DOES NOT SUIT RUSSIA washington, April 20.—The stipulation in the treaty of peace between China and Japan that the Chinese who have been captured by the Japanese and others who sold supplies to the Japanese troops in their march through Manchuria and Shantun shall not be punished by the Chinese authorities was inspired by humane consideration. It is the custom of China to behead such of her soldiers as fall into the hands of the enemy and are afterwards returned to their country. During several naval and land engagements upwards of 5,000 Chinese troops were captured by the Japanese and it is to preserve their lives that the foregoing provision was inserted in the treaty. The same considerations influenced the other provision relative to the purchase of supplies from Chinese subjects. The curious fact develops in this connection that China has not a single prisoner of war belonging to Japan.

Until the beginning of the war between China and Japan each country had a consular jurisdiction over its subjects in the other country. It would appear that Japan will no longer grant this privilege to China although stipulating for a continuance of this right for herself. The explanation given for this exception is that Japan is now a civilized country with a code of laws based on the highest principles of justice and equity and that she can be safely trusted herefore, to deal fairly with the Chinese subjects living within her borders.

China, on the other hand, it is asserted, is still a barbarous country and foreigners residing there must receive the protection of their own country-since little, if any, will be afforded to them by the local authorities.

It was generally understood that the treaty would contain no clause to that effect, but the impression prevailed, and perhaps will not be altogether dissipated by the Japanese Government's denial, that there would be several secret agreements which would not be included in the official treaty. This special point aroused alch unanimous opposition that the Japanese Government made haste, through its minister to France, to allay the apprehension. says that the North German Gazette (semi-official) publishes an article of similar import to that contained in the Cologne Gazette on Saturday.

The Cologne Gazette on Saturday said in view of the pressure being exercised by the war party in Japan, Germany at the beginning of March enjoined the Japanese Government to be moderate in the terms demanded for peace, urging that the cession of territory upon the mainland of China would be especially calculated to induce the intervention of the powers. When it was shown by the published terms of peace that Japan was not disposed to follow Germany's advice, steps were immediately taken to establish an accord with the powers, and a complete agreement has been reached with Russia and France. The powers, Germany, Russia and France, will now take steps to protect their interests in Eastern Asia. The question of territorial changes will be first kept in view against Japan's desire to bind herself like a solid girdle e to find herself like a solid girdle nd China in order to shut off China rely from Europe. nothing undone to bring about the capture of the highwaymen.

Mrs. Parnell is 50 years of age.

Bordentown, N.J., April 22.—There is no material change in the condition of Mrs. Parnell since Saturday, as she is still unable to converse intelligently. Owing to her advanced age, her condition is regarded as being critical. What the physicians fear the most is the injury at the base of the brain. That her skull was not fractured scems almost a miracle, as the blow struck by the villain was evidently a terrible one. There is no clue to the perpetrator of the deadly assault,

Mrs. Parnell passed a good night and seemed brighter this morning, but as the day advanced, she grew weaker, and it is doubtful whether she will survive the shock of the assault. Nothing has yet developed to throw any light upon the case, although the detectives are still at work. The theory that the crime was committed by tramps is not believed.

WOODEN-LEGGED RACE.

A NOVEL CONTEST IN WHICH SIXTY-SEVEN PERSONS START.

Jolly Sport of the "Timber-Toed"-This Is the Newest Parisian Invention, and a Race on Crutches or Stilts is the Next

A race between sixty-six wooden-legged men and one wooden-legged woman was the novel sporting event which took place on March 10 at Nogent-sur-Marne, a pretty fillage three miles east of the Paris fortifications. Judging from the widespread attention which the contest attracted and the ardor of the numerous competitors, "courses de jambards," or wooden-leg races, bid fair to become epidemic in and around Paris during the coming summer.

The novel idea originated in the nimble brain of M. Viard, the one-legged tavern-keeper in this village on the river Marne. Business for the purveyors of food and drink—especially drink—has been much depressed of late, and one rainy evening not long ago, after listening for some time to the boasts of pedestrian prowess made by two of his patrons who were "timber-word" like himself, he offered to race them. by two of his patr toed" like himself toed" like himself, he offered to race them both twice round the large room for a

"The Terrible Champian of Belleville, widely known as 'licad of Celery', the professional acrobat, who will perform tomorrow in one of our grand Parisian cafe concerts."

The other surious types ranged in years from a boy of nine to a gray-beard of sixty. There were M. Roulin, who had come all the way from Orleans; "M. Jack," a burly Englishman dressed like an undertaker's mute; M. Floreat, "a lyric artist" from the Delassements-Comiques of Menilmontant, a well-known quarter of Parls, and the descendant of an illustrious family, M. le Conte de Stock. The one who attracted the most attention, however, was the sole representative of the feebler but more beautiful sex, Mile. Collet, who did, not draw back at the prospect of showing her wooden leg.

The course was about 600 feet in length, along the road lying between the river and the base of the vialuet of Nogent-sur-Marne. It was a most picture que spot, and a large crowd lined both sides of the track.

had lost their legs at the thigh, and two which punctuates has as much to do with whose stumps extended below the knees. After much discussion the committee declined to make any distinction, and a lively storm of protests at once arose. One of the runners objected obstinately and retired from the race. Finally, everything having been arranged, the starting signal was given, and M. Roulin, who had the advantage of a knee, was easily the winner.

It was so evident that his leg, having been cut below the knee, gave him great superfority over the "cuissards," or 1.05e who had lost theirs at the thigh, that he was at once unanimously disqualified.

He acknowledged the instite of the decis.

CAPT. DREYFUS' ISLE.

ne Wild Fever-Infested Island to Which the French Captain Has Been Exiled. the French Captain Has Been Exiled.
If you will look at the map of South America you will find near the coast of French Guiana, a few degrees from the equator, three small dots marked "Hes de Salut." Eight months of the year they are drenched with a flerce downpour of rain, such as is unknown outside the tropics. Fever, serpents and savage beasts infest the land, and the ocean surrounding it swarms with sharks. In this place Capt. Dreyfus, who was recently convicted of having betrayed military secrets of the French Government, will end his life. The Iles de Salut are three in number, and lie in the Atlantio Ocean, seven miles and lie in the Atlantic Ocean, seven miles off the mouth of the Kourou River and twenty-five miles northwest of the city of twenty-live miles nortaives of the city of Cayenne, the capital of French Guiana. The largest is the He Royale, which is about three miles long; the other two are a trifle smaller and are called He St. Joseph and He du Diable. All three are covered with dense forests and are esparated from one another by narrow channels.

On one of these islands the French Penal Administration has located a hospital for the convicts, whose health has been broken by a long sojourn on the mainland. One of the islands is inhabited by lepers who live there in complete isolation, awaiting the tardy approach of death to release them from their miseries. On one of the others a fortified prison will be established, to carry out to the letter the sentence of the French Council of War, which decreed that Capt. Dreyfus should explate his crime by life imprisonment in a fortified place in a convict colony of France.

French Guiana's reputation for unhealthiness is well justified. When, in 1852, the French Government decided to do away with the galleys at Toulon and other ports and send the convicts there On one of these islands the French do away with the galleys at Toulon and other ports and send the convicts there in to the colonies, Guiana was chosen as the chief place of deportation. The mortality among the condemned was terrible. The first arrivals were placed on the Hes de Salut, and an epidemic of typhus fever and dysentery broke out among them almost immediately. Prisons were then built on the mainland but there the yellow fever appeared and all but destroyed the convicts and their keepers. In two years a quarter of the guards were dead and a third of the prisoners. In the eleven years from 1852 to 1893, 23,087 convicts were sent to French Guiana, of these 11,488 died, 3,023 were liberated and returned home, 2,815 escaped or disappeared and but 1.501 remained alive in the colony.

In 1898 it was decided to deport most and but 1.001 remained alive in the colony.

In 1898 it was decided to deport most of the common felons to New Caledonia which is blessed with a remarkably fine climate. Life convicts and those especially dangerous, however, were still sent to Guiana. Then came fue law of 1.895 which banished Aparchists and others convicted of reliving offerces to Guiana. It seems

Before the races began the contestants busied themselves with all sorts of preparations. Some took a preliminary canter over the 'course, while others spent their time in putting the finishing touches to the wooden members. One of the champions even went so far as to give his a careful scraping. The ground was moist, and by this means he hoped to diminish the adhesion of the mud.

When 2 o'clock came the starter called the first race through an immense tin speaking-trumpet, but when the contest ants lined up an unforescen difficulty presented itself; there were sixty-five who had lost their legs at the thigh, and two

The weather was threatening, and the track slow and heavy from recent rains, but both participants and spectators were more than satisfied with the results, and there was much laughter as some of the runners went by jumping on all fours and turning cartwheels like a new species of kangaroo. There were several falls, but none of them serious. Towards the end of the contest the number of accidents in creased owing to the track becoming more slippery and to the contestants being less able to carry their constantly increasing loads of spirituous refreshment offered by the enthusiastic spectators.

After the races were over came the formal distribution of prizes which was accompanied by much cheering and popping of corks, and a continual murmur of "A votre sante, monsiour," "All a votre," which is the French way of saying "Here's looking at you" Paul Rouin carried off the first prize, a bronze statue of Fame, while the other winners were frame, while the other winners were presented with carved canes, bottles of champagne, pictures, medals and watchess. Beneath the Astor library are several silent tombilke rooms, which have remained entirely dark and securely locked for many years, except upon Wednesdays. This place is called the "Art Gallery," but its right to that title never would be suspected even by the most inquisitive visitor. Upon entering the visitor is greeted with echees, musty smells and startling sighs. The "occupants" seem in a condition of suspended animation varnished over and securely embalmed. Another, and a passionate girl, with revengeful eyes and with fingers contracted as if to grasp a knife, is meditating upon the commission of a crime. The painter tried to prevent the wrong and save the lives of both the victims and the murderses by stopping her before the faterful decision.

Then there is the ship salling away it wonderful stateliness, which, but for the painter, would possibly have gone on and been lost in a storm, and the child who, in affection and innocence, is kissing and delighting its mother would have grown into ungrateful and unlovely ways. A characteristic incident of a visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales and their daughters to the General Post Office has just become known. Most notable of all is the statue of a beautiful young girl, who, stancing upor tiptoe, has stopped the hands of the clock, so that she cannot grow old. She was caught and held in that position by some then unknown but possibly now famous sculptor before she had time to escape. Near by is a group of festal virgins enduring the historical punishment for unchastity—starvation—by being buried alive in an underground room. While the custodian of the building has provided the deathroom, some merelful power has thwarted the oruel intent of the sentence, and starvation and emancipation have now the well-rounded figures.

Nearly as beautiful and no less fortun at is the adjoining cluster of timid, wondering sheep, staring carnestly into the face of a dog which they are resisting. An impoverished condition of the blood, or a disordered condition of the nerves are fruitful sources of most ills that afflict mankind, and to any thus afflicted Dr. Williams' Pink Pills offer speedy and certain cure. No other remedy has ever met with such great and continued success, which is one of the strongest proofs that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills accomplish all that is claimed for them. They are an unfailing cure for locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus dance, sciatica, neuralgia, theumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration, discuses depending upon vitiated blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, curing all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radi-nature. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark. They are never sold in bulk, and any dealer who offers substitutes in this form should be avoided. These pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brock-ville, Ont., and Schenectady, N. Y., and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail at either address, at 50 cents or six boxes for $2.50.

Wild Animals in Finland. According to some official data just published at Helsingfors, the Finns would appear to suffer very considerable annual losses from the ravages of wild animals. During the ten years ending 1891 those losses are recorded as follows: 1,447 horses, 7,828 cattle, 55,765 sheep, 1,621 swine, 23,784 head of reindeer, 23,457 fowls, greese, ducks, turkeys, etc., the total approximate value of which was about two and a half millions of roubles. During the same period there were killed 1,624 bears, 1,209 wolves, 4,153 1yaxes, 47,281 foxes, 727 gluttons, 3,435 otters, 1,435 martens, 18,630 ermine, and 55,657 birds of prey, such as eagles, hawks, etc.,

From the latter group of figures it will be seen that the Finns wage a constant and energetie war against the wild fauna. The numbers of bears and 1yaxes have decreased, but foxes and other small wild animals appear to be increasing.

The British sportsman, writes our correspondent, would find a perfect paradise in Finland. It is not so far afield in these latter days of rapid transit and one could not desire more kindly natured and hospitable hosts than the Finns.—London Daily News.

when on wednesday a recigrant was received from one of the inspectors who was working on the case in Hamilton, Ont, asking if any persons had called at the Buffalo office for general delivery mail for George Morrison.

The clerks were examined and it was learned that a man by the name of Morrison had inquired about some letters, but had not received any that day. This information was wired to Hamilton. The mail sent to Morrison from his assistant, Mrs. Magk, was addressed to Morrison at the general delivery and as there was nothing for him Wednesday he had received everything up to that time. Morrison evidently became frightened and suddenly disappeared. Peat Office Inspector Ryan arrived here yesterday and found the soom where Morrison lived in South Division street where all trace of him was lost.

Two Others Brought Out in an Unconscious, on the April 15.—Hugh O'Meara, brother of Ald. Stephen O'Meara, Harry Wallace and M. Millor, entered the sewer at the corner of King and Ridout, and were working their way eastward, when O'Meara found himself becoming dazed by the effects of the gas, and started to leave the seeme of danger. Wallace also realized his peril, Miller, however, was by this time completely prostrated, and was found by his companions lying in the fifthy water. In endeavouring to convey Millor ta the man-hole, Wallace, too, was overcome. O'Meara, by a desperate effort, succeded in climbing the ladder and reaching the man-hole. Scarcely had O'Meara reached the surface when let, too, became unconscious, but soon revived. The rescuing natty entered the sewer and brought out Wallace in an unconscious condition. Engineer Graydon arrived on the seene shortly after and at once took steps towards scarching for the upfortunataman Miller.
