

NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN THE GRAND TRUNK AND CIVIC RAILWAY COMMITTEE RESUMED

Company Wants to Elevate Tracks as Far East as Ridout Street—Agreement Advantageous to Both Parties Possible—No Monetary Consideration Asked.

A special meeting of the railway committee of the city council has been called for tonight, to consider the advisability of having the Grand Trunk Railway elevate its tracks from the Wharncliffe road to Ridout street.

Yesterday afternoon Mayor Judd met Manager McGuigan in the latter's private car at the depot, and had a short interview with him in regard to matters affecting the city.

The result was that his worship called the meeting.

It seems that unless the city wants to have the tracks elevated from the Wharncliffe road to Ridout street the company is willing to drop the elevation at the Wharncliffe. Mr. McGuigan says the plans show that the company can go up to a 2-10th grade, that is, 2-10ths of a foot to the 100 feet.

If the city desires it, the company is willing to run the elevation clear through to Ridout street, where there would be a slight elevation.

This would mean the widening of the Wharncliffe road crossing.

What it would mean to the Wharncliffe road crossing no one appears to be able to say.

Some say the company desires a level crossing there, but the mayor disputes the assertion.

"There will never be a level crossing there," he said to The Advertiser today.

His worship also added that anything the city may do now will not affect the Cove bridge, as it is the intention of the company to put in a two-span structure there.

It was said around the city hall today that the company is prepared to widen the Wharncliffe road, if the city will allow the company to construct a subway at the Wharncliffe road.

It is further alleged that the company has found that it must elevate its tracks to Ridout street, if a workable grade for heavy trains is to be attained onto the elevated tracks.

SEIZED FOR THE C. P. R.

Trunks Held $60,000 in Securities—Embezzlement Alleged.

Chicago, June 22.—Two trunks, said to contain securities worth $60,000, were seized at Hammond, Indiana, yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Albert Morris, acting on the complaint of attorneys of the Canadian Pacific Railroad.

The trunks and securities were sent by friends of Charles F. Wenner, formerly the road's Chicago agent, who is under indictment here and in New York for embezzlement of funds sold to aggregate $120,000. The trunks were sent from Chicago several days ago by express. They remained in Hammond but a short time before Canadian Pacific Railway detectives located them.

The defendants were not required to deposit bail, Crown Attorney Washington being satisfied that they would appear when called upon.

SYNOD DID NOT DISCUSS UNION

The Anglicans Concluded Their Labors Without Touching That Important Subject.

The Synod of Huron concluded its labors at noon today. The synod was spent in routine matters, very little of importance being disposed of. Contrary to expectations there was no debate on church union. The old committee continues its duties, and it is probable that it will negotiate with the other bodies concerned.

Several changes in the constitution were proposed. The most important provided to elect delegates to the synod for three years, but this was turned down by a large vote.

Ways and means of getting a larger representation of lay delegates at the synod were discussed. A proposal was made to equalize the railway fares, and the matter was referred to a committee.

A motion was carried that a committee be appointed by the synod to keep in touch with the different dioceses of the mother land before the great conference of 1908.

The regular committees were appointed by the synod.

The following members were elected to the senate of the Western University: For one year—Canon Partridge, Rev. John H. W. P. Cockburn, M.P., and Judge Holt. For two years—Canon Davis, Rev. W. T. Hill, Dr. English, H. Macklin, P. three years—Canon Craig, Rev. A. G. Dann, W. E. Rispin, C. C. Hodgins, M.P.P. For four years—Archdeacon Young, Rev. Dr. and Dr. H. H. Lusk, G. V. T. Greenhill.

Joseph Greenbaum, the Philadelphia Hebrew who has been in custody for two or three weeks on a charge of stealing $50 worth of silk from R. C. Struthers & Co., pleaded guilty in the police court this morning and was remanded until Thursday for sentence.

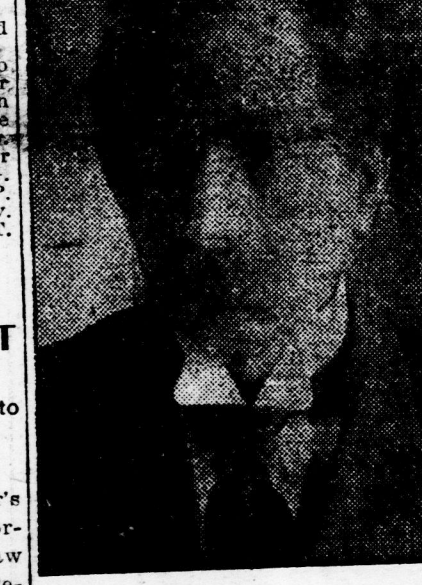

A week ago Greenbaum made no election of trial, and the examination was continued today.

LOCAL OPTION BYLAW QUASHED BY COURT

Picking Township People Said to Have Used Corrupt Methods.

Toronto, June 22.—On New Year's Day Picking Township, by a majority of 200, passed a local option bylaw which on May 1 became operative. Before Chief Justice Meredith yesterday, E. E. A. DuVernet, K. C., made application on behalf of John M. Gerow to quash the bylaw on the ground of corruption. Mr. DuVernet submitted the affidavit of W. E. Vanstone, a cattle drover, acknowledging the use of private funds in an effort to promote the passage of the measure. As shown by the affidavit, Vanstone went into a hotel and said: "I want you boys to vote for the bylaw. Come and have a drink."

Commenting on Vanstone's evidence, Chief Justice Meredith said: "I think this man Vanstone is a good deal of what is known as a blatherskite." On the ground of corruption the chief justice gave judgment quashing the bylaw. Another charge proved was in allowing persons outside the municipality to vote.

JOSEPH GREENBAUM. Silk Thief, Who Is Believed to Have Operated in Many Places.

commenced, witnesses—customs and police officers from Detroit, Port Huron and Windsor—being examined.

Today, however, the hearing of further evidence was not necessary. Mr. Edmund Meredith, K. C., counsel for Greenbaum, announcing that the prisoner had decided to plead guilty. At the request of Mr. Meredith, the remand for sentence was made.

The local police have been making inquiries concerning Greenbaum, and they claim to have learned that a portion at least of the $500 worth of silk found in his possession was stolen in other places.

So far no trace has been secured of the woman who accompanied Greenbaum to this city.

CATHEDRAL DESTROYED

Church, Convent and Dwellings Burned at Nicolet.

COST OF PAVEMENTS

Estimate of Proposed Works Ranges from $1.05 to $2.20 a Yard.

It is estimated that the cost of the different pavements, contracts for which were let last night, will be the property owners affected, as follows:

King street, macadam, $1.05 1-2 per yard.

York street, brick, $2.21 per yard.

Market Lane, brick, $2.21 per yard.

Talbot street, brick, $2.12 per yard.

This, of course, does not include the cost of the curbs and gutters, or the sinking fund and interest, which will add fully 25 per cent to the above figures.

On account of the delay occasioned by the street railway, the York street pavement will not be commenced until August, but the other works will be begun just as soon as the council ratifies the contracts. It is probable the mayor will call a special meeting for this purpose shortly.

Farmer Falls from Barn and Dies of His Injuries

While in the act of repairing his barn, Mr. Patrick Barrie, of Centralia, fell from the roof to the ground, a distance of 30 feet, and died a few minutes later.

Mr. Barrie was expecting some workmen to come and make improvements on the roof of the barn, and about noon yesterday went up to prepare a scaffold for them.

In some way he slipped and fell to the ground. No person was near at the time, and before he was discovered life was almost extinct.

Mr. Barrie was removed to his home, and a doctor was summoned, but nothing could be done to save him, and he died within a few minutes.

AN ACT OF WAR

Guatemalan Regular Troops Cross the Border into Salvador.

Mexico City, June 22.—Guatemalan regulars are said to have crossed over the territory of Salvador, thereby committing an act of war. One Salvadorian, Gen. Puentes Rivero, who joined the revolution, was killed in battle.

There is little doubt that the detention of Gen. Barrillas on this side of the frontier by the Mexican officers, who was instrumental in breaking up the revolutionary plan of campaign in Northern Guatemala.

WOMEN LEADERS GET IN TROUBLE

Suffragist Advocates Arrested—One of Them Was Fined $50.

London, June 22.—Miss Billington, Miss Kenney and three other leaders of the militant women suffragists, were arrested in Cavendish Square yesterday for creating a disturbance in front of the house of Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Asquith, who is the particular target of the present ministry of the women suffragists.

A score of women, with banners flying, assembled in Cavendish Square in the morning, and announcing their determination to be heard by Mr. Asquith, defied the police until their leaders were arrested and dragged off to the police station.

Miss Billington was fined $50 or two months imprisonment, which she would not pay, and expressed the intention of becoming a martyr and of going to jail.

The hearing of the other cases was adjourned.

The Countess of Carlisle, herself an ardent suffragist, referring to the affair at a meeting of the Women's Liberal Federation, said she had been shocked at the "so-called women suffragists fighting the police and making an impudent mockery of womanhood."

She regretted any connection with these "poor misguided women."

NORWAY'S KING AND QUEEN CROWNED TODAY AT TRONDHJEM

Chilling Breeze Made Winter Clothing a Necessity—Brilliant Scene in Old Cathedral—Brief Ceremony.

Trondhjem, June 22.—12:45 p.m.—King Haakon and Queen Maud were today crowned respectively king and queen of Norway in the Cathedral here. The royal party left the palace at 11:05 a.m., and entered the cathedral six minutes later. The coronation ceremony began immediately after their arrival. The crowning of his majesty was completed at 12:15 p.m.

The coronation of Queen Maud began at 12:20 and was completed at 12:35 p.m.

At 12:55 their majesties left the cathedral and arrived at the palace at 1 p.m.

The Prince and Princess of Wales entered last, at 10:55 a.m., and their party was still in the street when peals of bells from the city churches announced that King Haakon was preparing to leave the palace.

The ceremony. When the royal party entered, all present in the cathedral arose, and the ceremonial began immediately.

The completion of the crowning of King Haakon was communicated by two army signifiers, wig-wagging, across the city, from the cathedral to the hill batteries. The first gun, announcing the tidings, boomed forth instantly, and then there was a roar of guns from the ships and land batteries, and the bells of all the city churches began ringing. These sounds carried the tidings over the city and harbor, and the echoes were carried up and down the fjord.

The crowning of Queen Maud commenced immediately afterward. Her majesty, who is of a naturally timid and retiring disposition, bravely faced the ceremony. She looked dainty and attractive.

The coronation ceremonies, which were very elaborate, were conducted by the Bishop of Trondhjem, assisted by the leading cabinet minister and chief justice of the supreme court. After the anointment of his majesty by the bishop the latter and Prime Minister Michelsen co-jointly placed the crown on his head, after which Foreign Minister Loveland and the Bishop co-jointly handed him the scepter. After a prayer offered by the bishop the latter and Interior Minister Arctander co-jointly handed the king the orb, and later War Minister Olsson and the bishop handed the sword of state to his majesty. These ceremonies were followed by the benediction.

The king having taken his seat on the throne, the queen was crowned by the same high personages, and in a similar manner. The ceremony throughout was impressive.

When the newly-crowned king and queen returned to their thrones after the episcopal benediction, all the royal guests and special ambassadors saluted their majesties with deers. At the termination of the proceedings the president of the Storting called out "God save the king and queen," and the whole distinguished company heartily took up the cry.

Grouped around the king's throne during the ceremony were the Crown Prince and Crown Princess Christian of Denmark, Prince Harold of Denmark, and Prince Henry of Prussia, while about the queen's throne were the Princess and Princess of Wales, Princess Victoria of England, and Grand Duke Michael of Russia.

Trondhjem, June 22.—Coronation day opened with a glowing but cold sunshine. A chill wind came off the fjord, making it necessary to wear overcoats and winter clothing. The normal temperature in the cathedral previous to the ceremony was under 50 degrees, and it was feared that many of those present would carry away a painful, lasting reminder of the coronation of King Haakon and Queen Maud, although the Norwegian court wisely relaxed the rule governing dress. The city was alive at an early hour, and by 8 o'clock the avenues reaching to the cathedral were filled with struggling lines of people, making for the choicest points of vantage, from which to see the members of the royal family and the distinguished guests enter the cathedral.

The doors of the latter were opened at 10 a.m. and soon afterwards three bishops, robed in black and white, drove up. The crowd uncovered when the bishops entered the cathedral.

Impressive Scene. The arrival of the bishops was followed by the appearance of a number of priests, all robed in white. They entered the north sanctuary at 10:30, and formed a semi-circle about the altar and with bent heads offered up prayers for the king and queen. Their entrance silenced the crowd.

In the meantime, lines of soldiers and sailors from a specially-constructed landing place, passed the palace to the cathedral entrance, and formed a lane to the cathedral entrance.

The visiting princes and princesses were hailed with cheers as they drove along the lane of troops, and a band stationed opposite the canopy portal of the cathedral played the National Anthem, respectively, of each country represented by the arriving embassy, and at the same time the troops presented arm.

[Special To The Advertiser.] Ottawa, June 22.—The Commons began work this morning on the bill to amend the Manitoba grain act.

Hon. Mr. Fisher explained that the agricultural committee had given a good deal of attention this session to grain problems, and had decided that a committee should be named to report upon the whole question. The committee would be named and would begin work immediately. An item in the estimates provided for its expenses. There were some points on which the committee found a unanimity of opinion, and these had been embodied in the bill before the House.

The bill compelled a weigh-master to give a certificate of the weight of each car weighed by him, that certificate to be prima facie evidence. The word "plump" is dropped from No. 1 Manitoba hard. The extra No. 1 hard grade was marked out, as no grain of that grade had been offered for many years.

As Alberta had started to produce a hard winter wheat, and the old act only provided a grade for Ontario winter wheat, which was soft, the new bill defined grades for the new Alberta winter wheat. No. 1 Alberta red wheat is to be sound, plump and clean, and weigh not less than 62 pounds per bushel. No. 2 is to weigh not less than 60 pounds. No. 3 includes not clean or sound enough to grade No. 2, and weighing not less than 57 pounds per bushel.

Hay Inspection. At a meeting of the agricultural committee today a bill providing for the inspection and labeling of pressed hay was considered. The committee reported that on account of the diversity of conditions, and views in regard to the hay trade in Canada it was inexpedient at this session to proceed further with the bill.

ARCTIC INQUIRY.

The Arctic inquiry was concluded today. There was only one witness, Lieut.-Col. Gourdeau, deputy minister of marine and fisheries, and he was simply asked whether any members of the crew had been continued in the Government's employ and paid their wages since the Arctic returned to Sorel. He replied in the affirmative, adding that the men so retained were Capt. Bernier, Weeks, the purser; Leconte, the engineer, and a deckhand. The committee meets on Tuesday, to prepare a report.

$50 FINE IMPOSED

Samuel Clark Heavily Assessed for Having Liquor on Reserve.

Squire Chittick yesterday afternoon gave his decision in the case of Samuel Clark, who was charged with having liquor on the Indian reserve. He fined Clark $50 and costs.

It seems that Clark had bought this consignment of liquor in the city on orders for some parties living the other side of the reserve. To get to them to deliver the goods, Clark had to drive over one road that partly cuts Muncy reserve. It was on this spot that Clark was found, and Magistrate Chittick was obliged to fine him.

DAMAGE THROUGHOUT THE CITY.

From all parts of the city come reports of damage from the storm. Yesterday was the longest day of the year, and it seemed as though the weather men were determined to give the city cause to remember the occasion.

West London suffered severely. In all over 30 trees were broken, twisted or uprooted by the storm, between the river and Mount Pleasant avenue. The fence in front of the residence of Mr. Ernest Littlejohns, 144 Wharncliffe road, was blown over, the posts being snapped off at the bottom.

A chimney on the residence of Mr. R. A. Jones, Wharncliffe road was also toppled over by the wind.

HAIR STORM RAZED GARDENS

Wind Uprooted Many Trees

Section of West London Suffered Severely—Wall of Building Blown Over, and a Workman Hurt.

Throughout East London, South London and the city proper, much damage is reported. On Quebec street two large trees were blown over by the storm. Trees in the vicinity of York and Burwell street were damaged.

In the northern part of the city the heavy half an inch in diameter, being nearly half an inch in diameter. The result was that many gardens were almost ruined. Hundreds of dollars' worth of flowers were destroyed, while vegetables suffered also to a great extent.

A Victoria and Queen's parks suffered. The chimney on St. Matthew's Church, opposite the fair grounds, went down. At Springbank the foot bridge was blown a distance down the river, and men are putting it back in place today.

A huge oak which stood for over a century on the road almost opposite the Springbank pavilion was blown down, carrying with it the telephone wires. All through the district trees suffered greatly.

A large number of 'phones in this city were burned out, and several of the long-distance lines were put out of business.

Speaking of the accident in which William Agnew figured yesterday, Manager Board of the Bell Telephone Company stated to The Advertiser today that he thought everybody in London understood that to use a telephone in a storm is to endanger one's life, as well as the life of the operators in the office.

"We never allow the operators to answer a call once a storm begins," Mr. Board said. "It was not aware that anyone was not acquainted with this rule."

Harvoo at the Camp. The windstorm yesterday afternoon gave the soldiers at the camp a lively time of it. Many of the tents being blown down. The marquee was affected more seriously than the bell tents. Being larger and higher, the wind swept under them and lifted them completely off the ground. The large tent used by the Y. M. C. A., and also the tent used as a refreshment booth, were blown down.

At the Twenty-ninth Regiment canteen the wind blew down the chimney, and the flames, being forced back, set fire to a part of the frame which was on the stove. The flames spread to the building and it was destroyed.

Last night was a dull one at the camp, the rain preventing the usual sports and compelling the men to stay in their tents.

LIVELY DEBATE IN THE COMMONS ON LORD'S DAY OBSERVANCE BILL

Premier Makes Effective Reply to Charge of Being Dictated to by Outsiders.

Ottawa, June 21.—The spirit of compromise marked the House of Commons today in a serious effort to make the Lord's Day bill a beneficial measure for all Canada. Five hours were spent on the measure, and representative government was seen in one of its most favorable aspects. The former representatives from puritan Western Ontario yielded to the views of the St. Lawrence Valley, where Sunday afternoon are given over to enjoyment. Employees saw the justice of demands for employers, and as a climax, Sir Wilfrid Laurier appealed for breadth of view and a spirit of give and take. The Premier was particularly effective in replying to critics in general when he said this was not the first time he had been charged with being influenced by outside dictation. "Last year it was Barrett; this year it is Shearer," he remarked, with telling effect. The Bourassa wing of the Government side offered constant criticisms and objections, but there is no general attack on the Government from Quebec, at which administration is charged was adopted today, and one or two others of considerable importance. Some progress was

25,000 VOLTS FOR OTTAWA OPERATOR

Dr. Lee D. Forest's Marvelous Experience in Station of "Wireless."

Ottawa, June 22.—Dr. Lee D. Forest, while experimenting yesterday at the wireless telegraph station met with a narrow escape from death. While the operator was sending a message to Montreal, Dr. Forest started to open the muffle or soundproof box, in which is enclosed the enormous sparks used at the Ottawa station. In so doing he grasped the iron handle on the door and the full voltage of the large transformer leaped from one of the lead wires to the handle and through the doctor's body to the cement floor. As the transmitter is of 20 kilowatt power, practically the whole output of 25,000 volts passed through Dr. Forest's body, enough to produce instant death in nine times out of ten. Dr. Forest was knocked unconscious, but quickly recovered and aside from a partial paralysis of the limbs which shortly passed away, has felt no serious effects. He is unable to explain why the shock was so fatal, as both current and voltage were more than deadly.

Declines to State British View of Outbreak—The Czar Calls Treppoff.

London, June 21.—In the House of Commons yesterday Walter Runciman, parliamentary secretary to the local government board, in behalf of Foreign Secretary Grey, again declined to inform the Government of Russia of the views of the people concerning the anti-Jewish outbreaks.

He said the impression made and the sympathy aroused not only in this country, but everywhere, by the disturbances and loss of life in Russia is well known to the Russian Government, and that the Russian Government, in which official diplomatic intervention was usual or desirable.

Jews Not to Blame.

The Jewish Chronicle of this city, says it has received a telegram from Bialystok announcing that the murderer of Chief of Police Derkatchoff, who was shot and killed May 30, was a former policeman. The Jews had previously been accused of the crime.

Labor members of Parliament intend to put further questions to the Government today with a view to pressing it to protest to St. Petersburg against the anti-Jewish uprisings.

The New York Tribune's correspondent at St. Petersburg asserts that Emperor Nicholas is urging General Treppoff to organize a cabinet, and that the Emperor has summoned M. Pobedonostsev, former procurator of the Holy Synod, to an audience at Peterhof today. A dispatch from Riazan to the same paper reports that the Bolchev regiment has mutinied and killed several of its officers.

COBALT BOOZE

Twenty-Four Seizures of Regal Beer Have Been Made There.

Toronto, June 22.—Twenty-four seizures of regal beer have been made at Cobalt. In one seizure fifteen barrels were confiscated. It was found in some instances that in the regal beer there was 5 per cent more alcohol than the law permitted.

The Provincial Government received an inquiry through the Governor-General this morning from the Imperial Government, asking for particulars of the recent explosion at Cobalt.

Large numbers of veterans are applying to the Government for the right to exchange their certificates for land grants for a cash payment of $50.

IT HAS MANY OFFICES.—Before the German soldier starts on a long march he rubs his feet with tallow. For his first care is to keep his feet in good condition. If he knew that Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil would be of much better service he would throw away his tallow and pack a few bottles of the Oil in his knapsack. There is nothing like it.

SCREAMING SAVED LIVES OF BABIES

Fifteen Little Ones Deserter by Their Guardians for Twenty-Four Hours.

Paris, June 22.—Their ability to scream saved the lives of a number of babies at Blancourt, a suburb of Paris. People passing by there heard a chorus of terrified infants. The screaming was kept up for hours, and finally some one entered the place and found fifteen babies under two years of age the sole occupants. All were screaming distressfully. They had been alone for 24 hours, and were hungry and helpless.

The creche was established by Abbe Blagani, who lately upon entering the house found the mother had died suddenly. This so shocked him that he fell dead. The care of the creche then devolved upon a philanthropist, but in a lady, 80 years of age, a relative of the abbe. She was so overcome by distress and the overwhelming responsibility that on the day of the abbe's funeral she fled, leaving the infants to their fate. The babies are now in the foundling hospital.

DESPERATE FIGHT TO SAVE MURDERER

Italian Narrowly Escapes Being Lynched by Mob of 500 in New York.

New York, June 22.—While a mob of at least 5,000 persons surrounded an east side store early last night and clamored for the life of Giuseppe Yacobi, an Italian, who had fatally stabbed Abraham Koslowitz, the reserves of the Eldridge street police station, headed by Captain Murtha, fought their way for several blocks until the rescue of the hunted man and two policemen, who had him in charge, was accomplished. Then, hustling Yacobi into a patrol wagon, the night sticks of the policemen were used to clear a way for the wagon to the Eldridge street station. After Captain Murtha had handed his prisoner safe in the station house it was hours before the crowd could be induced to leave the vicinity.

Seldom has such a tragedy occurred in such full view as took place when Yacobi, who is 39 years old, plunged an Italian dagger into the heart of Koslowitz, 23 years old. The men were passing each other in Grand street, where the Italian jostled the Hebrew.

Yacobi followed and Yacobi drew his knife and started after Koslowitz, who ran towards his home in Norfolk street, crying for help. Four doors from his house the Italian reached his side and plunged the knife into his breast.

It is the purpose of the purchaser to sell the effects as souvenirs.

REMARKABLE THREAT MADE IN COURTROOM

If Found Guilty, He Will Wipe Out His Entire Family.

Chicago, June 22.—If Louis A. Gourdain is found guilty of using the mails to defraud he will wipe out his family. This was the statement he made before Judge Landis in the federal court. Gourdain and the notorious John H. Dalton have been on trial for some time, the former acting as his own attorney. To the suppressed smiles of the government officials Gourdain summed up his argument as follows: "I regard my honor as the dearest thing in life. If there is the slightest idea in your heads, Mr. Jurymen, that I have defrauded man, woman or child I have lost my honor, and I demand a verdict of guilty. If that verdict is returned I will demand of His Honor Judge Landis, the severest sentence under the law. I will then go to Joliet and willingly serve my sentence. The case shall never go any further than you. I shall not appeal."

"When I step from the prison a free man I will forfeit my fortune to the United States, and then, by common consent of us all, the Gourdain family will wipe itself from the face of the earth. Gentlemen, I thank you."

The jury then concluded the speech sat with downcast eyes, apparently not wishing to display any sort of emotion. The court said nothing for a moment all remained silent. Assistant District Attorney Hanchett then rose up his argument, and no further reference was made to Gourdain's words.

Gourdain is believed to be wealthy and the son of a former prominent man of Louisiana. He declares his scheme is as legitimate as the operations of John D. Rockefeller or any board of trade member.

SPRANG ALEAK

Steamer Ashore on Beach, at Presque Isle, Lake Huron.

Detroit, June 21.—When the steamer Alpena arrived here from upper Lake Huron ports today, Capt. Lightbody reported sighting a steamer Wednesday sunk or beached on False Presque Isle in Lake Huron. He was unable to make out her name, but she appeared to be of about 3,000 tons, with yellow upper works and a green hull. Both the forward and after cabins were out of water, so the crew were in no danger. It is thought probable that the ship during the heavy weather of Wednesday sprang a leak and was beached.

Although all the demands made on behalf of the men were not granted, the committee and men generally are well satisfied with the concessions made by the road officials.

HAVING GREAT SUCCESS.

A few days ago The Santas Nut Food Company, Limited, of Battle Creek, decided to place Toasted Corn Flakes on the market in Canada. Their representative came direct to London and introduced this delicious food. Samples were distributed on Queen's avenue, and the people on that street were not slow in recognizing the merits of this new appetizing breakfast food, with the result that enormous quantities are now being sold.

The representative of the company was interviewed by an Advertiser reporter, who gleaned some very interesting information concerning Toasted Corn Flakes.

The reporter was shown a letter from H. G. Dodds & Co., St. Louis, who buy five carloads at a time, in which they state: "It will take five cars all shot in here at once to stock the clamor for Corn Flakes. We wish you would cut off some other markets and supply St. Louis."

This food has also been introduced in England and Scotland and is meeting with favor.

Toasted Corn Flakes, as the name implies, is made from corn, and will in time, no doubt, supplant other cereals, as it is vastly superior in looks and flavor to any other now on the market.

SUDDEN TRANSITION from a hot to a cold temperature, exposure to rain, sitting in a draught, or a sudden change of light for heavy clothing, are fruitful sources of colds, and the resultant cough so perilous to persons of weak lungs. Among the many medicines for bronchitis and colds, there is none better than Bick's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. Try it and become convinced. Price, 50 cents.

A HEALTHY OLD AGE

OFTEN THE BEST PART OF LIFE Help for Women Passing Through Change of Life.

Providence has allotted us each at least seventy years in which to fulfill our mission in life, and it is generally our own fault if we die prematurely.

Nervous exhaustion invites disease. This statement is the positive truth.

When everything becomes a burden and you cannot walk a few blocks without excessive fatigue, and you break out into perspiration easily, and your face flushes, and you grow excited and shaky at the least provocation and you cannot bear to be crossed in anything, you are in danger; your nerves have given out; you need building up at once! To build up women's nervous system and during the period of change of life we know of no better medicine than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here is an illustration. Mrs. Mary J. Dabruzzi, of 150 Main Street, Winnipeg, Manitoba, writes: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a blessing to me through the delicate period known as the change of life. For six years it disturbed my entire system. I had hot flashes, was extremely nervous, became pale and debilitated, very irregular in the monthly flow, and the blood all seemed to be in my head. I had frequent palpitation and throbbing of the heart; in fact, my whole system seemed to be disordered."

"I received no relief from the suffering incident to this period until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I take daily relief from the time I took the first bottle. I gradually improved, nature took her course peacefully, and in due time I was a well woman."

Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick and ailing women to write her for advice. Her great experience is at their service, free of cost.

BETTER PAY FOR TRAINMEN

Good Increase in G. T. R. Salaries West of St. Clair River.

Port Huron, Mich., June 22.—The committee of the railroad trainmen of the Grand Trunk system west of the St. Clair River has just concluded a conference with the railway officials and obtained a substantial increase in the salaries of the train crews.

Following are some of the increases: On main line—Through baggagemen $5 per month; through brakemen $5 per month; passenger service between "South Bend and Port Huron," conductors $10 a month, baggagemen and brakemen $5 per month. Chicago, South Shore and Michigan—Conductors $5 per month, baggagemen $5 per month, brakemen $5 per month. Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee—Baggagemen $4 per month, and all crews paid an excess on over 4,500 miles.

Regular freight crews doing passenger work are given an increase of from 10 to 20 per cent. Way freight train crews on main line get increases for conductors of $3 per month and brakemen $5 per month. Work train crews in all districts get increases respectively of $5 and $3 per month. Crews on Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee way freight get overtime allowances, and on six through freight trains that line an additional allowance of 25 miles is made.

AFRAID OF HER FATHER

Chicago Benedict Dares Not Claim His Bride.

Chicago, June 22.—Kept from his bride of barely three weeks by the watchfulness of an irate father, Louis Karp, of No. 9 West One Hundred and Seventeenth street, decided last night that the best way to gain possession of her was to publish the fact of the marriage. The bride was Miss Siegel, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Siegel.

The romance started nearly three and a half years ago. Mrs. Karp is an accomplished musician, and has appeared at concerts in Carnegie Hall. Mr. Karp, whose business is that of a builder, has a cultivated tenor voice.

The couple first met at a little gathering of friends. Miss Siegel played an accompaniment for his singing. Cupid worked speedily to a mutual accompaniment and the couple became engaged forthwith.

When asked why he did not go to the home of his wife's parents and demand his bride, Mr. Karp admitted that in the Siegel household he was not welcome; and further intimated that he feared the wrath of the elder Siegel. Mr. Siegel, when informed last

LONDON, FRIDAY, JUNE 22.

THE LORD'S DAY BILL.

The Sunday observance bill is having a stormy passage through the Commons.

A hundred years ago the restriction of Sunday labor was a much simpler problem than it is today. There were no railroads, no steamships, no telegraphs or telephones, and few industrial plants, the factory system being in its infancy. Steam and electricity have greatly complicated the industrial mechanism of the world, and the Rabbinical theory of the Sabbath has become a social impossibility.

The strictest Sabbatarian admits that many forms of Sunday labor, apart from works of mercy, are necessary. There are manufacturing processes of such a nature that they cannot be suspended for a day at a time. Perishable products must be hurried to their destination. Steamships cannot lie at the mercy of wind and wave merely to give the crews a day of rest. The telephone and telegraph have become indispensable servants. In any law for a compulsory rest day there must be numerous exceptions, and theoretical perfection is not to be looked for.

For instance, in the bill now before the Commons, all work on a newspaper is prohibited on Sunday before 8 p.m. The letter of the law would prevent the reporting of sermons, and a scribe caught in the act of jotting down the words of wisdom from the pulpit would be liable to a fine or imprisonment. But sermons will continue to be reported, and newspaper reporters will continue to chronicle Sunday happenings at any hour of the day. The law will be applied only to the mechanical department in the production of a newspaper.

The distinction drawn between these two classes of Sunday labor is an arbitrary one, but logical defects are inevitable in any legislation of this kind. These are subordinate, however, to the object of the bill, which is the preservation of one day in seven as a day of rest for the toiling masses. The advocates of the measure before the House of Commons have wisely approached the matter from that direction. It would have been an infinitely more difficult subject of legislation had they attempted to regulate the conduct of people on the Sabbath day by purely theological considerations.

All law is a restriction of personal liberty in the interests of a larger freedom, and if men were allowed to do as they pleased on Sunday, a large proportion of them would find themselves driven by human selfishness to labor seven days in the week. The forces invading the rest day are mighty, and have prevailed in a great degree in many communities where religious sanctions have not opposed a strong barrier. The enormous amount of capital invested in machinery and plant, which will yield the fullest profit only by continuous operation, is the chief influence, making for Sunday labor, and the workmen have to be protected against it.

The question of Sunday recreation is perhaps the most perplexing feature of the bill before the Commons. In some parts of the country games and pastimes on Sunday are common, and it would be unwise and tyrannical to legislate against custom and opinion. In other parts, usage and opinion would support stringent laws against games and other forms of amusement on the Lord's Day. The present measure has tried to avoid interference with the social habits of the people, the only limitation being that persons shall not provide Sunday amusements for gain. On the whole, the bill has been conceived in a broad and liberal spirit, and in spite of unavoidable illogicalities it is calculated to be a boon to the mass of the population.

AN UN-BRITISH SYSTEM.

We took occasion the other day to show from the official returns that the parole system, as applied to Canadian prisoners, has been a very great success. When contrasted with the system as administered in the United States, it has indeed made a splendid showing.

A few persons in Toronto, however, are not satisfied with the British system in its most enlightened form, administered with the assistance of Major Archibald as special parole officer. They would like to have introduced into Canada the United States system of indeterminate sentences, by means of which the term of a prisoner's punishment is in control of the prison officials, who may or may not be sympathetic and considerate and fair-minded. Warden Gilmour, of the Central Prison, is an adherent of this plan, and in order to commend it to a gathering of friends in Toronto the other day, he denounced the parole system as "one which gives a pull to the man who can employ a high-priced lawyer, or who has friends at court." This is a statement which is not supported by Dr. Gilmour with one iota of proof, and wanting this we must decline to credit the allegation that the Governor-General and his adviser, the Minister of Justice, have been so influenced. Again and again, when the matter has been before Parliament, it has been shown that the method of procedure in every case, whether supported by petitions forwarded by lawyers, by parliamentary representatives, by friends, or by the convicts themselves, does not vary. Each case is considered on its merits, and though, no doubt, a mistake may sometimes be made, the system has on the whole worked very well, and many men and women have been given a new start in life. To reach a conclusion in each case, the Minister of Justice has the aid of the best information obtainable, not only from the prison officials, but from the trial judge, and from such other sources as may be available. The pet hobby of Dr. Gilmour would be of doubtful advantage. If pardons by "pull" are wanted, the very best plan would be to establish a board of Pardons, as they have in some of the adjoining states, for it is no secret that the pardon boards are very subject to "pull" and political influence, and that the system has been tainted with scandal.

Warden Gilmour says he has applied in vain to Canadian ministers of justice to put the indeterminate system of sentences into force in Canada, and he says that one minister responded to his appeal to have this tremendous power put into the hands of prison officials with the statement that "he did not propose to Americanize Canadian methods." The name of the minister is not given, but the late Hon. David Mills, who established the parole system in Canada, publicly declared that it would be an evil day for this nation if a system so un-British as that suggested by Dr. Gilmour were made law. There is no good ground for departing from the present practice, and there is no prospect that the new Minister of Justice will be any more likely to listen to the appeal of the prison warden for greater power over the liberty of the offender than were his predecessors in office.

Before railing at this weather, consider what service it has rendered as a topic of conversation.

King Haakon VII. appears to be a democrat to the hilt, even if he has a name like one of those old Biblical tyrants.

The woman suffragists are getting after the Duma, thus giving the Czar the first opportunity in a long while to laugh in his sleeve.

The attacking force at the Niagara camp has failed to carry Queenston Heights, thus giving new luster to Sir Isaac Brock's achievement.

Nova Scotia has had a Liberal Government since 1882. It is to be hoped it will not share the fate of long-lived administrations at Ottawa and Toronto to be falling in a heap some day.

"Last session it was Sharrett; this year it was Shearer," says Sir Wilfrid's neat retort yesterday to the charge that he had yielded to outside influences in the matter of Sunday legislation.

India is now following the example of Egypt in encouraging the substitution of cotton-growing for other crops. This year 6,000 acres in Sind are being seeded with Egyptian cotton, and the area of cultivation will be extended annually, as the Ryots are becoming accustomed to the Egyptian method of growing, which is essential to the success of the experiment. This enterprise will be watched carefully and patiently by Canadians, as this is probably but the beginning of an extensive cotton-growing industry in India. With cotton established as an Indian product of value, as well as by Egypt turned to account as a valuable source of cotton production, Britain and these auxiliary kingdoms may at no distant date dispense with a large portion of the imports of raw cotton from the United States. Certainly the empire, whether at the center or in the outlying divisions, should be made as self-sustaining as possible.

Whitehead Reid, the United States ambassador to Great Britain, proposes an international association for the preservation of the English language. In a recent speech at the dinner of the Newspaper Press Fund, Mr. Reid deprecated the English support for the constant, almost incredible, corruption of the English language, which is a going on in the United States colleges, as in United States streets, and which some newspapers were raking the country for, to pour out every morning over the whole helpless land. This degradation of the common language, he asserted, would be less threatening if only the English people had a little less cordial admiration of American slang. The suggestion of Mr. Reid is worthy of consideration, but one cannot overlook the fact that use and wont have much to do in deciding what is or is not slang. The slang-word of today may tomorrow be recognized as entitled to a place in the best dictionary. The word "boycott" is a noteworthy instance. Once, undoubtedly, it was slang; but what word can we get to take its place today?

RACE SUICIDE INEFFICIENT.

[Pittsburg Dispatch.]

Race suicide has not prevented the human family from making a fair showing, for it numbers 1,450,000,000 noses. Of Papa Adam's children 250,000,000 go naked, 700,000,000 clothe only the middle part of the body, while 500,000,000 are accustomed to envelop the whole body with some kind of garment; although in summer the women in the last class are somewhat inclined to revert to aboriginal styles of dressing the body from the standpoint of decoration rather than protection from the inclemencies of weather and the observation of man.

A little story is told of the Japanese at the assault of Port Arthur which contains a sententious utterance deserving a place beside Caesar's dispatch, Napoleon's Egyptian speech, and other like military brevities. Gen. Nogi was about to send a regiment to certain death against 100-Meter Hill. He said to its colonel, "Your regiment is the first in all this world!" "General," replied the officer gravely, "it will be the first in the other!"

"Vot is dot; vot do they do mit dem?" was the next question.
"Vell, I dells you," said the first speaker. "Von of my neighbors hat a sickness and he vas taken to der hospital and cut open and his appendix vas taken out."

CAUSES OF BALDNESS.

[New York Medical Journal.]

A new explanation for baldness has been given by Lucien Jaquet, who concludes that the trouble has, in most cases at least, a nervous origin. He calls attention to the fact that the condition is more common among intellectual persons than among others. He is convinced that baldness is of frequent occurrence, not only among those who are intellectual, but also among those who are subjected to intense mental strain, and under such circumstances it may occur comparatively early. Baldness increases with civilization, and Broca has noticed the curious fact that since women have devoted themselves to intellectual pursuits and have grown accustomed to employ their cerebral centers in a more intense manner, baldness, which formerly was rare among them, has progressively become more frequent. Furthermore, Jaquet has found in several cases of early baldness that there is a degenerate inflammation of the nerves of the scalp. He concludes that the functional excitation of the higher nerve centers in the struggle with the environment at first causes an increased growth of the hair. Subsequently, in the evolution of the race or of the individual, there came a period of functional exhaustion. This is held to be in accordance with the law that excitation at first creates increased vigor of a function, then of its largest average price ever obtained. The previous average being only $140. Over 1,000 miles were sold. Before the sale of water powers started Mr. L. A. Union, advocate, rose and announced that he had been instructed by the Federal Government to protect the sale. Mr. Turgeon assured purchasers that they had the Provincial Government's guarantee in their purchases and the sale proceeded.

WELLMAN'S TRIP TO NORTH POLE

[From the London Times.]

A special correspondent of Reuter's Agency who is visiting Paris for the purpose of ascertaining the progress which is being made in Mr. Wellman's sensational project of reaching the North Pole by means of a specially-constructed airship has had an opportunity—the first afforded to anyone except those engaged in its construction—of inspecting the extraordinary machine, which is almost completed at the Godard works at St. Ouen.

The airship marks an entirely new departure in airship designing. It has a lifting power of no less than 16,000 pounds, the weight of the ship, its machinery, and appliances being only half that amount, thus leaving a balance of 8,000 pounds for crew and cargo. Heretofore all airships have been built for high speed at short distances, while this ship has been built for moderate speed and for a long radius of action. This will be the more readily understood when it is stated that the explorer's aim is to make a voyage from the expeditionary base in Spitzbergen to the North Pole and back—a distance of 1,200 miles—at an estimated speed of 12 miles per hour, or a total return voyage of 100 hours. This calculation is based on what is technically known as the "propeller" method of propulsion, and does not take into account the influence of winds. Unlike any previous airship, the America will carry 5,000 pounds of petrol, sufficient fuel for a voyage of 1,800 miles, these calculations being again based on the prevalence of calm.

The total length of the car of the airship, which is constructed of wood strengthened by steel, is 52 1-2 feet, its width is 6 feet. What may be described as the deck is divided into three sections, the center portion being occupied by a basket-work cabin, 12 feet in length and 7 feet high, which will be the living and sleeping quarters of all on board. This will also contain, in addition to the cooking apparatus, the whole of the stores, clothes, and instruments of the expedition.

The motor power of the airship consists of two motors, one of 55, the other of 25 horsepower. The first will drive the propeller and screw, which is 18 1-2 feet in diameter, 280 turns per minute, while the latter drives the propeller (14 1-2 feet in diameter), 350 turns per minute.

The plan is that the airship shall not rise to a greater average height than 400 feet to 500 feet. The crew will consist of Mr. Wellman himself, Major H. L. Hersey, who represented the United States Government and the National Geographical Society as a navigator, a scientific observer, the well-known aviator, Mr. M. J. Smith, the wireless telegraph expert, and M. Paul Colardeau, who will be in charge of the motors.

If all should be found satisfactory the voyage towards the Pole will take place in August.

From the moment the airship leaves Spitzbergen for the Pole it is hoped that she will be in constant wireless communication with the stations at Spitzbergen and Hammerfest. Hence it is possible that Mr. Wellman may achieve the dramatic triumph of sending a wireless message from the Pole.

While the plan is to return from the Pole to Spitzbergen, if, on reaching the Pole, it is found that the wind should be unfavorable to the return, the explorers are prepared, in case strong winds should drive them to Siberia, British North America, Alaska, or Greenland, to follow the line of least resistance and go with the wind. Should they descend at either of these points, they are equipped with the fullest information, which has been collected for them by the Canadian, United States, Danish, Russian, and other geographical societies as to the location of tribes, game, and supplies. It will thus be seen that Mr. Wellman contemplates the possibility of sailing right across the Arctic Ocean from land to land. Should any disaster happen to the airship, the expedition will solve itself into a sledging party, the sledges, of which six will be carried on the airship, being drawn by two motor-sledges, each of six horsepower. These motor-sledges were designed by Mr. Wellman and based upon his former experience with dog-sledging in the Arctic. They are constructed on the principle of a motor-cycle, weigh only 200 pounds each, and are thus capable of being lifted by two men over the roughest snow.

Food, which will be of a total weight of 800 pounds, and contained in a small box of 16 cubic feet, and sufficient for the whole party for 75 days, will be carried in the little cabin of the airship. The explorer estimates the probable return voyage with favorable winds should occupy five, and with adverse winds, 15 days.

MONEY IN TRACTION LINES

Chicago Companies Would Sell to the City for $47,505,153.

Chicago, June 2. — The traction companies gave the council committee on local transportation yesterday the figures at which they would agree to sell to the city their present tangible properties. The figures are: Chicago City Railway Company, $20,105,935; Union Traction Company, $27,401,218. Total, $47,505,153.

Mayor Dunne at once declared the figures to be grossly excessive, and the committee referred them to two experts for analysis and a report.

Quebec, June 22.—There was an auction sale of timber limits at the Parliament House yesterday, when 294 square miles were sold at an average price of $325 per square mile, the largest average price ever obtained. Union, advocate, rose and announced that he had been instructed by the Federal Government to protect the sale. Mr. Turgeon assured purchasers that they had the Provincial Government's guarantee in their purchases and the sale proceeded.

DO GREAT WORK ABOUT BABYLON

German Scientists Show City Was Not as Large as Modern Towns.

Berlin, June 22.—In view of the attention that the Bagdad Railroad lately has received in the political world, it is interesting to note what the German scientific world is doing in the valley of the Euphrates. At the annual meeting of the German Oriental Society Prof. Delitzsch, who recently visited the United States, made an interesting report on the work accomplished in the last year. He declared that the excavation made in Babylon had shown that the picture which Herodotus had given us of this ancient state was not borne out by recent discoveries. The metropolis on the Euphrates had never been as large as modern capitals.

Among the results achieved by the German investigations was the laying bare of the temple of Nebuchadnezzar, and the finding of the famous terraces and foundations of three temples. With still greater satisfaction Prof. Delitzsch spoke of the work accomplished in Assur. Here was found the archives of a temple and 2,600 other writings, giving us a new knowledge of ancient conditions.

Professor E. Mann, the famous Egyptianologist, spoke of the excavation in Abydos, a village in middle Egypt. There was found a cemetery of prehistoric times, and the German Oriental Society sent an expedition to bring some objects to the surface. More than 1,000 graves were unearthed. Some of the dead, surrounded by numerous objects, were found in a reclining position. Among these objects were splendid stone and earthenware, a spoon richly decorated with gold found in a small jar, and a valuable faience work. Of particular interest was the discovery of the graves of the Hyksos, the mysterious shepherd kings who ruled Egypt 1800 B.C.

Dr. Koldewey reported on the results of the excavations in Mesopotamia. He said that he had succeeded in tracing the topography of the gigantic walls and the canal Archa which connected the residences of the rulers Nabopolassar and Nebuchadnezzar.

Herr Andrae reported on the excavations in Assur, particularly on his work on the ruins of the palace of King Tukulti Ninib. He told the findings of an Assyrian Pompeii. Interesting information was given us on this ancient city, of the

TANGLED THREADS

"Yes, I went to a cooking-school for a year before I left home. I can make almost anything, and I dearly love the care of a house," returned Mary, with an eager light in her eyes. "Well, come and talk with Mr. Benyon, and we will hope that the gentleman who is going to live here while we are away will at least give you a trial."

So the girl went with her to be interviewed by Mr. Benyon, who, when he saw how young and attractive she was, murmured something of her sad history.

She was the very pink of neatness, as far as her own personal appearance went, and, seeing that she had been well reared, his own heart was touched by her misfortune, and he resolved to influence his friend to try her for a while as a housekeeper.

He knew that he would spend but comparatively little of his time in the city, especially during the summer months; that he had hired the suite more for the sake of assisting the woman whom he had loved in his youth than because he really wanted to live there, and, being possessed of ample means, he could well afford to be so stranded while a home, and so help on the good work which Mrs. Seymour and her daughter had begun.

"Could you come immediately?" he inquired, as he arose to go, after putting a few practical questions to her. "I should be very glad to, sir," Mary quietly replied.

"Then I will bring the gentleman here as soon as you leave for the country," said Mr. Benyon, turning again to Mrs. Seymour. "And,"

"But, Mr. Benyon," Helen here laughingly interposed, "you have not yet seen the suite, excepting this one room. How can you recommend it to your client?"

"Well, I confess, I have not been very businesslike," was the smiling reply; "but," his glance roving appreciatively around the pretty parlor, "I took it for granted that this was a fair sample of the whole."

"Come and see," he really thought, "in justice to the new tenant," said Helen, and she led the way into an adjoining room, and so through the whole apartment, which was attractive and immaculate in every nook and corner.

"Well, I am sure Mr. Smith can be made very comfortable here," Mr. Benyon remarked, adding: "When may I tell him that he can have possession?"

"We have the refusal of rooms at Yorkers, and I will telegraph Mrs. Seymour tomorrow morning, so she may expect us on the afternoon train on Monday."

"Very well, I will see you again on Monday morning, when we will settle all these matters," Mr. Benyon observed, then bade them good evening and departed.

He came, as he had promised, on Monday, and quite early.

"Mr. Smith" had agreed to take the suite, and sent the first month's rent in advance. Mary was to remain, to have charge of the rooms, and, if arrangements could be made to accommodate her, Mr. Smith wished to have a good girl—Alice Kimball by name—whom he was educating, make one of the family.

She was a nice girl of seventeen, he said, and was going to be a teacher; she would be company for Mary evenings, and could help about the house on days when there was no school.

Mrs. Seymour said the matter of accommodation could be easily arranged—the baby could occupy the crib, and the two girls could share Helen's room, and she expressed herself as very much pleased that Mary would have a companion near at hand to keep her from brooding over her troubles.

The deed of transfer was then signed, the price of the cottage paid over, after which Mr. Benyon took leave of Helen and her mother, wishing them a pleasant summer, then went to his way.

There was a general rejoicing in the little suite after his departure, for the hearts of the three women were very light after the darkness and gloom of the last year.

Mary was sent to her lodgings, to have her few belongings removed to her new home, and, upon her return, she went about the house with elastic step and shining eyes, intent upon her new duties, and waiting upon Mrs. Seymour, while Helen went to deposit her small fortune in a bank which Mr. Benyon had recommended as being perfectly reliable.

She was back again in time for lunch, and then at two o'clock a carriage came to her and her mother, with their trunks, to the station.

They took a friendly leave of Mary, with wise counsels and good wishes, instructing her to appeal to them whenever she needed advice, or in any emergency; then, with a sense of freedom long unknown, they turned their faces toward the country, and away from all care and worry.

London Man Saved.

A Former Superintendent of Metropolitan Life Writes to Say He Is All Right.

"Twelve months ago I was confined to bed with an attack of rheumatic fever and inflammatory rheumatism, which left my bowels very constive. I tried various preparations to regulate my system with very poor results. A friend recommended my trying Dr. Leonard's Anti-Pill, and, taking his advice, I did so, and must admit after taking two boxes my stomach gained its former regularity, and today I am as well as ever."

"I can cheerfully vouch for Dr. Leonard's Anti-Pill. They soothe the bowels, act easily, with no gripping pains, as do so many pills, and I trust any sufferer will lose no time in accepting the advice of one who was cured by them."

months of gloom and trial, we will transfer our readers across the Atlantic to a charming villa on the outskirts of Paris, which Mrs. Ellsworth and her sister, Mrs. Sturdyvant, had occupied for several months, and where they had kept open house during that time, entertaining many of their countrymen and women, as well as distinguished people of other lands.

Thus they, together with Marjorie, had led a charming life throughout the winter, and they were very loath to leave the delightful Paris, in spite of the fact that they were looking forward to a very enjoyable summer, for they had arranged to join a party of tourists, who were going to Norway and Sweden, and afterward make an extended tour of the continent.

On entering this elegant abode, as we are privileged to do, we find a charming and social company seated at dinner, and learn, from their conversation, that they comprise the very people who are going upon the trip already referred to.

It is the last day of May, and Mrs. Ellsworth has gathered them together to talk over the last few arrangements that must be made before they leave, and they intend to do within the coming week.

Everybody appears to be in the best of spirits, and impatiently anticipating the fitting, unless we except Rob, our hero, who still looks somewhat pale, and appears much graver than when we last saw him.

He had never seemed quite the same happy, care-free young man since he received that—to him—inexplicable letter from Helen, the fatal decree of which had swept over him like a blighting wind, withering all his fondest anticipations.

From that hour there had also grown upon him a gravity and reserve that was wholly unnatural to him, and, with this change, there had seemed to arise a barrier between his uncle and himself, and which was a source of much anxiety and regret to the elder gentleman.

Rob was invariably courteous, and as dutifully attentive to his wishes as ever. He was agreeable when they were by themselves, and made an effort to be cheerful and entertaining when they were out among their friends; he did not sulk, or make his grief conspicuous; nevertheless, there was an unmistakable constraint in his manner that was a continual reproach to Mr. Lancaster.

He seemed to have locked away, as if in a tomb, his secret sorrow and disappointment—to have shut up his heart, and barred its door, and his dotting uncle missed, more than he could express, his former boyish frankness and confidence, for heretofore he had never failed to discuss freely with him whatever arose to perplex or harass him.

He knew that the young man could have no suspicion of the part he had borne in causing the misunderstanding and break with Helen; no one, save Hubert Alton himself, as he fondly believed, shared that secret, and he had not the slightest fear that it would ever be revealed.

Nevertheless, he had reasons for halting and desponding himself—as if he had been a reprobate third party—for what he had done, while, at the same time, he inwardly justified himself for having saved Rob from rashly ruining his own life.

Still, he was troubled and uneasy about the boy; he had taken the matter so much more to heart than he had anticipated, and he had grown thin, he often looked so pale, harassed, and ennuied, although no word of complaint ever escaped his lips, that he was at his wits' end to know how to arouse him to his former energy and vivacity and interest in life.

With the hope of effecting this, he had persistently dragged him into society all winter long; he had sought the gayest scenes and people, joined parties upon excursions to every point of interest, and, in fact, spared nothing which his fertile mind could suggest or money accomplish to tempt him to forget.

It was with his end in view, added to the fact that Hubert Alton had not yet succeeded in carrying out the scheme they had planned before he left America, that he had decided to remain abroad for another year, and join a party of tourists who contemplated traveling extensively.

Rob had demurred when the plan was first broached to him, but Mr. Lancaster, feeling that it would be very unwise to allow him to return, in his present mood, to New York, where he would be liable to meet Helen, when explanations might ensue, and their former relations renewed—was insistent, and the young man quietly yielded the point.

They had been constant visitors at Mrs. Ellsworth's pretty villa ever since they had come to Paris. In fact, the three ladies of the household had spared no pains to make them feel that their former relations renewed—was them, and their success in these endeavors was very satisfactory, at least to Marjorie and her mother, both of whom—although neither had ever breathed the thought in the other—had the same project in view.

Upon his first meeting with her, at St. Moritz, Mr. Lancaster had instinctively shrunk from renewing his acquaintance with Mrs. Ellsworth, who had been somewhat unpleasantly associated with some disagreeable experiences of his early life. But she had met him so charmingly and affably; she had referred—once only—to that unpleasant episode, frankly and regretfully, blaming herself for having allowed herself to become involved in the affair, that he was disarmed, and was inclined to feel that she might, after all, have been the victim of circumstances that had made her an unwilling participant in the affair.

She continued to play her cards very cleverly, and, in time, completely won his confidence and gratitude by her kindness to him and Rob, while Marjorie, after her arrival, having taken her heart entirely by storm with her beauty, her childlike innocence and trust, he found an additional charm in their household, which gradually became the most attractive place in the world to him for the time being.

Both Mrs. Ellsworth and Mrs. Sturdyvant were cultivated ladies. They were exceedingly well read, and took great pains to keep abreast with the times in art, literature and music, as well as in current events; thus they made themselves very companionable and entertaining.

They also drew about them people no less brilliant and refined; while, keeping "open house" as they did, their home could not fail to be a most delightful rendezvous to all who were so fortunate as to be welcomed within its portals.

Mrs. Ellsworth, as has already been intimated, had been left in very comfortable circumstances, and, being a good manager, she knew how to make the most of every dollar; thus she was thought to be richer than she was, and this added to her prestige wherever she went.

Mrs. Sturdyvant was also a widow of considerable fortune, consequently, as she had no children of her own, Marjorie's prospects, as far as worldly expectations were concerned, appeared to be very flattering.

So, with the girl's manifest fondness for him, and his for her, there gradually grew up in Mr. Lancaster's mind the plan to effect a union between her and Rob, if he could manage it; hence his visits to the villa were, perhaps, more frequent than they might otherwise have been, and also his readiness, when approached on the subject by Mrs. Ellsworth, to join the tourist party.

As may have been surmised, the scheming woman was the projector of the tour, and had planned it for the very purpose of throwing Rob and Marjorie more closely together, so as to bring about the match she coveted.

There were four other young people in the party, two sisters by the name of Barton, with their parents, a Mr. and Mrs. Weiling, with their son, a ward of Mr. Weiling's—a young man of 20, who had inherited a considerable fortune.

The Misses Barton were exceptionally nice girls, but quiet and unassuming, and Mrs. Ellsworth had no fear of having Marjorie's charms eclipsed, while, as for the other young men, she knew that the girl cared nothing for them.

But, to return to the dinner party at the villa. When the meal was over, the company adjourned to the drawing-room, to continue the discussion of their plans, while the dining-room was being cleared for dancing, some other guests having been invited to participate in the festivities of the evening.

A small but fine orchestra had been provided for the occasion, and, ere long, music and mirth were at their height.

Rob felt obliged to participate in the merry-making, although his heart was not in it, and he would have much preferred to steal away for a quiet smoke and a reverie by himself, but he could not do this without appearing rude and selfish, for there were fewer gentlemen than ladies present, and he knew that he would be expected to do duty among the dancers.

"Robbie, what makes you so glum tonight?" Marjorie playfully demanded, as they paused to rest for a moment, during a waltz which he had begged of her.

The girl was always full of mischievous and pretty mannerisms, and, now and then, she would lapse into a freedom of speech as above, although generally she addressed him demurely as "Mr. Eggleston."

He smiled amusedly down upon her laughing, upturned face, much as he would have done upon a sportive child, for she seemed more like a child than a woman to him.

"Glum!" Is it possible that I appear like that in the midst of this brilliant and charming company?" he queried.

"Indeed you do," she retorted, with a pouting pout and a decidedly reproving nod. "I don't believe you have really smiled—naturally—once this evening. All during dinner you sat like a grave and dignified professor, and now, in the midst of this merry-making, you are as solemn as a judge."

"Really, Miss Marjorie, I did not dream that I was drawing down upon my humble self such a severe observation," Rob returned, flushing slightly, but trying to speak lightly.

Marjorie lifted an appealing glance to him.

"Truly, R—Mr. Eggleston, I—I wish you wouldn't be quite so high and mighty—so self-satisfied upon yourself," she said coaxingly. "I had told the Misses Barton how very nice you are."

"Thanks, awfully," interposed the young man, and now laughing out "naturally" for the first time that evening.

"Well, but you are nice, when you choose to be," she persisted; "and I want them to think well of you—especially as we are all to be companions of voyage for so long. And, besides—"

GRADUATES SAY ADIEU TO COLLEGE

Class of Harding Hall Receive Medals and Diplomas at Auditorium.

The Harding Hall exercises in the Auditorium last evening evidenced careful training on the part of the graduating class. Four young ladies completed the four years' collegiate course and received the M. L. A. diploma. This diploma entitles the holder to style herself Mistress of Liberal Arts. Miss Mary E. Tuttle, of Shetland; Miss Mabel Reynolds, Miss Myrtle Reynolds and Miss Mary A. Koch, of London, were the literary graduates. Miss Jean MacInnes, of Ripley, a piano pupil of Mr. Thomas Martin, and a singing pupil of Mr. J. Parnell Morris, completed the full course in both departments, and received the F. C. M. diploma, entitling her to be styled Fellow of the Central Conservatory of Music. Miss Meta Moore, of Sparrow, a pupil of Mr. J. Parnell Morris, completed the full course in singing, as did Miss Jenny May Wolverson, of Wolverson, a pupil of Mr. J. W. Featherston. Miss Katie Moore, pupil of Mr. Chas. E. Wheeler, completed the full course in organ. To each of these was granted the A. C. C. M. diploma. Miss Alma Gillies, a pupil of Mr. Thomas Martin, completed the graduating work in piano only, and was granted a certificate to that effect.

President Baker explained that Miss Viola McCormick, piano pupils of Mr. Cruttenbach; Miss Jessie Hamilton Strong, and Miss Lucie McMechan, pupils of Mr. W. A. Bluetner, and Miss Charles Anderson, pupil of Mr. Chas. E. Wheeler, had completed the full work for the A. C. C. M. diploma, but that the results of the theoretical examination had not yet been announced. Mr. John MacLachlan, a pupil of Mr. Quantz, is a candidate in singing only.

The diplomas were presented by Mayor Judd, who spoke of the great loss to London when Harding Hall College was allowed to go out of existence, and expressed his great satisfaction that Harding Hall had been founded to give London a ladies' college, and pleasure at the good work done.

The literary exercises were presented by Miss Cunningham, the recitation of modern languages. Miss MacInnes and Miss Meta Moore were presented by Mr. Morris, Miss Wolverson, Miss Katie Moore and Miss Gillies were presented by Mr. Chas. E. Wheeler.

The musical numbers were of special merit, and were most enthusiastically received. Beethoven's "Sonata in G Major," Op. 31, was rendered by Miss Alma Gillies in her characteristic manner. Miss MacInnes played the favorite Polish in A Major, by Chopin, and won well-deserved applause. "Sing, Sweet Bird," by Gantz, was artistically rendered by Miss Meta Moore, whose sweet tones delighted her audience. Her second number, "Felicitas," by Arditi, was also well performed.

Miss MacInnes gave evidence of strength and musical interpretation in her rendering of Chopin's Polonaise in C Sharp Minor, and in the Mazurka, Op. 61, was most delightfully performed. Miss MacInnes sang beautifully Kellie's "Love's Nocturne," and Gounod's "No Night Shall Be There," songs well-adapted to her full, rich voice. This latter song had been artistically rendered by Mrs. Baker and was presented in a faultless manner by seven young ladies in Grecian gowns, while being sung by Miss MacInnes. This was one of the most interesting items on the program.

The first number was Dudley Buck's "Sunset." This song, well rendered, was doubtless eclipsed by Miss Wolverson's brilliant number "Faites lui mes Adieux," the favorite from Gounod's "Faust."

Miss Myrtle Reynolds, a brilliant young lady of the graduating class, was the valedictorian. Miss Reynolds' valedictory was reminiscent of the life of a student, and was a fitting tribute to the institution.

After Mr. Baker had announced that it was probable that a special autumn convocation would be held for the conferring of diplomas on other successful candidates, the singing of God Save the King brought to a close a delightful evening and another chapter in the history of the college.

Baking Powder Proof

It is an easy matter to determine the relative merits of baking powders by testing them yourself. When baking you are using a certain amount of the baking powder, and mark it so that you can identify it afterwards. Do the same with any other good powder in the other half, and notice the results. If you don't think Strong's Baking Powder is the best, you will have no doubt of it after putting it to a practical test. Besides, it only costs half what any other pure powder costs, 25c pound.

And the meeting will be held tonight.

SENTENCED TO HANG

Hungarian Laborer Must Pay Extreme Penalty for Slaying Farmer.

Oxbow, Sask., June 21.—Vincent Magyar, the Hungarian farm laborer, who shot his employer, Donald Campbell, at Frohisher last March, was today found guilty of murder and sentenced to hang in Regina September 6.

The crime was peculiarly brutal. Magyar was of a sullen disposition, and wished to leave Campbell, who refused to give him his discharge, owing to the difficulty of finding a replacement. In his desire, the incensed foreigner walked into the house, got a shotgun and fatally wounded Campbell, who was one of the best known farmers in that district. The murderer put in his plea that he acted in self-defense, stating that Campbell had attacked him with a fork. When the sentence was pronounced the prisoner seemingly was very little affected, only trembling slightly.

BANK TELLER SENTENCED.

Syracuse, N. Y., June 22.—Charles H. Palne, defaulting teller of the Onondaga County Savings Bank, who pleaded guilty to grand larceny, was today sentenced to serve six years in Auburn state prison. Palne stole $15,044 and disappeared on Feb. 2. He was captured at Christiania, Norway, on May 6. He returned $3,000 to the surety company which furnished his bond of $15,000.

THURSDAY'S BIG BLOW

Damage Done in Oxford—14 Sheep Killed Near Jarvis.

Woodstock, June 21.—A severe wind storm passed through North Oxford and Woodstock at 3:15 this afternoon. A number of roofs of barns were torn off and trees and fences blown down. Part of the roof and one gable of the new cement schoolhouse on the twelfth line of East Zorra was removed. One scholar was hurt by debris falling through the roof. The injuries were not serious.

Jarvis, June 21.—During a thunderstorm, which passed over here this afternoon, lightning struck, and killed fourteen sheep that were seeking shelter behind a shanty on the farm of Mr. James Wilkinson.

Listowel, June 21.—One of the heaviest thunderstorms of the season passed over this section this afternoon, the wind blowing a gale, which did a great deal of damage, many fine shade trees being badly broken down.

Preest, June 21.—A severe electrical storm passed over the town about 2 o'clock this afternoon. The town hall was struck by lightning and the tower was considerably damaged. The alarm was given and the fire was extinguished with a few pails of water.

LET IN THE ROAD

Leamington Gives W. E. and L. S. Radial a Franchise.

Windsor, June 21.—Leamington's town council finally has granted a franchise to the Windsor, Essex and Lake Shore Radial Railway. The franchise was held up for months because the company refused to build a spur line to the lake, a distance of a mile. Finally, the company agreed to construct the line within a year and the town council decided to grant the franchise for the road to enter Leamington.

This evening the city council of Windsor will hold a special meeting to consider a bylaw granting a franchise to the company, and it is expected that the company will be given permission to lay T-rails inside the corporation.

STOCK MARKETS.

H. C. Beecher, stockbroker, next Free Press building, received the following by private wire from Barlett, Frazier & Carrington, Toronto:

New York, June 22.—Weakness of the market at the opening was attributed to a rumor that at the cabinet meeting to be held today plans would be discussed for taking some action against a prominent corporation. The guesses were that the corporation referred to would prove to be the Pennsylvania, Standard Oil or the Steel Corporation. The selling seemed to be largely professional, although it was accompanied by some liquidation. The rally which subsequently ensued was attributed to the strength of Southern Pacific. The buying the last named is of an excellent character, and has been for some days past. The situation is that a dividend will be declared within a reasonable time. Some professionals sold New York Central on statements made in this morning's papers that the New York were making arrangements for entering New York over its own lines, instead of at present over the New York Central.

The market is so erratic and irregular that it is difficult to form an intelligent opinion as to its trend. Commission houses are refusing to give advice for the time being. Sales to noon were $48,000 shares.

BOTTRILL GETS TWO YEARS IN PEN

Deserted Wife and Children and Took Up With a Colored Woman.

Two years in Kingston penitentiary was the sentence passed on Delbert Bottrill at the police court this morning.

Bottrill appeared some time ago on a charge of neglecting his wife and little children. The evidence given in the court at the time showed his treatment of his wife to be disgraceful. Since the time of the marriage he had given his wife very little support, had come home drunk and abused her time and again; had taken her house furnishings and the money she had worked hard to earn for the support of her children, and given them to a colored woman with whom he had been living.

Chance after chance has been given to Bottrill, but his treatment of his wife and family has not improved, and he has since his last appearance been living in Detroit with the colored woman.

As the magistrate pointed out this morning, there seemed to be nothing left to do but to punish Bottrill, as a warning seemed to have no effect, and his love for the colored woman appeared to be greater than for his patient, long-suffering wife, who had done everything in her power for him and was deserving of his support.

Charles Crockett, a local contractor and builder, was charged with fraud by Mr. G. W. Kernohan, lumber dealer. It appears that Crockett took a contract for erecting a building for Mrs. Niosi, for which he was to receive $500. After having half-completed his contract, Crockett went to Mrs. Niosi and got $200, which he said he was going to pay to Mr. Kernohan on his lumber account. Instead of paying Mr. Kernohan it is alleged that Crockett went to the G. T. R. station and bought a ticket for Detroit. The police were notified and Crockett was arrested.

When Crockett appeared in court the magistrate advised the parties concerned to try to come to terms. Crockett was finally allowed out on bail, on the condition that he goes to work and completes the contract, giving Mr. Kernohan an order on Mrs. Niosi for the money which he owes him.

John McBeth has a selection of songs which are not fit for a kindergarten. Now, John chanced along the highway behind two ladies and sang for their amusement several of his favorite melodies. It so happened that the ladies did not like the tunes and John was arrested.

He admitted to the police magistrate that he was sober when he committed the offense, and so it cost him $5 and $2 costs or 20 days.

Edward Flanagan paid $5 or 20 days for being drunk.

James Berryworth, an alleged vagrant, who gets a little drunk sometimes, was allowed out on suspended sentence for one week.

Two harmless first-time alcoholists were discharged.

MUST HAVE LICENSE

Otherwise You Can't Sell Stamps in Canada, Says the Law.

According to Toronto reports, the postoffice authorities there are out with a net for the people who sell stamps without a license. A few days ago it was announced that all persons found selling postage stamps without a license would be subject to a fine and an appearance before the police magistrate. This step has been taken apparently at the instance of a few stamp vendors in the postoffice department, who want sales to be confined principally to themselves.

The indignation of the public is roused against the idea, for such places as hotels, drug stores, newspaper offices, and stores that have always accommodated their customers with stamps are prohibited from doing so unless they take out a license. People who have been accustomed to getting a stamp at a nearby place can now go to the postoffice for one to someone who happens to have a license. The action, which has been taken to create this situation, is causing loud murmurs from citizens everywhere.

The law is, however, on the side of the prosecution, several convictions having been secured under the following clause of the postoffice act: "No person other than a postmaster shall advertise the business of selling postage stamps or stamped envelopes to the public, unless duly licensed so to do by the postmaster-general, and under such conditions as he prescribes, and every person who violates this provision by selling without a license from the postmaster-general, shall, on summary conviction, incur a penalty not exceeding $40 for each offence."

Moral courage is a euphemism for a thick skin.

DIPHTHERIA DUE TO MILK SUPPLY

Physician Says It Is, and Thinks the Local Health Board Should Act.

Is the milk supply responsible for the present outbreak of diphtheria in this city?

A well-known local physician declares it is, and this morning he told Dr. Hutchinson so in the latter's office in the city hall.

"I believe the health department should begin a thorough investigation of the milk supply at once," the doctor stated.

"At the present time there are eight patients in Victoria Hospital who have been taking milk from the same dairyman."

"Four customers of this man were ill with diphtheria in April, four in May and five in June."

"And of the cases two proved fatal. I think it's time the health department got a move on."

"The doctor went on to say that when so many cases had been reported, and when it was stated on the notices that all the patients took milk from the same milkman, the health department should have been better off."

The doctor also alleged that three notices of cases sent in to Dr. Hutchinson did not bear the name of the milkman who had been supplying the patient, which is contrary to law, and that the matter had never been reported. The three cases in question are alleged to have been customers of the milkman who has had so much trouble already.

Everyday the asking where the board of health is not being held, and held very seldom, and no attempt is being made to fill the place of Mr. W. D. Willis, who has gone to the North-west to reside.

Dr. Hutchinson today, it would appear to be up to the board of health to investigate the milk supply.

BROWN-CARSON.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. Carson, 124 Maple street, when her daughter, Violet M., was united in marriage to Mr. John S. Brown. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. McWilliams, of St. Marys, brother-in-law of the bride, assisted by Rev. Dr. Ross, of St. Andrew's Church. WEDDED FORTY YEARS

Interesting Celebration at Home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Westman.

A very pleasant event took place on Wednesday at the home of Mr. A. Westman, 58 Craig street, when about 50 guests gathered to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Westman. The evening was a most enjoyable one.

After a dainty supper had been served in the dining-room, which was beautifully decorated with Marcella Neal roses, Rev. A. Brown, of Ashten Street Church, read a large number of congratulatory letters and telegrams from friends who could not be present.

Among those present was Mrs. J. Scofield, of Chippewa Hill, who had acted as bridesmaid at Mr. and Mrs. Westman's wedding. She was also the recipient of many congratulations.

Another interesting feature of the celebration was the christening of Mr. Westman's grandson, Douglas Eldon Westman, son of Mr. Eldon Westman.

Forty years ago Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Westman were married in Toronto by Rev. Dr. J. A. Williams. They resided there two years, removing then to London, where Mr. Westman started in the hardware business. He was very successful and built up a large trade. Mr. Westman also made many warm friends by his good qualities.

Among others who were present on Wednesday were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hewitt, Toronto; Miss Sadie Amy, Toronto; Alfred Westman, Chatham; Miss P. Spence, Hamilton; Mr. Harris, Ithaca, N. Y.

The idea that birds select secluded places to build their nests has been proved false. Birds have been known to build in the noisiest or most conspicuous places. A sparrow's nest was discovered in an electric light on the Thames street, London, where the lamp was lighted and put out each day.

One of the few certainties in life is the fact that things seldom turn out as expected.

Four Paving Contracts Let;

King Macadam at $1.05

Brick Pavements for Talbot,

York and Market Lane—Street

Railway Troubles.

The board of works met last night and awarded paving contracts totalling $24,572. The contracts were for four streets.

For a Kentucky rock asphalt-faced macadam roadway on King street, between Maitland and Wellington streets—Bligh & Felder, Chatham, at $2.32.

For a Massillon brick pavement on York street, Talbot street to the river—Forest City Paving Company, London, at $10.990.

For a Massillon brick pavement on Talbot street, King to York street—Geary & Lewis, London, at $4.490.

For a Massillon brick pavement on the Market Lane—Geary & Lewis, London, at $7.90.

The price for the macadam pavement on King street was much lower than was expected, and the board was greatly pleased when Engineer Graydon figured out that the cost to the people would be only a little over $1.05 per square yard. If this pavement is saved in the cost of the pavement, it will be one of the best and cheapest that has been as yet laid in London.

Mr. J. H. McMechan, a King street resident, asked the board to give the residents of King street the use of the city road roller free when the road pavement is being laid on that thoroughfare. In the estimates of the cost of the work $3 a day is charged up for the use of the road roller. If the request was granted it would mean a saving in the cost of the pavement to the people of between $300 and $500. When the price of the pavement was given out, however, Mr. McMechan did not press his claim.

Claims for Damages.

The claim for damages presented by Wm. Nesbitt was referred to the city solicitor with a request to the effect that it is the London Street Railway, not the city, that is liable.

Thomas Nicholls' claim for damages was referred to the city engineer to report.

A claim for damages from one Cochrane was laid over, as the matter is in the city solicitor's hands.

for the sick and injured, no matter what their creed. He went on to point out that wherever the Catholic Church is found, there it always has a hospital, caring for persons regardless of their religion, can find a helping hand in a time of sickness. In the selection of the nurses, too, there is no creed restriction. In fact,
