ON "MOTHERS" Rev. F. E. Malott Preached

to a Large Congregation Last Evening

Sermon Was Much Appreciated b Those Present-Special Music Rendered

Victoria avenue church was crowded to the doors last night with interested hearers who listened with the closest attention to the sarmon on "Mothers" by the pastor, Rev. F. E. Malott. The text was taken from Romans xvi, 15, "His mother and mine." Paul had a friend in the early church, a man named Rufus, eminent in virtue. He had often gone to his home and had found in the mother of Rufus one who took him into her heart and became a mother to him as well. Among other salutations that are found in his letter to the church at Rome is this: "Salute Rufus the chosen in the Lord and his mother and mine." Paul could never forget the kindness of this woman, and because of her kindness to Paul she has a place among the good mothers whose names have come down to us in the records of the early church.

Good mothers are the hope of the home. The church, and the nation, records of the early church.

Good mothers are the hope of the home, the church, and the nation. President Roosevelt said recently, "The mothers of the land have the fate of the future of the nation in their hands." Along the same line is the recent saying of the Emperor of Germany, "I hope we shall always have good mothers in Germany, for if we do, then we shall have good sons and daughters and the nation cannot decay."

The speaker dwelt on the power

nation cannot decay."

The speaker dwelt on the power of mothers to stamp their character on their children. He referred to those women who become mothers but whose character and conduct are such that they are unworthy of the name of mothers. Instances were cited from history and modern life of unmotherly mothers. "But," said the speaker, "there are good mothers and always have been."

Mr. Malott then named and dwelt.

Mr. Malott then named and dwelt on some of the marks of a true mother:

on some of the marks of a true mother:

1. She will be a Godly woman. It is a deplorable thing that so many men who have no faith in the Great Father of us all will recklessly rush into fatherhood and ignore the duties and responsibilities involved. Fortunately for the world, the true mothers of earth are doing duty for two in imparting moral and religious instruction. The mothers of Rufus, Timothy, St. Augustine and other eminent men were mentioned as instances of Godly mothers who gave the world Godly sons.

2. Another work of a true mother is sympathy with children and an appreciation of will be a true mother is sympathy with children and an appreciation of will be a true mother world.

2. Another work of a true mother is sympathy with children and an appreciation of child nature. This is needed by all who have to do with children. Margaret Sangster says, "The whole education of a girl from her infancy should be a training for motherhood, not because she may marry and have children of her own, but because the early education of children is in the hands of women."

3. If there was more sympathy for child nature boys would often be kept at home to have their "good times" and not learn to seek it in questionable places of amusement. A third work of a true mother is firmness in discipline. Fathers are often too harsh and mothers too lenient. There is need in our day of a revival along the children is previved along the children is need in our day of a revival along the children.

er, was cited as an instance of this wisdom.

5. The last point mentioned by the speaker was a mother's undying love for her children and her unfaltering faith in God for their salvation. The sermon was enriched with telling illustrations and many were deeply affected. Many were the tributes given by the hearers to the value of such teaching both for mothers and children.

A splendid program of music was given, the special numbers being a solo by Mr. Arthur Martin, a juvenite quartette by Harry Horstead, Leon Lowell, Reta Burgess and Goldic Wardle, and a quintette by five male members of the choir, entitled "Tell mother I'll be there." These were all very fine and were well received.

MAGAULAY GLUB

An excellent program characterized the meeting of the Macaulay Club on Saturday evening, a goodly number of members being present. President Dr. Musson occupied the chair, Dr. R. V. Bray confributed an excellent reading, the debute following on the subject, "Resolved that the dramatic stage has a greater educative influence than the novel." The affirmative was supported by H. W. Anderson, Dr. T. K. Holmes, F. D. Laurie, Chas. E. Beeston and S. R. Arnold; the negative was championed by Edwin Bell, J. S. Lane, Chas. Ayers, Br. R. V. Bray and Fred Stone. Decision was given for the negative. H. D. Smith performed the duties of critic. ****************

FROGS AND ROBINS WOMEN OF Present Spring Weather is Causing

Much Interest-Mr. Ripley Saw the First Robin

James Dagneau, Delaware Ave. brought to this office Saturday live frog, which he found croaking in a ditch near his residence. About a month ago Mr. Hallinan, the Head St. butcher, found some live frogs in St. butcher, found some live frogs in Chatham Township and at that time they were considered quite a curiosity. Mr. Dagneau, however, has gone him one better. The finding of a live frog in Chatham in Jannary is an incident well worthy of a place in history.

On Saturday also A. M. Ripley saw a robin flying around near the House of Refuge. This is also worthy of notice, as it is something which was probably never heard of in Chatham before.

The water in the river and creek has commenced to rise, and people are almost looking for a spring freshet in January.

POLICE COURT

Cases Which Came Before the Atten. tion of Judge Houston This

Cornelius Wright, a colored man who was charged with beating his wife and inflicting several wounds on her body with a chair, made his appearance at the Police Court this morning and was allowed to go after paying the costs in the case. Mr. and Mrs. Wright have again formed a peaceful and happy home circle, and no more rows have occurred.

Geo. Findlay, who came up on Saturday charged with stealing a number of loaves of bread from ex-Ald. E. A. Mounteer, was remanded until a week from to-day. He pleaded guilty and the police are now looking up his record. Findlay has been mixed up in several stealing scrapes but the police have heretofore been unable to fasten any charge on him. This time he was caught with the goods.

This is the same man who some unable to fasten any charge on him. This time he was caught with the goods.

This is the same man who some time ago stole some stuff from Andrew Thomson and then sold it back to him again. Findlay was the first man to be locked up in the new cells. Harry Ball, the market square auctioners, was arrested this afternoon for receiving stolen goods, knowing that the said goods were stolen. Mr. Ball purchased a $50 watch stolen from Mrs. Campbell, of Northwood, for $1, and then gave it to another man to trade off for him. It is the opinion of the police that any man should have known that the watch was worth more than one dollar, and any person who would sell it for one dollar surely must have wanted to get rid of it at any price. The fact that Mr. Ball gave it to another man to trade off shows that he suspected something wrong in the deal.

Mr. Ball was let out on bail and will come up later.

CLEVER GAME

Two Clever Fakirs Visited Chatham on Saturday and Sold a Few Rings

Two clever grafters struck Chat-am on Saturday and worked a fairly often too harsh and mothers too lenient. There is need in our day of a revivial along the line of parental full fuence. Some amusing but foraible illustrations of the lack of parental control were given from history and from the speaker's observations.

4. A fourth work of a true mother is wisdom in guiding the mental and spiritual development of her children. Benjamin West's mother, whose kiss made him a great painter, was cited as an instance of this wisdom.

5. The last point mentioned by the speaker was a mother's undying the parental for a drink, pretending to be slightly intoxicated. When the drink had been disposed of one of them stated that they had no money and set in to pitch a smart hard luck story in regular grafter style, ending up by saying he had on the side, however," a valuable gold wedding ring which belonged to his dead wite and that though he valued it for the memories it was the only thing that stood between him and starvation. starvation.

He showed a heavy wedding ring thing that stood between him and starvation.

He showed a heavy wedding ring having the apparance of a genuine 18k article, and stated that its original cost was $18, but as he wanted money in the worst way, he would sacrifice it for a paitry $5.

After a little haggling he let it go for two dollars and then left to work the dodge on some other gullible person.

He victimized a dozen or more hotel and store keepers with this trick and left them to discover that the chief constituent of their purchase was brass.

The affair got round in the afternoon and caused both chagrin and amusement, as, after all, it was a cheap lesson at the price.

The police were informed and made diligent search for the two men, but up to the time of going to press nothing had been heard of them. It is likely that the wily pair got out of the city before the scare went round and are now pursuing their dishonest but profitable occupation in some other town.

Policeman Tom Groves says if the people would only give information to the police before the offenders get out of town there might be some chance of catching them.

Large and Interested Congregation was Present -Special Music at Both Services

The sermons on Women of the Bible, which Rev. J. W. Hoyt, the pastor of William St. Baptist Church paster of william St. Baptist Church, is preaching on Sabbath evenings, are becoming very popular, judging by the large and interested congregations which gather night after night. At the service last night the edifice was filled with attentive listeners to hear the third sermon of the series. he series.

The subject, as announced, was A Patriotic Majden Lady, and the character selected was Miriam.

The preacher stated that it wasn't acter selected was Miriam.

The preacher stated that it wasn't always necessary for a woman to get get married in order to be useful. The records of the church, the state, benevolent societies, hospitals, sick rooms and nurseries will show that some of the best and grandest women were among those whom some have slurringly called "Old Maids." In the state we see on the records the name of Queen Elizabeth, who governed England, and who said to her troops at the approach of battle, "I have but the body of a weak, feeble woman, but I have the heart and soul of a king, and of a king off England, too; I'll be your general." And what nobler woman was there than Florence Nightingale, who took both her fortunes and life in her hand and expended them among the poor soldiers of the Crimean war. And, when we look over the rolls of the church, their names are legion. They constitute the "salt of the earth." Miriam, the patriotic maiden lady, was the sister of Moses and Aaron. Paul regarded it an honor to trace his relationship back to Moses, but what must it be to a sister of that great man, of whom the bard sang—

He was the truest soldier

That ever buckled sword,
And he the sweetest poet,
That ever breathed a word; And never earth's philosopher, Traced with his golden pen, On the deathless page, thoughts half on the deathless page, thoughts half so sage,

As he wrote down for men.
Miriam's native land had a good deal to do with her character and life. Her home was in Egypt, on the border of the Nile, near the city of Orr, the seat of sucient kings—that land of great cities, great men and great monuments. The first glimpse we have of her is as a quick-witted, thoughtful girl of twelve years, where she saved, by her fidelity and thoughtfulness the life of the greatest statesman and law-giver the world has ever known. At the age of 92 we see her again as a poettes and sweet singer. With timbrel in hand and voice raised in song she inspires and thrills the hearts of the

The Toronto News is much pleas ed with Hon. Mr. Hanna's courage and honesty as set forth in a speech made in Kingston the other day. The news says:

One of the best things said by Mr. Hanna at Kingston was that no matter who was elected, Queen's Universits would be fairly treated. We do not refer to the question of university policy, but to the repudiation of the putrid idea that governments have a right to use the public expenditures as a means of bribing on forcing constituencies to vote in their favor. These disgraceful appeals have been made by both partie in Dominion elections, and there are no worse cases than those of the general elections of 1904. They involve not only bribery on a huge scale, but a flagrant interference with the rights of the electors. The electors have a right to exercise their franchise freely, and they have also right to their fair share of the expenditures of public money, and the one right is entirely independent of the other. This is the Tirst of the Ontario bye-elections, under the Whitney Government, and we think it is the first case of such an open, manly declaration from a minister that he respected the free judgment of the electors."

VEXATIOUS LITIGATION.

The Hamilon Herald made an error in the use of a name in its news col umns lately and the person "libelled" sued and got a verdict of $200.

It was a costly slip, but a con tingency to which every newspaper is liable, made up as it is in a few hours under high pressure and unable to verify every item of news it prints.

The public who read the news have no conception of the stress and difficulty under which the daily grist is procured, and are, therefore, prone to complain when in the hurly-burly of the short newspaper day even minor mistake ereeps in. "Why don't r news?" is the stock question of the chronic kicker, who knows all about running a newspaper and is quite sure that he could avoid mishaps of this kind.

A most conscientious attempt is made in the great majority of newspaper offices to sift the true from the false, but when conscience and experience have done their best in this separation an error will find its way Into type. Nothing short of omniscience could avoid the difficulties that beset the complaining and publishing of a daily paper, and the public would be more tolerant if they had a practical knowledge of the

Referring to the case, the Ham'lton Times is constrained to say: "We think every newspaper in Canada, and every citizen who looks to the press to give its aid to the preservation of the peace and good order of so-ciety, would rejoice if the Hamilton Herald were to carry that libel suit to appeal and secure the setting aside of that verdict for damages."

William Shaw, of Kent Bridge, one of the oldest pioneers of the County of Kent, passed peacefully away his late residence, lot 2, River Ro Township of Camden, on Tuesday, January 9, 1906. Mr. Shaw was highly esteemed and respected by all who knew him. He was earnest and entusiastic and his cordial and impulsive personality won him many loyal friends. His indomitable pluck was evidenced during his long and was evidenced during his long and severe illness which he bore with courage and fortitude, having suf-fered nearly five weeks from a sever-paralytic firoke. He was married May 1, 1853, to Ann Maria, eldest daughter of the late Charles Basdaughter of the late Charles Bas-sett, Camden Township, she having predeceased him but 15 days. tha M. Clay's famous novel the following synopsis will prove interesting, especially as "Dora Thorne" will appear in a dramatized form at the Grand on Thursday, Jan. 25th:

This play and book deals with a beautiful love store in a rural English home. An innocent young girldaughter of a lodge keeper of an Englishman of high birth, is loved by the sen of the latter. The match by the son of the latter. The match meets with the disfavor of the young man's father, but despite the fact that his father informs him either to give up the girl or his home and lux-ury, he choses Dora Thorne and mar-ries her. The young girl, a pure and honest creature, loves the young man quite as well as he loves her, but through the efforts of a young sailor, who has loved the girl from early childhood and who also desires to make her his wife, the young people are separated and made to believe later that each has been unfaithful to the other. This state comes about as a result of the efforts of Lady Chartaris and the father of the Earl.

The young sailor returns after a two years' voyage, to find that Dora's favor has been transferred from him to the young nobleman and several complications arise from this, which for a time take a serious aspect, both for Dora and her lover. The time arrives when honesty and faithfollows triumphs and the closing cenes find everything favorable for the young folks.

The company appearing in "Dora Thorne" is said to be of exceptional merit and the scenery and costumes are said to be beautiful; the scenic and electrical effects in the last act—the illuminated gardens at Earl Manor—are said to be especially commendable.

A Heavy Load to Carry.

Along with dyspepsia comes nervousness and general ill-health. Why? Because a disordered stomach does not permit the food to be properly digested, and its products assimilated by the system. The blood is charged with poisons which come from this disordered digestion, and in turn the nerves are not fed on good, red blood, and we see symptoms of nervousness, sleeplessness and general breakdown. Fortify the body at once with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—a rare combination of nazive medicinal roots without a particle of alcohol or dangerous habit-forming drugs.

A little book of extracts, from prominent medical andorities extolling every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will be mailed free to any address on request by postal card or letter. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. V.

Many years of active practice convinced Dr. Pierce of the value of many native roots as medicinal agents and he went to great expense, both in time and in money, to perfect his own peculialing agents.

The enormous popularity of "Golden Medical Discovery" is due both to its scientific compounding and to the actual medicinal value of its ingredients. The publication of the names of the impredients on the wrapper of every bottle sold, gives full assurance of its non-alcoholic character and removes all objection to the use of an unknown or secret remedy. It is not a patent medicine nor a secret one either, This fact pust is in a class all by itself, hearing as it does upon every bottle wrapper The Badge of Honesty, in the full list of its ingredients.

Ex-Teller Banwell's Remark Upon Being Arrested In Jamaica-Particulars of the Arrest, ing Arrested in Jamaica—Particulars of the Arrest.

Toronto, Jan. 20.—It will be five weeks before ex-Bank Teller E. S. Banwell arrives in Toronto. His little winter trip to southern climes will cost the Crown Bank in the neighborhood of $5,000.

A letter from Detective Black from Kingston, Jamaica, dated the 13th, was received yesterday at police head-quarters. It gives some particulars of the arrest.

On Jan. 11, Black, O'Grady and the "Pink" stepped off the steamer at Kingston. They were met at the wharf by a local officer. The quartette took a hack, and had only ridden three blocks when O'Grady excitedly said "there they are."

Not wishing to make an arrest until the money was located, Black and O'Grady remained in the hack. Banwell would recognize O'Grady and possibly Black, too. The Pinkerton man and the local officer left the carriage and followed the couple. They boarded a street car, the officers right with them. They rode seven miles to a swell family resort, the Hotel Constance. As soon as they went to their room the officers followed and made the arrests. In the little valise was $34,000, and $5,000 worth of diamonds. In another valise was $900 more.

They took their arrest very quietly. Banwell remarked, "Well, you've got me with the goods on me, and I may as well go back." They both expressed willingness to return at once without giving any trouble. Banwell is in jail, but his companion is living in a hôtel. Black and his party arrived just in time. The fugitives had all arrangements made to leave for Central Americs the following morning.

Queer Beliefs of People of Ancient

The inhabitants of ancient Egypt are believed to have been the first people to attempt to domesticate the wild specles of felinae now represented by the common house cat. This belief is based upon the fact that sculptured repre-sentations of such animals are found upon their monuments of the year 2000 B. C., more than 1,200 years be alpon their monuments of the year 2000 B. C., more than 1,200 years before they appear on European monuments. An Egyptian tomb of the year 1300 B. C. is the first to show a sculptured representation of the cat as a domesticated animal, those of the greater age first mentioned probably representing the creature in its wild state. In the relief sketch of the date last mentioned, 1300 B. C., it is unmistakably a pet, being shown as seated beneath a chair. The Egyptians of that age mummified dead cats just as they did human beings and in many instances entombed hundreds of thousands of them in a single pyramid or pit. Bubastis was the Egyptian cat goddess and was always represented as having a cat's head. Among that queer people puss was regarded as an emblem of the sup its supportant to the support of the supportant cat the support of the supportant cat support of the supportant cat support of the support of th as having a cat's head. Among that queer people puss was regarded as an emblem of the sun, its eyes being supposed to vary in color and in the size of their pupils with the progress of that luminary across the heavens.

Herodotus tells us that when an Egyptian cat died a natural death its owner went into mourning and shaved off his eyebrows.

A Pretty Pink and White Affair In French Cretonne.

French cretonne, showing large pink roses on a light ground, was chosen for the laundry bag here shown. One yard and a half of cretonne, turned in two inches and one-half at each side, is overcast together to within seven inches of the top. Each half is then gathes of the top. Each half is then gathered to an oval embroidery hoop. The hoop is covered with an ordinary cord and tassel, such as is used for cushions. Cut the cord in two and untwist it, winding each half cord around the upper half of the hoop. In the illustration given the cord was made of the upper half of the hoop. In the illustration given the cord was made of the colors, pink and green, and these we wound in alternation around the hoop. Fasten tassels at the corners.

fact and expressed the hope that the coming years of his ministry in the church would be successful.

Mr. MacGillivray during the past two years has won a warm spot in the hearts of his congregation. He has an exceptionally strong character and is an earnest, eloquent preacher. His work in the church has been most successful and gratifying. May he ever continue in the noble work in which he is at present engaged. Secretary J. W. Aitken of the Chatham Curling Club has received a telegram from the St. Thomas club saying that the bonspiel which was to have commenced in that place to night at seven o'clock, has been postponed until to-morrow night at the same hour. St. Thomas is evidently having the same spring weather which Chathamites are enjoying. If a cold wave does not come the bonspiel will have to be postponed again. *

Battleship With Remains of Hon. Mr. Prefontaine Arrives.

After the Singing of a Libra on Board the Vessel, the Remains Were Received at Halifax by a Guard of Honor-Great Assemblage of Civil and Military Dignitaries-Plans For the Funeral at Montreal.

Halifax, Jan. 22.—The battleship Dominion with the remains of Hon. Mr. Prefontaine will arrive in Halifax harbor to-day. A wireless message was received yesterday afternoon by Col. Gourdeau from the Marconi wireless station at Sable Island, 120 miles southwest of Halifax: "Battleship Dominion abeam Sable Island at 3 this afterneon. Be at Halifax sharp 9; very dense fog."

The start will be made from Halifax at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon to arrive at Montreal at 7.30 Tuesday evening. The body will lie in state in the Montreal City Hall from 7.30 o'clock Tuesday evening to 7 o'clock Wednesday eyening. From that hour till 9 o'clock Thursday morning the doors of the City Hall will be closed, and none but the immediate family of the dead Minister will be admitted.

A Libra on the Dominion.

The Dominion will enter the harbor at 9 o'clock, and ft will be 11.30 before she will be moored at the Imperial dockyards. The only religious services here will be the singing of a libra on board the battleship immediately before the body is landed. In this service, which will consume about ten minutes, Archbishop O'Brien will officiate.

The remains will be received by a guard of honor, and by an assemblage of military and civic dignitaries, including Gen. Sir Charles Parson, Governor Jones, Mayor MacIlreith, and the Federal Ministers, constituting the Tariff Commission, who are in Halifax. The body will leave the dockyards by the north gate, which is nearest to the Intercolonial station, and the gun carriage bearing the remains will be drawn by Jack Tars from the cruiser Canada, through streets lined by troops. From the mooring of the battleship at the dockyards till the funeral train starts not more than an hour and a half will elapse if the schedule is adhered to. The committee here has planned the order of procession at Montreal from the City Hall to St. James Cathedral in Montreal, and thence to the cemetery. There will be many magnificent were the control of the bler in Halifax.

the City Hall to St. James' Cathedral in Montreal, and thence to the cemetery. There will be many magnificent wreaths on the bler in Hallfax.

An Armed Guard.

A guard of armed men from the cruiser Canada will go with the remains from Hallfax to Montreal. Two men will constantly stand sentry in the mortuary car, relieving each other every hour.

The funeral train will consist of ten The funeral train will consist of ten cars, an ordinary train generally comprising seven. It will be drawn by two locomotives. The interior of the mortuary car has been elaborately decorated in black and purple mourning. The coffin will stand in the interior on a raised platform. No exterior mourning is shown on the train for fear of fire, but no trouble or expense has been spared in the interior. The Intercolonial trains make regular runs from Hallfax to Montreal in 27 hours, but this train is scheduled for 30 in order to make it sure that Montreal will be reached at 7 in the evening.

Crete's Olive Crop a Failure.

Crete's Olive Crep a Failure.

London, Jan. 22.—In a report on Cretee for 1905, issued by the authorities of Caneas, Crete, it is stated that the total trade of the island amounted to $4,881,185, showing a decrease of $253.-170 from that of the previous year. Of the above sum, $2,096,610 represents the value of the imports, indicating a decrease of $97,625. This decrease in the amount of the exports is entirely decrease of $97.625. This decrease in the amount of the exports is entirely due to the failure of the olive crop, the value of the olives and olive oil exported being $316,920 less than in 1904.

AXLE BROKE

Smash up on C. P. R. Early This Morn ing—Auxiliary Arrives From London and Track Now Clear

Quite a serious smashup occurred on the C. P. R. about half a mile east of here early this morning. An east-bound freight was pulling out when the axle on one of the ears broke and caused considerable damage. Two cars were thrown off the track and badly smashed. Forunately the train was not moving very fast at the time or more serious damage might have resulted.

The auxiliary from London arrived on the scene in good time. No. 3 express which passes through here at 12,55 and No. 4 which comes from the west at two o'clock, went as far as the wreck and exchanged passengers and baggage.

Roadmaster Code arrived with the auxiliary and directed the work of placing the cars on the track again. Four firemen, J. Brennan, D. Darling, Geo. McRobb and S. Anquitel were telephoned for and assisted in transferring the baggage from No. 3 to No. 4.

The track was clear this afternoon

3 to No. 4. The track was clear this afternoon and all of the trains are running chatham has One Incog—A. H. White Made His Ballon Ascension in Ottawa 30 Years Ago

The stray balloon which fell in Chatham Township a couple of weeks ago has never been claimed by anyme, although the fact that it came down has been advertised far and near. It is still in a farmer's barn on the 14th concession waiting for the owner to come along.

A. H. White, the popular insurance agent, who was out through this township last week, in speaking of the incident, said:

"It seems a funny thing that this halloon has never been claimed. It may, however, have been carried for many miles from the place where it first weat up.

many miles from the place where it first went up.

"I never witness a balloon ascension, or even see a balloon without experiencing feelings of nervousness," continued Mr. White. "Just about 20 years ago I was in Ottawa at the time of a big fair when Charlotta, a famous aeronaunt, was to make a balloon ascension. The balloon was one of these basket affairs and she was about to step in the basket to make a trial trip when she turned to the crowd standing around and said she would like some one to go up with her. "It was the most hair-rising experience I ever had. We went up 1,000 feet in the air and it seemed as If the earth were just dropping away from us and we were remaining still all the time.

"I never felt more relieved in my life than when I stepped on the ground again, but I never fully got over my fright. It almost makes me life than when I stepped on the ground again, but I never fully got over my fright. It almost makes me nervous now when I talk of it.

"I met Charlotta in New York I number of years afterward, just as she was ready to step into her basket for an ascension. She recognized me in the crowd and came over and shook hands with me. She invited me to go up with her again, but as far as I was concerned I couldn't get away from that balloon fast enough."

First, as a living sacrifice let us present our bodies to God, our bodies, which though dead to anything Godly or Divine—"for in us, that is, in our flesh, dwelleth no good thing yet our bodies, when presented to God, He makes them holy and acceptable to Himself, through Jesus Christ our Lord, by the Holy Spirit.

This infect submission or sacrifice is a reasonable service, and required of us by God; that He may use us intelligently, continually, and successfully in promoting His glory and the welfare of our fellowmen. # bodies such as He delights to own and bless. Now, to promote blessed and des rable revival what can be done? Here it is: Let every follower of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ at once fall in line with God, and act as the Spirit of God and the Word of God in him directs, as to his personal duty, and we will find God giving us the opportunity and ability of becoming His witnesses, daily, hourly, and often unconsciously for His son. We are making a sad mistake in looking and leaning on men, even the best of men, and not looking and leaning on God Almighty, and His universal love to us and to all men through Jesus the Christ. Let us bend and bow in prompt obedience to Him and His holy will as He shows it to us, and we will have such a revival sweep through our town and country that there will not be room enough to receive it. Such is His will. Fraternally.

BENEFIT CONCERT The Lenefit concert to-morrow evening at the Grand should be handsomely patron zed. Not only is the program prepared a splendid one, but the object is most worthy, viz., a benefit to the unfortunate Mrs. Burrell. The Non-Coms. are to be congratulated on their enterprise and goodness and a bumper house should greet the presentation.

THAT NEW HOTEL

The Royal Templars of Temperance held a very successful meeting in the L. O. O. F. Auditorium on Sunday afternoon. The attendance was the largest for this season and was extremely gratifying to those in charge of the local provement.

A spirited address was given by Rey. Mr. Majott. The A. O. F. orchetra accompanied the singing and provided several entertaining items, the chief one being a splendid cornet and trombone duett by Messrs. Sauerman and Thorndyke.

During the meeting it was pointed out that efforts were being made to secure two more licenses here and that steps should be taken to prevent this undesirable event from taking place.

My first call was at the group of rocks from which I had gathered the shellfish of which my companion had so strongly disapproved. I wanted to so strongly disapproved. I wanted to see if I could discover a place where it would be possible for me to construct some sort of a trap for fish. But though I searched diligently, nothing suitable could I find. At last I had to give it up in despair, and set my brain to work on another plan for stocking my larder. That fish were plentiful I could see by looking over the edges of the rocks, but how I was to capture them was by no means so plain. I think at that moment I would have given a year of my life for the worst hook and line I had used as a boy among the sticklebacks of Polton Penna.

Leaving the rocks behind me, I turn-

Penna.

Leaving the rocks behind me, I turned the point and made for the brow of a low hill that overlooked the sea on the further side. I had noticed that the sea birds gathered here in greater numbers than elsewhere, and when I reached thee lift, to my surprise and delight, I found the ground literally covered with nests. Indeed, it was a matter of some difficulty to move without treading upon the eggs. My delight out treading upon the eggs. My delight can scarcely be overestimated, for here was a new food supply, and one that, while it would be unlikely to give out for some weeks to come, would be infinitely preferable to the wretched limpets upon which we had almost impets upon which we had almost made up our minds we should have to subsist. I hastened to fill my handkerchief and pockets with the spoil, and when I could stuff in no more, continued my walk in a much easier, and consequently more thankful, frame of

As I tramped along, glancing ever and anon at the sea, the sordid de-tails of my past life rose before me. When I considered it, I felt almost staggered by the change that had come over me. It seemed scarcely possible that so short a time could have passed since I had plotted against Batrand and had been so miserable in London. In my present state of use-fulness, I felt as if centuries had elapsed since then, instead of barely a couple of weeks, as was really the case. I wondered what would be said in England when the news got into in England when the news got into the papers, as I supposed it inevitably must, that I had found a watery grave in the 'ill-fated Fiji Princess. Would there be anyone to regret me? I very much doubted it. One hope occurred to me. Perhaps, under cover of the supposition that I was dead, I might manage to outwit the law after all and then an opportunity would be afforded me of beginning a new life in a strange land—the land that was the home of Agnes Maybourne.

From a consideration of this important chance I fell to thinking of the

From a consideration of this important chance I fell to thinking of the girl herseif. Could it have been for the reason that I was ultimately to save her life that Fate had raised her face before my eyes to warn me that miserable night in London? It looked very much like it. If, however, that was the beginning, what was the sequel to be? for surely it could not be intended that Fate, having brought me so far, should suddenly abandon me at the end. "Oh! if I were only cleanhanded like my fellow-men," I cried, in miserable self-abasement, "how happy might I not be!" For I must mention here that in my own mind I had quite come to the conclusion that Agnes Maybourne entertained a liking for me. And, God knows, I on my side had discovered that I loved here. for me. And, God knows, I on my side had discovered that I loved her better than my own soul. What was to be the end of it all? That the future alone could decide.

The other side of the island—that is to say, the side exactly opposite that upon which we had landed—was almost precipitous, and at the foot of the cliffs, extending for some distance out into the sea, were a number of small islets, upon which the seas broke with newsregasting violence. Is exceeded. small islets, upon which the seas broke with never-ceasing violence. I searched that offing, as I had done the other, for a sail, but was no better rewarded. As soon as I had made certain that there was nothing in sight, I turned upon my tracks and hastened back to the plateau as fast as I could go. For some reason or another, I experienced a great dread lest by any chance something ill might have befallen my charges. But when I reached the beach below the plateau and looked up, to see the fire still burning brightly and Miss Maybourne moving about between it and the cave, I was reassured.

The tide by this time had gone out, and the lifeboat lay high and dry upon the beach. Before rejoining my companions I made my way towards her.

To roll her over into her proper position was only a matter of small difficulty now that the water was out of her, and once this was accomplished I was able to satisfy myself as to her her, and once this was accomplished I was able to satisfy myself as to her condition. As far as I could gather, there was nothing amiss with her, even her oars lay fastened to the thwarts as usual. How she could have got into the water was a mystery I could not solve for the life of me. I examined her most carefully, and having done so, found mone pieces of wood to act as rollers, and dragged her up the beach till I had got her well above high water mark. After that I picked up my parcel of eggs and climbed the hill to the plateau, It was now well on into the afternoon, and I had still much to do before nightfall.

When I showed Miss Maybourne the nightfall.

When I showed Miss Maybourne the eggs I had found, she expressed her great satisfaction, and we immediately cooked a couple to be ready against the little sufferer's waking.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in carrying drift wood from the beach to the plateau; for I had determined to keep a good flare burning all night, in case any ships might happen to pass, and think it worth their while o stand off and on till daylight should show them the reason of it. When I had stacked it ready to my hand here was yet another supply of grass to be cut, with which to improve the bed places in the cave. Then my own couch had to be prepared somewhere within call. After which there was the evening meal to cook. By the time this was done, darkness had fallen, and our first night on the island had com-enced. When I bade Miss Maybourne "good When I bade Miss Maybourne "good night" she was kind enough to express her thanks a second time `r', the trouble I had taken. As if the better to give point to her gratitude, she held out her hand to me. I took it and raised it to my lips. She did not attempt to stop me, and then, with another "good night," she passed into the cave, and I was left alone.

For hours I sat watching my blaze and listening to the rumbling of the surf upon the shore. The night was as still as a night could well be. Not even a breath of wind was stirring. When I laid myself down in my corner between the rocks near the cave's mouth, and fell asleep, it was to dream of Agnes Maybourne and the happiness that might have been mine but for the one dread thing which had made it quite impossible.

CHAPTER VIII.

Long before daylight I was awake, thinking of our unenviable position, and wishing for the ladies' sake that and wishing for the ladies' sake that I could do something to improve it. But, as far as I could see, I had done everything that was possible by mortal man. Somehow, though I valued their eggs above gold, I had no fancy for the sea-birds themselves. What I wanted most was a contrivance with which to capture some of the fish in the bay. A line I could easily make by unravelling the painter of the life-hoat; the hook, however, beat me. boat; the hook, however, beat me. A hair-pin would have done admirably; but, unfortunately, Miss Maybourne's hair covered her shoulders just as she had run up from her cabin on hearing the first alarm. An ordinary pin would have been inveluble; but approach have been invaluable; but among the three of us we could not muster

Just as daylight broke, however, I solved my difficulty in the simplest fashion possible, and could have kicked myself round the island, if it had been possible, for my stupidity in not having thought of it sooner. In my tie I wore a long gold pin, with an es-cutcheon top, which had been given me in Australia years before The remembrance of it no sooner came into my mind than I had whipped it out having replenished the fire, which still showed a red glow, hastened down the hill side to where the boat lay upon the sands. From the painter I extracted sufficient strands to make a line some thirty feet long, and to this I attached my hook. I very much doubt if a fish were ever honored before with so grand a hook.

Just as the sun's first rays were shooting up beyond the placid sea line, and the sea and heavens were fast changing from a pure pearl grey to every known color of the rainbow, I pushed the boat into the water, and rowed out for half a mile or so. Then, having baited my hook with mussel, I threw it overboard, and seating myself, line in hand, in the stern, awaited results. I looked at the island, showing so clear and rugged in the bright ing so clear and rugged in the bright morning light, and thought of Miss Maybourne and the sick child. If the truth must be confessed, I believe I was happier then, even in such straits and upon so inhospitable a shore, than I had ever been before When I I had ever been before. When I thought of Bartrand, as I had last seen thought of Bartrand, as I had last seen him, lying stretched out in the snow in that quiet street, and remembered my struggle with Nikola in Golden Square, my walk through sleeping Lon-don to Surbiton, and my journey to Southampton, it all seemed like some southampton, it all seemed like some horrible dream, the effects of which I was at last beginning to rid myself. It was hard to believe that I had really gone through it all; that I, the man now fishing so quietly in this boat, in whom Miss Maybourne believed so much was in reality. Cilipery Person whom Miss Maybourne believed so much, was in reality Gilbert Pennethorne, the perpetrator of one of the mysterious murders which had entirely baffled the ingenuity of the London police. I could not help wondering what she would say if anyone should tell her the true history of the man in whom she placed such implicit confidence. Would she credit it or not?

While I was thinking of this I fall

While I was thinking of this, I felt a sharp tug upon my line, and when I drew it in, I found, to my delight, a nice fish impaled upon theh ook. Having released him and placed him securely at the bottom of the boat, I did not lose a moment in throwing the line overboard again. Wihin a quarter of an hour I had landed five splendid fellows, and was as pleased with my success as if I had just been created Lord Chancellor of England. To-day, at any rate, I told myself, Miss May bourne and the little girl should hav nice breakfast

Arriving at the beach I sprang out, and, using the same means as before frew my boat up out of reach of the drew my boat up out of reach of the tide. Then, taking my prizes with me, I made my way up the hill-side to the plateau. Just as I reached it, Miss Maybourne made her appearance from the cave and came towards me.

"Look!" I cried, holding up the fish as I spoke, "Are these not beauties?"

"They are indeed splendid," she answered. "But how did you manage to obtain them? I thought you said last night that you could think of no way of making a hook?"

"So I did. But since then I have re-

"So I did. But since then I have re

"So I did. But since then I have remembered the gold pin I wore in my tic. I found that it made a most excellent hook, and with its assistance I managed to get hold of these gentlemen. But, in my triumph, I am forgetting to enquire how you and your little friend are this morning. You were fairly comfortable in the cave, I hope?"

"Quite comfortable, thank you," she answered, gravely. "But poor little Esther is no better this morning. In fact, if anything, I fancy she is worse. She was delirious for some time in the night, and now she is in a comatose condition that frightens me more than her former restlessness, It goes to my heart to see her in this state."

"Is there nothing we can do for her, I wonder?" I said as I prepared my fish for the fire.

"I fear we are powerless," replied Miss Maybourne. "The only thing I can imagine to be the matter with her is that she must have been struck by something when we were sucked by can imagine to be the matter with her is that she must have been struck by something when we were sucked under by the sinking ship. She complains continually of pains in her head."

"In that case, I fear there is nothing

"In that case, I fear there is nothing for it but to wait patiently for some ship, with a doctor on board, to come in sight and take us off."

"In the meantime, she may die. Oh, poor little Esther! Mr. Wrexford, this helplessness is too terrible."

What could I say to comfort her? In my own mind I saw no hope. Unless a vessel hove in sight, and she chanced to carry a doctor, the doctor must inevitably die. As soon as the breakfast was cooked, I went into the cave and looked at her. I found the little thing stretched upon the grass I had thrown down for a bed. She was unconscious, as Miss Maybourne had said, and was breathing heavily. Her pulse was almost unnoticeable, and occessed the stretched upon the grass I had thrown down for a beathing heavily. Her pulse was almost unnoticeable, and occessed the stretched upon the grass I had thrown down for a beathing heavily. It was a sight that would have touched the most callous of men, and in spite of that one sinister episode in my career, I was far from being such a Nero.

my career, I was far from being such a Nero.

At midday there was no change perceptible in her condition. By the middle of the afternoon she was worse, Miss Maybourne and myself took it in turns to watch by her side; in the intervals, we climbed the hill and scanned the offing for a sail. Our vigilance, however, was never rewarded—the sea was as devoid of ships as our future seemed of hope.

After a day which had seemed an eternity, the second night of our captivity on the island came round. A more exquisite evening could scarcely be imagined. I had been watching by the sick child's side the greater part of the afternoon, and feeling that, if I remained on shore, Miss Maybourne would discover how low-spirited I was, I took the boat and rowed out into the bay, to try and obtain some fish for our supper. This, was not a matter of much difficulty, and in less than a quarter of an hour I had hauled on board more than we could possibly have eaten in three meals When I had finished, I sat in my boat watching the sunset effects upon the island. It was indeed a scene to remember, and the picture of it, as I saw it then, rises before me now as clearly as if it were but yesterday.

Brockville, Jan. 20.—Dr. Horton, coroner, was called to the village of Algonquin to investigate the circumstances of the death of Mrs. Bain, a widow of fifty years, who died from poisoning by paris green. The woman apprised a neighbor of her action Thursday afternoon, and when her son, with whom she lived, was called in, she protested against the attendance of a physician. To the doctor she acknowledged having taken paris green She died three hours later. A family of four sons survive.

Results of the First Three Weeks of the Torrey-Alexander Mission In Toronto - Belief In Jesus.

Toronto, Jan. 20 .- With the Torrey-Toronto, Jan. 20.—With the Torrey-Alexander meeting held last night there was marked practically the ending of the third week's campaign in Toronto. It is announced that thus far 2,800 cards*of professing converts have been received by Dr. Torrey. This includes 755 children, who came forward at yesterday afternoon's special meeting and the other youthful converts of the previous meeting, making about 1,500 in all or more than half the total number. It includes also the number drawn to the front last night, about forty.

Speaking generally on the theme of faith in Jesus, Dr. Torrey said: "If anyone believed in Jesus he would believe in every one of His words. It might seem difficult or impossible, but might seem difficult or impossible, but true faith would inspire belief against the world. There were lots of people who were willing to accept the contentions of German scholars as against the words of Jesus.

"I am here to affirm that such men do not believe in the Lord Jesus," asserted Dr. Torrey.

The vital question of the day was whether to believe Jesus or the concensus of the opinion of German schol-

He went on to define, as an essential duty of the Christian that he should say to the Master: "Use me as Thou wilt." He asked his hearers who more them carried out this search among them carried out this concep-

Algeciras, Jan. 20 .- Yesterday being the Mohammedan Sunday, there was no session of the international conference, through deference for the Moroccan delegates. A Moorish villa served temporarily as a mosque, where the Moors redoubled their religious fervor, in praying for the preservation of their country.

In the meantime, the exchanges of the views between the delegates of the powers have brought an agreement not to consider questions outside of the pre-arranged Franco-German program. HOW MANY MEALS?

Shall It Be Two or Three During the

It seems considerable of an effortand possibly misdirected effort—to prepare three full meals for a family during the short days of winter. Still if the hours of activity be not lessened, why cut down the number of meals? Then, too, at this season of all others, the time of meals, especially of the dinner, is a hard matter to adjust to the satisfaction of all the members of a family. Of dinner at night many things may be said in favor, but the bedtime hour needs be late to insure that digestion be well under way fore sleep practically puts an end to the Saturday night's returns included two Conservative gains, both scored in Scotland. In the St. Andrew's Burghs a Liberal majority of 26 has changed to a Conservative majority of 36, and in the Ayr Burghs, where the voting took place on Friday, though the returns were not issued till Saturday night, the Liberal majority of 104 in the bye-election of 1904, was changed to a Conservative majority of 264. # WEEK'S LIBERAL GAINS abor's Growing Strength a Marvel and Will Have to Be Reckened With-Mr. Chamberlain Likely to Lead the Opposition-No Seat Yet For Mr. Balfour-Home Rule For Ireland Predicted In Two Years.

London, Jan. 22.-Within the last week the political complexion of the United Kingdom has been completely changed by the tide of Liberalism that United Kingdom has been completely changed by the tide of Liberalism that flowed, and even now is higher than the most sanguine Radical dared to hope for or predict. The new Parliament will be overwhelmingly Liberal.

Up to this time the total number of members elected is 480, of whom 247 are Liberals, 114 Unionists, 40 Laborites, 78 Nationalists and 1 Socialist. This leaves 190 seats still vacant.

Liberals thus far have gained no fewer than 177 seats, counting Labor gains as Liberal or Government gains; and if the same proportion be kept up for the remaining 190 seats the Liberals will have 407 votes in the next Parliament, to which may be added those of 42 Laborites, 1 Socialist and 83 Nationalists, which would give the Prime Minister, Sir Henry Campbell- Bannerman, 533 votes against 137 for the Conservatives.

While this calculation concerning on and Armed Revolt.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 22.—M. Alexis Alexievich Souverin, editor of The Russ, has been sentenced to a year's imprisonment in a fortress for publishing in December last the manifesto of the workman's council announcing that the Government had declared civil war on the proletariat and saying that the challenge must be accepted. Efforts are being made to secure a mitigation of the sentence. The cases of seven other editors of newspapers, including Prof. Mitukoff of The Svo Bodanarog and M. Hessen of The Pravo are still pending.

The technical accusation against M. Souverian was incitation of the people to high treason by publishing proclamations and statements designed to instigate riot, sedition and armed revolt and tending to cause the bankruptcy of the state. The charge was based not only on the publication of the manifesto, but on a series of seditious proclamations by the Postal Telegraph Union applying to the *revolutionary power adjectives traditionally sacred to the Emperor, and also on the appendiof the League of Leagues, in which it was stated that the political liberty of the people was obtainable only through an armed uprising for a great battle against the autocracy.

M. Souverin pleaded in his defence that the communications and the proclamations published in his paper in his opinion gave facts of political life of such importance te all circles of society that it was impossible and contrary to the interests of the Government to pass over them in silence.

Qualified to Vote.

The period allowed for the registration of voters has ended and the number of primary voters registered is 36,000.

No "Red Sunday" Trouble. Minister, Sir Henry Campbell- Bannerman, 533 votes against 137 for the Conservatives.

While this calculation concerning the results in the 190 vacant seats is entirely speculative, it is not in any respect impossible of realization, nor could if be more extraordinary or startling than any of the results declared during the last few days.

Ireland remains practically unchanged. The Nationalists have plucked one seat from the solid northeast corner. The Liberals have broken into the Tory strongfield of Scotland, with prospects for other remarkable successes, while, as already noted, the great fortresses of Unionism during the last ten yearfs have been razed before a storm of undreamed of Liberal sentiment or of opposition to the Unionist policy.

Chamberlain Opposition Leader.

With the exception of Birmingham which is completely controlled by Mr. Chamberlain, all the great centres have shown a determination to change from the old order. Mr. Balfour will probably remain an outsider until he receives a chance in a bye-election, though possibly some safe Unionist seat may be relinquished in his favor before the end of next week. It is understood that several efforts in this direction have been made, but without success. Such reports as these, it is believed, are materially weakening the prestige of the accredited leader of the Unionist party.

In the absence of Mr. Balfour, Mr. Chamberlain probably will take the lead in the next Parliament; at any rate, he

In the absence of Mr. Balfour, Mr. Chamberlain probably will take the lead in the next Parliament; at any rate, he is now acknowledged to be the strong man and will have the greatest support of any man on the opposition port of any man on benches.

Most remarkable in the features of Most remarkable in the features of The last benches.

Most remarkable in the features of the elections thus far is the number of Labor members elected. The last Parliament could claim but seven Laborite members, while up to the present no less than forty of them have obtained seats, and with the promise of further gains it is not at all improbable that Labor will have a representation of fifty members in the new Parliament. This undoubtedly would have a tremendous effect on future legislation in England, as the Laborites are almost certain to get the support of the home rulers in any reasonable measure introduced by them.

One of the most prominent politicians in England said:

Home Rule In Two Years.
"It is useless to minimize the present revolution, and we might as well begin to take a new view of the situation.
In my opinion a Parliament sitting in Dublin may be looked for within the next two years. Assuredly Mr. John Redmond, leader of the Nationalist party, and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman have reached a working agreement, and it is inconceivable that Mr.
Redmond would be content with anything less than an Irish Parliament.
"I have no idea that such a Parliament would mean separation, and have good reasons to bekeve that a plan is now under consideration by which the religious question can be eliminated from the deliberations of such a Parliament, which would act under the Imperial Parliament."

Before the end of next week the electioms will be over, the last contest being set for Jan. 26. But so far as the Liberal Government is concerned its life can now be measured not, as was predicted prior to the elections, by months or a few years, but by the limitations of the Septennial Act.

London, Jan. 22.—That it is the intention of the Government to give the Transvaal responsible Government like that of Canada was announced by Mr. Asquith in his speech on Saturday night. The report has been current that it was to be done in the coming session, and the Minister's words give credence to the report. Mr. Asquith said he was speaking for all his colleagues as well as himself in expressing their earnest desire and intention that the Transvaal and Orange River colonies should at the earliest possible moment be given the management of their own internal affairs.

gaged in garrisoning the ports of the republic and in furnishing the troops with supplies.

According to the advices received here the general public in Venezuela received the news of the rupture of diplomatic relations between Venezuela and France with the utmost indifference, but diplomatic circles at Caracas are indignant at the action of the Venezuelan Government in not allowing M. Taigny, the retiring French charge d'falles, to return to the shore after he had gone on board the French line steamer Martinjique at La Guaira Jan. 14, in order to obtain his correspondence.

Washington Gives Consent.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—Convinced of the sincerity of the assurances received from France regarding her loyalty to the Monroe doctrine and all that it involves, the Washington Government has given the Paris Government a free hand in the execution of its program for the solution of the Venezuelan problem.

Awaiting Taigny's Report.

Paris, Jan. 22.—It appears to be certain that the French Government has resolved to take no action with regard to Venezuela until the full report of M. Taigny, the late charge d'affaires at Caracas, reaches the Foreign Office.

This report is expected to come by way of Washington, where M. Taigny will turn it over to M. Jusserand, the

There cannot be different degrees of purity any more than there can be different degrees of honesty.

If a man be honest, that is all he acan be. There is no superlative.

One flour cannot be purer than another. It can only be more nearly pure.

In these times when all flour manufacturers are claiming purity you should remember these two things:

Actual purity in flour can only be secured by the use of electricity.

Royal Household Flour

is the only flour, made and sold in Canada, that is purified by electricity. You can get Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour from your grocer. Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Limited,

Montreal, Jan. 22.—R. L. Borden, M. P., took part Saturday evening in the opening of the new junior Conservative club rooms, and he was accompanied by Mr. Monk, M. P.; Bergeron of Beauharnois, and others Mr. Borden held out hope for the return of the Conservatives to power, although he declared that it could not be done unless they looked after the lists. Those of next fall would, he believed, be the lists of next general election. He contended that a party that did not hold its own at the bye-elections was doomed to defeat. Prince Albert, Sask., Jan. 22.—The result of the election trials of Deputy Antigonish. Prince Albert, Sask., Jan. 22.—Ineresult of the election trials of Deputy Returning Officers Nelson and Sutherland Saturday for not holding an election in their polls in the northern part of Prince Albert district, brought to light one of the boldest and most barefaced efforts to steal a constituency ever attempted in Canada.

The two officers admitted on the stand that they held no election, and yet sent in a vote of 150 cast entirely for Tyerman, Liberal candidate. They were fined $200 and costs.

The election of P. Donaldson, Provinvial Rights candidate, is now certain, as Tyerman had a lead of less than 50.
