shoos away the bird of prey until it retreats to its eyrie. At night she rests under the shadow of her tent and sometimes falls into a drowsiness or half sleep. But the step of a jackal among the dry leaves or the panting of a hyena arouses her, and with the fury of a maniac she rushes out upon the rock crying, "Away! Away! and then examining the gibbets to see that they still keep their burden, returns again to her tent till some swooping wing from the midnight sky or some growling monster on the rock again awakes her.

A mother watching her dead children through May, June, July, August, September and October! What a vigil! Painters have tried to put upon canvas the scene, and they succeeded in sketching the hawks in the sky and the panthers crawling out from the jungle, but they fail to give the warmness, the earnestness, the supernatural courage, the infinite self-sacrifice of Rizpah, the mother. A mother in the quiet home watching by the casket of a dead child for one night exerts the artist to his utmost, but who is sufficient to put upon canvas a mother for six months of midnight guarding her whole family, dead and gibbeted upon the mountains? Go home, Rizpah! You must be awfully tired! You are sacrificing your reason and your life for those whom you can never bring back again to your bosom. As I say that, from the darkest midnight of the century Rizpah turns upon me and cries: "How dare you tell me to go home? I am a mother. I am not tired. You might as well expect God to get tired as for a mother to get tired. I cared for those boys when they lay upon my breast in infancy, and I will not forsake them now that they are dead. Interrupt me not. There stoops an eagle that I must drive back with my agonized cry. There is a panther I must beat back with my club!"

Do you know what that scene by our roadside in Palestine makes me think of? It is no unusual scene. Right here in these three cities by the American sea coast there are a thousand cases this moment worse than that. Mothers watching boys that the rum saloon, that annex of hell, has gibbeted in a living death. Boys hung in chains of evil habit they cannot break. The father may go to sleep after waiting until 12 o'clock at night for the ruined boy to come home, and giving it up, he may say: "Mother, come to bed; there's no use sitting up any longer." But mother will not go to be. It is 1 o'clock in the morning. It is 1:30. It is 2 o'clock. It is 2:30 when he comes staggering through the hall. Do you say that young man is still alive? No; he is dead. Dead to his father's entreaties. Dead to his mother's prayers. Dead to the family altar where he was reared. Dead to all the noble ambitions that once inspired him. Twice dead. Only a corpse of what he once was. Gibbeted before God and man and angels and devils. Chained in a death that will not loosen its cold grasp. His father is asleep, his brothers are asleep, his sisters are asleep, but his mother is watching him; watching him in the night. After he has gone up to bed and fallen into a drunken sleep, his mother will go up to his room and see that he is properly covered, and before she turns out the light will put a kiss upon his bloated lips. "Mother, why don't you go to bed?" "A[...]" says, "I cannot go to bed. I am [...]izpa watching the slain!"

A GENERAL ELECTION.

A dispatch from Ottawa says that Parliament, which usually begins its session about the middle of January, will not be organized till the end of February.

We have more important intelligence than that from the capital. An early dissolution of Parliament, in accordance with the prognostications already set forth in the ADVERTISER, has been agreed to.

The Government will go to the country in January, if it does not again change its mind. The Ministers are beset with difficulties, and the indications of trouble next year are so great that they wish, if possible, to snatch a verdict before another session of Parliament is held or the evils of trade restriction are made more fully manifest.

The revelations of colossal boodling in connection with Government contracts, which a Tory newspaper in Quebec has been laying bare, have to be considered also. These revelations implicate a Minister of the Crown and Tory M. P.s, and have only been made in consequence of a falling out amongst alleged participants in the plunder. No doubt during next session of Parliament a demand will be made for a commission to make a thorough investigation into the charges promulgated by Mr. Tarte, ex-M.P. The Government will not dare to face the impartial investigation of these scandalous ongoings, which are alleged to be so bad that even men hitherto friendly to the Ministers who are responsible for their occurrence refuse to condone them, and in fact are aiding in the expose.

We warn the friends of tariff reform, of reduction in taxation, of reciprocity, to get ready for the battle that is impending. Hon. John Carling has not been spending the major portion of his time in London during the last two months for nothing, and those who are opposed to the principles represented by the Government of which he is a member cannot afford to be idle.

PUBLIC SCHOOL AGRICULTURE.

The long-looked-for work on agriculture to be used as a text book in the public schools of Ontario has made its appearance. From the publishers, the J. E. Bryant Company, of Toronto, we have received a copy of the volume. It is a modest appearing little book of 250 pages, clearly printed, well bound in cloth, the front of the cover displaying in outline a plow, a bunch of grain stalks and the head of an individual of the bovine race. Within appears a full page illustration of the Ontario Agricultural College building at Guelph. The work is a composite production from the pens of James Mills, M.A., president of the college, and Thomas Shaw, professor of agriculture at that institution. In providing this text book the Education Department of the Provincial Government in accordance with its accustomed policy has met the expressed wishes of the people in regard to agricultural education.

That the subject should so long have been passed without special recognition at least in the rural schools of the country finds explanation in the general policy of past days regarding lists of studies prescribed for the youth. It has been the great fault of old educational methods, which unfortunately are not yet wholly discarded, that the child has been made a memorizing machine instead of an intelligent, observant being. In fact, as a writer in a scientific publication recently pointed out, the disposition of the child to observe and ask questions about natural objects, so freely exercised before, encounters a harsh and too often fatal check within the walls of the school house. What a wealth of suggestion, under the direction of an intelligent teacher, is to be found in the animal and vegetable life of every neighborhood. To embrace even an epitome of agriculture in a single volume is an ambitious attempt, because it is so closely allied to physiology, botany, chemistry, entomology and other branches of natural science. When it comes to adapting such a work to the comprehension of children in the third and fourth classes of a public school some idea may be gathered of the difficult task undertaken by Messrs. Mills and Shaw, and of which they are duly sensible, as the preface indicates. That so much valuable information could be packed within so small a space, in so practical and intelligent a form, is indeed creditable to the authors.

How comprehensive the volume is may be seen from the following list of contents: Definitions and explanations, the plant, the soil, tillage, improvement of soils, preparation of soils for seeds, rotation of crops, crops of the farm, their growth and management, crops for soiling, weeds of the farm, diseases of crops, insects, outlines of the principles of feeding, feeding, care and management of horses, cattle, sheep and swine, breeding, breeds of live stock, dairying, the silo and ensilage, and the cultivation of forest trees for shade, ornament and protection. Mr. Mills is responsible for the introductory chapter on definitions and explanations and for those relating to the plant, the soil, crop diseases, insects and dairying, and Mr. Shaw the remainder of the volume.

The first seven chapters have been prescribed for the entrance examination to high schools and collegiate institutes, but the subject is optional. Some of the earlier chapters contain considerable matter relative to the chemistry of agriculture, numerous terms of that character being used, of the significance of which children can hardly be expected to form an adequate conception. Moreover chemistry itself is not a compulsory subject in obtaining a third-class teachers' certificate. Would it not therefore have been better to introduce the study with something more attractive to the young than abstract principles or chemical terms, such for example as the chapters on breeds of live stock, farm crops, weeds, or others of that type? The great object at the outset is to develop in the scholar an intelligent inquiring spirit regarding those things with which from day to day he comes in contact in farm life, leading by degrees to principles and definitions, thus proceeding as it were from the known to the unknown. Any scientific terms necessarily introduced could by this mode be easily explained and made familiar to the scholar as occasion for their use arose. In the hands of a skillful teacher, however, the subject so ably presented in this volume may be invested with the greatest possible interest, opening up before the minds of the youth fresh fields of delightful study, but if wrongly directed it may prove as irksome as the repellant text books and ironclad educational methods of the past.

The illustrations of the book are a good feature. Education through the eye is most effective, an idea which the authors did well to keep in view. The various breeds of cattle, etc., are portrayed so that the student can readily learn to distinguish one from the other. One well-known and widely-spread class is not represented on these bright pages, viz., the "scrub." 'Twere well for the Province if that particular type of animal could as easily be dropped out of existence.

To any farmer desiring a capital little hand-book regarding his own important occupation, the ADVERTISER has no hesitation in commending this work. It would constitute an excellent nucleus around which to gather a library. The necessity for intelligent methods and skill in farming are becoming more necessary every day, hence the practical importance of this study to the rising generation of farmers. No one need lack the volume, for the price is but 40 cents. A word of praise is due the J. E. Bryant Company upon the substantial and attractive form in which the volume is presented.

AN EXPORT DUTY ON NICKEL.

Dr. Robert Bell, of the Geological Survey at Ottawa, says that no one but an idiot would propose to put an export duty on nickel ore, and we think that in so saying he is pretty nearly right. Well, who is proposing it, can the reader guess? No less than the boss of the restrictionists, the Canadian Manufacturer. In a recent issue, that mouthpiece of the Canadian high-tariff party says:

> The Congress have shown a decidedly hostile spirit towards Canada in some of the provisions of the new tariff; and Canada would be lacking in self-respect if she did not look out for her own interests. This great necessity for nickel is Canada's opportunity. Heretofore the United States thought that foreign nickel should pay a duty of 15 cents a pound into her treasury. Our nickel is certainly worth that much to Canada, and the way to realize it is by imposing an export duty on all nickel ore and matte going out of the country.

Of all the mad proposals yet made by the restrictionists, we think this is the maddest. We cannot conceive of any conditions short of actual war between Canada and the rest of the world which would justify the laying of an export duty upon nickel; but when we consider that nickel mining in Canada is only in its infancy, that British and American capital has been largely invested in it, and that for the most promising uses the metal is yet only in the experimental stage, it is not possible to conceive of a sane man proposing seriously to promote the interests of Canada by means of an export duty on the ore or the matte. There seems to be little doubt that in this Province there are vast ranges of ore, rich in nickel and copper, and that no other country on the face of the globe possesses a supply at all approaching ours. The members of the Iron and Steel Institute who visited Sudbury a few days ago spoke of nickel as a rare metal, and they were greatly surprised at the vast bodies of it which they saw opened up at the Sudbury mines. Some of their number also, it has been intimated, have become interested in properties there, and it is more than probable that mining operations will be commenced under their direction in the course of a few months. One of these men is Mr. Snelus, a vice-president of the institute, and a man of world-wide reputation as a metallurgist. Can anyone imagine that Mr. Snelus would invest capital in a nickel mine in Ontario if the Canadian Government seriously contemplated the placing of an export duty on the ore. He assuredly would not. Yet the Canadian Manufacturer is urging such a duty; and it is the organ of Sir John Macdonald's particular friends, the gentlemen of the Red Parlor. We sincerely trust so insane a proposal will never receive countenance at Ottawa.

There is now an opportunity of establishing an important mining industry in Ontario, and whether the ore is admitted free into the United States and elsewhere or not, there is little doubt that the great bulk of what is raised at the mines will be roasted and smelted there, and so continue to give employment to a large number of men, of the skilled and unskilled classes. But let an export duty be placed on the ore or the matte, and the industry may be seriously crippled for many years. The Government has been taught one lesson of the folly of an export duty in the case of sawlogs. Does it need to be taught another at the dictation of the Canadian Manufacturer?

—In taking note of the fact that in Detroit eggs have been selling for 25 cents a dozen, whereas 20 cents is the price in Windsor, the Ottawa Citizen says that with the tariff on exports to the States removed, eggs would still sell for 20 cents in Canada. Why? Does not the price in the greater market rule the price in the smaller, all obstacles to trade being removed?

—The British farm delegates have left for home. They sail from Montreal on the Parisian on Thursday. Through the superior arrangements of the Ontario Government the delegates said they had seen more of this Province than of any other in the Dominion and liked what they had seen better. We hear that there is a probability of one or more of the delegates returning to Ontario as permanent residents.

New Glasgow, N. S., Chronicle.

The present administration of "red parlor" fame, bound hand and foot by rings and combines of monopolists are not the men to tackle the job of arranging a reciprocity treaty, even if they wished it at heart. There is only one wise course and that is to put in new men free from promises and contracts, and if better terms are not secured, or at least an honest attempt made to secure such, then, and only then will the farmer and laboring man have an excuse for voting against the Liberal party of Canada.

The tavern-keeper who cannot make a living by doing business in the legal hours ought to get into some other business. A drink of liquor after 11 o'clock at night, or from 7 on Saturday evening until 6 on Monday morning, is not really necessary to preserve life or to maintain health. Customers of taverns ought to remember this, and not tempt the dealers to break the law. On the other hand, the tavern-keeper who cannot say no to a customer has only himself to blame if he finds himself before Mr. Cahill (Police Magistrate.)

What is Scrofula

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors." It is a more formidable enemy than consumption or cancer alone, for scrofula combines the worst possible features of both. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How can it be cured? By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. For all affections of the blood Hood's Sarsaparilla is unequalled, and some of the cures it has effected are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula in any of its various forms, be sure to give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

It is announced that the directors of the Charter Oak Driving Park, Hartford, have decided to offer $25,000 for foals of 1890, $10,000 to be trotted for in 1893, and $15,000 in 1894; $200 entrance, with a special provision that non-winners in 1892 can start in 1894 for $100.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—The American Horse Show closed Saturday night before an audience of over 5,000 people. The feature of the evening's entertainment was the jumping contest between the Canadian horse Rosebery and the American horse Filemaker, for a purse of $500. Filemaker, in attempting to make the 6 foot 11 inch jump, fell, and for a time it was thought had fatally injured his rider, Potter. The next attempt was at 7 feet 1½ inches, which was one-half inch higher than Filemaker's world-beating record of Thursday evening. Rosebery was ridden by Tim Blong in excellent form, and at the very first trial cleared the poles, the horse barely grazing with one of his fore feet. The enthusiasm of the crowd present was unbounded, and for many minutes there was a great outburst of cheering. Potter, the rider of Filemaker, although in an injured condition, had by this time mounted his horse and was determined to make another attempt, but the people protested so forcibly that he was obliged to desist.

At the Chicago horse show Messrs. Moorhouse & Pepper took second and third in the saddle class, park hacks, mare or gelding, 15, 2, 4 years old and over, with Bess and Erminie, and first and second with Nelly and Lily, for fillies 3 years old and under.

The championship football season was opened at Philadelphia Saturday by a game between teams representing Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania, the former winning after a very exciting game. Over 6,000 people were present. Play lasted 40 minutes before a point was scored. The second half was remarkable for the number of injuries received. Heizelman, of the University, hadan arm broken, and Sypher took his place. During a hot "slugging match" Captain Poe was struck on the nose, and that organ being broken he was obliged to retire. Several other players were hurt. The game ended with the score 6 to 0 in favor of Princeton.

It is a mystery as to just how the dude manages to get rid of his coin, as he has no bad habits, but his dollars never fail to glide through some channel. Arlie pocketed over $500 on last Monday, but nearly half of it had dwindled away before he could make his escape to Boston. Holiday and Duryea are both counted as free spenders.—[Commercial Gazette.

The first trial was made in record time 20 1-5 seconds. The second attempt was made after half an hour's rest and the distance was made in twenty seconds, or one-fifth of a second better than the best previous American record, made several years ago by Lon E. VOICES OF THE PEOPLE.

London West School's Troubles.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

I see by your Saturday's issue that the regular meeting of the London West Board of Education which should have been held on Friday evening fell through there not being a quorum of the Board present. Now, sir, as a parent and freeholder, I have been looking forward to this meeting with more than usual interest to see what steps our intelligent (?) Board would take in respect to the overcrowding of the rooms. The last report submitted by the head master showed that there were 130 or more names on the register and over 80 pupils in one room under the care of one teacher. Now, sir, I would like to know whether we send our children to school to be cooped up like a lot of cattle, as is now the case. Surely this is not conducive to good health. In talking to an ex-school trustee the other day he told me that he had to keep his children from school on account of the crowded state of the lower rooms. I think if some of these wise heads would devote a little more of their attention to this matter instead of wasting their time in arguing whether they or the Council own the Board room, and passing resolutions barring out the latter, they would only be performing the duties for which they were elected. Surely they are not too blind to knowledge the fact that the school, which is a credit to the village, belongs to the ratepayers and not to the trustees. If the members of the Board don't stir themselves in the matter of providing another teacher and opening up the empty room the ratepayers will call a halt and elect men that have feelings of Christian parental regard for the young and rising generation of our village. I have been given to understand that for the past year the inspector has been urging the Board to open up another room but without avail. Unless [...] it is more than likely that our government grant will be withheld, which is [...] more than enough to pay the salary of another teacher. Yours truly,

Meeting in Victoria Hall—Splendid Address by Rev. W. J. Clark—Line of Action Pointed Out—Remarks by Rev. Geo. Boyd.

At the weekly temperance meeting held in Victoria Hall Saturday evening, Dr. Arnott presided, and on the platform were Messrs. Wm. Bowman, John Cameron, C. R. Sayer, D. A. McDermid, County Crown Attorney Hutchinson, Rev. Messrs. W. J. Clark, S. Bond, M. P. Talling, H. C. Speller, Geo. Boyd and others. After the opening hymn, a Scriptural reading by Rev. H. C. Speller, and a well-rendered solo by Miss Hiscott, the Chairman introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. W. J. Clark, with a few complimentary remarks on the self-sacrifice of the clergy, in their disinterested dovotion to Christian work, apart from their congregational duties, as evidenced by their zeal in the temperance cause.

Mr. Clark was given a cordial reception, and justified it by a logical and fluent address. In opening he said he would state as concisely as possible: 1. Some of the strong points in support of the liquor trafficas it exists. 2. Some of its weaknesses. 3. The opportunities we have. The first thing that came home in connection with the support of the liquor traffic arose from the thought of the great army of men who were given up to the habit of strong drink. The depraved appetite of a drunkard was hard to overcome, both to the many who were addicted to taking an occasional drink, and to those who were low already. When men were possessed of an appetite from which they derived more satisfaction than from wife, kindred, and home, the temperance adherents had a hard battle to fight. The system of treating might be classed under this head. It would be safe to assume that out of every 100 drinks taken over the bars of the city there were 80 brought about by treating. In the opinion of the speaker this habit might be accountable to the generous part of man's nature. Perhaps the strongest thing to face was the fact of the money invested in the liquor business. It could be placed on a parallel with the late American war, where the men of the South fought for the retention of their slaves, because in that trade their capital was invested, and to lose it meant certain ruin. When the countless thousands absorbed in breweries, hotels and saloons were considered it was not expected that the liquor dealers would yield without a hard contest; and he would say candidly that sympathy should be extended to every man whose money was invested in the traffic. If ever the temperance advocates meant to make capital by abusing the liquor man they were greatly mistaken. They must fight him honestly, without abuse, and recognize his honor and his interest. (Applause.) He had heard men attack the liquor traffic in the bitterest strain and yet refuse money to any good object when asked. Another feature in the habit was caused by the desire of misery and poverty to hide its sorrows. He could venture to assert that many men were driven to drink not from the mere sake of the liquor, but for the comfort they found in the well-lighted and attractive barroom, with the conviviality of companionship, as compared with their own cheerless homes. The apathy of people was another great impediment to the advance of temperance. There were hundreds of men in London who were in sympathy with the movement in toto, but there was not that intense desire to have the evil banished that there should be; for when men were in earnest they did not permit little things to keep them back. Again, there was the inconsistency of temperance men to contend with. There were those who were loud in their support of the temperance movement as understood, and yet they did not consistently live by it. There were men prominent in the work, who, when the elections came, were the first to be whipped into line to support a candidate whose utmost efforts were directed against the cause. The temperance party should canvass each aspirant at the party caucus and pledge their influence and ballot to that one who would promise his active sympathy in behalf of the movement. When they were consistent in that way the temperance march would go ahead in giant strides. (Applause.)

Under the head of "The weak points of the liquor traffic" he would first class "the hate, deep-seated—the evidence of those whose lives have been blasted and ruined by the curse of strong drink." The history of the world proved it was not the material thing that moved the world, but "the spirit that lieth in man," and glancing over the past century, they could look over past history and find wife, daughter and friend of those whose lives had been destroyed by indulgence in strong drink. In connection with this he would include the plain evidence of its evil effects. He had never met a man or woman yet who said it was a good thing to be a drunkard. If many of the tavern-keepers were forced to show the results of their business—if they were forced to display the drunkards who went out of their places the previous night—they would be so ashamed that they would shut up their shops. The temperance people were in a sense responsible for a drunkard's condition, and it lay upon their souls to see that the temptation was put out of his way. There was no good argument in support of the liquor traffic. A good deal was heard about the infringement of personal liberty; but was it considered such when a druggist asked for the name and address of a person buying prussic acid? Or could one do as he wished on the city streets because they were public? (Laughter.) He thought such cases applied to the liquor business.

The last head was the most important of all—"What our opportunities are and what are we to do." He would urge them to enforce the law of the country as it existed, there was scarce a municipality in the Province of Ontario, that carried it out to the letter. In reading the Liquor License Act he found that prohibition lay in the power of the citizens of London if they chose to exercise it. A man wishing to start a saloon must obtain a certain number of names to his petition before he could effect his purpose, and many so-called temperance people, when requested for their signatures, would accede on the ground of personal friendship. If the temperance people would but grasp the situation the name of London might go down to fame as the first that shook the mud off its feet and stepped on the highway that led to higher things. (Applause). They were going to vote shortly for the Board of Aldermen, the candidates should be seen and asked what they were going to do. He was pointing out the powers that rested in the hands of the temperance people. They should tell the civic body they were not going to be bamboozled in regard to this question. What would their action be when the matter came up before the Council? there were plenty of men fit to take the position of aldermen when the time came. (Applause.) Each man and woman should be a total abstainer. He knew he did not stand perfectly on the same platform with other fellow citizens in this question. He would not like to say that a man who was accustomed to drink moderately—he would not like to say it was committing a sin against God. It depended very much on a man's life. He did not think one brought from dark paganism into the light of Christ could be expected to immediately assume as high a station as if he had been in the truth all his life. But if a man said he was Christ's and submitted himself unto his law, which admonished him to love his God and his neighbor — under that last clause he was bound to become a total abstainer. (Applause.) For the sake of his fellow-men, he was charged to take that ground. He would not suffer for it, would not lose a great deal; he would be a stronger man, with a clearer eye, clearer brain and a better citizen, (Applause.) The education of the children was where the strong point lay. The greatest, grandest work to be done was the teaching of the boys and children to hate the accursed thing, and cast it out of their lives; for if the next generation were made total abstainers, they would sweep the liquor traffic out of the land. (Applause.) The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceeding small, and the wished-for consummation might not be in a day.

There was another practical point, and although it might be credited to the sanguine disposition of youth, it seemed to him a feasible one. Why could not all the temperance people—they had their various societies—go to work and prepare a petition, have it circulated through every town, village and country district, and through it appeal to the Government to put the question of prohibition before the people of the country, aside from every political or party line? (Applause.) Tens of thousands and hundreds of thousands would say yea, and when he said that he meant that every woman should have the right to vote and express her sentiments in regard to the question. (Applause.) They might yet have prohibition before their heads were gray and ere they were called home. The success of the temperance movement rested in God, in Jesus Christ and in the Holy Spirit. He believed in the words of the Bible, that every iniquity should be put under foot. He believed that they were co-workers with God to regenerate and cleanse the world, and because of his faith in God he had hope in that movement. (Applause.) "I think it might be a mistake for me, a minister of the Gospel," the speaker concluded, "to take my seat without saying that the man who is born again and follows the Lord Jesus Christ will be a temperate and a temperance man. It makes very little difference to me, practically, whether the wine in the Testament was fermented or unfermented. If the Savior trod the earth today I have no doubt of the side he would take on the liquor question. I believe his denunciation would descend upon those who heap riches out of the misery of their fellow-men, as it descended upon the Scribes and Pharisees of the olden time, who gave great riches and robbed the widow."

The Chairman felt assured that all had profited by Mr. Clarke's able address. Apropos of the speaker's remarks on the prevailing apathy of men, he thought it the duty, of every person who saw the question in its realistic condition to work in educating and influencing the public mind, and to bring the matter up fully before the people, and constantly, that being the object of the meetings.

Rev. George Boyd made a few remarks in his usual vigorous manner. "I am convinced just as fully to-night," said he, "that this is the right way for us to take, and as a citizen of London am ready to act on this line. I am prepared to work with Brother Clark or any other for the carrying out to the utmost provision that the law of Ontario gives to us. I am not prepared to sacrifice my Saturday night simply to hear words about the temperance work unless it is something definite. If the temperance people deem it advisable to shut up only twenty of the saloons I would like to see twenty closed. (Applause.) I have a profound conviction that what the Rev. W. J. Clark has said to-night is true, and I believe there is moral and temperance power enough in this city—if we could only get it unified—to shut up every saloon in London. (Applause.) I would like something definite to be arrived at before many more Saturday night meetings. Let them know we mean to do away with this cursed thing; and if we can separate London from this drink, then we will send throughout the Province a sound that will tend to the triumph of prohibition for the entire country. (Applause.)

It was announced that Rev. M. P. Talling, of St. James' Presbyterian Church, would address the meeting next Saturday evening.

The committee subsequently met for business purposes and to consider the methods to be pursued.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The forthcoming annual report of the Secretary of the Interior will show that the total Indian population of the United States, exclusive of Alaska, is about 250,000, while the area of country occupied by them is about 182 to 250 square miles.

The Dogs Feathered Their Nests.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Nov. 10.—Harry Kane, of this place, while out hunting, found a litter of pups in a nest lined with chicken feathers, and standing guard over them were two big dogs, one a mastiff and the other a Newfoundland. They resented his intrusion, and he had to set fire to the brush to drive them away. Then he dashed in and secured the pups.

Rare Fortitude in a Dog.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 10.—Many of the sportsmen of Wilmington will perhaps remember Sailor, the fine pointer dog of Mr. J. A. Brown, of Chadbourn. He was an extraordinary hunter and retriever, with almost human tact, and his owner valued him at several hundred dollars. A few days ago this fine dog was run over by the train at Chadbourn, and his left fore leg was crushed off, leaving a piece of the bone protruding. Mr. Brown hated to kill his valuable and faithful dog, so he got Dr. A. McKinnon to amputate the crushed member. When the operation was performed Sailor obeyed the command to lie down, and never even gave a whimper when the work was done. The poor animal's muscles were contracted with pain, but with a few sympathetic caresses from his master he lay perfectly still until the amputation was performed.

Business in the States.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's show about the customary check pointed on the jobbing trade throughout the country owing to the election and attendant excitement, though a number of trade centers report no appreciable interference with an active trade movement. The weather has proven generally favorable for farm and plantation work, and the movement of staple crops has been increasingly free. This is noticeable in wheat, sugar, cotton and rice. Drygoods are active east. Business in spring cotton and wool dress goods quieter. Wheat has been lower in price on freer movement of the crop in the northwest. Our own advices indicate that the total domestic available stocks increased only 7,000,000 bushels in October, against a gain of 9,000,000 bushels in October, 1889. Stocks in the United States (both coasts), afloat for Europe and at points of accumulation in the United Kingdom and on the continent on Nov. 1, were 18,000,000 bushels smaller than on Nov. 1, 1889.

Business failures reported to Bradstreet's number 151 in the United States this week, against 164 last week and 248 this week last year. Canada had 37 this week against 30 last week. The total number of failures in the United States Jan. 1 to date is 8,502, against 9,631 in a like portion of 1889.

Our money market is close, with call loans at between 6 and 25 per cent., the condition being aggravated by a sudden advance of the Bank of England rate to 6 per cent. At the interior the situation apparently begins to favor a return of funds to New York. Foreign exchange was quite weak, but is stronger on the advance in money in London.

Finance Notes.

Cables from London and Paris predicting disasters in the markets there this week caused a panicky feeling in the New York Stock Exchange this (Monday) morning.

The statement of the New York associated banks is bad, showing a decrease of $3,246,225 in reserve, for the week. The banks now lack $2,544,250 of the limit required by law. At this time last year the banks had a deficiency of $760,800, while in 1888 they had a surplus of $11,557,600, and in 1887 a surplus of $8,587,400.

A London, Eng., cable says: There was a good demand for discount during the past week, and rates were firm at 5c to 5½c. Fears prevail that the Bank of England rate will be further advanced. The Stock Exchange was exceedingly unsettled during the week. The settlement commencing next Tuesday causes much uneasiness. During the week there was a fall in consols of ⅝, and in rupee 4s per cents 4s under the drop in silver, the price of which has been entirely dependent on New York operators. English railway securities were fairly steady. American railroads early in the week showed symptoms of a recovery, but broke down under the bear attack initiated in New York. Friday, after the bank rate was announced, was the worst day known in the American department for many years. Saturday's business showed a marked abatement of selling. Some investing in the better class of stocks also tended to strengthen quotations.

The Dairy Markets.

LONDON.

The London cheese market Saturday was well attended. Some 11,350 boxes of September and balance cheese were boarded. On the first call 9 11-16c was the highest offered with no sales. Business was brisker at the second call 9¾c being offered but refused, although 800 boxes were sold at 9¾c, and 460 at 9¾c. The factorymen are evidently anxious at the amount of stock they have on hand, a fact which the buyers are ready to take advantage of. The Liverpool cable continues firm at 49s per cwt of 112 lbs, and on the strength of this the makers still hold out for higher prices. The English buyers are however very dilatory in action at present, rendering the cheese market none of the brighest, a condition which it is hoped will be but temporary. In comparison with former years buyers across the water have certainly been less eager to secure September and October goods this fall.

The following factories were represented:

OUR NEW STORY.

By special arrangement with the author, the ADVERTISER of Friday next will contain the initial installment of Rudyard Kipling's first novel.

"The Light That Failed" is its title. It is a work in which the famous young writer has given full scope to his imaginative powers. The plot is brilliant in conception and complete in execution, and the style is even more fascinating than the short stories which have won many millions of readers for Mr. Kipling on both sides of the Atlantic.

No better time for new subscribers to begin reading the ADVERTISER could be found.

LONDON AND ENVIRONS.

—Jane Graham was committed for insanity by the Police Magistrate this morning.

—G. T. R. Constable Logan has returned to the city after a vacation spent in the West.

—Stone for the improvement of the roadway has been distributed along Dundas street.

—Rev. Hugh Johnston cannot come to Dundas Street Center. A Toronto church (Yonge street) being on the grounds have induced him to accept a call to that church.

—Rev. Mr. Paterson, the pastor of Cooke's Church, Toronto, will conduct evangelistic services for one week in St. James' Presbyterian Church, commencing Monday next.

—Mr. I. A. Thomas, of Hamilton, spent this afternoon with friends in this city on his way home from St. Thomas, where he presided very acceptably at the organ in Knox Church on Sunday.

—John McLaughlin alleges that he espied an old man named Martin Taylor appropriating a couple of sticks of cordwood early the other morning from the former's pile. A Police Court ventilation will be the result.

—The performance of the celebrated Lambeth choir, of Glasgow, Scotland, who appear here shortly under the auspices of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church choir, promises to be one of the musical events of the season.

—A few chimney sparks at 581 Richmond street gave the firemen an unnecessary run through the muddy streets last evening, and had the effect of disturbing several church services. People who are fond of pulling an alarm box at such trifles should be attended to.

—The young men's meeting in the Y. M. C. A. parlors yesterday afternoon was crowded to overflowing. Rev. Canon Richardson delivered an address in his usual cultured style. Rev. W. J. McKay, of the South London Baptist Church, will speak next Sunday.

—C. M. Simmons, of Lobo, sold 58 head of cattle, most of them steers, to Messrs. Bignell and Weyler, of Delaware, and delivered them at London to-day. They were a very fine lot of young cattle, and averaged nearly 1,300 pounds each, but Mr. Simmons says this is the last lot of the herd which he grazed this year, and not by any means the best. The purchasers shipped them to Toronto.

—"The Little Tycoon" comic opera was again produced at the Grand on Saturday evening to a very appreciative audience. J. H. Ryley, as General Knickerbocker; J. A. Libby, as Alvin Barry; Joseph Mealy, as Teddy, and the parts of Misses Millard and Hesmer were again splendid, while the chorus and orchestra did even better than on the previous night. The inclination of the latter to rather great volume in some of the lighter passages was noticeably absent. The opera was one which scarcely amused as much as did the "Sea King," but it had beyond doubt the brightest music of any opera that has visited London this season. If the troupe again comes here it will be sure to attract large audiences.

—The eminent divine, Rev. G. M. Milligan, of St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, preached the anniversary sermons of the Dundas Street Methodist Church yesterday morning and evening. In the morning his remarks were based on Philippians, ii., 12-13: "Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God which worketh in you, both to will and to do of his good pleasure. In the evening the text was St. Matthew, xxvi., 35: "Peter said unto him 'Though I should die with thee, yet will I not deny thee.' Likewise also said all the disciples." Both addresses were scholarly efforts and justified the reputation of the gentleman, as one of the most prominent of Canada's Presbyterian ministers. The congregations at both services were large, and the music by the choir was up to its thoroughly established standard of excellence. The pastor of the church, Rev. A. C. Courtice, occupied Mr. Milligan's pulpit at Toronto.

May Lose His Eyesight.

This morning, while romping around the yard with a playmate, Charles Turner, a 15-year-old son of Mr. John Turner, school trustee, was struck in the eye with a broom handle, the broken and sharp pointed end of which cut the optic in a frightful manner. The lad who was playing with the victim of the accident says that he stepped on the end of the stick and that the flying end struck young Turner in the eye. Dr. Moorehouse was called in and attended to the sufferer. At present he cannot say whether the sight of the eye can be saved or not.

A New Pastor Called.

At a special church meeting held last evening, Rev. Robert Aylward, B.A., of Cobourg, was given a unanimous call to the pastorate of the First Congregational Church, this city, and it is understood the reverend gentleman will accept. If so, his duties will commence on the first Sunday in December next. Rev. Robert Aylward, during the short time he has been in London, has made a very favorable impression on the congregation by his genial disposition and also by his ability in the pulpit. He was born in England and educated for the Congregational Church in New College, London, commencing his ministry at West Bromwich, Staffordshire in 1885. The reverend gentleman came to this country three years ago, and is at present pastor of the Congregational Church, Cobourg, and president of the Cobourg Congregational Association. He is an associate of the theological colleges of England and Wales and a Bachelor of Arts at Victoria University.

Pastors Preach to Young Men.

Several of the city clergymen, who were unable last Sunday to respond to the request of the Y. M. C. A. to preach on the work, made reference to it yesterday. The Dean of Huron at St. Paul's Cathedral dealt ably with the subject, and commended the objects of the institution.

At the Queen's Avenue Methodist Church Rev. Geo. Boyd spoke from II. Samuel, xviii., 32: "Is the young man Absalom safe?" and drew an appropriate lesson therefrom. Mr. Wm. Spencer read the statement as previously published.

At the King Street Methodist and Presbyterian Churches the respective pastors, Rev. Messrs. S. Bond and Walter M. Roger, alluded in gratifying terms to Y. M. C. A. work among the young men.

Jeremiah, v., 1, "Wanted, a man," formed the basis of an admirable discourse by Rev. T. E. Harrison, of the Elizabeth Street Methodist Church, in which he placed the physical and moral nature of man in their different lights. Mr. D. A. McDermid read the report.

Rev. G. Trotter Carr, at the Union Congregational Church, left the matter in the hands of the experienced secretary, Mr. R. C. Sayer, who outlined the nature of Y. M. C. A. work and the efforts of the association in the city.

Last night Rev. Mr. McIntyre, of Askin Street Methodist Church, preached a sermon to young men. The discourse was eminently practical. A Christian manhood is what a young man requires above everything else was its main conclusion. Even in this life the young man of bad habits is at a disadvantage. The preacher warmly indorsed the Y. M. C. A. as worthy of support not only by the young men of the city, who wished to benefit themselves and their fellows, but by everyone who takes an interest in promoting the well-being of young men. To aid in promoting their work, the Y. M. C. A. will give a course of lectures during the winter, in which a number of famous men will participate, and Mr. McIntyre urged his hearers to attend the lectures, and thus encourage the promoters in a work fraught with so much good.

A Charge of False Pretenses.

Mr. Joseph Graham, of this city, has brought an action against George Richer for obtaining money under false pretenses, and the case was examined by the Police Magistrate. According to the evidence of the plaintiff, Richer was engaged by him to buy iron, etc., and was given $50 to purchase a carload of the material, which the defendent stated might be bought in Exeter, if he had the cash. Later on the witness sent $40 to Richer in response to a letter asking for the money, with which to purchase three tons of boiler plate. The prisoner had told the plaintiff on Thursday last that he had lost some of the money and had been drinking. The only security Richer had was his horses, and the witness had learned that he was endeavoring to sell them. Mr. Love, counsel for Richer, contended for his client's release on the ground that it was not proven that the prisoner had carried out his agreement. He was told there was $50 worth of iron at Exeter, which the defendant had bought. The Magistrate decided to send the case to the Assizes, and the prisoner was released on $200 bail.

Desperate Remedies

By Thomas Hardy.

AUTHOR OF "A PAIR OF BLUE EYES," "THE TRUMPET-MAJOR," ETC.

"Nothing," said Cytherea, returning her gaze calmly, "except I was to give you the subscription."

"You are quite sure?"

"Quite."

"I believe you. Did he say anything striking or strange about himself?"

"Only one thing—that he was troubled."

"Troubled."

After saying the word, Miss Aldclyffe relapsed into silence. Such behavior as this had ended, on previous occasions, by her making a co…on, and Cytherea expected one now. …for once she was mistaken, nothing more was said.

When she had returned to her room she sat down and penned a farewell letter to Edward Springrove, as little able as any other excitable and brimming young woman of 19 to feel the wisest and only dignified course at that juncture was to do nothing at all. She told him that to her painful surprise she had learnt that his engagement to another young woman was a matter of notoriety. She insisted that all honor bade him to marry his early love— … who far better than her unworthy self, who only deserved to be forgotten, and begged him to remember that he was not to see her again. She upbraided him for levity and cruelty in meeting her so often at Creston, and above all in stealing th… kiss from her lips on the last evening of … water excursions. "I never, never … forget it," she said, and then felt a sens…on of havin… done her duty, ostensib… persuading … erself that her reproaches a… commands … re of such a force that no m… to whom th… were uttered could ever approach her…

Yet it was all unconsciousl… … rds which betrayed a lingering … of love at every unguarded tu… … trice accusing Dante from th… … as she might to play the supe… … contemned such mere eye-sens… … she betrayed at every point a pretty w…an's jealousy of a rival, and covertly gave her old lover hints for excusing himself at each fresh indictment.

This done, Cytherea, still in a practical mood, upbraided herself with weakness in allowing a stranger like Mr. Manston to influence her as he had done that evening. What right had he on earth to suggest so suddenly that she might meet him at the waterfall to receive his music? She would have given much to be able to annihilate the ascendency he had obtained over her during that extraordinary interval of melodious sound. Not being able to endure the notion of his living a minute longer in the belief he was now holding, she took her pen and wrote to him also:

KNAPWATER HOUSE,
September 20th.

"I find I cannot meet you at 7 o'clock by the waterfall as I promised. The emotion I felt made me forgetful of realities.

C. GRAYE.

A great statesman thinks several times, and acts; a young lady acts, and thinks several times. When, a few minutes later, she saw the postman carry off the bag containing one of the letters, and a messenger with the other, she, for the first time, asked herself the question whether she had acted very wisely in writing to either of the two men who had so influenced her.

CHAPTER XI.

THE EVENTS OF TEN WEEKS.

§ 1. From September the twenty-first to the middle of November.

The foremost figure within Cytherea's horizon exclusive of the inmates of Knapwater house, was now the steward, Mr. Manston. It was impossible that they should live within a quarter of a mile of each other, be engaged in the same service, and attend the same church, without meeting at some spot or another, twice or thrice a week. On Sundays, in her pew, when by chance she turned her head, Cytherea found his eyes waiting desirously for a glimpse of hers, and, at first more strangely, the eyes of Miss Aldclyffe furtively resting on him. On … coming out of church he frequently walked … besides Cytherea till she reached the gate … at which residents of the house turned into … the shrubbery. By degrees a conjecture … grew into a certainty. She knew that he lov… …ed her.

But a strange fac… …t was connected with the developement of … …is love. He was palpably making the str… …ongest efforts to subdu…, or at least to h…de, the weakness, and as it sometimes seeme…d, rather from his own conscience than fr…om surrounding eyes. Hence she found th… …t not one of his encounters with her wa… … anything more than the result of pure ac…cident. He made no advances whatever; …without avoiding her, he never sought he…r; the words he had whispered at their … first interview now proved themselves to … be quite as much the result of unguarded … impulse as was her answer. Something held … him back bound his impulse down, but she s…aw that it was neither pride of his person, n…or fear that she would refuse him—a course … she unhesitatingly resolved to take should … he think fit to declare himself. She was in…terested in him and his marvelous beaut…y, as she might have been in some fascinat…ing panther or leopard—for some undefinab…le reason she shrank from him, even whil…st she admired. The keynote of her nature … a warm "precipitance of soul," as Coleridg…e happily writes it, which Manston had s…o deeply pounced upon at their very first int…erview, gave her now a tremulous sense of … being in some way in his power.

The state of mind …was, on the whole, a dangerous one for a … young and inexperienced woman; and pe…rhaps the circumstance which more than any … other, led her to cherish Edward's image n…ow, was that he had taken no notice of th…e receipt of her letter, stating that she di…scarded him. It was plain then, she said, … that he did not care deeply for her, and sh…e thereupon could not quite leave off caring … deeply for him:

The month of Octo…ber passed, and November began its cou…rse. The inhabitants of the village of Ca…rriford grew weary of supposing th…at Miss Aldclyffe was going to marry he… stewa…rd. New whispers arose and became … very distinct (though they did not reach M…iss Aldclyffe's ears) to the effect that the st…eward was deeply in love with Cytherea … Graye. Indeed, the fact became so obviou…s that there was nothing left to say about … it except that their marriage would be … an excellent one for both—for her in poi…nt of money—and for him in point of love.

As circles in a p…ond grow wider and wider, the next fact, … which had been patent only to Cytherea … herself, in due time spread to their neig…hbors, and they, too, wondered that he ha…d made no overt advances. By the mi…ddle of November, a theory made up of … a combination of the other two was receive…d with general flavor; its substance being t…hat a guilty intrigue had been commenced … between Manston and Miss Aldclyffe, some … years before, when he was a very young man … and she still in the enjoyment of some … womanly beauty, but now that her senorit…y began to grow emphatic, she was becom…ing distasteful to him. His fear of the effect … of the lady's jealousy, would, they said, thu… …s lead him to conceal from her his new att…achment to Cytherea. Almost the only won…an who did not believe this was Cythe…rea herself, on unmistakable grounds, whi…ch were hidden from all besides. It was n…ot only in public, but even more markedly … in secluded places, on occasions when gallan…try would have been safe from all discover…y, that this guarded course of action w…as pursued, all the strength of a consu…ming passion burning in his eyes the while.

§ 2. November the eighteenth.

It was on a Friday … in this month of November that Owen … Gray paid a visit to his sister.

His zealous integri…ty still retained for him the situation at C…reston, and in order that there should be … as little interruption as possible to his du…ties there, he had decided not to come to … Knapwater till late in the afternoon, and to … return to Creston by the first train the nex…t morning, Miss Aldclyffe having made it … a point of frequently offering him lodgin…g for an unlimited period, to the great … pleasure of Cytherea.

He reached the hou…se about 4 o'clock, and ringing the bell, aske… …d of the page who answered it for Miss Gr…aye.

When Graye spoke … the name of his sister, Manston, who was ju…st coming out from an interview with Miss … Aldclyffe, passed him in the vestibule and h…eard the question. The steward's face grew … hot, and he secretly clenched his hands. … He half crossed the court, then turned h…is head, and saw the lad still stood at the d…oor, though Owen had been shown into the … house. Manston went back to him.

"Who is that man…?" he said.

"I don't know, sir…"

"Has he ever been … here before."

"Yes, sir."

"How many times…?"

"Three."

"You are sure you … don't know him?"

"I think he is M…iss Graye's brother, sir."

"Then, why the mi…schief didn't you say so before!" Manston … exclaimed, and went on his way.

"Of course that wa…s not the man of my dreams—of course, it … couldn't be?" he said to himself, "that I sh…ould be such a fool—such an utter fool as … to allow a girl to influence me like this … day after day, till I am jealous of … …y brother. A lady's dependant; … …elpless thing entirely at the merc… … world; yes, curse it; that's just w… … that fact of her being so helpless … … the blows of circumstances which … … her so deliciously sweet."

—At the annual meeting of the officers and teachers of Dundas Street Center Sabbath school the following officers were elected: Wm. Bowman, superintendent; Jas. Greenaway, assistant superintendent; W. Udy, secretary and treasurer; Harry Dennis, librarian. The several reports submitted show the school to be in a highly flourishing condition.

—In a recent report of the official weighing of coal sold by dealers in this city, it was chronicled that one load of coal of A. D. Cameron & Son had been declared short. This is not the case. A consultation of the official report in the hands of the city authorities shows that four loads of coal belonging to A. D. Cameron & Son were weighed. One was found correct and three were more than weight.

—The arbitrators re the Springbank lands met at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when four more witnesses were examined. Mr. R. Southam, of this city, spoke of the value of the expropriated springs as a fish hatchery, and alluded to an establishment down the river from which $100 per year was realized. Messrs. Allan Bogue, E. Grieve and Robert Weir, of Westminster, gave evidence as to the value of the lands which was similar in nature to that given on Friday. The arbitration will be continued on Monday next.

—Special missionary services were held in the Colborne Street Methodist Church on Sunday, morning, afternoon and evening. In the morning Rev. J. R. Gundy, president of the London Conference, preached an able sermon on the growth of missions, taking as his text the words "Go ye and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Rev. George Boyd and Rev. Walter Rigsby, secretary of the Conference, preached in the afternoon and evening respectively.

—A Belmont correspondent writes: "Friday evening a school entertainment was held in the hall, gotten up for the purpose of giving Mr. S. Baker, teacher, a send-off on the eve of his departure for London. There was a full house, and a very interesting programme, in which the pupils did themselves much credit, and everybody was highly delighted. Mr. Baker was made the recipient of a handsome hanging lamp, accompanied by a nicely-worded address, at the hands of the scholars. The proceeds of the entertainment amounted to $27, which will go towards purchasing prizes for the school."

—Joseph D. Clark, a well-educated laboring man, who has been working this fall near Glanworth, became possessed of $27 about two weeks ago and came to the city. He has since been discharged three successive times from the Police Court for drunkenness, but seemed determined to go through his money in a protracted spree. On Saturday morning P. C. Smith came across him on Dundas street with a new six-inch bowie knife in his possession, a weapon which he had been flourishing around like an exuberent cowboy. At the Police Court this morning Dr. Smith pronounced Clark to be mentally unsound, the insanity being alcoholic and induced by excessive drinking. The Magistrate accordingly committed the demented man.

Died from Lockjaw.

Mr. Samuel G. Bartlett, a well-known city baker, died at his residence 724 Maitland street yesterday from the effects of blood-poisoning and lockjaw. The deceased accidentally stepped on a rusty nail over a week ago which penetrated one of the arteries of his foot. But little attention was paid to the matter and the wound began to heal. On Friday Mr. Bartlett felt a stiffening in his legs and consulted his physician, Dr. Moore, who concluded that the victim was suffering from blood-poisoning and ordered him to bed. Mrs. Bartlett was apprised of the dangerous condition of her husband, but everything that human skill could do was of no avail, and lockjaw setting in the sufferer passed away at noon. He leaves a widow and family of seven. The funeral will take place at 2:30 tomorrow.

The Strathroy Revival.

The revival services in the First Methodist Church, Strathroy, in which the Misses Dimsdale have assisted the pastor during the last five weeks, closed on Friday evening. The pastor of the church, Rev. Chas. Smith (formerly the popular pastor of the London West Methodist Church), preached the closing sermon of the series from the text: "I am Joseph, your brother." The discourse was specially appropriate to the occasion. Joseph was shown to be an eminent type of the Lord Jesus. Mr. Smith announced further discourses in the course of his regular ministry on "Counsels to Converts," and intimated that their Sunday evening services and young people's meetings would during the winter months be conducted on evangelistic lines, and be made as far as possible to bend to evangelistic results. Over 160 persons have made confession of faith during these services, and it is expected each of the Protestant churches will receive an accession of membership.

A Well-Known Lady's Death.

Mrs. B. F. Bartlett, a member of the prominent and well-known family of Mount Brydges, passed away on the night of Thanksgiving. She was much loved and highly respected by all who knew her. She was born in the city of Edinburgh, Scotland, being the third daughter of Mr. John Adamson, Scottish barrister, who removed with his family to Little York in 1833 by request of his cousin, Colonel Adamson, then stationed at Little York, now Toronto. In 1847 she was married to Benjamin Franklin Bartlett, settling near this city the following year. Great sympathy is extended to the bereaved husband, who is a well-known Mason, formerly a member of Lodge No. 14 (now 209a), G. R. C., London. She leaves six children, two daughters and four sons, to mourn their loss. The daughters are: Mrs. H. V. McLellan and Miss Elda, and the sons, Henry A., member of the Mercantile firm of Mount Brydges, Bartlett & Robertson; James A., merchant, of Munnsville, N. Y.; Dr. Frank C. Bartlett, dentist, Woodstock; Edgar A., student at Glencoe High School. The funeral took place yesterday at 2 p.m. A very large company of sincere friends and acquaintances followed the remains to their last resting place in the Methodist Cemetery.

McCormick, turkey, goose and box of biscuits; Mrs. McKinnon, jam. The ladies express many thanks to the kind friends who remembered the various homes on Thanksgiving Day. They regret to learn, however, that some of their friends have given donations to a person representing herself as matron of the Aged Men's Home, under a mistaken impression that they were giving to the institution of that name, which is managed by the Women's Christian Association. The ladies of the association wish to state that their collectors are ladies well-known to the residents of the ward in which they collect, and if friends are in any uncertainty they are kindly asked to examine the collector's book, where they will find that she is duly authorized by the association to receive subscriptions.
