

HARMONIOUS PRIMARY

Held at Grand Forks Last Night

Five Representative Men Chosen as Delegates to District Convention.

A primary meeting was held last night at Grand Forks for the purpose of electing five delegates to attend the district convention to be held at Dawson the 23rd instant for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for election to the Dominion parliament.

Dr. Alfred Thompson explained the presence of the Dawson contingent as being there merely in the capacity of visitors; that they expected to take no part in the meeting, but wished the voters of Grand Forks precinct to conduct the meeting according to their own ideas.

The following delegates were elect-

The meeting was quiet and orderly throughout. The five delegates chosen are representative British subjects whose efforts will be to see that none other than a good man is placed in nomination for election to a seat at Ottawa.

DAWSON KID PREPARING FOR THE CORONATION.

BIG FIRE AT FORT CUDAHY

N. A. T. & T. Co. Loses Warehouse and Goods to the Value of $40,000—Steamer Zealandian by Heroic Efforts Saved Two Other Warehouses.

Special to the Daily Nugget. Forty-mile, Y. T., August 5th.—A severe fire occurred at Fort Cudahy, just across the Forty-mile river from here, last night, entailing a loss of $40,000 to the N. A. T. & T. Co. The steamer Zealandian arrived here from Dawson on her regular trip at 5:30 p.m., and after landing her passengers proceeded to Fort Cudahy where the N. A. T. & T. Co.'s warehouses are located and unloaded a lot of freight for that company, and returned to Forty-mile and tied up for the night.

About 8:30 p.m. smoke was seen issuing from the roof of the main building at Fort Cudahy, formerly used as the company's general store. Manager Pennington and his assistants were soon on the scene and were followed by the steamer Zealandian and nearly the entire population of Forty-mile, but the fire had gained such headway that to save the building was impossible. But by heroic work 200 cases of oil were removed and a hundred barrels of beer. The steamer Zealandian got hose in action, and proved herself a friend in need, saving two large warehouses filled with many thousands of dollars worth of goods, which were only a few feet away from the burning building.

While the company's loss is heavy they are to be congratulated on saving the two large buildings mentioned.

The steamer Zealandian remained at the scene of the fire until this morning ready to render any assistance necessary, although the fire had pretty well burned itself out by 2 a.m.

The fire is supposed to have originated from a spark from the steamer Zealandian.

Coronation Matters

Plans for an elaborate celebration on coronation day are progressing rapidly. The various committees are hard at work and promise a splendid program. The committee having the matter of decorations in charge has established headquarters at the city engineer's office. They propose to secure several hundred trees to be placed along the principal streets and also to erect a grand stand from which to view the various events. Parties desiring to bid for the work which the committee has outlined are requested to call at the city engineer's office. The committee also wishes to communicate with owners of boats and canoes suitable for participating in the water carnival.

Boers Not Vanquished.

Cape Town, July 27.—In a recent speech at Paarl, Cape Colony, Gen. Botha said that all of South Africa was under one flag, but that the Boers had not been vanquished. Darkness was in front of them, but faith and hope would guide them through it. Africa was their fatherland, their birthright and their inheritance.

SMART IS COMING.

By private wire received from Ottawa this morning it is learned the deputy minister of the interior, Jas. A. Smart, left Ottawa for Dawson yesterday. He is expected to arrive in ten days.

Meeting Tonight

The executive committee for the coronation celebration will meet in Mayor Macaulay's office this evening and hear the reports of the various sub-committees and arrange the final details. The sports committee will recommend six adult athletic events to take place on the barrack's grounds and be interspersed with children's contests. All professionals will be strictly barred and there will be no cash prizes given, only presents and other trophies. The judges in the adult events are Wm. McKay, M. G. McLeod and J. K. Macrae. Starters, J. T. Lithgow and Dr. Strong. Clerks of the course, H. S. Tobin and D. Lachapelle. Timekeeper, Dr. Edwards. A committee has been appointed to endeavor to get up a lacrosse match to play for a cup valued at $75.

COPPER KING F. AUG. HIENZE

Now in Dawson on a Pleasure Trip

Is Yet a Young Man Tho' Many Times a Millionaire—Accompanied by Expert.

There are at present in the city two of the copper kings of Montana, Mr. F. Aug. Henze who is perhaps forty times a millionaire, and Mr. E. L. Whitmore one of the most expert mineralogists of that state. Their homes are in Butte and they are traveling in Alaska and the Yukon on a pleasure trip, but they are not so set on pleasure as to prevent their taking time to examine and ask questions regarding samples of ore or quartz presented for their inspection.

Mr. Henze is heavily interested in a financial way in the proposed Alaskan Central Railway which will in the near future construct a line from Valdez to Eagle. Mr. Henze is president of the United Copper Company which is capitalized at $80,000,000, one of the greatest of Montana's many wealthy syndicates. Mr. Henze is yet on the sunny side of forty and his fortune has come to him through his own efforts, he having started in Montana years ago as a mining engineer. At one time he was in the employ of W. A. Clark, another copper magnate whose fortune is reckoned high up in the millions.

Messrs. Henze and Whitmore arrived in Dawson last evening on the steamer Yukon and during their stay in the city are guests of the Regina. They express great surprise that samples of quartz shown them since their arrival is found in this vicinity and they have expressed a desire to visit some of the ledges. Tomorrow they will take a drive up Bonanza to inspect the placer mining.

Rock Island Passengers.

The following is the passenger list of the steamer Rock Island, which left at 11 o'clock this morning for lower river points: Mrs. H. B. Ellis, Samuel Matthews, Caspar Fisher, Mrs. L. Fisher, J. Killoren, Seattle; Chas. E. Lambert, Jack Kerwin, St. Michael; Chas. Flibotti, Seattle; A. J. Hawks, A. Barr, J. Aden, L. Femeyer, A. Thronos, Robert Hubbert, J. Stewart, J. D. Leonard, R. G. KLONDIKE NUGGET.

DEMANDS PUBLIC ATTENTION.

The strike now in progress among the telegraph operators calls for some action of a public nature. The attitude of the minister of public works towards the men in the telegraph service is most unjust and worthy of stringent condemnation. The men have rendered faithful and efficient service, as the patrons of the line are abundantly able to testify. They have never shirked their duties and have remained at their posts under the most trying and difficult circumstances. Nevertheless, they have been treated in a most contemptible manner by the department in whose employ they are engaged, and some method of expressing public disapprobation of that treatment should be found.

For nearly a year the men have been permitted to go without a dollar of salary, and to add insult to injury their pay has been decreased to a miserable pittance. The marvelous feature of the whole affair lies in the fact that they remained at their posts as long as they did. As we have before pointed out, the department of public works has followed a policy which no private concern could possibly emulate and still remain in business. A business firm who failed to pay their employes for a year would find their affairs in charge of the courts on very short notice. But in the case of government employes, the men may wait and wait and perhaps when the minister finishes his vacation some attention may be given to the case.

It is a shameful, disgraceful affair, no matter from what standpoint it may be viewed. It is impossible to conceive of any excuse or justification for the existence of such a condition. The matter demands public attention to the end that a fitting rebuke be administered to the responsible parties.

Indications point closely to the fact that deep interest will be manifested by all voters in the primary elections. This condition may be regarded as a most favorable sign. If the great mass of voters give individual attention to the choice of convention delegates, it may be taken for granted that undesirable candidates will be weeded out and only the best men chosen.

The morning joke has more to say about "malicious attacks" that have been made upon Gov. Ross. The only "attack" that answers the joke's description was the effort made by that sheet to storm the governor's sick chamber and secure his signature to a printing contract. A more cowardly advantage of a sick man's extremity was never attempted.

It is now only a question of a few short weeks until the first hints of approaching winter will be felt in the atmosphere. Meanwhile the Bonanza railroad is to all intents and purposes, just about as far away from completion as ever. It begins to look as though that promised Fourth of July excursion may be postponed indefinitely.

Last night the News remarked that its editorial of Saturday dealing with the alleged plot to burn Minister Sifton in effigy did not contain any expression of opinion. By the way, did anyone ever see an editorial in the News that was an expression of opinion?

The blasted hopes, which will be scattered about the Klondike vale when the convention of August 23 has completed its work will be sufficient to cause angels to weep.

The test of loyalty and patriotism will come when the ten or eleven defeated aspirants are asked to take the platform in behalf of the successful man.

The gold yield has fallen off to some extent, but the men who wish to go to parliament are as numerous as ever.

Mine Near Juneau.

Juneau, July 28.—Some ten years ago Harry Jarmy was poking his prospector's pick into the hills around Butte in a vain endeavor to encounter an ore bed that would bring him millions. The net result of his work was disappointment, for while he occasionally found a fairish sort of prospect, the Eldorado of his dreams would not be coaxed from the shadowy realms of hope to the definite sphere of realities.

Three years ago he abandoned the states and started for Alaska. Instead of going into the frozen and desolate interior in the wild scramble for placer diggings, Jarmy stayed in the southeastern part of the territory, and ultimately located four claims which he believes will make his dream days materialize. He has been in Butte for several weeks on business and expects to leave Tuesday for Chicago, where his partner in the venture lives. In the fall a forty-stamp mill and other necessary machinery will be shipped to Juneau, and early next spring active operations will begin.

"I have always thought that I would some day acquire wealth from mining," said Mr. Jarmy at the Southern yesterday. "I have prospected in every part of the west for the past twelve years, and now I think I will realize the fortune for which I have been seeking. I have four claims about fifty miles north of Juneau, of low grade quartz. Assays show that the ore will run as high as $8.60 a ton, and there is more ore in sight than can be mined in a man's lifetime.

"I am going to Chicago to confer with my partner and arrange for the shipment of machinery this fall so that we can begin active work in the following spring. I believe that ultimately Southeastern Alaska will be the greatest part of the territory. There are large bodies of low grade ore there that can be mined and shipped at an even less cost than in the states. In the first place the mineral belt is close to tide water, and the absence of railroads need not retard development of the country. Water for power can be obtained from the glacier streams, and timber for fuel and for mine work is immediately at hand.

"Most of the quartz will be low grade, and in consequence the work will have to be on a large scale in order to be profitable. But it has been proven that low grade ore can be made to pay, and there is an abundance of proof that there is more quartz there than can be worked in years. 'It is a great country.'"

RAILWAY FRANCHISE

Matter Will be at Once Disposed of

One of the Applicants Ready to Expend $180,000 Within Sixty Days.

If the parties desiring franchises at the hands of the city council for the construction of an electric street railway in the city to connect with the road to the mines wish to do business they will be given an opportunity and that very shortly. At the meeting of the council last evening Alderman Adair introduced the following resolution which is self-explanatory:

"That the committee on streets and works be hereby empowered to draft a contract or plan to submit to the different parties who have applied for a franchise to build and operate a street railway. The proposition when submitted to set forth the terms and conditions expressly upon which a franchise will be granted by this council."

The resolution provoked some little discussion, his worship asking if it would not be better to have the companies to make the application, stating exactly what they proposed to do and when they would do it.

In reply Adair said that a meeting of the committee had recently been held at which the mayor was not present and at which time one of the applicants had spoken in very strong measures about what they were prepared to do and that immediately if they were not given an opportunity. The committee had stated that they would submit a plan which upon being complied with they would accept and a franchise would be granted and it rested with the applicants to either accept or reject it.

His Worship—"I was called upon some time ago by one of the applicants and asked that nothing definite be done until the arrival of Mr. Hawkins, who was said to be then on his way north."

Adair—"That is correct, Mr. Hawkins was to have been here within two weeks but that is now over a month ago. I may state here that one of these applicants has informed me that his outfit is prepared to build and operate this road at once, without delay, and they will put up a bond for the faithful performance of the provisions of their contract. If they fail they forfeit their franchise."

His worship—"I have no objection to bringing the matter to an issue at once but I have always considered the Klondike Mines Railway should come direct to Dawson and not one of its suburbs as its charter provides."

Murphy suggested an amendment that the contract and plan it was proposed to draw up should be subject to the approval of the council, but it was subsequently withdrawn upon it being shown that such action was necessary in any event. The resolution was carried without a dissenting vote.

Adair stated privately that one of the applicants for a franchise was prepared to spend in the city in its construction no less than $180,000 during the next sixty days.

The plans and contract upon which the council will grant a franchise will be prepared immediately and submitted for either the acceptance or rejection of one or the other of the applicants.

Narrow Escape.

Yesterday afternoon while engaged with a crew in lowering a telephone pole on Second avenue near the store of the Dawson Hardware Company, Jack Forbes received a frightful blow from the falling pole and in some miraculous manner escaped very serious injury. The pole was being lowered by means of block and tackle and small ropes used as guys. Several men were also assisting in the operation using pike poles to steady the stick. One of the small guy lines broke allowing the pole to sway to one side and before the workman realized what was happening the whole thing crashed to the ground. Superintendent Hamilton saw the pole falling and yelled for Forbes to get out of the way but it was too late, the cross bars caught him squarely on the head and crushed him to the ground. The fall was partially broken by the other lines which doubtless saved the unfortunate man from being killed. As it was he escaped with a badly bruised head and a nasty cut on the side of his face.

Young Man From Gold Run Who Cultivated a Chestnut Sorrel Taste.

There is no use talking, the man who has his hootch guage set for the roadhouse article can not go against the Dawson brand with impunity. Impunity is a good thing to have at a parlor seance when the lampwick sputters and sonorous snores from above are heard, but it won't work in butting a creek-guaged appetite up against Dawson whisky.

Only yesterday a young man arrived in Dawson from Gold Run where he had been employed for four months. He rejoiced that he was more excellent than the rose for to him the world had a roseate hue with a sweet pea for a boutonniere and a feather in its hat.

Without pausing to think, the young man went against the slumber brand for a few. It found him at home and at once began to do business with him. When it comes to putting people to sleep Dawson's hypnotist is not in it with the slumber brand.

It was on first avenue that the strength of the potatoes asserted itself and the young man lay down to peaceful sleep. A policeman passing that way escorted the slumberer to the barracks and this morning a dark brown taste could be seen projecting from each corner of his mouth. As it was his first offense he was given an option on paying $1 and costs or of joining the handyman barracks brigade for a period of three days. Alas! The young man's purse was empty and—

Wheat Harvest.

Colfax, July 27.—Lillis F. Smith, the Endicott "wheat king," says harvest will soon be in full blast in the Endicott country, and predicts as large a yield as last year, on about the same number of acres. Leslie Smith, a son of Lillis F., has begun cutting volunteer wheat with a new combined header and thresher. This is a 24-horse machine drawn by thirty-two horses, which cuts from twenty-five to forty acres per day, threshing the grain as the machine moves along, and dropping the sacked grain off in piles in the field, where it is gathered up and hauled to the warehouse. It requires but five men to operate the machine, and Mr. Smith says it is a great help in solving the labor problem during harvest.

There are a number of such machines in the Endicott and western Whitman countries this season.

The volunteer wheat which Mr. Smith, Jr., is cutting is grain that has grown on unplowed ground from seed scattered out last year. Mr. Smith generally has several hundred acres of such wheat every year, but has less this year than usual, owing to the dry fall and hard winter. Mr. Smith's plan is to leave a field which he intends to summer fallow until quite late, and if the grain promises to more than pay expenses he cuts and threshes it. Otherwise it is plowed under, and the ground

Chamberlain's Early Life

It is now a little more than forty-three years since Mr. Chamberlain made his first appearance on a political platform. He was then a very young man, in his twenty-third year, and the fact that he was on the platform caused no remark or comment of any kind. He was one among scores of other young men at the same gathering, young men interested in politics possibly, but with equal possibility many of their young men who had no special political views one way or the other, but attached themselves to the Whig, Reform or Radical party because their fathers before them had been of the same political stripe.

The occasion referred to was that of the Birmingham, Eng., election in the British general elections of 1859, brought on by the defeat of the Derby Ministry on their Reform policy.

The Radical candidates for the vacant seats were William Scholefield and no less a person than the late John Bright. The "Moderate Liberal" candidate was a man whose name is very familiar in Ontario, Sir Thomas Dyke Acland. The latter had the support of the entire Conservative party in Birmingham—it must be admitted a very small section of the electorate of the borough at that period—and also of what was an important factor in the contest, the vote of the Palmerstonian Liberals.

This appearance of Mr. Chamberlain's might be passed over without any notice whatever but for the fact that the opposition was aimed, not at William Scholefield, but at John Bright, the advocate of "peace at any price," during the then but recently concluded Russian war.

The policy of Mr. Bright advocated in 1854-56 was closely analogous to the policy of the British pro-Boers of today, so heartily and successfully combated by Mr. Chamberlain. It is gratifying to find that the line of conduct Mr. Chamberlain has pursued is not new, not of impulse nor of hasty conclusions, but is the outcome of settled thought, of life-long convictions.

Nine years elapsed, the British general elections of 1865 had passed away, there being no contest in Birmingham, and still very little was known in the "old world" of Joseph Chamberlain, except in business circles and in connection with some two or three literary societies, and where he was noted for the fluency and frequency of his speeches.

The year 1868, though, brought Mr. Chamberlain to the front, locally at any rate, and it was soon very evident to the somewhat fossilized Whigs, Liberals and Radicals of Birmingham, that he "had come to stay." In the year previous, on the decease of William Scholefield, Mr. Chamberlain had taken a somewhat prominent part in supporting the candidature of Mr. George Dixon, as an advanced Liberal, against the pretension to the vacant seat of Mr. Sampson S. Lloyd, Conservative. Mr. Dixon, triumphed and Mr. Chamberlain rejoiced. In 1868 the National Education League was founded in England, and Mr. Chamberlain, then only 32 years of age, was chairman of the executive. The platform of the league was "free, compulsory and unsectarian" schools, while its main object really was to abolish, in toto, as quickly and as speedily as possible, the denominational schools, which were under the control, for the most part of them, of the Anglican church.

The League sprang into existence early in 1868, and before the end of the year the name of Joseph Chamberlain as its champion was known from one end of England to the other.

In Birmingham he was the special aversion of the Conservative and Clerical party, and of their local organ, while the abuse, slander and misrepresentation showered upon him exceeded in violence anything he has since experienced, and that is saying a great deal.

No one need think, though, that "Young Joe," as he was generally spoken of, was silent under this storm of obloquy. He hit back, and his hits told. Accused of infidelity, he at once pointed to the fact of his record as a Sunday school teacher. A foolhardy opponent taunted him with being a monopolist, and of driving small men out of his own special line of manufacturing, that of wood screws. He retorted that his firm "had always paid its way and the rent of its premises, something no one had ever known his accuser to do, except under compulsion." The retort was crushing, all the more so as it was absolutely true. Platform orators declaimed, clergymen preached against him, all to no purpose, for in November, 1868, he was elected by a large majority over his opponent to the Birmingham city council. Two years later, in November, 1870, he was elected on the first Birmingham school board as one of the "Liberal Six," his colleagues being George Dixon, M.P., the Rev. Charles Vince, R. W. Dale, M.A., D.C.L., the famous theologian and Congregationalist preacher, Geo. Dawson, M.A., preacher and lecturer, who was of European reputation, and John Skerrow Wright, who was afterwards M.P. for Nottingham.

Honors still poured in upon Mr. Chamberlain, for in 1873 he was elected mayor of Birmingham, was re-elected in 1874, again in 1875 and only resigned in June, 1876, when he was elected member of parliament for that city. His colleagues then in the representation were John Bright and Philip Henry Muntz.

If Mr. Chamberlain had never done anything else since his career in the city council and school board of the great Midland metropolis would entitle him to the gratitude of his fellow townsmen especially and of English workmen generally.

It was the decided stand taken by Joseph Chamberlain backed by such famous educationists as Dawson, Dale, McCarthy, Jesse Collings and others of equal note which secured free education for the children of all Englishmen. It was Joseph Chamberlain's zeal and untiring energy which made Birmingham what she is today. What Haussman was to Paris Chamberlain was to Birmingham. He demolished her rookeries, he swept away miles upon miles of tenements but little better than slums, while he constructed broad open streets and gave light and air to masses of the people who had previously to his improvements, but partially enjoyed both these blessings. He did more, he obtained for the people municipal control of both the gas and water supplies and yet he did more, for instead of increasing the taxation of the city his policy has reduced it, while the first cost of both the gas and water concerns has now all been redeemed.

Such were the early days of Joseph Chamberlain as a public man. What his career has been since he entered parliament is to all Canadians a story "as familiar as household words."

Another Tracy

Fresno, Cal., July 28.—In Porterville yesterday James McKinney ran amuck and initiated his performance by shooting out the lights of a saloon, and tried to shoot the cards out of the hands of a man in a card game. That he only wounded the man was due to his poor marksmanship and not to his criminal intentions. He then proceeded to a lively stable and secured a rig at the point of a revolver. A constable, a deputy and several citizens attempted to arrest McKinney, but he opened fire and four of them were more or less seriously wounded. Officers in surrounding counties were notified and a sharp lookout is being kept.

McKinney has a bad record, having some years ago been sent to state prison from Tulare county. Two years ago he killed a man in Bakersfield, but was exonerated. William Lynn, a gambler, whose abdomen and legs were filled with buckshot, has succumbed to his wounds.

McKinney also filled the right arm of George Barrows, a printer, with shot, sent a bullet into the mouth of Deputy Marshal Willis, another into the arm of Deputy Constable Tompkins and a load of shot into the arm of W. B. West. Before leaving town he called at the house of Dave Moshier.

He awakened Moshier and called him to the door. Standing before the door, gun in hand, McKinney exclaimed:

"I've got into a hell of a fight. They came after me, but I whipped them all. I killed three or four of them."

"They have not treated me right. They can send the whole town after me."

"I'll die game. You talk about Tracy, he won't live to be in it with me. They hurt me."

Putting his hand to his leg he squeezed up a handful of blood. He then drove off to Lindsey and is headed for Fresno county, where it is supposed he will make for the mountains.

McKinney, who has a shotgun, rifle and revolvers, is a desperate character, and will not be taken alive. Sheriff Parker and his deputies are in pursuit but no definite information has been received as to the desperado's whereabouts.

James Cockrell, town marshal, who was taken to Lexington, Ky., from Jackson, mortally wounded, has died. He was shot from the court house window at Jackson by an unknown assailant.

Murder and Suicide.

Springfield, Mo., July 27.—Charles Weiley, aged 25, of Norwood, Mo., late last night shot and killed Miss Josephine Sheridan, his former sweetheart, at her home here, and then shot and killed himself.

Miss Sheridan and her sister were entertaining friends in the back yard when Weiley rang the door bell. Miss Sheridan went through the house to the front door and almost immediately four shots were heard. When members of the family reached the spot a minute later, both the girl and Weiley were dead, stretched out side by side on the porch. Miss Sheridan had been shot through the heart and the top of Weiley's head had been torn off.

A Fatal Explosion.

McCurran, I.T., July 27.—Two men were killed and two others seriously burned by an explosion of gas today in one of the San Bois Coal Company's mines, one mile west of here. The dead are Andrew Dazell and James Brown. The names of the two injured men have not been learned. Brown was the son of Bennett Brown of Huntington, Ark., the southern manager of the Central Coal and Coke Company, and was also a nephew of Superintendent Brown of the San Bois mine. The men were engaged in placing timbers to support the roof of the mine at the time.

Mangled Body Found

Platteville, Colo., July 27.—The badly mangled body of an unknown man was found on the Union Pacific track two and one-half miles south of here this afternoon. He was fairly well dressed, and in his pockets were cards bearing the names of George McLean, E. Jones and C. A. Cameron, 1805 Marion street, Little Rock, Ark. He had a small amount of money on his person, some tobacco and a few other articles.

Killed by a Train

Tacoma, July 28.—Mack Shely, a logger in Frame's camp near Orting, was struck by a freight train early this morning and killed. The back of his skull was crushed. The body was discovered by a track walker about 7 o'clock. Shely was about 50 years of age and so far as known had no relatives here. The body was brought to Tacoma and will be kept a few days to see if relatives can be found.

Gold for Export.

New York, July 28.—Gold bars to the amount of $3,000,000 have been engaged for shipment to Europe this week. The National City Bank will ship $2,000,000 and Lazard Freres $1,000,000. It is reported that other engagements are being considered. The City Bank shipment goes to Berlin and that of Lazard Freres to Paris.

"You should be a little more explicit in your statements," said the editor to the new reporter as he glanced over a batch of copy. "Here you say that the Hon. J. Edward Casby, who has been under the care of three physicians during the past ten days, is now out of danger."

"Well, isn't that plain enough?" queried the new pencil pusher.

"Certainly not," replied the autocrat of the sanctum. "How is the uninitiated reader to know whether the Hon. J. Edward is on the high road to recovery or dead and out of reach of the three physicians?"

The leading lady was in tears, and the morning paper lay crumpled at her feet.

"What is the matter?" the manager asked.

"This horrid critic," she sobbed.

"Let me see. Where? What has he said?"

"There," she replied, pointing at the dreadful paragraph. "It says my acting was excellent but that my gown didn't seem to fit me at all. I just know that was written by some spiteful woman."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"I appreciate the honor you do me in asking me to be your wife, Mr. Poorman," said the beautiful summer girl, "but circumstances over which I have no control compel me to decline the honor."

"To what circumstances do you refer?" asked the young man, who seemed to see a faint ray of hope aimed at him from the future.

"To your financial circumstances," replied she of the granite heart, in a tone that the iceman might have envied.

"Why did Col. Ryeman resign as president of the company?" asked a stockholder of the secretary.

"We had voted to water the stock," replied the secretary, "and the colonel declared he'd have nothing to do with anything that had water in it."

Teacher—"How did the Fourth of July originate?"

Tommy—"Why, the fireworks people started it, of course."

EXCELLENT PROSPECTS

Many Hydraulic Plants in Operation

C. W. Macpherson Returns From Big Salmon District—Road is Being Built.

Mr. C. W. Macpherson, who has been engaged in survey work for the government in the Big Salmon district for the past month or two, returned on the Victorian yesterday, having completed his labors in that vicinity. Base lines were run on Summit, Lake and Cottonvea creeks and a number of claims were surveyed on Livingston, Summit and Cottonvea. Mr. Macpherson reports a great deal of activity in the Big Salmon district and prospectors for the most part satisfied with their holdings. Quite a number of claims are producing handsomely and there are several hydraulic plants in operation. Johannsen is working ten men on the block of ground he bought from the government, 1 to 10 below on Livingston. He has a hydraulic plant on the ground, has ground sluiced off a big strip and is just beginning to take out good pay. The indications are excellent. Peters is working the upper and lower halves of discovery on Livingston and is doing well. The Delaware Mining Company is putting in a big hydraulic plant on the twenties above, including a 60-horsepower boiler, several little giants and other machinery. There is also a hydraulic outfit going in on Summit creek, one on Lake and one on Cottonvea. A great many men are prospecting new ground but no new strikes have been reported this season. The high cost of provisions in the Big Salmon country has done much to retard its development, freight from Eureka Landing on the Hootalinqua costing eight cents a pound and a cent and a half from Whitehorse. There are two stores at Livingston village where grub is higher than it is in Dawson. Flour sells at $8 a sack.

Those interested in the Big Salmon country will be gratified to learn that Engineer Thibodeau has completed his location of the road that is to give them much needed relief, and actual construction work will be begun on it tomorrow. The road extends from Eureka Landing on the Hootalinqua, 22 miles above its mouth, to Livingston village, which is located on 30 below, Livingston creek. It will be 16 miles in length and will be graded for the use of wagons and be a first-class road in every respect. Its completion will greatly facilitate entrance to the mines and reduce the cost of transportation of supplies to but a few cents.

Sentence Commuted.

Washington, D.C., July 28.—The life of Dr. Russell Wilson of Ohio, who was captured with a revolutionist party in Nicaragua, has been saved through the representations of Minister Corea, of that country. A cablegram was received at the state department today from Chester Donaldson, United States consul at Managua, Nicaragua, dated the 26th inst., as follows:

"As a courtesy to the United States and sympathy for the president, the president will commute Russell Wilson's sentence."

Wilson was one of the several Americans who joined a filibustering expedition which landed at Monkey Point, near Bluefields, early in July. Most of the party were captured or killed. Wilson would have been summarily executed but for the interposition of Senor Corea, the Nicaraguan minister here.

It is presumed that the commutation is to imprisonment for a time and then expulsion from Nicaragua.

Portland's Salt War.

Portland, July 28.—It is apparent that Portland jobbers have concluded to take up the fight against the Federal Salt Company. Several meetings of jobbers have been held with in the past few days, but the proceedings have been closely guarded.

That prices on all kinds of salt are being slashed right and left is evident, but quotations are kept secret, so far as the jobbers are concerned, in order, it is said, that the Federal Company shall not know what the other side is doing. If the four cargoes of salt from Europe, which are here arrive a further reduction in price is looked for.

South African Trade

London, July 21.—The trade commission sent out to inquire into the best methods for promoting British trade in South Africa seems much impressed with the great activity of the Americans. In its first report sent home the commission says America will be the greatest menace to British trade, adding that the Americans are making a fine effort to get and hold the market, and are introducing their practice of specialization and concentration with the same results so well exemplified in other parts of the world.

Honors Are Even

Here is a question for the dear little boys and girls of the Third Reader: If it takes 24 sheriffs and deputy sheriffs, 68 specials, and two companies of national guardsmen two months and five days to just miss catching one man named Tracy, how long would it have taken the great American republic to have captured De Wet?—Vancouver World.

Not so long, we frow, as it took Great Britain and all her colonies to fail in an attempt to catch the intrepid Boer commander—Skagway Alaskan.

Arrives in Port

San Francisco, July 22.—The long overdue French bark Brenn, upon which there has been some specu-tion, the rate of insurance reaching 35 per cent, is at last safe in port from Newcastle, England, having arrived with a cargo of 2,975 tons of general merchandise. The Brenn, according to Captain Bretter's report, was off its port for ten days, most of the time in a dense fog. She had previously been delayed by adverse winds.

Wheat for Hay.

North Yakima, Wash., July 22.—A sample of spring wheat from the farm of W. A. Bennett, in the Rattlesnake Mountain country, measures four feet in height. This is not strange except that a few years ago it was not believed that anything could be grown in that country without irrigation. The farmers are prosperous and depend only on the rains to make crops. It is reported that potatoes are maturing nicely. The wheat is cut for hay.

Spinning Mills

London, July 21.—The Westminster Gazette says that the directors of a number of spinning companies in the Ashton and Talbridge districts of Lancashire have been approached by agents of American cotton growers with the view of the sale of the former's properties. Meetings of the shareholders of the concerns affected will be held at an early date to consider the matter.

Guided by Mother Love

Mother love has made of Marion Thornton Egbert a wanderer.

Mother love has enticed her from city to city. It has lured her from east to west through America, from west to east through Europe. Disguised as a man, as a sister of charity, as a beggar she has wandered ceaselessly, searching for the foot-prints of the little daughter who was kidnaped from her side two years ago.

Friends feared for her mind, but on she went. No hardship was too great, no disguise too difficult. She suffered in body, but smiled at the pain, so slight was it compared to the pain at her heart.

Her baby girl had been taken from her. The most unselfish, the most tender, the most perfect love in the world upheld her.

Somewhere in the world her child, her little Erica, was living without her. Somewhere another woman perhaps fondled her, other hands touched the soft threads of her golden hair, other cheeks received the caresses of her dimpled lips, other ears heard the baby prattle.

These were the thoughts that haunted Mrs. Egbert on her weary trip and drove her ceaselessly on and on.

On the day of little Erica's disappearance, a fatal day in September of the year 1900, her mother registered a vow that wherever her child might be, however remote her hiding place, she would find her and clasp her in her arms.

That vow she has kept. Guided by mother love and mother instinct she has recovered her. After a search that has led her through America, Europe and Asia, Mrs. Marion Thornton Egbert has finally succeeded in regaining custody and control of her child.

Nearly two years have passed since that day in September when Erica Egbert, a dainty, dimpled darling of three, started out with her mother for a walk.

Mrs. Egbert had had unhappiness in her life, yet in that hour there was no hint of it in her face. It was known in Chicago, where she had been married some years before to Dr. William J. Egbert, a prominent dentist, that she and her husband had separated. After their wedding they had gone to India to live. There Dr. Egbert has become famous. He is court dentist to the potentates and princes of India, he has received presents and decorations and fees that attest his popularity.

He was popular in many places, but not in his home. Who is wrong, who is right is not for us to decide. What the public knows absolutely is that Mrs. Egbert had returned to Chicago in ill health, bringing with her a lovely little girl, who was born in India.

On that fatal September day that marked the last walk together many a neighbor looked out at the window and waved a greeting as they passed by.

Suddenly the block on Madison avenue where they lived seemed to be in a commotion.

Suddenly, without a word of warning, when she least expected him, her husband, Dr. Egbert, had stood before her. She had not seen him for months.

"Hello! How are you?" he exclaimed.

Baby Erica held up her doll in greeting. Her father stooped over her and lifted her in his arms. Instinctively the child turned and stretched out her hands to her mother. The doll crashed to the pavement.

It seemed to Mrs. Egbert that in that very same second her husband, bearing his precious burden, had jumped into a waiting carriage. The screams of her baby and the clattering of horses' hoofs reached the distracted mother where she stood. She tore after the carriage. A second man, whom she recognized as Mr. Font, her husband's stepbrother, thrust her rudely back. She fell to the ground, stupefied, trembling, in tears.

A crowd of bicyclers started in pursuit of the carriage. Police officers were summoned from the nearest station to track down the kidnapers.

She waited, expecting momentarily to hear that her baby had been found. Hours passed and there was no trace of her. One after the other the pursuers returned with the same story of failure.

It was then that Mrs. Egbert sprang to her feet.

"I will find my child," she cried, "wherever she may be, if the search takes me to the ends of the earth."

Within a week after little Erica's disappearance her devoted mother had begun her journey. In order that no hint of her purpose might reach

Dr. Egbert she went forth disguised as a nun.

In San Francisco she discovered the first trace of her baby.

She was told that such a man as she described had been there. Yes, he was a doctor, he had been seen there with such a child as Erica. He had rooms in a boarding house, in what is known as the Mission.

The news sent the nun flying out through the city.

"Faster!" she cried to the driver of her cab, "faster, faster!"

She moved swiftly to the basement door of the lodging-house that had been indicated to her as the one that sheltered her child. A maid answered her ring.

"A crust of bread," breathed the white-faced nun. She leaned against the side of the house, and the maid pityingly asked if she were sick.

"Is there a doctor here?" gasped the distracted mother at the first opportunity.

"There was," answered the girl, "till this morning—"

The nun's face grew whiter still, so white that the girl tried to draw her into the house to recover.

"Oh, tell me when he left," she cried. "Did he have a child with him?"

"Yes, yes. He was Doctor Egbert."

"Where has he gone?" cried the nun.

"He said he was going to India," answered the wondering maid, and then she added that he had set sail that morning by steamer to China.

The nun waited to hear no more. She staggered to the street and back to the town, where, in the surging crowd, intent each one on pleasure or business of his own, she passed unnoticed.

For twenty-four hours the mother was obliged to wait over. It seemed like as many months. She petitioned the police to aid her. They counseled her to wait. Wait! She waited only for daylight.

It came at last, and on a steamer bound for China the black-robed nun set sail.

In anxiety that no words may describe she arrived at last in Yokohama.

Before night the mother was speeding to Madras, where she and Doctor Egbert had lived before Erica was born.

He was at his home on the hill. Surely the good nun would find him there.

Shabby, her black robes fast turning gray, tired and wan, the nun stood watching the windows of the great house for a sight of her baby's face.

"Just one glimpse," she prayed for before she invoked the aid of American lawyers and American friends.

The mother's prayer was heard. Little Erica had a custom all her own of kissing her hand to the stars to say good-night. It was her bedtime. In the front room a light shone. In her nurse's arms for a fleeting instant the child appeared at the window, in full view of the mother's longing eyes.

There was a pain in the mother's heart, a pang of jealousy, but at the same time a prayer of gratitude.

Her darling was safe.

From that hour the mother began a legal fight to recover her child.

In Madras they became accustomed to the black-robed figure that day by day watched for a sight of a golden-haired baby.

At last it became known that Mrs. Egbert and the nun were one and the same person. She threw off her disguise and began the fight which the other day ended for her in victory.

It has taken her nearly two years to recover her child. But she has won at last. Little Erica is returning to America with her mother, legally hers for many years yet, as she is only five years old.

She understands at least that she has the right once more to whisper the sacred word "Mother." — San Francisco Examiner.

Band of Sheep Killed

John Day City, Ore., July 28. — Word has reached here from Murderer's Creek in Grant county, that 280 sheep belonging to J. C. Moore of Mount Vernon were slaughtered, presumably by settlers and cattlemen. Murderer's Creek is a remote summer range district and, according to the information, several armed men came upon the band at night and commenced firing buckshot into them. The next day 280 dead sheep were found.

Mrs. Smith—So you think your son Reginald will make a great pianist? Mrs. Brown—Yes, indeed. Why, the little darling won't ever take a lesson unless we pay him for it.

Found Dead in a Dive.

Chicago, July 28.—Her face black from strangulation and blood flowing from a wound in the side of her head the body of an unidentified woman, about 32 years old and fashionably garbed, was found in a wine room of Henry O'Har's saloon in Wells street near the river early this morning. The police soon after arrested James Grant and Edward Goff, said to have been seen in the company of the woman.

The policemen on duty in Wells street were notified by an unknown man that a woman was dead in the saloon. The officers at once entered the place, allowing the unknown man to pass on. In a rear room they found the dead woman. Other women and men who were found drinking at tables in the place seemed to be ignorant of the tragedy that had occurred so near.

The dead woman is unknown to the frequenters of the saloon and from her appearance the police say they do not believe she was accustomed to enter such saloons. The theory of the police is that she was drugged, taken into the saloon and there killed. Bloodstains were found on the collar, necktie and shirt of one of the men under arrest.

Third Victim Found.

St. Paul, Minn., July 27.—Another body, that of a man believed to be W. E. Farrell of Butte, was found today in the debris of the Milwaukee train wrecked near Eiterra, Minn., on Friday night. The body was terribly mutilated, but was apparently that of a man about thirty years of age. A molder's union card was found bearing the name of W. E. Farrell, Butte, Mont., also a pocketbook bearing the name of John M. Farrell, Butte, Mont.

This makes the third fatality resulting from the wreck.

Desperado Shot.

El Paso, Tex., July 27.—"Black Jack" McDonald, a noted border desperado, was shot and killed in his saloon at Jaurez, Mexico, this afternoon, by an American whose name is unknown. The shooting was the result of a game of dice between "Black Jack" and three Americans. Two of the Americans fled and made good their escape, while the third was captured. "Black Jack" was no relative of the train robber of the same name.

The Sleuths of Seattle.

Every day comes a story, rich, rare and racy.

Of the tramp of the thousand on the heels of one Tracy.

One lone, single outlaw, who is foot-sore and tired,

Battling an army of sleuths that are hired,

Who chase him through cities, through ranches and bogs

With rifles and cannons, with ships and with dogs.

Today they are hotly in pursuit of a scent

From a place whence Tracy "had only just went."

Tomorrow they'll say, "He's gone o'er the Sound."

To capture a vessel which is Alaskan wards bound.

Next day he'll appear, perhaps in Seattle.

Where all is at peace and none to give battle.

The sheriff and his thousand on Bel-lingham's Bay,

Tracy will stroll along old Yester Way

Buying revolvers and things for his kit,

With which to extend the "glad hand" and "big mitt"

To the thousand returning band of bushrangers

Who are braving the swamps and facing the dangers

Of a shot from the single but truly aimed rifle

In the hands of a man who thinks it a trifle

To kill a half-dozen of the sleuths of Seattle,

Who to him are no more than so many cattle.

When Tracy is captured 'twill be on the day

That Gabriel's old trumpet has sounded its lay.

The band of one thousand will have gone to the Lord,

And the devil will capture the six thousand reward.

Santos-Dumont Arrives

New York, July 32.—Geo. Voy L. Mayer, United States ambassador to Italy, and Alberto Santos-Dumont, the Brazilian aeronaut, were among the passengers of the steamship Kron Prinz Wilhelm which arrived today from Bremen. Santos-Dumont who is scheduled to make a series of ascensions near New York, said he was very glad there would be several competitors for the prizes offered at the St. Louis exposition, as it would stimulate interest in the building of airships.

There is great excitement in Belmont county, O., over the discovery of a new oil field at Uniontown. A well was brought in yielding 250 barrels and a second well that is estimated at 100 barrels was struck.

$50 Reward.

Stroller's Column.

It has turned out just as the Stroller said it would. Chief Isaac of the Moosehides has been taking the braves of his tribe into his confidence regarding what he saw while on his trip to the outside. The braves in turn have told their squaws in a moment of confidence with the result that the former peaceful little village is now the home port of more scandal than was occasioned a number of years ago when the Stroller was seen by one of the professors to drop from a second story window of a female seminary.

At the last meeting of the Moosehide Ladies' Ping Pong Club, from which Mrs. Isaac stayed away owing to a headache, it is said that those present compared notes as gleaned by them individually from their husbands, and the result of the various comparisons was that Isaac was voted hot stuff.

The advisability of having a committee call on and acquaint Mrs. Isaac of the exact state of affairs was favorably considered but when it came to selecting a committee none of those present cared to serve on it, and as none could write her a letter, the matter was deferred for two days when they all met again, this time to register the arrival of a young brave; but just as they were considering the matter the wife of the chief entered and the matter again went by default. As Mrs. Isaac entered she said: "Ieta giukluk one guk chug mica tica chu," which meant "On an occasion of this kind is where I shine."

Another thing that has served to rile up the Moosehide squaws since Isaac's return is that all the braves are determined on taking a trip to the outside; besides, it is reported that Isaac has expressed his intentions of substituting kan-kan and hoo-hoo dances for the time-honored flings, kicks and squats of his tribe.

So far as the braves are concerned they have as yet found no fault with Isaac since his return. To them his stories of 'Frisco and Seattle by electric light are so fascinating that the council room frequently holds them until after 3 in the morning. Isaac's lurid descriptions of how he and Jack McQueen made a night of it being sufficient to hold them in open-mouthed wonder hour after hour.

It is said that Fat John and Cut-Mouth Henry have already started for San Francisco via St. Michael in a canoe and that two or three more of Isaac's vivid recitals will start others that way until there will be no hunters left to supply the squaws and papposes with moose meat during the coming winter.

Is it any wonder the ladies' ping pong club of Moosehide is the center of internal irritation? The Stroller trows not.

The Stroller has applied to the city council for a franchise for a Pipe Dreamers' Club he is about to organize. He does not care anything about the franchise and only asked the city council for it to jolly the boys along and make them feel as though they have a little authority. If the franchise is refused the organization will be perfected just the same.

The Stroller will not go beyond the ranks of his own profession for members to the Pipe Dreamers' Club and no man will be eligible to membership who cannot write a column article on a hitching post or a load of hay.

There will be but one officer and one committee in the organization, president and committee on "hop."

Members of the city council may be elected as honorary members but they will have no voice in the management of the club's affairs. But having no voice in the management of affairs will be nothing new to them. Che he!

On Sunday there arrived in Dawson a young man fresh from the outside who brought with him the aroma of new-mown hay. He came to Dawson to visit relatives and as they were not expecting him for a week or ten days there were no familiar faces at the dock to meet him as he stepped off the gang plank with the result that he felt that truly he was a stranger in a strange land.

A certain real estate and mining broker was at the dock to see the steamer come in and noticing the "I-wish-I-was-at-home look" on the face of the young man, approached him and asked for whom he was looking. The young man readily gave the name of the family he wished to visit and the accommodating Dawsonite was only too glad to render what assistance he could.

"Certainly," said he, "I know your relatives very well and I will be pleased to assist you in reaching them. Just come across the street with me and I will telephone them of your arrival."

They crossed the street, the obliging man used the hello instrument and apprised the young man's relatives of his presence in the city.

"But," said the obliging man as he turned away from the telephone, "there is no use of you waiting here until your people come down to escort you up. Come with me and we will walk along toward their house until we meet them."

They started and then it was that recollections of what he had read of confidence men and "Soapy" Smith operators flashed across the mind of the young man and he said to himself:

"Why does this stranger take so much interest in me unless he wants to sell me a gold brick or otherwise skin me like an eel?"

The young man did not wish to show the white feather so he decided to put his guide through a rigid examination as to who he was and what his occupation might be. The guide confessed to having an office "down town," but as that was rather vague the young man had about decided to bolt when he saw one of his relatives approaching along the sidewalk.

Later the new arrival confided the fears he had entertained to his relative, and then he learned that his late chaperone was one of the foremost men of Dawson, the home of the most kind-hearted people on earth. Had it been a young lady who was in quest of her relatives the chances are that the number of men who would have offered to pilot her to her destination would have made an appearance equal to a political parade for gallantry runs riot in Dawson. Only a few mornings ago the Stroller saw two men fairly carrying a young woman along the sidewalk and ever and anon she would say: "You are (hic) very kind."

This is the season of the year when people tie themselves to the woods and remain until the mosquitos cause them to look like smallpox suspects, then they come home and tell the neighbors, "We just had a lovely time."

The Stroller and the city council are a unit on the same question—a case of great minds running in the same. Lake Washington ship canal. The Stroller will see that no dogs crawl under his house and thereby escape the dog catcher. The Stroller will see that the dog catcher's hands are held up even if it has to be at the point of a gun.

Another clause will be added to the dog ordinance at the next weekly ordinance of the council which will provide for a monthly dog crushing. The plan is that all dogs impounded and not redeemed will be staked out and driven over by the municipal rock crusher. The remains will then be sold for rugs. By this means many night-howlers which are not now considered worth $3 or $5, as the case may be, may later be repossessed in the form of a rug. Of course, the original features may be somewhat drawn and distorted, but Fido will all be there except the howl.

The council might make something on the side by going into business with its rock crusher and advertising as follows:

PRESERVE YOUR HEALTH
Keep a Footwarmer by Your Bed
Dogs Flattened for 50 Cents.
Size Cuts No Ice.
No Hair Lost by Our Process.
First Come, First Served.
Apply to the city council. Give two raps at the outer door and sneeze at the inner door.

The Current Term Password is "Mange."

In Mining Properties

Emile Quarre, formerly mayor of Eagle City, but now a financial agent and promoter of San Francisco will leave Seattle this morning for the extreme northern central part of the state to look over valuable mining properties. He will be met before he reaches his destination by Louis Emond, of Paris, one of the Frenchmen whom he represents. Together they will make an investigation of the mines, and go to San Francisco through Seattle.

Mr. Quarre represents French and Belgian capitalists who have a plan to purchase and develop mines in the Pacific coast states. Mr. Quarre himself has great faith in the mineral wealth of certain localities and believes that capital may be invested here with the prospects of better results than in almost any other part of the world. At the Rainier-Grand hotel last evening he said that foreigners are looking to America more and more each year as a field for investment. They see that the Americans are making money every day in the year and have reached the conclusion that America is the proper place to come.

On Mr. Quarre's return to San Francisco with M. Emond the Franco-California bank will be established with a capital of $1,000,000 to carry on the operations of the company.

"Everything is arranged, dear," said the happy young man who had scheduled to become the freight-paying head of a new combine, "and by this time tomorrow we will be one."

"Yes, George," answered the fair bride-to-be, "but when it comes to ice cream don't you think it would be advisable for you still to order two plates?"

Wife (with illustrated paper) — "Well, for my part, I enjoy looking at a picture that tells a story."

Husband—"Then you must enjoy looking at that new portrait of your mother."

Wife—"I fail to see the point."

Husband—"Why, it makes her appear positively handsome."

COUNCIL MEETING

Two New Bylaws Receive Final Reading

Yukon Council Will be Petitioned to Grant City Its Own Police Magistrate.

Probably the most important matter that came up at the meeting of the city council last night was the determination to do business with the parties making application for a street railway franchise at once or call the whole affair off. The thing of dilly-dallying along as the council has been doing for the past month is anything but satisfactory and if the applicants are bona fide in their intentions they will be given an opportunity to make good at once.

Strange as it may appear there were but two communications before the council, the first one read being from Vernon & Story, the auctioneers, who are petitioning for a reduction in the license fee for auctioneers. They give five reasons why such reduction should be given them among which are that they have both been outside until recently and have only re-engaged in business and they think it would be working a hardship upon them to compel them to pay a year's license for but a few months service. The petition is also signed by George J. Gregory, who desires a similar reduction.

W. H. Moffatt filed a report stating that in response to a request made by the city attorney he had inspected the outside wiring of a number of buildings which he found to be defective and in need of attention. He specified one locality in which there were three wires each carrying 110 voltage; there was also one crossing York street to the N. A. T. & Co. carrying the same amount. Others were found in similar condition but they were so situated that they would not interfere with the work of the firemen.

The following new bills were presented:

N. A. T. Co.	$ 18.00
Klondike Mill Co.	11.52
Klondike Mill Co.	173.13
Branch & Tarr	24.00
Yukon Telephone Synd.	38.00
Tharp & Smith	14.00
J. P. O'Connor	300.00
Alvah Smith	12.50
Marine Iron Works	3.00
Yukon Sawmill Co.	1122.48
Miss Crowley	17.50

There was but one of the standing committees which had a report to offer, the committee on finance, which recommended the payment of the following accounts:

N. C. Co.	$31.50
J. A. Greene	40.00
McLennan & McFeely	76.90

No new bylaws were introduced. The amendments to bylaws 5 and 8 came up for their second reading. The dog bylaw was given its third reading and was passed as was also the bylaw respecting contagious diseases. The former was number 20 and the latter 21. A few minor amendments were also made to the dog bylaw before it passed, the principal one being the reduction of the fee on dogs from $4 to $3 and on females from $6 to $5, which includes the value of the tag.

Police Commissioner Macdonald submitted the report of Sergeant Smith showing the number of arrests made during the month of July under the city bylaws, the disposition of the cases and the amount collected in fines. The total number of arrests made was 31 in which 20 convictions were secured and 11 were dismissed with a caution. Eighteen of those were taken in for drunk and disorderly and 16 paid fines. Other arrests made were: Having rotten goods on sale, 1; disposing of refuse in the street, 1; filthy latrine, 1. Those dismissed with a caution included: Pushing handcart on the sidewalk, 4; merchandise on sidewalk, 5; leaving vehicle on crossing, 1. Fines collected during the month amounted to $86. The police commissioner also said that he had instructed the chief of police in laying information to do so under the city bylaws instead of the criminal code whenever possible.

The following resolution was offered by Macdonald, seconded by Murphy: "That a memorial be drafted and submitted to the Yukon council praying that the charter of the city of Dawson be amended by giving the said city power to appoint a police magistrate."—Carried.

The appointment of a keeper of the dog pound was settled by Norquay moving that Henry Desboro be made such. As compensation he will receive the entire fees of his office.

When the business of the evening had been almost completed his worship said that he would like to see matters often referred to the various committees settled more expeditiously. It often happens that communications that require some action or other are so referred and if not attended to at once they are forgotten or sidetracked and soon lost sight of. He spoke particularly of the petition of Messrs. Vernon & Story presented that evening, and would like to see some action taken on it at once.

Adair—"At the time we framed the license bylaw we gave the subject very careful attention and I do not see how we can grant the request asked by the gentlemen. Some auctioneers have already paid the license required and it would be impossible for us to so favor one and not the others. We cannot discriminate."

His worship—"That is the way it appears to me," and so it was decided.

The bill of Miss Crowley was considered excessive, $17.50 for a broken pane of glass in a door, the cost of an entire new door. Vachon explained that the broken glass could not be duplicated in the city. It was decided to inform Miss Crowley that the city would pay for a new pane of glass if she would order it repaired and forward the bill to the council. Vachon was appointed a committee of one to attend to the delicate diplomatic mission.

Macdonald stated that Sergeant Smith had prepared and submitted to him a most excellent list of people and firms in the city who were subject to a license under the license bylaw. He had neglected to bring the list with him to the council meeting but would produce it later. He did not think the sergeant had missed a single individual and complimented him on its entirety.

The procuring of lower rates of insurance again came up on a motion of Murphy that the city clerk be instructed to procure photographs of the city and mail them with the city engineer's and chief of the fire department's reports to a number of different insurance companies which it is desired to interest in Dawson in a business way. His worship objected a trifle to the expense that would be entailed and said that he thought the effort would be of no avail. He personally has done everything in his power to induce some of the leading companies to establish agencies in the city, such as the Royal and the Scottish-American, but they had positively refused to touch Dawson.

Adair considered that with a photograph in front of them and the plans which many already have the companies could come to a much better understanding of the true conditions here than would be possible in any other manner. After some little discussion the resolution was agreed to.

Just prior to adjournment Macdonald said that Mr. Matheson of the water company had about decided to sign the contract and accept the terms of the council in the matter of the new water system. The contract is now being considered by Mr. Matheson's counsel and he thought the arrangements would be completed within a day or two.

Recovery is Slow.

Seattle, July 28.—Deputy Sheriff Jack Williams, who was seriously wounded in the battle with desperado Tracy near Bothell, July 3, is still confined to his bed and is suffering a great deal from the four wounds in the region of his heart. The pieces of the ball from Tracy's Winchester rifle had considerable force, even after striking the deputy's rifle barrel, and imbedded themselves so far into his breast that treatment was made difficult. Two of them struck ribs near the breast bone, slightly fracturing them. The rough edges of the bone cut into the flesh and cause the wounded man a great deal of pain.

To add to his suffering, inflammatory rheumatism has attacked his lower limbs. Whether this is caused by the wounds is not known, but the attack is an unusually severe one, and is especially dangerous because of the deputy's weakened condition from the wounds. Both legs are badly inflamed, the ankles and knees being greatly swollen.

Hamlett—"What part have they assigned to you in the new drama?"

Eggbert—"That of the decayed gentleman."

Hamlett—"Allow me to congratulate you, my boy. You are just the man to make a decided hit in that role."

Eggbert—"Why do you think so?"

Hamlett—"Because you are a rotten actor."

The Nugget's stock of job printing materials is the best that ever came to Dawson.

Was 'Knocked Out'

Joe Selix, a checker at the lower docks of the N. C. Co., was knocked insensible yesterday afternoon by being struck by a bale of hay which tumbled from a pile some ten or twelve feet high. Selix's back at the time was to the pile and he did not see it tottering, otherwise he could have gotten out of the way. Stevedores at work in the warehouse yelled to him but not in time to escape. When picked up he was unconscious and he was removed to St. Mary's hospital. No bones were broken and it is thought he will be out again in a few days.

Mrs. Stevens of 49 below on Hunter has been very ill for the past two weeks with no signs of improvement.

ELECTION ORDINANCE

Will be Presented Next Thursday

Meeting of the Yukon Council Day After Tomorrow—Maj. Wood Will Preside.

Councilman Arthur Wilson is in from Eureka for the purpose of attending a meeting of the Yukon council which it is presumed will be held on Thursday next. In official circles for some inexplicable reason there seems to be some doubt today as to whether or not the meeting will be held, though yesterday it was stated definitely that the territorial fathers would come together day after tomorrow. The most important matter to come up is the election ordinance which has already been prepared and is ready to be submitted to the council. It will provide for the election of five members to the council and fix the date of the election. Another ordinance to be presented is the distribution ordinance having for its purpose the division of the territory into five divisions as required by the order-in-council providing for the increased membership of the council. The exact nature in which such division will be made is not known and in the absence of any land surveys it has been a difficult matter to determine how the dividing lines shall be marked unless rivers or other natural boundaries be so employed.

Still another bill that will come up is Wilson's "deception" bill which will probably either be put through as it stands or make an amendment to the miners' lien law already in force.

If the session is called for Thursday Major Wood will preside as acting commissioner. The meeting will not be long, as it is considered that all the matters can be attended to at one sitting.

GOVERNMENT PAYS MEN

Telegraph Operators Receive Back Pay

But Will Not Return to Work Until the Former Wage Scale is Established.

The last mail to Dawson brought a check from the department of public works at Ottawa covering the salaries of the Dawson telegraph operators and employees up to the time they went out on a strike. The check did not provide for the payment of men at the upriver stations. This does not mean, however, that the strike which was inaugurated two weeks ago has been called off. The men are still out and state that they will not return to work until the old schedule of wages is restored. Two cuts have been made in the salaries of operators until they have been reduced below the amount paid to ordinary laborers.

The men are determined to bring the matter to a focus once and for all and will not report for duty until the former wages are restored.

Meanwhile the service is being maintained as well as possible under the circumstances. Today the line is down south of Selkirk and there is no information as to when it will again be in working order. There is no operator at Selwyn, the station at that point being abandoned.

Quads—"Funnyman tried writing his jokes on the typewriter but had to go back to his fountain pen."

Space—"What was the matter with the typewriter?"

Quads—"The bell rang too often."

Brown—"Tom Smith is what might be termed a rough diamond, but he is truly a king among men."

Jones—"Yes, and his brother Jack is a veritable knave and plays the deuce among the fair sex."

HAWKINS' PARTNER

Mr. J. H. Hughes Arrived Last Night

Rails for Dawson Railway Now En Route From Seattle to Skagway.

Mr. J. H. Hughes, one of Dawson's well-known successful merchants, who is now interested with Mr. E. C. Hawkins in the proposed Creeks Railway, arrived in Dawson last evening on the steamer "Yukoner." Mr. Hughes is very reticent in speaking of the affairs of the company but says that the rails for the first section of the railway have been shipped from the foundry and should have arrived in Seattle last Friday or Saturday.

Mr. H. D. Weeks, who is also interested in the company and who will have charge of the Dawson end, was in Seattle when Mr. Hughes left making arrangements for transportation of the rails from Seattle to Skagway.

Mr. Hawkins was expected in Seattle the latter part of last week and he and Mr. Weeks will start some time during the present week for Dawson.

Mr. Hughes stated that the construction of the roadway would be commenced this season and that the work would be rushed as rapidly as possible and an attempt made to get it as far as the Dome before the snow and frost put a stop to the work.

Judgment Awarded.

In Magistrate Wroughton's court this morning a Jap whose name sounded like Tomato Finetska was awarded judgment for $80 against Ben Cohen, a claim operator for whom he had been cooking. As the cook could not understand English, Ping Pong Barnato acted as interpreter.

ROAD WORK COMMENCED

Southern Division of the Overland Trail

Description of the Route Taken Between Whitehorse and the Pelly River.

Twenty-six men were passengers on the Yukoner yesterday from Whitehorse to Tantalus where they will at once begin work on the Whitehorse end of the overland winter trail. A. J. McPherson, who has had charge of that portion of the survey, has completed his work and before the week is out a half hundred or more men will be employed at different points along the route.

As located the road leaves Whitehorse and strikes directly back into the hills toward the copper mines; in fact, the same road will be used in reaching many of the most promising prospects adjacent to Whitehorse. A low range of hills is skirted until the Tahkeenah valley is reached when the Tahkeenah valley is followed for a considerable distance. Then the divide is crossed to the Nordenskiold and its valley is traversed for about twenty miles. Leaving the Nordenskiold a strike across the hills is again made until a point on the old cutoff below Lebarge is reached. Thirty miles of the old cutoff is utilized though it will be greatly improved and many of the kinks will be straightened out and the grades lessened. The first point on the Yukon that is touched is at Mackay's, where the river is crossed. Below Mackay's the river is followed for some distance the grade leading up to a small bench and thence behind a range leaving the ramparts opposite Selkirk to the right a mile or two. The Pelly is crossed four miles above its mouth which is the nearest point to Selkirk reached. The distance over the new route is practically the same as over the old, said to be approximately 145 miles.

to Mackay's from Whitehorse, but it has the advantage of being able to be used any month in the year. The road misses Lebarge by about twenty miles and traverses a section well adapted to road building, there being no swamps to speak of and but little wet ground. The southern section of the road will be completed at practically the same time as that on this end of the line and before snow flies it will be possible to drive to Whitehorse in a light conveyance without any trouble whatever.
