ALLEGED CONFESSION OF

MURDER. Brantford, July 18 .- The villages of Harrisburg and St. George are greatly concerned over the alleged con-fession of a resident of Harrisburg, who died last week, and who, on his death bed, stated that the Hyslop murder and the Misener and Cass robberies had been planned in his house, and implicating some five men n the crimes. The matter will, in all probability, be taken up by the authorities. Dr. Gray's Hair Tonic and Dandruff Cure, 35c, at Anderson & Nelles' drug

Wife vs. Husband.

More About the Bush Family's Brawling.

Rev. Henry, "D. D." Found to Be No Only Sane but Decidely Sharp.

The case of Bush against Bush was continued before Squires Lacey and Smyth, from 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon until 7 in the evening. On the reassembling of court, Constable Corsant was called, and said that when he went to arrest the old man he picked up a whiffletree to knock him down. After hearing further evidence, the magistrate dismissed the case, and deemed "Rev." Henry Bush, "D.D.," not only rational, but as sharp as- a steel trap. The assault cases were then taken up. The old man charged his son Charles with abusing him on Sunday. July 5. He said he had been given permission to use Mrs. Friendship's horse, and put it in the barn. It had been turned loose on the road man claims Charlie hit him when he went to tear down the gate. The son denied this, and after the witness had been excluded from the room, swore that his mother was not there at the time. When the mother was called she said she had been there, but the evidence of Miss Bush was to the effect that her mother was asleep at the time. The magistrate fined him $1, with costs, which will amount to $9 60

The charge of assault against the wife was dismissed. She merely held a big club over Bush's head and threatened dire vengeance upon him if he dared to cut any more of her grain. In summing up the case, Mr. Essery admitted that the old man, who had been accused of insanity, was as sharp as a thousand steel traps, but said he was a disgraceful and careless father. No man with a grain of self-respect would attach "Rev." before his name and "D.D." after it, who had no claim on earth to it. This morning it was learned that the old man, after having walked all the way home to the ninth concession, and there found that his wife and son had taken the window out of the little domicile on the premises of his wife, in which he has been allowed to live, and which is said to be an undesirable abode from a standpoint of cleanliness, he came in again this morning looking for the magistrate, and

HOW AWKWARD IT WILL BE IN

Did you ever think of it? A great problem is soon to occupy the minds of the people of the world. In four years the sweep of time will carry us into a new century, and the figures which indicated the century of 1800 proof: will be exchanged for 1900. When this time comes, can we abbreviate the year in writing and printing as we do now in 1896? We think not. If we may abbreviate, how shall it be done? How will this look, '00? Or this, 19'? When you write at the top of your letter to the editor, March 14th, '96, it looks all right; but March 14th, '00, will not be at all satisfactory. Did you ever before think what an inconvenient time 1900 is going to be in its abbreviateable quality? If so, just consider how lucky your stars are that you will not be living on this mundane sphere in 2000!

MR. LAURIER'S MAJORITY. Ottawa, July 18 .- The prediction that Mr. Laurier's majority will be 40 when the first vote is taken in the new House is being rapidly verified. North Ontario will be brought into the Liberal column very shortly, and "there are others.'

LORD ABERDEEN'S VETO. Apropos of the unsigned orders-incouncil making appointments, it is learned on authority that his Excel-lency refused to allow the late Administration after June 23 (when it was defeated) to fill any vacancy, that had existed for more than one year. Such appointments, it is understood, vived here that he will favor a sec-ond Democratic convention. In that he urged should be filled only by a Ministry, having the confidence of the public. It is also stated that his Excase, he will be forced, by stress of circumstances, to head the ticket himself. Speculation has not yet of their defeat at the polls.

> THOROUGH SIR HENRI. With a view to gleaning information on the products of the forest, Sir

Henri Joli, the new Minister of Inland Revenue, went to Henri Hull yesterday morning and asked permission to be present at the examination of the cullers. The request was cordially granted, and Sir Henri followed with interest the questions put to the remaining candidates and the replies given by them to the examiner.

THOSE Q. C.S.

The Ministers' baskets in almost all departments contain orders council making appointments, both the inside and outside service, which were adopted by the late Government, and which were referred back to his Excellency unsigned. These orders in council will receive the attention of the new Minister in each case as soon as circummittee this morning. Missouri is Mr. stances admit. The order in council appointing 93 Q. C.s in Ontario and 37 in Quebec lies on Sir Oliver Mowat's table, and has not yet been sent to the Queen's printer for publication in the Gazette. It is stated that the members of the bar themselves, at least in Ontario, are greatly dissatisfied at the profusion and mode in which the honors have been scattered, and it is also now known that the nominations for the honor in Ontario were made by Hon. John Haggart and Hon. Dr. Montague. It is now certain that the list will not be gazetted to day, and rumor states that Sir Oliver county is a two and a half acre tract will revise and probably amend it be fore it is allowed to become irrevocable by being gazetted.

TUPPER'S SHAMELESSNESS A dispatch from Montreal says: Some extraordinary stories are told here in well informed circles regarding the character of Sir Chas. Tupper's orders in council which the Governor-General refused to sign. One of them was to award the contract for supplying coal to the Intercolonial Railway for a term of five years. Another was to award the contract for supplying clothing to the Northwest Mounted Police for three years. There was also a scheme to superannuate four of the judges in Montreal and fill their places with comparatively young men, but this fell through because three out of the four judges mentioned would not consent. The whole idea in these transactions was to tie the hands of Mr. Laurier in every imaginable way during his term of office, but fortunately for the country, the Governor-General would not permit it. WHERE MR. TARTE WILL RUN. Hon. J. I. Tarte, Minister of Public Works, will run in St. Johns and Iberville. Mr. Bechard has occupied the seat in the Commons since Confederation. Mr. Tarte, who will be accompanied by Mr. Laurier, will address a joint meeting of the two counties next week. OFFERS TO HON. MR. MILLS. An Ottawa dispatch to the Toronto Globe says: "Now that the Hon. David Mills has practically retired from politics, to accept later on the position of a judge of the Supreme Court, it will be interesting to know that Sir John Macdonald offered Mr. Mills a seat on the bench of the Supreme Court of Canada in 1891, only a few days before his last illness. Sir John Macdonald then told Mr. Mills that Mr. Jus- but is now somewhat better. tice Gwynne would shortly retire, but that is five years ago.

COALITION PROPOSED. Mr. Mills was approached by Sir John Macdonald in a still more extraordinary way a year earlier, that is to say, in 1890. Sir John Macdonald saw several clouds looming up in his political sky, and his unerring instinct told him that storm was brewing, and that when it broke the Conservative party might be a wreck. The Manitoba school question, the revelations of weakness and incapacity in the men he found around him were all indications to Sir John Macdonald's mind of breakers ahead for the Government. He went to Mr. Mills and proposed a coalition Government, in which he offered to give the Liberals six portfolios. He went into the questions over which there would be naturally differences of opinion, such as the tariff, gerrymander and the franchise act, and stated how far he would go in the matter of legislation upon these subjects to please the Liberal wing of the Cabinet. He said that he would himself retire from the leadership, but would remain in the House, and give the new coalition Cabinet his warm support. He evidently realized that some of the leading Liberals would not consent to enter a coalition Govern-ment of which Sir John Macdonald was the head, and offered the leadership to Mr. Mills. The whole matter was afterwards talked over between Mr. Mills and Mr. Blake, and either of these gentlemen can confirm the above statement. It is, of course, a matter of history that nothing came of these negotiations, and Sir John Macdonald went to the country early in 1891 denouncing as traitors and treason-mongers the men he had desired to bring into the Government of

THE ATTACKS ON MR. TARTE. Immediately after June 23 the Conservative press declared that Mr. Tarte was to receive the portfolio of Railways and Canals in the newGovernment, and they denounced the idea of giving what they termed the most important spending department in the Government to Mr. Tarte. Now that it has turned out that Mr. Tarte was not given the Department of Railways and Canals these same papers say: "Tarte gets all he wants. He actually seizes the very post which Mr. Mackenzie held." First Mr. Tarte wanted the Department of Railways and Canals, and then when he did not get it he got all he wanted. Such is the reasoning of the critics, who are bound to find fault with Mr. Tarte, whether with good cellency received a communication pre-maturely announcing the intention of Mr. Tarte expressed a wish when he the late Government to resign, which was invited to enter the Adminiscould be construed into an intimation tration to be assigned to the Department of State, and it was pointed out with much force that it would be to the political advantage of the Liberal party in Quebec if Mr. Tarte had a to a large extent to devote his time as an organizer and director of the forces that do service in electoral battles. The Premier, however, beieved that no one was better qualified than Mr. Tarte to reorganize the Department of Public Works, and there may have been, too, a sense of retributive justice in Mr. Laurier's desire that the man whose efforts to purge the Public Works Department had subjected him to the malign hatred of the Conservative press should be the man to prove as the head of that department that he was justified in declaring, as he that the department was rotten from

He said that he proposed remaining here only for a ew days, when he would again make his way westward to Winnipeg. It was true, he stated, that Premier Greenway had come as far as Chicago, but he was coming no further east, and in fact on reaching Chicago transacted some business and went back to Winnipeg again. Mr. Martin added that he has a clear case against his opponent, for the employment of unlawful means against

S. Hardy and Mr. W. Paterson, and others, after which the honorable gentlemen were escorted to their respective residences. When the train arrived nearly all the steam whistles in the city started as a salute of welcome to our honored members. Along the route of procession from private reflags and Chinese lanterns sidences were displayed in great profusion. Many of the merchants on Colborne street had their stores decorated with flags, bunting and Chinese lanterns and illuminations. On the market square there was a fine display of fireworks. In the procession there were about 200 bicycles, nicely decorated, and all carrying Chinese lanterns.

Our I's are just as strong as they were fifty years ago, when we have cause to use them. But we have less and less cause to praise ourselves, since others do the praising, and we are more than willing for you to see us through other eyes. This is how we look to S. F. Boyce. wholesale and retail druggist, Duluth, Minn, who after a quarter of a century of observation writes:

"I have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla for more than 25 years, both at wholesale and retail, and have never heard anything but words of praise from my customers; not a single complaint has ever reached me. I believe Aver's Sarsaparilla to be the best blood purifier, that has been introduced to the general public." This, from a man who has sold thousands of dozens of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, is strong testimony. But it only echoes popular sentiment the world over, which has, "Nothing but words of praise for Ayer's Sarsaparilla."

The first thing necessary was to ascertain the real facts in regard to the controversy from the history of Venezuela. When that had been fully ascertained by a commission in which both countries had confidence, he felt that the diplomatic questions which would follow would not be very difficult of adjustment, but even if they should be those difficulties would be overcome by arbitration. It has been impossible to move faster owing the facts in the case. The labor involved had been enormous. In regard to a general system of arbitration between the United States and Great Britain, Lord Salisbury said, there would be no difficulty in dealing with cases so large as to contain issues of a vital character. After much discussion with the United States upon that point, he thought that the tendency of the United States was to desire the rapid and summary decision of a question. The British Government thought that the principle of obligatory arbitration was attended with considerable hazard. Proper machinery must be first provided. In recent years the United States had evinced a disposition to take up the causes of many South American republics, but this Government had not quarreled with that disposition. Great Britain, his

This had been done in order that the best intellects on both sides should apply themselves to a matter affecting the welfare of the whole human race in such a singular degree, and especially the good relations with the United States, with which it was the desire of the Government to be on the friendliest terms.

The Thames Bar.

For years, the habit of the authorities at Ottawa has been to order a Government dredge to work for the removal of the bar at the mouth of the Thames River just before an election, and immediately after voting to send the apparatus to some other place. This took place in the recent contest; but Mr. Campbell, M. P. for Kent, promptly represented the unfairness and foolishness of this line of action by the late Government, and Mr. Tarte, Minister of Public Works, has ordered the Government dredge Ontario to proceed immediately to the mouth of the Thames and remove the bar. Some of the Ottawa correspondents made fun of Mr. Tarte because he began his work day at 8 a.m. It is apparent that Mr. Tarte is a Minister who works with effect.

When he was running as a Parliamentary candidate here, he refused to allow himself to be called a "prohibition candidate." He was an "independent" candidate, and kept prohibition in the background. He was also freely re-ferred to as a "McCarthyite" candidate, and never denied the appellation. In Toronto, while the cam-paign was in progress, he said plainly that he was not a prohibition candidate, and that prohibition was a question of secondary importance in the campaign. STOLE A CENT.

Six Months in the Central.

Ottawa, July 18 .- Six months in the Central Prison for stealing one cent was the punishment inflicted yesterday morning by Magistrate O'Gara upon Arthur Verrault, a 17-year-old lad of York street, who pleaded guilty to taking a coin from the "poor box" of the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation of Ottawa in St. Joseph's Church. Verrault had a unique method of stealing. A piece of zinc on which was stuck soft shoemaker's wax was attached to a string, and dropped through the slot in the poor box. As soon as the zinc touched the coppers the shoemaker's wax stuck to the coins, and they were fished out one by one. Verrault confessed his guilt, but he claimed he had only got one cent.

Brave Engineer Boath.

Sketch of the Faithful Driver Who Died at Thamesville.

Vidow and Eight Children Bereft Protector-How the accent Happened.

The body of Engineer Boath was brought home from Thamesville last night, and now lies at the family residence, 420 Horton street, from which place the funeral will take place tomorrow at 10 a.m., to the G. T. R. station, the interment taking place at Windsor, where the deceased lived for everal years before coming to London. Deceased was born in Scotland 65 years ago, and commenced his railway experience when quite young. He was an engineer on the Caledonian Railroad, in the land of his birth, before coming to the United States in 1865, where he was an engineer on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway.

Deceased entered the service of the G. T. R. in March, 1868, and was a highly valued employe. After coming to Canada, Mr. Boath made his home in Windsor, until 1886, when he moved to London. While in Windsor he was twice married. He leaves a widow and eight children, to whom the news the sudden calamity was a terrible blow. The dreadful news caused sad hearts throughout the whole com-munity, for the genial engineer had a host of friends. He was a member of few days with her son, Mr. J. Mc-St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church for many years. In Windsor he was captain of the volunteer company, and visiting her sist became very proficient with the rifle. He attended the annual meets for rifle practice at Toronto and other places, capturing several prizes. Deceased belonged to the Brotherhood of and Hamilton. Locomotive Engineers, Division No. 68, and was also a Knight Templar. Both orders will participate in the funeral. About 60 G. T. R. employes in the city will go to Windsor to attend the burial The train leaves the G. T. R. station at 11:20 a.m.

THE CAUSE. Thamesville the local freight was shunting from one track to the other, and had not got clear of the main line, when the express struck her in the side. The engine and baggage car of the express train are completely wrecked, and two other coaches derailed. The freight engine is also badly damaged, and two freight cars. stove in. Engineer Boath saw the approaching accident and reversed his engine in time to slacken speed somewhat. He and the fireman jumped, but in doing so the head of the former struck a culvert with tremendous force, scattering the brains in all di-rections. Death was instantaneous. The fireman escaped with a broken arm. The escape of the passengers is miraculous. That no coaches were wrecked is accounted for by the fact that the two engines did not come straight together, but only grazed the sides of each other.

Speculation as to the Frequency the Prevention of the Horror,

London Spectator.

There is probably no horror more universal, more intense, more soul-subduing than the horror of being buried alive. Ask any ten men and women at random what is the worst nightmare fear which oppresses the ordinary sane person, and they will say the fear of being buried alive. There is hardly a human being who has not shuddered at the thought of the 30 or 40 seconds' agony-it could hardly be more-which would take place were he to awake from a trance and find his arms pressed to the coffin's sides and the coffin lid almost touching his lips. Of course, the want of air would very soon bring unconsciousness, but till it did how awful would be the impotent struggle. Burning, drowning, even the most hideous mutilation under a railway train, is as nothing compared with burying horror seems to have produced no de-Miss Norma Callander, city, is visiting with Miss Tena Lawrence at Lucknow. Of course, it can be said that the danger of burying alive is grossy exaggerated. Indeed, there are many men who stoutly deny that it exists at all as a danger which can reasonably be taken into account. These men class it with the risk of the earth being baked brown by a sudden increase of activity in the sun, or by the impact of comet. Mr. Wright and Mrs. Crump, of With this view we entirely disagree. We do not believe that there are very many cases of burying alive, but we cannot doubt that a distinct percentage of cases takes place every year.

These all allude to cases in which the discovery was actually made that death had not taken place. Can it be called sensational or imaginative to assert that there must have been as many or more cases in which the discovery was not made? Mr. Williamson comments very sensibly on the facts which he adduces. After stating that women are more subject to trance than men, he goes on: "How often do we read of sudden deaths-of persons going to bed perfectly well, and found apparently dead in the morning-verdict, heart disease, fol-lowed by prompt burial? Black Dress Goods Some very choice Lines at very low Prices to clear.

Such a sale as we have inaugurated in our popular Black Dress Goods Department would be heralded as the event of the season by other houses. We believe in understating things rather than overstating. Our customers always come expecting to receive more than we have promised, and those who buy of the following lines will truly secure a bargain that it is seldom our privilege to offer.

> 45c Now A line of Brocaded Lustre, a popular favorite this season, five different patterns, all choice, 44 inches wide, the best Were 50C dress for the least money ever offered.

> 65c Now Our 75c Brocaded Lustres are offering now at 65c. Just sufficient left to demand an early visit if you want any of them. Look like silk when made up, very suitable material for Were 75C dusty weather—won't catch it.

For 75c we are selling a superior $1 quality Brocaded Lustre. All these we want to clear out quickly to make room for incoming goods, and we have done everything in reason to interest you in them. You won't be sorry if you hay. Should such a thing happen bring purchase back and get your 1 on y.

We call special attention to our Plain Black Lustre. Undoubtedly the best value ever offered in the city or anywhere else. Will make up beautifully and give unbounded satisfaction. Our goods are always of the best, and it's a pleasure to wear them. We have Lustres as low as 25c, but specially recommend our 5oc, 65c, 75c and 85c qualities. Too much cannot be said in their praise. We'll let you praise them.

Good Black Serges at 25c

We are selling our entire stock of Black Serges at very close prices. A lot can be bought for little money at our store these days. We commence them at 25c, for which price we give a splendid quality. At 50c and 65c we offer serges that are worth considerably more. You can tell they're good by feeling them. Won't have to make them up to find that

The would hardly like to say that he had found absolute proof that death had taken place, when in fact he had not. Of course, we only make these suggestions by way of illustration, and not with a view of their specific adoption. To do that we should want to be in possession of a scientific definition of death, and, as far as we know, that has not yet been given. Is the congealing of the blood in the veins and arteries a certain sign of death? Or, again, is death in the last resort the ceasing of that in the human body which prevents putrefaction of the frame as a whole and not merely of its parts? What answer the doctors give to these questions we do not know, but at any rate we shall be safe in assuming that they have some absolute test of death which could be applied and acted

You have only to wander through the grass-grown, nettle-fostering, and generally neglected kirkyaird of an average Scottish village to find yourself surrounded by potentialities of novel-writing beyond the dreams of the most avaricious of Scottish romancers. For of these prone tombstones, moss-covered, weather-worn frayed by fierce storms, and crumbling into sand, it may be said:

Our foot upon some reverend history. Then how affecting it is to think that the Tammas or the Jess who sleeps beneath the sod, and whose simple story is told in some quaintly incomplete record of dates of birth and death, may have had an incipient romance in the very sordidness of his or her life which the kirkyairder may spin out to form a tale worth many pounds sterling! And then how appro priate it is to "turn on the water tap" like tearful Job Trotter, in the midst of a graveyard, and to weep copiously through many well-paid chapters over imaginary woes! Take, for instance, an example of the material which the kirkyairder finds ready to his hand. There is one most affecting Scottish epitaph which reads

Here lies interred a man o' micht, His name was Malcolm Downie; He lost his life ae winter nicht In fa'in' off his powny.

Aged 65. In these rude and simple lines there is a whole tragedy condensed. The hero, Malcolm Downie, was no doubt a man "to all the country dear," per-

But never cam' hel And then his wife-his Elspeth, or Jeanie: what possibilities of pathos are presented to the lachrymose novelwho may depict her horror as the melancholy cavalcade bring home her slain knight (or school board member) to her bower-or kitchen, to be more precise! What a wealth of unintelligible interjections may here be freely used to spin out the story and make easy "copy!" How mournful the novelist may make his readers by a skillful varia-tion upon "Hech, sirs!" "Wae's me!" "Guid hae a care o' us!" and the countless other strange phrases that make up the Scottish language of woe!

THE CHEESE TRADE. At present low prices one would naturally suppose that cheese was good property, and yet buyers on the other side do not seem anxious to invest beyond immediate requirements. Receipts are very heavy this week, quite a good proportion of which is going into cold storage. Sales of about 6,000 boxes of French cheese were made at 6 5-8c as the ruling price, while 6 11-16c it is reported was paid for a certain factory. In fact the market has declined 1-8c to 1-4c on the week, with cables very tame. A buyer who secured a line of cheese in the Eastern Townships at the close of last week, offered it on this mar-ket at 1-8c less than he paid for it. In order to realize, 7c is about top on this market for finest western. Prices in England continue remark-ably low, sales at Nantwich being reported by our London correspondent at 35s for Cheshire cheese. This is the lowest price ever known before at this season of the year for new English cheese.—Montreal Trade Bul-

Bouton was dozing by the campfire and dreaming over the plans that had filled his brains during the day. He was aroused by feeling a body pushed rudely against him, and he started up, expecting to find that one of the horses had broken his picket rope and wandered over to the fire. Great was Bouton's surprise at seeing before him a man with a gag in his mouth and his arms bound. It was not till he had taken out the gag and cut the cords that he recognied in the frightened, half-strangled man before him the renegade Patch. With an oath Bouton demanded to know what had happened. Patch gave it his belief that a very hot place

"Your aid! You offer your aid!" said Alice in low, sad tones that pierced him like knife thrusts. "That is what I said, and I will die before I break my word."
"Your word!" In this there another thust.

"I do not blame you for doubting public. I have done everything to make myself and my promises despicable in your eyes. But try me and trust me. Let me know how I can help you." Truly, you must be anxious."

"Then you must be blind if you cannot see what we want," she said, averting her face and waving her hand as if she would dismiss him. "You are right, Miss Blanchard," said Henry, slowly taking a back-ward step. I ought not to have asked that question. I should have done something to beget confidence before making an offer of my services. Your come to wring our hearts with a fresh agony and taunt us with our helplessness-'I cannot blame you, I cannot blame you," said Kyle in a choking voice. "Still will I obey the better impulse of my heart."

He turned as if in obedience to her imperative gesture and walked slowly back to where Bouton and his gang were grouped. When he had gone out of hearing, Clara, who had followed him with her eyes, turned to her sister and said: "Alice, I think we might trust that

"Trust him?" repeated Alice.

"Yes."
"And you, with a memory suggest such a thought?" "But he seems to have changed. It may be that he has repented and is anxious to help us." "Anxious to help us? Have we done anything to prevent his helping us if he has that desire? Why should he come here and ask what we need? Patch came over at this juncture with their breakfast and set it before them, then sneaked back to a place from which he could watch, and he saw that they left it untasted. Immediately after breakfast Sim Bliss and his brother drew Bouton to one side, and the former said:

"Tom is going to start for Dead-wood this morning."
"What for?" asked the amazed "He is going to telegraph east for more money."

"That ain't a bad idea. We need money very much. When will he come back?" "In a week or ten days."

"With the cash?"
"I hope so," replied Sim.
"Very well, anything I can do to help him let me know. Of course he'll have sense enough not to tell where I am if he meets anyone anxfous to know."

Tom assured Bouton that he knew what he was about, and that he could keep a quiet tongue in the in-terest of his friends. The result of Most delicious delicacies this agreement was that before noon. Tom Bliss, well mounted and armed, (To be Continued.)

Walkerton Farmer Killed by a Falling Tree.

eforth Child Run Down by a Train -Fatal Flash of Lightning.

Walkerton, Ont., July 18.—Mr. Thos. Burrell, a prominent farmer, living near the G. T. R. station, was instantly killed near his own house yester-day morning by a tree that he was chopping falling on him.

RUN DOWN BY CARS. A Seaforth dispatch says: While an excursion train from South Huron was proceeding to the Guelph Model Farm this morning, a little 3-year-old child of Richard Barry, who was sitof her he was troubled about the prisoners, and he cursed himself for the part he had taken in their capture. Having bathed, he returned to the campfire, and though it was out of his way he passed near the tree under which Alice and Clara were sitting. The former did not raise her with the face. The child's father was on the train, and did not know of the fatality until communicated with by telegraph on his arrival at the communicated of the fatality and communicated with the face. Guelph.

> FELL FROM A TRAIN. A Niagara Falls telegram states that Joseph Doan, a young man of New Sarum, while sitting on the steps of one of the Michigan Central employes' excursion trains from St. Thomas Friday morning, was thrown to the track as the train went round a curve at Cayuga, and received a nasty wound on the back of the head, besides several minor bruises.

TWO KILLED BY ONE BOLT. Miss Addie Tillman, eldest child of Senator Tillman, and her escort, Rev. Robert A. Lee, pastor of the Episcopal Church at Yorkville, S. C., were killed by the same bolt of lightning at Brevard, N. C. Thursday after-They were caught in a rain storm, and sought shelter under some bushes near which was a large oak tree. Miss Tillman was 20 years old.

The Army Worm's Foe.

Salt Said to Prove Fatal to This

Rome, N. Y., July 18.—A Rome farmer has just discovered that the army worm is killed when it comes in contact with salt. To confine the worms where they are operating, he is putting a windrow of salt around the field, or to protect a growing crop that is not infested, he will run a line of salt around that.

From experiments he made, which several worms were killed, he is confident that when the worms undertake to crawl over the row of salt enough of the salt will adhere to the worms to destroy them. The result of the experiment will be given to the

THE TROUBLE IN CLEVELAND. Cleveland, July 18.-The biggest and bitterest fight since the strike of the hoisting workers began is now in progress. Platoons of militia kept the crowd back, while the 'scabs" were taken from the shops, but the crowd increased until it numbered many thousands and extended over a territory of fifteen squares. Jeers, stones and clubs drew a charge from the police, and militia charged with bayonets. Many were wounded, and the fight started in dead earnest.

A Talk About Coughs Colds

Prof. Munyon's representative was seen at the Tecumseh House last evening, and, in the course of conversation, remarked: The weather has been changeable during the past three days, and thousands of people in this city are prostrated with colds. Many of them, no doubt, will think -"only a cold!" Truly a little thing to make a fuss about. But did you ever stop to consider that a cold is the beginning of most diseases? It is the starting point of pneumonia, rheumatism, neuragia, catarrh, kidney troubles, and numerous other diseases. Speak of a cold, and you should finish Colds, catarrh, coughs, bronchitis, pneumonia and consumption. Many long periods of sickness could be prevented by prompt attention to a cold. Munyon's Cold Cure is within reach of all; costs but 25 cents, and is guaranteed to break up any form of a cold in a few hours. A cough, continued the professor's representative, is a wise design of the Creator to warn us back from the grave. It shows you that the bronchial tubes are becoming diseased, and that bronchitis is beginning. From bronchitis to consumption is but a step. We do not pretend that we can effect a cure where there are tubercles on the lungs, or where the patient is in the last stages of consumption, but we do emphatically say that Munyon's Cure will reduce inflammation of the air tubes and check at once diseases of the lungs, acting marvelously as a soothing and healing balm upon the parts affected. It is a positive cure for every form of cough where the lungs are not says she is going to order a lot of packages of Dalley's Self-Rising Flours. Last summer we all went to our summer cottage for two months. What a hard time I had. It was grumble, grumble, grumble all the time, the bread was no good, always hard and stale, the biscuits as heavy as lead, griddle cakes like leather, and it was not my fault either, that is where the shoe pinched. Now it will be different, I know what them flours are, I tried them this last winter, they are just lovely and so easy to cook. All you want is a little milk, and we always have plenty of that. I can with the bread flour make a nice loaf in 60 minutes, where it used to take me 10 hours. With the biscuit flour I can make a pan of biscuits in 15 minutes, and pancakes in about 5 minutes. The bread will last sweet and fresh for a week. I will be in clover this summer sure.

McIntosh

In 1844 the deceased came to London. J. G. McIntosh. In later years they devoted themselves to the drygoods 1881. Then after his long and active business career, he retired to private life, and well-earnest rest. Mr.McIntosh enjoyed excellent health until two or three years ago, when he suffered a paralytic stroke: but his splendid constitution was still proof against the shock and his advanced years. He rallied quickly, and continued to perform his light duties as treasurer of St. Andrew's Church, which were to him largely a labor of love. He sustained two or three strokes since the first, but his indomitable vigor overcame them. A few days ago a general break-up of his system began, and he continue steadily to sink, until 11 o'clock last night, when death claimed him. Mr. McIntosh had been prominently identified with St. Andrew's Church as an earnest member and efficient offimany years, and to the time of his death he was its treasurer, and his books are perfectly posted up to the last. He only relinquished his duty when he took to his deathbed. The deceased never sought public honors, but

General Trade Less Depressed in the Dominion.

Duliness Marks the American Merchan dise Markets-The Financial Future Uncertain.

says: General trade throughout the Canadian Dominion, more particularly in Ontario and Quebec, while not active, is less depressed than promised a merchandise in some staple lines being fairly satisfactory for fall delivery. Nearly all general merchandise mar-kets in the United States continue dull, and the volume of business is smaller than anticipated. R. G. DUN & CO.'S REVIEW. Disapproval of the action at the Chicago convention has had some influence in the markets the past week, but a far more important factor has been the feeling that the financial future is still uncertain. This acute attack of doubt coming at a time when business is for other reasons seriously depressed has made the week unusually gloomy in speculative circles The wheat market has been supported, in spite of a very favorable re port by the Government, and prices are a shade higher than a week ago, without any discoverable reason connected with American supply or de mand. Western receipts of wheat have peen 3,581,633 bushels, against 1,485,349 for the same week of July last year, and Atlantic exports, flour included, have been 1,485,981 bushels, against only 547,019 for the week last year. Cotton has fallen about 1-2 cent in options, and 1-4 cent in spot prices, because the Americans, who were sure there would be a cotton famine in July and have been holding large quantities of cotton in expectation of higher prices, have changed their minds. The closing of about three-quarters of southern mills in producing capacity, and about one-fifth of northern mills for part of the time until the new crop comes forward will help to prevent a disastrous decline in prices of goods, day But if accounts of condition are not | with the American officers voluntarmisleading and the general rains in lily. THE COOK IN COURT.

She Would Not Cook for the Fowls-Dis charged, She Sues.

London Daily News. Yesterday, at the Croydon County Court, Mr. Registrar Fox had before him the case of Webber vs. Sullivan, an action brought by a cook against her master, who resides at Purley. Mr. Eldridge appeared for the plaintiff, and, in claiming £3, said his client had previously occupied good positions in high circles as cook, and some two years ago she entered the service of the defendant. On May 28 she was ordered by Mr. Sullivan to cook some tatoes, but as they were for the fowls she declined. She was then told to pack up her clothes and leave. Defendant refused to pay her one month's go." In consequence of this plaintiff and her husband left. Mr. Sullivan, the defendant, said that each spring he reared a number of chickens and ducks. Uniess the potatoes left from last year's crop were cooked for the fowls and pigs, he should have had to throw them away. When plaintiff entered his employ he had no scullery-maid, and in order to keep her he obtained one, so that it was not absolutely necessary for her to have cooked the potatoes herself unless she wished.

Plaintiff, having given evidence, was cross-examined. She said she had coked rice for the fowls before, but she would swear that she had never made a mash for a cow or a sow. She had not cooked potatoes for the ducks. Mrs. Sullivan gave her no undertak-ing when engaged that she should not cook for fowls, but she drew the line at ducks, chickens, cows and the pig. Miss Emily Diddle was called to give evidence as to the customary duties of a cook. She said she had had prepared potatoes and rice for pigs and poultry, and did not think it beneath her position to do so. Mr. Eldridge-I am overwhelmed by such statements. Continuing, he submitted that it was not a proper order to give a cook.

Formerly people reas-oned that artificial heat, being indispensable in the home, it would be economy to heat the smallest possible quantity of air. Every precaution against loss of heat was taken, and houses rendered reasonably fresh air proof. The results equaled the expectations of the Greek philosophers. Disease and death were, by the closng of all avenues for the entrance of fresh air, invited to take up their abode in the household. Black Death in the reign of Edward III and the plague of the time of Charles II. originated in the unhygienic surroundings of English homes. That they do not reappear is due to the greater love of outdoor sports and exercise. The influenza is the modern winter plague of the people who do not properly ventilate their houses.

Numerous erroneous ideas regarding ventilation are generally prevalent. Among others may be mentioned the notion widely held that night air is from inhabited houses. Many will not believe that fresh night air is as much superior to vitiated air found in dwellings as the fresh day air exceeds in purity the vitiated air found in many houses during the day time. as night air in occupied houses, nor is the outside air at night at all rooms is sure to be. Then, also, the air from the basement ought to be completely excluded from the living rooms. If necessary, the door leading to the basement may be outside the dwelling. HEART DISEASE

CURED BY DR. AGNEW'S GREAT HEART REMEDY—MANY LIVES SAVED.

The Secret of Success of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder.

Were it not that Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart will give relief within 30 minutes after the first dose has been taken, we would not read of so many lives being saved by this remedy. William Cherry, of Owen Sound, Ont. says: "I was greatly troubled with weakness of the heart and fainting spells for two years, and ofttimes was unfitted for my work. Naturally much anxiety was felt by myself and friends, for no treatment seemed to do me any good. I was influenced, however, to try Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart, and found it as proclaimed—a speedy' cure. I have no taken five bottles, and it has brought back to my heart the proper action, and made me strong and well." Catarrh.-One secret of success in Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder is that it is easy and pleasant to use. As Mr. W. H. Bennett, Conservative member been cook to the Duke of Bedford, and in the last House of Commons, said: "Taken in the morning it clears the head of any cold or catarrhal trouble that is manifest." But it not alone deals with the minor cases of catarrh, but even where deafness and some of the worst forms of disease have become manifest these have been eradicated by this remedy. To the names was a reasonable one. There would be judgment for the defendant, with Mills, Hugo H. Ross, might be added scores of other members of the late Parliament, who, over their own signatures, have bore testimony to the value of the remedy.

Three small boys and a tent that looked like one of mamma's table-cloths, hung across a rope, fastened to a tree, and much important bustling to and fro, and setting up of goods and effects. Then later, about six o'clock, an opera glass revealed three very unfledged, very happy small boys, seated at supper, around a soap-box, each with a basin of something on his knee. Darkness descended, and nothing more was seen of them that night. But when morning broke they were still there. It is the poorest specimen, indeed, of his sex that allows any thoughts of bears or Indians to cause him to desert the first night, and as I pushed up the blind I saw my little campers hopping about, lively enough, as if their experience had not hurt them. That afternoon one of the greatest storms that has ever been seen in Port Stanley began to rise. By eight o'clock the air was full of darkness, and palpably obscure. The wind moaned and whistled in a way that suggested a funeral pyre, and the full accompaniment of Indian widows. The storm did not break upon us in full fury, till shortly before midnight, but long before that a solemn little procession presented itself before the door of an owner of a comfortable cottage on the heights, and asked to please be taken in. "they were so frightened." They had come to the right house. The kind-hearted cottager took them all in, and soon the little fellows were tucked in for the night, safe and warm. But the tent! Oh. that tent! Mam-

The Observer always accepts an inwitation to share a philopena, rashly, and with a fatuity that is only equaled by the promptness with which the said philopena ends-always disastrously for the Observer. Madeline and Helen were my undoing this time, two wary little maidens, who hovered about me like bees, after the twin nuts had been exchanged, and very soon extracted the fatal word. Then we all went down to the village to try some of the mixture called ice cream, which looks so much like frozen custard, that being the only honorable procedure in Port Stanley after a philopena. And both young ladies politely made an effort to entertain me. We were entertained, and particularly by Helen, aged 10 or thereabouts.

"And none of the people on the save him," said the little lady earnest- the words, "Just splendid!" Does not seemed of no avail, as I lay for ly, who is the daughter of a clergyman (Episcopalian) in this city. "Oh,

An English publication, noted for Its strict regard for truth, vouches for the authenticity of the following letter. It was written by a young German woman as an application for the post of governess to an English family. The careful reader will notice that the applicant's knowledge of human nature is much greater than her knowledge of English composition. She is fallible in her spelling and grammar, as befits her foreign training, but she has a large and welldeveloped share of the peculiar qualities of person and manner needed by applicants for the position of governess in an English home. Here is the

The scale prepared by the Amalgamated Association, of Iron and Steel Workers at their recent convention in Detroit has been generally adopted by the manufacturers. There are a few, however, with whom the organization will have considerable trouble during the coming summer.

President Penna, of the miners, was requested by some of his constituents near Columbus to advise them whether or not to take part in a celebration in the latter city on the Fourth. Penna told them not to do so, as they were not independent, but slaves, and would be living a lie. And they didn't cele-

Among the latter the largest is the Amalgamated Association of Plumbers and Gasfitters, which has a membership of about 2,000, and which s to be expelled from the Central Labor Union. This will make it a nonunion body from the standpoint of the Central Labor Union and the board of walking delegates.

The members of the New York Bricklayers' Unions are now working under a new agreement with the Master Builders' 'Association, which will remain in effect until May 1, 1897. The wages are to be 50 cents an hour, eight hours' work of six days a week, the hours being from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., with one hour off for lunch. This is the organization which led the strike of the tailors three years ago, and has a membership of over 2,000. They have inaugurated the present protest against the proposed return to the sweating and task work system.

Mrs. Sarah Tooley, in the Young Woman, publishes a very interesting account of her interview with Miss Kingsley, whose adventures in the West Coast of Africa have occasioned no little stir both among women and among geographers. Mrs. Tooley says: to it." "The first object which greets a visitor upon entering Miss Kingsley's room is a grinning black idol, whose body bristles with nails, each one of which records the trophy of a human sacrifice. Upon his wrist the bloodthirsty figure carried the bracelet of a woman who was sacrificed-a very innocent-looking little bangle."

If there is anything in psychometry, the influence attaching to those grue-some relics can hardly be regarded as healthy or inspiring, but a lady who could sleep composedly in a hut over the remains of a cannibal repast, can hardly be regarded as peculiarly sensitive to outside impressions. Mrs. Tooley says:

"Miss Kingsley is no dilettante traveler seeking adventure; but she is a deep, scientific student, with all the love for natural objects which distinguished her uncle, Charles Kingsley, and she has inherited from her scholarly father, Dr. Kingsley, the traveler, not only a passion for adventure, but a capacity for deep study. It is the object of her life to research into the social customs, folklore and fetishes of the African tribes, as well as the natural history of the fishes of the

Unlike Miss Dowie, and other travelers of her sex, Miss Kingsley refused to discard the skirt. She wore a serge skirt and cotton blouse, through all her explorations.

"I always went on foot or in my canoe. Horses cannot be used because of the tsetse fly, and the entozoon." "And do you think, Miss Kingsley, that a woman can undertake trave' involving so mush physical endurance and exposure with impunity?" "Certainly. Why not? It seems to

As a matter of fact, I said he had seen a beautiful home down endurance than a man; and amongst savage tribes it is the woman who do the hardest work, and are often stronger than the men. I owe my escape from malarial fever while I was in Africa to the fact that I never drank water which had not been boiled; you can imagine how necessary that precaution was when I was traveling in Kama country or Gorilla Land, where the main population are malarial microbes and mosquitoes." When asked as to which tribes she liked best, she replied the Fans.

HER FAVORITE CANNIBALS. The Fan is full of fire, temper, intelligence, and "go," very teachable, rather difficult to manage, and quick to take offense. I like him better than any African I have yet met. He is a cannibal, not from superstitious motives, like the negro tribes; he just kills and eats people in a common-sense way. They used to tell me that human fiesh was very good, and wish-ed I would try it. I must say this for the Fan, he does not buy slaves to kill and eat, as some of the Middle Congo tribes do."

'Did they ever suggest eating you?" "Not my friends, certainly; but there have been times when going amongst strange tribes I have wondered whether I should not end in the stewpot at night. It is said that you must either chaff or thrash the African to get anything out of him. I recom-mend the chaffing, and attribute my success in dealing with them to the fact that I never lost my temper, and used jokes instead of hard words. Then these savages are not so bad as they look. Here, for example," continued Miss Kingsley, as she showed me photographs of her cannibal friends, "is a picture of a man who you will think looks a fierce and hide-

A NOVEL VIEW OF CONJUGAL

"I suppose, Miss Kingsley, that the African woman is a very degraded specimen of humanity?"
"Not altogether; her position has been greatly exaggerated by travelers, and as most of them were men, they had small opportunity for judging. As a woman, I could mix freely with them and study their domestic and I used to have long talks with the fat old witch-doctors, and gleaned a lot of information. I believe, on the whole, that the African married woman is happier than the majority of English wives, because if the husband gets too bad she can oison him off and get someone else killed for it."

> "Used to Nice Things." (Harper's Bazar.)

"One cannot talk with her for fifeen minutes without discovering that she is not accustomed to nice was the assertion made of a woman who had recently acquired wealth.

"How does she show it?" I asked. "By never admiring a handsome article owned by another person. She is so anxious to have people imagine that she has had always the best things of this life, that she dreads to admire lest her hearers guess that she never owned 'the real herself until lately. Women Superior to Men.

From the Woman's Journal. Rev. Mr. Lane, of Alameda, Cal., is one of the many clergymen in that State who are lending a hand in support of the pending suffrage amendment. At the request of the Political Equality Club, of Alameda, he addressed a large audience on "Civil Government-Not a Political, but a Divine Right." He set forth with power and eloquence woman's equality with man in all the avenues of life, and even claimed superiority for her in moral without a man in it, but he had never seen a home without a woman in it, and that the government without the woman was like the home without the woman-that he could conceive of good government with woman alone, bot not with man alone.

To this some of the members of the club took exceptions, and protested through the Daily Argus that they do not claim, nor care to have it claimed for them, that woman is superior to

The ideal home, of course, includes a man and woman on terms of equality, "self-reverent and reverencing each"; but real homes, both beautiful and good, exist in every community without a man in them. On the other hand, although wealthy unmarried men frequently set up wellhome in the true sense, including a family, is rarely found without a woman in it. The father who keeps house and provides for his family and cares for his children, unaided by a woman, is a rara avis; but the mothers who have done this single-handed are a multitude, from the mother of Washington to the mother of Garfield. The difference in the efficiency of men and women in this respect is especially marked in the farming and laboring classes. If the mother dies leaving a number of small children, the father is at his "wits' end" if there is no woman relative that he can call upon. Not one man in ten thousand will keep up the home, take care of the children, and do his work to provide for them, year after year, alone, or even with the help of a "hired girl." He simply declares it impossible and the home is broken

"When my first child was born," said Mrs. A., "I had the usual young mother's craze for a daintily kept baby. The layette was one of those gorgeous gift affairs, with frocks which Victoria, I am sure, would have thought much too fine for the royal children—besides every conceivable fantasie in which the most luxurious minded infant could by any possibility be attired. I used to gloat over the sachet-scented, exquisite little be-longings, and the moment I was up and about after baby's birth I began to play doll with my small daughter, decking her out in first one thing and then another. "I had one of those fussy French nurses, immaculate as a new pin; and between us we scrubbed and polished up that poor baby until it's a marvel it didn't fade away before our eyes. After a bath in almond meal-softened water, with plenty of Lubin and sweetsmelling taloum, she did look a darling in her sheer, beribboned draperies, and I, foolish mother, never noticed her langour and waxen skin.

"I did take note that her hair wouldn't grow; that worried me, for, no matter how becomingly dressed, a child with a billiard-ball style of coiffure does not realize the fondest dream of the maternal heart. I sewed doll's crimps in her bonnets, which was all very well for outings, but inadequate for home, so finally I called in the doctor.

"He was a grumpy person, very curt and not over-civil at times. 'Bathed too much,' he said, briefly.
'Look at her skin—all the life washed out of it. Too much care given that child. Let her get dirty and stay dirty. Nothing better for children than judicious neglect.' "It was a new idea and I went to work at it. Very shortly we went to our country home, and I noticed the farmers' babies who ate almost anything of country food, sat in puddles and went bare-headed whether the rain fell or the sun scorched. They were inevitable victims of future dyspepsia, but the fact remained that, as babies, they were sturdy and rosy, and mine wasn't; and I concluded to try judicious neglect.

"I invested in gingham pinafores and stout shoes, dumped a load of clean sand at the side door, and in-augurated a perpetual feast of mudpies. Pauline was instructed not to say 'Don't,' save in extreme moments, and baby began to live the life of a young animal left to the beneficent care of sunchine and fresh air, undisturbed save at regular intervals for food and sleep.

"I bought a pig that she might hang over the pen and tickle piggy's back with a stick. It afforded her hours of pure rapture to echo the pig's grunts with her silvery coo, and in some mysterious fashion the association was conducive to health. I never could understand why, only it was. She would always return blooming and serene, and if to a nap, better after having spent this pleasant period with her porcine friend. "I bought chickens that she might feed them, got doves and other pets about the place, finding that animals gave interest but no overstimulus to the baby nerves. In short, I never had my wax dolly again; but in the autumn I carried home a blooming, sturdy little maid, whose splendid spirits and perfect health more than compensated for occasional mudstains and torn pinafores."

Violetty Perfume Tip.

"My! what a flowery whiff. That handkerchief must have been literally steeped in violets," exclaimed one girl to another who had just shaken out from its folds a fragrant square of linen.

"Not steeped in violets, my dear," "but boiled in orris water. The effect is the same, so where's the odds? On wash-days I supply the laundress with a good-sized piece of orris root, and she throws it into the water where my handkerchiefs are boiling. When they come up off the ironing board they are as redolent of orris as can be. Then I slip them between the folds of a sachet filled

How to Iron Table Cloths.

Table cloths should be so ironed that the folds or creases should be as far as possible in the lengthwise direction. The best effect is that conducted domestic establishments, a produced by only one fold through the center. This, however, necessitates considerable room in the linen Many housekeepers have for each table cloth a stick as long as the cloth is wide when folded through the center lengthwise; these sticks which are about the thickness of a broom-handle are covered with several folds of flannel and then with muslin. When the cloth has been folded and ironed well on each side one end of it is pinned to the covered stick, and then it is rolled up loosely so as not to crease it; it is then slipped into a long narrow bag and laid in the linen closet.-Table Talk.

A Strange Case.

The Boston Globe has had a symposium on the subject of the possibility of miracles at the present day. Most of the contributors are preachup and the children are scattered, or ers. Some contend that miracles are just as likely to occur now as they If the father dies, the woman girds ever were, while others declare there up her strength, carries on the farm, are no miracles now because the world does not need them.
